Judy Bensen Stigle is building a new house and working with the Republican party locally. Over Labor Day she saw Putzi von Rebhan Olsen and John who were married July 17 with Connie Quereau Graf in attendance. Since retirement from the National Gallery after 19 years Putzi finds she's busier than ever. Connie moved to the country in Gaithersburg, MD and, after 15 years at home with Jennifer, 16, and Jeff, 12, has returned to computer programming as a part-time consultant.

Ina Brown Johnson once again celebrated a mini reunion at the Derby with Carroll Randolph Barr, Mike,

Class of 1967

Margy Dortch Brooks and Billy Carroll is a tennis champ, playing in out-of-town tournaments, which must be what keeps her so trim. After returning taking the MacRae house in Linville, NC at our Reunion Silent Auction, Margy and her family went to Linville anyway, loved it, and hope to return next summer. She saw Page Munroe Renger and Jean Miller Sullivan when she and her daughter went to Charlotte. Page and Mary Lindsay Smith Newsom took their daughters, both 13, to NYC for a birthday excursion which included several shows and a day at Elizabeth Arden. Mary Lindsay is taking scuba lessons to keep up with Mac, working long and hard for her church and preparing for her term as president of the NC Art Society. She reports that "T" Burnette has a great job with the NC Office of Disabled Persons.

Dolly Caballero Garcia's daughter, Dolly, loves SBC, where she is a sophomore, class treasurer, and on the volleyball and basketball teams and on the Varsity Sports Council. Hallie Darby Smith went to England and France this summer, now teaches kindergarten, makes toys and works in a children's book store. She reports that Caroline Mueller is in Greece now. Britton Hassell Nielsen spent the night with Hallie while visiting her daughter, a freshman at U. of Richmond. In October Susan Tucker, Kay Trogden Hightower and Diane Mann Lankford spent a week in Paris together sightseeing and shopping. Susan preceded this with a safari to Kenya, June in Marrakesh, and a week in Paris. Tucker and Associates prospers, its owner the new V.P. of the French-American Chamber of Commerce. Martha Meehan Elgar, Stan, Kathy, 16 and Jim, 13 also took a grand tour last summer — the Grand Canyon, Tijuana, San Francisco and everything in between.

Gina Dunlap Cogswell has returned to GA State U. to obtain her masters in counseling and psychological services in anticipation of the end of her 3 year stint as director of the Committee to Combat Drugged and Drunken Driving. Stephanie Ewalt Ayers has been building a new addition and teaching nursery school, now that her youngest has started the big K. Patty Fischer has experienced myriad careers as teacher of French and Spanish, counselor in an alcoholism treatment center, veterinarian assistant and now, massage therapist, which she loves. Linda Fite returned to SBC this summer with her daughter to attend the Suzuki Institute, has taken up jazz dance to supplement racquetball and reports everything is A-OK.

Beth Gawthrop Riely reveals that while we were making merry in May she slipped over to the Creative Arts Center at Mt. San Angelo for a Boston Globe feature (see p. 2 this issue). Her articles appear in The New York Times, Connoisseur, and New England Living, which begins publication next spring with Cornelia Kennedy Suskind (SBC '81) as managing editor. Leilani Green Gordon had a long awaited baby girl, Amy Elizabeth, the darling of her brother Tarl, 11. Martha McKellar Steele also had a baby, William, her first, last April.

Peggy Minis Trethewey, after spending most of the last 2 years in Sydney, moved to Belvedere Island with splendid views of San Francisco across the bay. Janie Hansford Bronson, John, Cory, 7 and Alexandra, 2 have left Dallas for the New England countryside in New Canaan, CT. Heads up, Maria Wigglesworth Hemmings, out of the garden, out of the user's program for Control Data's new office computer 9370, and out of the coaches' uniforms for your daughters' soccer teams; she's headed your way!

Charlotte Hoskins Herbert, having also moved—to a new house in Myrtle Creek, OR—has expanded her grant writing duty as Chair of the County Library System into a profession and is writing two more grants. Shelly Gearhart Lindstrom and Tom moved into the Gearhart family homestead, added a barn for their horses and, please, the Daimler limousine previously owned by Lord Mountbatten. Another crosstown move has Gene King Leyden and family and their newly purchased house settled in a new spot in Ashland, OR where she is busily reattaching the covered porches when not teaching dancing and movement to children aged 2-11.

Lisa Harvey Morton and John, though not moving from Annapolis, are building a year-round house next to their summer house on Nantucket and anticipate spending much more time in New England as daughter, Caroline entered B.U. this fall. Glory McRae Bowen reports from the midst of major remodeling and redecorating following the removal of asbestos, that Glory, 12, continues her dancing and acting with great success and that Hardy, 7, has taken to tap dancing. Barbie Tillman Kelley has also taken to tapping her feet, on the pavement, walking rather than jogging in deference to her "42 year old feet."

Sally Twedell Bagley continues to supervise the tapping of piano keys while Philip makes the speaker's rounds at the annual meetings of the ABA and the Amer. Coll. of Real Estate Lawyers.

While she couldn't make Reunion, Pam Pryor did send her first note after 20 years, saying that she and Betsy Kurtz Argo enjoyed the Second Annual Old Dominion Reunion for Ohio alumnae of VA colleges. Pam teaches French to 170 "eager" students. Other "no shows" report: Toni Naren Gates continues to direct adult theater for children while daughter, Lindsay, has entered jr. high with the prerequisite 20 bottles of hairspray per week and Ryan, 8, spends an hour gelling his spike so it can fall on the bus ride to school. The purchase of Bud's company by a British concern will mean much travel abroad. Susan Sumners Alloway reports from Kilmer, NJ the demise of their prize steer (which means they have more) and the start of a baseball career as an ace ball catcher in need of a throwing arm. Her antique and Pueblo pottery business succeeds as a hobby but she, too, shuns the rigidity of a Real Job.

Lynn Gullett Strazzini and Ed are successfully maneuvering through 3 years of commuter marriage with Ed stationed in Alexandria, VA and Lynn an FAA specialist at JFK Airport from whence they commute to Williamsburg on weekends to "find romance and do the laundry." Pam Sullivan Livingston and Lynn Frazier Gas are contemplating life in Washington, DC. Elder Witt-Wellborn and Stan have both moved, she from Supreme Court coverage for Congressional Quarterly to work for Governing, a new CQ monthly covering state and local government and he, from U.S. News and World Report to be Senator Dole's campaign speechwriter. Mellie Hickey Nelson has left the Civil Division, Dept. of Justice for the Civil Rights Division where, as Deputy Chief of the Special Litigation Section, she enforces the civil rights of those institutionalized in state facilities. Clay Blackwell just missed reunion by a hair, starting as Assistant Director of the Annual Fund at SBC at the end of July, after quitting a killer job. Her son is off to VMI and her daughter has been accepted, early-decision, and will attend SBC. Janie Willingham Glass McNabb, having downed a wart-hog with one bullet on her trek to Africa, has been helping Lanny open his new Churchill's Restaurant - decorating and obtaining bids for services and equipment.

Pam Rutledge Ausley was recognized for her success in Birmingham, AL's real estate business. She was the 2nd highest salesperson in selling residential property, having sold more than $5 million in 1986. In between carpooling for the girls (who are now 9 and 5) and volunteer work, Paula Ayotte Corwin is "semi-gainfully" employed as an independent systems analyst. The Corwins continue their annual trips to Aspen. Baird Shinberger Bell, who is still teaching at St. Agnes', was one of 26 teachers selected from a nationwide pool to attend a summer workshop for teachers of h.s. chemistry at Hollins College. Anne Carr Bingham left the commercial real estate firm she had been with for 3 years and will take a little time off. Son Kim is still at St. Alban's and Alexandra at UVA. Katharine Barnhardt Chase's husband, Bob, returned from UVA to SBC in Jan. '87 after a year's sabbatical. Leslie and Alison turned 10 and 2 respectively in December. Sally Haskell Hulcher wrote about the fabulous reunion Sue Morck Perrin had in Greenwich for SBC suitemates and husbands - "Lindsay, Gretchen and I arrived with our original mates - a true phenomenon these days!" Judith Maness, who received an MHA from Duke in 1983, is vice president of support services at Riverside Hospital in Jacksonville, FL. She works on her new "old" house and shows her Shetland sheepdog (her horse has retired from showing). Margaret Mapp Young and Doug have discovered that big children (Douglas, 18, Mapp, 16, and Richard, 13) need more food, cars and money than little ones.

I saw Joan McClure McNamara and John and kids at their house in Mid-dletown, MD last summer. Joan is raising her two delightful girls and terrifically handsome son and sometimes plying her wallpaper hanging skills. Janie Eastin Hager is a hard-working mother, financial guru for their several medical related ventures. Bonnie Jackson Werbe III spends much of her time with choral music and poetry and, of course, her daughter. Bobo Covington Devens, having raised her two sons, earned a masters in Chinese History and has loved her work in China-related projects in NYC schools, museums, etc. for the last 8 years.

Norvell Jones, between caring for and conserving the constitution during its 200th birthday year and I, between far too many volunteer activities, made elaborate plans for our 25th St. Agnes Reunion until which most of our class had been out of touch since graduation. In its way it almost equaled my favorite weekend in 1987! What a warm, wonderful feeling erases all those years when you renew, even so briefly, the friendships and experiences of what are to us now, inevitably, "the good old days."

Our class seems to be carrying out the Chinese curse, "May you live in interesting times." We are seeking out that which is of interest, and we are developing our abilities. I can hardly wait until our 40th, say, reunion: what a bunch of unique characters we will have become!

Liz Mumford Wilson now paints primitive landscapes in oils, and has had several shows in Indiana and on Cape Cod. Liz comments, "I still use basic art theory and techniques I learned in art from Mr. Oliver and Mr. Twiddy. It's always there!" Sioux Greenwald toured China and Tibet and visited Australia, where she saw Ann Tippin, who lives in Sydney. Sioux's writing and research skills that she developed as a history major have helped her enormously with her job in telecommunications in NYC. Mary Frances Oakey Marshall's education at SBC helps her juggle the schedules and paperwork involved in being a P.T.A. president along with raising Tevis (12) Claiborne (9) and Courtney (3). Dr. Betty Duson and her husband became adoptive parents of Andrew McNaughton Kahn, and they are putting in equal time at home and at work in their psychology practice. "I suppose this is one of Sweet Briar's messages to its women?" asks Betty. Alison Yust Rowe is "not excelling, but enjoying - perhaps the most important." She is working on her novel and spending time with Meredith (11) and Alison (10).

Lodi Kysor earned her DVM degree last spring and now practices veterinary medicine in Ashland, VA. She sees Sioux and Val Murphy fairly regularly. Now a customs and immigration law attorney, Beryl Bergquist Farris has been chosen an International Business Fellow, and is studying at the London Business School this year. Her writing has appeared in several publications, she averages 8 speaking engagements a month, and was involved with the hostages at the penitentiary in Atlanta. Husband Marc has started a business incubator space venture; Kristin is 6 and Ariana 3. Dr. Linda Lewis Brauer writes from Sheboygan that her family plans to move - half a block away! She is still a dentist, and her own two boys (9 1/2) are in braces; they are at that age where they bring both an old teddy bear and stick deodorant to sleepovers! Lindsay is 7 1/2. In Rockville, MD, Linda Hill Krensky had her first child in November with her second husband, Steven, but now they have 6 all together. They are planning to move to a bigger house!

More babies: Carter Burns

Cunningham and husband David had Laura Hammond last April. Maisie (5) is a "perfect big sister." Marilyn Kolb had her first child, Allison, in March 1987, and has returned to work (reluctantly, it sounds like) as assistant general counsel for The Boston Co., part of American Express.

Melissa McDowell Stevens added another son to their family of boys, ages 10 and 5. She and husband Shelby are stationed at Fort Benning, GA. Dr. Caroline Gibbs reports the birth of William Fort Crosswell on June 20, 1986. Caroline lives and practices in Columbia, SC. Dr. Patty Schwalm has added Patrick Alexander McNulty to her family in La Grange Park, IL. Barbara Gracey Backer reports that David Clark was born in June and joined John (2). Spouse Ron is now in the family insurance business, which they are buying from her father. Barbie's years at SBC have given her "the confidence to try to do it all." She says that life is just like college - only "with lots more homework." Elisabeth Anne was born to Kristi Bettendorf Swartz in November 1986. They were expecting a boy, according to ultrasound indications, so Elisabeth's room was redecorated when she was one month old. Kristi also has a son (5) and has returned to work. An attorney, she runs the felony division of the state attorney's office in Miami, FL, and husband Jeff is in his own law practice. Libby Tyree Taylor is now a mother of 2: Lee (1) and Alexandra (5). Libby is taking interior design and computer courses so that she can do graphic work on the computer. Her parents are moving from Chicago to an old family home in Lexington, VA and husband Barry returns yearly to interview at UVA law school, so Libby is looking forward to revisiting VA and especially SBC.

Wendy Weiss Smith has been traveling, reunioneing, and enjoying aunthod in Littleton, MA. Sister Chris Weiss Pfeil ('74) had her first child, Richard, last spring, and Chris' twin, Cathy Weiss Thompson ('74), is building a hilltop home in Winchester, VA. Wendy traveled to her high school reunion in suburban Cleveland right after a spring business trip with spouse Gilbert to Florence. She teaches English as a second language to computer company employees in the Boston area and their families.

"Sweet Briar really fostered my interest in art," writes Jeannette Bush Miller, now working at the Montclair (NJ) art museum. She coordinates concerts, school visits, film series, and handles other administrative duties. Sarah (3) is doing well. Susan Sellers Ewing has joined the board of SBC's Friends of Art. Mary Lou Skinner interrupted her architecture practice in Santa Fe to go on a 2-week river rafting trip through the Grand Canyon with Rocky. Lynne Manov Sprinsky received her MBA from Texas A & M and will be moving to an area that holds job opportunities for both her and husband Bill. On a trip to Europe last May, Lynne and a friend closed a pub in Wales after singing all night, and then rented a boat in Burgundy. SBC has helped her career (not to mention her French) because she can "integrate all the business disciplines much more fully than business-trained colleagues." She adds that liberal arts graduates with MBAs are very popular. Katie Horan is still happy at Merrill Lynch, and spends her free time with her two horses. She hopes to visit Australia this year for its bicentennial. Kathy Wilson Lamb probably wrote her postcard in the car. Kathy chauffeurs Marie (12) and Katie (9) to tennis, soccer, swimming, and piano, and she tries to squeeze in some tennis, exercise, and volunteer work. Kathy visited Becky Bottomley Meeker and Wendy Norton Brown last year in VA and reports that they are "terrific." She also saw Kathy Jones Youell, who is making good progress after a burst aneurysm.

Dr. Margaret Mackie Sanders' practice in Dallas is going well, and she and son John are happy there. She visited her sister, a Navy wife, in Hawaii last year. Lydi Preston Hicks is a writer/editor in Washington DC. Carol Johnson Haigh comments from Sudbury, MA that her SBC education gave her the skills and confidence to research and bring to public forum a very "hot" local issue. Their management consulting business is going well, and Carol is involved with Brownies, school, and speedwalking. "No new births or marriages - thank God!" says Maggie Mather Feldman. Maggie finds that her family likes her better now that she is no longer president of the Syracuse (NY) Junior League. Instead, she is New York State manager for the Carlisle Collection, recruiting, training, and managing "consultants" across the state. She enjoys the people, the product (what is the product, Maggie?) and the flexible hours, which gives her more time to be with Kate (10) and Julie (7). Wendy Norton Brown has gotten a lot of mileage out of her Reunion "cow" t-shirt. Everyone asks about it. She vacationed for a week at Chincoteague with Kathy Garcia Pegues and family. Wendy teaches pre-school and carpools with David (11) and Christopher (8).

When she is not working with her beloved horses, Honey Hammer works at Bank One, Dayton, starting up a sales training department. Currently the owner of 4 horses, she also teaches dressage, judging, and riding, and she still shows herself in the evenings and on weekends. Another Ohioan, Gale Hull Whetzel, is working part-time in the library of a law firm, and gets home in time to be with Robin (12) and Jamie (8) after school. She also writes a newsletter for a wildlife rehabilitation organization, and has many animals recuperating in her house. Dr. Barbara Wuehrmann has a busy family practice in Grand Rapids, MI, and husband Jim Palazzolo travels a lot as a materials handling consultant. They plan to be out my way in CO for some skiing. Carol Everest Keeney, transplanted from the Deep South, finds San Diego "wonderful!" She and Arthur have started their own business selling critical care monitoring equipment to hospitals. Malcolm is 11, and Sarah, 3.

"What's hardest about life after Sweet Briar," writes Jacque Penny Goldstone, "is trying to find those kinds of friendships - maybe it was the age?" She runs the Budget Tapes & Records Store in Portland, while Bob works for a company that supplies the "competition." They are trying to sell the store in Yakima, which they ran for 12 years, and Jacque has mixed feelings about it. Martha Roton Terry, a senior systems analyst, went to both her and her husband's high school reunions last year. Caldwell enjoys kindergarten, and Ann is 2. Martha sees Frances Barnes Kennamer often. Pam Henery Arey organized an auction; she also went through her mother's illness and death by cancer in 1987. At SBC, Pam learned to sometimes compromise and to decide carefully what she would stand up for. Lendon Gray moved to Stanfordville, NY, and says her whole life "revolves around training, teaching, and competing." I learnt from news clippings sent by the office that, having won more than 25 national and international medals, she is the most decorated dressage rider in the US. Lendon had a successful year with her horses and students, having coached the winner of the North America Young Rider Championships. Also this year, horses she trained took 5 New England championships and 3 national championships. Her students include SBC alums Tracy Bregman ('78), Charlene Reed ('73), and Diana Gordon ('75). Two of her horses are shortlisted for the '88 Olympics.

Carol Remington Foglesong is director of development for Junior Achievement in Winter Park, FL. Spouse Richard is professor of political science at Rollins College. Kathy Crilley Fulmer is chairman of the Memphis Junior League Crystal Ball. She reports that Rhoda Allen Brooke was co-chair of the Cincinnati Antique Show in October. She also saw Sherrill Marks Byrd, who has 2 boys, Nelson and Hudson. The Cameron (NC) Pilot reports that Pamolu Oldham has received a $20,000 fellowship from the National Endowment for the Arts. Pamolu plans to use the fellowship to complete a novel, tentatively titled Luce. Featured in a Sweet Briar Alumnae Magazine article in 1987, Pamolu founded Crane's Creek Press and Art Center in Cameron and teaches English at Fayetteville Technical College. If you are not a doctor, lawyer, systems analyst, published writer or hung painter (sorry, Liz!), don't feel bad. Neither am I. We make up the big bulge in the bell (ha ha! get it?) curve. I am currently teaching preschool in Loveland, CO. Loveland is directly east of Rocky Mountain National Park, and we can drive to Denver in an hour. My children Julia (9) and Steven (6) are both in school all day this year, and I am enjoying a few hours of quiet now and then. I had rather a rough year. In April I was diagnosed as having breast cancer, so I had a mastectomy and then six months of chemotherapy, as there was some lymph node involvement. I am currently looking forward to breast reconstructive surgery, and then will feel that I can put it all behind me. Chemotherapy is not as bad as you hear and I kept most of my hair. A network of friends supplied me with casseroles, babysitters, and transportation to my chemo appointments. A catastrophic illness can give a wonderful illumination of one's life and help one to sort out priorities. I have more time for my children now and less time for volunteer jobs that others can do just as well. As an English major, I found much to fall back on: Chaucer's translation of Boethius; Wordsworth; and Psalms. I'll be okay; you'll be hearing from me again next fall. But if you can say a prayer or think a positive thought for me, I'd appreciate it.

From the post card you received, you all know about Cathie Grier's busy Fall! Cathie and Bill Kelly were married on Oct. 31, 1987 at First Presbyterian Church in Charlotte, NC. Bridesmaids included Carol Brewer Evans and Ellen Harrison Saunders. Carol and Ellen gave a luncheon in Franklin, VA for Cathie. Betsy Brooks Jones, Kathy Rose Rawls and Gray Thomas Avery attended. Cathie and Bill honeymooned at St. John's in the Virgin Islands.

In Cincinnati, OH, Jeannine Petersen Laskey and Tom started a temporary service in May 1984 and passed the million dollar mark in annual sales this year. They are busy with Andrew, 5, Lauren, 2, and their new house. Also working together are Stephanie Dewey Hoffman and Ron in their ad agency in Memphis, TN. They have a line of about 11 houseware kitchen gadgets and are also building their first house. Holly Morrissett Emison and John are in Richmond, VA. Anne Harding, 10 months, joined her brother, Graham, 4. John is sales manager with the Benson Co. (industrial supplies). Holly's company, Snelling and Snelling, was recognised as #9 in the entire U.S., out of over 400 franchises. She opened Snelling Temporaries in Sept. 1986 and that office qualified for the Top 10 in the nation in June 1987. Another award winner is Johna Pierce, in Annapolis, MD. Director of public affairs for the Human Nutrition Information Service of the USDA, Johna was cited as one of America's top 40 public servants, age 40 and younger. Chris Hoefer Myers will be singing for Johna's wedding soon.

In Chicago, IL, Susan Buschmann Curry and Dave have a new baby, Timothy Thayer. Their garden placed fourth in the Dearborn Street Garden Walk and Dave's law firm has a new building so luxurious that Susan is thinking of moving in! She is also thinking about going back to work. Linda Poole Maggard and her husband are also parents of a new baby, Benjamin Poole, born in March. Even though Linda's busy with the 2 boys she plays golf once a week and does volunteer work in Santa Ana, CA. From Charleston, SC, Anne Cogswell Burris and Lon send news of daughter, Carrie's, birth on Feb. 12. She joins her brothers Scott, 6, Ben, 4, and Will, 3. They all spent the month of July on Sullivan's Island. Anne is again instructing at a local exercise studio and redecorating their house. Dey Passerello Mathews and Scott announce the birth of James Scott, IV on Dec. 26, 1986. Dey finds Atlanta, GA, still fun and they're busy decorating their fifth home in 7 years.

In Sanbornville, NH, Randy Anderson Trainor and Anne are still in the growing business: greenhouses and outdoors. Despite a busy summer they vacationed on St. Martin. At home, Sarah, 16, has her driver's license and is a junior at Holderness. Cliff, 4, has started nursery school and Cary, 2, rules the roost! Cynde Manning Chatham, husband John, Gene and the twins are happy in Spokane, WA. Cynde has been involved in a Scottish Country Dance group so she can keep her St. Andrews roots growing! Bonnie Walton Mayberry is still at Elon Elementary School teaching first grade. Daughter, Megan, is now 6. Bonnie and Jerry are slowly getting their lives back together after daughter, Melissa's, death two years ago. One day Bonnie hopes to publish a book about their grief. Jerry is still with Babcock and Wilcox and they are still living in Madison Heights, VA.

Cecilia Robertson recently married William Charles Huggins, Jr., of Columbia, SC. Charlie is a systems analyst. Cecilia enjoys her work at the American Heart Association but wishes she had more time at home with her new spouse! Carroll Waters Summerour and family had a busy summer in New Orleans buying her parent's house and moving in and taking over a day camp of over 225 children, all in the same week! Carroll has been elected to the Board of Trustees of Trinity Episcopal School where their boys (Patrick, 5th grade and William, 2nd grade) are in school. Kaki, 3, is in nursery school. Chris Hoefer Myers described a special day when Pope John Paul II visited Columbia, SC, on Sept. 11. As president of the Parish Council, she was given a seat at St. Peters Church. The Pope stopped, put his hand on her head and said, "God bless you." Chris will never forget it!

Leslie C. Thornton bought a townhouse in Arlington, VA in May, 1987. She works for Hill and Knowlton, the largest PR firm in the world. Leslie had dinner with Linda Lucas Steele and her mother and baby, Molly. Leslie sees Wendy White ('74) often. Carol Brewer Evans and Jim are busy with Catherine, 6, and Carey, 3, in Franklin, VA. Carol organized a consumer credit counseling service and is the part-time financial counselor. It's a long way from environmental studies but she's enjoying it! Lindsay Walker Ormsby, who earned both her B.A. and her law degree from the University of South Carolina, is now an associate with a law firm in Greenwich, CT, where she lives with her husband, David.

In Richmond, VA, Catherine Cranston Whitham juggles the children's activities, her volunteer work and her job as executive recruiter at Thalhimers. Catherine hopes to work with Carter Hopkins (SBC Career Planning Director) on the task force to study "the liberal arts education" for the Southern College Placement Assoc. She and Whit were looking forward to a week in the West Country of England. In Hillsborough, NC, Sara Ruhle Kyle and husband were eagerly awaiting the birth of their second child due in mid-Oct. Richard is now 2. In June, Sara participated in a musicology conference at Wellesley College (see p. 4 of this issue). The speakers and concerts were outstanding but the dorm life and college food left much to be desired. Joanna Arias finished her training in plastic surgery and is now in a group practice at the Geisinger Medical Center in Danville, PA. Most of her free time is spent taking riding lessons (English) and redecorating her recently purchased home. Dolores-May Scott is still a social worker at Boston City Hospital. Her weekends are spent house-hunting in RI and doing craft projects.

In Brentwood, TN, Bet Bashinsky

White and Case moved from the farm to town where she has started a commercial and residential construction company. This summer she went to the north country to visit Gail Ann Zarwell Winkler ('76) and family. They canoed, fished and listened to the loons! From Richmond, VA, Terry Starke Tosh reported that she, Ed and the girls spent a week on Ocracoke Island, NC with Connie Radford Butler ('76), her husband and children. In May, Terry and Sarah Dowdye visited Louisa Dixon in Besancon, France, where Louisa is assistant to the director of the Knox College Jr. Yr. in France program. Terry hopes that Louisa remains in France to give them an excuse to have the SBC/JYF reunion again next Spring! Louisa enjoys the CBS News by Dan Rather which is broadcast daily, in English, on French TV. Ginny Shipe Cameron in Laurel, MD, is planning a mini-reunion in FL with Betsy Clay Fernandez-Rizo (visiting from Spain), Helen Harrison Witty and Elaine Altice Baker. Ginny's eldest son Scott started first grade and step-daughter Carole is in her first year at Southern Sem. In the spring they enjoyed a trip to St. Thomas.

As a result of Patty O'Malley Brunger's trip to the Alamo, they now have two little Davey Crocketts! Patty, Mark and boys, ages 3 1/2 and 5, also enjoyed a trip to the beach in Pensacola, FL. They are still in Richardson, TX. Shari Mendelson Gallery says her consulting business is keeping her plenty busy, as if the kids weren't enough! She is expecting twins in late February, to join Matthew, 4 1/2 and Nathon, 2 1/2. In Raleigh, NC, Cathy Cowdery Etheridge is expecting child #4 in Feb. and they are home schooling their eldest. Cathy wants to encourage more stay-at-home moms to write about their families. (No one should be discouraged from writing because you think that we only want to read about exciting events. We want to hear from everyone even if it's only a message that you're busy with the important job of keeping your family life calm and happy.)

Worden Willis Galasso writes from Attleboro, MA that she is still working at Bank Hapoalim as a commercial loan officer concentrating in new business development. For 3 years she has been involved in the Jr. League, training women's groups in RI in career tracking, resume writing, and other skills. Beppy Walton, still in Birmingham, AL, travels a lot for business and pleasure to places such as London and the Caribbean. She worked in Alaska earlier this year and also happily reports that her sister had another baby. In Conway, MA, Diana Martin Gordon and Jeff are experiencing first time parenthood with the birth of Miles Spencer on Sept. 15. Diana is still teaching piano at a prep school and enjoying dressage on her pint-sized horse, Pip. From Amherst, VA, Ella McGinnis Hanson Magruder and Mark also report a new baby daughter Mia Gresa who joined son Conan on April 21. Mark and Ella Mac are still dancing/teaching and touring with their dance company Menagerie.

Rose Anne Toppin Cranz reports from Fort Worth, TX, that Buzz has recovered beautifully from his illness and 4 year old Foster is a pleasure for them. Rose Anne, still playing tennis, says that her 4.0 Volvo team won the state championship in Dallas and planned to travel to SC for the Nationals on Oct. 15. Rose Anne provided news of Mary Henningsen Collins who was expecting twins any day. She also wonders if anyone knows how to contact Neil Hunter. Gray Thomas Avery and Rusty have a new son, William Thomas Larus Avery, born on April 8. In Richmond, VA, Gray is mothering, volunteering, and working, in that order. Catherine is 3 1/2 and in nursery school 5 days a week; Thomas goes one day. The whole family vacationed with Ann Wesley Ramsey and her family in Manchester, MA for a week in July. They had a great time and even went whale watching. From Miami, FL, Helen Harrison Witty's big news is the birth of their son, John Calvin Witty, III. Helen's brother's son was born the same day and is also named John! Elaine Altice Baker visited with Helen in the spring. Elaine can be seen in the November issue of Cosmopolitan modeling her FILA tennis clothes.

Nan (Stanley) Stuart is with the S. Lake Tahoe Humane Society as a state Humane Officer. She travels all over the country teaching seminars on investigating horse abuse; she recently gave one in Durango, CO. Also, this spring she testified before the CA Assembly for a bill regulating rental stables. Husband Eric travels with Stanley often. They have 6 golden retrievers, 2 cats and 3 horses.

Debbie Goitein Hodge and Angus had their first child, Devon Ann, on June 17. They are awaiting completion of their home renovation in Titusville, NJ.

Dot Lyons-Heffner and Glenn enjoy being back in Cleveland, OH, and have settled into their new house. Dot has her own horse, an Appaloosa gelding, which she is training. Or, she wonders, is he training her?

Pamela Myre Turner and Ray are building a house in Huntsville, AL. Lauren, 8, Beverly, 3, and Patrick, 1, keep Pam busy. Beth Jones Elkins, Steve, Meredith and Greg live in Philadelphia and enjoyed a vacation in VT. Beth works as a paralegal from her home for an attorney she worked for in Washington, DC, 10 years ago, and likes the job's time flexibility.

In Naples, FL, Marybeth Connor Hamlin and Bob bought their first home in August and are expecting their first child in Feb., 1988. Marybeth is still teaching British Literature at Barron Collier H.S. Betsy Rawles moved back to Richmond, VA, from S. Lake Tahoe but she still sees a lot of Stanley Stuart. Winsy Walker visited with Betsy on a recent business trip. Lynn Norris Pfeiffer, John, and sons Chris, 4, and J.B., 2, still love their new house and 5 acres in Hudson, FL. Lynn teaches music to Chris' kindergarten class. Last December Lynn and the boys visited Janet Sheppard Kelleher and her 3 children in SC. Ginny Holden and Scott adopted a 17 lb. tabby cat, Murphy. Ginny and Scott still practice law between vacations: St. Johns, Virgin Gordon, and the Hamptons are some of their recent destinations.

In Rolling Hills, CA, Carol Clement Pavia and Frank expect their second baby in Dec. They are remodeling their house. Louis, 2 1/2, just started preschool. Carol is an area v.p. with ADIA and manages 9 branches. From Oakton, VA, Beverley Crispin Heffernan writes that Jim continues to work hard as an attorney in the DC office of an Indiana law firm and is forever looking forward to the next SBC reunion! Jimmy is in the first grade and Chris is practicing his "nos" in preparation for turning 2 in Nov. They flew their own plane to FL, TX, and points in between. Bev. is still enjoying the hectic housewife pace. And she's still riding and hunting on old Nick, 20, who graduated from SBC with her. Kathy Orr Knuth and Roger enjoy their house in Lake Forest, IL. They visited Melissa Greenwood Riemer and her family in England this summer and will return for Thanksgiving. Melissa's husband, Jeff, is Kathy's cousin. From New Orleans, Claire Martin Avegno and Tim report that Martin, 4 1/2, is in pre-kindergarten and Caroline, 2, attends playschool 3 days a week. Claire volunteers for the Parenting Center, serves as the pre-k room mother and works on a committee for the Boo-to-Do at the zoo. When they have time they enjoy their beach home in Pass Christian.

Christine Kjellstrom Douglas and Sandy are still working on their house in Fayetteville, NY, and spend their spare time in the Adirondacks where Sarah Johann Ellison and Greg, with Mary, 1, and Charles, 5, joined them in Aug. Christine took an accelerated course at the Isabel O'Neill studio. From Essex Fells, NJ, Carol Leslie St. John reports that on Aug. 24 Harry Thomas St. John joined Bryan, 6 1/2, and Kevin, 4. Husband Tom started his own design business last year and things are still going well. Carol visited with Martha French Roberts last winter in Houston for Martha's son's christening. Martha has since had a baby girl named Malone. Barbie Tafel Thomas and Joe are busy in Louisville, KY, with children in grades K, first and third, 3 cats, 3 aquariums and 1 dog. Barbie volunteers at the children's school, works at their church related tearoom, and participates on 2 tennis teams and in an aerobic class. They are looking forward to their favorite winter sport: skiing.

From St. Louis, MO, Mary Dubuque Desloge is delighted to announce the arrival of Raymond Amadee Dubuque Desloge who joined his brothers on Jan. 1, 1987. Mary says that their doormat reads, "It's a jungle in here" and it is - with three boys under age 5! Dorsey Tillet Northrup is expecting their third child in early December. Dorsey played on a traveling Volvo tennis team this summer (just like Rose Anne's). Cecelia Clark Turner married David Melesco on Aug 1, 1987. Cameron, 6, Clark, 4, and David's son Todd, 13, live with them in Rocky Mount, VA. They have been traveling a lot, especially to Charlottesville for UVA games. Cece isn't working now and stays busy with the children. On Long Island, Bonnie Damianos Rampone and Chuck have moved into their new home. They've enjoyed travelling with the boys, Chuckie, 6, and Chris, 4, to places such as Vail, Washington, DC, and CA. Bonnie is a Sunday School teacher, a member of the PTA and does other "mommy things". This fall she and Chuck plan to attend a convention in Vancouver. They'll meet friends in Calgary and take the train through the Canadian Rockies. Anna Ho Mah earned her MBA from Duke in 1987. While in the program she continued her current position as the vice president of Computer Imaging and Graphics, Inc. in Research Triangle Park. Kathy Rose Rawls and David are expecting a new baby to join Virginia Eleanor (Ginger), 1 1/2, in Jan. Kathy is still assistant director of the pharmacy at Louise Obici Memorial Hospital in Suffolk, VA, and is involved in many community activities.

As for me, I've loved hearing from each of you! Life is hectic here in Suffolk, VA with Harrison, 5, and Mary-Carson, 1 1/2. Whitney and I wouldn't trade our lifestyle for the world but we do remember longingly the quiet dinners and intellectual conversations B.C. (before children)! Although still at home, I'm active as a region chairman for Sweet Briar, a session member of our church and a member of various organizations. I know that Cathie Grier Kelly will look forward to hearing from everyone again next year.

What's new with the class of '79? Here, in no particular order: Laurie Bowen Carmichael has a one-year old daughter, still teaches aerobics and does volunteer projects. Lydia Wardwell Zimmerman manages a branch office of Transohio Savings Bank and is also a mortgage loan officer for them. She has 2 daughters with very German middle names - hope Herr Horwege appreciates that! Susan Andrews Cruess and Leigh are asst. v.p.'s at Citibank in leveraged financing and corporate lending. They see Karen Kuhlman ('78) on the train from Chicago in the evenings. Their 18 mo. old son is keeping them very busy. Betsy Hester is his godmother. Sally Byron LaBarre and Dave have been fixing up and selling their old house and are soon to move into their new one. Sally represented MD at the American Heart Assoc. conference in New Orleans last fall.

Lisa Hagan Kliefoth and Chris had a baby boy in Sept. His first visitors were Judy Williams Carpenter and Ray. Lisa is taking a few months off from her job as an advertising copywriter. Caro Lawrence is now Mrs. Phillip Bahnsen. They were married Christmas Eve 1986. Phillip is a chiropractor in Georgetown. In November '87, Louise Law married David Hoyle, a partner in a NY investment management firm.

Debbie Kocik Benton has forgone the traditional practice of law and is a freelance editor for a law book publisher. She is also the co-author of a law book due out in late '88. She's now able to be home with her 3 year old daughter but managed trips to England and Washington, DC, where she stayed with Ginger Pierson. Nancy White Bryant and G.B. participated in the World Sailing Championships in Bermuda in November after months of practice. Nancy has started a fine art consulting firm and sees a lot of Marianne Hutton Felch. Jody Booze-Daniels and Lee had a baby boy named Graham (excellent taste). They are both working for Va. Tech. (Jody and Lee, not . . .!). Lisanne Eustis wants to immediately dispel the rumor that she is the mother of a darling little boy! She is currently teaching kindergarten. She's very active in the theatre, but while waiting for that big break, she'd like Ed McMahon to send the long overdue check!

Lauren MacMannis Huyett is in Bethesda taking care of her two children. She's a provisional in the Jr. League and, as a deacon at her church, she delivered flowers to a graduate of SBC '32! Prudence Saunders was married to Wade Pitcock in September. She says "Prudence Pitcock" sounds like an English storybook character! She is editor of Thoroughbred South and breaks yearlings. Her husband owns a farm in KY producing alfalfa, black walnuts and Christmas trees. Holly Butler Prather and Stan have purchased a new house and Holly finds time from stock breaking (?) to get their house in order.

Well, Susan Anthony Lineberry is producing enough dates for any 21st century shindig. By the time you read this, she and Neil will have their 4th boy! Pam Ramsdell Mitchell is near Tampa where, in between taking care of her daughter and son, she is learning to smock and quilt. Clara Jackman Garbett had a daughter in October. Susan Owen announces with glee that she has shed some excess baggage and is happily living with her daughter in NC. She'll be skiing full-time this winter with the Pro Ski Patrol in Banner Elk, NC. Connor Kelly offered classes at SBC in Dance/Movement Therapy and saw Sarah Skaggs while there. Connor just accepted a committee chair on the board of directors for the American Dance Therapy Assoc. She's heard from Karen Ries who is living in Copenhagen and traveling all over the world.

Kate Evans is in DC working for Scalandre as their contract sales representative. Robbie McBride is working at Shearson Lehman Brothers in Beverly Hills and is the treasurer of the SBC Alumnae Club of Southern California. Tricia Patterson became Mrs. Duane Graham last winter. She is the Human Resources Director for a charter Medical Corporation Hospital. Sandy Erlebach Gershenfeld traveled to Europe on business while pregnant with her second son. She and Richard moved into an old house and are fixing it up. Annette Teng Cheung lives in the Bay area and returned to her job at Signetics after the birth of her daughter in May. She was hoping to visit with Barbara Mallet and hike and bike.

Amy Smith Modrick is the assistant news director at a TV station in Lynchburg and says that Jerry Falwell is keeping them busy with his antics! Phyllis Shelton Higginbotham worked up until a week before the birth of her son. She's decided not to return to work and has found that the renovation and redecoration of their house has sped up considerably. Anne Garrity Spees returned to her job at the U.S. State Department after the birth of her son last April. Saralee Cowles is his godmother and is at the U.S. Department of Treasury but stole away to the Spanish Riviera for her first vacation in 5 years. Cindy Little Townsend is working as a C.P.A. while awaiting the birth of her second baby. She's hoping for an additional dependency deduction in 1987! Hannah Craighill Moorehead was in a costume of sorts on or about Halloween. She and Chip had their first baby then! Too bad Mary Harris isn't in obstetrics - she's working at Johns Hopkins in Baltimore!

Caroline Curme Angelica continues working with the Bank of New York and she and Peter have left the rat race of NYC and are settling into the quiet life of New Jersey. Beth Timken Diehl took time off from her job with Citicorp in Baltimore to visit Kate Hardin in Atlanta. Beth's job is hectic but she relaxes by riding and is hoping to own her own horse soon. Pam Weiler is working as a product manager for a German specialty chemical company and traveled with the SBC Alumnae Club to Australia and New Zealand. Karen Jaffa McGoldrick is in Atlanta, doing dressage full time, riding, teaching and sitting on the Board of the GA Dressage and Combined Training Assoc. Lawrence and she are still renovating their house - she says the end is in sight but when finished she never wants to hold another paintbrush! She received a birth announcement from Cathy Calello Staples whose baby was born 1 day before she was due to teach the first class of spring term Villanova freshmen!

Wendy Worthen is in Atlanta working for J.P. Stevens Engraving Company where she has been for the last 6 years. Becky Trulove Symons and Don are heading back to Becky's home state of NC and expecting their first baby in May. Edwina Lewis Belding, in Albany, NY, had her daughter New Year's Eve '86! Betsy Byrne Utterback is in Wayne, PA, with her husband and 3 children. She has her own interior decorating business and sees Louise Wright McHaffie and Sally Ann Sells often and saw Karen Alex Bender this summer. Beth Bogdan Tetrault is working for the Henrico, VA area MH & MR Services as a training specialist. Leslie "Pete" Forbert Miller and Jess own a thriving video business and are the requisite videotapers at SBC Alumnae Reunions. Piper Allen is in her third year of practicing law with a large civil practice firm in Orlando. She's serving on the special events committee of the Southern Ballet Theatre and is in her provisional year with the Jr. League.

Page Breakell Beeler was sent to bed at the beginning of Nov. to await the birth of her twins in January. She wrote with the news of the death of Betty Jolly in a car accident last spring. On behalf of our class, I'd like to express our deepest sympathies to Betty's family.

Bridget Wray Gardner and Jim have their hands full with their twin girls who were born Christmas Eve 1986. Martha Miller is in our nation's capital working for a public relations firm in their government division. She is also the godmother of Katie Renaud Baldwin's ('78) daughter. Sherri Manson is still single and loving it! She's in the middle of a career change but is not quite sure in what direction. Elizabeth Denning Coulter is living in St. Louis and had a baby in August '86. She and her husband are busy with the baby and decorating a new house. I received an article from the Dunn, NC newspaper about the successful travel business of Sara Pope Titchener. She and her husband Walt have 3 children. Day Grymes was married last July to Allen Keel, Jr.

Day is an institutional sales executive with the international group of Legg Mason Wood Walker, Inc. Katie Ewald was married to David Adams last June. She is an account executive with a radio station in VT. Dini Cecil Pickering and Chuck had their first baby in June; she took a leave of absence from her job at Baltimore Estate as the asst. marketing manager. Jenny Kelsey Breining and Dick have moved to a New Jersey love nest where their daughter can be raised away from the hazards of NYC. Jenny spends a lot of time going to the supermarket and making new friends.

I am in the process of moving into a new house, juggling a new job and making sure that the two boys do everything possible to stay out of the house!! Thanks for writing and please everyone write next time - we've got lots planned for our 10th!!

Didn't hear from all of you, but was able to collect some news from those who did write. It was great getting all the mail. Here is the news:

Molly McNamara and Martha Robbins spent the summer traveling up and down the east coast visiting various SBC friends including Leslie Ross and Elie Schnabel who are close to Boston. Molly and Moir Carroll will travel through Europe this winter; Molly plans to settle in either DC or Chicago upon return.

Several of our classmates remain at Sweet Briar. Dede Connors is working in the admissions office and enjoys it a great deal. She sees Linda Visocan who is working in the development office and living with Jenny Crossland '86, and sees Martha Shorter Lanier '85 quite a bit. Hilary Harris is working at the SBC computer center. Liz McKnight is the assistant director of aquatics at Washington & Lee; she's also teaching and coaching men's and women's swimming, diving and water polo.

now completing travel agency school in Richmond. She stays in touch with Blair Beebe who works in Va. Beach for Sovran Bank in the training program. Junie Speight is finishing up her first year at VCU in Richmond, pursuing a Master of Fine Arts in creative writing. She also volunteers at the American Cancer Society. Eileen Bonita Taylor has been elected to a special 3-year term representing our class on Sweet Briar's Board of Overseers.

Liz Stoebner is at University of Texas completing an MA in Latin American studies - studying communications and literature. She writes that it's hard going to school with 47,000 students, but she loves it. She's also production manager for a video documentary. Ellen Smith is at Georgetown Univ. Law School and enjoys the life in Washington very much. She spent a weekend this past fall in NYC with Nagulinie Singanayagam and Mina von Voss. Mina has found a job with the Jockey Club in NYC, in the registration department for thoroughbred horses.

Kathy Bryan is making plans for her April 30 wedding to Lt. John Sanders (W'nL '86) and is working for an insurance agency in Jacksonville. Several SBC friends will be in the wedding including Leslie Varisco, JoAnna Doyle, Alison Kohlhepp '86 and Julie Martin '88. Following the wedding the couple will live in Bayreuth, West Germany. Karen Bryan is grinding through law school in FL. Amy Watkins is in Raleigh, NC working for a law firm, studying for LSAT and applying to law school.

Heard from several friends who transferred from SBC. Paige Cole is finishing her last year at VPI studying horticulture. Alan Evins graduated from the Univ. of Alabama and is job-hunting in Birmingham. Ellen Tozzer Smith was married this past September to Powell Smith (W'nL). Many friends from SBC attended and included in the wedding party were Anne Mobley and Stacey Lee. While Powell finished school, the couple lived in Lexington, VA. Sydney Marthinson is enjoying Raleigh working in the training program for First Union; she sees Mary Yorke Robison when she travels to Charlotte, NC. Mary Yorke is teaching English at Charlotte Latin and coaching field hockey.

Angelyn Schmid, in Dallas, TX, works for a Japanese corporation as a planning engineer. She is in constant touch with Karen (Roni) Conway who is in London working for a graphic arts firm. Roni misses the States but hopes to visit this January. Suzanna Boylston is studying at Oxford for the next 2 years doing a Master of Letters, and enjoys being in England again.

Caroline Trask and Carol Goodman spent this past fall on the National Outdoors Leadership School program in Kenya. They miss the luxuries of modern society, but are enjoying the trip greatly and have become quite muscular after climbing Mt. Kenya (16,500 ft.). Caroline hopes to move to DC when she returns and Carol plans to stay in Atlanta.

Seems many SBC graduates have moved to the DC area. I regularly see Heather Davenport, Rebecca Michie and Tory Willson who have moved into a townhouse in Old Town Alexandria. Heather works for a catering firm in Bethesda, MD and is taking gourmet cooking lessons. Tory is looking for permanent work while working part-time for Talbots. Rebecca spent the summer in Martha's Vineyard with Shannon Wood, Molly Ziebold and Maggie Fogarty. Maggie is living in Bowie, MD, looking for a job on Capitol Hill and applying for graduate school in Ireland. We also spend a lot of time with Julie Geddes and Cameron Clark. Julie is working in DC for the Women Executives in State Government and really loves it. Cameron is an administrative assistant in Old Town Alexandria.

Mary Hunter also moved to Alexandria this past summer with her brother. She spends a lot of time with Betsy Cunningham, Melanie Nelson and Christina Knowles. Betsy enjoys her work for an art gallery. Christina and Melanie have an apartment in DC and both are working.

Ran into Wimberly Eaton this fall right after she moved to Old Town. She works for Sheraton Hotels and lives with Lynn Mather '86. Evan Wright and Leslie Cantrell are living together in Alexandria and working in DC. Paige Taylor has been working hard in the Washington area as manager for Britches Great Outdoors for Men and hopes to buy a beach condo this spring.

On the other coast, Molly Ziebold has moved to San Francisco and enjoys the adventures that the west coast is providing. Susan Scales is working in San Francisco and living in the city with Anne Souder '86. Susan made a trip east this past fall and caught up with several SBC friends including Dede Connors, Amanda Hines '88 and Stephanie Wilt '88. She also sees Margaret Colangelo and Karen Greer '89 regularly in San Francisco.

Gloria Cole Bauer was married Sept. 12 to Andy V. Bauer. Katrina Evans '88 and Katie Hillman were in the wedding which was attended by many friends from the SBC community. The couple now resides in Hawaii on the island of Oahu. Katie Hillman and Missy Ackerman are in Chicago, enjoying the fast pace.

After spending a busy summer planning her wedding, Mary Bliss Hartman was married this past August to Gary Lee Ross. The wedding party included several from SBC, including her sisters Kate Hartman '90 and Tiffin Hartman Fox '81, as well as Elizabeth Maraffi '86, Rebecca McNutt and Amy Hume. The couple now live in St. Louis where Mary Bliss is teaching. Ann Marie Farrell is completing her first year of veterinary school in Missouri and is very busy.

I spent the summer with Anne Mobley, Polly Paton and Mary Via in Charlottesville at the McIntire Business Institute. Anne is now a travel agent in Atlanta and sees Polly who moved there this past fall. Anne often sees Carole Thrash who works for the Tog Shop. Also in Atlanta is Courtney Banton who works in the financial world and lives with Teresa Pike who is at Emory Law School. Malinda Bradley works for a catering firm in Atlanta and enjoys the fast pace of the city.

Franson plays sports as much as she can but working as a computer programmer/analyst for Medical Information Technology in Boston keeps her busy. Julie Dorsett enjoys life in Rockville, MD working for a consulting firm as a computer programmer.

Vikki Schroeder had an exciting fall working on the Minnesota Twins transportation committee for the World Series. She also works as Lighting Chair for the '88 Ball and Fashion Show, and does freelance work. Living in Hoboken, NJ are Dana Ostrowsky and Tami Trebus. Tami organizes all social functions for Sheraton Tara Hotel.

In The Sweet Briar Tradition One For All: The Unitrust Solution

The educational backgrounds and careers of Dr. and Mrs. Marvin B. Perry, Jr. represent two lifetimes of active service in several academic communities including Sweet Briar.

Mrs. Ellen Gilliam Perry '45 graduated from Sweet Briar with a degree in English. She holds a B.S. degree in library science from Columbia and worked as an assistant circulation librarian at the University of Virginia.

Dr. Perry received his B.A. from the University of Virginia and went on to earn both his M.A. degree and Ph.D. from Harvard. In the span of three decades, from 1951 until his retirement in 1982, Dr. Perry served as the chairman of the English department at Washington and Lee University, a professor of English and the dean of admissions at the University of Virginia, the president of Goucher College, and the president of Agnes Scott College.

In recent years, the Perrys have devoted considerable time and energy to the affairs of Sweet Briar. Mrs. Perry has been a member of the Friends of Art Board and The Golden Stairs Committee. In 1984-1985 she served as Reunion Gifts Co-Chairman for her 40th reunion. Dr. Perry became an Overseer in 1982, a Director in 1987, and is currently chairman of the Academic Affairs Committee. Their daughter, Elizabeth, graduated from Sweet Briar in 1973.

Planning ahead can be difficult when two people have so many ties to so many worthy institutions. "It's an exercise in long division!" says Dr. Perry. "Ellen and I have enjoyed attending and serving at least a half dozen colleges and universities. We wanted to continue to help — especially the smaller, liberal arts colleges — so the Unitrust was a perfect solution for us.

"In our case, we get five percent of its current worth quarterly and the principal has almost doubled since we set it up. It's somewhat flexible. You can add to it as you go along. And though it's irrevocable, you can change the percentages in terms of how it's divided.

"Our Unitrust will go to several colleges but you could just as easily establish a Unitrust for a hospital and a college or really any combination of places you wanted to support."

For information about Unitrusts, please write or call Martha Mansfield Clement '48, Director of Development, Box G, Sweet Briar College, Sweet Briar, Virginia 24595 (804/381-6161).

The Florence Elston Inn

The new Florence Elston Inn opened for visitors in April. Situated off the main drive just before the Wailes Student Center, the Inn provides long-awaited accommodations on campus. It has 12 bedrooms, no two of which are identical, and all rooms have a pair of twin four-poster beds. There is also a large octagonal-shaped reception room which features a fireplace with a beautiful handmade cherry mantelpiece above which hangs a portrait of Mrs. Florence Elston Beemer. The Alumnae Association commissioned Tom and Russell Burford to make the furnishings and mantelpiece for this room. Among the pieces are a hunt board, butler's tray, coffee table and two Hepplewhite-style end tables. The room, and the adjoining spacious deck which overlooks the woods behind the inn, will be used for receptions, meetings and parties.

In style, the building, which was designed by Hal C. Craddock of Architectural Partners, Lynchburg, Virginia, and constructed by J.E. Jamerson and Sons of Appomattox, is a composite of many of the buildings on campus and includes features characteristic of Sweet Briar such as arches, columns and brick. Interior decoration was done by a committee consisting of the following members: Jocelyn Palmer Connors '62, Carma Fauntleroy, director of Sweet Briar galleries, Aileen Laing '57, professor of art history at Sweet Briar, Ann Marshall Whitley '47, director of the Sweet Briar museum, Carol Smith and Julian Johnson.

Elie Wiesel: “Clinging to Humanity”

BY JOHN DALZELL

In 1977 Jane Roseberry Ewald Tolleson, Sweet Briar '52, and her late husband, John A. Ewald, Jr., established the highly successful Ewald Scholars Program which has brought internationally-recognized scholars from diverse fields to Sweet Briar. In 1981 Mr. and Mrs. John A. Ewald, Sr. permanently endowed this program which honors their son.

The 1988 Ewald Scholar was Elie Wiesel: winner of the 1986 Nobel Peace Prize, the Congressional Gold Medal of Achievement; author of 30 books; Holocaust survivor. He spoke in Sweet Briar's Babcock Auditorium on March 17, 1988.

The theme of the 1988 Ewald Scholars Program was “Understanding the Past in the Age of Information.” The program was triparted: The Black Experience, The Holocaust and Re-Visioning Women. What follows reflects some of the words and expressions of one man, the messenger: Elie Wiesel who clings to humanity. Other programs in the exploration of The Holocaust were an address by Charles W. Sydnor, Jr., president of Emory and Henry College and chairman of the Virginia-Israel Commission's Subcommittee on Holocaust Education (“Why Study the Holocaust?”), a film on the lives of Holocaust survivors, and an address (“Lessons from the Holocaust”) by David S. Wyman, Josiah DuBois Holocaust Remembrance Professor of History at the University of Massachusetts, Amherst.

Three addresses and a motion picture, all with one ringing statement: never again may the world be indifferent to suffering. That is the one, the only lesson to be learned from the Holocaust.

These are the words of Elie Wiesel: “Evil is human. Weakness is human. Indifference is not. This is the key word: indifference. I believe that whatever happened in those times was the result of not only the cruelty of the killer, it was the result of the indifference of the bystanders, collective or individual. . . Whatever poor lesson we can draw from that unspeakable event can be formulated in a simple manner: that whatever we do, we cannot be indifferent. And that is a lesson that applies to our time so well. . . If we do not react, if we do not respond, then something is wrong with us. But that is the lesson that has always been offered by teachers to students, everywhere, from the beginning of creation. . .

“The opposite of love is not hatred. It is indifference. The opposite of education is not ignorance. It is indifference. The opposite of beauty is not ugliness. It is indifference. The opposite of language is not silence. It is indifference to language and to silence. The opposite of peace is not war. It is indifference to those who die in war. The opposite of life is not death. It is indifference.”

Elie Wiesel was born in Sighet, a small town in the Carpathians. As a teenager he was taken with his family to Birkenau, then Auschwitz. With his father, then the only relative who remained, he was forced to run through the freezing night to the camp at Gleiwitz; thousands running exhausted through the snow before the Russian advance. In open cattle cars they were taken to Buchenwald for the final liquidation. On what was to have been his last day, now as an orphan, he was liberated first by the camp resistance movement, then by the American Army. He was sixteen.

In an AP/Wide World photograph taken on that day¹ his face, though in shadow, looks quietly expectant, his dark eyes waiting.

He went to Paris and lived any way he might. For ten years he remained silent. Then, and only then, was his first book published; republished in English under the title, Night: lean, sparse, piercing as barbed wire against the hands of God and man. “We cannot tell the tale,” he says today, “but we must.” According to Robert McAfee Brown, Wiesel's principal commentator,² everything he has written after Night is itself a commentary on one passage in that book, the passage that includes the words, “Never shall I forget that nocturnal silence. . .”³

How can a man with such experiences, a man who has been to the abyss, the “nocturnal silence,” a man who can hurl the evidence of God's desertion at His feet, how can such a man write with such an evident belief in humanity? How can he write at all? Or, if he writes, why is it not in a rhetoric of pure rage?

“I become angry,” he says simply. “I become very angry. Particularly over the suffering of children. But I wait for a day and the anger turns to sadness.” (In his novel, The Testament,⁴ “pure fiction” he says, Elie Wiesel writes, “You will not understand. I felt neither anger nor hatred, neither thirst for blood nor desire for vengeance. Only sadness, heavy and all-embracing.” Page 215.)

“If there is hate, where does it stop?” he asks. “How many institutions? To hate you would do an injustice to so many people. What I hate is turning people into abstractions. What a great injustice I could do!” Elie Wiesel fights injustice with his fiction. Again from The Testament: “He thought everything could be accomplished through words.” Page 22.

In reading him there is never a question of whether Elie Wiesel has abandoned either God or humanity; questioned, certainly—both of them—strongly, passionately; he is a man consumed by questions. But never abandonment. Never despair. “Mine is a desperate hope,” he says, “not a despairing one. The enemy chose my past. Either I allow the enemy to choose my future or I choose it.” He possesses loves that are warm, human—humane. “I love old people. Old age is the beautiful part of living. The Sanhedrin: beautiful people. I love old people and children. They are the victims of society.” He loves the image of the messenger. He loves Israel. “I must love Israel,” he says, though he has chosen to live in the Diaspora as a citizen of the United States. And he loves Hasidic stories, the kind of stories that press on the indescribable, that pose questions without answers. First and always Elie Wiesel is a storyteller, though even in passages that are obviously fiction it is sometimes difficult to draw a line between the story and its teller. “What is the threshold of the expression but the experience?” asks the writer.

He is a man who understands humanity. In 1975, published in A Jew Today,⁵ he wrote a letter “To a Young Palestinian Arab” that reads as if it might have been written yesterday. He has compassion for the Palestinian youths, abandoned by the other Arab states. More than compassion. “I have rarely known such anguish since the war. The violence. I understand the violence. It is the most human response. But there is something else going on. There are weapons on the Left Bank, we know there are weapons there. And yet they have chosen boys—with stones. They have gone one step, we want them to go a step further. We want to say, 'Give us your words instead of your stones.' "

He is a man who understands the light that can flow from darkness (two of his most recurrent images), the anguish out of which emerge the great gifts of humanity. Listen to these haunting and haunted words from his address. Read them aloud: "The path of the soul, overgrown, often knows only night, a very vast, very barren night without landscapes. And yet, I am telling you, we shall get out. The most glorious works of man are born in that night."

He clings to humanity. "A man is human only when he is among men." It is Elie Wiesel who can say these simple words about his art, his life and the demarcation between them: "We choose between many difficulties. And the first is not to hurt anyone. After that, the others are manageable." And yet his writing is not simple. As Robert McAfee Brown points out, even his shortest, most direct sentences can pose questions that soar into the eternal, beyond humanity, taking humanity with them.

Elie Wiesel is not only an author of books, essays, letters, dialogues, articles, plays, he is also a teacher. Since 1976 he has taught at Boston University. His address at Sweet Briar was as a teacher, challenging his audience with the essence of study as well as humanity: the raising of questions. He decried the "indifference" and "sick apathy" of easy answers or of even the desire for them. His statement was classic and pure Elie Wiesel:

"Who says that the essential question has an answer? The essence of man is to be a question. And the essence of some questions is to be without an answer. But to say what is God, what is the world, to say what is my friend is to say that I have someone to talk to, someone to ask a direction of. The depth, the meaning, the very soul of man is his or her constant desire to ask the question ever deeper within himself or herself; to feel ever more intimately the existence of an answer that remains unknown.

"Man has the right to risk life, his or her own life. But he or she does not need to submerge themselves in destiny in order to maintain its deep significance. They must risk, they can risk, a confrontation with destiny. They must try to seize what they demand; to ask the great questions and to ask again; to look up at another, a friend, and to look up again!

"If two questions stand face to face,

that's at least something. It's already a victory! The question, the demand, the outcry, the sickness in the souls, the quest in the eyes: they never die.

"So what I pass on to you, my young friends, I learned from a friend, the only one I had, who is now in danger. He is dead, perhaps, or maybe in prison... He taught me the art and the necessity of clinging to humanity. Never desert humanity. It is in humanity itself that we find both our question and the strength to keep it within limits; or, on the contrary, to make it universal.

"To flee to a sort of Nirvana, whether through a considered indifference or through a sick apathy, is to oppose humanity in the most absurd, useless and comfortable manner possible. A man is human only when he is among men. It is harder to remain human than to try to leap beyond humanity. Accept that difficulty. Tell yourself that even God admits His weakness before the image He has created."

That was what lay waiting in that shadowy photograph, behind those dark eyes caught so startlingly on April 10th, 1945. The matrix was already in place. For out of that face, seen in the corner of a Buchenwald cell, shone nothing less than a look of hope. Hope for all of humanity. It was and is the face of Elie Wiesel.

For the final time, from a work of fiction, from The Testament, a brief poem:

*"He is not in his movements,
he is not in his words,
nor is he in his anger,
or his confession,
or even in his time.*

*But then,
then
where is he?"* Page 136.

One presumes to answer: he is in all those places for all time and he is beyond them for all time. And humanity has been blessed by this messenger who clings to it. ♦

ROMANCE IN THE OLD FOLKS' HOME

First he offered to read to her, but she was afraid
he spoke as Bible-thumper, so declined.

Then he steeped several herbal teas for her table—she sipped without looking up.

He scissored photos from weeklies and taped them to her door, little windows into the past:

couples skating on Highland Pond, dancing four days in a marathon, sleeping on roofs above Flatbush Avenue.

She knew she was being spoken to in a language long forgotten, like Latin lost after school.

When she found the horned shell near her lounge on the lawn, she pressed it to her ear to hear the ceaseless hush, knowing longing had replaced the sluggish creature housed there.

The next evening she appeared with freshly-washed hair pinned with an ivory comb, and brought that shy spirit her favorite book—

The Marble Faun by Nathaniel Hawthorne

who liked to brood on sin—while the faint widows flushed and whispered her name—oh Anna!—

and she asked him please to begin.

READING DICKENS

Not long after the war, my father bought, by mail, the complete set of the works of Charles Dickens, each book bound in black and red imitation leather, the titles embossed in gold.

The set filled a small bookcase near an overstuffed chair where my father spent languid evenings in lamplight, feet propped on the hassock, while David Copperfield and honest Nicholas Nickleby fought their unsure way through a wicked world.

He might have imagined me, his only son, not yet born, on his lap, learning to read.

Each time he finished a book, he slipped a dollar between the gilt-edged pages—

some nights, the money low, he and my mother bounced before the bookcase, shaking each volume, the few bills falling, enough for dinner or the double feature.

Decades later, reading Dickens,
I imagine those early years,
their slow stroll home,

her arm circling his waist, the whistling, papery leaves, the bath she drew before bed while he waited downstairs, reading Dickens, happy not to be living some great adventure, happy to close the book before my mother slept, saving the ending for tomorrow.

PASSION CONCH

No sun today, the rainy season barely begun, so we sleep late before performing the instinctive, casual, tourists' ritual:
combing the beach in search of the unusual among the wrack and weedy debris. Ahead of me, you scan the tideline for what remains, the left-behind, the false and glittering sapphires the salt's slow churning has tossed ashore—and pull up a shell still filled with muscle, purple with black stitching, the heart's colors, pulsing:
Passion Conch:
slug that has journeyed
farther than we have, from silences deeper than sleep, withstood pressure beyond weather, seining the forgotten, prophetic psalms of the sea—
all ear, or tongue, or one foot probing, till arriving here, in your hand, object of our naming:
Passion Conch: tight knot of spongy knowledge, scholar of coral passages, blind traveller absorbing the world:
salt water, green minutiae, perhaps two lovers biding time in the gray light, in light rain, turning their deep desire over and over, having finally found,
in the foreign face, in the blunt, breathing body, a kindred race, the source of flame, a gift, a name.

BURNING THE DOLLS

In 1851, in John Humphrey Noyes' free-love settlement in Oneida, New York, the communally-raised children, encouraged by the adults, voted to burn their dolls as representative of the traditional role of motherhood.

That last night, unable to sleep,
I prayed with my doll under the twisted-star quilt, then held her close, her flannel gown warming my cheek, her hair made of yarn brushing the tears away.
I sang her favorite lullaby, then she sang it back to me.
When the sky flared into dawn
I carried her in my arm—not crying now for anyone to see—to my sisters barefoot on the lawn, circling the stacked wood, each bearing some small body that stared into the remote sun.
And when the burning was done, when her white, Sunday dress was transformed to ash and each perfect, grasping finger melted upon the coals, when her varnished face burst in the furnace of my soul, the waxy lips forever lost,
then I knew I'd no longer pray,
even with fire haunting me, because I hadn't resembled closely enough my mother, hadn't withheld my burgeoning desire, so like a doll concealing what I'd learned
I burned and burned and burned.

Such is the start of a typical week for President Nenah E. Fry. So she's not having tea parties in Daisy's Garden, and she hasn't made it to any Bistro Bops yet this year, but contrary to popular belief, she's not on a series of vacations.

Her work week frequently involves seven long days of meeting with Board members, donors and alumnae trying to raise funds and support for the College (that's where our scholarships come from). In addition to her success with Sweet Briar alumnae, President Fry is extremely well regarded in the world of education and is interviewed often, bringing continued attention to the College and to women's education.

President Fry came to Sweet Briar from Wells College where she was the dean. She sees the primary difference in her role of president from that of dean as follows: as president she has the opportunity to directly promote ideas, hopes and aspirations for the College, while the dean is more or less an implementor of ideas. She believes in Sweet Briar and women's education and she hits the road to tell the world about it—and the message has been well received.

The attribute she sees as most important to represent is that "Sweet Briar College is a college of the highest quality, a place of deep academic seriousness, a place that views the education of women as something that should be complete—inside and outside the classroom.” She continues by saying that women need to be educated in the liberal arts and sciences: broadly, liberally educated, not narrowly and pragmatically.

Wednesday: early flight to Jackson-

Perhaps even more important, though, is the significance of a women’s college. When speaking to parents, President Fry often stresses the idea that the “education of their daughter in a women’s college means that her education is the first priority in everyone’s mind. Programs, leadership opportunities and classes are designed for her development. Whatever the job is, it must be done by a woman. It makes others take women seriously and, in turn, they will take themselves seriously.” But she doesn’t think Sweet Briar is for everyone. “Women’s colleges are not designed for everyone, they are for young women who want to take charge of their own agenda.” Women’s colleges help us to develop our own priorities: academic and social development must be balanced. What is important to each individual must be developed.

Obviously the role that women play today has changed from that which they used to play, and will probably change even more in the future. I asked the president, as an expert in the field of education, to evaluate the changes, to look into her crystal ball and tell us about the future. Her answers were encouraging. “Young women today have clearer opportunities to excel personally than in the ’50s and ’60s. The expectation that women would work outside the home was not an issue in the ’50s. Women today are under greater pressure, trying to do it all—family, professional, personal: it is a very complex scene.”

She went on to say that help is on the way for future generations, as well as for women today trying to balance the three roles. “What’s happening is that men are assuming broader roles with regard to the family. We are talking to women more candidly. We are telling them they can’t have it all, and that what is important is that you make the choices and decisions about what’s important to you. We don’t have the unrealistic expectations we did in the ’60s. Nobody’s ever had it all. That’s what education is about—allowing you to make your own choices.

Some of the choices this college-age generation has made have been called foolish and self-centered by the media. In fact, certain members of the media have portrayed our generation as money hungry and worried about nothing but what will bring in the biggest pay check.

This is a continuing concern of President Fry’s. In response to the accusation, she replied, “If it were ever true, it is not true now. As adults we try to impose values on the young and force them to be what we expect them to be. We forget that we send them walking through a world WE made. That world is inhospitable to them. The economy is shrinking, the U.S.A. is a diminishing world power, and this generation must take on global responsibility—it is more complicated than anything we had to do.”

She thinks that this generation’s increasing interest in working with the community around them is due to this inhospitality in the world. When problems are so complex and efforts to help seem so insignificant, people turn to their own smaller communities where their efforts are rewarded and progress can be seen. “I think it takes a heck of a lot more courage to do that than our self-righteous pessimism displays. This self-righteousness keeps us from respecting the young people of today. It is the excesses of earlier generations which created the backlashes they have to live with.”

When asked if there is anything about Sweet Briar she would change, the president replied, “I would change the inability to evaluate ourselves as highly as we should. We exaggerate problems and fail to see that what is really in our lives is so much better than we give ourselves credit for.”

And finally, when asked to complete the sentence: “Nenah Fry is . . .” she responded: “proud to have the opportunity to work with the Sweet Briar community and represent the message of the College in the outer world?” ♦

Brooke Haw, a junior from Kansas City, KS, is a philosophy major with a minor in economics. Currently she is secretary of the student government association, chairwoman of publications and business manager of The Sweet Briar News. She is a member of Aint’s and Asses and Earphones, is Mother Superior Bum Chum and an Honor Guide for the admissions office. As a senior she will be president of student government. Very interested in politics, Brooke hopes to be in Washington after graduation, working on the Hill in some capacity.

Polly Calhoun: A Lifetime of Giving

BY GLYNNE ROBINSON

Co-publisher and Contributing Editor
The Lakeville Journal, Lakeville, CT

She's "Mrs. Cornwall" to some, but most people just call her "Polly." Mary Swift Calhoun's formidable energy and a lifelong devotion to improving the lives of others less fortunate has made her a legend in her own time.

If you can catch Polly at home, chances are that she's elbow deep in dough, baking bread for a luncheon at her church or for the growing number of friends who recognize its goodness and have made it their staff of life.

Yankee tradition runs deep in Polly's past and her hospitality knows no bounds. A tray with steamy mugs of herb tea lies waiting but she won't sit down until she's set a wood fire roaring in the hearth.

"My first visit to Sunday School made a lasting impression," she explains. "I heard these unforgettable New Testament verses, Matthew 25: 35-40;

For when I was hungry, you gave me food;

when thirsty, you gave me a drink; when I was a stranger you took me into your home, when naked you clothed me; when I was ill you came to my help, when in prison you visited me.

Powerful words to a girl whose family tree is heavy with people who cared.

"My grandmother's father was a deacon and a member of the state legislature. She sat on a pillow behind him and rode horseback all the way to her first term of college at Mount Holyoke, in Massachusetts. Later, she became a school teacher in Warren"

"Mother was always helping people. When neighbors were sick she would just naturally take care of them."

A few months before Polly and Frank Calhoun celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary in 1981, Polly completed her book Cornwall, Connecticut, A Small New England Town. The book was another gift from Polly to the town she loves and the culmination of work for an A.B. degree in sociology from Sweet Briar College, "after a long marriage, life on a farm in a small town, six kids and eleven grandchildren."

Polly's vocation of service began in earnest when she married Frank and moved to his farm in Cornwall's

Coltsfoot Valley. Church work came first, and she became a Deaconess of The First Church of Christ "when they first allowed women to do it" organized to offer daily telephone reassurance to the elderly living alone. Polly organized and continues to lead her church's women's sewing program making garments for the American Friends and Church World Service.

Before World War II, Polly worked as a Department of Agriculture Farm Bureau home demonstration agent, conducting nursing, sewing and home economics classes. "We were very helpful to farmers and their wives in this area during the depression," she adds.

Years of volunteering as a Cornwall Visiting Nurse made Polly director of the Visiting Nurse Association of Northwest Connecticut. She also logged long hours as a Girl Scout leader, as a school board member for 19 years, as a member of the library's book committee.

"She also makes a darn good farm hand," says Frank coming into the house from his chores.

Frank and Polly have opened their home to more than a dozen American Field Service foreign exchange students over the years and have later enjoyed visiting those students and their families in their travels around the globe. The Calhoun family's long association with the neighboring Marvelwood School has also brought students and faculty members into their home.

"Our children's involvement in the Peace Corps was a direct result of our work with the American Field Service," Polly believes.

She has spent 26 years as a reader for Recording For The Blind in Lenox, a sustained devotion that recently earned her a medal from that organization. "She leaves here at eight," says Frank, "and gets home as late as one. Sometimes I get hungry," he laughs.

Polly took a Hospice training course about five years ago and now works with volunteers and runs the Northwest Corner's Hospice office every Tuesday in Sharon. She attended an AIDS workshop in Danbury recently and is concerned that "bureaucracy is slowing the help that AIDS patients are entitled to have."

Polly Swift Calhoun, a member of the Class of 1931, actually graduated from Sweet Briar with the Class of 1980! Realizing that she didn't have enough credits to graduate, she left SBC halfway through her senior year and, not long after, married dairy farmer Frank Calhoun and embarked on her remarkable career as farmer's wife, mother and volunteer. Almost 50 years later, Polly contacted the College to see what she needed to do to graduate, and learned that if she completed the sociological study of Cornwall, CT, begun as a student, she could get her degree. ("I never considered getting my degree anywhere except Sweet Briar.") Under Dr. Catherine Seaman's direction, she wrote the book about Cornwall, now used as a textbook for a history course at the Marvelwood School. In addition to all her volunteer work, Polly has sold SB bulbs for many years to raise scholarship money. Twice she won the free trip to Holland for being top bulb-seller—in 1979, when she went, and in 1987 when she turned it down to give someone else a chance.

Top Real Estate Saleswoman Juggles Time

BY ELAINE MILLER

The Birmingham News
Birmingham, Alabama

Pamela R. Ausley was more than a little surprised at being named the city's top residential real estate sales person for 1987. The CKM agent isn't quite sure how she managed to rack up $7 million in sales, considering the amount of time she didn't put into her work.

"I had taken so much time off last year," she says, pulling her legs up under her as she settles into her chair. "I took 10 days off and took my little boy to France with a friend, and I've never taken 10 days off before. We also went to the beach, and I spent time with my little boy every day. I guess I just juggled my time better."

Selling real estate is a seven-day-a-week job for Mrs. Ausley, who specializes in the south side of town, particularly Shelby County. But the record shows that she always has juggled her time rather well. During her 18-year career, she has raised two nieces, played the organ for her church, given birth to a son, and stayed in shape by running or doing aerobics four times a week. In her "spare time," she takes college courses for the sheer pleasure of learning.

"I love to study," she says. "I took French at UAB last year. I'd take a course all the time if I could."

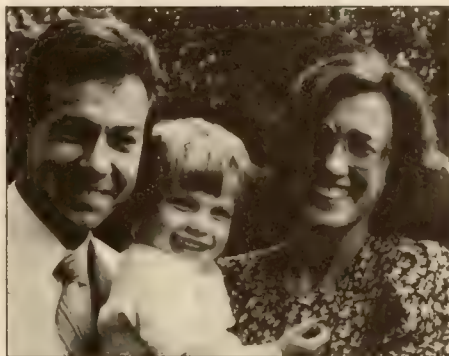

A small woman sometimes described as "quiet and unassuming" by her friends, Mrs. Ausley doesn't look the stereotypical part of a hard-driving career woman. She wears little makeup and simple clothes, the latter having little importance to her. "I hate shopping," she confesses.

Nor does she surround herself with the trappings of success. She drives a 10-year-old Buick that causes her friends to wince, but she's comfortable with it. "Whenever I think of trading it, I'll end up on some mountaintop and getting it scraped by blackberry bushes and I'll think, 'Boy, am I glad I don't have a new BMW.'"

Her most treasured "luxury" item is the housekeeper she hired recently to clean once a week. "It's wonderful," she enthuses. "Before, I just let the house go."

A big time saver is the mobile phone she had installed in her car a year and a half ago. "I don't know how I worked before without a car phone," she says, sounding like a radio commercial. "If I'm out showing houses and I see a (for sale) sign, I can call from my car. And I return calls in my car, too. Then, when I'm home with my little boy, I put the answering machine on and return those calls when he's in bed."

Jim, Francis and Pam Ausley

It's obvious that spending time with her three-year-old son, Francis, is a very important part of her juggling act. She's with him from 6:00 a.m. until 8:30 a.m. every morning, and tries to reserve 3:00 p.m. to 7:00 p.m. for him, too. "If I have an evening appointment, I try to go after 7, but that's seven days per week. I don't always make it, though, and sometimes I don't get home till 7 or 8."

She has a "partnership" arrangement with several other agents that has helped her in balancing her time and in making sales as well. "In the summer, especially, they take my after-5 p.m. appointments and I take their weekends."

She gives her secretary a lot of credit, too, in her juggling act. "She's wonderful, a great support," Mrs. Ausley says. "She's a very detailed person who loves paperwork, which I don't, and is very organized, which I'm not. About the only time I cuss is when I have to do her job."

While quick to give credit to others, Mrs. Ausley looks slightly embarrassed when questioned about her personal formula for success. "Being in it (real estate) that long (18 years) definitely helps," she says. "I get a lot of referral business. I hope (it's) doing a good job, but a lot of other agents do, too. I used to think it was working so much, but I didn't do that this year."

Working with a builder helps, too, because it gives her a steady supply of clients. For the past seven years she has sold houses for Harbar Homes in Shelby County. She figures new construction accounted for a third of her sales last year.

"You've always got some houses to sell when you work with a builder," she says. "We do a lot of build jobs, where I sell the lot and a plan, and the people choose everything. It's fun."

Listening to her clients and taking them seriously about what they want in a house is an important aspect of her sales approach. "Keeping in touch with them after a sale helps, too. I get an awful lot of referrals that way."

A large number of her sales are actually resales of the same houses, and she has sold several as many as three times.

When Mrs. Ausley started selling real estate, no training was necessary or even available. People simply got their licenses and started selling. "Most of my training was out in the field," she says. ♦

This article about Pamela Rutledge Ausley '67 is reprinted with permission from the Sunday, January 24, 1988 edition of The Birmingham News.

Another article about Pam's success, which appeared in the Birmingham Post-Herald of February 5, 1988, pointed out: "Her $7 million total was the highest ever in the Birmingham area. The runner-up in the residential category sold $5 million."

Pam feels that her education at Sweet Briar has made a great difference both to her personal life and her work. "At Sweet Briar I nurtured a philosophical outlook on life; this gives me a serenity which really helps me to deal with the public." Asked whether she had encountered any difficulties on account of being a woman she said, "Quite the contrary. This is a profession in which women seem to excel. We have many more successful women agents than men, in residential real estate anyway. I'm not sure about commercial."

Our Task: The Reversal of Chronic Paralysis

BY CHARLOTTE SNEAD
STIFEL '52

Spinal cord injury is a devastating problem. It accounts for approximately 500,000 paralyzed Americans, with another 12,000 to 15,000 predicted to be afflicted on an annual basis. It costs the nation a staggering six billion dollars per year in care and coping. Spinal cord injury paralysis is truly a young person's affliction: the average age at injury is 19. For all these grim statistics, this nation remains painfully ignorant of the awful breadth and depth of spinal cord injury paralysis and of promising cure research underway.

In March of 1982, my husband, Hank and I were suddenly plunged into a nightmare world when our son, Henry, then 17, was paralyzed in an automobile accident. Specifically, his spinal cord was crushed at the C-3-4 level and he was rendered a quadriplegic, paralyzed from the neck down. Six years do nothing to dim the fear and helplessness of those first hours, days and weeks, when the question was simply one of life or death.

On March 12, 1982 Henry G. Stifel III was rendered a quadriplegic in an automobile accident near his home in Short Hills, N.J. In the six years since his accident, Henry has narrowly escaped death, wrestled with persistent medical problems and confronted the possibility of lifetime confinement to a wheelchair, but has not lost his sense of humor, his enthusiastic love of life or his optimism that he will someday walk again. In January, 1987 he transferred from Wright State University to the College of William and Mary, and will graduate May 15th with a degree in business. One of his most important achievements there has been his work with the administration to make the campus more accessible to the handicapped.

When Henry was stabilized and we could begin dealing with his long-term prognosis, we were told in no uncertain terms that he would never walk again and that our energies and resources would be best directed towards accommodating his life as a quadriplegic. The utter lack of hope was incredibly numbing and once we had set Henry on a course of rehabilitation, we began the search for information about research to reverse paralysis. It was a search which required stamina and persistence, but one which slowly revealed a world of research largely unknown to the layman and ignored by many in the medical profession.

As recently as ten years ago, it was accepted dogma that the central nervous system could not repair itself. However, in 1981 researchers actually made nerve cells grow across an extended distance in the central nervous system, a feat which revolutionized scientific thinking and research. Today, there is a literal explosion of information in this entire field, much of it chronicled at length in the media. For instance, on November 14, 1987, the New York Times reported that Dr. Jerry Silver at Case Western Reserve had achieved a return of function in laboratory rats whose cords had been crushed. Progress is now reported on many fronts, including treatments for Parkinson's disease and Alzheimer's disease. The exciting thing is that a breakthrough in one area will have far-reaching implications in other central nervous system research areas.

Hank and I grabbed onto the hope embodied in that 1981 discovery, and in October of 1982, formed the Stifel Paralysis Research Foundation, dedicated to raising funds to support cure research. Nineteen eighty-eight pushed us over the $1.3 million mark in research funding. However, literally millions and millions will have to be poured into central nervous system research before a paralysis cure is found, and to do that, we need to educate the public first about the enormity of the paralysis problem and then about the very real hope for a cure. To this end, we engage in many public awareness activities and on a local (New Jersey) level, have established a spinal cord injury education program under the aegis of an area hospital.

Additionally, the Foundation has produced a twenty-minute docudrama, "The Search," which recounts a father's search for the facts about spinal cord injury paralysis and cure research following paralyzing injury to his son. The film has been shown to schools, youth groups, service organizations and hospital auxiliaries, and has been used on several occasions as the focal point of benefits.

The Foundation has been aware of the splintering effect competing, like-minded organizations have historically had on the "cause" of cure research, and so, in 1984, became affiliated with the American Paralysis Association (APA), a national organization with an identical mission. Stifel's strong roots in the East, together with APA's strength as a chapter-based organization in the western region of the country, have created a truly national entity. Shared office space and staff, interlocking Boards and a common Science Advisory Council have prompted an effective consolidation of financial and moral forces. Together, Stifel and APA have provided approximately $3 million to research contracts. Also, they maintain the Spinal Cord Injury Hotline, a toll-free, information and referral service for the spinal cord injured, their families and professionals in the field. Callers to the Hotline seek help with problems which run the gamut from faulty equipment to accessibility to rehabilitation and cure research questions.

An abbreviated list of APA/Stifel fundraising highlights during the last two years would include: Julio Iglesias' election as Honorary Chairman of the Association's Board of Directors and his and Dionne Warwick's benefit concerts in San Francisco; participation in the 1986 Op Sail aboard the Tall Ship Pegoria; adoption of the APA by the New York Islander hockey team (former Stanley Cup winners); presentation of the Spinal Series at Alice Tully Hall (Lincoln Center, New York City) in March of 1987; participation in the NYC Junior League's annual Fall Ball at the Tavern on the Green and the annual Washington, D.C. APA Charity Ball; and announcement by MasterCard International that APA would be the sole benefiting charity of its fourth annual LPGA Pro-Am Golf Tournament held in Westchester County (New York) August 13-16, 1987.

Ellen Brown and the Free Clinic

BY CORNELIA PERKINS
ZINSSER '52

Ellen Apperson Brown '72 is the spearhead of a new and exciting health care project. Just as members of St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Lynchburg, Virginia became interested in the idea of sponsoring a free clinic, Ellen was ready to make a switch in her life and she describes herself as "grabbing the reins of the steering committee," which had been formed by St. Paul's to determine the possible need for such a service in the city. She felt that her skills acquired in the development office at Lynchburg's Virginia Episcopal School (where she also taught German with her husband, Kirk) were appropriate to the task of launching the clinic. In June, 1987, the steering committee formed into a Board of Directors and promptly elected Ellen president. With what seems phenomenal speed, the Board opened the Free Clinic of Central Virginia, Inc. on September 15. Those must have been three busy months! A paid executive director and an all-volunteer staff (both professionals and nonprofessionals) were in place, including a cadre of 50 doctors lined up over the summer. These dedicated people, who give freely of their time, offer medical services to 20 to 25 patients each Tuesday and Thursday night from 5:30 to 9:30. On a given night there are two physicians, three to four nurses, a laboratory technician, a registered dietician, a mental health counselor, four to six nonprofessional volunteers and the executive director on duty. In February, 1988, dental services were added to the clinic's program. There also are a number of physicians and dentists who schedule free office visits for patients needing more extensive care than can be given at the Clinic.

The Free Clinic provides health care for those who do not qualify for government-sponsored entitlement programs or do not have the financial resources to pay for medical care. These people—the working poor, the elderly on fixed incomes, one-parent families, seasonal workers and people who have suffered financial disasters—fall through the "social safety net." The Free Clinic has been established for them; Ellen says that the mission of the clinic is to provide services which will keep patients out of hospital emergency rooms, on the job and off the Welfare rolls. There are no patient fees.

Under Ellen's leadership the Free Clinic hopes to become a member agency in United Way in 1989. The Clinic's finance committee has been successful in obtaining strong support from individuals, local churches, the local business community and United Way and is preparing for an individual direct mail campaign. Pharmaceutical companies have donated over $12,000 in medications. The Clinic has received additional assistance from both Lynchburg General and Virginia Baptist Hospitals, which are contributing laboratory services free of charge for Clinic patients.

Ellen looks on as Nurse Linda Crowder checks blood pressure.

Ellen Brown (L.) and volunteer Brenda Andrews.

Although located in downtown Lynchburg behind the Westminster Presbyterian Church, in the basement of the church's education building, the program reaches out into the counties of Amherst, Bedford and Campbell through contacts established with a number of agencies by the director. Hence "Central Virginia" in the Clinic's title.

Ellen sums up the satisfaction which she draws from her work with the Clinic by saying that now she knows that you really can make a difference in people's lives—and she is rewarded by that knowledge! ♦

Ellen Brown majored in music at Sweet Briar, studied in Vienna following her graduation and has since studied voice with Sweet Briar Professor Allen Huszti. Soloist in the St. Paul's Episcopal Church choir, she also has presented many concerts in the Lynchburg area. She sang at President Nenah Fry's inauguration in October, 1983 and served on the alumnae panel at the Music Reunion during the Ewald Symposium in April, 1985. A past president of the Lynchburg Alumnae Club, she is the daughter of Katharine Hill Apperson '40. Ellen and husband Kirk have two children, Kate, seven and David, five.

Why Alumnae Clubs?

BY ANN MORRISON
REAMS '42

Director, Sweet Briar Alumnae Association

There are so many good, obvious reasons. What would Sweet Briar do without them! They give alumnae opportunities to work together on projects which benefit the College, and also to get to know each other, not only for social reasons but for supporting each other in whatever ways seem appropriate. Each club is asked to have a minimum of three meetings per year: in the fall to hear news of the College through the representative who attends Alumnae Council and to plan the year's activities; in mid-winter to celebrate Sweet Briar Day (on December 28, if possible); and in the spring to discuss bulb selling strategies. Other meetings during the year should include something positive on behalf of the admissions program and a session dealing with networking. Many of our clubs do all of these as well as additional types of programs. This report hits some high spots. Please read it with an eye towards ideas for your club.

AMHERST/NELSON/SWEET BRIAR alumnae have an advantage which others lack: they can participate in the many exciting, interesting events which occur weekly on Sweet Briar campus. Sweet Briar Day was celebrated in mid-January with a festive Wailes Center luncheon arranged by Louise Swiecki Zingaro '80. Virginia Lohner, assistant dean of the College, spoke on "Putting Our Heads Together" to the large group attending. An evening party for prospective students was held in mid-February. Last spring the club sponsored a raffle, selling tickets for $10 each.

Prizes included a week-long stay at a beach condominium at Pine Knoll Shores, NC donated by Nancy Godwin Baldwin '57, an oil painting of the Boat House and one of Sweet Briar House, and a photograph of Sweet Briar House. Bulb sales brought the corpus of their endowed scholarship to $17,913. Forty students, including full-time, part-time and Turning Point, represent this area. Cathy Cash Mays '84 is club president.

ANNAPOLIS alumnae participated in the Third Annual Virginia College Night "Bullpen Party" with a picnic supper followed by a baseball game between the Baltimore Orioles and Kansas City. Twenty-four MD colleges and universities participated. The club held a late summer tea for new and returning students at the home of Baird Hunter Campbell '70. Pam Henery Arey '71 is club president.

ATLANTA's big event this year was sparked by the annual meeting of the Region III CASE conference held there in February. President Fry was a keynote speaker and several SBC administrators attended: Bill Meadows, new vice president for college relations, Martha Mansfield Clement '48, director of development, Deborah Snead Shrader, assistant director of development and Ann Morrison Reams '42, director of the Alumnae Association. These guests, a large group of alumnae and former dean Catherine Sims and Mr. Sims were royal-Twenty-four Atlanta students are at Sweet Briar.

BALTIMORE joined Annapolis alumnae in the July College Night picnic and baseball game. Ellen Carver '85 planned a Sunday night cookout in August, including prospective students. An October luncheon meeting, planned by Sara Finnegan Lycett '61 and held at the home of Susan Dwell Baxter '64 in Owings Mills, focused on deferred giving. Lyn Dillard Grones '45, planned giving chairman on the Alumnae Board, went up from Virginia Beach and Martha Mansfield Clement, director of development and Ann Morrison Reams '42, director of the Alumnae Association, attended. Sweet Briar Day was observed with a luncheon at club president Marjie McGraw McDonald's ('60) home. Last year the club had bulb sales of $2,654, bringing the corpus of their endowed scholarship to $12,167. There are 26 SB students from the area.

BIRMINGHAM's Sweet Briar Day was celebrated with luncheon at the Country Club of Birmingham. President Caroline Hawk Sparrow '81 was in charge. Fourteen local students were also included. With bulb sales at $885 the endowed scholarship corpus stands at $2,041.

CENTRAL OHIO alumnae participated in the September Old Dominion party; Betsy Kurtz Argo '67 was in charge of arrangements for Sweet Briar.

She reports that it was a "smashing success."

CHARLOTTE had several different sorts of programs. In the fall Carma Fauntleroy, director of Sweet Briar's galleries, was invited for a cocktail buffet and lecture at Sally Schall Van Allen's ('42) home: "a superb evening" In November alumnae participated in an Old Dominion Oyster Roast. The club's first Resource Directory was completed and its share of $1,575 bulb sales brought the endowed scholarship corpus to $36,004. Betsy Bell Liles '82 is club president. Four Charlotte students are at SBC.

Thanks to Betsy Williams Gilmore '30, CHARLOTTESVILLE's bulb sales of $1,754 added $512 to the endowed scholarship, bringing the corpus to $12,196.

CHATTANOOGA alumnae had a joint fall meeting with alumni/ae from ly entertained at the home of Margaret Davison Block '54; Nancy Hatch '79, club president, was in charge of arrangements. Atlanta had bulb sales of $3,512, bringing the Mary Clark Rogers Endowed Scholarship corpus to $156,111.

W&L and UVA. Libby Wann Duff '72 was the contact for this event. Their endowed scholarship stands at $9,506.

President Fry was again the popular speaker at the CHICAGO Sweet Briar Day luncheon held at the Lake Point Tower Club. President Catherine Flaherty '80 was in charge. Bulb sales of $2,422 enabled the corpus to reach $20,174. Chicago has eight students at SBC.

Under the chairmanship of Kim Patmore Cool '62, $207 was added to the corpus of CLEVELAND's scholarship, bringing the total to $11,541. Sales came to $708. Lydia Wardwell Zimmerman '79 is president; Sweet Briar has one Cleveland student.

The fall luncheon meeting in DALLAS was held at the home of Virginia Griffin Brereton '77. Allison Stemmons Simon '63 had a cocktail party at the Lincoln City Club for Allie Love, director of admissions and financial aid, while she was in town on a recruiting trip; the next night Ouija Adams Bush '43 had a prospective student party at her home. Addition of $744 from bulb sales of $3,847 brought the corpus of the Sarah Adams Bush Endowed Scholarship to $12,756 and a like amount was sent to the College for the annual scholarship fund. Six Dallas students are at Sweet Briar. Lisa Wray Longino '78 and Ellen Sellers McDowell '77 are co-chairmen of the club.

DETROIT alumnae again participated in the annual Old Dominion Day cocktail buffet in November. Bulb sales provided $141 for current scholarship use. Robin Rodger Heller '76 is president and students from the area number five.

The DENVER club had an interesting year. Aileen Laing '57, professor of art history at Sweet Briar, was one of three speakers invited to participate in the Denver College for a Day program sponsored by alumnae groups of women's colleges. Her topic: "Architecture in the Old Dominion." Judy Wilson Grant '66, in charge of arrangements, declared it a great success; approximately 240 people attended. Allie Love, director of admissions and financial aid, visited Denver in October and discussed with alumnae the year-long strategic planning process which the College had just completed. This program was organized by Lizzie Miller Green '68 and Carol Beard Riedling '80, president. Allie also took part in a prospective student gathering. The Denver Endowed Scholarship has a corpus of $5,922 from their share of the $1,390 bulb sales.

FAIRFIELD COUNTY alumnae joined UVA alumni/ae for a November cocktail party at the Indian Harbor Yacht Club. Sweet Briar Day was celebrated with a coffee at the home of Ginny Squibb Flynn '32. Their successful bulb season resulted in sales of $4,101, bringing their scholarship corpus to $16,853. Seventeen area students are at SBC. Lynne Gardner Detmer '68 is Fairfield County president.

Carter Frackelton '72 rallied a group of FREDERICKSBURG alumnae for a Sweet Briar Day tea at the Mary Washington House. One prospective student also attended.

Even though the GREENSBORO alumnae don't get together very often, they make a mark at Sweet Briar due to the dedication of several alumnae who continue to do an outstanding job of bulb selling. Irene Mitchell Moore '42 and Kay Bryan Edwards '49 carried the ball, making the majority of the $7,746 sales. The corpus of that scholarship is $29,544. Audrey Betts '45 is president; one Greensboro student is at SBC.

The HOUSTON club started the year

people, including children, attended, having "a glorious time." The club also instigated a series of "Happy Hours." Alumnae met monthly at a specified place with cash bar and complimentary hors d'oeuvres. The Networking Directory was delivered just before Christmas and a "Salute to Summer" is planned for late spring. Their scholarship corpus stands at $14,853. Sweet Briar has 15 students from this area.

The HUNT COUNTRY club does a good job with bulb sales, attaining $1,822 this year. Profits were divided between the endowed and an annual scholarship fund. Kitty Gochnauer Slater '33 is president and five students are at SBC.

JACKSONVILLE celebrated Sweet Briar Day in January with luncheon at the home of Julia Craig Brooke '58 with her daughter, Julia Brooke '81, club president, assisting. There are three Jacksonville students.

Susan Sudduth Dodson '66 reported from LITTLE ROCK that she made an effort to celebrate Sweet Briar Day with a wine and cheese party at her home, but with little success. We hope that they will continue to try to get together in the interest of Sweet Briar.

Though not a club, LONG ISLAND alumnae made sales of $721 which added $470 to their scholarship, bringing the corpus to $9,243. Nickie Gockley McLellan '40 is Key Alumna in this area.

In LYNCHBURG a steering committee of seven met in November to make plans for the year. Sweet Briar Day's cocktail party was held at the Piedmont Club. Bulb sales made possible an addition of $500 to the endowed and annual scholarships; the corpus of the endowed totals $6,395, thanks to sales of $1,752. Mary Baker Brockman '84 is club president and 18 students from the surrounding area attend SBC.

MIAMI alumnae joined forces with other VA colleges for a "bring a friend" get-together in Coral Gables. Laura Campbell Walker '68, Regional Chairman on the Board of the Alumnae Association, was the SB contact. The College has one area student.

NAPLES: Bettina Bell Emmons '39 entertained alumnae with a February Sweet Briar Day luncheon at her home.

L-R: Ann Reams '42, Director, Alumnae Association; President Nenah Fry; former Dean Catherine Sims; Roff Sims at Atlanta gathering.

off with a bang by entertaining Dean Robin Bowers and Tom Connors, vice president for business affairs and treasurer, with a Bar-B-Q at the Detering's plantation. Kit Newman Detering '76 is club president. Over 100

NASHVILLE planned a large party honoring Sally and Bill Meadows, who were leaving Vanderbilt for Bill to be vice president for college relations at Sweet Briar. However, severe weather canceled the party, which had been planned by Dotsie Woods McLeod '58, an alumnae-elected member of the Board of Overseers, and was to be held at the home of Macon Winfree Hilton '62. A contribution of $586 went to their scholarship from bulb sales of $1,951. Nancy Keen Butterworth Palmer '51 is bulb chairman; Dotsie is Key Alumna.

A NEW ORLEANS Christmas tea celebrated Sweet Briar Day, with Deborah Ziegler Hopkins '73 in charge of arrangements. The club had bulb sales of $1,126. SBC has five New Orleans students.

NEW YORK's fall meeting was held in September at the home of Anne Bowen Broadbuss '44, with guest speaker Donna Walker, assistant director of admissions. Toni Santangelo Archibald '80 presided. The club had its annual January Internship students party at the home of Sarah Porter Boehmler '65, Board of Overseers member. Approximately 50 students and Professor Bob Lyons, who oversees the Intern program, attended. Sweet Briar Day's December 28 cocktail party was at Anne Broadbuss' home. Bulb sales were $2,101; the corpus worth of bulbs, making the scholarship corpus $21,432. Fourteen NNJ students attend SBC.

Betty McLemore White '70, a newcomer to the PENINSULA area and new club president, and Ginny Kay Baldwin Cox '69 conducted a survey to determine the type of programs alumnae would enjoy. This resulted in a well attended and very successful luncheon at the James River Country Club in Newport News. Five Peninsula students are at SBC.

PRINCETON held its Sweet Briar Day luncheon at the home of Helen Cornwell Jones '40. Four of their seven students attended and talked about happenings on campus. The club requested a state-wide Network Directory. Bulb sales of $1,940 provided $800 for scholarships. Virginia deBuys '64 is president.

Tom Connors, vice president for business affairs and treasurer, was the speaker for RICHMOND's Sweet Briar Day luncheon at the Woman's Club. His wife, Jocelyn Palmer Connors '62, was also a guest. Because Kathy Levy Hoover '81, a top bulb seller in 1986, was not able to make the trip to Holland, $1,000 was allotted to her club's scholarships; $500 was added to each of two funds, bringing the corpus of the Eugenia Griffin Burnett to $43,512 and of the Betty Maury Valentine to $56,429. The club plans a festive weekend on May 1 when the Sweet Briar riding team will defend its title as National Intercollegiate Champions in Richmond. There will be an informal gathering Saturday night and a large "tailgate" party under a special tent on the show grounds Sunday afternoon. Alice Dixon '82 is club president; Sarah Babcock '83 is in charge of the riding festivities. Nineteen Richmond students are at Sweet Briar.

Addie Kamke Cook '62, ROCHESTER president, is working hard to encourage enthusiasm and interest in getting alumnae involved in working for the College. She has sent out a questionnaire to determine alumnae interests. Sweet Briar Day luncheon was held at the Changing Scenes Restaurant. The corpus of Rochester's Phoebe Rowe Peters Endowed Scholarship Fund is $23,256.

Last fall SAN ANTONIO's president, Jill Crawford Hale '61, showed visitors Tom Connors, vice president for business affairs and treasurer, and Dean

Robin Bowers a delightful time. Made to feel very welcome, they had a wonderful tour of the city and Nancy Bade Fuller '80 and Drew hosted a lovely dinner. Three San Antonio students are at SBC.

SAN FRANCISCO: Penn Willetts Mullin '66, club president and Chairman of Region X on the Alumnae Board, held a July luncheon to which students were invited. Alumnae gathered in October to hear Alice Love, director of admissions and financial aid, speak on "Educating Women for the 21st Century." Sweet Briar Day luncheon was at the La Mere Duquesne Restaurant; again, students were included. In mid-March a meeting of presidents of women's colleges was held at Mills College in Oakland. Alumnae from each college were invited to a reception honoring their presidents. Patty Sykes Treadwell '58 and Penn Mullin also entertained President Fry and Sweet Briar alumnae. Six Bay area students attend SBC.

SEATTLE: Peggy Cheesewright Garner '73 represented Sweet Briar at an October meeting of women's college alumnae who were organizing into a network for the purpose of getting acquainted and exchanging information on careers and extracurricular topics. Peggy went armed with bulb catalogs and other material and reports that "the event was great!" The club sent $503 to the Seattle annual scholarship fund as a result of bulb sales. Sweet Briar has one Seattle student.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA held an October reception for Alice Love, director of admissions and financial aid. Katzy Bailey Nager '53 is president of this group which has sent us three students. Bulb sales netted $2,017; the corpus of the Allen Bagby MacNeil Scholarship is now $13,612.

TIDEWATER held a July "summer mixer" at the Norfolk Yacht Club with alumni/ae from W&L, Hampden-Sydney and Mary Baldwin joining forces to enjoy a cocktail party. According to club president Sally Old Kitchin '76, they hope to make it an annual event, possibly including additional colleges. Sweet Briar Day luncheon was at the Town Point Club in Norfolk with Lyn Dillard Grones '45, member of the Board of Overseers and the Alumnae Board, speaking on "Exciting News from the Campus." The 1987 bulb sales of $1,823 added income of $281 to the corpus of their Sue Reid Slaughter Endowed Scholarship Fund, which now stands at $22,888. The second annual alumnae tennis match between the Sweet Briar Vixens and the Mary Baldwin Squirrels took place at the Princess Anne Country Club in late February. (The Squirrels won 37-27 games.) Ten students come from Tidewater VA.

of their scholarship is $41,906. Claire Dennison Griffith '80 and Toni Archibald are co-presidents. Six NYC students are at Sweet Briar.

NORTHERN NEW JERSEY's fall meeting, at which Donna Walker, assistant director of admissions, was speaker, was at the home of president Anne Milbank Mell '71. Members sold $3,328

Even though no Sweet Briar Day celebration was planned in TOLEDO, Lois Peterson Wilson '26, president, sent each of the 24 alumnae a Christmas postcard with news of the College. When Jennifer Crossland '86, admissions counselor, was in Toledo, Danielle De Paul '85 accompanied her on visits to two schools, and Nancie Howe Entenmann '56 to two others. Mr. and Mrs. Burt Ryan, parents of four graduates, always host visiting admissions counselors for lunch. Their daughters are Nathalie (Bobo) Ryan Hoyt '72, member of the Alumnae Board, Kathleen Ryan '75, bulb chairman, Margaret (Dede) Ryan '76 and Betsy Ryan '78. This year's bulb sales amounted to $1,045.

The WASHINGTON, D.C. club held an August dessert party for entering students at the home of Eleanor Crumrine Stewart '47. All area students were invited so that new and old could get acquainted. The fall meeting was at the home of Ann Lyn Harrell Welsh '55. Wine and cheese/coffee and dessert was followed by a talk by Professor Madeleine K. Albright, an expert on U.S.-Soviet relations at the School of Foreign Service, Georgetown University. Sweet Briar Day was observed in late January with a cocktail buffet at the Washington Club: Minta Jones '87 was speaker. Students serving as interns in Washington during January were invited. Washington's bulb sales, under the chairmanship of Nancy Wendling Peacock '69 amounted to $6,692. This club now has three endowed scholarships: Harriet Evans Wyckoff ($74,343), Vivienne Barkalow Hornbeck ($89,310) and the Washington Alumnae Club ($72,161). There are 54 SB students from the greater Washington area.

Many less active and smaller groups also make contributions to the work of the Alumnae Association in supporting Sweet Briar and its programs. For example, BOSTON's scholarship has a corpus of $20,882 and we have 12 Boston students; PHILADELPHIA's corpus is $41,535 and 11 students are on campus. Both areas had bulb sales of over $3,000. Twelve students are from the PITTSBURGH area and even though Pittsburgh sold no bulbs this year, their scholarship corpus stands at $14,462. WILMINGTON, DE continues to make sales, $1,040 this year with a scholarship corpus of $24,886 and two Wilmington students at SB. ROANOKE, which usually has some informal gatherings, sent six students this year; their bulb sales were $613 and their scholarship has grown to $14,463. WINSTON-SALEM sold close to $1,000 in bulbs, with its scholarship at $4,150 and two students at SBC. GREENVILLE, SC alumnae sold $1,339 worth of bulbs and sent us seven students. LOUISVILLE's area sales were $2,311, their corpus reached $16,772 and two students are on campus, while CINCINNATI's $971 sales are reflected in a corpus of $32,731 and four students. The INDIANAPOLIS corpus is $21,735 with sales of $2,141. MOBILE and HUNTSVILLE alumnae each accounted for $100 in bulbs, and Huntsville for four students. Both WESTCHESTER and ST. LOUIS came close to $900 in sales to add to scholarships of $12,600 and $3,953. Our "SOLOS" who sell bulbs independently from clubs contributed $1,800 to the Martha Lucas Pate Scholarship for an international student. Peggy Ewart Riter '54 is chairman of this group.

Our deep appreciation and our pride in each of you is boundless! ♦

VAM Evening at Sweet Briar

BY ANN MARSHALL
WHITLEY '47
Director, Sweet Briar Museums

The evening of April 8, 1988 Sweet Briar welcomed members attending the annual meeting of the Virginia Association of Museums (VAM), headquartered in Richmond. The meeting convened in Lynchburg for three days of workshops, conferences, presentations and visits to local museums and art galleries.

This year's sponsors were the Museum System of Lynchburg, the Maier Museum of Art of Randolph-Macon Woman's College, the Sweet Briar Museum, Sweet Briar's Pannell Center Gallery, the Virginia Center for the Creative Arts at Mt. San Angelo, Jefferson's summer home, Poplar Forest, and the Amherst County Historical Museum.

The Association group was joined by members of the Sweet Briar Friends of Art, who were on campus for their annual spring meeting. Over 150 guests toured Sweet Briar House, the Sweet Briar Museum and the Pannell Center Gallery. The evening was capped with a buffet dinner at the VCCA, where the resident artists opened their studios for guests to visit.

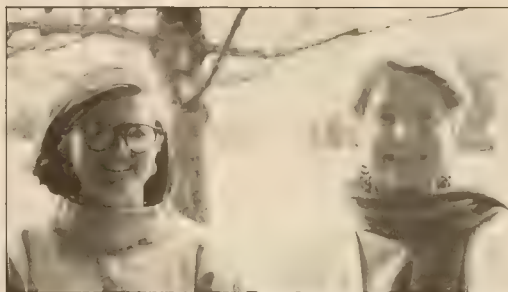

Many museum and gallery administrators from across Virginia, unfamiliar with the College, were delighted and impressed at the beauty of the campus, as well as the variety of cultural and historic offerings for visitors to enjoy at Sweet Briar. ♦

BE A BULB BOOSTER: RAISE A SCHOLAR!

Austrian Spring: Vienna and Salzburg June 1-19, 1988

Trip Directors:

Dr. Diane Moran, Assoc. Prof. of Art History, Sweet Briar College
Dr. Lucia Gunz, formerly of the Kunsthistorisches Museum, Vienna

Our trip will consist of 12 days in Vienna, with accommodations at the four-star Pension Pertschy, ideally located in the heart of the Old City just off the Graben near St. Stephan's Cathedral. Events will include several performances at Vienna's world-renowned State Opera and privately guided visits to Vienna's museums, galleries, and historic architecture. Day trips are planned to the monasteries of Klosterneuburg and Heiligenkreuz, the Roman excavations at Canuntum, and the delightful Biedermeier spa-town of Baden. Our pace shall be leisurely, and there will be ample time for shopping, enjoying the city's famous coffee houses, independent exploring and fine dining.

On the morning of the thirteenth day we will travel by train to the mountain city of Salzburg where we will stay at Pension Weissetauber, a small hotel in the center of the Old City. There will be a fine program of musical events and we will have ample time to explore Salzburg's historical attractions, including the castle and fortress, Mirabel Palace and Schloss Hellbrunn, located nearby. A panoramic bus will take us through the beautiful lake district to St. Wolfgang, where the village church houses the famous 15th century triptych carved by Pacher. The return trip to Salzburg will include a stop at the village of Haydn's birth and a tour at Schloss Harrach. Another day trip will take us through the beautiful Wachau Valley along the Danube to the monasteries at Melk and Durnstein.

English-speaking Viennese professors will add their expertise in the areas of Austrian history, politics and culture. To increase your enjoyment of the operas, lectures will be offered in advance of the performances. Dr. Lucia Gunz, whom many Sweet Briar students know from Winter Term trips to Vienna in 1985, 1986 and 1988 will be providing her organizational skills, limitless knowledge and gracious charm. You may take advantage of as many or as few of our scheduled events as you wish. It is our intention to keep costs in the moderate range, while providing you with a rich and varied program of events. Exact prices are not available as this goes to press, but interested alumnae and friends are invited to contact Prof. Moran by phone or letter.

Dorothy D. Thompson 1909-1988

*A tribute by Lysbeth W. Muncy
Professor of History Emeritus*

Professor Dorothy D. Thompson died February 19, 1988 in Boston, MA. Born in Newton, MA, she was a 1931 magna cum laude graduate of Mount Holyoke College and received her Ph.D. from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. She came to Sweet Briar as associate professor in 1944 after teaching at Wheaton College.

There was much of the New Englander in Dot. She was plain-spoken, plain-living and responded to life in a matter-of-fact way, but when she smiled, which she did easily, her face lighted up and her blue eyes sparkled. A gifted scientist, she concentrated her considerable talents on her teaching and research. Her students appreciated her quiet competence and steady encouragement; some became devoted friends. I remember in particular two students: Tsun-Hsin Kwan from China, who went on to graduate school at Cornell and Sally Ayres, stepdaughter of Anne Hopkins Ayres (former assistant dean), who left in her junior year to marry. With Dot's inspiration and guidance Sally later finished her chemistry major and returned with husband and two sons to receive her degree.

Enthusiastic about her research in organic chemistry, Dot spent most summer vacations on research projects, for which she often received prestigious grants. On sabbatical leave in 1960-61 she worked at the Oak Ridge National Laboratory, where she was appointed to the National Atomic Energy Division laboratories. She also took a course in "Techniques for Using Radioisotopes" with the purpose of learning how these isotopes could be safely used in the laboratory in order to introduce radiochemistry as part of the first year chemistry course at Sweet Briar.

Some of Dot's research papers were published in the Journal of the American Chemical Society and Dot held top offices in local and regional chapters of the American Chemical Society and of Sigma Xi. She was named Rockefeller-Guion Professor of Chemistry in 1957. By then she had contracted multiple sclerosis and was forced to leave her post at the College in 1964. She returned to Boston, where she sought occupations related to teaching and research. She wrote in 1965: "I am doing abstracting and am 'reading for the blind' at the National Braille Press." In 1973 she entered Sherrill House, an Episcopal nursing home in Boston, where she lived for 15 years. When I visited her, sometimes with Elizabeth Sprague, I found her bright, lively and active despite being confined to a wheelchair: she whisked herself around the halls. With a stick she carried by her side she could press the buttons on the elevators and travel from floor to floor. She loved excursions to shops and the theatre and was an avid bridge player. Always cheerful, considerate and uncomplaining, she was a favorite with nurses and staff who cared for her. They, as we, are grieving at our loss but also rejoicing that her long, tedious illness has ended.

CLASS NOTES

In a December '87 interview with the Richmond Times-Dispatch, Helen Johnston Skinner reminisced about the wonderful Christmases of her Richmond childhood in the early 1900's. These Christmases came to an end with her father's death on Dec. 20, 1916. Although Helen, who was then at Sweet Briar, was not allowed to go to movies for the next year, nowadays she loves to spend Christmas afternoons at the movies.

Another year to our lives. So I picked up the phone this month and here goes with a bit of news: Jean Grant our ever faithful Fund Agent is not too well; spent one month in hospital last Nov.; now has broken ribs due to fall. She and her husband are wheelchair patients, but she sounds in great spirits. El Harned is still in her Naples, FL home, well and active (still drives her car) and plans to return to her Rock Island home soon. She reports that Doddy Von Maur died some time ago after a long illness. Mary Marshall is still in her Richmond home; has one of 3 daughters living nearby. Her husband died 2 years ago; her daughter Susan graduated from Sweet Briar in '52.

Freddie Bernhard outstanding athlete of 24, living in a retirement home since '85, is interested in a college Women's Club, a branch of AAUW. It is sad to report that Muriel MacLeod died the middle of March after an illness of nearly two years; was living here in Baltimore at a retirement home. I took her to several SBC meetings, as she no longer drove; one to meet our new president, Nenah Fry.

Betty Guy is still living in her home, though her husband died in Nov. 86. Her son and his family live nearby; granddaughters are 13 and 12 (both handsome according to shots sent me). They all spent the summers at their cottage in Canada. Cara King has slowed down due to a broken hip and old age problems, but still lives in her home in Charlotte of 57 years; has 4 grandchildren and 3 great grandsons; all living in Charlotte. Elizabeth Massie lost her husband in 82; misses seeing her classmates due to recent eye surgery. Esther Jack has had a long session with doctors because of her hip, but is now doing well with a walker.

Blanche Quincey has a new great granddaughter, Anne, who may be SBC student in years to come. Blanche loved talking to Karen Cole recently. Augusta Gee is having trouble with her eyes; has 3 granddaughters & 3 greats. She claims that though she is 83 she is still a blonde. Carol Flynn had 6 years at Sweet Briar and loved every minute of it. Her first 2 years were spent in the Academy under Mrs. Hill and Mrs. Thatcher; then she went home to Long Island and returned later for College. She's now retired from the Gift Shop in Fort Lauderdale and just enjoying family & friends.

As for me: am still active, though not full-speed; drive my car; do some real estate residential sales; enjoy our local Garden Club; keep house at 1406 Bolton, (our home since 1945) for my husband who is doing remarkably well on umpteen pills following an illness in May 86.

What about another reunion in 1989? Keep it in mind and we'll keep our hopes high and shoot for that May - 1989.

My love to you, one and all, and let me hear of you and yours, now and then.

Evelyn Claybrook Bowie and Gordon celebrated their 50th anniversary by taking their children and grands to Hillsboro club in Florida for the 1986 Christmas holidays. They were missing one granddaughter, Kim Awbrey, who was an exchange student in Madrid for a year (she is now at Skidmore). Kim's parents, daughter Bev and husband Stu Awbrey and their other daughter, Lee live in NJ where Bev is publisher and Stu the editor of a weekly newspaper with a permanent staff of 10. Son Lee is head of the philosophy department at Mount Holyoke. Evelyn and Gordon still enjoy golf, tennis, bridge and travel.

Dorothy Bunting still spends her summers in the Ontario woods, and is delighted with her great-nieces and nephews - 2 girls and 3 boys.

Bonnie Mathews Wisdom has missed hearing from lots of 28'ers and urges more of us to send in news to the alumnae office.

The postman brought me some sad class news this time. Three of our classmates died in 1987. Helen Avery Phinney, Virginia Austin Shaw, and Elizabeth Young Faulk. We send our love and sympathy to their husbands and families. Betsy Higgins Plummer lost her husband, Frank, after 49 wonderful years of marriage. Our love and sympathy go to Betsy. She is going to the Caribbean with friends in March and later to NY.

Marion Malm Fowler and Mac are fine; Mac still plays golf and travels after surviving 4 heart attacks. Last Sept. they took a cruise to New England and Canada, and had dinner with Marjorie Miller Close and Jack in Montreal. To celebrate their 53rd anniversary she and Mac are cruising to the Mexican riviera in Feb. Jane Hays Dowler spent a lovely Thanksgiving with her kids and grandkids and Christmas in Tucson where she experienced 8 inches of snow. First time ever for that area. She enjoys good health except for arthritis and "general crotchiness". Helen Pratt Secrest spends her days still in the same routine of ballet, bridge, church work and trying out new recipes. She loves to cook and shares many of her culinary goodies with friends and neighbors. One of her granddaughters is to be married in May in Albuquerque and she is looking forward to that and a visit afterward with her daughter and husband. A nice letter from Eleanor Franke Crawford says her leisurely pace at Stanton Manor has switched to the fast gear. Her son, Chuck, wife and 3 year-old are now living in New Orleans quite near her and there is much visiting back and forth. She is now a great-grandma; her grandson recently brought his baby boy for a brief visit. She says they all manage to make her feel needed and loved. Her only trip to the hospital in '87 was for a cataract removal, a matter of a few hours, and now she can drive her car without her glasses!

union 55 last May and how overcome she was with the beauty of the campus. She had a wonderful trip both before and after in her Avis rental car. She drove alone 3,636 miles in 10 states from NY to VA and back to MA, NH and VT. She had five days in DC visiting Ruth Remon McRae and they had a grand time being wine and dined by old friends. Then the two of them drove to SBC for reunion. She ends up by saying she must go for her 3-mile walk because it is only in the 70s and too cold for her daily swim. (When I read that I was bundled up in layers of sweaters and completely trapped in my house which was surrounded by ice and snow.) Ruth had a wonderful trip last spring to Australia, New Zealand and Fiji.

Alice Dabney Parker wrote that it was bitter cold and she was holed up with wonderful books, tapes, and video cassettes given her for Christmas, and thoroughly enjoying it. She had a lovely holiday season, first in Columbia, SC with her daughter, Betsy, husband and daughter; then back to Franklin, VA with the same 3 plus her other daughter, Fleming, who is an Episcopal minister. She plans to go back to Europe in '88 but is debating between Spain and Portugal or England, where she spent 3 delightful weeks in '87.

As I write this Barbara Munter Purdue and Bob are leaving for their annual mid-winter business and vacation trip to Hawaii. After spending Thanksgiving in Tuscaloosa, AL with their oldest daughter and family they drove to Atlanta and spent a day and night with me, then boarded the plane back to Seattle. It was non-stop chatter between Bobbie and me, and Bob nobly put up with it. He had arrived fortified with reading matter. They will see Marge Gubelman Hastert ('33) and Mildred Larimer in the Islands as usual. Emily Maxwell Littlepage's card says she wouldn't have missed our Reunion 55; that Sweet Briar is more beautiful than ever, and she was greatly impressed with President Fry and staff and the well-planned program. She loved seeing her old classmates again but missed the Atlanta contingent. Speaking for myself, it was a great disappointment to me that I wasn't able to make it. Virginia Squibb Flynn (Squibby) says she and Jim enjoyed it immensely. She reports Emily Maxwell "beautiful as ever". She hopes to see Hazel Stamps Collins in Naples, FL this winter. Hazel, Lib Douglass Foote and I had lunch together once last summer. Always fun to be with Hazel. Squibby stays busy helping Sweet Briar as bulb chairman in CT, and also on the Golden Stairs committee. Eleanor Wright Conway, our lovely and capable president, says 1987 was a very busy year for her and Ted. Trips to San Francisco, HI, Sweet Briar, NC and finally to Eagle, AK for their granddaughter's wedding. El was a delegate to the Florida Republican Convention in Orlando last Nov. A quiet Christmas and looking forward to a happy, healthy Year of the Dragon. Anne MacRae spent Christmas in VT with one of her nieces and family and says it was a cool Yule! And fun.

Margery Ward Cross, our busy fund agent, wrote me news from classmates I hadn't heard from. Alice Weymouth McCord lives in "real country - 10 acres plus pond and brooks - nearly demolished by a freak Oct. 4th snowstorm". She has 3 golden retrievers. Wonderful to hear news of Alice! Pat spent 10 days in Winnetka with her oldest son and family, and hopes to go to FL in Feb. to visit her brother and sister-in-law. Next fall she goes to Switzerland and France. She has invited Lib Douglass Foote and me to be personally conducted by her through Winterthur. I hope we can make it this spring or early summer. Lib is involved with another debutante granddaughter, her 2 daughters and other 3 granddaughters. She and I went to England last fall to a "Brobury Houseparty" and had a wonderful time.

Margaret Ellen Bell Hare and Stan got back to Westchester from Staunton, Va just in time to beat the great winter storm, but missed a visit to Lynchburg, and also missed Sweet Briar Day in the city. She still plays duplicate and liked '87 because it was the first year Stan had without an operation. So many of their old friends have moved South they find themselves thrown with a much younger group, and it is most stimulating. She says she is mighty proud of Sweet Briar, us, and President Fry! I was so glad to have a card from Marcelle Dominique Perrot in Aix-en-Provence but so distressed to read her sad news. She lost her only daughter to cancer in '87. Their son was killed in an automobile accident in 1971. They are left with only a 12 year-old granddaughter, Julie, their only grandchild and much beloved. Our love and prayers and sympathy go out to Marcelle and Maurice.

Nancy Wilson Mann is feeling fine and back to her old happy self, after a miserable winter of 1986 with bouts of flu and pneumonia. She was looking forward to a visit from Stuart Groner Moreno when she received a message that Stuart had caught herself on fire with the string of an inflammable apron and was badly burned. Her husband, Jack, had third degree burns on his hands. They are recovering now; I do hope they continue to mend and are soon back to normal, after such a horrifying experience. Nancy has grandchildren in college, nearly ready for college, and two little boys (5 & 4) who live a 10-minute walk from Mt. Vernon, and are proud to be neighbors of George Washington! Nancy has been named "a silver poet" and a "golden poet" with a little trophy for each. She still paints some and gardens. "You should see my garden in spring, radiant with Sweet Briar bulbs."

Connie Fowler Keeble wishes us all a much better '88 than '87 was. Emma Knowlton declares that 1987 was a very pleasant year for her. A granddaughter graduated from Sweet Briar in June and now has an interesting job; she just finished another sculpture; and shared first place in painting with two others in the State (MS) Penwomen Show. Amalie Frank Kohn sends her best to all of us. Marcia Patterson's cousin, Beth Zehnder, wrote me that Marcia's arthritis seems better and she is able to sit up in a chair part of the time. Her spirits and sweet disposition are unflagging and a joy to all around her. Bless your sweet self, Marcia, we love you!

Sue Burnett Davis's son, Tread, Jr. and his wife, Win, gave Tread, Sr. a party on his 85th birthday and the following day the Davises left with Catherine (former SBC Dean) and Roff Sims for Holland, and took a boat trip up the Moselle River then a barge trip on Dutch canals. The 4 of them have had some interesting travels together.

Dot Smith Berkeley and Edmund spent last summer in NH and hope to again this year. They are "marrying-off" a granddaughter this weekend (Jan. 2) and another in August. Their Featherstonhaugh book will be published in Sept. Suzanne Gay Linville says that it is a bitter cold January in NY and she and Edwin are glad to be leaving for 5 weeks in Antigua. Lib Doughtie Bethea is enjoying her high-rise condo in Memphis. She had a lovely visit with Ruth Remon McRae in Washington and also with Ted Clary Treadwell in Chevy Chase, last Sept. Her son married in Nov. and her daughter in IL came for the wedding, and with her other daughter in Memphis plus husbands and grandchildren they had a happy family group for the occasion.

A Christmas card from Charlotte Magoffin bemoaned the fact that neither she nor I could make it to Reunion, and was proud and impressed by the number of '32ers mentioned in Arts and Letters. A Christmas card from Sally Ainsworth Glass had a sweet note inside to me but no news of her "doings". Sally rarely ever talks about herself - and she does such interesting things and travels! A Christmas card from Peggy Hall in Wilmington, NC says she is fine and invited me to visit her. I hope I can someday soon. Eleanor Nolte Armstrong still has a house in Seguin on the Guadalupe River but lives mostly in San Antonio. She had a good Christmas with family and friends. Eleanor Mattingly Littlepage is well and busy with church and hospital activities.

My most enjoyable event in '87 was 2 weeks in southwest England and Wales in the early fall. My first trip in that area and I was enchanted with Herefordshire and Wales. The countryside is so beautiful and lush and pastoral. And the castles, cathedrals and manor houses so old and medieval - and imbued with bloody history! I fell in love with the sheep. They look so serene and peaceful. Went to church one Sunday to a tiny church built in 1500 and still an active parish church. And my heart never missed a beat the whole time!

In the cold of January with snow still on the ground here in Fredericksburg, VA, I write our class news gathered the first 2 weeks of Jan. when 28 of you sent news from 17 states. Over a cup of coffee each of those mornings, I have had a delightful visit with you and in my mind's eye I pictured you coming together with others from your area.

From the farthest away came the first visit. From CA came Annette Harley Chappell giving a vivid description of atypical (bad) CA weather, a flash flood when water came through the floor boards up to her knees as she went home from her first alumnae meeting, October 22. Capel Grimes Gerlach told, not of CA weather, but of her struggling along with arthritis, having had one knee joint replaced and waiting to have the other one done. Then, "Watch my smoke," she said. Polly Rich Ewing admitted "itching feet" that took her to AK and CA when she managed to take time from 4 active organizations in Denver.

Another day came four from Washington, IL and IN. Emily Bowen Muller gave a follow-up to her account last year of husband George's and her first visit to Simoa; this time they took pictures taken when he was there in World War II in which children recognized parents and grandparents. Kathleen Donohue McCormack was on her way to FL for the last 2 weeks of January to escape 0-degree weather and 1" of snow on the ground in Green Bay, WI. It will be 50th wedding anniversary time in June in Chicago for Jane Coolidge Stevens and husband Jim; they will be joined by 5 sons and wives and "possibly 10 grandchildren." And curiously enough, in nearby Indiana another 50th wedding anniversary is to be celebrated, that of Alice Andrews Fackert and husband William who recall their honeymoon on Cape Cod during the 1938 hurricane.

Two flew together from New York state. From Lillian Steele Cook I heard of a third 50th anniversary-oops no-52nd-in June; with them will be 2 grandsons from college and one from law school and 2 married granddaughters. Alva Root Bound put me to shame with her good works, most touching, her involvement with a Mental Health for Children agency.

And three from NC. Dorothy Harper Bridgers was full of news of two granddaughters, both SBC graduates, one working for Civic Service, Inc. in Washington, DC and the other launching a successful candy business.

Mary Virginia Camp related that after two years' work she has moved into a smaller house and almost immediately was off abroad, to Norway and both coasts of Scotland, followed by visits to spots in the U.S. - and she'll be off to Kenya in two weeks. Peggy Huxley Dick first recalled happily a summer trip to Alaska and then she shared the sad news that her daughter Carroll has cancer and shingles.

What a big gathering, fellow Virginians! Betty Cocke Winfree from southwest Roanoke sent the news of the death of husband Peyton last April, but thankful was she, she insisted, that to console her are the memories of their more than 50 years together and having daughter and family close by. In Lynchburg Smitty Thomasson was excited over the Winter Forums Series for which the college sends two vans into town to pick up people. And Sophie Campbell Brown, who lives near "the college," studies art there and proudly received a Jeffersonian Certificate in May at the 50th class reunion of her UVA nursing class. From Richmond, Maria Valentine Curtis brought an account of 3 grandchildren of her older daughter Calvin and of the marriage of younger daughter Lou at her grandparents' home, Kent Valentine House, now owned by the Garden Club of Virginia. And in Richmond the "big news" of Logan Phinizy Johns is their move into Westminster Canterbury House. While in North Garden, Pinkie Scott has been spending most of her time helping to "get going" on a new Westminster Canterbury House in Charlottesville, and is still excited over the arrival of twin grandchildren. In Norfolk, though living in a lovely highrise apartment overlooking the Hague and harbor, Kin Carr Baldwin admitted to having fabulous times away - one Christmas with her London daughter's family in Florence and another with her Charlotte, NC son and family in Williamsburg. Margaret Robertson Whitney and Alfred find it strange to return to live in VA after 52 years in New England, but they like living at Goodwin House West in Falls Church. There are 4 other SBC'ers there. Margaret plans to drive over to Sweet Briar some spring day when nostalgia moves her and the spirit needs uplifting. "How lovely it was in 'Reunion,'" she says.

Fittingly enough, close to us Virginians, next came Martha Horner Maxwell in Clarksburg, WV. Though she phrased it "little news", she reported a trip to Mackinaw, trips to Easton, MD for goose hunting and to the Valley of Virginia for fishing. From Cincinnati, OH Anna Thomson Smith last September took an eastern shore cruise on the Newport Clipper ship and is off to Baja at the end of the month.

Even from the cold north, I welcomed guests. From MA, Katie Niles Parker vividly told of home where she and husband Frank are chairmen of committees (important ones) in the Wellesley Unitarian Church and await being great grandparents. "More or less housed" in Pittsburgh for the last year and half with bad heart problems has been Martha Williams Tim but she hopes for a week in Naples, FL in March. Another proud grandmother from NJ Peggy Lloyd Bush talked of two granddaughters, one a freshman at Ohio Wesleyan and the other a year old on Pearl Harbor Day. "What a really interesting place Baltimore is," exclaimed Fran Baker Lamb; she and husband Wilson are actively involved there in political campaigns while still busy in their antique business. Proudly New Canaan, CT resident Phoebe Pierson Dunn had brought a column "Dear Reader" from Modern Maturity magazine in which its publishing director rejoiced over the popularity of their calendar and singled out Phoebe's photos.

The very word Florida, thoughts of sunshine and solace for the news from there. Dorothea McClure Mountain has had her husband in a nursing home since a stroke suffered last January but she will have the good support of her daughter when she moves him to Clemson, SC this spring and she herself moves to an apartment there, while (happily) keeping her Florida apartment. Marjorie Wing Dodd kindly alerted us last year to Mary Knauff Ghesquiere's death. And two classmates this year have written of the death of Betsy High Gregg, Nov. 30.

What pleasant coffee hours you have given me and Robert, as we plan a trip to Kenya. What joy it would be to have a letter from all of you, wherever you are, between now and when I write up our 1988 news.

There were 53 wonderful responses out of our 153 living class members, from 22 states plus DC.

Now to begin visiting with each one of you by starting in Charlotte Knox Lane's home town of Washington, PA. Charlotte is the exec. dir. of tourism in Washington County, the area in which one would find Frank Lloyd Wright's famous "Water Falls" home. She received the Arts Council Award for doing the most for the Arts in this County. Her 2 daughters and one son are not only in Washington, PA, but also in TN and in FL. She can at least enjoy 2 of her 7 grandchildren.

Traveling westward into OH, we come to Cleveland where Ruth Mealand Schwartz lives in the Heights area. Her son, John, was married on June 6th and lives nearby. Daughter, Carolyn, with her family of 2 grandsons now lives in Springfield, VA. Ruth does church work with husband, Laurence and, along with Class of '40 secretarial correspondence, keeps busy with garden club work.

Swinging southward to Cincinnati, we visit Betty Menefee Ahrens and Louise Pugh Worthing. Betty's family are all graduates now of the Univ. of CC. Her husband has retired and she loves to "mess" at home with flowers in the yard, and work at the Conservatory. Before her marriage, Betty was a librarian and still loves to read and travel. Louise is a member of a choir of over 50 singers who toured Italy, singing in the Duomo in Florence, at St. Francis' crypt in Assisi, and at a High Mass at St. Peter's in Rome.

South again in KY, we come to Henderson where both Margaret Katterjohn McCollom and Katherine Hodge Soaper live. The two of them visited C.P. Neel in Atlanta for 2 days last March. Then they continued on to Naples, FL to a houseparty through rain and fog, arriving back home again in the biggest snowstorm of last season. Before that, Katherine went to Japan and China, walked to the top of the Great Wall and received a medal for her efforts, only to learn that anyone could buy such a trophy at the bottom for $3.00! She cruised along the unusual and harsh Li River Valley and saw the terra cotta (buried) army at Xiau.

Up north in MI is Marjorie Lee Stock Clemens' home in St. Joseph. Marjorie joined a group of area friends in October for a trip to Iceland. Over Thanksgiving she was with son, Joe, in Bethlehem, PA; Christmas she spent with daughter, Mary, in her new home in Chelsea, MI; and later she visited another daughter, Marge, in CA. Marjorie's two grandsons are near enough for them all to go fishing in the warm months. She still volunteers at her local library and is on the Heritage Society Board for genealogy. Across the border in Evanston, IL, we find Cecilia ("Teedie") MacKinnon Ballard. She and husband, Ted, who now has cancer, spend their winters in an apartment a few blocks from Northwestern Univ., while 5 months in summer are at an island off the coast of ME near Portland. All 6 grandchildren live on the east coast.

Rosemary Borge Johnson is in Cross Plains, WI. Rosemary is auditing a course in History of Architecture, which she enjoys as much as she does her braille and church work and a book group and a garden club. Over Christmas her family of 3 met at the son's home in Berwyn, PA. She and 2 daughters went to NYC to do the theaters and see the Christmas decorations and museums. Their son, Bruce, is at the DuPont research lab in PA, while one daughter works in Minneapolis and the other in Denver. Husband, Dick, will be attending his 50th reunion at the Naval Academy this month.

Down in MO, Marion Daudt McBride, in Chesterfield near St. Louis, had a new little granddaughter, Colleen McBride, born in Oct. Otherwise, church work, needlepoint and bridge keep her busy when she is not traveling to such places as Ireland, England, and Scotland. She goes to AK this month. Jeanne Harris lives in Kansas City where she plans to remain even though she retired on the first of this year as associate curator of Oriental Art from the Nelson-Atkins Museum of Art. She liked living in NYC before going west, but feels this is more home now, having been in MO since March, 1949.

Now to jump across the real Rockies, to the state of WA. Two classmates, Beth Thomas Mason and Irene Vongehr Vincent have lived in Seattle for a long time. Beth moved early in 1988 to a new Seattle address: 3825 East McGraw, 98112, just a few blocks from where they had lived for over 38 years. Irene and husband, John, will celebrate their 48th anniversary in '88. She has been a reporter and writer since graduation in '40; husband John was a journalist and photographer, now retired. Irene had two books published, and is working on a teenagers' history of China. Two of their 4 children live and work in the Seattle area, so Irene sees 3 of their 5 grandchildren often. Their eldest daughter lives in Indiana. Irene and John have been back to China 6 times; the last trip included flying to Lhasa. Irene and Helen Taylor made it to their All-China Schools' Reunion in Hershey, PA.

In the San Francisco area, Coralie Kahn Ferro has just moved from a large house to an apartment. Moving was a gruesome job but the results are delightful and their families are nearby, Nancy across the Bay and Michael in Seattle. Coralie is playing golf and a bit of bridge. Just south of San Francisco, in Belmont lives Jacqueline Sexton Daley. This past year has not been the best one for Jacquie or her husband, Jack. Jacquie is recovering from a hip replacement which was postponed because husband Jack was in the hospital. I hope both have recuperated by now. In Sonoma, Mary Frances Hazelton ("Hazy") had two very special reunions with classmates. The first was with Georgia Herbert Hart and George in San Francisco and in Sonoma. The second was with Eve Williams Turnbull in her new home in Charlottesville. Besides that trip east, "Hazy" took a 2-week trip to Wales with the Smithsonian, with London on the agenda before and after. Then a visit in Brussels with her godchild and niece and her family plus 3 other nieces. Last fall she went to NM and VA. Not far from Pasadena, in Rialto, is Martha Smith McGowan. She sent photos of 7 of her 8 grandchildren, a daughter, and her needework. Both she and husband, Charles, are in excellent health as they exercise regularly: she does aerobics while Charles does weights. The year's big trip was to WY to visit their oldest daughter, who in turn saw that they went to every historical and interesting place in SE WY. Then they went to Denver for Charles' 50th high school reunion.

Nancy Haskins Elliot and David live in Pasadena. A truly lovely photo of them with daughter, Nan, was enclosed in her Christmas letter. Last October Nancy and David went to Europe for 6 weeks: 3 weeks in France, 3 weeks in England and 3 days of sunshine! They saw lots of friends from the Indian Civil Service (retired). At a reception for this group at St. James Palace, Nancy shook hands with the Queen and chatted for a moment. They also saw "old" St. Andrew's friends in England; while in France they spent time in the Dordogne (ancient towns and painted caves) region and a few days in Paris. Clara Call Frazier and husband, Bill, in Palm Desert, CA, sold their business interest and condo in San Diego County last year and plan to concentrate on serious traveling, perhaps, or serious relaxing! They have 7 children, 6 boys and one girl. All live in CA except son, Bob, who is getting a Ph.D. in chemistry at the Univ. of Idaho. Their 26-year old twins live in Encinitas on the ocean and specialize in beach activities, whereas the eldest in Long Beach has a daughter (grand-daughter for Clara) who spent a semester in Paris at the Sorbonne. The two Bills, Bill Frazier and Bill Hardy, "Hug" Schmid Hardy's husband, golf together and "Hug" and Clara belong to the ladies' putting group. Bill and Clara had a reunion in VA with officers of Bill's 358th Field Artillery Battalion - 95th Division, Patton's Army and had a wonderful time reminiscing. More reminiscing was at Bill's VMI roommate's and wife's dinner party at VA Beach. "Hug" and Bill spent the summer at their place in MI.

We turn east, to Green Valley, AZ where Kathleen Ward Allen and husband, John have retired. But they do not stay there all the time; last March they went to China. Kathleen's brother, who had been missing since 1946, was able to find a cousin who had her address to tell her that he has been reunited with the family and his 4 children and is getting acquainted with his 17 grandchildren. In San Antonio, TX, lives Joy Carter Forse. Though her 96-year old father died recently, she herself feels blessed that it has been 15 years since her first breast cancer surgery. Being "Gommy Mommy" keeps her busy and happy as does her fabulous Calico Persian feline and rewarding volunteer work. She occasionally chats with brilliant Phyllis Carr Beinhorn '41.

Three classmates take us into FL: Reba Smith Gromel in Sarasota, Virginia Leggett Cameron in Palm Beach Gardens, and Mildred Mitchell Gillis in Ormond Beach. Reba and husband, George, just returned last fall from Richmond where their son and his wife had a surprise 45th anniversary party for them: it lasted all weekend! For "Ginny", this past year has been busy and happy. Her first grandchild, a girl, was born in Douglas, GA, where daughter, Beth, lives as husband, John, has an administrative position at South Georgia College. Ginny teaches and gives lectures at the county library, all in parapsychology. Over at Ormond Beach, near Daytona, Mildred ("Mickie") Mitchell Gillis and husband, Wats, are both semi-retired, with Wats being the local Fuller Brush salesman while Mickie goes from school to school teaching parenting classes for a private social agency. On Cape Cod in Orleans their daughter lives with 2 grandchildren as their son-in-law teaches in the middle school. Their son and family of 3 live in Ormond Beach and Mickie loves seeing them frequently.

The home stretch takes us along the Atlantic coast. In Savannah, GA are Elizabeth (Libby) Mercer Hammond and Anne Waring Lane. Libby and husband, Chris, last fall spent 3 weeks in VT. Chris has retired as president of Great Dane Trailers but is still a consultant so they make many trips on business. They also visit one son in AZ and another in Memphis. She stays busy and happy with their 8 grandchildren and one 2-year old great grandson, with another "great" due. Libby sees Anne Waring Lane nearby and they all love golf, gardening, swimming and much traveling. Anne and Mills Lane spend their time between Savannah and Fernandina on Amelia Island nearby in FL. They carry food over in their car, and two wild English cocker spaniels, and they love it there. Jane Bush Long's husband, Gene, has been retired from Merry Companies for 6 years, but they both stay busy with many activities, family and occasionally a trip. They have 4 sons: 3 live in Augusta and one is in Atlanta. They have 10 grandchildren. The oldest, a girl, just graduated from Hollins College in May '87 and works in Washington, DC. In taking her up to DC to get settled, they stayed with Margaret Dowell Kearney in McLean, VA. Jane keeps in touch all the time with her sister, Mariana Bush King, in FL, and recently heard from Polly Boze Glascock, Kay Hodge Soaper, and Eleanor Bosworth (Spiller) Badal. Jane sees Mildred Moon Montague each spring at the Masters in Augusta. C. P. Neel in Atlanta called our attention to the article in last summer's alumnae magazine on the Winter Forums on campus and the fact that our Betty Frantz Roberts was a member of the 1987 committee. C.P. visited Betty at her home in Lynchburg, VA last June and then attended the Elderhostel at SBC. Doctors are amazed that C.P. is in such good physical condition; it has been almost 4 years now since her cancer diagnosis. C.P. keeps active traveling, one place being to Lake Lanier in the mountains where her children live, but where this past summer it was too hot to even sail at night! She keeps in touch with Margaret Katterjohn McCollom and with Kay Hodge Soaper.

Another most active classmate is Mildred Moon Montague of Lookout Mt., near Chattanooga, TN. Mildred is still a board member of Big Brothers/Big Sisters of America; president of the T.C. Thompson Children's Hospital; a board member of Chattanooga Metropolitan YMCA and of the Salvation Army Advisory as well as founding member of the Women's Auxiliary. Though her husband, Bill, and their 3 sons are all Rotarians, Mildred herself is now a Kiwanian, being one of the first 6 women to be inducted locally. Four of those 6 were SBC'ers. Bill has retired from his NY Stock Exchange company and their sons are, like their mother, all active members of boards and baseball team owners in their area. Over near Nashville, is Shelbyville, where Hortense Powell Cooper also had an eventful year. Last summer, with her sister and husband, Hortense went on a month-long trip to China, Thailand and Singapore. She had just concluded her term as state president of the National Society of Colonial Dames of America. Only one of her 3 sons is married; he is the U.S. Congressman from TN.

Georgia Herbert Hart and husband, George, in Columbia, SC, golf anywhere possible. A lovely portrait of Georgia commemorates her induction into the SC Golf Hall of Fame. Even on their "trip of a lifetime", through the Panama Canal from San Juan to San Francisco in March of '87, they allowed time for golf in St. Maarten and Calders Costa Rica. But the reception they received in CA by SBC friends made them feel very special! "Hazy" Hazelton received them royally in San Francisco as did Clara Call Frazier and Marion ("Phin") Coles Phinzy Jones of Arcadia. "Hazy" picked them up at the Mark Hopkins and took them to her home in Sonoma Valley for a truly memorable day in the beautiful wine country. Georgia also is busy when at home, where she teaches and coordinates morning bridge at the Columbia Shepherds' Center. It is a challenge which she says her education at SBC fully prepared her for. Their son George, Jr., is in St. Paul, MN; other family members are in Birmingham, AL.

Katherine Ingles Hill Apperson is busy with a large Circle and several committees on the Church Session in Charlotte, NC. In April '87, Kitty was assistant chairman for the tea given in conjunction with the Mint Museum's Garden Tour. Her daughter, Ellen Brown '72, helped found the Free Clinic in Lynchburg, VA, which opened its doors on Sept. 1st. She sees her 3 beautiful grandchildren there from time to time, but sees Dolly Nicholson Tate regularly at Book Club. Dolly is recovering from a broken knee cap. Kitty loves gardening, mostly in large pots, and bridge and needle-point, and toured CO last spring and visited old friends in Denver. Perhaps many of our class will remember her cousin, Martha Ingles Schrader '41, who passed on in '72. Last Sept., Jane Hopkins Hanes in Winston-Salem, NC, moved to a smaller house. Her new address is: 6 Graylyn Place — same zip, 27106. She also has an apartment in Wilmington, NC, where her daughter and grandchildren live. Jane has been a widow for 15 or so years, but her friends and 4 children help a lot. Her favorite activity is as a volunteer in the Oncology Research Center at the NC Baptist Hospital and on the ORC Advisory Board. She keeps active on other boards such as Old Salem, Salem College, St. Augustine's in Raleigh, and St. Paul's church, and enjoys golf.

Into VA now, we have the largest number of alumnae class responses. In Norfolk, Helen Taylor, M.D. enjoys her retirement but was unable to make our 45th reunion due to physical disabilities. She regretted that very much, but at another time was able to make her reunion in Hershey, PA, of a China School for English-speaking children in China, mostly missionary and business kids. She had a lovely time, even though most of them had not been seen by her for 54 years! She enjoys her friends in Norfolk and her own family and fills her day with volunteering in an area hospital, Church Book Store and with cancer patients and their families.

Though not sent in by Mary Lee Settle Tazewell herself, a copy of her article in the April 16, 1987 New York Times "HERS" column was sent to me by the Alumnae Office. It was on "Time, Youth and Marriage Are Often Wasted on the Young". She feels that marriage at a later time in life usually has a good basis for a long-term friendship and therefore a good marriage.

Ruth Collins Henry lives in the Charlottesville area as does Mary Lee. Although Ruthie now works in Covington, she keeps her own home in Loudoun County nearby. At least she can return there when the job she has taken at Covington Boys' Home as cataloguer in the library ends this summer. After husband, John's death in 1985, Ruthie traveled, visiting her children in CA and NY and took other trips including SBC's Tunisia Tour. She returned wanting something to "get her teeth into". Her rector suggested this cataloguer's position and she started in the fall of 1986 and has enjoyed it. She has been playing bridge with John's Naval Academy classmates' wives ever since 1963, and has continued doing so by going to Alexandria for 3 days a month. She stays with Jean Tyree Willman, with whom she attends concerts, museums, etc. Her son is in Germany but she is able to spend the holidays with each of her two daughters, one in Binghamton, NY, and the other in Richmond.

From Richmond, Mary Petty Johnson Bedell writes of her 4 very satisfactory sons. While in San Francisco a year ago May for one son's wedding, Mary Petty had a wonderful conversation with Coralie Kahn Ferro, whom she telephoned for help on a venue for the rehearsal dinner. Coralie's immediate and gracious response, despite the fact that she was in the midst of moving, was not only heartwarming but proved how loyal our SBC classmates can be. Mary Petty was sorry not to see Coralie, but with 2 other sons, went down to Carmel and had a glorious time playing golf at Pebble Beach and Spy Glass. Two of Mary Petty's sons live with their families in Richmond, so she is able to see 4 of her grandchildren. Her youngest son and his wife have just moved from Tucson to Atlanta. At home Mary Petty does volunteer work at the Virginia Museum, is on the boards of the IVNA and the VA Home for Boys and likes to play golf, tennis and bridge, but does not like to have to cook or clean house! Her husband, Wood, retired so they can now leave humid Richmond for the whole summer, going for most of the time to Lake Muskoka in Canada and the rest of the summer to Lake Champlain in NY. She is in touch with Emory Gill Williams who just had two knee replacements. She has seen Ann Adamson Taylor who looks great and is very much involved in Maryland Republican politics. "Carrie" Lancaster Pasco and husband, Merrill, have traveled a lot and just returned from England last fall.

In Ware Neck, VA, Connie Chalkley Kittler's husband, Kit, had a rather serious operation last June, but has been recovering well, and therefore their past year has been rather quiet. They bought an apartment in Washington, DC, where they lived for many years, hoping to spend time there in the fall and winter. In going through mail one day, Connie happened to see an article about Ruth Collins Henry in an envelope requesting funds for the Covington Boys' Home (for homeless boys). It was a wonderful story and photo about Ruthie and the two former room-mates have talked on the phone several times since then. Emory Gill Williams told of a lovely celebration last October of husband Carrington's 70th birthday, given by Dabney Williams McCoy. All 6 of their children were there. After a short trip to Bermuda, Emory had total knee surgery on both knees last November and expects now to be as good as new. They too leave VA's heat of summer and go to their cottage in ME, where most of their children and grandchildren join them for part of the time. Both Jean Tyree Willman and Mary Sue Kilham Davis are in Alexandria, VA. Jean still lives in the historic section on Duke Street and continues to work at the Hospice of No. VA and also in the archives of the Armed Forces History Section at the Smithsonian. She also maintains her old houses, which is a never-ending job! 1986 was a great year for Jean as her daughter remarried, a very nice VA gentleman, in Charlottesville; after the wedding Jean spent 2 weeks in Spain with another daughter last June. To top it off, her new red Mercedes which she had ordered in Germany was delivered a year ago August, so now she has the car she hopes to keep forever! Mary Sue Kilham Davis also has a job keeping up two homes, one in Alexandria and the other at the ocean. She is enjoying her 4 grand-daughters as well as being active with the new Museum of Women in the Arts which opened in the Spring of '87 near the White House. She saw Emory Gill Williams at their 50th reunion at St. Catherine's last year and met Emory's large family.

Agnes Spencer Burke lives in our capital city of Washington, DC, but her youngest daughter lives in Charlottesville, where she presented Agnes with her 5th grandchild in August. Agnes sees Stuart Hensley Woodward often in Alexandria and Stuart is also a new grandmother. Stuart's first grandchild was born recently in San Francisco. Blair Bunting Both of Wilmington, DE, and husband, Dick, went to visit Ellie Snow Lea and Tat in Pawlet, VT last October, after their big snow storm! In July, in Monroe, NC, their daughter, SBC graduate Blair Both, had her ordination to the diaconate (Episcopal Church). Among classmates and friends present were Judy Burnett Davis and Dolly Nicholson Tate. Young Blair is now on the staff of St. Michael's Church, Raleigh, Virginia Allison Haywood's church. Blair herself still works at the Delaware Hospice and is leading a Kerygma Group of Bible Study at her church. She now finds that this is requiring 10-12 hours a week of preparation! Their son Steve lives in Wilmington while another son and family live in Wheaton, IL.

Going north, we visit Helen Cornwell Jones in Princeton, NJ. Last November, Helen and Homer in returning from Asheville, NC, stopped to see the campus and the grounds and this time were there for Ann Ream's bon voyage party before leaving for a 3-week trip to Australia and New Zealand. Such luck! Helen is an AAR for SBC and has done a great deal of work for the Alumnae Association. Through the Lawrenceville Women's Club, to which she belongs, Helen has a few scholarships to award each year. This year, one of them went to a girl whom Helen had told about SBC. Helen also, with Nancy Nalle and Martha Lou Stohman, viewed a video of last year's 50th reunion. It was such fun to watch that Helen says every one of us has to plan now to attend our 50th in 1990!

In Chatham, NJ, Connie Currie Fleming writes of having had luncheon, with many laughs, in NYC with Bettie Ivins Haskins, down from Boston, and Barbara Smith Whitlock. "Ivy" in December had just moved into a new smaller home but still in Concord. Last summer Connie and her husband visited Ellie Snow Lea and Tat at their lovely home in Pawlet, VT. Connie has talked with Ellie since the Leas returned from a trip to NC to visit two daughters and their families. One of these days, Connie hopes to see Nicky Gockley McClellan and Helen Cornwell Jones, both of whom are very busy people. A year ago she saw Blair Bunting Both in Wilmington on a visit to Winterthur. In October the Flemings had a marvelous trip to Spain followed by a couple of weeks in FL, returning to FL for the winter after the Christmas holidays. They have 2 grandsons with whom they try to keep up, as both are very active in football and hockey.

On the ocean side of NJ, in Manasquan, is Mary Height Black who has a lovely daughter in CA with 5 children and a great husband. Her son, Tommy, finally got married last fall and so some dreams do come true! Mary has been persuaded to join the D.A.R. and is doing so at the suggestion from her roommate at our 45th reunion. She returned to campus then to see if it was as beautiful as she had remembered it from the '30's...and it was! Jim and Barbara Smith Whitlock of Hillside, NJ, had a lovely visit with their daughter, Nancy, in Kennebunk, ME last October. Nancy built a charming small Cape Cod type house there, having spent some of her summers at her parent's shore home in Mautoloking, NJ. Others joined Nancy there, a brother from CA and his family, another brother and his family from Brooklyn, and still another brother from Ithaca. Barbara and Jim love having their 5 grandchildren visit them there and they all love the ocean! Besides having had luncheon in NYC with "Ivy" Haskins and Connie Fleming, Barbara also had luncheon in December with Polly Boze Glascock. She also talks on the phone with Helen Cornwell Jones and sent me another article by Mary Lee Settle Tazewell from Women's Day Magazine about the decades of the 30's and the 40's which were 2 different worlds, divided by a war that would change many lives forever. Mary Lee mentions having been at Sweet Briar in 1938, going on to New York.

Polly Boze Glascock and husband Jim are in Short Hills, NJ. In '87 in the fall, they drove around Normandy and Brittany, with Jim's nephew and his wife from Greenwich, whose daughter, Suzanne Branch, is a Sweet Briar graduate of '86. Husband Jim has retired from the practice of law, but Polly is still very involved in the real estate business, and recently sold a house in Short Hills belonging to a Sweet Briar alumna and her husband. Their son, Scott, works in the financial world in NYC and just moved into a co-op he bought on Murray Hill. The last week of January they visited friends in AZ and in March or April their annual jaunt was to London.

Elizabeth (Nickie) Gockley McClellan left her home in Garden City on Long Island, NY, in October for Puerto Rico, where the humidity and heat meant that October was not the right month to be there. Earlier she and husband, Bob, had a nice visit with their middle son and his family in CO and spent a few days playing golf at the Broadmoor. They by now should have had their 9th grandchild. Cynthia Noland Young recently got a new house number in Roxbury, CT. It is now #36 South Street. All 6 children, two with families, are scattered from Boston to Boulder, CO, and they have fun "invasions" throughout the year. One daughter pilots for Piedmont, soon to be USAir, and she also turns up from time to time at Bradley Airport. Karl and Cynthia attended the Yale-Hawaii game last October in Honolulu, then spent a week in the Los Angeles area, neatly missing the earthquake there and a freak major snow back home! She saw Helen Cary Stewart ('39) in Pacific Palisades getting around very well after a hip replacement as well as Shirley Laurence, also '39.

Into the last state on our visit we come to MA, to Marion, near Boston. This is where Muriel Barrows Neall lives with husband Jim. They spent a month in the spring of '87 in a borrowed 17th century, thatched roof cottage in a walled garden in a tiny village near Salisbury, England. Spring in England must be seen, she says, to be believed, and their opportunity to become part of village life was very special. In the fall, they spent 3 weeks in the Maritime Provinces. They are both retired, in excellent health and love their new life in a small sailing-orientated spot, almost at the bridge to Cape Cod. The northernmost town we shall visit is Concord, as we heard from Elizabeth (Ivy) Ivins Haskins there. Husband, Bill, is still working for Harvard and "Ivy" is still too involved in too many things. Two of their children with their 4 grandchildren live in the Boston area; one other lives in Denver with his family of two, and the fourth is in LA. Even though "Ivy" and Bill have just moved into a smaller house, still in Concord, they are now planning to add on some; "Ivy" enjoys planning such things.

This 1988 is our 48th reunion year. It would be nice to hear from whomever returns to campus for it.

Please do put me on your postcard lists when you travel, too. Whenever I hear news and weather reports of your different cities, I think of you.

Again the response to my plea for news has been very rewarding. I want to thank all of you who either wrote to me or sent news to the alumnae office.

Nancy Eagles O'Bannon and Whit had a beautiful trip to the Swiss-Italian Alps and were looking forward to a trip after Christmas to Stuart, FL, and then on to the Virgin Islands. Murrell Rickards Chadsey and Chad spent last summer again at their place in VT. They have continued with their landscaping project and have even built a pond. Rickey's youngest son, Lee Bowen, will be going to the Rock Resort of Carambola, St. Croix, in April '88 as resident manager. Millie Brenizer Lucas sent an attractive Christmas card, a picture of her 4 children, their spouses, her 6 grandchildren and herself. Since Luke died 2 years ago, she is particularly glad to have her family close by.

The other day the phone rang and I was delighted to hear Louise Smith Barry's voice coming from the Atlanta airport. She was returning from Baton Rouge where she had just welcomed her latest grandchild, daughter of older son, George. She had earlier reported that she had finally decided to retire from her school library job, but she was enjoying taking courses, playing tennis and traveling. Her daughter, Sue (SBC '72), lives in NY and her younger son, Chris, is at Stanford in business school. Bob and Peggy Gordon Seiler stayed with the Barrys when they came for the wedding of Sydney Holmes Bale's son last June. Sydney is still busy doing tax work, but trying to retire gradually. Her son Peter teaches at Portledge School on Long Island while he works on his Ph.D. at Stony Brook. Her younger son Billy is on leave from United Airlines and is attending law school at Fordham. He and his wife are expecting their first child. Sydney also reported that Helen Cantey Woobridge is still selling real estate and recently returned from CA where she attended the wedding of her son Brec.

Peggy Seiler and Norma Bradley

Arnold attended the Sweet Briar Alumnae Council in the fall and had a delightful visit. Peggy also reported that the Betty Maury Valentine Scholarship Fund is producing $6000 annually! Peggy hopes that Louise Barry and Sydney Bales will join her for a mini-reunion at SBC sometime this spring. Norma had had lunch with Anne Bowen Broadus in New York before meeting Peggy in Richmond, and while in Richmond she saw Carlisle Morrissett Branch. Later in the fall she and Joe had dinner with Harry and Marty Falk Vallery in Lexington while they were attending the trotting events. Norma's grandson had his second birthday in January and his twin sisters had their first just two days before! The Vallerys and Arnolds spend their winters in FL where they frequently see each other. Marty was ready to swap snow and fur coat weather of OH for the warm, sunny swimsuit weather of Deerfield Beach.

After leaving the greenhouse at SBC a couple of years ago, Sally Anderson Bowley spent a year getting to know her "grandkids" in CA and NH and her "granddogs" in Pennsylvania. Then she enrolled in school, lay studies at Trinity Episcopal Seminary, to which she refers as a year-long retreat to help her sort out her life. She now has an apartment across from the cathedral and a part-time job in the cathedral greenhouse. June Eisenberg Gurnick and her husband of 46 years, Lou, have led a very interesting life. They have 5 daughters, 5 grandchildren and have lived in IL, CT, several years in London and are now in CA. Lou is still working 10 hours a day as an international financial consultant, and they spend months in Europe, mostly England, each year. Now that she is no longer selling for KLM airlines, June has started counseling senior citizens—individuals, couples and groups. She says, "Even the elderly have marital problems."

Irwin and Muriel Abrash Schapiro have moved into a new one-story home, and she has retired from her library job. She is enjoying swimming, book-clubs, the Kennedy Music Series in Richmond and her grandchildren. Her daughter Bambi Salzberg is on Cable 29 every Sunday in "Richmond Reports". Her son Harry is Director of Corporate Affairs at Vanderbilt Gold Corporation in Las Vegas, NV. Rush and Marjorie (Snookie) Woods Williamson have had a wonderful year: 3 mornings a week exercising with the Hilltoppers at the local Y; this year they start Yoga. They had another trip to England with Elderhostel, and they hope to be accepted for the trip to China. Rush has cased the eastern seaboard for a retirement community that suits, but, so far, no luck. In the meantime they are enjoying the Chicago area where they participate in the programs at the Art Institute and the Botanical Garden.

I made a note on June 5, 1987 that Richard Gookin, Associate Director of Protocol for the State Department, appeared on the Today Show discussing diplomatic immunity with Chuck Ashman, who had written on diplomatic crimes. Richard and Betty Williams Gookin have had a busy, interesting year which included escorting foreign diplomats to the Constitutional Gala in Philadelphia. They visited New York for the U.N. where Betty was a guest of Mrs. Shultz on Malcolm Forbes' yacht, The Highlander, and New York City (the Metropolitan Opera) and Boston with President and Mrs. Herzog of Israel. She plays tennis with Alice Lancaster Buck once a week, and "sometimes Pete, too!" Alice and Pete attended a Faith Alive Conference in Nassau, visited children in San Antonio, other conferences in New Orleans and Bermuda and were looking forward to a ski trip with all their children and grandchildren at Christmastime. Alice has used her historical training to give lectures to the Colonial Dames, DARS, SARs and ther groups, on the Christian origins of the Constitution. Jinny Noyes Pillsbury had wonderful experiences during 1987. She took part in a 3-week Elderhostel in England and Ireland, made an interesting journey to Haiti with friends from the Diocese of Milwaukee and spent 6 weeks in the fall touring Hawaii, New Zealand, Australia and the Fiji Islands. Her oldest daughter Jeannette (SBC '72) was selected by her school district and the Washington Post to receive one of the Washington Post Distinguished Educational Leadership Awards.

Emily Wilkins Mason says Tom is still doing theater and enjoying every minute of it. He has a small part in a movie, In a Shallow Grave, filmed in New Castle, VA, to be released this spring and a made-for-TV movie about Lincoln. Tom plays a southern congressman. Sam Waterman and Mary Tyler Moore play the parts of President and Mrs. Lincoln. Babe Loveland Swanbeck talks to Josey Pernas Albrecht occasionally. Josey was recently widowed for the second time, but is coping beautifully. Babe and Ray have recently completed a 3-year program of planting pine trees in their pastureland. Since there are no more cattle, they have more time to travel to far-off places. Harry and Dot DeVore Platt divide their time between Jacksonville and NC. Their son, his wife and 3 little girls live in Jacksonville, and Robin (SBC '82), their daughter is married to an astronaut and lives in Houston with her two little girls.

Another wonderful and interesting news letter arrived from Paulett Long Taggart. In the spring she and Ganson visited Richmond where they attended a party at Peggy and Bob Seiler's. She also had lunch with Peggy and Carlisle Morrissett Branch. Later because of a trip to England, they had to miss the gathering of Sweet Briarites at Locust Valley, NY for the wedding of Sydney Holmes Bales' son in June. Paulett continues to present her drama workshops in which she integrates the arts into the learning process. Paulett and Ganson have also been active in the Beyond War Movement at the local, regional and national level. Dorothy Beutell Smith has operated her own business from her home for the last 8 years. She provides computerized file maintenance and mailing. Her children are scattered from White Plains to NYC to Philadelphia and Tucson. Dottie lives 90 miles north of NYC on the way to Canada and New England. She would love to hear from anyone coming that way.

Evelyn (Honey) Peck McCall's son, Richard, an orthopedic surgeon, is Chief of Staff of the Children's Hospital in Shreveport, LA. Her younger son, Jonathan, is a partner in his father's law firm. Her husband Bill is still a very active trial lawyer. They live in New Orleans and also have a weekend place in the country. Cecile Waterman Essrig is an elected member of the School Board of Hillsborough County, FL. She recently had an elementary school named for her! Marjorie Willetts Maiden, since her retirement, is busier than ever. She is studying Spanish intently and homework is driving her crazy! She is already making plans to attend our reunion in '89. I had a nice card from Adeline Taylor Nunez. She keeps me posted on her genealogical research and occasionally finds some information on the Longinos for me.

There have been many travelers this past year as usual. Because it is her business, Anne Moore Remington took groups to China and Alaska in '87 and was starting off '88 with a trip to South Africa in Feb. She saw Libby Vaughan Bishop and Jean Blanton Murphy in Washington. Later, Jane Rice McPherson and Libby had a visit in NY where they enjoyed a couple of plays. Libby was in NY for a Garden Club of America Board meeting. Jane McPherson's daughter practices law in Indianapolis and her husband is the chief oboist of the Indianapolis Symphony. Jane's younger son is a candidate for a doctorate in neurophysiology.

Other world travelers are John and Pat Whitaker Waters, who spent October in a cottage they rented in the middle of the Yorkshire moors; Alice Johnson Fessenden, who had a fabulous journey to Australia and New Zealand; Anita Lippitt Clay, who spent a couple of weeks with one son and his family on a ranch last summer and then flew to Buenos Aires for Christmas with another son who is a missionary with the Navigators; Bill and Helen Gravatt Watt, who had a delightful 2-week bus tour of France in the summer; Dot Denny Sutton, who started off '87 with a trip to Hawaii; Billy and Ellen Boyd Duval

Miller, who had a 6-week motor tour through England where they enjoyed gardens, cathedrals, towns, seashore, woods and moors; Bill and Marian Shanley Jacobs, who had a lovely excursion through Wales and England where they explored the river valleys and mountains by car and on foot and then on to London for the wonderful theater; and finally I, who had a beautiful trip to France in March when I visited my daughter, and then just after the New Year Hughes and I spent 10 days in Italy with our son.

I received a Christmas card from Jimmy and Catherine Tift Porter; it was a happy picture of the whole family - 17 strong - at their cottage at Ponte Vedra, FL last summer. Betty Haverly Smith keeps busy with her family of 7 children, 5 spouses and 10 grandchildren, but she still finds time for outside projects, such as her latest, working with North Atlanta Senior Services. This group is composed of 10 or 12 churches and offers various services and activities for the elderly. After 41 years Alice Fessenden finally has an empty nest; her youngest Tom is now out of college and working for McDonnell Douglas in space transportation.

Many thanks to all of you who supplied me with so much news. Remember, it is not too early to start planning to attend our 45th Reunion in 1989!

There is nothing like a 13-inch snowfall to make one settle down by a warm fire and write these notes. By the time you read this, though, summer will be here, and the reunion will be over. Since these are written in January, there is definitely no reunion news. Except that it was our fortieth (big 40th)! Meanwhile, back at the ranch and down to the news.

Vi Whitehead Morse spent the summer recovering from surgery... just in time to have Jane Luke and Liz Barbour McCrea as her guests in September during the Alumnae Council Meeting. Vi adds that all 4 daughters are out of the nest now. Jane Luke enjoys her summers on Cape Cod; she sold her sailboat and bought a Boston Whaler. After her visit to Vi's and SBC in September, she took a trip to London via the QE2 and the Concorde.

Blair Graves Smith and Brenton dropped in to Sweet Briar last summer and "found the campus quite deserted... so we headed to Amherst for a bite. There was Martha Mansfield Clement and she created a mini-reunion all for me." Take a bow, Martha. Martha is still at SBC in the development office. She has sold her farm and moved into town, closer to "work, church, and civilization."

Among our boating alums, of whom Jane Luke has been mentioned, is Sally Smith Williams who enjoys not only condo living in Boca Raton, but sailing the inland waterway. World sailors Jane Miller Wright and husband are Mediterranean bound this summer, with Christmas in the Caribbean and home by July 1989 via the Panama Canal, Galapagos and Cocos Islands. I'm waiting for them to be inducted into the U.S. Navy. Closey Faulconer Dickey and Whit keep their hands in the salt water, too. After 6 weeks on a ski trip out west to Aspen, Telluride, Taos, and Yellowstone, they spent a week cruising the west coast of Scotland and the Hebrides with friends, plus some land touring to see castles and gardens.

Another adventurer is Martha Frye Nye who celebrated her 60th birthday in September by enrolling in an Outward Bound trip mountain climbing and white water rafting. Martha probably felt she needed to get in training, because during Christmas, she and Bill were having all 6 children, spouses, grandchildren and dogs—a survival experience in itself.

The two in-laws (or is it out-laws) Helen Pender Withers and Marguerite Rucker Ellett celebrated a third grandchild last year. Marguerite is into bird watching these days and loving it, plus "still knitting, baking cheese biscuits, doing church work, and baby sitting when I'm lucky." Helen and Brooks are building new and smaller house in their same neighborhood. They took a wonderful 8700 mile drive across the U.S. last year from Virginia to the west coast and back. Another bird watcher is Harriette Bland Coke. Her bird feeder is right outside her dining room window so "we watch each other eat".

Ann Rowland Tuck and husband are enjoying the retirement life with 2 months every year in FL and occasional trips abroad. Liz Hooks Richards and Bill are also in FL from November to May. They love condo living. "No worries about leaves or grass or such traumas." No FL condo for Meon Bower Harrison and her husband. After 24 years in Orange, VA they have moved to Charlottesville and are enjoying a home in the woods - "definitely low maintenance, no raking of leaves, but plenty of SBC bulbs planted". Sylvia Saunders Davis and her husband are also living "a busy if bucolic existence in the country" about an hour away from New Orleans. Dickie Lile Hartman and husband are still on their island off the coast of Washington raising "exotic ducks and chickens." Marjorie Smith Smithey says that Hamilton won't retire - he is doing land surveying now, while Marjorie teaches 9th grade world history. Their 2 married sons each have a son.

Two of us "girls" who are enjoying this past year after some difficult times are Peggy Sheffield Martin and Patty Traugott Rouse. Peggy and Tom have had a wonderful year with their health, children and grandchildren. Patty is a grandmother of 2 sets of twins born within 2½ weeks. Her daughter had twin sons and her son and his wife twin girls. Patty rates grandmother of the year for that. She and Jim are still at the Enterprise Foundation which they founded in 1982.

Ruth Faulkner Howe stays involved with her 3 children and 2 grandchildren, all of them in Longmont, CO. She's also busy with the church choir, golfing, and working with Alzheimer's patients. Nan Steptoe McKinley is doing "much volunteer and church work and bargello." Stan is still Eastern Regional Commissioner of Immigration. Their eldest daughter is taking paralegal courses while working for the Justice dept.; 2nd daughter is at Harvard Law School; and their son is at U.V.M. Ann Orr Savage is still an active volunteer with the Pierpont Morgan Library, garden club, hospital and church. In between and around she has taken up golfing, too. Helen McKemie Riddle, on the other hand, turned in her volunteer badge for a career in real estate. "It's fun and stimulating," she says and adds, "Guess I'll never rust, at least."

Helen Elliot Sockwell has been remodeling and enlarging their house this year. Even though the children have left, "they do come home," she writes. Amen to that. A new granddaughter for Helen was born in Nov. to son Steve and his wife, Diane in Arlington, VA. Helen was off to St. Croix for a week, and hopes to see us all in May. Betty Bruton Lyons and Ed are sorry that they will miss Reunion but they had planned a trip in May to Italy and England.

Martha Davis Barnes is also doing some renovation. Her father died this year and Martha has moved into his house in Atlanta. She was planning to go to VT for Christmas to be with her daughter and son-in-law who have opened a small boutique. She said Closey Faulkner Dickey and Whit have been so nice and helpful to her and the children.

Josephine Neal Peregrine is still teaching learning disabled students in junior high and Vickie Brock Badrow is teaching and running the school library in Flint, MI. She says she just can't quite make that final decision to quit. Judy Blakey Butler has been a house mother for the Sigma Kappa sorority at Oregon State. She enjoyed it but found it very stressful. So now she's back to the good life... home in Lake Oswego, OR and semi-annual trips to the east coast to visit the children. Working as a house mother or an administrative assistant in a college is still on her agenda in the future.

Two girls back in college are Liz Bramham Lee and Connie Conover. Liz will be in England this summer studying castles and cathedrals with a group of students and a history professor. Next summer she will be back in England studying at Oxford's St. John's College. Connie graduated in May from the Professional Training Program in Dramatic Art at Chapel Hill. She has also been acting with the Playmakers Rep. Company.

Betty Johnson Ragland says that since her husband's retirement, life consists of "packing and unpacking." Other packers and unpackers are Caroline Haskell Simpson who enjoyed a trip to the Tetons last summer, and is now running an antique show to benefit restoration projects, and Liz Graves Perkinson who had a wonderful trip to Australia and New Zealand with a group of Sweet Briar alumnae. Caroline's oldest boy's book, Blowback, (about the recruitment of Nazis by the U.S. after WWII) will be published in April. Her #2 boy is working on his Ph.D. in Italian. Marion Coulter Bodwitch and her husband spent 6 weeks in China. Phil lectured and consulted with young engineers planning to come to the U.S. to study and she "taught English conversation." They divide their time between MA and an island off ME - when not in China.

Pottsie Snodgrass stays very busy with volunteer work, and with children and grandchildren. Betsy Anderson Gorrell is another one involved with family; she and her husband have 10 grandchildren. Is that the class record? Ann Paxson Gail has just had her first grandchild.

Evy Sharp Vidal is "still enjoying my pre-civil war salt box house," and Weezie Lloyd's school, Copeland Run, is thriving and so is her small wildflower garden, which is a "constant joy, the best non-retirement retirement you could have."

Suzanne Hardy Beaufort is recuperating from a bad fall and is into walkers, crutches, and therapy.

Blair Graves Smith sent me an article from the New York Times on Jenny Bell Bechtel Whyte. Jenny Bell makes beautiful contemporary clothes from restored museum-quality antique textiles and she has obviously made a name for herself. She operates under the title Museum Fabrics to Wear. For any interested, the phone number in NYC is 369-0014.

Another noteworthy item is a

newspaper article on Faith Mattison. Faith, "Skipper" (you cannot escape old college nicknames), has made a name for herself in Romney, NH for her outstanding efforts and success in the Mooselauke Health Center. She has not only expanded its functions with numerous new programs, but also its financial base and the number of people and areas it serves. The article ends and I quote "It is rare to find a volunteer that works full-time solely for the benefit of her community... Faith has built a Health Center that really works." That's a wonderful tribute.

Back to the mundane and less inspirational, namely the Little Rock contingent, Nancy Moses Eubanks and me. We are trying to stay one step ahead of senility. Life for both of us has been very pleasant this past year. Here in the Ozarks we just take off our shoes, eat our cornbread and blackeyed peas and reminisce on the good old days at SBC. See y'all.

Everyone has been so cooperative in quickly answering my postcards that I can't thank you enough. Reunion was heaven. They seem to get better and better and we all had a lovely time.

Before I start the news, I wanted to remember Robbin McGarry Ramey, our past class president. She was such a spark for 1952 and she never aged and she never dimmed. She looked as she did the day she graduated at our 30th and we really didn't make the time at our 35th to pay tribute. It will never seem quite the same without her and I wanted to be sure that was down in black and white.

My other burning and dreadful report is that on October 10, 1987 my own precious son David, aged 26, died from injuries sustained in an automobile accident. To me he was like cement keeping us all together with his pride in us. I have remembered constantly the phrase from A Farewell to Arms: "The world breaks everyone and then some become strong in the broken places," and I hope that I am.

On to more upbeat news. Susannah Crist Lee has been for the past 8 years at WTCL - Channel 45, the local PBS station in Chattanooga. As adult education coordinator, she has developed a series in 4 parts titled "Women and Success: Achieving the Balance." What a kid!

A lovely letter from Joannie Holbrook Patton with a picture, too, of George, Jr., who was elected to represent MA in equestrian events at the International Special Olympics of 1987. Competing in English style, when all of his previous experience had been in Western events, he won a gold and silver medal. His sister, Helen Patton, appeared on TV on Jan. 25th in the Monday night movie, "The Rescue", filmed in Berlin. She has just completed her graduate studies at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art. What a family!

An exuberant card from Kitchie. Daughter Katie married in June and Kitchie and Roy are settled into a brand-new house in Gulfstream. Kitchie is embarking upon a campaign to golf. Harriet Thayer Elder visited Martha Legg Katz earlier this year. Harriet is celebrating the impending marriage of daughter, Beth, and also the opening of her counseling center in Black Mountain, NC, where she loves the simple yet fulfilling lifestyle.

Gay Maupin Bielenstein lives on Riverside Drive, NY as her husband, Hans, prepares to retire from Columbia's Dept. of Asian Language & Culture where he teaches Chinese history. "Aunt" Bunny Maupin is in Georgetown, editing a magazine on historic preservation.

Keir Henley Donaldson, my very first roommate, is program director with the Charles Ives Arts Center in Danbury, CT, and she's busy. Her 2 sons live nearby. Deedee Bell is still working on the Very Thing catalogue, which has been bought by Swiss Colony. She travels on buying trips to New York and Dallas and on location, too, for various shoots. Loves her house in Syria, VA, and riding in long distance competitions where she recently won a blue ribbon.

Marty Legg Katz finally had a wedding. Susan married Paul R. Miller, III and has gone off to Senegal, Africa for 2 years. He is deputy head of Catholic Relief there. Does anybody know anybody in Dakar? Call Martha PDQ! Millie O'Neal Palmer sent love from Oxfordshire, England. Polly Plumb Debutts-Spaulling lives in Washington, DC after 3 decades of living in VA. She and her husband John live close to their respective offices on Pennsylvania Avenue and at the Kennedy Center.

Benita Phinzy Johnson bumped into Pat Layne Winks in a small museum in Zurich last September and had a card from Susan Otis Thompson at Christmas. Susan's arthritis is bad so she is taking a spring sabbatical. Benita still teaches piano and all is well. After 24 years, Grace Jones Fishel moved into a larger house due to the arrival of a second grandchild; she is dead tired! Louise Warfield Stump now has twin granddaughters, Liza and Ann Murphy born on Sept. 28th. They joined Kate, aged 2, and keep Louise's daughter Alivia a little busy. Mary Bailey Izard checked in from Heron Island on her way to New Zealand having seen mutton birds a-courting.

The Honorable Elizabeth Stamp has just celebrated her 25th anniversary as Information Officer with OXFAM, the largest overseas aid agency in the U.K. She deals with information for 77 countries about agriculture, tropical health and now, new topics like international debt and AIDS. Laura Redford Goley and her husband, after a superb trip through the Far East, have settled at Smith Mountain Lake, VA where they've had a summer cottage for many years.

Katharine Shaw Minton celebrated grandson William's (son of Leslie, SBC '80) first birthday in Beverly Hills, midst a heatwave and earthquake! Charles, husband of Katharine's late sister, Harriet Shaw McCurdy '37, died last fall. Charles knew many of the SBC gals.

Janis Thomas Zeanah works for the University of Alabama as publication coordinator at Birmingham Community Cancer Center. Her husband Charley is a consultant at the UAB development office. Barbara Baker Bird has traveled and traveled as director of Welcome Home Adoption Services - India, Hong Kong, Korea, The Philippines, Antigua and Alaska to name a few. How about a course in organized packing??

That's it for now! Let me hear from all of you. It's fun to get this lovely mail.

The cards from this active and accomplished class are appreciated; the difficult part is trying to fit your news into the allotted space. Family, travel, and jobs are main topics, and many closed with "It's been a great year" or "Life is good." Sounds like mid-life contentment instead of crisis! Our own Byrd Stone was promoted to a full Professor last year. She has added a black lab, Crawford, to her family, which includes a 10 yr. old shepherd named Fletcher and 2 cats, Rosebud and Marigold. Byrd says its like coming home to the Bronx Zoo at night. Jane Street Lile's happy news is that last year she became Mrs. Henry Steele. The Steeles are building a house in Raleigh where she is a docent at the NC Museum of Art. Jane's son, John, married this year and also lives in Raleigh. The Steeles had 2 lovely weeks in Kenya.

In Louisville, Eve Altsheier Jay is single and happily teaching illiterate adults. Daughter, Carter, received her masters at Tulane, is working with juvenile delinquents, and has bought a house; son, Edward, is considering graduate business school. Linda Learnard Whitfield got together with the SBC contingent from Louisville last fall. She and Fred moved from Atlanta to Richmond. We were together at our 35th reunion at Holton Arms last May, and she looks marvelous. They have grandbabies, 3 and 1. Daughter, Liza, spent 3 weeks in Europe after Vanderbilt graduation, and works for Puckerton Tobacco Co. Son, Matt, is studying graphic design at Virginia Commonwealth U. Other sons are happily employed in Atlanta and Knoxville.

Ann Willis Hettlage is in her 8th year as administrator at Washington Univ., and loves it. Husband, Bob, is an ever busy lawyer; daughter Mary (UNV '83) is doing an MBA; son Jim (Kenyon '86) is in law school; son Tom is a junior at Colgate Univ.

The real estate business has several enthusiastic classmates. Macie Clay Nicols is an associate at Louisville's largest real estate company and loves it. She suggests that others in the same field from SBC should "network". Macie and Robert's daughter, Martha, is finishing her PhD in French at Duke; son, Robert is at U. of Louisville. Macie is on the Search Committee for Sr. Pastor at 2nd Presbyterian Church, and she is still active at Speed Art Museum. She reported that Barbara Collis Rodas and Joe's daughter, Babs, had a lovely garden wedding last May, and that Meredith Smythe Grider and Paul celebrated their 30th anniversary with a gala, featuring the Kingston Trio. From Baltimore, Mary Ann Hicklin Quarngesser still manages the Greenspring Real Estate office, and they have had a great year. Her firm is Sotheby's exclusive representative in the area. Her youngest, Suzie, now 21, spent the summer in Florence studying art and Italian. Mary Ann traveled with her in Italy and France, and spent a week at Christmas in Holland and Belgium looking at more art. Her oldest daughter is in New York and middle girl in Atlanta. She described the beautiful wedding of Barbara Bernhard MacLea and Herb's daughter, Sally, as "the main event in Baltimore last fall."

Carter Nelson Sullivan's child, Page, is interested in George Mason U., so we hope to see Carter if she comes to VA. Received the happiest picture of Helen Turner Murphy and husband, Tayloe, with daughter, Anne. It was taken May '87 when Anne had just "coxed" her boat to victory for St. Pauls School, and had been thrown overboard. Watch out, Henley Regatta! Paula Purse Pointer has Pointer Associates office at home. She has been working with National Conference of Christian and Jews, leading workshops for businesses on prejudice reduction. Husband, Sam, is still Chief Judge of Federal Court in Birmingham, and they travel often.

Adding a porch on the back of their house were Frances Gilbert Browne and Herb. Frances says Louisa Hunt Coker inspired her to do this. The Brownes' sons are respectively: a lawyer, a banker, and a senior at UNC - Chapel Hill. Frances is active in Presbyterian Church in Charlotte, and rotated off the session this winter. She enjoyed working on renovating a gorgeous old sanctuary and looking after prospective members. Also from Charlotte, Frances Shannonhouse Clardy writes that daughter, Frances (who was one of our daughter, Ashby's, suitmates at SBC), is in Washington. Son, Jim also lives in Washington, and is a newspaper reporter. News from Julie Jackson Nichols, in the hills of West Virginia, is that her SB bulbs are planted, husband David's children visited for Christmas, and fortunately they like cooking. Her father took them to the Greenbrier for Thanksgiving and she and David had a trip to Canada for 5th anniversary. She owns several paintings and prints by Pars Duffey, III, who is Cathy Vest Duffey's talented son.

1987 was an interesting year for Ann Train Ross, with a Nile cruise to Cairo, Luxor, and Aswan. She said it was exciting to see what the Egyptians had accomplished 5,000 years ago. The Rosses also traveled to Edinburgh for a wedding, then Johannesburg, and Cape Town. They still live in Sultanate of Oman, but hoped to return to England this past spring. Their "young" are married and working hard. Richard is a computer programmer; Patricia, an accountant; and Alison, finishing her masters in conservation and ecology, and working for the Marine Conservation Society. Exciting news from Prince Trimmer Knox about her major project for '87. She was the writer and lyricist for Belle, a musical based on life of Isabella Stewart Gardner. The world premiere was in Richmond in May '87, and benefitted the restoration of a VA Historic Landmark. Prince's sister-in-law, Phoebe Knox Bindley, wrote the music and the program was smashing. SBC sent 2 vans to a performance, and Helen Mac and Dan Boone came too. Bravo! Prince and Joe, back from the year at Columbia, are grateful for the opportunities in New York. A perfect two lines from Sarah Sharp Taylor in Nashville - "Highlight of '87 (and many years to come) was trip to China and Tibet!"

Debbie Brown Stalker and Peter described two perfect months in Britain and France, a particularly idyllic stay at the mill house they love in Loire Valley. Remodeling of their house in Santa Barbara, CA is finished, and son, Marshall, and his St. Bernard have joined them. Husband, Peter, has just published his first catalog in his new role as antiquarian book dealer. Communication from Peggy Patillo Beckham in Abilene, TX was concise and informative. She has a first granddaughter, after 3 grandsons. In Sept., she spent 2 weeks hiking in Switzerland with husband, Bob, and son, John's family. Their youngest son, Rob, a graduate of U. of Texas, is working for Merrill Lynch. It was a big year for Marty Field Fite and her family. Her son and daughter-in-law, who live in Paris, had their 2nd boy, third baby in April '87. Marty went to Paris to help with her fifth grandchild. In June her youngest son was married, and at Thanksgiving her youngest daughter was wed, with reception at home. Whew! Mitzie Djerf DeRidder had a month's trip to France in May. Friends offered her their 300-year-old mill in the Perigord, where she enjoyed walking, sketching and eating! Karen Steinhardt Kirkbride's son, Steven, is a senior at

U. of Richmond, Kevin is a sophomore at Columbia U., and Trevor is in third grade at Fairfax-Brewster School. Karen and husband, Dick, still work at the Dept. of Defense. Louisa Hunt Coker's youngest son, Jim, a graduate of UVA, is employed by Union Camp in Pittsburgh. All children are gainfully employed. Louisa and I occasionally meet at regional meetings of Reach to Recovery. A first grandchild for Nancy Howe Entenmann was born on Halloween - a red haired boy! Nancy and Dick were in Puerto Rico for Ian Joshua MacKay's arrival. Son, Dirk, still practices law in Boston. The handwriting of Betsy Meade Hastings is as tiny as Betsy. Husband, Don's, excellent book, published by Taylor of Dallas, is entitled Gardening in The South with Don Hastings, Trees, Shrubs, and Leaves. Don is working on a test project, raising 12 acres of vegetables for the export market on the island of Guitatas in Cental Philippines. He is the only American on the 20-mile-long island, where they love him and call him "Dad." Don is also studying for a project in Malaysia. Young Don is a happy freshman at Davidson; son, Chris, who has current all-pin record in wrestling, is a junior at Lovett. The Hastings are active in Episcopal Church of the Apostles, where they have a fine evangelical priest from Egypt. A third grandchild for Mary Alice Major Duncan, Mallory Lee, was born to daughter, Andrea, whose husband is getting a doctorate in microbiology. Their son, Rives, is in his first year at Midwestern Baptist Seminary in Kansas City, MO. Son, Bill, married this year and is a Junior National's Swim Coach. Mary Alice has been very involved with Presbyterian Church as President of local women, as an Elder and in other posts. Do you know about Carolyn Dickinson Tynes's book, Elegant Flowers, published by Oxmoor? Carolyn was one of 5 who chose the arrangements, and Mary Ann Hicklin Quarngesser calls it "spectacular". Lottie Lipscomb Guttry is teaching 3 courses at U. of Texas and has started a consulting firm which offers effective writing seminars to businesses.

Bunny Burwell Nesbit is still in computer science in CA. Daughter, Katherine, works in same field in VA. Because Bunny fell and broke her right arm while on vacation, a neighbor wrote her news. Eleanor Russell, was full of news. Son, Michael, and wife, love Fairbanks, AK, where he is doing graduate work. Daughter, Susan Pankowsky, is doing graduate study at Kent State and practicum work at NASA in Cleveland. Daughter, Martha, has son who visits grandmother, Eleanor. But Eleanor's most impressive news was enclosed autobiography which includes 16 years teaching high school art, news of calligraphy work hung in San Antonio shows and in national photo contests, and one-man art shows. This extensive list was bordered in calligraphy. She draws much of her inspirations from hymns as expressions of faith and joy. Nancy Ettinger Minor is getting off town boards this year; she moved from United Way Board to Art Museum Guild, and is a docent. Nancy gives cooking classes twice a year, but has no discipline to finish writing cookbook. She and Raleigh travel and hope to end up at The Landings, outside Savannah, meanwhile keeping a cottage in Ashburnham, MA. She saw Alice Guggenheimer Mackay, "who looked great", at LPGA tournament.

Lee Chang Crozier's daughter, Linda, is finishing masters in sound engineering. Diana and husband, Jordan, have moved to Alexandria, VA, where he is executive asst. manager of Grand Hyatt Washington Hotel. Lee and Al stayed in the presidential suite there and plan to visit SBC on next trip east. The Croziers had a "leaf-peeping" tour of New England last fall, staying at bed and breakfast and historic inns. At home, they are still busy with church, choirs, and opera choruses. They enclosed an attractive photo of the two of them. Word from Joan Roberts Slattey is that their fledgling construction co. is beginning to prosper, with son, Paul, as new mechanical engineer. Son, Marc, teaches marine biology and hopes to begin PhD at U. of Southern CA this year. Daughter, Megan, returned to Joan's alma mater, Gonzaga U., working towards art education degree. Peggy Anne Roger's schedule is full. She attended the Library Board Meeting at SBC, went to India for a Ludhiana Medical College Board Tour, British Isles for June and July, and visited her mother in TN for 2 months. She is active in 5 community associations, school and church.

Janet Monroe Schumann is single and loves her job as director of development at Washington Hospital Center, an 821 bed teaching hospital. Daughter, Polly, is pursuing painting career in Washington while working in public relations to support herself. Daughter, Patricia, is working in England. Barbara Darnell Clinton and Dan called 1987 their "Trip-of-the-Month Year": a week's skiing in CO in Feb. with Barbara's mother (relaxing after Dan had chaired Houston's Engineers' Week); Parents Weekend at Texas A & M in April, and the Final Review of the Corps of Cadets at A & M in May; 2 weeks in Cancun in June; Epcot in July for Barbara and her mother while Dan backpacked with the Scouts; and, in Aug., a cruise of the Alaskan inland waterway. They also travel to A & M football games, and Barbara is Ways and Means chair for the Houston Aggi Moms. A group meets at her house every Tuesday and makes items to sell to raise money for A & M scholarships and student activities.

Parkie Carroll Mulholland can get even more on a postcard than I. Her daughter, Randi (SBC '80), has a new house and beautiful garden; son, Dave, is doing well selling copy machines; son, Jeffrey, is happy in 2nd year of UVA Medical School. Husband, Jack, is busy with challenge of changing medical world, but they manage to travel. Parksie is busy with garden club presidency, lecturing on horticulture, and judging for Garden Club of America. She says, "we love middle age - it has lots of assets." She saw Nancy Salisbury Neill recently and says "she didn't look a day older than in '56."

David and I have also had a good year with the addition of 2 precious grandsons, added to three granddaughters; all under 4 years at this writing. David Clark Morrison arrived in Feb. and his parents, Jane Clark Morrison (SBC '79) and husband, Jed, have moved to San Antonio, where Jed is a lawyer. Timothy Evans Coe was born in July, upon our return from a happy trip to England. Davis's niece, Allison Clark (SBC '85), married a Brit, Hugh Dunn, in London. There were 6 SBC representatives among the 35 "Colonials" who flew over. David and I had a week in the Cotswolds before the nuptials. Love and blessings to each of you.

Wonderful to hear from so many. You astound me with how much you can put on one postcard!

Rhett Ball Thagard enjoys her new home in Montgomery, AL, built in 1924. Daughter Betsy, 25, is working in Hong Kong and enjoying getting to know Katie Mendelson McDonald. Rhett's son Tom, 23, crews on a schooner in the Caribbean; her daughter Beverly, 18, loves UVA as a freshman. Rhett urges us to send money to the Alumnae Fund!

Judy Barnes Agnew has a full life in Durham, NC with 2 children in college—3 will be in the fall of '88. With oldest daughter Lynn engaged, they look forward to her wedding. Judy had a wonderful 50th birthday call from Carolyn Gough Harding.

Barbara Beam Denison is thrilled with her new venture with Teddy Hill Washer and Liz Few Penfield working as the DC representative for their Traditional Tented Safari business.

She had another fantastic trip to Kenya/Tanzania last fall. Her framing business is great, and she's taken up golf passionately. Her older two daughters are working; the youngest is at the U. of Delaware. Beam's artistic ability is amazing; her Christmas card was a sketch of African lions, and her stationery has a drawing of their home in Bethesda, MD.

Betsy Buechner Morris made me smile at 5:45 AM as I was writing these notes and read her card: "Monty and I have sailed blissfully through 25 years of marriage." That is an accomplishment! She is a Senior Product Manager at the Bank of Boston; Monty is a newly graduated architect. Three sons, Tom, 22, Peter, 21 and Chris, 18 are either in college or have just graduated. Betsy lives in Marblehead, MA.

Mary Anne Claiborne Johnston, Gladwyne, PA finds her job as Registrar and Director of Educational Services at the University of PA School of Medicine exciting and challenging. Husband Dick is Chairman of the Pediatrics Department there and Chief of Pediatrics at the Children's Hospital of Philadelphia. Son Richard is a 3rd year student at Vanderbilt Medical School, and son Claiborne is a teaching assistant for two physics courses at Harvard. Daughter Kristin loves the ambience of Los Angeles as a first year student at Occidental.

Lura Coleman Wampler writes from Wayne, PA that after 20 years of raising 3 children (2 are at the University of Richmond), volunteer work and club memberships, she is once again teaching chemistry at her alma mater, The Shipley School, Bryn Mawr. Although the first year has been very difficult, she is excited to be back in the academic environment. She continues to run her horse-boarding business, but has shed all community responsibilities to devote time to teaching and family.

Nancy Corson Gibbes enjoys a "non-career" after retiring from the county treasurer's office, "playing tennis and having a good ole time!" Daughter Laney, 23, Davidson graduate, sells her own tie-dyes and daughter Ellen is a financial analyst at Morgan, Stanley in NYC. Nancy and Joe enjoy activities at the Columbia, SC museum where he's chairman of the board. Judy Cowen Jones finds her business stimulating in Waynesboro, VA—a consulting and service company, Blue Ridge Tennis Enterprises. Elizabeth Few Penfield is busy with teaching and administrative duties at the University of New Orleans where she has been on the faculty since '66. She's hoping for a sabbatical that will involve projects in New York and Kenya. Liz has been appointed to a Task Force on the Future of the National Council of Teachers of English (NCTE).

Sue Speed Ford Hall and husband Jim are gearing up for George Bush's

'88 political campaign! Jim is executive assistant to the Mayor of Honolulu. They enjoy their new home which they've extended and renovated. Daughter Sabrina is in 2nd grade and for her first modeling job was on a magazine cover! Sue finds teaching English to high school juniors challenging. Betty Forsyth Harris's daughter Elizabeth married William Alfonso Cruz in August '87. Elizabeth, graduate of Brown, is an M.A. candidate at UVA. Mr. Cruz, a graduate of The Cooper Union School of Engineering, has a Master's of Engineering from UVA and attends the UVA Darden School of Business.

Anne Gatling Honey sold her home in Richmond and has a condominium there, but spends mid-December to mid-April in Boca Grande, FL where they've built a home. Son John is a 1st year law student and will marry in May. Son Charles is a junior at Woodberry Forest; their daughters work in Atlanta.

Maline Gilbert McCalla had a fantastic trip to Paris and was especially pleased with the SBC Paris art historian, Suzanne Oswald who had high praise for the SBC program. Maline sends news that Maydell Foster Fason's daughter Maydelle is an apprentice to the NYC Ballet at age 17 and danced in the "Nutcracker" every performance in December. Maline danced the "ugly stepmother" in an Austin, TX performance of "Cinderella". Maline has been to CA to do volunteer work at the Gorilla Foundation and has given several talks on sign language experiments with primates. She has her private pilot's license and is doing ceramics - a kitchenful of wildflowers!

In Reston, VA Carolyn Gough Harding teaches English as a Second Language to adults. She has another venture going too and invites us to spend a week in Burgundy, live in a chateau, learn French cooking and eat in three-star restaurants! She will work with the LaVarenne Cooking School, Paris and would be glad to have SBC alums participate. Carolyn had a great visit with Lucy Martin Gianino when Lucy was in DC in a Broadway-bound play.

Janie Haldeman Hope, Louisville, KY sent a marvelous Christmas picture of her and three children when Gerry graduated from Earlham College. He is working in Minneapolis with an AIDS project, and daughter Jane will graduate from Beloit College, WI in May.

Shirley Hayman Sudduth enjoys her work as Coordinator of an Arts in Education program for the Madera County, CA Arts Council, scheduling artists for workshops and performances for 23 county elementary schools. She and John have a great time travelling in their motor home to visit their children: Robert at Sea World in San Diego, Linda and family in Minot, ND, and Peter and family in Roseburg, OR. Shirley loves being a grandmother, knitting for 3 babies.

Jane Headstream Milholland is thrilled with her new house in Seattle! Daughter Charlotte, 24, lives between NY and Paris. Son Thatcher, 9, is in 3rd grade. Jane is president of the board of A Contemporary Theatre again - was also from '78 to '80. She is on the national board of the Theatre Trustees of America. These are almost full-time volunteer jobs, but she found time in October to go to NYC for a great reunion with Elizabeth Meade Howard and Ellie Crosby Erdman.

Teddy Hill Washer writes from NYC that Liz Few Penfield is now a partner in the Traditional Tented Safari business. If any of you consider African travels, she urges us to think of our old classmate first! Teddy's daughter Louise married in spring, '87 and works in NYC as Associate Editor of Working Woman magazine. Daughter Karen graduated from Vanderbilt in '87 and is a commodities trader at J.C. Bradford in Nashville.

Janet Holmes Rothard in Stockhom, NJ earned her real estate broker's license. She says at 48 the brain still absorbs knowledge but takes a little longer. She works out 3 nights a week: when she shows houses she can sprint from basement to attic with ease!

Carol Ann Kolakowski Nalewaik writes from Bogota, Columbia that she and husband moved there from London about a year ago. Jerry is with INTERCOL (Exxon). This is the 4th continent they have lived on in the past 8 years, but they enjoy the change in opportunity with each transfer. Daughter Alexia went to school in Libya, London and Bogota and is a sophomore at Bryn Mawr College. She was a finalist in the International Math Olympics and received the Presidential Award from President Reagan. The family holidays in St. Martin, Puerto Rico, The Cloisters, and this year spent Christmas holidays in Paris and Salzburg with skiing in Kitzbuhel, Austria for New Years. Daughter Alexia makes her debut in NYC in April. Carol and Jerry have taken up golf, as tennis at 8,500 ft. altitude gets strenuous!

Lucy Martin Gianino is delighted to have a job in NYC as stand-in for 2 women in the Broadway show Breaking the Code: it allows her to be home for her oldest daughter Gemina's senior year in high school. Previously Lucy was in Peter O'Toole's Pygmalion on Broadway and also had a tour-de-force role for a month in Cincinnati in Madonna in Exile. Lucy is active on the board of Parents-in-Action, a substance abuse prevention organization; she goes into independent schools in NYC encouraging the parents, class by class, to communicate with one another and with their children. Lucy's other children are Antonia, 14, and Gian-Murray, 9—delightful and "appropriately goofy"! They all hope the musical Carrie, a joint effort between British and American Equity, will run forever on Broadway, as Lucy's husband Jack flew to London and will help with the American production.

"A" Massie Hill and Mal enjoy his retirement from Chemical Bank (1986). They will go to Japan and China, March '88. "A" continues as trust officer for the Bank of New York. Son Mal, Vanderbilt '85, works for Frito-Lay in Atlanta, and Gordon, Vanderbilt '87, hiked the Appalachian Trail - 2100 miles! Janet Maynard Henderson made 2 visits to London from her home in Hawaii. She continues to enjoy riding. Eldest son Michael is in graduate school at Stanford after completing a B.S. in 3 years. David is a junior at Carnegie Mellon in theatre design. She says her husband Hal is still smiling after the Wall Street crash!

Mollie McDonald Brasfield has had an exciting year with trips to Hawaii and the Kentucky Derby. Her advertising agency, McD Enterprises, keeps her busy in Charlotte, NC. She looks forward to son Evans' wedding in the summer '88. Evans lives in Brooklyn, doing commercial filming in NYC.

Tucky McFall Ziebold writes from Charleston, WVA that she and John started '88 with a great trip to Nassau visiting friends with a home there. Daughter Beury was married April, '87 in 22 inches of snow and lives in Chicago. Daughter Molly, SBC '87, works for a law firm in San Francisco; their youngest daughter is a freshman at Hollins.

Elizabeth Meade Howard writes that '87 was a big year. The book she co-wrote on The Bisexual Spouse was published in October. With both children away at college - Jamie in his 3rd year at UVA and Muffy at the U. of Colo. - she and John spent the fall in NYC having a happy and productive time studying documentary film-making at NYU. She enjoyed seeing Teddy Hill Washer there. Back in Charlottesville, she continues to do free-lance magazine articles; John is Director of Student Services at UVA's School of Business.

Katie Mendelson McDonald has enjoyed seeing SBC friends in Hong Kong - Barbara Bowen Moore, Ellie Crosby Erdman, and Emily Thayer, daughter of Bea Newman Thayer ('61) and niece of Ginger Newman Blanchard. Katie has been back to SBC twice this year to place daughter Courtney for her sophomore year and for Parents' Weekend. She is glad to see the campus ever more beautiful. In July '88 daughter Eavan graduates from LeRosey in Switzerland. Jean Morris Stevenson and Don in Charlotte, NC have a marvelous time with exciting winter trips skiing in Utah, Jackson Hole and Lake Tahoe and a few days in San Francisco. Daughter Robin is a freshman at the U. of Asheville, NC and loves it. It's been wonderful to have Jean nearby as Rock Hill is only 1/2 hour away from Charlotte.

Barbara Murphy Hale and Phil enjoyed having Barbara's daughter Lenetta Archard '85 home for a holiday visit from Minneapolis where Lenetta and husband have bought a home. Barbara and Lenetta had a wonderful time at the Baltimore SBC Day luncheon at the home of Marjie McGraw McDonald. Barbara is pleased that an Annapolis SBC Club is being organized. She and Phil will go to Minneapolis for Winter Festival. This is the year their main focus is "paint and patches" on their home, trying to recover from 5 growing children!

Ginger Newman Blanchard sent a marvelous Christmas card picture of daughter Melinda's wedding day family gathering. Melinda married Peter A. Cooper, June '87. Peter, a Wake Forest graduate, works in NYC; they live in Montclair, NJ. After the wedding Ginger went to England with her parents and sister, Bea Newman Thayer '61. Last fall she accompanied Bob on a business trip to Paris; they spent a week in Normandy afterwards. Son Rob teaches history at Blue Ridge School outside Charlottesville; Wil graduates from Drew U. in '88. Ginger has done a tremendous job for the SBC Alumnae Association as the '87 National Reunion Giving Chairman!

Norma Patteson Mills is a 6-year member of the Board of Regents of the U. of the South helping on the search committee for a new Vice Chancellor. Oldest son Jay, a Vanderbilt graduate, has been doing archaeology for 2 years on a U. of SC program in Egypt. Son Brent, a Duke graduate, works with the family company, Olan Mills Studios. Youngest son, Kincaid, is a high school senior. Norma sees Keating Griffis, who works at the Chattanooga library and lives in Lookout Mountain. Norma was one of 5 women selected for the Best Dressed Hall of Fame in Chattanooga at a black-tie fund raising gala for the American Lung Association.

Since Charity Paul received her MSW and CSW in '85, she has been a psychiatric social worker at Mt. Sinai Hospital in NYC and is now at the Lower Eastside Service Center as a therapist in the Methadone Maintenance Program. Charity often sees Norris Smith and is having Patricia Russell Howard (formerly Binnie) for a visit from Toronto. Anne Rienecke Clarke continues as project director in market research. She has a new address. She bought a condominium in Wilton. Daughter Sabrina loves Drew U. in NJ. Anne saw Pat Collyer Zavitz recently. In Bernardsville, NJ Margot Saur Meyer and Bob are building a home. Oldest daughter Amy graduated from Princeton in '87, and Jenny is very happy at Harvard. Son Phil is a high school senior.

Susie Schmidlapp Stephens and husband Bradley's business, "The Stephens Collection", was featured in the Dec. '86 issue of Colonial Homes Magazine. They are also starting a new adventure: space planning for new or old houses and gardens. She loves using her computer and baby-sitting 2 grandchildren almost daily. With her mother living in a suite added to their home, Susie has 4 generations with her!

Elizabeth "B" Shwab Stephens invites us to meet her in St. Louis and call for a paddle game! She has 3 daughters in college: Beth Kenny, Vanderbilt '88; Margaret Kenny, U. of VT, '90; and Susan Kenny, U. of Denver, '91. "B" enjoyed a trip to NC and to SC, taking in Fripp Island, Charleston, Savannah and a week at Hilton Head.

Linda Sims Grady had an exciting summer grant as a sabbatical from her school in Atlanta, GA. In June and July of '87 she taught at Mt. Kenya Academy in Kenya, and in August Robert joined her. She hopes to return to Mt. Kenya Academy to see how the programs she initiated are doing. Daughter Anna works for Intervarsity Christian Fellowship at Wake Forest; their son is in advertising in Atlanta. Linda sends news that Tila Farrell Grady's son (and their nephew) Henry married Kim Kilgo in March '86 and is with the brokerage firm of Robinson-Humphrey Co. in Atlanta.

In Augusta, GA Ann Smith Bretscher and Bob are experiencing the 1st time without children at home, as youngest daughter Prentiss is a freshman at Presbyterian College, and daughters Susan and Christine are working in Atlanta. On a recent trip to Charleston she enjoyed seeing Dottie Barnwell Kerrison and husband Horry and Rhett Ball Thagard.

Jane Tatman Walker was in charge of hospitality for the housing facility for the Cuban, Nicaraguan and Peruvian teams at the Pan Am games, summer '87. Besides her job at the Children's Museum in Indianapolis, she is president of the board of Coleman Adoptions Services and on the board of the Arthritis Foundation. Her daughter, an Indiana U. '87 grad, is asst. manager of Merchants National Bank. Jane and Frank took their 1st trip to Europe in October to visit her son in Germany. She and Frank enjoy 2 grandchildren now!

Becky Towill McNair invites us all to visit when in Charlotte. Daughter Harriet '86 has a fantastic job at Sothebys in NY. Will graduates from W&L in June '88, and Virginia starts the College of Charleston, fall '88. She's excited about her godson - Mollie McDonald Brasfield's son - Evans, Jr.'s wedding next summer.

Sally Underhill Vialt's most exciting news is that husband Bert has written a review study guide to American History since 1865 in a McGraw Hill series and has been offered 2 more books in the series. It's been quite a challenge to encourage him, do proofreading and have our kitchen table the spot where he writes before putting it on the word processor! This winter I look forward to a weekly study group on world affairs sponsored by the Foreign Policy Association and our local AAUW.

Isabel Ware Burch's husband Bob became Vice President for Development and Public Affairs at New York Hospital/Cornell Medical Center in November '87. Son Allen graduates from William & Mary, May '88. Son Charlie is an 8th grader at Greens Farms Academy in Westport, Conn. Daughter Margaret and her husband, Jeff Kingston, live in Colorado Springs. Isabel is still Director of Finance at the Nature Center in Westport.

Dorothy Westby pilots a 10-place Navajo from Ft. Lauderdale to the Bahamas for Scuba divers and also for the Navy. Both children are at Colorado U., Rob Moeller a freshman and Kristen Moeller a senior. She saw Cookie Canaday White when visiting her mother in Florida. Cookie is now growing Christmas trees, asparagus and cut flowers commercially on her farm in Irvine, KY!

Nina Wilkerson Bugg, Bill and her brother's widow June took a marvelous trip to England and Scotland. Son Brad III, Davidson '87, teaches Latin at Darlington, a prep school in Rome, GA. Robert is a sophomore at Sewanee. Nina was delighted to see Barbara Bowen Moore and Mary Ann Claiborne Johnston in Atlanta, GA. Nina and Bill are helping start a new Episcopal church in Atlanta.

Winkie Wimbush Chalfant enjoys life on Orr's Island, ME where her husband Ed was elected Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Maine in '84. She has a part-time job at L. L. Bean with a flexible schedule so she can travel with Ed occasionally. Heidi Wood Huddleston took time off from her job to help Joe campaign for Circuit Court Judge (Trial Court) in Warren County, KY; he won the election. It's a stressful job but he loves the different focus of law. Two of their daughters are in Atlanta - Kristina at Emory and her middle daughter and husband. Oldest daughter Johanna and husband live in Nashville. Heidi is back first-assisting a cardiac surgeon and finds the job very challenging.

Joyce Cooper Toomey's daughter Cathy Gregorie '84 is married and lives in Columbia, SC. Son Charley is a sophomore at Loyola College. Christopher (15) and Jennifer (17) are in high school. Joyce is a lacrosse and football Mom (that means she brings the oranges) and gets to almost every game. She does advertising and fashion shows for a local shop. "It's much more fun than house-cleaning!"

By the time you read this we will be able to say that our 25th reunion is next spring. I don't feel that old, do you! It is time to make preparations (1) to come! and (2) to arrange somehow to make as significant a gift to SBC as you can, even if that means putting aside an amount each month between now and then. Our class has had a notoriously poor giving record over the years; let's change that this eventful year, please! (You're welcome, V.M.!)

Now for the news, in the order in which I heard from you. Penny Writer Theis writes from Mentor, OH that son Tim is a freshman at Michigan State (and is thrilled that they won the Rose Bowl!). Jeff a junior at Bowling Green, Ginger an 8th grade cheerleader, and husband Stu is a vice-president with M.A. Hanna Co. Penny says she is fighting middle age spread (I don't believe that!). After an 8-year diplomatic corps tour in Europe, Marsh Metcalf Seymour and Jack are back in the Washington area... suffering cultural shock! Marsh is teaching art (K-8). Eldest son Peter is at Stanford; Randle is at Kent School. Jean Walker Campbell and John recently moved to Short Hills, NJ. Their girls, ages 10 and 7, are in school at Kent Place. Jean continues to paint and will have a one-person exhibition at the National Academy of Sciences in DC this year. Carpoils, soccer, skating, swimming for the children (Emily, 4th grade at National Cathedral and Tim, kindergarten at Beauvoir), and tennis, school, community and other volunteer work keep Dona Van Arsdale Jones hopping in and around Chevy Chase, MD.

Caroline Tate Noojin returned home to Frank and Tate (11th grade) after a fabulous trip to Japan, Bangkok, Singapore and Hong Kong with her father and sister-in-law, Claire Kinnett Tate '72. Frank III is in his 2nd year at Davidson and loves it. Sally Gump Berryman, Josephine England Redd and I gathered at Caroline's house in Huntsville, AL, recently for a lively visit. You should have heard us trying to remember the names of Gray and Carson dormitories! (Maybe I do feel that old!) Sally and "Doc" enjoy the good life, with all children grown and out of the nest, on their farm in Manchester, TN. Josephine's oldest boys are at UVA and Vanderbilt.

Uhland and youngest son remain at home in Florence, AL. Christie Calder Salomon enrolled in the School of Visual Arts, Purchase, NY. She and Rick and 1 of the children are still in Greenwich, CT; remaining siblings are at Yale, Brown and Loomis Chaffee. Christie related the very sad news of Nancy Ayer Beaver's death from cancer last fall. (Remember the Senior Show??)... Life is so mercilessly short

Lee Huston Carroll's marriage to John brought the bonus of 2 more children (now there are 5) and resulted in Lee's leaving her full-time job in favor of pursuing a master's degree in math education at the U. of KY. Stepdaughter Katita is a junior at Haverford, son Huston a freshman at Amherst, and Griggs (15), Maggie (14) and Caroline (13) are at home. John has a fellowship at Oxford in '88, so Lee will be commuting back and forth between England and Lexington! In New York, Hedi Haug White and Tom are into exercise, good eating and annual ski trips to Vail. Son Tim at 14 is a model teenager! Between pleading letters to each of us, V.M. Del Greco Galgano teaches math classes at both Blue Ridge Community College and James Madison University... and referees the comings and goings of children Robert, David and Laura. This is Robert's year to do those fun-filled college applications. V.M. is also, thankfully, playing the role of surrogate mother to my oldest son, William, who is in his 1st year at UVA. Mary Duer was married to Joseph Colen in November, and now there are 4 children in their Gladwyne, PA, household, 2 his, 2 hers. Mary is vice-president of a construction management firm. Also in the construction business, Jackie Nicholson Wysong reports from Alexandria, VA that she and David have managed to stay married, and took skiing trips to Austria and Italy last year. They have 2 sophomores: Mary at Randolph-Macon, and David at Episcopal. Son Matthew is in 5th grade at St. Stephens School. Sad news from Ashton Barfield... she lost her husband of 5 years last summer. Ashton remains in New York and is financial administrator for the Population Council. Ann Sims Fauber wrote to say hello from Lynchburg, VA. She refused to give any news, but said she is looking forward to our 25th reunion. Out in Little Rock, Genie Johnson Sigler has retired from teaching and is in the real estate business. Daughter Beth is a freshman at Rhodes College, Memphis.

Parents Weekend at Princeton last year drew Harriet Houston Shaffer and Charlie, and Vicky Cox Commander and her Charlie. They all went into NYC to join Susan Dwell Baxter and Bill, and Christie Calder Salomon and Rick for dinner at the home of Margaret Thouron Harrell and Paul. Margaret Street Wilson and William are empty-nested in Charleston for the 1st time in 19 years, and not complaining one bit. Chisolm is a freshman at Tulane; Thad and James are away at Episcopal High School. Margaret teaches ethics to 4th, 5th and 6th-graders. Last year Judy Dunn Spangenberg joined the singles ranks and had her 14th children's book published by Random House. Son Tyler is sophomore at Hobart College. Judy continues to maintain her much-loved pre-revolutionary home in South Salem, NY. Mary Ball Payne Morton is president of a national group of social service administrators, and a member of the Board of Directors of the American Public Welfare Association. Son Jack is at Hampden-Sydney and spent spring semester in Seville under SBC's Junior Year in Spain Program. Younger son David is at Tower Hill, Wilmington. Last summer Dottie Norris Schipper took 2 teenage boys (her 17-year-old and a friend) to Great Britain for 6 weeks. They rented a thatched roof cottage and rode bikes and horses. Pub rides (visiting 5 pubs on horseback between 6 and 10 p.m.) were a favorite! Dottie's photography business took her to Turkey last fall to photograph a resort development. Adventures included being held by her heels while hanging out of a plane (!) doing aials. I love it. I'd never do it, but I love it!

The Atlanta household of Nancy Hall Green is minus children at this point. One child is at Eaglebrook in Deerfield, MA, the other in England taking post graduate year after Taft. Holcombe and Nancy are building a home in Sea Island, GA, and travel quite a bit, most recently to Switzerland and Russia. She often sees Harriet Houston Shaffer, Susan Bronson Croft and Jane Bradley Wheeler. Penny Utley Shyja teaches pre-school in Columbus, OH. She has one enthusiastic 5-year-old, Andrea, and 2 older daughters, 1 in college and the other an exchange student in Denmark. Just when Grace Mary Garry Oates and Wally (who live in College Park, MD) thought they were through with college tuitions, Wally's youngest, Nora, decided to go to medical school. Wally's son, Chris, is a graduate physics student at the University of Colorado, one of the lucky ones on a fellowship. Daughter Cathy's husband is an assistant professor of English at Princeton.

In Oxford, England, Nancy Lynah Hood refers to herself and Roger as "almost 2 ole folks at home". Really! With their 2 children away, Clare in law school in San Diego and Zee in Italy supposedly learning Italian, they have managed to visit such European spots as Provence, Tuscany, Turkey, Paris and Rome... And then there is Mary Green Borg who says that she and Andy "are coming out intact and healthy on the back side of mid-life crises". I can't stand it! Oldest son Evan is a freshman at Bates College and on the varsity soccer team.

Youngest son William is in 1st grade. The 3 middle boys, Adam, Owen, and Ethan, are spread out from middle school to high school. The Greeley Co., singing group of which Mary is a member, has been invited to sing at Expo '88 in Australia on July 3. They were "nosed out" by The Mormon Tabernacle Choir for the July 4th program! Nina Sledge Burke and Frank realized a 20-year-old dream last fall by completing renovation of a c. 1820 rice plantation, Ravenwood, near Walterboro, SC. It will serve as a winter retreat (from Atlanta) and shooting preserve. Daughter Eleanor is a sophomore at Mt. Vernon College in Washington, Richard a junior at Woodberry Forest. Frances Hanahan continues to have great success selling co-ops, condos and townhouses in NYC. She had a wonderful trip to Russia and Scandinavia last summer. My fellow physics major, Tuck Mattern Harvey, and Ralph are in Wichita Falls, TX; Tuck is assistant professor of mathematics at Midwestern State U. Daughter Kristyn is a freshman at Hollins; Chandler is interested in W&L for '89. 1987 brought the following to Leezee Scott Porter: new warehouse (100 years old, for her 14-year-old furniture leasing business), new house (200 years old and renovated in Georgetown), new husband (Julian Grenfell, whom she married in June at Royal Orchard in Afton, VA), new step-daughters (3 in addition to daughter Erin, 2nd year UVA and on the crew), and new puppies (2... wedding presents from Erin). Wow!... and she survived a fire in the warehouse just before moving into the new house! In the process of enrolling son Alan as a sophomore at Deerfield Academy, Mollie Johnson Nelson ran into Faith Low Humann, Mimi Hellier Dornblaser and Barbie Rockefeller Bartlett '63. Mollie and Douglas are at home in Lookout Mountain, TN. Tria Pell Dove and Guy are in Boston after spending a year in London. Tria still rides horses and does community volunteer work. Guy IV graduated from Georgetown University; Hilary is a sophomore at Ohio Wesleyan. After 2 years of living in a "shoe box" in Manhattan, Kitty Griffith's new co-op in Brooklyn Heights is a welcome relief. Kitty has a new job as Director of U.S. Corporate Communications for the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce. She and son Foster (13) attend riding school in VT and often spend Saturdays foxhunting with the Rombret Hunt Club. Pam Larson Baldwin and Monroe remain in Lynchburg, where Pam sells Doncaser. Eldest son, Monroe, is studying economics at George Mason University; Claudia is in the midst of college applications, Peter is 13 and Sarah is 7.

Carolyn Peyton Walker writes from Palo Alto, CA, that her research project of the past 4 1/2 years on writing conference talk is finished and was published last October in the journal,

Research in the Teaching of English. Carrie teaches American literature and writing courses at San Jose State U., in addition to running a teaching consulting business. Last year's travel destinations included England, Belgium, France, Thailand and Japan. Rosamond Sample Brown is a commercial loan officer for national and international accounts at Worthen Bank and Trust Company in Little Rock. Son Stewart is a sophomore at Vanderbilt; Garrett is a high school junior. Sharon Van Cleve Cipriano's long distance marriage has her commuting weekly between Los Angeles and Scottsdale, AZ. This year's earthquake caused extensive damage to the Cipriano's 15th floor L.A. condo. Sharon vows never to buy another wine glass worth more than $2.99! Insurance business career and children, David (17), Sandy (16) and Margaret (13), keep Lynne Smith Crow busy in Short Hills, NJ. Lynne had a wonderful visit with Ginny Hamilton Ammons while attending a Leaders' Club Conference in CO last year. Margery Fleigh looks forward to our 25th reunion. She is teaching geography to 6th grade students in Hagerstown, MD. Part of Laurie Denman-Cutick's job as project manager of a pilot recycling program at NYC's Department of Sanitation is to show that New Yorkers can be persuaded to separate their trash for recycling. She says the results are positive. She and husband Bob live in a c. 1840 house in Brooklyn, which they are renovating inside and out. Kathy Hsu Jeong, dentist husband Gary, Matthew (15) and Genevieve (13) live high up in the Oakland, CA, hills. Kathy employs gene cloning techniques with plant DNA in her plant molecular biology research at Berkeley. I'm impressed! Free time is spent traveling, this past year to Germany and France. After a 4-year stint on the SBC Alumnae Board (8 trips to SBC!), Sheila Carroll Coopridge has switched gears and is now a candidate for the permanent diaconate in the Episcopal church. Husband Chuck has retired from the Air Force after 20 years and enjoys life as a corporate pilot. Daughter Kathryn is a freshman at DePaul University, and Lea Ann is a high school junior in O'Fallon, IL. Vera LeCran Carvaillo and Philippe live in the environs of Paris and spend summer vacations in Evian on Lake Geneva, sailing and enjoying the beautiful scenery. Vera works part-time in the finances and general administration of Philippe's business enterprises. Daughter Patricia (18) passed the French secondary school baccalaureat exam last summer. She attends the M.B.A. Institute in Paris. Jean-Philippe (11) just started junior high school. Susan Jahn Mancini spent much of the last year visiting colleges with son, Nicholas, a senior at the Columbus (OH) Academy. Daughter Mara Bell is a high school freshman. Susan teaches Italian and French at the secondary level; husband Albert is a professor at Ohio State. Nancy Gillies has a very fulfilling nursing career at University Hospital in Charlottesville. She also is involved with student housing at UVA, and goes to as many field hockey, lacrosse and women's basketball games as possible. Nancy sees V.M. Del Greco Galgano and Jill Cody Jones and her children (ages 22, 19, 17, 15 and 11!) from time to time.

"Food, laundry, late nights!" That's how Susie Glasgow Brown described their household last December with 2 collegians home for the holidays... Allen from Denison and Barbara Keith from Vanderbilt. That brings to mind the way William packed to come home from UVA... one large laundry bag bursting at the seams thrown in a suitcase! Susie has re-entered the real estate business in Nashville. New SBC Alumnae Club chairperson in Princeton, NJ, is Ginny DeBuys. She reports that her 5-year-old computer software business is thriving. Caroline Keller Theus is chairman of the New Orleans branch of the Federal Reserve Bank and a director of the Murphy Oil Corporation. Her daughter, Elizabeth, is a freshman at Bowdoin College. From Jacksonville, FL, Vicky Coxe Commander sent news of siblings... Eleanor graduated from Vanderbilt in '86 and is working for Brian Reserve, a marketing consulting firm in NYC; Charles IV is a junior at Princeton and Christopher a freshman at W&L. Pemmie Mercur Cleveland has 2 daughters whom she hopes will become 3rd generation SBC'ers. She is co-owner of a travel agency in Bethlehem, PA and this past year represented SBC at the inauguration of the new president of Moravian College and Theological Seminary. Joan Moore Biddle is in residential real estate on Long Island's north shore; husband Nick enjoys the challenge of the fixed income area at Prudential-Bache. Daughter Virginia is a sophomore at the University of Hartford; twins, Barbara and Kathy are in 12th grade at Andover.

Kate Carberry Siemsen is a computer consultant doing systems analysis at a large chemical corporation and is on the Wayne Township Board of Education. Son Robert is a freshman at the U. of Delaware; daughter Elizabeth is a high school sophomore. Bettina Patterson Murray's daughter Renee enters college next fall; step-son Chris will be at Lawrence U., WI. Bettina is a trustee at the Ethel Walker School and at other schools and social service agencies. They live in NYC and summer in Sun Valley, ID. Peg Aurand Young writes that the nest is empty and she has opted for the single life again, living in an apartment in Peoria, IL. She plans a student trip to London, Paris and Madrid in June; if she gets the Rockefeller fellowship for which she's applied, she'll stay in Spain to work on it until August. If not, she'll have the summer to plan her next move - probably to a warmer clime! Elizabeth Matheson is a visiting artist at Hollins College and her black and white photograph seascapes in Wales, England and France are on display at Hollins College Art Annex.

I close with news from Gerry Bailey in Lookout Mountain, TN - she teaches French and Spanish at the Bright School and last summer received a Lyndhurst Foundation Grant to study in Greece for 6 weeks with the Aegean School of Classical Studies and Philosophy.

This just in... from V.M. ... she is looking for a few... or several... good women to come to SBC on October 2nd and 3rd to devise strategy for reunion giving/attendance. Sound intriguing? If you are willing to sacrifice a little precious time to come, please write V.M., or give her a call (703)433-3839. Until then, warmest regards to all of you.

Greetings, fellow reunioners and classmates! Judging from the current response (1/88) many of us will return in May to renew friendships. An asterisk after a name indicates intention to come to reunion. Your reunion committee has been working hard all year to make our weekend perfect. So, if you are on the fence about coming, fall off on the positive side, call a classmate, and hitch a ride.

We have lots of news. Thank each of you for your enthusiastic response. Lorna Allen Sorley has "no real news, but busy with job, husband and 13-yr.-old stepdaughter."

Christine Bacchiani Schieffelin has been in the thoroughbred horse breeding business for 5 years. She is a "SMALL scale breeder, and breeds to race, not for the commercial market." She says horse breeding is a "roller coaster ride," but loves it. Barbara Baur Dunlap's oldest daughter finishes freshman year in college while her youngest finishes kindergarten. Andy Beerman Sonfield and family are spending the year in Hilton Head Island, hoping to move there permanently.

Ann Biggs Lewis* reports a "crazy" year, moving to Baltimore after 2 years in London. Now they are considering Palm Beach because of a job offer. They loved England, where Ann studied at Christie's and the Inchbald School (Garden Design). We hope that by reunion they will be settled. Lesley Bissell Hoopes expanded her tours at the Metropolitan Museum to include school groups, as well as adults. "It's a fun challenge... because the approaches used in each area are vastly different." She and Toby purchased a condo in Bermuda, and plan to spend time in the summer. She extends invitations for a visit. Franny Bonney sends love to everyone at reunion. Recently divorced, she and son Herbie live in Littleton, CO, near Denver. Librarian in an elementary school, she "loves her work, her son, and her home." Jane Brady Arnold and Anthony live in Charlottesville, working in their family business.

Melinda Brown Everett* was promoted to Public Relations Director for Worcester Memorial Hospital. She finds her work exciting, with doctors appearing on "The Today Show", "Good Morning, America", etc. Her department recently won 2 awards of excellence. Phoebe Brunner Peacock continues a half-time professional position as Latin language cataloger for the Library of Congress. Her job makes excellent use of both her SBC Latin major, and master's degree in Library Science. She rides and shows her TB gelding and is president of the Washington SBC club. Twin daughters plus volunteer work complete a busy schedule.

Cecelia Bryant is Regent Director and Secretary for the State of Florida Board of Regents, serves as Director and Treasurer for the American Red Cross of Northeast Florida and is a member of the St. Vincent's De Paul Medical Center Community Board. Kate Buster spent her 9th summer in Aspen, CO, hiking, photographing, and being a nature guide. She winters on her parents' horse farm near Lexington, KY, working as a private tutor. Her latest specialty in photography is informal outdoor children's portraits.

A birth! Elizabeth Cadwalader had her 1st, a son, 11/87. She is on leave of absence from teaching for an indefinite period. She visited with Deidre Leland last summer, and has kept in touch with Tonia MacNeil over the years. Percy Clarke Gwinn is happy in Alexandria with the "same dashing man (Michael)," a son growing up much too fast, 2 cocker spaniels and an old home. She runs a small gift shop (The Beehive) in Old Town Alexandria. Kate Condax has written her 2nd book on horses. She runs a small public relations/marketing company in NYC. "Lots of fun, but I'd gladly give it ALL up for my prince, wherever he may be..."

Francie deSaussure Meade* is delighted to be in Burke, VA for a while. She and Dave are excited to report that they expect their 3rd child in Aug. Francie has enjoyed getting back in touch with friends and with SBC. She hopes we ALL get back for reunion and sends thanks for the generous contributions to SBC this year. Yay, Francie! Suzanne Edinger Boas and Rob cashed in their frequent flyer points to take their children to Germany and Austria spring of '87.

Mickie Donaldson de Figard is solo M.D. in family practice in Los Gatos, CA, where she lives with husband and T.C. (cat). She says the weather is nice in CA but "is never as beautiful as Virginia." Jeannie Forsyth Powell works for an organization promoting the downtown of her beautiful city, Asheville. She jogs to keep sane. Says she won't be pregnant, but I hope she will still dance for us!

Libby Harvey Hodgkins* is Assistant Director of Alpha Chemical and Biomedical Laboratories, "a long way from working in the chemistry stockroom at SBC!" Joe and she love Petaluma. (She says to come visit—30 miles north of San Francisco.) Anne Hinshaw Vanderweil would "love to see all the inhabitants of Randolph Basement c.1968 come out of their closets and to reunion." Conover Hunt will return to Dallas in June to direct the creation of an historic site exhibit on the Kennedy assassination.

Carter Hunter Hopkins* says to come for a visit anytime. Her office is on the ground floor of the Chapel. Daughter Ann Courtney (4) begins nursery school at SBC next fall; son Hunter (9) is in 4th grade at Amherst Elementary where dad is principal.

Elaine Jenks Emerson lives in Brindisi, Italy, with Terry and daughter. She is a media specialist, librarian and computer coordinator for an elementary school. Barbara Johnson Prickett has become a professional fundraiser for non-profit agencies in many fields, including health, educational, historical and botanical. She's making a difference.

Anne Kinsey Dinan* became Sunday School Director last fall, after "graduating" from elementary PTA. Chris Kulzycki reports "no news",...but we can grill her at reunion. Jennie Lyons Fogarty and Celia Newburg Steingold co-chair their elementary school Carnival the weekend before reunion. Jennie enjoyed visiting with both Ann Griffin and Ann Banks Herrod this year. Sally Ruth May Rau is a writer and editor in Chicago. I wish Lissa Nalle Baty would come to reunion, even though she only spent 1 year with us. We haven't forgotten you, and would love to catch up, Lissa!

Penny Oliver Hawkins* reports that the Colorado contingent is growing and active. She enjoyed seeing Lorna Allen Sorley and Marianne Schultz Galt this year during visits to CO. Penny asserts that Suzanne Little Jones and Lizzy Miller Green are "hostesses with the mostest". Penny is Vice-President/Commercial Loans at her local bank. She and Bill enjoyed touring Alaska this summer. Sarah Paradise Ingber is busy with volunteer work and keeping current on the everchanging tax law. She had a wonderful time with Anne Hinshaw and Gary Vanderweil when they visited. Ann Peterson Griffin reports that although the Texas economy has been better, she hasn't been "forced to forego many margaritas or enchiladas."

Bonnie Pitman-Gelles* was elected Vice-President of the American Association of Museums, and serves on the National Accreditation commission. She is Associate Director of the new museum in Seattle. She and Dave travel often to Washington, DC. Coo Prettyman Irvin is still living on Kiawah Island with husband, 4 children, 3 dogs, lots of birds and fish, and "very happy." She continues her interior design business and gift shops in the Charleston area.

Pemmy Reed Hoffmeyer and Tom have 5! sons, from 16 to 2 yrs. Pemmy's M.Ed. is put to constant and rewarding work both at home and in the Williamsburg educational system. She enjoys being in the Garden Club of VA, playing tennis and skiing. Their lives are "very full and good." Elizabeth Sanford Willcox and husband are living in their restored stone farmhouse in southwest France. They are both professionally affiliated with the Institut de Prehistoire Orientale, an involvement which may mean a move to the Ardeche in southeast France in '89. Elizabeth's boys are bilingual, and they "are all Europeanized," but they love their occasional trips to the U.S. "Meanwhile, we very much enjoy our tranquil country life in this beautiful region, called Quercy."

Julie Seibels Northup is Director of Research Services and Sponsored Programs at McNeese State University. She keeps in touch with Addie Russo at LSU, and met Ann Webster in New Orleans in November. Lynn Settlemeyer Arts had son Gregory last June. She is still Vice President at Westview Press (scholarly books), tries to "keep up with the desktop publishing revolution." She keeps in touch with Pem Herbert Kyle.

Amy Thompson McCandless* and family went to Ireland, summer '87. Amy and Peter both gave papers at the Third International Interdisciplinary Congress on Women in Dublin, and then toured the country. Amy continues research on the higher education of Southern women, with the result that 2 articles have been published this year. Suzanne Torgan Weston is a grandmother, our 1st, I think. She marked the 10th anniversary of her successful and enjoyable data processing consulting business this January.

Barrie Trimmingham Van Dyke has formed a new, exciting business as literary agent in Philadelphia. Schlessinger-Van Dyke Agency markets manuscripts to publishers, negotiates contracts, and sells subsidiary rights. She's always looking for new writing talent, loves what she's doing, but "there just aren't enough hours in the day." Ellen Wakefield Ottenritter is "slowly recovering from acute mid-life crisis brought on by the engagement" of her oldest, and is off to work again to help with college expenses. Ann Webster moved to Richmond 3 years ago and thoroughly enjoys practicing law. She's involved with numerous civic activities.

Connie Williams de Bordenave* and Tad hosted a 10-yr.-old girl from N. Ireland for 6 weeks, "a stimulating, challenging experience." She is reassessing her priorities after disc surgery (5 weeks in bed). She and Tad "are really discovering how great marriage can be." Cecelia Williamson Ginstead is super mom to her 4 children in Short Hills. She says she "likes living in the East, but there are too many people." Andy and she are renovating an old (1880) house. She just finished up a 2-yr.-stint as President of the Women in the Church, always a big job. She saw Lani Cooper Schulte 11/87; reports Lani is just the same and Lani's oldest daughter, Dana, "looks like Brooke Shields - WOW!" Christine Witcover Dean has joined the U.S. Attorney on the Drug Task Force, a job which complements her work on the Governor's Council on Drug and Alcohol Abuse among Youth.

Blair Walker Lawrence* faces an empty nest, "unwilling to admit I'm that old." Tay Wood Cooper's year included an incredible trip to Kenya (returning with malaria in spite of the pills). She and Jim also went to Florence where daughter is spending her junior year. Tay works part-time in a plant nursery and continues with her pottery. Jim, Rector at Christ's Church, has overseen the creation of a life care community in Ponte Vedra.

Frances Kirven Morse has taught computer education in Brookline, MA public schools 5 years and published several articles in computing magazines. She recently won "a huge trophy" for 1st place in the "women over 40" division of a 10K road race! Husband John finished Ph.D. in computer science and daughter Sarah, a "5'9" blond beauty", plays French horn with the Greater Boston Youth Symphony - will tour with it to Japan. Sarah is also a track star. Barbara Bailey McNeal is sorry to miss reunion but May is too busy with activities of 4 children, ages 18 to 4! Patricia Skarda is associate professor of English at Smith College; has been on Smith faculty since '73.

Lisa Walker Turner moves to San Antonio 6/88 with 3 children; hopes to work in landscaping. Ibby Sartor Harden married David 1/30/88; they move to Saudi Arabia 4/88. David will work for Arabian-American Oil Co. (ARAMCO): "It will be different than Dallas." Ricky Hendricks married Professor Mark Foster, University of Colorado, Denver. She received Ph.D. in history 8/87; now working on a book with husband. Rickey's daughters, Adrienne (16) and Abby (13) are great, extremely active in sports.

Again, thanks for all the great news. I love being able to follow your lives. My jewelry business is flourishing; I gave a full-length guest song recital in Nov.; I continue progress on my master's thesis, and I wouldn't miss reunion for anything!

Our 15th reunion was marvelous—SBC and the Class of '72 both looked better than ever! I must thank Kathy Keys Graham for her expert work keeping all of us informed about each other the last 5 years. It is such fun to celebrate exciting events in our lives with those who shared special years at SBC.

On the international front Denise Hotchkiss writes from London that she has enjoyed pursuing that elusive perfect career in Australia, NYC, Italy and England. Also in London, Holly Smith combines freelance writing in England and on the continent with a 5-month course in kitchen fitting. After mastering carpentry, plumbing, electrical wiring, and plastering, Holly is determined never to be at the mercy of repair men again! Stephanie Harmon Simonard (France) has been admitted to the U.S. firm partnership of Peat Marwick Main as a "Principal." Husband, Baudoin, also has made a career move, joining the French office of a major German metals manufacturer. Daughters Sophie (12) and Vanessa (10) continue bilingual education and enjoy ballet and piano.

From one of the more exotic of the United States, Vivian Finlay and husband, Chuck Vancura, enjoy living in Alaska. Vivian is in private practice as a Marriage, Family and Child Counselor while continuing to work part-time at a community counseling center and to teach at a local college.

Several classmates enjoy California life. Betty Works Fuller juggles a varied ministry which includes parish responsibilities, Christian education consulting, and counseling. Daughter Mary Austin (9) is busy with dancing lessons and choir. Patricia Ruth Brown sends greetings from Oakland, CA where she is busy as a professor.

Sally Blalock Seidel, husband Chuck, and daughter Emily (6) are settling down to begin their own family traditions in Sacramento.

Lynn Waterman Blum has retired from the world of banking for the next several years to enjoy Denver, CO with husband Dennis and children David Allen and Sari Winston.

Texas is home for many classmates. Margaret Lyle Jones, Bobo Ryan Hoyt, and Sarah P. von Rosenberg are in Houston. Margaret works in Hematology at Methodist Hospital; Bobo is a docent at the Museum of Fine Arts and national chairman of SBC Admissions Representatives on the Alumnae Board. Sarah works at Baylor College of Medicine and is studying for a Master's in Health Care Administration. Rhonda Durham (Midland, TX) is proof positive that a housewife and mom can be happy and busy! Rhonda finds time for many civic and church activities while raising children Trevor (14), Caitlin (9), and Jonathan (5). Peggy Morrison Outon is busy as a Community Relations Officer at the Laguna Gloria Art Museum in Austin, TX and delights in children Ross and Katie.

Emily McNally Brown writes from Ypsilanti, MI that she retired from her academic career to be at home with family and finally begin restoring their home.

The Chicago area is home to several: Charlotte Brohard McGinnis recently moved to Ft. Sheridan from New York. Charlotte, husband Dave, and daughter Jennifer (9) enjoy exploring a new part of the country. Ellen Miller and family anticipate a move from Chicago to the West Coast. As children Elizabeth (13), Virginia (12), and David (9) grow, Ellen's own love and sympathy reach out to Eliza Long Garrett who lost her week-old daughter Jane Catherine in '87.

Moving East, Sharon White Brown

(Vermont) writes that her children Heather (9), Hunter (7), and Justin (5) thrive. Sharon and Heather enjoyed a trip to Paris. Speaking of daughters, Kathy Walsh Drake and husband David became proud parents of a 4th daughter, Virginia P. Drake 7/22/87. The expanding Drake family lives in Portland, ME.

The Boston area is home to many in the Class of '72. Eliza Walbridge quit a hi-tech job to see if teaching will be more personally rewarding. She is working on a Master's in Education at Harvard. Congratulations to Penny Walsh who married Jeffrey Daniel Gilbert on 6/20/87. They now live in Concord, MA and can visit the newest addition to Kathy Upchurch Takvorian's family. Sarah Johnson Takvorian was born 10/13/87; Kathy has returned to full-time work as a physician and was recently a discussant at a Clinicopathologic Conference at Mass. General Hospital.

Georgie Vairo writes from New York that she was given early tenure at Fordham U. Law School. Georgie lectures on federal court issues throughout the country, including a lecture in Washington, DC attended by the Chief Justices of our courts and the Canadian Supreme Court. No wonder she has no more time for basketball! Barbara McCleave Lessard married Victor Lessard 9/86 in a beautiful ceremony overlooking Long Island Sound.

In Lexington, KY Trish Neal Van Clief enjoys serving as Reunion Chairman on the SBC Alumnae Board as well as Trustee and Chairman of Educational Policy for the Lexington School which children Danny (11) and Helen (9) attend.

Turning South, Grace Sherly Straszheim works as an attorney in Washington, DC. Susan Snodgrass Wynne (Virginia Beach) opened her house for Garden Week. Susan is busy with volunteer projects and the activities of John (12) and Brad (6). Barbara Tessin Derry (Richmond, VA) writes news of the 6/8/87 birth of her daughter Alice Craig Barrett Derry. After 10 years of practicing law, Barbara retired to enjoy Alice and Will (3). Another new arrival was celebrated in Richmond by Ginnie B. Sasser as son Phillip Sasser III was born 7/15/87.

Mary Susan Morrison Thomas (Portsmouth, VA) is teaching students with learning disabilities and vacationing at Nags Head, NC or Hilton Head, SC. Janet Nelson Gibson will be busy in '88. She is running her ladies apparel shop without the help of her sister and trying to build a house in Fredericksburg, VA. Also in Fredericksburg, Carter Frackelton is occupied as partner in the Frackelton Block Company, with an accounting course, and volunteer work. Carter is the SBC Key Alumna for her area.

In Wilmington, NC, Marth Neill Boney writes of her wonderful trip to the Canadian wilderness with Kristen (9) and Andrew (6). Kathy Keys Graham moved back to Birmingham, AL after 3 1/2 years in Mobile. Husband Bill is Community Affairs Officer and senior vice president for AmSouth Bank. Son David (3) managed the transition from toddler to little boy most gracefully.

In Florida Beverley Horne Dommerich will begin graduate study in banking in May. She expects her 2nd child, perhaps a sister for 3-yr.-old Choo Choo, in July. Rosario Brache Leparulo teaches Spanish and French at North Florida Jr. College while working on a Ph.D. at Florida State U.

Kitty Howell Riordan (Fairfax, VA) and Dave enjoy sons Matthew (8) and Michael (6). Kitty just completed a 3 1/2 year intense side-kick selling educational toys (and winning 2 Club Med trips!) and is busy with Sunday School: "There never seems to be enough time!" Alice Johnson Krendal (a gastroenterologist in Atlanta) writes that son Carl (20 months) is the joy of her and David's life: "Already he's shown an aptitude for aggressive riding by turning over his rocking horse..." Linda Odum Sweat (Orange Park, FL), tree farmer and land developer, enjoyed seeing everyone at reunion - then went on to Greece, mainland Europe and Ireland. They purchased land in Colorado and hope to summer there - may even move - "who knows?" Ellen Apperson Brown is president of first Board of the New Free Clinic of Central VA (see story on her, this issue!).

Here in Laurinburg, NC, I have taken on some new and challenging administrative responsibilities as Chair of the Humanities and Fine Arts Division at St. Andrews Presbyterian College. I teach full-time in the English Department as well as relax by enjoying the antics of 3-yr.-old son, Willie. Husband Bill has been Dean of Students at St. Andrews for 5 years and looks forward to returning to teaching French at the college after a year's sabbatical. Maybe I'll send you all postcards from France this summer!

Can it really be 15 years since we first drove up that long road? Fifteen years later, here are what some of your dearest friends on earth have been doing!

Carol Wilkinson received certification in open water scuba diving and spent 3 weeks escaping frigid Alaska in tropical Cozumel, Mexico. Carol's 1st year roommate Karen Adelson Strauss started the doctoral program of Public Health at Johns Hopkins and continues part-time work as an environmental engineer. Karen and husband Lewis (professor in pediatric oncology at Johns Hopkins) plan a trip to Alaska this year. Terese DeGrandi Busch (who also spent 1st year on 3rd floor Reid), married Mike in October; Dokie Hays Cooper was matron of honor and other classmates attended. Mike and Terese honeymooned in Caneel Bay, US Virgin Islands.

Bermuda and the family ranch at Jackson Hole were 2 of the haunts of Ann Works Balderston and Biv this year. They expected their 3rd child in March '88; Ann has kept up with paddle tennis and redecorating their home. Since Ann was at Randy Mac freshman year (tsk, tsk) we can only report about later friends. Andie Yellott (Baltimore) teaches "Bill" Shakespeare to seniors... and heaven knows what to the 9th and 10th grade heathens." She writes that she and Ben continue their engagement and that he is a wonderful guy, "but she'd hate to disappoint the Hite report!!?" Don't ask me what that means. Also in Jackson Hole this year, then to Houston in a permanent move was Sue Walton. She says the adjustment after NYC is different. She is a Legal Assistant for Coca Cola and is learning western square dancing, eating barbeque and learning to drive at 70 mph. Sue visited Norris Judd Ferguson and Grant in San Antonio. Norris expected their 1st child in February and planned a leave of absence from McNay Art Museum for a year. Also in touch with Norris is Lynn Kahler Berg who opened her own business, Art Services International. ASI circulates fine art exhibitions to museums throughout the US; Lynn is able to travel extensively, which she loves.

There was little news from Cynde Seiler Eister; 3 children under 5 yrs. old keep her busy, but she wanted to thank everyone who contributed to the annual fund last year. Melanie Coyne Cody freelances as an Executive Recruiter; she and Bob planned a 3/88 windsurfing trip and a visit to see Missy Briscoe McNatt in June. Melanie got together with Becky Wilson and Missy in Richmond 4/87; the 3 of them had a terrific time. Missy wrote that she and Jim planned a theatre trip to London over Christmas. Cameron is preparing for admission to private grade school ("more difficult than college entrance," Missy says) and Marissa (2) is in the Teddy program. Both Melanie Cody and Maureen O'Hearn Slowinski have daughters named Caitlin. (Melanie's is 4 1/2, Maureen's is 3 1/2.) Maureen was visited this year by Asimina Coroneos Colucci who has 2 boys (Tony and Jimmy). Asimina's husband Frank heads the computer operation for a large insurance company. She sees Tracy Thompson Bodkin '77 several times a year: Tracy is Tony's godmother. Asimina is in touch with Norma Neblett Roadcap who is the Quality Control Team for the Chesapeake Bay projects. Norma co-authored one lab QC book, one lab section QC book and one ACS paper. The paper, entitled "The Human Element of Quality Assurance", was presented in New Orleans as part of the American Chemical Society's National Meeting. (I always knew that Norma was smart!)

Best wishes to Phyllis Schulman who will be getting married to Chuck Bell on May 7, '88. Phyllis will then move to Orlando where Chuck is a Vice President with a landscape architectural firm. They had a computer romance as she worked for the same architectural firm at the Lauderdale location. Linda-Jean Smith will marry Lee Schneider in Pittsburgh 6/88. Lee's sister is Joella Schneider Samp '77.

Classmates announcing pregnancies or births were Liz Farmer Jarvis, whose 2nd child was due late January and who continues work at the Historical Society of PA; having their 2nd, another girl 11/4/87 were Russ and Debbie Massie Thurman. Debbie recruits for SBC; Russ works in the film and TV industry. They plan to move back to VA from CA in the next year or two. Cynthia Wattle Washburn and Greg had 1st baby, Elizabeth Hall, 9/2/87—AND Ainslie Jones Uhl and Robert expect TWINS in May '88. Ainslie is editor-in chief of a Sr. Citizens newspaper. Robert is an investment banker; they live in Manhattan. Gail Ann Zarwell Winkler's 2nd, child William Franklin, was born in April '87. Gail Ann hosted Bet Bashinsky White '75 and her son in northern WI for a long weekend.

Tennessee Nielson continues as a corporate attorney, but unfortunately reports her "divorce statistic status." However, she and 3-yr.-old Kelsey are terrific and Tennessee is dating a "handsome, intelligent guy." Kelsey Canady Griffio gave birth to daughter McKenzie 10/8/87. Kelsey opted to give up the corporate world in favor of full-time motherhood. The Griffio's planned their annual Breckinridge ski trip this winter. Beth Bates Locke has quit her job now that Matthew is 18 mos.; Beth now has much more time to travel with her husband. Claude has his own production company which shoots television commercials, industrial and sales films. They spent 2 weeks in FL shooting a Frito Lay sales film. Kay Elisor Hopkins is 2nd VP of the Pi Beta Phi Junior Day Group (Beth Locke is Membership Co-Chair), Ticket Captain for a benefit for the Children's Medical Center of Dallas, is involved with her church (choir) and she and Beth are members of the Innovators group of the Dallas Symphony. And she has 3 children (and my respect!).

Pages of news always arrive from Cissy Humphrey. Over the 4th of July she visited Robin Rodger Heller and Bill in Detroit, sailed with them on their 30 ft. "Celebration". In August, Cissy vacationed in Puerto Vallarta, then on to Warrenton and Wintergreen for the SBC Bd. of Dir. Meeting and on to C'ville to Homecoming with an old flame (friend). Cissy reports that SBC looks wonderful: Admissions has moved into a much renovated Hill House; they are renovating 6 dorms and have already started on Randolph; they are updating plumbing, AIR-CONDITIONING and doing the basement. Each renovation will take about a year - so maybe by our 15th we won't be yelling "flushing". (I loved that old worn down Grammer Commons just the way it was—ahh, the memories!) There is also a new campus "Inn" where guests and parents can stay, located off the driveway before you reach The Wailes Center.

Other news: Pat Dean is still selling real estate in West Falmouth, MA; Candy Casey works in San Francisco for an international brokerage firm and travels to Europe frequently. She's seriously dating an Italian architect (deja vu—remember Candy spent Jr. year in Italy?). Cissy heard from Felice Ludington Taylor and Jim who are still in San Francisco but spent some time in London on business. Robin Heller is in Europe on business with General Motors (Weisbaden, West Germany) since September and loves the work but misses her husband terribly.

From Texas, Janet Durham Sam writes that husband Tony left Chevron to start his own business and is doing well. They expect 2nd child in early June; Juliette (2) is not pleased! Baby #2 arrived to Treacy Markey Shaw and Mark in June. This child was a baby brother for sister Morgan (3 in December).

Shelton Caldwell Lindau wrote a poem saying she has "a family to raise," but thinks about Sweet Briar in her dreams: "And after these memories, all I can say—is take me back to Sweet Briar, one more day!" Me too!

If anyone subscribes to Montgomery magazine, the publisher is our very own Hilda Dent. Husband Randall freelances on other publications and teaches desk-top publishing courses. Their home was certified by the National Park Service as a contributing structure to the Garden District Historical Area. Wendy Burnsnell was married in October to Michael J. Wozniak in Kauai, Hawaii, honeymooned there and in Maui. Mike is a partner in a Denver law firm. They planned to take daughter Aubrey (5 1/2) with them for a few days to Steamboat Springs this January and attended the Super Bowl in Pasadena.

We are delighted to hear from Margaret Burns Bavasi for the 1st time. Margaret and Bob Bavasi have a 17-mos-old daughter, Haley. They met in law school; both are practicing attorneys. In 1984 they purchased a baseball franchise, moved it to Everett, Washington (30 mi. no. of Seattle), and it is now a Class "A" affiliate of the San Francisco Giants. Sue Harrier Kelly left teaching, loves her new career as a co-op coordinator of electronics and computer engineering technologies. Sue lives in Cincinnati and vacationed recently in Marblehead, MA and Myrtle Beach. Sara Crickenburger Brady decided not to return to work at Senator Dole's office. Instead, she stays home with 16-mos-old Winston and expects a new arrival 3/88. Sara has visited with Maureen O'Hearn Slowinski and Emy de Quesada. Catherine Adams Thompson "retired" from the doctor's office where she worked but keeps active with her volunteer work and children Sam (4th grade) and Preston (nursery school). Catherine ran into Sally Minetree '77, one of MY old friends (drop me a line, Sally!) who lives in Warrenton. Catherine also got together with Jane Mooney and Dorothy Lear Mooney (both '77).

In Philadelphia Laurie Fitzgerald

Nowlan and Pat keep busy with their 3 "angels": Patrick 6, Caroline, 4 1/2, and Michael, 2. Laurie took over the reins of her high school (Sacred Heart) alumnae association as president and is active in all phases of the school. She and Pat are still big in sports (particularly tennis, platform tennis) and see Reb and Gina Jackson Spear and daughter Megan frequently. Debra Rae Karnes is a consumer advocate for the government and enrolled in an evening program for her Masters in Public Administration. Debra took a cruise (where?) during Thanksgiving and laughingly complained that she is the only person she knows who is perfectly okay on board, but manages to get seasick after debarkation!

I laughed at Kari Anderson Shipley's '88 news (4 children later), "... this is the 1st time in 5 1/2 years I am not pregnant or nursing a baby, so when I have a moment..." She proceeded to tell about golf, tennis, being on the board of the Historical Society and the Symphony, skiing in Austria and Utah last year (with kids and Nanny in tow!), the Islands this year, NYC (saw Ann Kiley Crenshaw and Les Miserables), starting an addition on their home and on and on. Also busy is Marion Dolan, who is attending the choral conducting program at the Yale School of Music. She had a nice reunion with Dr. Whiteman last fall when he received an Honorary Doctorate from the Divinity School at Yale. Marion joined the Yale Glee Club tour for 3 weeks in Scandinavia and is conducting 95 students in the Freshman Chorus, working in the Youth and College Ministry program and was a conducting fellow at the Oregon Bach Festival in July. She also tells me that the Dukesmen still perform at SBC each spring, and (sigh!), they still sing, "What's Your Name?"

I was impressed to read that Susan Ray Karlson spent much of last year designing, drawing the blueprints, hiring a builder, plumber and electrician for a huge remodeling job on their home. She is now buying windows, doors and bathroom fixtures and - understandably - is very pleased with her work. Karina Schless is in her 7th year with Wyeth-Ayerst Labs and is still riding Drambuie. Karina saw London Gray '71 at a dressage show in Devon, PA, spent a week in London over Thanksgiving and took a trip to Jackson Hole, WY in July. Beth Freeman Roper and Bill live in Atlanta and this summer will celebrate both their 10th anniversary and their daughter's 1st birthday. Rick and Mary Weston Streitz live in Joliet, IL but hope to move to Milwaukee within the year. Their children are now 19 mos. (Chapin) and 2 1/2 (Christopher). Alix Collie Wilson is on their farm in Timonium, MD with Jennifer 6 (a charter member of the class of 2000) and Garrett, who is in nursery school 2 mornings a week. Susan Verbride Paulson says she has "the perfect job" as church organist and music director in Suburban Denver. Susan and Larry have 2 children.

The 9th Caroline in the family was born in April '87 to Hollis and Caroline Bickel McLoughlin. Hollis and his new business partners have acquired a trucking company in Winston-Salem, which may necessitate a family move to NC from Summit, NJ. Caroline spent much of the summer on Cape Cod and in France and continues her work in the kitchen design business.

Meg Shields Duke was baby Caroline's godmother. Meg was also 1 of 3 SBC bridesmaids in my September wedding and expects her 3rd baby around May 1st. Meg and Jamie are completing a large addition to their Denver home and Meg remains active in Republican politics, working on Jack Kemp's presidential bid. Ironically, one of Meg's dearest friends (and mine), Lisa Nelson Robertson has been actively campaigning for father-in-law Pat Robertson's presidential bid. Lisa and Tim expect their 4th child in March '88. The last of my presidential news is that Ookie Hays Cooper and Jim (also great friends with all above) are campaigning for good friend and co-representative in Washington from Tennessee, Al Gore.

I received a card from Lisa Robertson's 1st year roommate, Demi Georgis Bowles who expected her 2nd baby in April to join Henry (3½). Demi and Henry, Sr. took a fishing trip to Scotland in May '87. Ann Kiley Crenshaw and Clarke travelled to Japan, China, Thailand and England last year. In addition to her legal practice at McGuire Woods, Ann volunteers for the Junior League, the United Way, Virginia Beach Arts Center and Legal Aid. Clark, Sr. is in the peanut business; Clark, Jr. is in preschool! If I remember correctly, 1 of Ann's roommates was Kit Newman Detering. This year Kit travelled to Costa Rica, Guatemala, Santa Domingo and France. In August, she was asked to join the International Committee with the Livestock Show and Rodeo and last fall, she and Carl bought a new home. Kit is serving a two-year term as president of the SBC Houston Club. Also in Texas is Nancy Simmonds, who is an RN at the Univ. of Texas Health Science Center in the Dallas Pediatric Nephrology Department. She teaches 5-yr.-olds in Sunday school and stays active with athletics and crafts. Connie Radford Butler attended Dede Ryan Ale's Houston wedding to John in March '87 (I understand Dede and John had a baby boy, John Charles, Jr., in early March '88!!) Dede and John spent 10 days in Italy in September—1 of those last trips before the big event. She planned to quit work with the birth of the baby and give up all that free travel. Dede is Vice President of the SBC Houston Club (along with Kit). Connie Butler and children (Austin 6 and Robert 2) visited Terry Starke Tosh '75, her husband and 2 little girls at their cottage on Ocracoke Island, NC last July. She continues her expanding applique business.

The news of Lochrane Coleman Smith's baby (lil' Lochrane) really brought a smile to my face. The baby was born in October, but Lochrane continues her full-time work and has another business on the side (a glut-ton for punishment). She planned a business trip to Steamboat Springs in January.

A Christmas card from my junior year roommate Ann Hawkins informed me of her move to San Diego. She's thrilled with her new life and job. Ann and Sally Schultz went to the wedding of a good friend in Europe last September and had a fantastic time (but consequently missed mine. I can't imagine who would choose Italy over Akron, OH!). Peggy Weimer Parrish and John gave a wonderful dinner party for Bill and me last summer in Washington. (Peggy was 1 of my bridesmaids.) Many SBC friends attended. (Lyndi Cole '77 also hosted a terrific surprise lingerie shower for me that weekend.) Bill and I stayed at the Parrish's FABULOUS new home (very spacious with a beautiful tree-filled, grove-like back yard) and laughed for 3 days. Peggy continues her work at the Federal Reserve Board (where John is also employed) and has gone back to law school 4 night per week. She and John see Elliott and Jerry Schoenig frequently as Peggy is godmother to Elliott's 2nd daughter, Laura.

A past roommate of Peggy and Elliott, Teesie Costello Howell, and husband Chris are the proud parents of Jackson Christopher born 5/87. Teesie visited Elliott in Charlottesville last summer and they called Margaret Milnor Mallory who was preparing to host a party for 200 guests over 2 nights. (100 people on Friday and 100 people on Saturday). The call was made on a Saturday night and their later attempts to reach Mary Aiken Wright resulted in an answering machine message as she was, (in Teesie's words) "... single and fancy free and certainly out-on-the-town on a Saturday night!" Teesie continues work as a mortgage banker. Mary Aiken's 1st year roommate, Debbie Vatteroot Ruck loves her career as Asst. VP with Mercantile's Private Banking Group and will be attending Stonier Graduate School of Banking in Delaware in June. She and Tom spent Thanksgiving in Del Ray and Palm Beach, then returned to St. Louis to host a Christmas party attended by Meg Duke and Mary Debuque Deslodge '75.

Margot Mahoney and her mother celebrated New Years in Rio on the tropical beaches. (It sounded divine!) Margot has purchased a townhouse in Old Town, VA (not far from the Slat's) and remains with the Washington Consulting Group. She was 1 of my bridesmaids and gave a beautiful champagne brunch in our honor with a few SBCers and a couple old UVA friends thrown in for fun!

Melanie Archer Graetzer and Tony sent a darling Christmas card with a picture of their children, Emily and Ian. Emily is a carbon copy of Mel.

Peyton White Lumpkin graduated from UVA Law School in '79, married Tom; they have 2 children, Alexandra ("Alix", 5) and Tommy (1½). Peyton practices real estate law, part-time. She's learned Spanish from her housekeeper and keeps up with French at Miami's Alliance Francaise. Carrington Brown Wise directs the choir at Southern Seminary and her church's junior choir in Lexington, VA. She teaches (private voice lessons), studies voice in Lynchburg and had an active performing schedule last year. Husband finishes W&L Law School just as 3rd child is due (Henry is 6, Anne Churchman, 4). They anticipate a summer move to Jackson, MS.

Bill and I have been attending the Dede Ryan Ale school of family planning! We, too, expect our firstborn just after our 1st anniversary. This has been an eventful year! I've skied in Vail, spent time with my parents in Naples, FL, travelled to DC to be feted, was married in Akron, honeymooned on a cruise to Bermuda, tagged along with Bill on business to NYC and Nebraska, (back to Naples a couple of times), and we're off to Hawaii and San Francisco in April and May. As Dede says, the travelling will end all too soon! We've bought a home on the North Shore of Chicago; my summer project will be decorating (giving it sex appeal, as my Dad says).

There were so many classmates I did not hear from this year—everyone is interested in reading about you, so please write.

The response to the idea about a fall newsletter brought 1 letter (thanks, Marion). Next year if I don't hear from you, I may publish the names of those non-respondents! Best to all of you, until next time.

Vicki sent news of: Lisa Caldwell, living in L.A., pursuing an acting career; and Diane Riley Milburn, living in Georgetown, KY, balancing her work in science and raising a family, Casey and Jonathan. Ellen Clement Mouri, Richard, Sarah (4), and Cameron (1) have moved back to VA from Dallas and enjoy being close to their families. Richard is with G.E. Ann Connolly Reagan and Dan moved to Newburyport, MA and live in an 1800 brick gambrel home. Ann is in the travel business with House of Travel. Ann writes of seeing lots of fellow classmates at Cindy Stover's wedding. Megan Coffield Lyon and Frank are in Austin, TX; Frank is an attorney. Gail Coyne relocated to Alexandria, VA to manage the fur department at Garfinkel's. Brooks Cunningham Dykes and Gene are in Columbus, GA. Brooks sells commercial and residential real estate and works with physical therapy patients. They are expecting their 1st baby in September.

Anne Darden has returned from an exciting trip to Australia—she even saw the bicentennial celebration. Anne is working for N.W. Ayer, living in Houston. Diane Delladera and husband Rob Schumacher have bought land in Mt. Juliet, TN and are building a house. Diane is starting her own business. Rob is with Federal Reserve Bank in Nashville. Their son, Robert was a year old in January. Darla Davies sells real estate in Charlottesville. She is also agent/trainer for her own equine business, Darashon Farms. She is training and competing with 2 young horses. Claire Dennison Griffith was at SBC Alum Council last fall and saw Amy Campbell Lamphere, Carol Beaird Riedlin who now has 2 boys and is an interior designer in Denver, and Fran McClung Ferguson, who is the new National Bulb Chairman. Luther and Claire have been very busy with Teddy, now 2, plus volunteer work. Susie Dushman lives in Washington, DC working as a designer for an architecture firm. She has 2 horses in Maryland; 1 for competition, 1 for hunts. Susie enjoys D.C. though sometimes misses Texas bar-b-que.

Moir Erickson received her Ph.D. from the Anatomy & Cell Biology Dept. at UVA. She began work as a research fellow at Johns Hopkins in the dept. of Population Dynamics. Her longtime companion Jack Laurence is completing his residency in internal medicine at UNC, Chapel Hill, then will begin a fellowship in Cardiology at Johns Hopkins. They plan a fall wedding.

Annie Fisher McDaniel and Tim expect their 1st child July 4th. Annie recruits for a law firm in Houston; Tim just made partner at his firm. Their house is finally progressing. Beth Fletcher Lubin and Marvin expect their 1st child in March. Carson Freeman Meinen writes that 2-yr.-old Burk was most excited about Santa's visit. Carson & Edward expect their 2nd child in April.

Charlotte Gay Gerhardt and Paul have their hands full with Catherine Stewart, born last March. Lisa Schneider Thornton and Pam Koehler Elms are godmothers. Becky Garrett Jamison and Larry are busy with daughter Annie. Becky considers going back to work in either advertising or real estate sales. Missy Gentry Withrow and Lee lead active lives in Madison. They hosted a gathering in Nov. for the Montpelier Races and had quite a few SBCers in attendance. Mary Jo Giambattista is in Syracuse, managing/bartending at a large local restaurant. She is a flight attendant for a privately owned jet company par-tying as usual and still single.

Carolyn Hallahan works in German-town, MD for IBM as a communications systems programmer for the production network. They just completed a huge project for which Carolyn received an award. Katherine Hancock Maxwell is in Atlanta teaching aerobics and taking care of Jessie (20 months). The Maxwells expect baby #2 in May. Brooke Hardin Randall is a computer analyst in Winston-Salem. The Randalls attended Cindy Stover's wedding, seeing lots of SBCers: "It was like a mini class reunion." Lisa Heisterkamp lives in Arlington, MA.

After her 2 yrs. at SBC, Lisa graduated with a degree in English and Music from Hampshire College. She has been singing with the Tanglewood Festival Chorus (the chorus for the Boston Symphony Orchestra) for 5 years. She also works as a personnel administrator at the Whitehead Institute for Biomedical Research in Cambridge. She is engaged to Joshua Davis whom she met through SBC alum Mary Gearhart. Beth Hogen Dorosk and Jeff enjoy their life in San Francisco and have bought a house in the Marina. Beth has moved from marketing research at Clorox into Product Management. Garrow Hudson Crowley and Chris still live in Spartenburg with Elsa, 2. Garrow works at Hudson Travel but says they've taken no exotic trips since Elsa's birth. Hollis Hutchens Volk and Chris bought a lovely old home in the historic district, Palmaraff, of Phoenix. Hollis is a media supervisor with Phillips-Ramsey, local ad agency. Chris enjoys his job with Franchise Financial Corp. of America. The Volks were in NYC for Thanksgiving.

Pam Koehler Elms is Director of Presidential Boards and Commissions at the White House. Doug is Press Secretary at the Dept. of Energy and traveled all over the world in '87. Leslie Ludwick is in Washington, working on the Hill. During the summer recess she traveled to Paris, London and Edinburgh where she had a lovely visit with Hugh, Tinsley Place Lockhart and baby Beauregard.

Wanda McGill was married to Peter Jay Fry in Feb. She will finish her degree program in December. Fran McClung Ferguson is now the Assistant Manager-Newsprint Marketing for CST Transportation in Baltimore. Norman works as a systems engineer for Apple Computer. Fran, best of luck with your work as SBC Nat'l Bulb Chairman. And the rest of us need to buy more bulbs this year!

Tinsley Place Lockhart and Hugh expect their 2nd child in January. Tinsley and Beauregard (2) visited the States last fall. Susan Posey Ludeman and Danny had a girl, Allison Randolph, last April. Danny, Jr. was 3 this March. Susan started teaching a History of Richmond class at St. Catherine's. Florence Powell is busy working on her new farm and practicing law. She enjoys occasional visits to SBC where her sister is a senior. Beth Purdy Thorsey and Rich are in Reston. Rich is an attorney; Beth is a senior consultant with a high tech search firm. Also keeping them busy is a new home and 80-lb. shepherd puppy.

Anne sees Sue Walters and says she looks great and talks to Kristin Bryan who is in Boston and going to school. Giavonne Greve writes (thanks, its great to hear from you) that she studied computer animation in NYC and is now back in St. Thomas starting a video production company, Utopia Video, on the side; she is a freelance artist. Diana Crandall is a catering coordinator for the sales catering dept. of Sheraton Carlton Hotel in DC.

Suzanne Stovall is a paralegal with Paul, Hastings, et al in Atlanta. Lia Yee Kwong, in Malaysia, is a systems engineer for Jardine Logica; she did some training in Hong Kong this past year. Vida L. Henry is finishing up at SBC, as a turning point student.

As for me, I am really enjoying Denver. Still in the Personal Trust Dept. at the United Bank of Denver, a provisional in the Jr. League of Denver, and doing lots of skiing and playing lots of tennis. Thanks so much for all your great responses. All the best to all of you and your exciting lives. Always, Patsy Roby.

All of this, of course, has one ultimate goal: the support of paralysis cure research. Working on four fronts (fetal cell implantation; surgical intervention; pharmacological agents and growth factors; and electrical stimulation), researchers worldwide are beginning to unravel the mysteries of the central nervous system. One of the most recent encouragements has come from the National Institute of Neurological and Communicative Disorders and Stroke (NINCDS), the primary source of funding in the public sector (it has a "cure" budget 20-30 times larger than that of APA/Stifel). NINCDS recently published grant guidelines indicating that the areas of research they will fund in the foreseeable future largely overlap the APA/Stifel priorities which were established in 1985. Although our funding roles differ (we largely fund pilot work and provide seed money to scientists), the NINCDS guidelines validate our own research directions and program.

Admittedly, the task we've set for ourselves—the reversal of chronic paralysis—is a difficult and extraordinarily costly one; but not finding a cure is far more costly in terms of human suffering and loss of potential. ♦

In the Sweet Briar Tradition

"Every time an alumna speaks highly of the College, she is making an important contribution to Sweet Briar. The graduate student who sends ten dollars to the Annual Fund is committing a substantial portion of her income to her alma mater. Many donors derive ongoing income or tax benefits from their gifts to the College — that reciprocity does not lessen the value of their contribution. The toughest part of my job is convincing people that their involvement and investment in Sweet Briar's future really counts. Every gift — no matter what form it takes — is vital to this community."

Twenty years of experience in academic and civic fund-raising activities have yet to dampen Bill Meadows's exuberance for worthy causes. While working as the executive director for alumni relations at Vanderbilt University, Bill served on the boards of Nashville's League of Women Voters, the Tennessee Sierra Club, and the West Nashville Methodist Church. He has acted as a liaison for Project Pencil (a program in which local corporations "adopt" public schools), and as a host for the West Nashville Shelter. He is an active member of the Council for the Advancement and Support of Education.

In his hectic first two months at Sweet Briar Bill has managed to schedule informal, one-on-one meetings with faculty members "just to introduce myself." He has also been crisscrossing the country to meet with alumnae. His position, as he describes it, is that of a "helper" or an "advisor."

"After a year of strategic planning, the College has a very clear and reasonable sense of what needs to be accomplished over the next five years. I'm finding that members of the Sweet Briar community are already deeply concerned about the future of higher education for women. I don't have to rally anyone. The alumnae I've met are well informed. They are aware of costs involved in maintaining quality and they want to help. My job is helping them determine the best combination of ways in which they can be effective.

"Planned gifts — life income agreements, membership in the Indiana Fletcher Williams Associates, gifts of appreciated properties, to name just a few — can be designed to suit individual needs and circumstances, allowing everyone to make a lasting contribution to Sweet Briar. Substantial gifts are cumulative things. If you do as much as you can this year and the next and the next, you will gradually effect a change. Every little bit really does help. I've seen it work — it keeps me going."

William H. Meadows III, vice president for college relations, joined Sweet Briar on January 18, 1988. Bill's commitment to education and expertise in the area of planned giving made him a perfect candidate for "In the Sweet Briar Tradition."

Trip to Japan and Hong Kong October 3-24, 1988

Open to alumnae/i of Sweet Briar, Randolph-Macon Woman's College and Hampden-Sydney. Led by David Anthony, Professor of Asian Studies Emeritus, R-MWC, and his wife Laura, both seasoned travelers in Japan. Dr. Anthony, a widely recognized expert on the Far East, speaks fluent Japanese. The Anthonys, who are well-known to many Sweet Briar alumnae, will provide historical perspectives, cultural insights and personal concern.

Fly from San Francisco to spend 2 nights in Tokyo; after night 3 in Nikko, wake up to the deep notes of the temple bells of the Toshogu Shrine. Travel through the mountains to Niigata on the Sea of Japan, and take a hovercraft to the island of Sado, which boasts spectacular scenery and is one of Japan's richest centers of folk culture, especially music and dance. After spending the night in a Japanese inn on Sado, travel by bus down the coast of the Sea of Japan to the "little Kyoto" of Kanazawa known for its extraordinary gardens, houses and outstanding craftsmen. Two nights there are followed by three nights in Kyoto, the heart of ancient Japanese culture with its temples, gardens and traditional palaces, some of which date back to before the eighth century. The Japan segment of the tour will end with a visit to the grand shrine of the sun-goddess at Ise. Spend the night near Ise; after seeing Osaka Castle, depart from Osaka for 3 days in Hong Kong, the shopping Mecca of the world. There will be an optional side-trip into China.

The price of $5,841 (subject to change) includes first-class accommodations, most meals in Japan and air from San Francisco. THERE WILL BE NO BULK MAILING FOR THIS TRIP. For further details, contact Noreen Parker in the Alumnae Office, Sweet Briar, VA 24595. Tel: 804-381-6131.

Dr. Anthony first came to Lynchburg under the auspices of Sweet Briar College. He taught Asian studies at Sweet Briar, Randolph-Macon Woman's College and Lynchburg College before taking a full-time position at R-MWC. Many Sweet Briar students took his courses over the years, right up until his retirement in June '87.

SWEET BRIAR ALUMNAE COUNCIL

October 2-4, 1988

Please mark these dates on your calendar and plan to be at Sweet Briar for this important meeting. It's a beautiful time of year to be on campus. You will be a guest of the College and your only expenses will be for travel.

Alumnae Council is for all alumnae who wish to attend and is of special importance for Club Presidents, Key Alumnae, Alumnae-Admissions Representatives, Bulb Chairmen, Solo sellers, the National Bulb Committee, the Planned Giving Committee, Class Fund Agents, Class Secretaries, Reunion Chairmen, Reunion Gifts Committees, Networking Chairmen, members of the Board of the Alumnae Association, members of the Board of Overseers, Alumnae Career Advisory Board and the president of the Senior Class. A program and reservation form will be mailed in late August.

If you do not receive a form and wish to come, please write to the Alumnae Office, Sweet Briar, VA 24595.

Forty Years Ago in Paris:

“We are having hot water each weekend...”

BY EMILE LANGLOIS
DIRECTOR, JUNIOR YEAR IN FRANCE

In January 1948, Dr. Joseph Barker, chairman of Sweet Briar's Romance Language Department, received a letter from Mrs. Dorothy Leet, president of Reid Hall, describing the life of the few undergraduate American students who were spending the 1947-48 year in Paris: "I cannot remember a winter more interesting for the students studying in Paris. The French people have been wonderful to them, and the intellectual life in the theatre, music and art exhibits has filled all of their hours with the most stimulating programs. In Reid Hall they have not had any hardships at all, and while I may worry from time to time as to whether the next allotment of coal from the Embassy will arrive on time, we have never been short up to this time. We are having excellent food, we are having hot water each weekend, and I have rarely seen a group more content or in better health." Upon being reassured that students at Reid Hall, which had reopened in September 1947 after having been closed during World War II, would have the luxury of hot water two days a week, but no electricity on Fridays and until Saturday noon, Professor Barker and President Martha Lucas decided that the time was right to launch the Sweet Briar College Junior Year in France. And thus, 40 years ago, on August 29, 1948, 49 students sailed from New York on the Mauretania, later to be joined in Paris by 18 more students, making up a group of 67 students (34 women and 33 men, 30 of them veterans, a balance between the number of men and women which the junior year would never come close to in the next 39 years!). Among them were five Sweet Briar College students of the 1950 class: Nancy Franklin, Mary Morris Gamble, Marie Gilliam, Helen Missires and Joan Teetor.

Visits to Tours in 1946 and 1947 had convinced Professor Barker that war damage in the city made it impossible to hold a pre-session there. It would be three more years before the Institut de Touraine could welcome the junior year. Thus the 1948-49 group was thrown immediately into the life of post-war Paris. Luckily the first professor-in-charge, Dr. Theodore Andersson of Yale University, and his assistant, Dr. Marion Monaco, of Connecticut College, were up to the task. The Paris office had opened on July 5, and Professor Barker's wife, armed with the 1938-39 list of host families for the Delaware group, forerunner of the Sweet Briar program, had spent her summer looking for French host families. In his annual report Professor Barker told the advisory committee that "the task of finding French families proved formidable and was achieved only after two months of persistent searching by Mrs. Barker, who had retained many contacts from her year as assistant director of the 1934-35 Delaware group... Some of these families were out of town or were about to leave on vacation and did not wish to return to Paris as early as the first week in September. Many no longer had a maid or had all their rooms rented. A large proportion of the families registered with the French student services did not offer sufficient physical conveniences or the proper social and intellectual milieu. It was necessary to climb endless stairs and visit six apartments in order to find one that was suitable in every respect." Eventually Mrs. Barker found host families for 29 men and women; 19 women were housed at Reid Hall and the remaining 19 students made their own arrangements.

Material conditions were far from ideal: apartments had not been repaired since 1939, elevators did not work, plumbing needed fixing. All members of that first group remember the cold winter: "In the leaky, unheated houses and buildings of Paris, we were all cold despite sweaters, overcoats, scarves, gloves and, often, overshoes," remembered Professor Andersson 30 years later in an article for the Junior Year in France Alumni Newsletter. France was still, according to the New York Herald Tribune of January 25, 1948, "a country of limited economy, where milk, flour and eggs were precious commodities." Dr. Barker reported: "Good cuts of meat are unknown and the average Frenchman never even thinks of buying a steak. If you are invited for dinner and have kidneys you are being royally entertained, and that probably means your host will go meatless for days to make amends with the budget." In the pre-departure instructions students were advised "to bring or have sent to you: powdered milk, instant coffee, bouillon cubes, instant sweet cocoa, jams, butter, sugar, crackers, candy. There are no tidbits which can be bought in Paris in the way of candy or cookies in the afternoon. Students can live quite comfortably without any of these articles, but may like to have a supply for special occasions?"

Discipline was strict. John P. Leacacos, European reporter for the Cleveland Plain Dealer, after a conversation with Shirley O'Brien (Connecticut College), wrote on February 6, 1949: "Shirley's French boyfriends have to be screened either by the family with whom she lives or by the director of the Sweet Briar group, Miss Marion Monaco. A maximum of three dates are allowed a week. The girls are not chaperoned. But she must promise on her honor to catch the last Metro home at 1 a.m." Students lost privileges for the least infraction: attending the performance of a play while ordered to stay in bed, or missing a dance to have a party in an apartment. A male student was sent home "since he insisted on prolonging his Christmas vacation to the end of February in order to ski in the Austrian Tyrol." All through the year, the student council asked for an easing up of the rules: the extension of the three weekly permissions from 12:45 a.m. to 1 o'clock, and the addition of two 2 a.m. permissions per month.

More important than material difficulties were the fear of war with Russia and the power of the communist party in France. The group had left in the middle of the Berlin blockade which would last until May '49. In October Winston Churchill had stated in a speech that the west should "bring matters to a head" with Russia while the Soviets still lacked an atom bomb. Political life in France was in a turmoil: widespread economic discontent, fall of the value of the franc, powerful strikes, trials of war collaborators, impression that de Gaulle would take over and that this would be followed by a communist reaction and civil war. Rumors were rampant: in October Margaret Lawrence, a senior at Sweet Briar, received a letter from her sister living in Paris, saying that she had been put on a 12-24 hour notice to leave Paris in case of war or trouble. Professor Andersson had to send a cable denying the story: "Embassy denies emphatically alerting Americans. Everything tranquil!" However, students in Paris kept receiving worried letters from home and Dr. Andersson had to issue a statement reassuring the parents: "We here at Reid Hall and in Paris have no feeling that we are sitting on a volcano. Everyone pursues his work . . . The strikes have of course a certain nuisance value as well as a considerable propaganda value, but in general the French point out that the situation is no different from what it has been in past years." (And what it would be in future years, I may add.)

During the six-week preliminary session in Paris, in addition to phonetics, dictation, grammar, composition, translation and the ever-present explication de textes, Professor Barker had arranged a series of lectures on "the principal aspects of French life and culture in 1948" by such famous lecturers as Louis Landré, professor of English; Henri Gouhier, the philosopher; René Lalou, the author and critic; Dr. Serulaz, the art historian; and André Philippe, the economist. During the school year students took courses at the Sorbonne (mostly at the Cours de Civilisation, an institute for foreign students), the Institut d'Etudes Politiques and the Ecole du Louvre. However, the most popular course was a special course on the theatre, taught by Professor Henri Kerst. Students went to the theatre regularly. Archives do not tell if they managed to see Claudel's Le Partage de Midi, after a burglar broke into the Junior Year in France office and stole the tickets in addition to 6,000 francs (a dollar in those days was worth 300 [old] francs). By the way, the year in France, including tuition and supervision, board and room and round-trip travel by boat, cost between $1,807 and $2,267, depending upon the quality of the housing. A one-way ticket New York-Le Havre on the (old) Queen Elizabeth cost $170 plus $3 tax. The mail service was more efficient than nowadays: when Dr. Barker sent a letter from Sweet Briar on October 7, he received an answer by cable from Dr. Andersson in Paris four days later.

One of the most striking features of the 1948-49 year, as far as the administrators were concerned, was the eagerness to improve the program: all through the year Dr. Andersson suggested improvements to the preliminary session, names of possible professors for courses, registration of the students at the actual Sorbonne rather than the Cours de Civilisation, etc. Dr. Barker was desperately looking for scholarship funds. Their unrelenting efforts ensured the future success of the Junior Year in France. This was confirmed that same year when Harvard University agreed, for the first time in its history, to grant credit for study abroad. More than 4,000 alumni and alumnae, representing 245 colleges and universities in the U.S. and Canada, including 331 Sweet Briar College alumnae, are grateful for the opportunity given to them to spend one of their four college years in France.

Today, as we look back on 40 years of development, we can thank the men and women who had the foresight and courage to launch the Junior Year in France. That early experience is repeating itself with the Junior Year in Spain, which this fall begins its fifth year in Seville. ♦

Commencement '88

Excerpts from Commencement Address by Stephanie Wilt, president of the Class of 1988

"...Commencement is no easy time, particularly when you're leaving a place like Sweet Briar."

"We are not the same people who came through those elegant gates in September 1984. We walked in as seventeen and eighteen-year-old girls full of joy and anticipation—and not a little trepidation—at the prospect of beginning our college careers. We leave today full of joy and anticipation—and certainly not a little trepidation—at the prospect of beginning our careers as women."

A mother's joy

When I say career as a woman... I'm not talking about beginning the vicious climb up the corporate ladder, Reeboks on feet and briefcase in hand—I'm not even talking about stepping into the noble roles of wife, mother or homemaker. What I'm speaking to... are the qualities and skills it takes to take on any and all of those responsibilities. What we have been given here... are the opportunities to discover not only what we want to do in life, but the knowledge that we can do it..."

"There are those who say that an education at a women's college arms its graduates with the ability to make it in a 'man's world.' As soon-to-be alumnae of this women's college, I think most of us would have some difficulty with that statement. For one thing, we have never been told that it's a 'man's world.' That being the case, ... every one of us leaves this college with a doozy of a head start. What Sweet Briar engenders in its students is an awareness of their strengths and the opportunities to test them... if we leave Sweet Briar armed with anything, it is not a chip on the shoulder at the prospect of battling the opposite sex in a 'man's world'—on the contrary, we leave with the memory of having produced our best time after time after time, and the abilities to do it again, in whichever arena of life we choose..."

"We have spent the last four years in an atmosphere tempered not only by academic rigor and intellectual stimulation, but graciousness and integrity as well. We have learned here that being powerful in the world does not mean a sacrifice of things womanly."

Collecting for Couture

BY CARMA C.
FAUNTLEROY

Director of College Galleries and Arts Management Program
Sweet Briar College

Right: Wayne Stokes Goodall '48, wearing an orange chintz jacket printed in England, 1935-36 for the coronation of the Prince of Wales as Edward VIII. Since this event never took place, the fabric can be accurately dated as a test run-off yardage, not reproduced for the public, making it valuable beyond the amusing cartoons of Edward in Westminster Abbey, in the coronation coach, trooping the colors, etc.

Below: Eleanor Potts Snodgrass '48 in a vest and jacket that belong to Sally Davis Spencer '48, made for her from a watermelon-color Chinese skirt, with black satin appliqué and cutouts and fine gold couchwork. The sleeves, from the side of the skirt, are beehive pleating, held in place by gold couched flowers. The central panels of the skirt are used in the vest. The skirt, acquired by Sally's great grandmother on a trip to the Orient, was probably old when she bought it, dating mid 19th century.

The fashion show of designs by Jenny Bell Bechtel Whyte '48 presented at Sweet Briar's 1988 Reunion was not ordinary couture. The unique quality of her fashions depends not so much on novelty of the apparel's shape and structure, but rather on Jenny Bell's flair for creating contemporary clothing from fragments of rare antique textiles.

When the Brooklyn Museum offered a collection of old textiles for sale in 1970, Jenny Bell purchased the lot. Pakistani coverlets, Indian batiks, patchwork quilts and handweavings comprised the initial inventory for her enterprise aptly called Museum Fabrics to Wear. She had been involved with the field of fashion since her sophomore year at Sweet Briar when the magazine Mademoiselle was scouring campuses for a new look for college women. It happened that the night before the magazine staff arrived at Sweet Briar, Meredith Slane Finch '47 had given Jenny Bell a Buster Brown haircut. At a time when the look was Veronica Lake or Amelia Earhart, Jenny Bell's coiffure was singular and she was invited to New York to be photographed and start a new trend.

In a day when modeling was considered a questionable pursuit for proper young ladies, Jenny Bell's mother was concerned that her daughter always be suitably attired, even in the dressing room. The embroidered cotton lingerie of her grandmother's trousseau was made into Jenny Bell's petticoats and camisoles. These attracted the attention of editors and buyers whereupon Jenny Bell took a year off from college to stay in New York. Copies of her petticoats appeared in Lord & Taylor windows with her name and picture and suddenly she was a designer. Upon graduation from Sweet Briar, she worked for many years on New York's Seventh Avenue designing mass-produced, affordable clothes for young women. Wayne Stokes Goodall '48 modeled for her and all her Sweet Briar friends provided inspiration. The Jenny Bell label appeared in major department stores around the country including B. Altman, Marshall Field, Nieman-Marcus and Wanamakers.

In 1963 she traveled to Kenya where the local African women wore brightly colored wraps called kikoi. She brought 1,000 kikoi of different colors and patterns back to the United States where she marketed them in dress designs through Lord & Taylor and Nieman-Marcus. She never forgot the joy of adapting the fabric of one culture or period of history to the preferences and styles of today. A few years later came that fateful purchase of museum textiles.

Curators and scholars are known to groan at the thought of cutting up precious, museum-quality textiles. They are concerned that the historical significance and integrity of the textile is thereby impugned. However, Jenny Bell is quite vocal on the subject of history and conservation. The handmade fabrics she employs in her designer clothing have deteriorated to a condition no longer appropriate for museum exhibitions. When Jenny Bell transforms the salvageable pieces of a tattered antique costume or bolt of cloth into a new garment, part of the challenge is to abide by her own rule to save "every possible thread" of the original piece. She has been known to pass on her "finds" that are in excellent condition to museums and she retains well-preserved pieces intact. Currently in her inventory is an early 19th-century Indian cashmere shawl. Taking scissors to its elegant five square yards in unusually good condition is out of the question. Yet the piece as a whole may be used as a separate wrap and shown in conjunction with other designs. The same holds true for a black silk jacket (circa 1890), which belonged to a Japanese prince, and a colorful cotton duster (circa 1860) predating the advent of the sewing machine in the United States.

She is well aware of the extremely fragile nature of textiles, which she stores in the same acid-free tissue and packing boxes used by museums. Working with many turn-of-the-century costumes, she has firsthand knowledge of the damage that dresses incurred before air-conditioning and when women doused their clothing with perfume. During fashion showings, the audience is reminded to refrain from touching the pieces as models circulate among the crowd.

Jenny Bell perceives her designs as a way of actually displaying and fostering an appreciation for beautiful textiles. She only works with fabrics produced earlier than World War II and many can be dated with precision. A French tablecloth with magnificent embroidery was lined, turned inside out, and transformed into a cream-colored skirt with peplum. The revolutionary symbols embroidered in the four corners of the tablecloth appear folded back on the front panels of the skirt. One needs only to lift the rear peplum to find the embroidered central medallion and encircling words "Louis XVI Le Restaurateur de la Liberté Française." The fabric and fineness of stitchery affirm that the tablecloth was made in 1792 when for a brief period Louis XVI was titular head of France.

Some items in Jenny Bell's collection have been displayed as historical references in museum exhibitions. In fact, a label inside each of her garments explains the provenance of the piece. Many antique fragments used in Jenny Bell's dresses eventually make their way, albeit roundabout, to museums. Her clientele sometimes donate their dresses, which carry price tags up to $6,000, to costume collections.

Museum Fabrics to Wear has been a success from the start and in its first two years was carried exclusively by Saks Fifth Avenue. Jenny Bell requires for her shop more textiles than museums cull from their collections. She frequents auctions and her reputation has spread to the extent that purveyors of rare fabrics contact her. But whatever the source of her European, Oriental, American or Russian textiles, Jenny Bell's goal remains twofold. As a textile historian, she is ethically bound to preserving as much of the original piece of fabric or costume as possible. With every available thread, she proceeds to create unique designs to suit today's lifestyles. ♦

Linda Visocan '87, in an evening dress with jacket made of apricot silk gauze woven with symbols of good fortune, which appear when held to the light. The dress is trimmed with three sections of a cloud collar, edged in blue satin and embroidered in shades of blue and apricot on white satin. Both China, mid 19th century. The gauze of this luminous fabric comes from an uncut roll, 18 inches by 23 yards long, one end signed by the weaver.

Cathy Mays '84 in a seagreen ball dress with silk velvet bodice (Worth, Paris, circa 1885, carrying label) and changeable silk taffeta skirt. The lace, beige silk flowers and beaded stomacher are from the original dress. The skirt was so shredded with dry rot that it had to be replaced.

Dedication of the Florence Elston Inn

One of the happiest highlights of Reunion '88 occurred on Saturday afternoon, May 28 with the dedication of the beautiful new Florence Elston Inn.

Set in a wooded area, the Inn with its brick facade and off-white trim is designed to be consistent with Sweet Briar's traditional architecture. In addition to the 12 guest rooms, there is an adjacent area which can be used for receptions and conferences.

The Florence Elston Inn serves as a convenient and much needed guest house for visitors to the campus. Through Sweet Briar's commitment to active co-curricular programming, speakers and entertainers of national prominence come to the campus for lectures, concerts, seminars and residencies. Events such as Parents Weekend, Graduation, Reunion, Alumnae Council, meetings of the Boards of Directors and Overseers and numerous Prospective Student Weekends bring many guests to the College.

The Inn provides Sweet Briar with a handsome structure for overnight guests. The College is grateful to Florence Woelfel Elston Beemer and others whose generous support has made this building possible.

Florence Woelfel Elston Beemer graduated from Sweet Briar in 1921 with a major in German and a minor in French. She was vice president of Dana Perfumes in marketing, sales and promotion. As an alumna she has served as secretary and president of her class and as a member of the Alumnae Council.

Reunion '88

BY CLAY BLACKWELL '67

Reunion '88 was the largest ever, bringing over 700 revelers to Sweet Briar. From picnics to balloon rides, from concerts to Alumnae College to children's hayride to a festive cocktail buffet with music for listening/dancing, the weekend offered variety, spontaneity and —FUN.

Class of 1933

Six stalwart members of the Class of '33 were on campus to celebrate their 55th Reunion. Wearing their freshman aprons and youthful smiles, they surely belied their 55 years out! Under the leadership of Jean Van Horne Baber and Mary-Nelson Neville Sieman, 56% of the class participated in raising a gift of $13,655 in unrestricted funds. In addition, 1933 made restricted gifts totaling $5,030. They announced a grand total of $135,744 in restricted and unrestricted gifts over the five-year period since 50th Reunion!

Class of 1938

Five years ago when the Class of '38 was due to celebrate its 45th Reunion, although five alumnae had preregistered, various circumstances canceled all plans to attend. In June 1986, Dolly Nicholson Tate announced her intention to be sure the 50th was better than the 45th! On May 27, 50 class members and 29 husbands arrived for a gala 50th. With their tulips held high, they gave an ode to Sweet Briar bulbs, and then quietly announced the largest gift ever made to the Annual Fund in Sweet Briar's history: $105,468! With this gift the class earned the Nancy Dowd Burton Award for the largest unrestricted gift in a Reunion year. With 86% of the class participating, 1938 also received the first annual Award for Class Participation in Reunion Giving (for classes celebrating the 25th through 50th). Their spirit and enthusiasm was contagious: they received a standing ovation.

The Class of 1948 brought the house down at Convocation with its rendition of "The Sweet Briar Blues." With 51 members and 16 husbands, this indomitable class took over the entire fourth floor of Meta Glass (which will never be the same!). The weekend began with a class picnic hosted by classmate Elvira Whitehead and Walter Morse at their home in Amherst. Classmate Jenny Bell Bechtel Whyte presented a fashion show of contemporary clothes designed from exquisitely restored antique fabrics at Saturday's luncheon, and the class danced that night away to the sounds of Professor John McClenon's big band "Cabaret." Reunion Gifts Co-Chairman Meon Bower Harrison presented the class gift of $81,258 at Convocation. Another incredible figure: 84% of the class participated in this gift.

The Class of 1953 arrived 35-strong, with 23 husbands, and proved to themselves and the world that even after 35 years they could still climb the stairs to third floor Reid! These proper ladies, these paragons of good taste and good judgment, the pride of Dorothy Jester, assembled onstage during Saturday's Convocation to deliver a "rap" that left us rolling in the aisles. Under the able leadership of Class President Mary Ann Mellen Root, Reunion Co-Chairmen Jane Perry Liles and Katzy Bailey Nager and 22 Reunion Committee members, they exceeded their wildest dreams by presenting a gift of $32,500 from 95 class members—69% participation.

Class of 1958

The Class of 1958, celebrating its 30th, took Sweet Briar Reunion to new heights. Ruth Frame Salzberg brought her hot air balloon, "Archangel," which provided a spectacular new dimension to the festivities. Tethered balloon rides were offered to all those intrepid enough to accept. Class Fund Agent Claire Cannon Christopher also served as National Reunion Chairman, as well as Reunion Gifts Co-Chairman with Eleanor Humphreys Schnabel. Under the leadership of Class President Tibby Moore Gardner and 25 committee members, 1958 raised a gift of $33,202 from 100 classmates—58% participation.

Class of 1963

Class President Allie Stemmons Simon, with Secretary Lisa Wood Hancock and Reunion Gifts Co-Chairmen Anne Carter Brothers and Nancy Dixon Brown, organized an elegant Reunion to commemorate their 25th. Sallie Yon Williams catered a gourmet dinner on Friday in lieu of a class picnic—this class did everything in a big way! Forty-eight alumnae (with eight husbands) returned for the weekend, looked fabulous and broke all records for 25th Reunion giving with $90,242 from 63% of the class.

Class of 1968

The Class of 1968 came gliding into Sweet Briar with the grace and style befitting a 20th Reunion class. It took all of Manson to accommodate 47 classmates and 18 1/2 husbands and children. Lynne Gardner Detmer presented an inspiring and entertaining Saturday afternoon vocal concert in the chapel. Francie deSaussure Meade served as Class President and Reunion Gifts Chairman and, with 30 committee members, set a new record for 20th Reunion giving, presenting the College with $27,362 from 49% of the class. They won the Award for Class Participation in Reunion Giving for classes celebrating the 5th through 20th Reunions.

Class of 1978

The Class of 1978 distinguished itself by having the largest number of returnees. Seventy-three returned with 28 husbands and children, filling Dew and spilling over into Reid. Six class members performed with the Alumnae Sweet Tones, directed by Class President Becky Dane. During Saturday's Convocation, Becky led the assembly in singing old favorites and confessed to the class's "hippie" roots, prompting the class to don pink and green Sweet Briar bandanas (designed by Suzanne Collins '78, President of Briar Patch Designs) in a nostalgic salute to the good ole days. Reunion Gifts Chairman Lu Litton Churchill, with assistance from Julia Sutherland and a committee of 22, presented a gift of $15,000 from 41% of the class.

The Class of '83 definitely had fun! There was so much catching up to do: new jobs, new husbands, new babies, new homes (new mortgages); but all the spirit and comradery that the class had known was very much alive and well—it was fun for everyone to be with them. Reunion Gifts Chairman Libby Glenn, assisted by Mary Ware Gibson, rallied an impressive 32% participation, presenting the College with $10,190, which was 156% of their declared goal. Their presentation, sung to the tune of "The Twelve Days of Christmas," recounted their surprise at changes they found at SBC in the five years since Graduation.

Co-Fund Agent Sue Dern Plank, stationed with her husband in Japan, worked with Co-Fund Agent and Reunion Gifts Chairman Scottie O'Toole and Class President Nan Robertson Clark, to draw classmates to Reunion. Those making leadership gifts received Japanese dolls via the Dern connection! Thirty class members returned, bringing six husbands and children, and at Convocation announced a gift of $11,218 from 27% of the class.

"One-of-a-Kind" Quilted Jackets

These quilted jackets reminded us of Sweet Briar's historic past as an antebellum Virginia plantation. They are crafted from antique handsewn quilts, so each one is a unique "one-of-a-kind" creation. When the source for these antique quilts stops, no more jackets will be produced. The Sweet Briar quilted jacket can be ordered in either pastel or bright patterns. Best of all, they are just as comfortable as the quilts from which they originated. We think you will be pleased to be the owner of one of these historic quilted jackets.

Comes with identifying Sweet Briar tag. Handsewn Quilted Jacket, $290.00, please specify bright or pastel patterns.

Two special activities at Sweet Briar are portrayed in these two hand-knit cardigans. Riding and farming designs are continued from the front to the back of each gray cardigan. Each cardigan is very detailed — the farming design even comes complete with black and white cows. Blueberry Woolens is a rural Maine cottage industry that uses only 100% pure wool, which is grown and spun primarily in Maine. Pewter buttons. Great pride and craftsmanship is evident in every cardigan which includes the knitter's initials and the year. You will enjoy owning one of these wonderful cardigans and wearing it with pride for many years. Comes with identifying Sweet Briar tag. Riding Cardigan, gray with wine accent, $220.00. Farming Cardigan, gray with black sleeves, $240.00.

Presenting: The Sweet Briar Clock

With each passing hour, the old times together become more cherished...and what better way to symbolize those days than the Sweet Briar College Clock.

Not only a beautiful tribute but a useful one, too. For what home or office doesn't need another clock? The Sweet Briar College Clock is a personal source of pride, as it represents your insistence on quality and your personal ties to Sweet Briar College.

Only the finest American components are used, because this special clock is designed to last and to be enjoyed by future generations of your family. The traditional walnut frame around the face, with hand-painted gold border, the classic gold and black reverse-glass painting and the solid brass acorn finials make this reminiscent of the handmade clocks in the homes, estates and offices of our ancestors.

- The Sweet Briar College seal is reversed painted in gold.
- The size (20"x10"x4") is considered to be ideal for home or office.
- With its American-made quartz movement, this clock is guaranteed accurate and maintenance-free.
- The face molding of select walnut and the case of kiln-dried poplar, stained to match, are selected for grain pattern and color, and furniture-finished by hand to complement the finest room furnishings.
- An engraved plaque on a family or office clock has always been special. So, upon your request, we will engrave a solid brass plaque with your name, and other information you wish, such as degree and class.

The Sweet Briar College Clock, $139.50,
Engraved brass plaque, $15.00.

We stand 100% behind the quality of our merchandise. If you are not satisfied return any merchandise for an exchange or refund.

Income from the Book Shop is used for student scholarships and for Book Shop improvements. Your support is greatly appreciated.

Presenting: The Sweet Briar Lamp

The Sweet Briar College lamp provides a special opportunity to show your pride in Sweet Briar College. In your home or office, its traditional design bespeaks the highest standards of quality. The Sweet Briar College Lamp has been designed and created to last for generations as a legacy of quality:

- All of the solid brass parts shine with a hand-polished mirror finish, clear lacquered for lasting beauty.

- The Sweet Briar College seal is hand printed prominently in gold in two places on the 14" diameter black shade.
- The solid brass parts make this lamp heavy (three pounds), and its 22" height provides just the right look on an executive desk, den table or foyer credenza.
- The versatile three-way switch permits a variety of light settings.

The Sweet Briar College Lamp, $139.50.

CHILD CARE—AN IMPORTANT ISSUE FOR A WOMEN'S COLLEGE

With so many SBC graduates established in full-time careers, the issue of child care is a top priority concern. Many communities lack well run licensed day care programs and parents often cannot find responsible adults to care for children privately at a reasonable cost.

A group of parents, alumnae and other interested individuals has been meeting to address the need for adequate child care on the Sweet Briar campus. Faculty and staff parents find very limited local options for child care. A number of Turning Point students have children; more TPs might enroll if child care were available. To meet this need the Campus Child Care group (C.C.C.) hopes to launch a demonstration project either in Amherst or by using the existing SB education building (nursery school/kindergarten) afternoons. Such a project would be the foundation for a program housed in a new building for which the College has allocated land. When these plans are implemented Sweet Briar, in making an important statement on a very relevant women's issue, will be a model for other colleges.

The C.C.C. group would like to hear from you. We need your support, encouragement, and especially your suggestions based on your experience in the child care field. C.C.C. alumnae are: Ellen Apperson Brown '72, Patsy Phillips Brown '53, Jocelyn Palmer Connors '62, Carter Hunter Hopkins '68, Ella Hanson Magruder '75, Byrd Stone '56, Neela Zinsser '52. Please write to any of us or to the official mailing address: Ellen Brown, Box 408, Virginia Episcopal School, Lynchburg, VA 24505.

En route to board the Illyria for the SBC alumnae Voyage to Patagonia and Cape Horn, March '88. Mary Vinton Fleming '46 hosted a cocktail party at Santiago's Sheraton Hotel pool. L-r: Jean Black Jennings '39; Ida Todman Pierce '38; Frank Carter; Stewart Pierce; Jane Munnerlyn Carter '50; Mary Vinton Fleming. They even sang some SB songs, to the amusement of others at poolside!

New Director of Public Relations

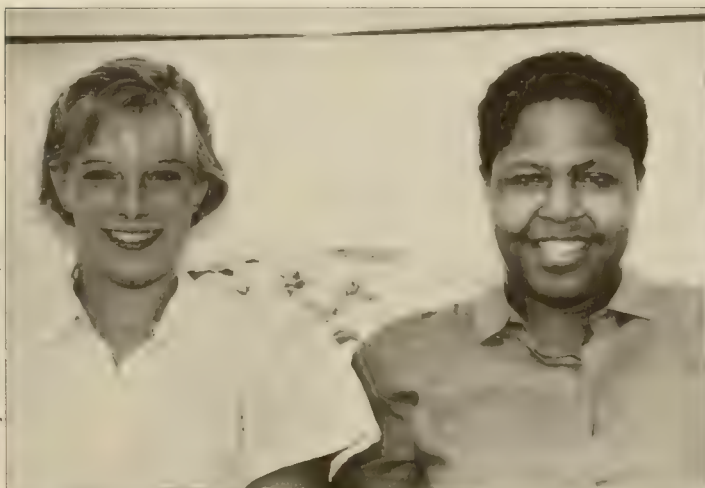

Monica F. Dean is SBC's new director of public relations. She came from the University of New Orleans where she was director of the UNO News Service. Previously her career had been in newspapers: she spent nine years at The Times Picayune/The States-Item in New Orleans, the last four as assistant city editor, second-in-charge of the main newsroom. Before joining that paper, she was a reporter for The Garland Daily News, Garland, TX; one of her stories won an award from the Dallas Press Club in 1976. Monica also worked as managing editor of The South Town Courier in Shreveport, LA and as assistant managing editor and Sunday magazine editor for The Daily Iberian, New Iberia, LA. She holds a B.A. in sociology with a minor in English from the University of Southern Louisiana, Lafayette.

Monica and her husband Robert Steckel, who was a sports-writer for The Times Picayune, have a four-year-old daughter, Clelie Dean Steckel.

Admissions Staff Appointments

Margaret Williams, a 1988 graduate of Wittenberg University, Ohio, where she majored in English, joined the admissions staff as an admissions counselor July 1. While at Wittenberg, Margaret was a senior interviewer for the admissions office and did an internship in the Davidson College admissions office during summer and winter term breaks. She is an accomplished cellist and was a writer for the alumni and student newspapers at Wittenberg. She also studied abroad one semester in Vienna.

Angelia Allen returned to SBC admissions as assistant director July 1, after a year in admissions at her alma mater, Mary Washington College. Angelia will be involved with the administration of the $30,000 GTE FOCUS grant which the College has been awarded. The purpose of the grant is to identify (in their early high school years) and recruit minority women into science and mathematics careers.

Excellence in Teaching Award

Christ E. Pikrallidas, instructor of economics, was named the '87-'88 recipient of the "Excellence in Teaching Award." The award, determined by student members of the Academic Affairs Committee, was announced at Commencement.

WANTED: WATER CONSERVATION TIPS

Attention, alumnae, especially gardeners: if you have water conservation ideas, please contact Peggy Castle '86, who is compiling a reference booklet on water conservation & drought-resistant gardening in the midwest. She seeks facts about drought-resistant plants or tips on saving water in municipal, residential, commercial or industrial settings. The completed booklet will be available to the public. Write or call: 488 East Montana Avenue, Glendale Heights, IL 60139. (312) 469-1531.

THANK YOU.... to the many alumnae who returned excellent, thoughtful and very helpful critiques of Reunion '88! We do read and pay attention to them!

Terri Fentress Thompson Scholarship Fund

A memorial scholarship fund to benefit students interested in riding has been established by the family and friends of Nancy Terrill (Terri) Fentress Thompson '66, who died of cancer on March 13, 1988.

Note from LIFETIMES Center:

Any alumna who does not wish to be contacted by students or other alumnae with regard to career advice or job information, please contact Carter Hopkins, LIFETIMES Center, Box AT, Sweet Briar, VA 24595 ([804] 381-6151) by September 15.

Marion Peele Dies

Marion L. Peele, a special student at Sweet Briar from 1908-1910 and then secretary to Dr. Mary Kendrick Benedict, Sweet Briar's first president, died at age 99 on May 2, 1988 in Chesapeake, VA. She had retired in 1960 as secretary to Norfolk's city manager and had also worked as a secretary at Atlantic Coastline Railroad.

Miss Peele chaired the drive to establish the Mary Kendrick Benedict Scholarship, and worked tirelessly, writing to every student of Miss Benedict's time. Marion herself presented the scholarship to Sweet Briar on Founders' Day, 1945.

She was the self-appointed class secretary for that group of women who were here in the very early days of the College, and helped bind them to each other and to Sweet Briar. She had genuine concern and interest in Miss Sue Slaughter in her later years and often saw Frances Murrell Rickards and others who lived in the Norfolk area.

Her devotion to Dr. Connie Guion was equally strong. She was very disappointed that she could not be at SBC for the dedication of the Guion Science Building, especially since she had been part of practically every important event in the history of the College. Even in later years when she was not able to participate she wrote notes of congratulations on every occasion, whether it was reaching a goal in a fund raising effort or dedicating a building or inaugurating a president.

The history of Sweet Briar College could not be told without her.

President

Florence Woelfel (Mrs. Florence Elston Beemer), 1301 N. Astor Street, Chicago, IL 60610

Secretary

Florence Ives Hathaway (Mrs. Lloyd A.), 32 Prince Street, Needham, MA 02192

Edith Durrell Marshall has been an outstandingly devoted fund agent for our class, writing many personal messages inciting our allegiance to SBC. Unfortunately, a fall last winter confined her to the "care" unit of her retirement home in Cincinnati. She is better but not vigorous enough to continue in her capacity as fund agent.

Louise Pochat Hattersley writes of her continuing loyalty and interest in all that goes on at Sweet Briar. She too is in a retirement home "The Scarlet Oakes" and is well but has had to resign from participation in the many SBC events going on in Cincinnati.

Gertrude Anderson of Findlay, OH says that she is "still in her right mind, living in her own home, can see and drives." More power to you, Gert! We envy your ability to live a full life without the handicaps the majority of us have. Gert sees Edith Marshall on her way summers to her home in Michigan. We hope this will again be possible this year.

Those of you who are in frequent touch with Shelly Rouse Aagesen will recall that her husband, Nick, was badly "mugged" two years ago. Shelly writes that it's been a slow and painful time in regaining the use of his arm. He is dependent on a pacemaker but gets about "considerably, not dancing exactly, but not yet on all fours." Shelly has not lost her delightful sense of humor.

Marion North Lewin who lives in Fairhaven, MA, holds her own and is well in spite of a long string of ailments. She attends meetings of the AAUW and both musical and social events. She gave up driving because of poor eyesight and calls it a great inconvenience, but she adds philosophically, "at our age we should be grateful for all small favors."

Gertrude Pauly Crawford writes a warm and cheery message saying she looks forward to the yearly report of her class notes. She stayed home in Grosse Points Woods, MI, this past winter but will make a trip to reunion with her friends in Hilton Head, FL.

Nellie McCaa Cole is devoted to SBC. She is not sure of the number in 21 who will remember her for she only stayed one year. She is living with her son in Shreveport, LA, but still misses the college mates who live in Norfolk or Suffolk. She sent a picture of her church, a handsome edifice where she is active in the Altar Guild. At 89, she no longer drives, but walks and rides the bus. She feels fine.

Florence Woelfel Beemer writes an enthusiastic letter about her relationship to the college and her frequent trips to watch the construction of the Elston Inn which she has made possible by her generous financial gifts. She has won the appreciation of all the alumnae especially 1921 who call her "ours". She writes that it's been a very happy year, spending four months in FL, four in Crawfordsville, IN, and four in Chicago for the opera season, the symphony and charity balls. She gets her exercise by swimming in their pool and dancing. Lest she take our breath away by her youthfulness she adds realistically that she has had a cataract operation and "at this time of life parts seem to fall apart, but I won't tell my age to anyone - seems to help." We admire her spirit.

Betty Morris Coleman, who attended our 65th reunion with Edith Marshall and Florence Woelfel Elston has been having a very difficult time healthwise. From being, in her brother's words, "lively as a cricket and enjoying being a ham radio operator" she has changed to being in the hospital with emphysema and heart complications and is dependent on an oxygen machine.

"Lette" Elizabeth Shood Dixon is happily living in her own home, entertains, but accepts as a gesture to her advanced years, the company of someone nights. She adds, "I hope all you girls are doing nicely."

My sister-in-law, Frances Evans Ives, who died in January, was president of our freshman class at SBC but then went on and graduated from Tulane. After marrying my brother (who died in 1944), she spent most of her life in Montclair, NJ. She put her two children through college, a valiant effort. An editorial in The Montclair Times of Feb. 4 stated: "Few people have touched this community with more caring compassion than Roma Ives... Not only did she serve with distinction as Town Clerk for 13 years, but she gave her amazing vitality and gentle persuasiveness to inspiring the volunteers of countless local organizations such as the College Women's Club... the Montclair Branch of the United Nations Association, the Friends of the Montclair Public Library and at least a dozen others..."

Florence Ives Hathaway stayed north last winter. She did not like the cold but enjoyed living with her daughter's family. Her daughter accompanied her to concerts, theatre productions and garden club meetings in Needham, MA. At this writing the SBC tulips are in full bloom. She also enjoys her membership in an active church. This summer she will go again to the family camp in Bryant Pond, ME, a small town full of Hathaways. There are plans to celebrate "grandma's" 90th birthday both in Maine and Needham.

Secretary

Cordelia (Deedie) Kirkendall Barricks (Mrs. Arthur A.), 100 Bay Place, Apt. 2101, Oakland, CA 94610

I thank you for your responses and my daughter-in-law for typing. I believe we had 135 in our freshman class and now number 66 which includes some who are "lost." Can anyone help locate any of the following: Marjorie B. Cardwell, Agnes E. Craven, Janet W. Carlson, Margaret B. Eastman, Eleanor Gerrard, Ethel Hook Irvin, Mary Johns Doster, Dorothy Leatham Nelson, Virginia Lewis Duerr, Georgia Martin Adams, Margaret Mitchell, Sybil Reinus, Dolores H. Mills, Grace Robinson, Lillian Rollins Tuttle, Josephine Saylor, Nina Wiley Mowry, Virginia Whitlock Moll. Please write to me or to the College.

Louise Wolf Arnold misses her sister, Ellen Wolf Halsey (SB '21) so much. Ellen was 90 and so active and died in her sleep as we all would like to do. George, who is 92, and Louise swim daily. At the time of her writing they were entertaining Louise's son, Fritz, who lives in Mallorca, Spain. Another son, Bob, is a successful painter and lives in Nantucket. Louise attended the wedding of her granddaughter on Long Island last fall.

Mary Hampton Martin Dempster thanked me for being class secretary for so many years and remarked our class must be dwindling in numbers. For shame, Hampie, you didn't give a tiny inkling of what you are doing.

Mary Elizabeth Welch Hemphill continues active in spite of arthritis. Last November she went to St. Petersburg to the christening of her namesake's baby boy. In mid-April Mary Elizabeth was off to the races in Keeneland.

Virginia Burke Miller's daughter wrote that Virginia is in a nursing home in Denver, but is mentally alert and watches sports events on the T.V. Her vision was greatly improved from cataract surgery so she can read again. She enjoyed a wonderful family reunion after the wedding of her granddaughter on Thanksgiving weekend. Virginia's family consists of 6 great-granddaughters and one great-grandson, the products of 14 grandchildren. Should be some future Sweet Briar students from that fine family.

Dorothy Herbison Hawkins had a "shut-in" winter since her husband, Howard, had a broken leg, now healed, but still painful. Rochester has a Sweet Briar Club that meets twice a year. It is headed by Addie Cook '63. Dorothy's heart is always with Sweet Briar. Mary Sailer Gardiner has two children, 11 grandchildren, and 10 great-grandchildren. To celebrate her 85th she went on an 8-day Caribbean cruise with her daughter and first granddaughter. Mary lives in a retirement community in Rydal, PA. Dora Hancock Williams lives in the same house she and her husband built on Cape Cod. She lost him in 1985. Her arthritis is bad, but on the plus side her daughter and son-in-law live next door and are so wonderful to her.

Margaret Hogue Pfautz wrote that 1987 wasn't a good year for her. She lost her dearly beloved and only son-in-law. On top of that she can't see as well in one eye, but was able to renew her driver's license. I share that triumph, too, getting mine for 4 more years. Margaret spent 5 weeks in FL with her Alabama friends. She has 5 great grandchildren, but still has 3 unmarried grandchildren. One is at the Naval Academy. Another son and wife are planning to attend the Sweet Briar tennis clinic.

Muriel Fossum Pesek's husband was good enough to write me that Muriel has Alzheimer's disease, is bedridden and requires nurses around the clock. Our heartfelt sympathy goes out to him.

Mary Reed Hartshorn is still living in Bradford Terrace Retirement Apartments in Milwaukee. The nice people keep her busy and as happy as she can be without her good husband. She had a big 85th birthday celebration as I did. We both wonder how we got so old so soon.

Ruth Pratt Jones's son Larry drove her last July to Keene, NY to visit her daughter, Judy, who lives in a lovely farmhouse in the Adirondacks. She enjoyed a month of beauty and happiness with daughter, grandchildren and greats. En route they stopped to see Hampie in Richmond and went on to Sweet Briar. Ruth hadn't been back to Sweet Briar since 1925. She was amazed to see how our college had grown, but it was unchanged in beauty and meaning. She wanted to see Helen McMahon, but she was in Little Switzerland for the summer. I'm glad Ruth had these happy memories to enjoy while she was in casts and a brace, and in bed for 4 months following an accident on her walker.

I learned from Marjorie Leute Crouse's niece that Marjorie had died in December 1987. She had recently moved to the John Knox Village in Orange City, FL and was enjoying it. Marjorie's stay at Sweet Briar was short, but she spoke of it with great fondness.

Eleanor Miller Patterson's son, Brown, wrote me that Eleanor and her husband moved to Sewanee, TN, to be near him. They live in an apartment adjacent to the house Brown and his wife live in. Brown is the Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences at the University of the South. The senior Pattersons enjoy visits from grandchildren, walks in the woods with family and two housekeepers who look after them. Kay Agard Flewelling reports all is well with her. She is active in community affairs, especially the Earthside Nature Center which has a 3-acre garden devoted exclusively to native plants. Kay plays lots of bridge at the Shakespeare Club and Womens City Club. In December and March Kay attended weddings of two step-grandchildren. She is contemplating a summer trip to the Scandinavian countries.

Elsie Munro Haller lives with her dog in her 5-room house in Redington Shores, FL. She is now able to use her car since having had a successful eye transplant, but the minus side is she can now see her wrinkles. You know, Elsie, they came from character. Elsie is looking for a small cottage on the mainland. She has some fear of her location because 8 years ago a hurricane struck and she had to be rescued. The friend who rescued her is soon to come to San Francisco and plans to look me up. This will be a wonderful way to learn firsthand about Elsie.

Mary I. Sturgis has been in the Hermitage in Onancock, VA for 6 years and has never regretted the move. She still drives and is busy with garden, church work, and club meetings, and is on the food, flowers and grounds committees. Mary no longer goes on long trips, but has happy memories of travels. Emilie Halsell Marston, '27, accompanied her on the Garden Tour in 1982 and to the Scandinavian countries in 1983. Mary sees Mary Rich Robertson '24 when visiting Emilie. Jerry McGiffert MacLennan is doing much better, having graduated to a cane from a wheelchair and walker. She is still in her lovely home and grateful for her blessings.

My youngest son, Bob, and I drove to Whidbey Island, Washington State, over Labor Day to meet my number 6 great-grand. Now I have 3 lads and 3 lasses. In October I finished up my 18 floor parties entertaining all residents in my apartment. Thanksgiving and Christmas were joyous family gatherings at my son's and granddaughter's homes. I was proud of both who worked so hard for our pleasure. I did the honors at Easter. I was 85 in January and will never forget the parties my 3 sons and families gave me. They furnished champagne and 2 birthday cakes with dinner for all residents. Following dinner there was a concert "Songs of Yesteryear." The following night there was a dinner for just the family. My family promise me another such bash on my 90th!! Ten days later I was on my way to Kihei on Maui to visit a friend, but was sick with bronchitis for 12 days of my 14-day holiday.

I'm still in charge of the monthly book reviews. I talked to the 4th grade at St. Paul's School across from the Towers. They couldn't imagine what I did at their age without a car, radio, television, electric refrigerator, washing machine, etc. I said we were more family-oriented. I have a very social life, both within the Towers and outside. Bridge is a great diversion. Have won prizes both at Hallowe'en and Mardi Gras for original costumes. Still the "ham" in me. I've had no more heart scare since late 1986. My bachelor middle son, Fred, hasn't fared so well. In March he had number 25 and 26 surgeries for serious circulatory trouble, and also has glaucoma and thyroid trouble.

Penn Willets Mullin '66 is still doing a super job of heading our San Francisco Bay Area alumnae group. She entertained us last July at a garden party luncheon at her home and got 15 of us together for the annual Sweet Briar Day luncheon in December at an excellent French restaurant in San Francisco. In June, Bob and I attended a celebration of Mary Sturr Cornelius '62 marriage to Marshall Stuart. They went to Sweet Briar on their honeymoon.

I said I was still driving, but not much. I no longer drive to San Francisco, but have got to most of Sweet Briar's activities due to the kindness of Mary Ann McPherson Oliver '56, Mary Sturr Stuart '62, and Randi Miles Long '66. In March, Mills College alumnae hosted a seminar on Women's Education and Career Placements. There were 15 women's college presidents and alumnae of each in attendance. The colleges represented were: Agnes Scott, Cedar Crest, Chatham, Hollins, Hood, Mills, Randolph-Macon Woman's College, Salem, Scripps, Simmons, Spelman, Stephens, Sweet Briar, Wells, and Wilson. I was delighted to have a visit with our President, Dr. Nenah E. Fry, and Penn Mullin. Before the program we went on a tour of Mills' beautiful campus and enjoyed the old structures, some of which were designed by the well-known architect, Julia Morgan, before she began her famous Hearst Castle.

My family of 3 sons, 2 married, and one a bachelor, has kept me on my toes. The oldest son is retired and lives in the NW. The middle one lives in a Veterans Home 60 miles away, and the youngest lives nearby.

We should be a privileged bunch having lasted so long. Please concentrate on our 65th reunion at Sweet Briar in May of 1990.

Ed's note: The alumnae office received the sad news that Mary Archer Bean Eppes died on June 15. Mary Archer had called about a month earlier to say that she had been ill and could not do the class notes this year. She said that in the postcards that were returned to her, there were very few changes from last year. Although facing surgery, Mary Archer was looking forward to a granddaughter's graduation from Middlebury

As chairman of our 1988 Reunion, I express gratitude to my committee members: Virginia Vesey Woodward, convocation report; Jessie Coburn Laukhuff, campus liaison; Ella Jesse Latham and Sue Graves Stubbs, scrapbook; Mary Kate Patton Bromfield and Micki Murdoch Martin, skit; Mary Nelson Neville Sieman, gifts to Reunion Fund. Thanks to our telephone committee for contacting every member of our class. Ralph Emling will be our class photographer.

My five years as class secretary have been rewarding for you have responded so faithfully and enthusiastically.

We note with sorrow the deaths of William Brown, husband of Janet Blood, 29 June 1987; John Cook, husband of Marjorie Jones, 1988; Joseph Woodward, husband of Virginia Vesey, April 1988; Carolyn Pierce May, Easter, 3 April 1988.

Baber, Jean Van Horne, guiding at two Philadelphia Museum Houses, family reunion July 1987, Tenafly, NJ; had lunch then with Gerry Mallory Lees; writing newspaper articles and researching. Baker, Sarah Houston, hospitalized several times 1987, Mary Elizabeth Clemons Porzelius was one of three of her bridesmaids who attended the 50th wedding anniversary, traveling from Chattanooga, TN to Decatur, IL. Sarah hopes to be at Reunion. Brown, Janet W. Blood, spent Christmas in Denver, CO where she had lunch with Betty Cassidy Evans; will spend summer '88 at NJ shore.

Carlton, Mary Brooks Barnhart, was named, in Oct. '87, one of two "Women of the Year" of the Women of the Church Organization of First Presbyterian Church of Chattanooga, TN. Cook, Marjorie Jones, Smith graduate, lives in retirement home, Milwaukee, WI. A son lives in Staunton, VA; Marjorie always remembers the beauty of Sweet Briar. Elliott, Jeannette Shambaugh had one year at SBC, sees Millie Rahm, corresponds with Abigail Sheperd Bean (poetry), loved Lee Tracy, Bees Taylor, Susalee Belser and Betty Fowler, her roommate; hooked on Chinese art; son-in-law will receive honorary degree this June.

Emling, Marjorie Morse and her husband are hard working members of League of Women Voters, registered 541 voters, ran two candidate forums. Two grandchildren, 9 and 7, will go with Marjorie and Ralph to performance of "Mikado" at Tulsa Opera Co. Travel this fall will be to China and Tibet for three weeks. Gray, Elizabeth S. celebrated her 75th birthday 20 Sept. '87 by riding an elephant, named Carol, at the Hanniford Circus at Virginia State Fair. The tape was shown on Richmond TV. What fun! Holmes, Nevil Crute and husband spend May to October in Asheville, NC. Had lunch with Warwick Rust Brown and Robert at their Cashiers home. October to May it is Naples, FL where Nevil met Janet McGregor Curtin at Feb. '88 SBC luncheon. Trip to the Algarve, Portugal this year.

Hunt, Carolyn Wilson sends love to all, sees M. E. Clemons often, plays bridge, does volunteer work but sees grandchildren only once a year.

Hyland, Marjorie Ris says highlight of 1987 was a three week SBC sponsored trip to Australia, New Zealand, North and South and Tasmania.

Imbrie, Mary and Margaret moved around the corner to an apartment condo; Feb. '88 visited Jean Baber, Hilton Head Island, SC. Loveland, Doris Crane visits Helen Bond whenever near Wilmington, DE. Doris and her husband, Sam, will celebrate their 50th by sailing on Vistafjord to North Cape.

Martin, Helen started working in 1935 for $90.00 a month in a hospital laboratory, then had 22 years working for a phytopathologist. Now is back again doing lab tests but for free. Sweet Briar bulbs are blooming.

Newberry, Frances Neville left late Jan. '88 for cruise on Golden Argosy from Bombay to Singapore. The trip included Showtime in London.

Person, Jane Martin is forever grateful that her father sent applications for Helen and herself to SBC when they were high school freshmen in 1925. No one can take away from them their priceless 4 years. Three married children and 11 grands live nearby. Husband, Harold, active in VFW and land use; Jane in church and historical society. Porzelius, Mary Elizabeth Clemons has a new granddaughter, one grandson (architect VPI), one granddaughter (architect to graduate 1989). Mary E. spends some of her time smocking, cooking, knitting, playing bridge. Powell, Josephine Rucker: From a June '87 article in Richmond News Leader about Jo's husband, Lewis Powell, Justice of the Supreme Court, we learn Josephine was a Miller & Rhoads model during college years and was SBC's best athlete. The complete copy will be in our Class Memory Book.

Redman, Lillian Allison and husband John have driven around campus recently, will move to a retirement community summer of '88. Daughter, 35, lives in Leadville, CO, hopes to attend a cooking management school next year. Sieman, Mary Nelson Neville, chairman of special gifts to College from our class, has been busy on our behalf, also preparing for DAR State Conference NE, and National Continental Congress in Washington, DC 1988. She received two credits for always being at class and practice for Univ. Chorus. August '87 Mary Nel was in San Diego, Los Angeles, Grand Canyon and Mesa Verde Park, all family get-togethers.

Slater, Katharine Gochner, President of SBC Hunt Country Club, has presented to SBC a signed copy of Feb. '88 revised edition of The Hunt Country of America Revisited, first published 1967, now a collectible. Taylor, Margaret Wayland, active in church and NSDAR, mentions a cruise on Mississippi Queen from New Orleans to Vicksburg and Natchez. Her husband, Robert, has retired after 56 years as active attorney. They are members of UVA Museum, UVA Theatre, Richmond, Charlottesville-Albemarle Historical Society.

Woodward, Virginia Vesey, our president, sees Anne and Sue Brooke in Virginia Beach. This May, daughter, Ginger, will receive a master's degree in education from George Mason U. and will try to attend her 15th SBC Reunion. Zoppa, Frances Powell enjoys each day to the full, always on the go, does many constructive things.

The alumnae magazine only publishes notes of each class once a year—this is it for us!

Agnes Crawford Bates still works part-time at the Gloucester Library. She plays lots of bridge and gardens. Next year she will be chairman of the Gloucester Daffodil Show and Historic Garden Week. She and Marie Walker Gregory see each other often and reminisce about our 50th. Marie's little granddaughter loves the reunion hat. Marie is planning a trip to England and Scotland in June. Actually most of us seem to have developed peripatetic feet.

Sara Kirkpatrick Fearing was one of her grandson's first passengers after he got his small plane pilot's license. She says she wouldn't leave her beautiful garden in the spring but last fall she fell in love with Australia and the Pacific Islands. Her daughter and her family live in Honolulu so she has a double pull in that direction. I wonder if she knew that Bobby Jarvis Thomas lives in Honolulu. Bobby had a good visit with Lucy Gore Stead and her Canadian husband. They hadn't seen each other in 48 years but as we discovered last May, except for a few gray hairs, "they had hardly changed at all." Bobby is planning to take a Smithsonian trip to France this summer and look at some retirement places on Cape Cod on the way back.

Marian Leggett Whyte and her husband live on a golf course near Palm Beach and won the husband-wife tournament for the 3rd time. Their life sounds busy and happy with travel, hospital volunteer work, children and grandchildren. She was one of several classmates who have run into Wes Ward Francis. I'm not surprised because Wes has been lots of places. Wes also does a lot of work for public TV, and recreation and parks work. She's taking a grandson to her husband's reunion at Harvard hoping he will be inspired to follow in his grandfather's footsteps. Later in June, she's going to Europe ending in London for Wimbledon. I hope to be there in July with one of our daughters and her family. They have arranged a house exchange with a British family. We will stay in their house in London while the British family moves into our house in RI. I'll be the resident nanny. In February I flew to Kenya and Tanzania so I really will have seen both sides of the world this year.

Ellie Snodgrass Park is still enjoying her work as an assistant U.S. attorney but she says she sometimes feels like "a den mother" for the bright young men and women who are her cohorts. Her oldest grandson was married in Miami where he lives and his sister graduated from George Washington U. Ellie is planning to go to Russia with the SBC group this July. May Weston Thompson and her husband, with Dr. Hudson, flew to Egypt in January. Ever since freshman Ancient History she had wanted to see the pyramids and they were even more overwhelming than she expected.

Maggie Cornwell Schmidt is going to her granddaughter's graduation from Choate in June and to Spain and Portugal in the fall. I'm sure she's doing lots of interesting things in St. Louis but she just wrote as so many of you have about the happy memories she has of us all at our 50th. Becky Douglass Mapp and her husband and various children and grandchildren sailed around the Bahamas this spring. Now they are getting their house ready to open for VA Garden Tour.

Through the years I've often wondered about Betty Ball Fensom so I was especially glad to hear from her. She still lives at Port St. Joe, FL, with her three children and their families within a 100-mile radius. She loved hearing about our reunion from Nina and Fricki. Sid Gort Herpers sadly has had to give up many activities because of rheumatoid arthritis. She's moved into a delightful condo where help is available but there aren't many SB alumnae in Seattle so she's looking forward to this news. Frances Kemp Pettyjohn is still our Lynchburg resident. She's busy with church and hospital work and enjoys having a 3-yr.-old grandson nearby. Her others live further away.

Unless there are some unreported grandchildren Barbara Munn Green has beaten my 13—she has 16. Barbara lives in Steamboat Springs, CO where people love to ski but Barbara sounds a bit weary of the slowly melting snow by mid-April. Molly Gruber Stoddart's husband has not been well but they are hoping to go to his 55th reunion at Yale. Fricki Charles Straub is still enjoying happy memories of our reunion. She and her husband are planning a trip out west this summer.

Izzy Olmstead Haynes has just returned to Pound Ridge, NY from CA where both her married sons live. She saw more family in Vancouver. Brad Forsyth and George are still battling Mother Nature on their farm but still enjoying it. I had a card from Anne Lauman Bussey's husband saying she is now living in a nursing home in Carlisle, PA. They have given her St. Andrew's robe to the college for possible use by some future Sweet Briar student.

Nancy Nalle Genung, I know, has been in touch with some of you trying to keep up our reputation for superlative giving to Sweet Briar. She and her husband had a leisurely trip to FL. They followed spring all the way home and found it waiting for them in Princeton. Lill Lambert Pennington as our president, echoes Nancy's plea for the alumnae fund, and thinks we should have another reunion this May. Dottie Price Roberts is another of our really devoted gardeners. She feels badly that a family conflict kept her from our 50th.

My cards finally caught up with Peggy Cruikshank Dyer and Frances Johnson Finley as they were leaving FL. The Dyers have had a busy year with a wedding and a new grandchild along with tennis and boating — on Buzzards Bay in the summer and FL in the winter. Frances plays golf with Anne Parks '39 during their winters in FL. In the summer she and her husband are still in their house in VA.

Having been at SBC for only one year Norma Rogers Cook said she was pleased we still considered her a member of the class of '37. She, too, is adjusting to losing her husband after almost 50 years.

Polly Lambeth Blackwell and her husband are going to Crete this summer with their daughter's family which will be especially interesting because their son-in-law's family is originally from there. Polly's husband is trying to retire from his law practice — but not very successfully. Margaret Sandidge Miller telephoned me last night. She and her husband were just back in Annapolis after a winter in FL. Margaret had lots of interesting ideas that would brighten up the presidential campaigns. I wish she could talk to the candidates!

Thanks to all of you who sent in news. I loved getting it and I'm sure the class will be glad to see '37 represented in the alumnae magazine.

Our class notes this year are a mixture of sad and happy news. Three of our classmates have passed on. Mary Garnier Swanson died June 3, 1987. She leaves a husband, 7 children and 10 grandchildren. Marianne White Southgate passed away September 27, 1987, after a long bout with emphysema. Patricia Dowling Von Wellsheim returned her class notes card a few days before her death. Pi had double by-pass surgery from which she was recovering nicely. Eleanor Damgard Firth talked to her the night before surgery. She sounded fine. Her 6 daughters and 4 sons are scattered. They live in Nepal, HI, OR, TX, MI, PA, NY, and ME. All of them rallied around. This was a great source of joy to her. Prior to her illness the Von Wellsheims were enjoying retirement. The end came March 13, 1988 following complications from surgery.

To the families of the deceased the Class of 1941 sends its deepest sympathy.

On a happier note we have had two re-marriages this year. Martha Jean Brooks married Tom Ingram of Charlotte, NC in the fall of '87. Edith Vongehr Bridges married David Cole. Martha Jean and Tom toured New England to view the fall foliage and to play golf during their honeymoon. They live in her condominium in Charlotte. The Coles live in Edie's house in Palo Alto.

M. Adele Diaz Eads is serving her 12th year in the CT General Assembly. She is state senator for the 30th District and Deputy Republican Leader. Her impressive committee assignments are: ranking member of the Education Committee; a member of the Banks and Judiciary Committees; the Governor's Educational Block Grant Advisory Committee; the Committee on Services to the Disabled; and Literary Coalition. Evelyn Canley Marion reports that "you can go home again". Evie and her husband Andrew moved to Columbia, SC last year. They have a condominium about a mile from their daughter and her family of a boy (10) and a girl (8) who is named for Evie. Their other children are a son in Atlanta and a daughter in Aiken, SC both unmarried. Elizabeth Brown-Serman Hayes and Frank, in their Eastern Shore house, are involved with the Church and the town. Frank is a retired minister. Chee Chee's sister Mary Brown Serman ('37) and Chee Chee played bridge with Joan Myers Cole. They had fun looking at year books and reminiscing about their Grammar Commons Bridge Base.

Charlotte Davenport Tuttle and John's life continues the same happy pattern of living on a boat in West Palm Beach in the winter and Chatham, MA in the summer. Enroute from FL to MA they saw Ann McJunkin Briber ('43) in Amelia Island. Charley would like classmates to contact her at either location. She is in the telephone book. Margaret Craighill Price and Karl have had visits this year from Martha Jean Brooks Ingram and Tom and Laelitia Seibels Frothingham and John. In the fall of 1987 Craigie had a lovely day in Atlanta with Elizabeth Colley Shelton and Emory Hill Rex's daughter Aline Rex McEvoy ('65).

It has been a busy time for Anne Gayle O'Beirne selling her house, buying a condo and moving. Her younger son graduated from Architecture School at U.Va. After graduation Anne toured England, Belgium and Germany. As treasurer of the SBC Alumnae Association Anita Loving Lewis goes to the college several times a year. Anita's husband Bill had a heart attack in '87, so their lives have been very quiet of late. Since he is better they are anticipating a mini-West Point reunion in CA in the fall of '88. Judith Davidson Walker and Tony visited them during the 125th anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg. Helen Hamilton Bixby spent her usual February and March at Vero Beach. Anne Teall Carrington and Dick visited her. Helen was disappointed that Margaret Anderson Dortch and Lawrence could not join her because of his health. She has travelled to the Swiss and Italian lakes and to Gleneagles, Scotland in recent years with the Carringtons. In Louisville she saw Mary Worthington Foster.

Lucy Parton Miller and Laymon have had a successful year giving courses in Industrial Noise Control. Two were given in Toronto. Others were held in the San Francisco area, Chicago, Norfolk, and Orlando. They celebrated their 45th wedding anniversary with a Valentine's Day cruise to the Caribbean with their five young ones. March they were in Italy; May it was Portugal. They summer in Canada. Patricia Sorensen Ackard and Bill make their permanent home in Naples. They also enjoy being in Denver where 3 of their 4 children live. In Denver they see Eunice Foss Sneed and Jean Blount. Angela Betty Cardamone O'Donnell and Ted enjoyed visits from 3 of their children and their families plus friends in Bonita Springs this year. Edge goes north to see her mother for short stays. Helen Gwinn Wallace and John continue to raise and race thoroughbred horses in VA. They are building a house near Naples. They enjoy their FL winters. Helen and Lucy Parton Miller often lunch together.

Helen Ann Littleton White and Logan spent two months on Marco Island in the winter. Martha Jean Brooks Ingram and Tom visited Charlotte friends in Naples. Eunice Foss Sneed was in Naples in January. Eleanor Damgard Firth and Swede were in Naples for a Senior Golf Tournament. Wilma Cavett Bird visited Jean Hall Ruggles in Naples. Jean and Pat Ackard played in a golf tournament together and sit together in church. Also in Naples are Anne Borough O'Connor and Helen Watson Hill. There are so many classmates in Naples, we should all head in that direction.

Betsy Tower Bennett's husband Charles has health problems which curtailed their activities. Their support from family and friends has been wonderful. Their youngest son, Benj, has left his Tulsa job and apartment to be with them. Betsy is also active with the DAR, the Garden Club, and Fellowship meetings.

During the winter Alpine Martin and Eugene had a great month in Florida. They spent two weeks at Mountain Lake with Ethel Gurney Betz and John and Butch's sister, Essie Cruikshank of Dorset, VT. They golfed, danced, and caroused. Piney and Eugene see Lillian Fowkes Taylor and Tyler several times a year at golf tournaments. The four of them see Mary Elizabeth Doucett Neil and Jack in May in Southern Pines, NC when they are staying at Mid-Pines. The Pattersons two eldest grandsons go to preparatory school this year - one to Lawrenceville and the other to St. James. Doris Huner Swiech and Stanley greeted their 5th grandchild in San Francisco at Christmas-time in 1987. They have 3 granddaughters and 2 grandsons. Doris is serving her second term on the Transylvania County Library Board. Helen Botte Carmine Barber lives happily on Maryland's Eastern Shore with her husband John, a retired Foreign Service Officer who free-lances as a simultaneous interpreter for the government. They have 4 children and 5 grandchildren. Both are active in the Episcopal Church, the library board, and the historical society. Helen won a state award for a Colonial style herb garden at the Dorchester County Historical Society. Nancy Gatewood Warnock is a volunteer at two Episcopal Churches. One is low and one is high. She also volunteers at the public library in Bryn Mawr and is an avid collector of books. She has 3 children - one married and one engaged daughter and one son who is separated. From time to time she sees Alice Meeds Flaherty. Alice's husband John has retired. They have 5 daughters and one son, all scattered.

This has been a year of travel for Emory Hill Rex and Dan. They enjoyed an 11 day cruise on the Sagafjord to Alaska. They celebrated their 45th wedding anniversary in CO with friends from their years in Boulder and a family gathering arranged by their children. They spent a busy winter in TX. In April it was Santa Fe; in May, Atlanta. Their grandson graduated from Lovett School in Atlanta. His mother is Aline Rex McEvoy ('65). In July they were in eastern KS for a big reunion. Another traveling couple are Mary Worthington Foster and Campbell. In April they took a Royal Viking Star cruise to China and Japan for 3 weeks. They went to Tucson to visit their brother-in-law and his darling new wife. Their next stop was a Delray Beach house-party. Joan Devore Roth and John spent a fun catching-up day in Louisville with them. John had a heart problem last fall but has recovered nicely. Mimi sees a lot of Fayette McDowell Willset. On Easter the Fosters were with all their children and 9 grandchildren in Louisville. Mary Scully Olney and Jim are enjoying their life in beautiful Savannah. Each year they take one big trip in addition to traveling west to visit their children. In 1987 they took a UVA trip to France and Switzerland. In 1988 it was China. Each summer they visit Decca Gilmore Frackelton and Robert on Seventh Lake in the Adirondacks.

Jane Loveland Byerts is attempting obedience training with her 90 lb. young German Shepherd. She is still active as a Red Cross Hospital Volunteer. They visit their 4 children and their grandchildren. Their oldest son, Bill III, lives in London where he is on the European staff of Kodak. Shirley Shaw Daniels is a volunteer assistant at Scott Arboretum on the Swarthmore College campus. She is also chairman of the Headquarters Garden Committee of the Colonial Dames and a Zone V Representative to the Interchange Fellowship Committee of the Garden Club of America. Shirts and Dick had a visit from daughter Dottie and her two boys aged 8 and 6 from Denver during their spring vacation. Son Dick is still near Boston. Shirts enjoys seeing Betsy Campbell Gawthrop ('39). Prior to the Panamanian trouble Joan Devore Roth and John took a Caribbean/Canal cruise. Margaret Tomlin Graves and Paul had dinner with the Roths when they were in Cincinnati. In May Dedore went to Holland for ten days. Their summers are spent in MI.

Elizabeth Hudson Boba retired from the Classical Department office at the U. of Washington and had a lovely farewell party. A summer reunion on Sixth Lake in the Adirondacks took place with Ethel Gurney Betz and John, Decca Gilmore Frackelton and Robert, and Marie Gaffney Barry and Ted. Elizabeth Brown Serman Hays and Frank were missed. Butch, John and Robert golf each day while at their summer homes. Trips to glamorous golf spots fill a great deal of time for Lillian Fowkes Taylor and Tyler. He is a board member of the Southern Seniors. Lillian has had two surgeries during the year. Her recoveries have been good. In spite of her hip surgery dancing is high on their list of favorite activities.

Our condolences to Ruth Hemphill de Buys on the loss of her mother. Her husband continues as a patient in a nursing home. When time permits Ruth golfs and enters tournaments. She headed a special golf tournament in Birmingham this year. Carter Frackelton ('72), daughter of Decca Gilmore Frackelton and Robert organized Sweet Briar Day in Fredericksburg, VA. The occasion brought together an assortment of classes plus prospective students. Decca saw Helen Gwinn Wallace at a Boxwood Workshop at Blandy Farm. Laelitia Seibels Frothingham and John welcomed their seventh grandchild this year. A son was born to little Tish and Steven Mead, their third one. Tish and John are wonderful grandparents. In the summer they divide their time between Nantucket and New Canaan. Tish is very active in the Episcopal Church and the New Canaan Sewing Group. John skis with Marie Gaffney Barry's husband during the winter.

Patricia Potter Duncan had an exciting trip to Antarctica this year sponsored by Stanford University. She attended the dedication of the Florence Elston Alumnae Inn at SBC in May. Florence Woelfel Elston Beemer ('21) and Gordon are close friends of Pat from Indiana. Pat is a volunteer for the Colonial Dames at Octogenarian House in San Francisco. A great mini-reunion took place in Leland, MI at Pat's summer home with Ruth Hemphill de Buys, Lillian Fowkes Taylor and Tyler, Laetitia Seibels Frothingham and John, and Marie Gaffney Barry and Ted in July.

Gertrude Marriell Stanchfield appreciates the free college education Sweet Briar gave her when she came to the U.S. as a refugee from the Nazi occupation of Austria. She has just completed 40 years as a clinical psychologist for the government and plans to continue working.

I do appreciate your good response to the Class Notes Card this year. It's great fun to receive the cards and to pass on the news!

It's great fun hearing from you all! Both Edie Page Gill Breakell, Roanoke, VA and Mary Kathryn Frye Hemphill, Hickory, NC are thrilled with the arrival of twin grandchildren. Edie Page's daughter, Page, had a boy and girl just before Christmas. Mary Kathryn's daughter, Ellen, had twin sons in February in southern France where she lives with her Spanish husband. Mary Kathryn is also excited about singing with the 130 members of the Hickory Choral Society at Lincoln Center, NY in early May.

Betty Healy Cutler, Newport News, VA won the Women's Golf Championship at her club last summer. This was particularly gratifying after surgery 2 years ago had injured a nerve in her arm. She saw Cappy Price Bass and Hilda Hude Chapin in FL this winter. Cappy also sees Norma Bradley Arnold and Joe who have an apt. there. Cappy and Bruce enjoyed a trip to Australia and N.Z. in Nov. '87, and are going to Maui this summer for the wedding of youngest daughter, Kelly, who has a Ph.D. A new FL resident is Martha Holton Glesser who has moved to Gulf Breeze. After several bouts with surgery she is looking forward to some R and R in northern MI this summer.

Peg Mueller Haldeman, who lives in San Francisco, took the SBC China trip that Herb and I were going on in 1986 (he died the month before) and she has become an Oriental enthusiast. Alice Nicolson McIlvaine (Steve), Washington, DC was in China in April. She has a son in Taipei, another son in Tanzania and a daughter in San Francisco. She and her husband cruised the east coast for 3 months this past summer. I liked her definition for occupation on the Alumnae Fund form - wifely duties and community chores! Harriet Willcox Gearhart (Lovah), Centreville, MD saw Steve recently as well as Rebekah Stokes Lamb in Baltimore. Lovah and David are happy to be back on Maryland's eastern shore and both still work part time.

Wyline Chapman Saylor writes from St. Petersburg, FL of her 9 grandchildren and 4 sons who live nearby. She and 2 of her daughters-in-law are Carlisle Collection Consultants. Her sister-in-law, Dale Saylor Morgan of Savannah, GA is active in Garden Club of America and judges flower shows. She saw Sadie Gwin Allen Blackburn, 1st Vice President of Garden Club of America and also Mary Lee McClain ('54) at a Memphis Flower Show. Two of her grandchildren are in college already! She also sees lots of Betsy Miller Saylor ('55), another sister-in-law.

Jay Skerry Tape of Wilmington, DE has been putting her US History major to work lately. Delaware is celebrating the 350th year since the New Sweden Colony was founded there. The Swedish Royal Family paid a visit and Jay claims she has worn out libraries from Washington to NY. Antoinette Maynard is still a subject cataloguer at the Library of Congress, and likes working in French history. Daughter Libby, in Eureka, CA is arts coordinator for the county; daughter Carol and family moved from WA state back to Erie, PA where Joe is setting up practice as pediatrician-neurologist and Carol as audiologist. Son Philip just finished a 4 1/2 year marine corps tour of duty and is about to return to college.

Anne Dickson Jordan (Dickie) of Virginia Beach now has a retired husband and they have been to FL and the Bahamas this winter and will be in the Adirondacks at Lake Champlain this summer. They have 5 grandchildren but have trouble keeping up with Perk who has 7. Mary Perkins Traugott Brown (Perk) will join Lyn Dillard Groves in England again this summer. Lyn is busy as usual still chairing a Red Cross Chapter and running a tree farm. But Lyn and some other SBC alumnae in the area took time to welcome Ade Jones Voorhees ('46) when she moved into her home in Kilmarnock, VA.

Julie Mills Jacobsen still commutes to SBC from Washington after 20 years of that temporary job, and she's in her second term as a councilwoman in Bethany Beach, DE. But her grandchildren have her buffaloed. She claims she never knew how much she didn't know until she listened to them (ages 6 and 9). Elaine Essary Gill is fortunate to have her 4 children all living in Washington, DC where she and husband, John, live. There are 2 grandchildren and one on the way. Elaine is on the Women's Committee of the Smithsonian and the Board of Directors at Childrens Hospital. She and John head for Provence in June and John will be a Bush delegate in New Orleans in August.

Both Jean Ridler Fahrenbach and her husband of Tomkins Cove, NY will retire this summer and they are looking forward to the wedding of daughter, Mary, at Princeton in June and the birth of their first grandchild courtesy of daughter, Ann, in VT. Their son, Robert, will graduate from Purdue as a mechanical engineer in December. Jean will continue as director of Tomkins Cove Public Library. Catherine Waddell Spencer and Bill moved to Bristol, VA last year when he retired from the Medical College of VA faculty in Richmond. Their daughter is a veterinarian in Bristol and Bill works part time with Public Health there. Catherine plays tennis almost every day and is a performer on harpischord, organ and piano. She earned 2 music degrees after SBC, B.A. from Univ. of Richmond and M.M. from VA Commonwealth Univ.

Ellen Gilliam Perry writes from Charlottesville of a monthly lunch bunch which sounds like lots of fun. She has seen Peggy Jones Wylie on her farm where Col. Mosby (the Gray Ghost) lived. Peggy relates her tale of an unmarried son and an unmarried daughter. She and her husband still raise lots of calves and a few Angus. Leila Barnes Cheatham of Griffin, GA has 8 grandchildren and now owns a huge house in Highlands, NC which will be able to accommodate most of the family for vacations. She and Jake have also worked on a house in Griffin bought by the Historical Society.

Elizabeth Zulick Reuter, Towanda, PA had a marvelous skiing trip to Vail this winter and saw Mary Symes Anderson in Aspen. Zu is expecting her 10th grandchild this summer and leaves in May to walk in Wales and motor through Scotland and England. Isabel Gaylord Thompson (Diddy) of Staten Island, NY has a second grandchild born to her son in MA. She and Arthur miss their daughter who is an OR nurse at NYU Medical Center and has moved into Manhattan. Diddy often remembers Taylor Reese when she visits her son and grandchildren in Attleboro. Who can forget our Senior Show?

Alice Gearhart Stinson, Whispering

Pines, NC, works at their thrift shop, for the local Rescue Squad and the Arts Council, as well as golfing, biking and fishing. Her husband, Bill, paints and Alice takes courses at the Community College—finance and dulcimer lessons this year. She should join Jean Moores McCulloch of Springfield, OH on the dulcimer. But Jean had very sad news this time. Her younger son died in March of a heart attack while driving through Mexico. We grieve with you, Jean.

Frances Matton (Pani) was remarried after 8 years of widowhood to a retired architect from Louisville, T.R. Luckett. His sister, Gracy Luckett Bradley is class of '39 at SBC. Pani sounds very happy and spent the winter in Naples, FL.

Betsy Smyth Brown lost her husband a year ago. All of her children were gathering on the ranch in Southwest Texas for Christmas. Carol Cox MacKinnon, Alexandria, VA also lost her husband last year. He had had ALS (Lou Gehrig's disease). A new grandson arrived soon after and brought some joy into Carol's life.

Virginia Whitaker Shelton (Jinny) of Durham, NC has 2 sons who went to colleges in this neck of the woods - Brevard College, Western Carolina and Appalachian State. I take Continuing Ed. courses at Brevard College, everything from Chinese Stir-fry and Powder Puff Mechanics to Plate Tectonics and Archaeology. Jinny keeps in touch with Audrey Betts and saw Anne MacFarlane Clark and Harriet Hazen Schmoeller last spring. Harriet was remarried to Reed Harnack in May and widowed in November. She says it was a very happy 6 months.

News from Lookout Mountain and Ponte Vedra, FL of the Chattanooga contingent: Sarah Temple Moore still helps run 2 art galleries, has 10 grandchildren and the last of her 5 children will be married this fall. A 45-year-old bridge club on Lookout Mt. has some familiar names, Betty Avery Duff, Hilda Hude Chapin and Mildred Carothers Healy. The latter has 8 grandchildren and enjoys Sawgrass in the winter. Alice Edwards Davenport (Hedy) writes of her brood - 30 for dinner regularly - I don't know if I could face that! We all pray that her husband, Joe, wins his fight with cancer. Mary King Oehmig has a son who is married to one of Hedy and Joe's daughters. Mary has 5 grandsons and her 2 sons live on Lookout Mt.

Ruth Hall Peckham (Tutti) visited Betty Avery Duff in FL this winter and saw Mary Haskins King in Asheville, NC. She also sees Sterling Nettles Murray, ('44) as they live in the same area of Asheville. Mary Haskins King had a card from Jane McKunkin Nelson, Lewisburg, WV who seems to be doing fine after her bypass surgery. Joanne Morgan Hartman (Jodie) had her 2 daughters home for Christmas in Charleston. One of them wants Jodie and Jim to go along with her on a mule ride to the Grand Canyon!

I thoroughly enjoyed my trip to Ireland, Wales and Scotland last summer. A birding trip to Costa Rica in March was most adventurous with 3 in a room at times, power outages, bridges out and a flight in a single engine plane over the jungle, but I saw the Quetzal and lots of other beautiful birds and scenery. My daughter and her family will come down this summer and settle in this area. Also my 10-year-old granddaughter from Boston will attend one of the camps in Brevard this summer. In between trips and visits I work on Braille. I have been certified by the Library of Congress so now am transcribing books into Braille on my machine. It's addictive, but there's still time for hiking and golf. Keep the cards and news coming. Many thanks to you all.

For this year, for this class, Ann Henderson Bannard struck the keynote in telling of the Bannards' wonderful Thailand trip. They were there for the birthday celebration of the Thais' much beloved King Bhumibol - a landmark birthday - number 60, completing the fifth cycle of 12 years, full of holiday atmosphere, spectacular fireworks and parades. I don't know how many parades and fireworks the Class of '49 precipitated for similar occasions, but here's to our sixth cycle of 12 years, which will include our 40th reunion, or our 3 1/3 cycle, which sounds better than 40th.

Mention was made by some of you of the big six-oh event. Betty Wellford Bennett gave a luncheon for Caroline Casey McGehee on hers, Nan Hart Stone ('47) gave a party for Kitty Hart Belew on hers, Herbert Slatery took his wife, Carter Van Deventer, to Tides' Inn, Irvington, VA for hers, and Carter Talman took his spouse, Margaret Towers, to France for hers.

In order to have some thread of coherence in this letter, I am treating some subjects as they quantitatively appeared on the cards. As traveling won, hands down, we'll start there. Caroline and Coleman McGehee took their whole family, 3 children, 2 daughters-in-law and 3 grandchildren, to Harbour Island in the Bahamas for a week in February. The senior McGehees' plan to attend meetings in Vancouver and Paris in May, enjoying it while they can, as Coleman retires in September '89. Joyce Smith White, having tucked Nantucket, Bermuda and London under her belt in her year of retirement freedom, anticipates a trip to Ireland in June. Bunny Barnett Brown and Walter whipped over to Scandinavia for a Scandinavian friend's birthday. Joan McCarthy Whiteman and Wes also traveled to Scandinavia, and then on to Leningrad to see The Gold Room. Kitty Belew and Betty Bennett plan to be on the SBC trip to Russia in July. Kitty says she is "especially excited about the cruise on the Volga, as she spent many piano practice hours learning 'The Volga Boat Song.'" Judy Easley Mak and Dayton plan to visit Spain and Portugal. Mimi Powell Leonard had a lovely trip to Italy with one of her daughters-in-law and her mother. Zola Garrison Ware and Jim went on a camera safari to Africa (Kenya and Tanzania) last summer. Turning to the South Pacific, June Eager Finney and Bill were on the SBC trip to Australia and New Zealand in Nov. '87. Kay Bryan Edwards also went. Katie Cox Reynolds, in conjunction with her importing and retailing home and garden furnishings business, went to China and Hong Kong last May, coming home "pretty impressed with how the Chinese in both places have managed to feed and house their millions." In November, Nancy Jones Worcester and John had a fabulous cruise to Southeast Asia. Vidmer Megginson Downing and George spent last May visiting Hong Kong, Jaiper, Bangkok, and cruising down the Yangtze River. And back to the Bannard's trip to Thailand, where their nephew is working in a refugee camp on the Cambodian border. They did not see this friendly and fascinating country through tourists' eyes and thus gained a new understanding of a very different part of the world, where that war is not over yet.

The above travellers do have stateside lives, too. In fact, Walter Brown has a whole new stateside life as Chairman of the Board of SBC. Caroline McGehee has become a life member of the SBC Friends of Art. Caroline sent in the only physical report - that Judy Mak is in fine shape as she swims almost every day. Judy reported on her second grandchild, a brother for her granddaughter, whom the Maks visited in Fort Lauderdale, FL. They missed getting to Orlando to see their nephew, who lives next door to Pat Brown Boyer and Jean. The Whiteman's have become the third '49er couple to have a place at John's Island, FL. Vidmer's 13-year-old granddaughter was Juvenile Queen of Mobile's Mardi Gras. The Cox's will be "empty nesters" come June when their oldest daughter, Molly, gets married. The Wares have their Brazilian missionary family (daughter Annie, husband David, and one and only grandchild Philip) home on furlough until July. Mimi Leonard is teaching music on a brand new piano as her old one was destroyed in a house fire. She sees all 5 of her children regularly. June Finney is back in art classes after those 2 years of helping the liability groups. She served on the committee which organized the 9th National Workshop on Jewish-Christian Relations. The Worcestersters spend winters in Sarasota, FL and summers and falls in northern MI, augmenting visits with their 3 children by keeping the telephone lines busy to Grosse Point, MI, Denver, CO and Chicago, IL. Kitty Belew's brood is scattered, with one daughter in NYC, 2 in DC, and the 2 boys in Richmond, VA.

Polly Plummer Mackie has bought a pad in NYC, thus limiting her travels to far-off places, but expanding her horizons in other ways. Marilyn Hopkins Bamborough and Jim enjoy retirement, having attended an Elderhostel sailing school week at Deer Island, ME and spent several months at Fort Myers, FL. Lindsay Coon Robinson had another grandson, born to daughter Amy. This, in a way, eased the loss of Lindsay's dear mother (aged 90) in March. Sue Corning Mann, writing hurriedly, in a sea of clothes, was getting off to FL in March. She and Hank will celebrate their 3rd wedding anniversary in May and have 9 children and 10 grandchildren between them. Sallie Legg DeMartine is busily painting in FL and has 2 married sons living there. The Slaterys visited the Talmans in Richmond, Margaret visited Polly in NYC and Polly returned Margaret's visit on her way to the Slatery's Hilton Head home for a mini-reunion with Ellen Ramsay Clark and Ken. John's Island, FL was graced concurrently by Patsy Davin Robinson, Stevie Stephens Webb, and your secretary at Bunny Brown's house as well as by Betsy Dershuck Gay at Libby Trueheart Harris and Hiter's place. We were all fine, tongues still in gear, and every one of your ears should have burned!

Neither the big six-oh nor traveling has deterred the '49ers from continuing to be "movers and shakers", involved and busy. Kay Edwards must be one of our busiest, overlooking the activities of her 8 children, serving on 13 boards, and being involved with 13 more support groups. Mary Fran Brown Ballard is practicing law solo, busier than ever, and with her good genes (her mother, Marie Brede Brown Zimmerman, SBC '24 is enjoying all activities at St. Anne's Mead in Southfield, MI) should continue to expand her practice. Charles Simmons and Midland, TX (in that order) really turn Larry Lawrence Simmons on to new and greater horizons with her overseeing Trinity School there. Liz Hancock Fritzsche is now Fritzsche CPA, with a resume ready to send out when she gets back from visiting children in NM and VA. Mary Virginia Grigsby Mallett, along with pursuing her masters' degree, has started a new position as executive director of the Mental Health Association of Hamilton County, IN. Preston Hodges Hill, between trips to Jamaica, FL and CA works half-time in Gene's consulting business. Dot Bottom Duffy has established a small private research library in Hampton, VA mostly Virginia history, and says that SBC researchers would be so welcome there. A happy and long-overdue card from Lucie Wood Saunders tells us that she is, and has been for these many years, a college professor, chairing the anthropology department at Lehman College, CUNY. Her husband is a physician, specializing in biological psychiatry. Carolyn Cannaday Evans writes that she has come out of the "pumpkin shell" and is working as full-time director of The Scots for Youth, a Governor's one-on-one volunteer program in her county, and marrying off her last daughter in April. Ann Holmes Bryan's photography keeps her busy, her latest exhibit being one of cats at the local animal shelter. Ann Bannard's new commission is carving sculptures for 6 niches as part of a church remodeling. Fritzie Duncombe Millard is a volunteer in the state OP-ED program, helping high-school drop-outs work for their GED's.

Sally Ayers Shroyer's first grandchild, Natalie, was born on Christmas Day. Ellen Clark and I have done our bit for grandsons this year. She had 2, one in Raleigh, NC and one in Dallas, TX. I had 3, one each in Indianapolis, Washington, DC, and Memphis, TN. Don't know what that will do for the enrollment at SBC, except make it happy, assuming we remain an all-girl school.

Marie Musgrove McCrone's husband, Richard, is recovering nicely from triple-bypass surgery, and they plan to sell their home and buy a condominium near everything. Marie urges you to send in your checks to the Annual Fund so our class will look good. A wonderfully welcome card arrived from Camille Moss Tebo, who needlessly, thought that her having MS might make the card difficult to read. She lost her husband, Watson, to a heart attack 6 years ago, but she is blessed with 3 children, "all married, with just one divorce, which seems par for the course these days". She has 3 grandsons and one granddaughter, and sends love to all. Betsy Brown Bayer is alive, well and happy. Her lack of communication over these past years has been due to being "took up" with the raising of 4 children, 3 girls and a boy, the youngest of whom is 21 years old. She and husband, Leo plan to have dinner this spring with Kay Veasey Goodwin and David, and those gad-about Bannards, who will be in Boston for their son's graduation from Harvard Law School. Anne Fiery Bryan and Dick had a visit with Patsy Robinson in Naples, FL. Peggy Quynn Maples wrote that Sam's latest retirement endeavor is being chairman of "Bring Back The Trolleys" to Frederick, MD, and she is finishing up her last year of nursery school teaching.

Peggy Cromwell Oliver and Austin are spending more time in their home in Queenstown, on the Eastern Shore of Maryland, trying to save their quiet, little peaceful creek, full of ducks, Canada geese, swans, herons, osprey, and muskrats, from developers. She and Judy Baldwin Waxter are still at it with their weekly singles tennis games. Judy, in her succinct piquantness, wrote that she might send me a picture of the Waxters taking skiing lessons from the Cox's in Vermont. She hasn't sent it yet, but I hope that it will appear for our reunion scrapbook.

And there it is again - Reunion, next year! For starters in commitments and incentives, Stevie said that Goodie Geer DiRaddo is (not might, wants to, will try to, etc.) coming and Fritzie wrote that Sally Searle Clarke is almost packed for the trip. As this is my last crack at you all before that happy time, a few remarks on the subject will follow. Please send back your next year's February card full of the preceding year's news, even though we will ALL be at the Reunion, telling all, and stealing my next September's thunder. We might miss some of somebody else's late-night discussions at the time, as we only have three days then. Shortly after you read this, you will receive a memo from me asking for material for the Class Scrapbook, but you may start, after reading this, to cull out pictures of you, your families, homes, pets, newest exercise machines, and recent classmate groups, should you have had this latter opportunity. In the spring you will receive a letter from our Class President, Freda, enclosing the great socio-historiographical questionnaire, to be filled out and returned to me in time for statistical compilation before the on-campus gathering. This year's question to think about is, "Excepting family, who has been the most unforgettable person you have met since 1949?" Bear in mind the previously projected matters of early morning dressing habits, free-spirited children and garbage emptying. There will also be a surprise one for '89, on which, of course, you will not be able to do much advance research. So get your thoughts together!

We are sure to have a grand turnout next spring if you are as great about putting your feet on the road to SBC as you have been about putting your pens to those cards, each of which has been a great pleasure for me.

Before I tell you about reunion, I would like to express the sympathy of our class to the family of Nancy Morison Cravens who died April 29, 1987. Also to Ginny Hudson Toone on the death of her husband, Russ, in January, 1988 and to Kitty Guerrant Fields on the death of her husband, Lou, in May, 1988. We were so happy that Ginny could be with us at reunion and our thoughts and prayers were with Kitty. We also extend our sympathy to Katzy Bailey Nager on the deaths of both her mother and father. They were ever present while we were at SBC and in many ways a part of our class. We shall miss them.

Thirty-four of us returned for our 35th reunion with 22 husbands in tow. It was a spectacular weekend in every way with beautiful weather and beautiful people. As we entered "our gates", and started up the road, the beauty of the campus was overwhelming. There have been many structural changes but Sweet Briar is as lovely as ever. We were all housed in Reid (unchanged after all these years) and decided to request a newer dorm for our 40th, preferably one with an elevator. Friday night was the class picnic held on the terrace in back of the Wailes Center - a time to renew friendships and introduce the husbands to one another. Saturday morning was the convocation where each class reported on its reunion gift via a skit. Accolades to Edie Norman Wombwell who composed our rap song, M.A. (Mellon Root) who supplied the bows for our hair, and Jane Perry Liles and Katzy Bailey Nager and their committee for raising $32,500 as our reunion gift to SBC. After the convocation, all classes were led by bagpipers to a lovely luncheon honoring the reunion classes. Saturday evening was a festive one with a cocktail buffet accompanied by marvelous music for listening and dancing. Sunday morning was a time of good-byes and promises to return in 5 years. Please plan to join us then.

It was wonderful to see Ann King Dietrich, Jane Collins Sjoborg, and Carol Exnicious Tucker who all returned for the very first time. Ann and Beau - looking forward to the arrival of their third grandchild. Their son, Trip, is a family practitioner in the Indian Health Service and he and his wife live in AZ. Their son, King and his wife and 2 children have just moved from San Diego to Virginia Beach where he will be operations officer on the USS Virginia, and their youngest son just graduated from Dickinson. Jane came east from Ather-ton, CA to visit her daughter in Boston and to attend reunion. Carol, her husband Bill and their son made reunion part of their trip north to visit friends. Others in attendance were: Flo Pye Apy and Chet who look exactly the same as they did when we graduated. Flo is very active on the local board of education and has recently been elected president of the regional high school board. Eleanor Johnson Ashby continues to love her position as Exec. Dir. at Leadership Jacksonville. She travels as often as possible, especially to England. She has two granddaughters born during the year to her 2 daughters. Her son, Linden, was Farah Fawcett's son in "Poor Little Rich Girl" and his wife, Susan Walters, played the lead in "Elvis and Me."

Sallie Gayle Beck and Doug McLaughlin are manufacturer representatives to the costume jewelry industry. Sallie's son, Rob, will be married in Sept. and will be living in Milwaukee and her daughter, Gayle, is a psychologist in Houston and has had her first book published. Patsy Phillips Brown and Carlyle live across the road from SBC. Carlyle has retired from the Post Office and is working their farm and Patsy is a guidance counselor in an elementary school. Kirk Tucker Clarkson and Jack welcomed their third grandchild last March. Before adding on to their house, they took a trip to Kenya and loved it. Kirk is on several environmental boards and interstate committees dealing with Chesapeake Bay cleanup and Jack is now Chief Judge of Norfolk's Circuit Court. Jeanne Duff teaches crafts in the art dept. at Princeton Day School. For many years she has been involved in a program of education in the performing and visual arts run by Lincoln Center Institute in NY. Sara Ironmonger Greer and Jack still live in the house where Sara grew up. She is an elder in the 1st Presbyterian Church in Norfolk and is active in 2 garden clubs. Their one daughter graduated from SBC in 1984. Their first grandchild, Elizabeth Kitchin Greer, was born May 11, '88.

Mary Stagg Hamblett and Mary Kimball Grier flew to reunion together from Conn. It was like old times to see Mary K. and Janie Dawson Mudwilder together again. By the way, Mary K. is our new class president. Mary S. was bubbling with news of her 3 children. John is at Wharton and living in Phila., Marion graduated from Trinity a year ago and has completed the training program at Cigna, and Brooks is a senior in high school and in the middle of college trips. Mary does secretarial work several days a week at the Dept. of Continuing Ed. during the school year and then retreats to RI for the summer. The joy of Janie's life is her 1½ year old granddaughter. She is a newly elected Town Councilperson and the pres. of the women of her church. Dale Hutter Harris and Ted are thoroughly involved in the government of VA. Dale has been involved in the judiciary as a judge and Ted was recently elected to the VA House of Delegates. They were enjoying their first year in 32 without a child at home. Their son, Tim, was in England on an English-Speaking Union Fellowship. Maggie Graves McClung and David's boys are back at the lumberyard and have built houses up the hill from theirs - a "McClung Mountain." They have a grand daughter, Julia, who visits often, and their daughter, Fran, who lives outside Balto., is expecting in Aug. Maggie and David have just built a new store in Salem. Katzy Bailey Nager and C.J. stopped by reunion before heading to Yale for their youngest son, Dwight's graduation. Their oldest son, Bailey, graduated from UCLA Law School in May 1987 and his wife, Elizabeth, graduated this past May. Their middle son, George, graduated from U of C Santa Barbara.

Nan O'Keeffe flew to NJ and drove to SBC with Bob and me so we could have many hours to reminisce. She is a delegate to the Texas State Republican Convention and actively working for George Bush. Isabel Grayson Parish and Hav flew to reunion in their plane. This year their P210 took them to Central America, the Bahamas, and Moab, as well as all over the US. The commercial biggies took them to Africa for 1 month in May, to Churchill, Manitoba to see the polar bears in October and to Antarctica in Dec-Jan. Their 8th grandchild is due in Nov. Sug Cantley Patton and Pat have two grandsons that like to visit in Montgomery. Their son is a stockbroker there. Sue does volunteer work in the church office and with the altar guild. Ginger Timmons Ludwick and David combined reunion with a stopover in Washington to visit their children who are working there. Dolly Wallace Hartman and Jack's oldest son, John, was married in June 1987 and both he and his wife work with handicapped adults. Dolly and her daughter, Elizabeth, who is in graduate school in architecture at Harvard, had a fascinating trip through the Yucatan Peninsula to see the Mayan ruins. Her son, Bill, is at Davidson and Mary is in high school. Dolly was one of the contributors to the Alumnae Art Exhibit at reunion. Her portraits of her daughter and of Jane Perry Liles were beautiful.

Anne Joyce Wyman and Joseph are doing major renovations at their home in Quogue on Long Island. Their travels during the year have taken them to Hong Kong to visit their daughter, Anneke, who was studying at the Chinese Univ. under the Yale program and then on to China. They also managed a week on St. Marteen with friends. Ginny Dunlap Shelton and Tom's middle son was married a year ago and lives in Boca Raton, their oldest son lives in Phila., and their youngest is attending National Outdoor Leadership School in Africa. M.A. Mellon Root and John can hardly wait for the birth of their first grandchild. M.A. is still working for Briar Patch Designs and is active in the Humane Society. Nan Locke Rosa and Frank are looking forward to their trip to Russia in July with the SBC group. Nan is still working for a travel agency so has an opportunity to take many trips. Ginnie Hudson Toone is still making anything and everything in stained glass. It was great to have her come all the way from Kansas City. Betty Bensen Winn and Dan also traveled quite a way to come to reunion from Texas. When not studying for her MBA, Betty enjoys her two grandchildren age 2-3. Dan's respite from work is his antique cars - Betty drew the line on an antique airplane.

What fun to see Eleanor Hirsch Baer again. She tries to go to Chicago as often as possible to see her grandchildren. Eddie Norman Wombwell and George are bursting their buttons over their first grandchild, Alice Chenoweth, born April 1st to their son, David and his wife, Amy. Their son, Van, is living in the San Francisco area and working for a computer company and Andy is a junior at Northwestern. Edie is still in the stamp business. Caroline Moody Roberts and Bill and Polly Sloan Shoemaker and Jim relived the good old days. I am hoping to catch up with Caroline when she visits her brother in NJ. Harriet Hodges Andrews arrived a little late but what fun to have her with us. She is recently divorced and working for a computer company in Statesville, NC. Joan Brophy Tyree was getting ready for her trip to China and Russia and her ride on the Siberian Express. Her oldest son, Tommy, recently became engaged, her son, Billy, is still with Brown Bros. Harriman in NYC, Johnny is 2nd Lt. in the army in Germany and David just graduated from Trinity Pawling and will be entering Manhattanville in the fall. Joan recently acquired space in an antique shop and is having a wonderful time with her new business. Cathy Munds Storek's son, Mark, was married on reunion weekend thus Cathy was unable to come. Life is still wonderful in Tucson and she is enjoying her grandson.

Our class is blessed with some outstanding artists. Along with Dolly, Tinka Cocke Tarver has been a professional for 30 years with time out for children. In June of 1989, she will be having a one person show at the McNay Art Museum in San Antonio. The Museum is also publishing a large catalogue with 100 pages of text taken from her journals. Two years ago, the San Antonio Museum of Art bought a large piece of her sculpture. Her family includes Clay who is graduating from Harvard, Banks, a law clerk for a Justice of the Texas Supreme Court and Catherine, an interior designer for architects in NY. Ann Saunders Miller graduated from the Memphis College of Art in 1976 and has had a one-person showing of her paintings and has exhibited in several group shows in the south. She teaches drawing for the Continuing Ed. Dept. of a community college. Gardening, tennis, and a 2 year old grandson are her favorite pastimes.

Can't believe we have reached the Retirement Stage of Life. Anne Elliot Caskie and Challen love being retired and living in Richmond near their daughter, Trudy, and her 2 little girls.

Bob and I saw Anne and Challen at the UVA Homecoming and retirement certainly agrees with them. Dickie Wellborn Hopper and David have gone north to NH for their retirement and are busy with family (now have 8 grandchildren) church, and visitors. Dickie is a volunteer in a hospice program. After 26 years of working for the Tulsa Public Schools, Ann Lackey retired and now is gardening, playing tennis, traveling and having a wonderful time. Gloria Rawls Askew and Hank have joined the Nat'l Seniors Golf Assoc. Last fall they attended a tournament in Phoenix and then went on to the Grand Canyon and Santa Fe. Susannah Mingus Cone is also retired and they are the proud grandparents of 2 boys and 3 girls all under 7. Margaret Johannessen Moisted and Gil are enjoying his semi-retirement as he can do business from home. They are eagerly awaiting the arrival of their first grandchild. Ann Vlerebome Sorenson retired early from Northfield Mt. Herman School and moved to GA where for the past year she has been helping refugees from El Salvador and Guatemala become legal immigrants into Canada. She also raises money for Nicaraguan amputees to get artificial legs.

Jane Yoe Duggan has a 1 1/2 yr old grandson compliments of Wendi Wood Thomas '81 who is married to a sr. resident in internal medicine and lives in Jacksonville. Jane's other daughter, Randi, is a paralegal when not traveling the world. Connie Werly Wakelee and Dave enjoyed their 35th wedding anniversary trip back to Quebec. Their second grandchild arrived in May. They love little 2 1/2-year-old Colin whose Mom is Ann, one of the twins. Holly, the other twin, and her husband moved to the Boston area from Denver and Jeff, Barb, and Karen live in CT so Connie and Dave still have their family nearby. Dave continues with his Ziebart business and Connie with the local handicraft center. Katty Turner Mears is still pres. of the Assoc. for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities and is also a senior warden of the church. She welcomed her third grandchild in Feb. and was also on a safari in Tanzania and Kenya. Nancy Goldie McTaggart performs grandmotherly duties so that her daughter Kate can go to work. The family had a lovely cruise along the Norwegian coast on a postal boat and then later a ski trip to Switzerland where even Nancy's 3 year old grandson donned skis. The big news in Jackie Lowe Young's life is their new villa at Sea Pines on Hilton Head. She is learning about decorating long distance and is still smiling. She would love to know if anyone in our class vacations on Hilton head - if so, let her know: 2721 Briarwood Pl. Bethlehem, PA 18017. Kim Green Stone would love to see classmates at Lake Tahoe. They have been developing a new horse ranch at the base of the Sierras and it really is her baby as John travels quite a bit. He will retire in July and then do some consulting work. Their daughter, Sara, is on a study exchange year at Univ. of NV-Reno and will return to SBC for her senior year. Their youngest daughter, Grace, is a freshman at Univ. of Ariz. and their oldest, Kim, is married and teaching art to gifted children in AZ. Their son, Thornton, is an aerospace consultant and Jay is doing landscape work.

Virginia Robb is still teaching after 33 years and is presently a master math teacher at The Madeira School. Unfortunately school duties prevented her from coming to reunion. She still maintains a home in MI where her nephews and niece live. Mary Abby Joyner Knox's daughter, Eugenia, graduated from Univ. of Ariz. reunion weekend so she was in Tucson instead of SBC. She is doing lots of volunteer work but her main hobby is duplicate bridge and she is presently sec. of the Tenn. bridge assn. Midge Chace Powell was so sorry to miss reunion because of a wedding conflict. Real estate is her business, no grandchildren yet. She enjoys aerobics, jogging and travel. Betty Behlen Stone also wishes she could have been with us. She is busy working, traveling and being a grandmother. Ann Leonard Hodges had a busy year with a new ranch operation, stocking a cattle herd, decorating a house, planning for crops, and harvesting pecans. To rest up they went to Tanzania and Kenya. Carolyn Tolbert Smith and John went to China last spring and also visited Margaret Long Parker in Austin. She spoke to Barbara Buxton Waugh in Mexico and Barbara sold the Shah's house there. Carolyn has two children - Sandy is a lawyer in Atlanta and has 2 children and Carol Ann lives in Newport News and has a baby girl. Kay Amsden still enjoys teaching at Univ. of NH although she is doing more administrative work and academic advising. Her two cats and Cairn Terrier really control her life. In GA, Janie Pieper Meredith's son, Chris, who lives in Savannah, is running for the U.S. Congress.

Bob and I took the plunge and bought a condo on Sanibel Is., FL. We love it but unfortunately can not spend as much time as we would like there. Let me know if anyone goes to Sanibel. Our other big news is the arrival of a granddaughter and grandson during the year. I've really enjoyed being Class Sec. these past 5 years and want to thank you for your support. Isabel Grayson Parish is the new Class Sec. and Ginnie Hudson Toone the new Fund Agent.

What a wonderful time, reading your cards, delighting in good news of trips, accomplishments and accomplished children and sharing memories of our fabulous reunion!

Elaine Newton Peters, docent at the Los Angeles Art Museum and husband Gregg (retired from TV production and enjoying art classes and golf), have had 2 recent trips: France in September and Hawaii in May. Son Mark Dickinson is working on Ph.D. in Astrophysics at Berkeley. Anne McGrath Lederer divides time between NYC and Warrenton, VA while daughter Sloane works in NYC. Son Andrew is finishing 1st year at Pomfret. Jane Best Wehland had a "wedding-full" year with her offspring - Charles in Dallas and Jane Lee in Charlottesville - and she managed a visit with Bari Baker Hart. Anne Melton Kimzey, visiting San Antonio, had a mini-reunion with Mollie Steves Zachary and Lucile Winerich Pipes. Daughter Anne is taking a masters in Folklore at UNC; daughter Rhoda is regional sales manager for an international translation company in Atlanta. Roberta Malone Henderson saw Dot Duncan Hodges "looking svelte and gorgeous and so wonderfully unchanged." Roberta has a small art consultant business and is busy with the Regional Contemporary Art Association. She and Ian love their summer house in Quebec and welcome all '57 travelers there! Diane Duffield Wood and Sandy added 2 more granddaughters to their list (a total of 4 in less than 2 years). Duffy, still at the bookstore, has "become involved with computers." Char Heuer De Serio and Fran had a lovely trip to the Tuscan Hills in June '87 and enjoyed a visit from Diane Duffield Wood in April '88. Susan Ragland Lewis still lives in Georgetown and works at the National Rehabilitation Hospital as Director of Corporate Relations. Susan has a year-old grandchild; her 2 daughters and daughter-in-law are expecting: by fall she will be 4 times a grandmother! She saw Mimi Chapin Plumley last fall; Mimi mentioned a pending trip to Israel. Lee Haskell Vest sends a mini-skirt report from Connecticut: "mini-skirts being worn around here would not have passed inspection for Bermuda Shorts in 1957"! Lee made a summer appearance as mother-of-the-groom when Graham married. Daughter Sallie is job hunting in Boston. Lee planned a summer visit to Stella Moore McClintock and your class secretary in Nantucket. There is much news "at home" and away from Jody Raines Brinkley, who is State Garden Week Chairman for the Garden Club of VA, serving a two-year-term. Daughter Derby was married in October; Art's youngest graduated from high school in June. In February Jody visited Marylew Cooper Redd and Lee in FL and later saw Flo Barclay Winston and Charlie. ALL are fine and happy. Marguerite McDaniel Wood had a wonderful winter trip to Little Dix Resort on Virgin Gorda, British Virgin Islands - loads of fun: snorkling, swimming, tennis and LOTS of desserts! Dorothy Duncan Hodges tells her version of the now-famous visit with Roberta Malone Henderson who is "still a breath of fresh air." Dot's art gallery has become a full-time "monster", running her life in chaotic fashion. She sends an SOS for a full-time keeper and will appreciate any hints on brain transplants! Jane Campbell Englert had a June trip to Puerto Rico and St. Thomas; in July she was a delegate to the National Education Assoc. Representative Assembly in New Orleans. Jane has a newly married son, Tom Butler and a granddaughter, a year old in March.

Our "retired" class secretary Margi Whitson Aude and Fritz have had 2 exciting family trips: a 30th anniversary celebration in the Bahamas with daughter Lucy and husband Vince; then to Ixtapa, Mexico where daughter Laurie joined them. Fritz won a prize as "toughest" basketball player - he'll soon be coaching their 2 granddaughters! Chips Chao Pai and David plan lots of golf and tennis for summer '88. Eldest son Ben is at Citicorp and engaged to a former Duke classmate. Second son Mike, a Cornell graduate, is a systems analyst with Arther Anderson. Chips sends news of Virginia Marks Paget, living in Dayton and a staff member at the Kettering Foundation, a "think-tank" on public policy. Mary Anne Van Dervoort Large and Bob, visiting SBC with two prospective students (daughters Elizabeth and Mary Kathryn), were impressed with the new Admissions Office. Also they had a grand tour of the Florence Elston Inn. Mary Ann is co-chairman of a fund raiser for the American Field Service Chapter at St. Catherine's School. Jackie Ambler Cusick and Ralph took spring trips to England and Bermuda with their sons. Jackie had a June exhibition of her watercolors. Ann Frasher Hudson and husband are very involved with the Kimbell and Modern Museums in Ft. Worth, the Whitney in NYC and the National Gallery in DC. The rest of the time they're in Aspen, involved with its small (but growing) museum. Jane Pinckney Hanahan and Billy had a most interesting, informative 3-week trip to South Africa. Son Bill married in Charleston in June. Joy Peebles Massie received a master's degree from U. of Richmond and is deeply involved with the Goochland Family Services Society.

Margery Scott Johnson and Earl went on the SBC trip to Australia and New Zealand in November '87; in June '88 they went to China for a 15-day business trip. Margery is very involved with the NC Symphony.

Nannette McBurney Crowds sends big wedding news - more like a MERGER! Son Warren, a Chicago attorney, is marrying Kathleen Hennessey, also a Chicago attorney. They met at law school: the U. of Chicago. Mary Webb Miller sent terrific reunion pictures along with news: a big Texas wedding in September '87 for daughter Katherine, now living in DC where Mary's son Tommy lives. Mary is now in charge of a Collie puppy! Sandra Stingily Simpson sees Roberta Malone Henderson often and saw Ruth Ellen Green Calhoun in NYC in October. Sandra and Jim's son Evans graduated from Columbia Graduate School of Architecture; son Karl is at Rhodes College in Memphis.

Jane Rather Thiebaud moved to Bangor, Maine after 25 years in Geneva, Switzerland. She is a graduate student at the U. of Maine in the area of "Intercultural Communication & Understanding." As an independent cultural consultant she divides her time between Bangor (80%) and Geneva (20%), organizing seminars on relocation strategies, home and office organization and the "Living Foods Lifestyle" which she learned at Boston's Wigmore Foundation. She remains an active feminist and long distance walker and would love to hear from any and all of SBC '57! Ann and Jim Rawley, the STARS of reunion, have been traveling, traveling. They went to Russia in summer '87 - followed by a trip halfway around the world. Next trip was to Italy and England. Nothing left except the Poles! Carroll Weitzel Rivers and Buist spend summers in High Hampton and are on an annual-visit basis to England where married daughter Reinette lives. Carroll still paints and rides as much as ever.

Anne Gwinn Fox sent wedding news: daughter Sarah married in June '87 on Anne and Jay's 30th anniversary! Son John III married in April '88. Ted, a sophomore at W&L, is on the golf team; Andrew is a senior at The Collegiate School, Richmond where Anne is full-time librarian. Jay enjoys the challenge of his position in sales with The Life Insurance Co. of VA. Sallie Lane Metcalfe has retired from her busy life in a large department store and hopes to see her SB bulbs bloom on her balcony! Both daughters live in Europe. Aileen Laing wrote of 2 exciting trips - 1 to Denver to give a lecture for a "College for a Day" program where she hoped to see Enid Slack. The 2nd trip: London for a week to see the major exhibition on English Gothic and "The Age of Chivalry." December 7 was arrival day for #2 grandson for Babs Falge Openshaw and Jim. Their Annapolis house is rented for the legislature season and their new giant driveway is complete - now being known as little Patuxent Parkway! Plans for an addition to the beach house will keep everyone busy; all children live in the immediate area except for Mark in CA. Suzy Neblett Stevens has joined the SBC Board of Friends of Art. Monica Ballard Porter now lives in Woodstock, Vermont. In the Fall '87 edition of the NC Museum of History ASSOCIATES is a darling picture of Flo Barclay Winston and Charlie and an equally darling picture of Charlie by himself!

Anne Wilson Rowe's daughter Jeanette '79 welcomed daughter Mary Virginia June 22. Ruth Ellen Green Calhoun is happy that her sister Ethel '55 is back in Natchez. Oldest daughter Ruthie married last summer; daughter Ellen is at Colorado College, son Bo in last year med school. Nancy Godwin Baldwin, our famous editor of the Alumnae Magazine, sent me a copy of a letter from Emily Stenhouse Richardson written in September '87: "Dear Nancy... A few things happened that made it hard to get to reunion. I got married to John Richardson in May at Friends Meeting of Washington and shortly after that we left for a trip to Paris and Sri Lanka. John is a professor here (DC) at American U. in the School of International Service and will be teaching a graduate course at the U. of Colombo next spring, so we will be going back to Sri Lanka in late December for a year... I am going to research a biography on the first woman prime minister in the world, a Sri Lankan, Mrs. Sirimayo Bandaranaike, who is still living and very active in her party... I received my doctorate in history and Southern literature... My aim is to write biographies about women... I hope to get to Sweet Briar and I do keep up with classmates: saw Roberta Henderson at my sister's in Louisville, had lunch with Carolyn Fleming and talked with K.D. Bowles before reunion...."

Jeremy and I have been busy visiting our far-flung families. In February we were in England for his sister's wedding; and every few months we visit my family in VA. At home we are hard at work for the Pittsburgh Symphony. At the moment we are "seriously looking at boats" and will be afloat somewhere in the near future! I hope to hear from EVERYONE for next year's column!

Since April is my most stressful business month, my daily trips to the mail box to see whose cards had arrived provided a welcome relief from work!

Jill Babson Carter had a wild June '87 with 2 graduations (Anna from Princeton Theological Seminary, Christopher, magna cum laude from Dartmouth) and a wedding all within 10 days! Anna and new husband David then moved to Minneapolis to accept her call to a Presbyterian Church. Christopher writes for a Haverhill, MA newspaper and Lissy is a Dartmouth freshman. Jill writes for Americana Magazine and the New England Gardener and also studies poetry.

If Jill can't supply enough information on weddings, try Babs Childrey Fowler—she and Cal had 2 in 32 days. Daughter Quincey (23), a JMU graduate, married in October; Woody finished UVA Law in May and married in November. Both couples live in Richmond; Woody is with Browder Russell, and Quincey a teacher's aide at St. Catherine's School. Babs and Cal now plan some empty-nest vacationing at Smith Mountain Lake where they've bought a condo.

Lou Chapman Hoffman, in New Orleans, serves as co-editor of the Historic New Orleans Collection Museum's newsletter. Don practices law. Son Donald is a freshman at Amherst, Richard a junior at Newman School.

Lynne Nalley Coates teaches jr. high students with learning disabilities in the VA Beach area and is trying to carve out a writing career. She has been published in Guide Posts and in her local paper. Husband Glynn is a psychology prof. at ODU. Chris (25), married and finishing his M.A., has been accepted at NYU's Film School. Thomas (22), married, owns his own home improvements business, and has a 14-month-old daughter. Collyn (19) attends college and works for his brother.

Judy Greer Schulz is enjoying her very busy year as president of the SBC Alumnae Association. She asks that we send along any ideas or suggestions regarding SBC. She and Stephen will have 2 graduations to attend this spring: Garth's from W&L and Cecily's from UVA Law.

Susanne Seaman Berry and Fritz built their dream home outside Charlottesville. The winding road to it has required investment in a 4x4 truck with big tires and a blade for winter snows. Fritz is active on the speakers' circuit, with Paris and Australia being this year's major destinations. In addition to traveling with Fritz, Susanne is occupied with her own business, and tennis.

Sally Hamilton Staub and Dick enjoy having son Richard and his wife in Charlotte. Daughter Dabney got her degree in Architecture from NC State in May. The Staubs had a wonderful September trip to the Greek Isles and Turkey; Sally says that Ephesus is "like walking in Paul's footsteps."

Simone Aubry continues her fascinating job as Joan Kennedy's personal secretary. Vacation time was limited, but she managed several trips to Martha's Vineyard with Bess Smith Flynn '58. She also enjoyed a Christmas visit from Patti Anderson Warren and family.

Susie Pritchard Pace's 4 kids are home "a lot"—especially the ones who have supposedly grown up. Her teenager who lives at home is there the least! She looked forward to spring and lots of tennis.

Faith Bullis Sebring's daughter Heather graduated from Villanova in May, and Clay is a sophomore at Ariz. State U. Wayne and Stu are senior and junior at Bullis Academy—they helped Bullis win its 4th National Prep Wrestling Championship. Faith and her sister Starr ('60) look forward to taking the July SBC trip to Moscow.

Martha Ann Chandler Romoser Oakton, VA, is still teaching children's ballet and is into endurance horseback riding on her "fiesty little Arabian." She took 2nd place in a spring 1-day, 100-mile ride. Susie Decker Keith, husband Sid and 2 daughters visited in March.

For Winifred Storey Davis and Tred, who stay busy with work and volunteer activities on 2 school boards, life "hums along with their sons moving in and out." Frank works for the state Democratic Party, will enter Emory Law School in the fall. Frederick, their entrepreneur, has ice cream stores in Atlanta and Athens; Gordon is waiting for college admissions letters.

Susan Robinson Syquia dashed off a note from Binghamton, NY as she was leaving for a Caribbean cruise. Daughter Lorraine, who lives and works in London, is engaged to marry a young man from Finland next spring. Jennifer is a sophomore at Boston U.

Alicia Laing Salisbury and John plan a spring drive through GA, the Carolinas and VA (they hope to include SBC) before she spends the summer campaigning for a 2nd term in the KS Senate. Margaret graduates from KU Business School in May; son John finished there last year.

Molly Owens Parkinson hosted a September luncheon for Catherine Caldwell Cabiness, Caroline Birdsall Sory, Bee Thayer Newman, Celia Williams Dunn, and Jeanne Bounds Hamilton. The occasion celebrated Catherine's being in NYC to participate in an outdoor art show.

Mary MacKenzie Shaw is in Simsbury, CT where she and husband Jim work at CIGNA. Daughter Lisa is at SBC; James III is at Carnegie-Mellon School of Architecture; Ian graduates from high school this year.

Judy Rohrer Schultz lives in Fairview, PA. Remarried, she has gone back to school for an M.A. in Counseling at Gannon Univ. Twin sons are juniors—1 at U. of Pittsburgh, 1 at U. of SC. Third son will enter Duke.

Nancy Coppedge Lynn with 3 partners opened "The Country French Collection," a specialty shop for antiques, linens, custom painted pieces and earthenware, which received a write-up by House Beautiful in Oct. '87. Husband Jerry collects old cars (Hudsons). Barbara (24) is an assistant manager at Talbot's doing merchandizing, and Worth (25) works in commercial real estate.

Anne Worboys Buske's daughter Dana (15) placed 1st in the country in a French Competition, and Rachel (10) is in the 4th year of soccer and enjoys playing drums.

Bamby Iliff approaches her 10th anniversary as a bus driver in Denver, CO. She plans to explore new possibilities for '89.

The SBC Alumnae Office sent notice of Patti Birge Tyson's election (unanimous!) by the US Postal Rate Commission to a 1-year term as Vice Chairman. Patti was appointed to the Commission in '85 by President Reagan. A card from Patti had additional news to report—in December she married Dr. Bruce Spivey, a San Francisco ophthalmologist, hospital executive and Executive Vice President of the American Academy of Ophthalmology. She says that "maintaining this San Francisco-Washington connection was a little tricky during the deliberations on the postal rate increase (which you may deplore as bringing you the 25-cent stamp), but we now have the hang of it." She reports attending a lovely luncheon given for SBC President Nenah Fry by Rue Wallace Judd and Patti Powell Pusey '60.

Suzanne Carr Fitzgerald says that Yuma, AZ, is mild compared to living in Jamaica and Australia. She was in Tennessee during October to help her granddaughter celebrate her 1st birthday.

Mary Hunter Kennedy Daly in Charlotte, NC continues to enjoy her private practice of psychotherapy. Daughter Anna (20) returned to UNC-Chapel Hill after a year in France. Newell (17) plans to attend Hampden Sydney next fall.

Sara Finnegan Lycett is incredibly busy in the international scientific and medical publishing business. She has joint ventures with companies in Australia and Hong Kong. Their London office just landed a major new agency account which has necessitated doubling staff and office space. In spite of this she finds time to serve SBC on the Board of Overseers.

Annie Cone reports her kids all grown. Her 2nd daughter married in January. With the nest empty, Annie went back to school at UNC to study journalism and photojournalism.

Willoughby Applegate Ansell still "runs amok" in cosmopolitan Waxhall, NC where she attended the November grand opening of its first supermarket! Waxhall even has a restaurant now. She sees Jana Staley Fitzgerald and Bob and Mollie McDonald Brasfield ('60) and John. Molly, John and the Anselms are planning a trip to the Falkland Islands. Willoughby also heard from Lynn Adams Clark, who had the interesting task last summer of arranging a London wedding for daughter Allison '81 from Virginia Beach.

Polly Chapman Herring writes that all is well in Houston. Fred is happily back in the banking business, and she still does some decorating. Lucy edits at Doubleday in NYC, Fred, Jr. works at Financial Futures in Chicago, and Hillary graduates from St. John's in Houston this spring.

Fran Brackenridge Neuman is busy as executive director of a Pasadena community project called Day One which mobilizes every group imaginable, private and public, religious and secular to help combat drug abuse. They have just been funded by the Kaiser Foundation for 3 years. Rich is working on his doctorate in Educational Management. Fran "rounds out" her life with the Diggers Garden Club, the Humane Society Board, and exercising her Rottweilers.

Ann Hammond Dure and Leon are building a house in Athens, GA, "changing one empty nest for a bunch of twigs." Son Beau (17) was made a sophomore at Duke at Christmas. Ann says that Duke's curriculum is so divergent and the grades so average that it compares with her tour at SBC. One stepson is in railroad management; the other is a pediatric neurology resident in Houston. Stepdaughter Jane '82 is copy editor at European Travel and Life.

Maria Garnett Hood has 4 in college: Courtney a freshman at Ferrum and a cheerleader; Mike and David are freshman and grad business school student at UVA where both are pole vaulters; Will is a grad student at Wm & Mary where he's played for their tennis team. He will turn pro this summer, then try for med school when he "breaks a leg." Maria is still Coordinator of the Gifted at Northampton, and she and husband continue to operate Camp Greenbriar for Boys summers. She sees Elinor Scherr Mosher yearly at Greenbriar for their August family camp.

Sally Mathiasen Prince reports the opening of her 9th "Lemon Twist" boutique, all of which are in MD and VA. Son Teddy graduates from Yale in May; her daughter is also there in grad school. Younger son is a junior at Lawrenceville. The Princes have just bought a condo at Ponte Vedra, FL which they are always happy to rent.

Anne Gregg McIver writes that life in Brooklyn in a house filled with teenagers defies description but that she and Bruce keep laughing since it is usually so predictably funny. Their 5 children are Elizabeth (21) at NYU, Kathryn (18), Matthew (16), Melanie (15), and Molly (10). Ann, Assistant Deputy Commissioner at NYC Human Resources Adminis., runs the Medicaid Home Care Program which manages home care for 40,000 poor New Yorkers. Bruce is President of the Long Island Railroad.

Molly Haskell and husband Andrew Sarris, film critic of the Village Voice, were chosen to kick off the annual Lorain County Community College's 1987 International Film Festival with a joint review of the opening film, "A Room with a View." Molly, a film critic for Vogue Magazine, also writes articles on film, theatre, literature and the women's movement and has been published frequently in such magazines as Esquire and Ms. among others.

Susan Cone Scott reports a new career as a real estate agent in Charlottesville, specializing in commercial and country properties. She has been "blessed with referrals from Hollywood and NYC."

The Reverend Dr. Nancy H. Bloomer was ordained a priest in the Episcopal Church in December '87 and is Vicar of 2 parishes in northern VT. Husband John Vogelburg oversees adult education for the Episcopal church. Daughter Sarah is 8.

Ruth Jones Bassett's daughter Margaret is at U. of Richmond. Betsy is Director of Finance with Health Care Careers in Alexandria. Hunter will be a senior at Ferrum College, and 4th daughter Leigh is a freshman at Randolph-Macon in Ashland, VA. Son Chad (7) is a 1st grader into soccer and gymnastics. The Bassetts spend free time at their house at Smith Mountain Lake.

Ginger Lutz Stephen is planning to remove her bumper sticker which reads "my daughter and my money are at SBC" when daughter Elizabeth Belser graduates in May.

Robin Wawro Bataillon, in Caen, France since 1965, has 2 sons: Remy (20) is in 2nd year med school, Marc (21) is in business school and leaves in April for a 4-month training program at a NYC bank. Robin teaches English as a foreign language at the Chamber of Commerce, does individual training for businessmen, and is court translator for the appeals court in her region of Normandy. She and husband have taken up golf. Thanks to the Alum Magazine, she located Dominique Lathrop Rust last year in Paris.

Diane Stevens Creedon is completing 3 fascinating years in Tokyo, working at the Linguarama Executive Language Schools which were founded by Jane Garst Lewis's husband Richard and which now boast about 40 schools in 10 countries. When she returns to the US, she hopes to locate in the Boston area.

Willia Fales Eckerberg has loved being in Bonn, West Germany for 5 years. When she wrote, she had 10 in the house for Easter, and was living in fear that the annual "hosswasser" (spring flooding) would send the Cologne River to a higher level in their basement, thereby reaching the furnace and cutting off their hot water supply! Willia raises money for AMREF and the East African Flying Doctors. Willia's daughter Alice (19) had just returned from a week in East Germany, which she found to be a depressing experience. John (20) studies law at Lund U. in Sweden; Christopher (17) finishes school in June, will probably take a year off, then complete his military service before further studies.

Mary Denny Scott Wray and Michael left Dallas in May '87 for 3 weeks in China and Japan; June to Dec. was spent at Fisher's Island; and in Jan. they went to South America. Now they are busy settling in Richmond. Michael consults and travels frequently to NYC but plans to be in Richmond more. Son Bagley is at Bank of New York; Scott will graduate from UVA in May; Jim is a sophomore at Rollins; Michael's children are in NYC, Boston and Portland, ME.

Life for me continues at whirlwind pace and I try to juggle the demands of home, children, husband, and law office. Alice (17) is a high school junior at St. Mary's in Raleigh, and Jay (15) is a freshman at Collegiate in Richmond. John and I enjoyed being with Celia Williams Dunn, Larry, their daughter Celia and our daughter Alice for parents' weekend at St. Mary's in Raleigh. Celia graduates from St. Mary's in May and has been accepted at the U of CO. Her brother Lawrence is at U of GA. Last summer I enjoyed a short visit from R.B. Burks Emery and son who were on their way down to Pawley's Island, SC. R.B. is at W&L this year in her 1st year of law school.

Anyone wishing to make a contribution to Sweet Briar in memory of Marilyn Dreesman Chuang can send it to the Alumnae Memorial Scholarship Fund.

Thanks for such a great response. I look forward to next year's post cards.

Linda Schwaab Hodges still lives on a farm with husband Tim, a lawyer, 3 children - Marcus (19), a freshman at Davidson, Rebecca (16), and Samantha (14), and 3 dogs, 2 cats, ducks, geese, and a herd of cows. As if that doesn't keep her busy she teaches nursery school, is a church elder, sings in the choir and attends aerobics class.

When not preparing tax returns Mary K. Lee McDonald is with her family on the golf course. They will test their strokes while touring Scotland this summer. The college search begins for son John III, who was the Senior Patrol leader for one of the VA-NC Troops at the World Boy Scout Jamboree in Australia last winter.

In Annadale, VA Brooke Patterson Mahlstadt works and plays at Talbots Sales Store; husband Paul retired from the Navy after 21 1/2 years in February. He enjoys his new career with a Chicago-based telecommunications company, Interand. Son Doug (16) will board at St. James next year; Andrew (12) enters 7th grade.

Connie Triplett Barker retired from the practice of law "to be a full time wife and mother - having discovered the hard way that even a woman of the 80's can't have it all in one lifetime." Husband has a busy medical practice. Daughter Mary is 16; son Roger is a 3rd grader. They enjoyed a fabulous fall trip to China.

Archie and Jean Inge Cox's permanent address changed in April. Archie resigned from London's Morgan Stanley and Co. after 23 years. They plan to travel and spend time in their SC beach house before starting a new career in London or the States.

Alice Mighell Foster is still happily settled in Winston-Salem, NC after more than 20 years! Son Hails will be a sophomore at UNC and daughter Ashley a high school junior. Alice is busy with volunteer activities and a part-time editing job at church.

Bunny Sutton Healy says "Life with our 3 and 4-year-olds keeps us happy, enriched and exhausted!" Saralyn McAfee Smith's Laura (5) and Robbie (4) will be in kindergarten and preschool next fall. She is a busy homemaker but finds time to teach Bible study class at church and has traveled to Boston, GA and NC for family celebrations.

Since her children, Caroline and Christopher, are a junior and freshman at W&L, Mary Kay Pederson Kyger visits VA often. Last summer they moved to Lufkin, TX, where her husband, Ross, opened a regional cardiovascular center.

Cozy Cole Pelzer will be visiting VA this fall: her sons, Felix (16) and Arthur (14) will be at Woodbury Forest. She is busy in Charleston with her interior design business.

From Birmingham, Bonnie Hulse Young writes that her children also attend school in VA - Cobby (17) at St. Catherine's and Frank (15) at Episcopal. She now drives a pick-up truck in order to manage Young Properties, an apartment rental and development business.

Sally McCrady Hubbard has a new job. Still at Rice University, she changed from a science to an English journal. She is assistant editor of Studies in English Literature. She also sings with the Houston Oratorio Society.

In Charlottesville Mibs Sebring Raney is starting the college search with son Bev, a senior. In June she and Bev Sr. will visit France, where daughter Mibs is enjoying junior year abroad on Davidson's plan in Montpellier.

Still in Paris on a barge at the Pont Neuf, Bonnie McClure has gone back to work... for an agency that specializes in big events like the Americas Cup."

Everything is great with Jane Merkle Borden and family in Denver. She is the Travel and Convention representative for the marketing department at the shops at Tabor Center. Older son Mercer is a freshman at Whittier College, CA and son Arrol is a high school junior.

Blair Both received a Master's of Divinity from Trinity Episcopal School in Ambridge, PA in May '87 and was ordained a deacon by the Bishop of NC in July. She is now an assistant rector at St. Michaels, a large parish in Raleigh and will be ordained a priest this fall. Blair had the honor to lead the Episcopal Churchwomen's annual worship retreat in February.

All is well with Kathleen Watson Taylor in Washington, NC. Son Carney heads to VMI next fall, daughter Anne will be in the 9th grade and Selden in 5th. She is busy with a Bible Teaching Training course.

New careers and a new city have excited Genie Dickey Caldwell and husband Peter. She is the Regional Data Base Specialist for IBM's Commercial Systems Services in San Francisco; Peter is studying to be a chef at the California Culinary Academy. Genie has seen Penn Willetts Mullin '66, Letitia Saunders Spratley '66 and Kay Knopf Kaplan (who is singing professionally) at SBC functions.

In July '87 Libba Hanger Luther had lunch with Aline Rex McEvoy and Elvira MacMillan Tate while in Atlanta for the 45th wedding anniversary of her parents (Sudie Clark Hanger '45). Libba and Steve begin the college search for daughter Christina this year. Atlanta seems to be the place for reunions. Elvira wrote she'd seen Carol Dudley, who teaches children with learning difficulties. The Tates are fine: Minnie enjoys Connecticut College, Elvira is waiting to hear from colleges, 6' Clark is an 8th-grade basketball player and Edward (11) is learning to fly.

Even after a visit to Hawaii, Traylor Rucker still enjoys New Orleans and is a determined singles tennis player. She sent news of Alison Flynn Ringdal and family in Norway. Alison is a librarian at a large chemical company. Husband Frode and sons, 13 and 11, are active, and she has taken up "sailsurfing"!

In NYC, Wiggie McGregor Leon is a buyer/manager for Loewe International Boutique. She also teaches "Fashion Buying and Merchandizing" at the Fashion Institute of Technology. Daughter Olivia is in the 6th grade at Chapin.

Also in NYC, Magda Salvesen is expanding her lecture course on British painting and will teach at the New School and Cooper Union next fall. She left her job as administrator for Architects/Designers/Planners for Social Responsibility in order to accompany artist husband John Schueler to Scotland, where they will spend 4 months in his studio in the N.W.

Congratulations are due Neill Myers Ponzer, a Manhattan resident, selected by the YWCA of NYC to join their Academy of Women Achievers for 1987. She is senior vice president, management supervisor for SSC&B:Lintas USA and joins fewer than 40 women from the field of advertising in the Academy. Neill manages national advertising of over $40 million for Chesebrough-Ponds Inc.

Remarried in March '87 to William D. Eatwell, Sallie Mullins Thompson has retained that name. Bill is a design engineer in oil well safety products for Camco. Sallie is a systems engineer with IBM in Houston, specializing in banking products. Daughter Kathryn (13) is in 7th grade at Kinkaid.

Chris Kilcullen Thurlow has been busy with volunteer work and renovating their beach house in Old Greenwich, CT. Daughter Katie was accepted early admission at Princeton; son Michael (15) is a high school sophomore. She, Steve and the kids had some great trips: cruising up the Amazon and "comfort" camping in MT and WY. Chris will tour English country gardens in July.

In February Babette Fraser Warren won a Creative Artist Program Award from the Cultural Arts Council of Houston for a piece of fiction.

Susan Strong McDonald had "a wonderful painting exhibition at Soho Gallery, NYC last fall" and plans a small show in London next fall.

Mona Thornhill Armistead's eldest son, Ashley, is at Duke. Wade enters senior year and Clay (3rd grade) involves her in Little League games and cub scouts. Mona just completed a term as president of the Board of The Peninsula Center for the Blind.

As a Workplace Services Coordinator for the Red Cross, Laura Haskell Phinizy has a new project - AIDS education. Daughter Laura will be a senior at Princeton; Louise is waiting to hear from colleges; Marion will be a high school sophomore.

After 1 1/2 years Sandy and Dryden Childs Murck feel settled in NJ. Besides working on their 200-year-old farm house, Dryden works at Laura Ashley in a nearby mall. She enjoys aerobic dancing, embroidery and occasional community theater, loves being near NYC.

Dabney Williams McCoy bought out her partner and runs a computer mailing label business, The Last Word, out of her home. Son Tim enjoyed freshman year at UNC. Chris is a junior at St. Christopher's, Catherine is in 4th grade at St. Catherine's. Dabney saw Belle Williams Smith at a spring Garden Club of VA meeting in Williamsburg.

The Hydes are doing well. We adjusted to having our son, Mike, off at Williams College last fall. We now start the college process for daughter Alix! Katie (14) will be a high school freshman. I try to keep young teaching preschool.

Let's keep aging gracefully...until our next SBC reunion!

Esther Michel Lyons's husband Rich launched a new computer software firm in January '87, which is going well. Daughter Michele starts kindergarten next fall. Lyn Oakes Miller and family returned to Pacific Palisades, CA after spending a year in NYC. They all enjoyed NYC except the dog, but are glad to be home. Nancy Crawford Bent left midwifery due to rising malpractice insurance, and other problems within the medical profession. She and Peter are both working on career changes - their mid-life crisis as she said. Adele (8) and Charles (4) thrive and are more fun as they get older.

Vallerey Vandegrift Stylianoudis enclosed pictures of 2 exciting events Nicholas (14) was photographed meeting Prince Charles on His Highness' visit to Pittsburgh and Serina (17) met Mrs. Reagan at the White House. Last summer Steve and Vallerey vacationed in the Canary Islands and Madrid, Spain. Barbara Hastings Carne got her postcard in on tax day. The new tax law was quite a challenge for their office, but they survived Sue Scanlan and husband Jared celebrated her 40th with a gala 2 weeks in Ireland, including a weekend at Ashford Castle. She found pages of Scanlans and O'Scanlans in the County Cork phonebook. Jared promises a trip to Venice for her 41st: Sue thinks "old age" is worth it. She was elected president of the neighborhood board and is responsible for parking, pets and parties.

Scanlan reported on Melissa Griffith Manning, a successful magazine writer and prize winning photographer for a Gloucester, VA paper. Her family is moving to an Amish farm in Erie, PA. Paula Dickey Paddison also had a move to report, her 7th home in 9 years. She and husband Richard will take his son to visit East Coast colleges this summer.

Speaking of colleges, the class of '69 will have its 1st alumna daughter this fall. Frere Murchison Gornto's daughter was accepted Early Decision for the Class of '92. The family is exchanging homes with cousins in London for 2 weeks this summer for a family fling before children leave for school. Dean enjoys his new job in commercial office leasing and development.

Bryan Alphin Bente reports Paul has begun his own company to design chemical instruments and will probably be competing with Hewlett Packard, where Bryan works. Ricky (5) and Katharine (2) keep Bryan involved with child care programs, and she has branched out to become involved in senior care programs. Keithly Rose Miller's husband Dwight, began a natural resources company so they get to stay in St. Louis. Keithly's interior design business booms. Look for her in House Beautiful soon in an article on antique and flea market shopping. They love the midwest and are off to the Grand Canyon and Santa Fe in July.

Cathy Hall Stopher spends much time driving Marshall (12) and Charles (9) to play practice, basketball and tennis. Cathy raises funds for the Kentucky Opera with the Mercedes Raffle and an antique show and sale at her children's school in Louisville, KY. Suzanne Woolsey Deanen and Bill and 2 boys have been in New Canaan, CT for 11 years. Bill works for Morgan Stanley in NYC; Susie is involved with her children's elementary school. She is a school coordinator for New Canaan CARES, a drug and alcohol information and referral center. Exciting news came from Peggy Davis Molander in Jacksonville - she and husband adopted a baby boy, Andrew, last fall. She has discovered that there is not much time for anything else.

Sweet Briar's Amaryllis Project and Junior League take up Kim Johnson-Smith's time. Son Jamie (7) enjoys soccer, baseball, tiger cubs, and swimming and Adam (4) wants a horse. The family went to the Alamo for spring break. Kim inherited the Sweet Briar Amaryllis Project from Dianne Cassidy Lambert who has a baby boy, Taylor, born July '87. Her other son is in 4th grade. Diane still works at NASA as a legislative affairs specialist and has begun work on a doctorate in American politics at Georgetown U. David works with the NY Stock Exchange, which last year hosted a seminar in Beijing, which David ran. Dianne was invited to go - she reports it was a once-in-a-lifetime experience.

Anne Green Gilbert continues as Director of the Creative Dance Center in Seattle and its performing company of children, Kaleidoscope. They had a successful performance at Wolf Trap in fall '86; the company currently tours the Northwest. Her 2 oldest children are members of the company; the youngest, Griffith, and husband David are supportive observers.

Stephanie Beaudouin Piper enjoys her work as Features and Arts writer for the Knoxville Journal. Last year she covered the Pope's visit to SC. Husband George, a partner with Whittle Communications, is an avid fisherman. Oldest son Nick is a sophomore at UT and recently appeared as Peter in The Diary of Anne Frank. Two other sons are students at the Webb School.

Jan Holt reports from Boulder on some wonderful trips to Mexico, Africa, Belize and the Virgin Islands. When not traveling she enjoys volunteer work with environmental groups, the Democratic party, sports and painting. Jan Huguenin Assmus and Gert will take Marion (13) and Julie (10) to Germany and Austria this summer. Marion gets to stay a bit longer to work on her German with a family they know.

Another classmate with a daughter looking at SBC is Anne Richards Camden. They enjoy the small town life in the NC mountains. Anne contemplates a move into the work force. Both younger children enjoy soccer. Best wishes to Kay Hutton on her marriage last fall to Dick Barry, a Nashville tax attorney. Kay works for Coldwell Banker, selling and leasing downtown office buildings. Elizabeth Lewis formed a medical partnership with 5 other psychiatrists and interviewed for nursery school all in the same year. The psychiatric group is involved in various kinds of therapy, and the nursery school is for Matthew, 3 in June. Elizabeth and David spent several weeks exploring Mayan ruin sites in Central America. Wedding bells will ring for Cynthia Hays in October. She will marry Dr. Bob Finley, president of Christian Aid Mission in Charlottesville. She would love to have classmates attend. Please let her know if you want to come.

Mary Mahan Marco's time is filled with 3 little boys' activities, teaching, sports, housework and homework. The family plans a return trip to RI this summer to continue searching for pirate's treasure. From LaJolla Anne Rhett Taylor Merrill wrote that they were awaiting Tony's orders to see where they would be this fall and recovering from a month of chicken pox. They had a wonderful January trip to Hawaii. Avis Brown Yount has a future meeting in LaJolla so maybe Avis and Anne Rhett can get together. Avis wrote from Augusta during Masters week. Her dermatology practice keeps her busy 4 1/2 days a week. Two daughters take up her time. Like many other mothers, Ginny Stanford Perdue finds herself in the car a lot. She tries to balance school, church and all "extra activities." She is in charge of the "fun and fund raising" event at her children's school in Nashville. Sally Boucher Hovermale lives in Winchester, VA with husband and 2 teenage sons. She completed a Masters in Elem. Ed., teaches 4th grade and serves as admissions director for a small private school.

Julie Petrie Harrison lives in Suffolk, England, and would love to hear from or see anyone traveling in her area. Another classmate living in England is Katinka Kibbee Paterson in Reading. She works in the University Library but is on maternity leave, expecting June 1. Husband Graham works at Digital. Daughter Katherine is 4. They plan a September marathon trip back to the USA and hope to travel to several cities to see some SBC friends. Last year's trip sounded a bit more peaceful - 2 weeks on a boat traveling the French canals of Burgundy. Another European classmate is Sally Dahl Lecomte in France. Husband Jean-Francois manages a chain of 65 clothing stores. Their 2 boys are in primary school. They plan a summer trip to Italy.

AtLee Walker commutes to D.C. every day from Baltimore to attend graduate courses at Gallaudet University (the deaf school in the news), where she is working on an MA in Linguistics. Barbara Duffield Erskine has a combined family with 2 7-year-olds and 2 10-year-olds, so keeping schedules for riding, little league, soccer, swimming, etc. is a full job. Barb does community work involving local horse shows and environmental concerns. David travels internationally for Scott Paper; sometimes Barb goes along, though the logistics make her wonder if it's worth it!

Elizabeth Wyatt and husband renovated their 3rd house, which they have rented out. She received a promotion at Merck last year, to Senior Director, Corporate Licensing. They hope for a vacation in France this year. Mary Blake Beller Meadows and husband Chuck are building a new home in Dallas on 2 lots gained from tearing down his home and a house next door. They hoped to move in May. They had a fabulous trip to Thailand and Hong Kong last year.

Dr. Martha Brewer, still in the New Orleans area, has moved her practice from one side of town to another and added a 3rd physician to her all-female group. Martha had heard from Linda Donald, who lives in Takoma Park, MD and just finished designing a new restaurant in D.C. called Maxfields. Linda is moving into construction management.

Liz Beach Baker says being the mother of teenagers is truly a challenge. Her 3 children do ballet, soccer, riding, piano and so on. She is incoming president of the Garden Club and works for a design and antique company. Carolyn Mapp Rogers does a lot of work in drug education with older elementary students. Her 3 boys take a lot of time as does tennis.

Haden Ridley Winborne survived a year as president of the PTA at her twins' school. Nancy Wendling Peacock had a wonderful 40th birthday celebration in CA with Tom. She is going sustaining in the Jr. League and is president-elect of the High Museum Guild. She enjoys competitive tennis and is ready to kick off plans for the 20th Reunion next spring.

Betsy West Dripps announces the September '87 arrival of Perry Dripps: "Now we have 2 boys 17 years apart. I'm going to write a book on having a baby at 23 and at 40, any time it's great!" Maureen Robertson Baggott's son became a teen last year. The whole family camped in Canada last summer; daughter Megan and Maureen will go to France this summer. Maureen teaches French in a private school and says, "Life is good."

As for me, I left the insurance business and am trying to catch up around the house. We are painting, reupholstering, and getting the yard in order. I am going sustaining also but will coordinate the Jr. League's Leadership course. I try to keep treasurer's books straight for 3 different projects, and will be a teacher's aide at Ginny's school next fall. Her favorite activity is ballet. I am considering returning to school, but only after I figure out what I want to be when I grow up.

I do know where I want to be next year: at our 20th reunion. Who would ever have thought we would get this far! Please mark your calendars and plan to attend. Nancy and I will let you know all the details as they are passed on to us. It will be a special time if YOU are there.

President

Nan Robertson Clarke (Mrs. Thomas Hal, Jr.), 47 Brighton Road NE, Atlanta, GA 30309

Secretary

Hibernia (Mac) Cuthbert Langley (Mrs. William John), 403 Patjens Lane, Mount Pleasant, SC 29464

Fund Agents

Susan (Scottie) O'Toole, 6536 Deerings Lane, Norcross, GA 30092

Susan Dern Plank (Mrs. David P.), PSC 912, APO San Francisco, CA 96293

Class note time surely rolls around quickly! Getting to read all the news before anyone else sees it has been a treat—one that I will miss next year.

Cindy Bekins married Rod Anderson in January, acquiring 2 teenagers in the merger. After honeymooning on Sanibel and Captiva Islands Cindy and Rod are happily settled in a new house in Omaha. Lucy Young Larson visited the Andersons on her way home to Boston from Colorado Springs.

After finishing an MSW in '88 Mary Jane Berry has gone back to work as a clinical social worker at a psychiatric hospital. She volunteers at the local jail, running a therapy group and is a hotline volunteer for a domestic violence/rape crisis center. Robert, Alison (3 1/2), and Mary Jane visited Diane Wood Keyser last year; they look forward to Reunion this year.

Anne Billings McDougall is slated to be vice chairman of the women's board at her church. She and her Billings family members have bought a house together in Hound Ears, NC near Blowing Rock; she hopes visiting there with Ed, Maggie (6), and Jim (3

1/2) will put her closer to more SBC friends. Ed works with a friend developing land east of Orlando.

Weezie Blakeslee Gilpin continues as Director of Counselling at the Walnut Hill School of the Performing Arts 3 1/2 days a week. She and Bob are still houseparents at Milton Academy, a job that makes them love escapes to their house on Martha's Vineyard even more. Alexa, 11, Blake, 9, and Christopher, 6 (especially Christopher), keep Weezie and Bob hopping.

This spring has been especially wild for Lee Brennan Kidd, who is food chairman for the May Audubon Zoo fundraiser in New Orleans. When her zoo friends don't need her she spends time watching her 2 older boys play soccer and promoting and selling advertising for Veranda magazine.

The March birth of the 1st child, a boy, gave Susan Broaddus Hoff a great reason to retire from her job as Director of Legislative Affairs for the Smokeless Tobacco Council in Washington, D.C. She and her enlarged family live in Old Town Alexandria in the Torpedo Factory Complex.

Mary Buxton loves her house in CA, had a great time painting and fixing it up. She went to Japan last year, visited with Betsy Perry and Jane Potts in April and plans to go to Alaska this summer. Now that Ryan is 2, Barbara Cain Hegarty is returning to part-time work with the NC School of Veterinary Medicine. I was so surprised to bump into Joyce Cameron Harder in Johnny's office recently. She, Howard, Walt (11), and Cameron (7) moved to Mount Pleasant last summer; Joyce teaches French at the local high school.

Evelyn Carter Cowles and Reynolds keep busy with their horses and Reynold's vet practice. Reynolds has taken up polo, and this spring they hope to race 1 of their horses over timber. Evelyn sees Missy Leib Veghte '74 often, occasionally visits with Sally Flieger Moore and ran into Kris Howell last November at a Lexington horse sale.

When Jane Garland Lucas married Carmen Garufo in Boston last October, Creigh Casey Krin's twins, Lindsay and Heather, were flower girls. As a reward for living through a long winter of seemingly endless illnesses the Krins skied in VT.

In Portsmouth, VA, Patty Cesak Stephenson is the department head for retirement services with Sovran Bank; Rick practices law. Their 1st child, Matthew Richard, was born March 14. When they can, they vacation in NYC.

Peggy Cheesewright Garner has an additional part-time job as international marketing director for a video called "Day One: A Positive Beginning for Parents and Their Infants". She spent Thanksgiving in Palm Springs and Christmas in Pasadena and San Francisco. February found her downhill skiing in Alpine Meadows; she also skied cross-country for the 1st time this winter. All this activity helped her to lose 75 pounds over the past 18 months.

Terry Christovich Gay is expecting a 2nd child in July; Kearney, 7, is quite excited. Terry hopes to slow down her law practice this summer.

After 4 years in Dallas, Anita Clarendon Ledsinger is glad to be back in Memphis. She is finishing the renovation of their old house and is glad to have time to enjoy Leila, 6, and Elise, 3. Chuck is with Holiday Corporation and welcomes the shortened commute the move brought. Somehow Anita has the energy to jog 20 miles a week.

Kathleen Cochran Schutze and Steve are remodeling a 40-year-old house in Richmond, VA, hoping to have everything ready to welcome their 2nd child in June. Son Taylor will soon be 3; Kathleen is delighted to be a full-time mother.

Susan Craig, Wayne, and Bennett, 16 mos., are anxious for their baby to come in April. Last fall Susan visited Jane McCutcheon McFadden in Brattleboro and couldn't resist a ski trip to Aspen in February. While Bennett is at Mother's Morning Out Susan does graphic design work, but finds motherhood to be a much tougher job.

Donna Crouch Campbell has established a private psychotherapy practice, a move which gives her more time for Heather, 10, and Ian, 8. Now she has more time to work on her 200-year-old house, a job which she fully expects will take another 200 years to complete. She hopes completing an article on women's psychology will be quicker.

Erica Reiling was born in February to Diane Dale Reiling, Chuck and Steven, 3. Because of a promotion last fall to manager of customer service for Flying Tigers freight terminals in San Francisco, Diane's maternity leave was much too short. Chuck is the corporate planning manager for Tandem Computers. The Reilings are adding a 2nd story to their house to accommodate the expanded family.

Cary Davis King and Henry are anxious to escape from toddlerdom for the more tranquil world of Reunion. Marguerite, 3 1/2, Lucy, 2, and Spencer, 8 mos., keep Cary as busy as Henry's 2-year-old law practice keeps him.

Having sold her antebellum house in Holly Springs, Lucy Dennington Kennedy has moved to a beautiful new house in Memphis. She will miss Holly Springs but looks forward to starting a new life in Memphis.

Sue Dern Plank and Elena spent last summer in Canojoharie, NC where Sue continued her registrarial work for the Van Alstyne Homestead Society. In October they joined David in Japan and are getting acclimated in the Far East. Sue is learning Japanese as she tutors a high school student.

After living in Europe for a number of years Carol Dehanyos returned to NYC to study for a master's degree. While in Manhattan she worked with homeless psychiatric patients and continues in that field in her new location, New Hartford. Her roommate is Lola, a Newfoundland; they hope to move South soon for more sun.

Joan Eltonhead married Richard Bromley in April. Joan is the clinical services coordinator for allied therapy at Eugenia Hospital in Montgomery County, PA. Chris Eng Leventhal and Peter welcomed Jonathan Ryan to the family in September. He joins Amy Christine, 8, and Nicholas Lee, 5. In addition to his health food store in Old Greenwich, Peter now has one in Wilton, CT. He counsels for nutrition and teaches martial arts. Chris still does free lance editing, is a certified aerobics instructor, dances, lifts weights and helps at her children's schools.

In July Ann Evans will finish her family medicine residency at Bowman Gray and open a private practice in Yadkinville, NC. Ann keeps up with several W&L graduates, Hagood Ellison, Dave Collins and Grif Steele.

Val Fannon Phillips travels the East Coast for Hershey foods. She, Tom and Blair vacationed in Hawaii in February. Van and Jean Platt Spencer visited each other recently and hope to be roommates again at Reunion.

Alison Fifer Stonecipher sells real estate in Santa Barbara, volunteers at school and stays busy with sons Will and John, ages 4 and 7. She and husband are building a new house.

Peggy Holloway Fitch practices dermatology in Aiken, SC. Sons Brannon and Hollis are 8 and 5; daughter Kendall is 3. Peggy is founder and president of the Aiken Symphony Guild. Beth Boatwright Bell and Bryan spent a great weekend with the Fitches last year for the Masters.

Sally Flieger Moore is director of the Ferrum Riding Center, Ferrum, VA and Roddy is director of the Blue Ridge Institute. Together they have undertaken a new venture - raising, showing and selling Percherons - and already have been quite successful at major shows in VA and NC.

Working 18 hours a week as a law librarian, volunteering through the Junior League and taking care of Russell, 6, and Suzanna, 18 mos., more than fills Lisa Fowler Winslow's days. Bill is busy with his law practice. At Christmas they visited with Peggy Cheesewright Garner.

Emily Garth Brown wins 2 prizes in our class. The 1st is that of having visited with the most SBC alums. She duck hunted with Libby Wann Duff '72, vacationed with Gypsy Bear Van Antwerp, who has moved to Pascagoula, MS, talked to Susan Craig Smith, and visited with Lisa Marshall Chalmers. Her other award is that of being the 1st among us to be in 2 places at the same time. With 4 children going different ways at different times she had no choice. In spite of owning 3 big dogs and being mother to 2 little boys, Teddy, 3 1/2, and Peter, born in January, Trish Gilhooly O'Neill remains geographically mobile. Her big decision now is whether to move back to the States from London or somewhere on the Continent. Chris Hegarty Savage, Pat, Clay, 6, and Brendan, 3, spent a relaxing weekend in Barbados this spring.

Jill Heptinstall began '88 with lots of changes. She is now in charge of the customer service division of the circulation department of the Baltimore Sun and has recently moved to a new house in Baltimore. Pat Hite Barton runs her own business which is now incorporated as Stepping Out Farm. There she does hunters and equitation and competes nationally.

During a family vacation on the Eastern Shore Carter Heyward Morris bumped into Ann Major Gibb. Since she has taken the year off from her import business Carter has been able to have lunch occasionally with Atlanta classmates. This fall Kris Howell will be teaching economics at UNC-Wilmington. Though she hates to leave the horse country of Kentucky she is grateful to be able to teach at the beach.

After spending 5 months in France Susan Kirby Peacock and David came home to adopt 2-day-old Daniel in December. She and David are working half time in medicine and pharmacy, which solves the child care problem. In April Susan graduated with a BA in painting and is busy with a mural for the Sierra Club. Finding 2 SBC classmates has helped Janie Knutson James feel settled in CA. Barb Prentiss Balascio and Janie are in Mission Viejo, and Cathy Blackburn is not far away in San Diego. Janie helps in Patrick's kindergarten, coordinates vacation Bible School and is a group leader for a women's Bible study. She and Michael play lots of tennis and though she loves CA, she's anxious to return to the East Coast for Reunion and a quick trip to MA. Linda Lipscomb has become so compulsive about good grades that she can't take time off from work on her MBA to come to Reunion. Armed with an MBA she hopes to land a job in August, probably in banking.

In April Jane McCutchen McFadden sneaked away from her family for a trip to Italy and Austria with her parents and sister Grace. She returned to become engulfed in building a house in NH and a new warehouse for Barclay's expanding business. Her business thrives too, as do her children who are involved in all those frigid Northeastern winter sports.

Jane McFadden Bryan bumped into Gypsy Bear Van Antwerp in Hendersonville, NC where they were in adjacent cabins at Kanuga. Jane is involved with the Cursillo program of the Episcopal church and enjoys a busy civil trial and family law practice. Son William is 2. Emily, 9, and kindergartner David keep Ann Major Gibb on the road. She also is on the phone a lot as a vestryman at her church, head of the Sunday School program, and secretary of the medical auxiliary. Lisa Marshall Chalmers and David hunted big game in Kenya in February. Lisa has established her reputation as a portraitist in Atlanta and has painted portraits of the children of several classmates. Last December she was with many classmates at a luncheon for Suzanne Garrison Hoder.

Chris Mendel Prewitt will soon be leaving the Philippines for Andrews AFB. Darwin will be flying presidential support, and Chris looks forward to a desk job for the next couple of years. Whitney and Cary are also anxious to get back to the States. While husband David Bethany is on the road with his rock and roll band, The Killer Whales, Jan Merritt teaches riding and runs after Rachel, 2. The 3 of them enjoyed a fishing trip last summer to northern Minnesota. After 7 years in Washington as assistant vice president of communications at the National Association of Manufacturers, Sara Meyerderks Ross heads for NH, a new marriage and a new job in a public relations consulting business. She's anxious to hear from classmates in the Boston-Manchester, NH area.

Laura Montague Cross quit her part-time job last spring to look after husband Jeff, Fred, 7, Katie, 6, and Laura, 2. They more than fill her life in the VA suburbs. Andrea Niles Jones' happy news is that she married Bill Jones, a urologist in Gainesville, GA. Though it meant leaving Atlanta the marriage brought with it his 2 daughters, ages 14 and 9. Andrea tutors French students, serves on several community projects, is redecorating their house and has landscaped with a rose and herb garden. Now that she has been in Dallas for a year, Jane Olmstead Murphy begins to feel at home. This transition year has mostly been spent helping Peter, 10, and Moira, 6, get settled in their new school. Jogging and aerobics have provided a means to maintain sanity for Jane; Paul enjoys his job with Caltex Petroleum Corp. The Murphys have traveled to San Francisco, San Antonio and Chicago and hope to visit Santa Fe and the Grand Canyon later this year.

Robin Harmon O'Neill has been busy as fund agent for our class. I'm sure John and Baby Robin will enjoy Reunion as much as Mama Robin will. Jean Platt Spencer's life is full of golf lessons and work at their garden center and restaurant. She and David bought a house in the Poconos where David is a ski instructor. Jean and Jessica, a 1st grader, and Katie, in nursery school, try to join him on the weekends. Debbie Pollock Arce and Roger have been joined by Ross Christopher, now 8 mos. old. His sister Cory is 2 1/2; they allow their mother to work part-time as a vice-president for finance for the family's computer software company. Jane Potts Sutherland, Bud, and son Rives, 3, are in Essex, CT where Bud is back in the boating business. Jane's business is thriving, and she loves being only 2 hours from Boston and NYC. She sees Betsy Perry and Melinda Williams Davis regularly, and Mary Buxton came for an April visit.

May brought a promotion to Kathy Pretzfelder Steele to assistant vice president of corporate planning. In addition to celebrating 15 years of marriage and 15 years with her company, Kathy looks forward to her 15th reunion. She and Dave coach their 8-year-old's softball team, and Kelly, 5, starts kindergarten this fall. Char Reed Miller and Bill bought 3 electron microscopes and other laboratory instrumentation to form their own environmental analysis business. They will be involved primarily with asbestos, radon and water analysis. Working with her dogs and horses keeps Char from insanity over worrying about the success of the venture.

Our class novelist, Nancy Richards Akers, will have her next book, A Season Abroad, released by Warner in October. She has signed a 3-book contract with Crown and is currently working on a western for them, Rivers of Dreams. Her 2nd son, Saier William Davis Akers, was born in April. Nan Robertson Clarke called with her news because Hal's hospitalization for appendicitis and then pneumonia kept her from writing. Even though life with her 4 children keeps her running, Nan squeezes in time for some free lance writing and public relations work. She also writes a gossip column for the Atlanta Junior League's magazine; word has it that she has "highlighted" moments in the lives of several classmates. We look forward to a visit from 5 of the 6 Clarkes in August. Susan Rockwell Patten has returned to school to work on a nursing degree. Chris, 9, and Mollie, 7, work hard at school and sports. To help the Pattens relax they bought a boat, to enjoy the lakes near their home in Tempe, AZ.

GINNA ROGERS GOULD has a new house on the Magothy River in Annapolis, which gives them great access to boating and the Chesapeake Bay. Her daughter is 4; they are in the throes of school hunting. David's contracting business is expanding (!); Ginna has become his marketing director in addition to free lance work and job as a columnist with the LA Times syndicate. In an effort to survive motherhood Candy Sheffield Neilson has resigned from church and school committee responsibilities. Her 3 children fill her waking hours and then some. Candy sends news of the March birth of Carrie Elizabeth to Sharon Saunders Williams.

Marianne Vandervort Wiggishoff and Cyril retired from his practice of medicine last summer, leaving behind cold Chicago winters. They now spend 6 months near Durban, South Africa where Cyril has relatives, 3 months in France and 3 months in the desert near Scottsdale, AZ. Marianne has become proficient at packing and unpacking. Patricia Wood Wingfield is taking a year off from work to be home with Hall, 3, and Caitlin Ellen, born in January, and to settle in their new house in Norfolk. Greg is president of "Forward Hampton Roads," an economic development organization for the Hampton Roads area.

In addition to teaching 3rd grade Ginger Woodward Gast finished her master's degree in reading this year. The Gasts skied at Killington for a week; Michael, 8, and Caroline, 6, had a great time. Angela Miller is a real estate developer in Miami, FL. She has completed a 192-room Comfort Inn Hotel at the Ft. Lauderdale airport and is studying the renovating of a 1940's classic in the Art Deco District of Miami Beach. Son K.C. is 13.

In addition to being grateful that I have come to the bottom of my stack of cards, I, Mac Cuthbert Langley, am grateful to our class for letting me be your secretary for the past 5 years. I have honestly had a great time doing it and would be delighted to do it again but not for another 30 years at least. My life is filled by my babies, Will, 9, and Hibernia, 4 and the attendant activities - soccer, piano, car pools, being PTA president, and keeping my sanity while teaching Will the multiplication tables. Any time left over in the fall will be spent as public relations chairman for the Junior League and helping Johnny in his pediatric office. We hope to be moving to a bigger house soon; you will probably hear my shouts of delight when we finally sell this house. I'll miss every one of you at Reunion.

I haven't heard from Sarah Abrell, but saw her last season on "Matlock," "LA Law," "The Oldest Rookie" and "Trial and Error." Barb Bernick Martin married Douglas Peyronnet July 10, '87 in Richmond. Barb works at U of Richmond as a job search counselor and a phone counselor. In February she taught financial planning for teens at St. Catherine's School and plans to teach a similar class at the Women's Resource Center in June. She and Doug also work in their yard! Vera Blake Thiers, husband Gerd and children Kate and Paul are living in Oberursel, West Germany, where Gerd is a dermatologist. They moved into a house in the suburbs last summer. Vera was busy with children and moving but took a trip to Canada and the USA last year. Dabney Bragg Foshee made partner in her law firm, Armbrrecht, Jackson, Demouy, Crowe, Holmes & Reeves in January. She is in touch with Barbara Clark McLaughlin, hopes to visit her this year.

Lola Brock Meakin and family moved to the English suburbs; she is busy with son James (2) and is chairman of the village under-three play group. She saw Sharon Coe Glen '76, expecting child #3 in July. Lola and family also spent 6 weeks over Christmas and New Year's in Miami. She enjoys not working and looked forward to 2 weeks in the South of France in June. Sarah Bruce Kelly spends most of her time tending to children, Frankie (7) and Mary Catherine (2). She is also involved in music ministry at church and piano teaching at home. Husband Frank stays busy with the advertising agency he started 2 years ago. They occasionally find time for travel: last Christmas they visited Sue Faist Jagger, Paul and new baby in CT.

Kate Carnwath Hopkins and Padgett have been married 3+ years. They have baby Sarah (2), and live in Baltimore MD, where Padgett is a cabinetmaker and fine wood worker. Kate is a partner with a group owning Society Hill Hotels; she manages one which is a Bed & Breakfast with 15 rooms and restaurant. She invites anyone visiting the area to call for a reservation (301-837-3630). Elvira Cash Pecora and Chip still enjoy Flanders, NJ but a move is pending-destination unknown. Gregory (2 1/2) has a German short hair pointer puppy to play with; they expect baby #2 in November. Roxane Clement spent the winter on Maryland's Eastern Shore and was gearing up for a move back to Raleigh, NC to pursue interests in theatre, housing, health and new age ecology.

Wendy Congdon Stanton is busy with homemaking, child-raising, community work and networking for a new career. She finished rebrownstoning the exterior of a 100-year-old building in Brooklyn Heights, NY, now on a renovator's twice-annually shown house tour as a primo restoration job. Farnell Cowan was promoted to product manager in Int'l Private Banking at Bank of Boston this year. She and her sister spent their vacation in England last April. Farnell also volunteers for the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Sending her greetings: Ann Crossingham Cannon, who enjoys being a mom to Leslie (8) and Will (7). Husband Bill produces custom golf clubs at Auld Golf. Martha Crowe married Scott Whitlow Jones in '85. Son Caleb Hunter Jones will be 2 in January. Martha is manager of her husband's family-founded business, "Sally Bell's Kitchen". They have been written up in Redbook, USA Today, Inc., New York Times, Esquire, and The Joy of Pigging Out. They also find time to fix up their home. Debbie Falcigno is living in Washington, D.C. as director of the Washington Easter Seal Center. She says it is, "chaotic, exhausting, and so much fun." Her health has stabilized. When she isn't running the center, holding fund raisers or lobbying for the handicapped, she takes classes at G. Washington U. Mary Ford Hodges lives in Fairfax, VA with husband Steve and daughters Ashley (4) and Alexandra (1). After SBC she worked for 5 years as a major account representative for CPT Corp in Washington. She and the girls accompany Steve on business trips around the world; they were planning on London, Paris, and Nice this past spring.

Cathy Goodhart Henson keeps busy with Carlton and children Catherine, Susie and Laura, and also sells real estate. Mary Greaves Hodge and Charlie moved in Aug. '87, and have settled in. Mary is still at Talbot's and busy with community work. Charlie is at Children's Hospital. Kristy Judson made a major career change just after our Reunion. She is a litigation paralegal in copyright and trademark law with a large Cleveland law firm. She spends free time playing tennis, volunteering for Jr. League and working on her house (a 100-year-old renovated barn). Cindy Kendree Thieringer is busy with daughters Kendree (4) and Kiley (2). Cindy started a basket business; if you need a basket, let her know! She sees Elvira Cash Pecora and family periodically.

Betsy Kilborn Raulerson and husband moved 2/88 from NYC. "after 10 1/2 years of subways and soot," to San Rafael, CA. Their 1st baby was due 6/88. Betsy is still a flight attendant for Pan Am, and planned to return to work in the Fall, after a year's maternity leave. Husband Bill is an actor (along with other talents).

Carla Kinney Reiniger and Dan vacationed in Australia 9/87. They spent 12 days visiting Sydney, Melbourne, Cairns and Brisbane. Trip highlights included holding live koalas, feeding kangaroos and snorkeling at the Great Barrier Reef. They spent 2 days in Tahiti on the way back. Biggest news, however, is the arrival of Heather Danelle on 2/8. Debbie Koss McCarthy is doing volunteer work in growth management as head of her neighborhood association and board member of the Inter Neighborhood Council. When she isn't caring for David, Courtney (3rd grade) and Alex (kindergarten), she sings with "Calling Chords", a group she helped found. Similar to the Sweet Tones, it sings primarily for senior citizens. Debbie reports that Ellen Watson Kent and Dan expect baby #1 any day.

Phooi-Ching Lai expected baby #2 in June, and was due to move to the USA in August. Her husband, Dr. Choon-Hin Lai, will be in a 2-year training program at Mayo Clinic, Rochester MN. Louise Lambert Hunter enjoys being an "at-home Mom" to Graham (4) and Emily (1). She smocks and stencils in free time. Bobby and Bettie Lee Moore live outside Leesburg, VA. They have a son, Bradley (4) and expect child #2 in August. Bettie opened The Toy Company, which she enjoys running, in Leesburg in Aug '87. Anne Marshall-Ross writes from a new location/job in the Olympia, WA area: she is doing research on salmon genetics for the WA Dept. of Fisheries and is trying to improve the management of the individual populations of salmon throughout the Northwest. She previously worked for the U of CA-Davis in the same field. She hopes to climb Mt. Rainier this summer.

Stephanie Maxson is getting a degree at night in Systems Analysis, while working days. Her work was to take her to Budapest last fall; she hoped to see Versailles on the way back. She spends free time decorating her condo and growing vegetables and flowers in her back yard. Becky

Mayer Gutierrez, Mere and children George (4 1/2) and Anthony (2 1/2) are in Shelburne Falls, MA. Becky is full-time mother and does outside childcare also. She saw Debbie Falcigno in December. Marian

McLellan married a fellow artist, Mathias Work; they expect a baby. She has been accepted for a VCCA Fellowship, and hopes to return to SBC to use it. Helen Milner Gordon has 3 boys who keep her busy. She likes playing tennis but says she is a spectator of soccer and T-ball. Gay

Owens Gates writes from NJ: she saw Lisa Carangelo '80, had a wonderful visit. Gay won a contest through her grocery store chain—she was the grand prize winner from 294 stores!

Mary Palmer Blackmon and best friend opened a gourmet grocery store in Nashville 12/87. It's called "Richland Creek Market & Catering Co.". Mary reports that the store is doing wonderfully—the first of its kind in Nashville. Buddy writes music full-time with SBK Songs. Kate is 5 and wants to be an artist and a chef when she grows up. Ellen Sellers McDowell is busy with The Cooking School, which has just completed its 5th year of business. Life magazine spent a day taking pictures of the kids' classes, but Ellen wasn't sure if they would definitely be in the magazine. Emily (3) is to be a flower girl in Ellen's brother's August wedding, and will start preschool in the Fall. Ellen says Ginny (1) is still talking about her trip to our class reunion! Rex was bidding on work in Hawaii for his company; Ellen hoped he'd get it so they could spend the summer there. In addition, she does Junior League and work for church and neighborhood friends.

Julie Smith Abell lives in a log cabin on a 300-acre farm in Crestwood, KY. She is proprietor of a floral decorating business: Scarborough Fair. In the spring, summer and fall she grows (on her farm) most of the flowers, herbs and greens that she uses in arrangements. Husband Irvin is a partner in a law firm and travels a great deal. Sigrid Soderberg is still loving living in San Francisco. She is legal assistant administrator for a dept. of 120. She also keeps busy with fundraising for abused children, volunteering at museums and is a docent with the San Francisco Symphony—and sails. Cain Thomas Linzee was promoted to senior editor of The Journal of Musculoskeletal Medicine early in '88. She enjoys work with doctor-authors and travel to medical association meetings. In spare time she volunteers for the Red Cross blood donation center. Husband David's most recent mystery novel, Housebreaker, was published in the summer of '87.

Tracy Thompson Bodkin and family moved to a new home in Chester, NJ, and are busy decorating. They have 2 children, Allison (6) and Teddy (3 1/2). Linda Uihlein breeds Jack Russells again, as well as designing and drafting (and maybe general contracting) a large house addition last summer. She scuba dives and takes underwater videos, continuing to make improvements to her farm. Her business, E-Line Art, has expanded to floor cloths, doormats, mailboxes, dog beds etc.! She says Fred Stone was down for his annual beagle meet in March.

Tricia Waters continues to enjoy her job as curatorial associate at the Baltimore Museum of Art; she recently coordinated an exhibition of 4 Maryland artists. She has also been enjoying her brother's success in his new movie, "Hairspray." Christine Weerasingha Hand and family had a memorable trip to Sri Lanka in August '87 with Sebastian (4) and Rachel (2), who saw their grandparents for the 1st time. Christine spends most of her time at home with Rachel; Sebastian is in school. They hope to move overseas for a while, although they enjoy the good weather in England. Judith Widener Baker is breeding and training horses and was about to open an art gallery/studio when she wrote. Daughter Samantha was 3 in May; husband Rob works for Mutual of NY. Judith also occasionally does free lance work in Manhattan. Stephen and Carolyn Williams Seeling are in Columbia, SC. Carolyn enjoys time at home with Justin, almost 2. She says that between play groups and trips to the zoo and beach, their lifestyle is becoming a "Camp Seeling".

Jo Winstead married George W. Kane III in '85. They live in Raleigh, NC where he practices law and Jo operates her newly opened photography studio. David and Patti Wornom Henry were frantically trying to sell their house in IL when she wrote. David was due to report for duty in Panama June 15. Patti and children were to visit family in VA until the house in Panama is ready. Stella Wright Martin writes from her new address in Macon, GA that she and family just completed the 5th move in 6 years. She and Everett (4) commute to Atlanta 3 days a week for school. Her business, Temptations Asia Ltd., keeps her busy, although she is no longer in Hong Kong. She now sells what she bought there and leads H.K. groups on shopping trips. Tom works for an Australian paper company in Macon.

Vivian Yamaguchi Cohn and Stuart bought a house and moved in March '88 after gutting the kitchen and having other work done. They enjoy extra space and look forward to planting SBC bulbs. Lucy Kimbrough's sister lives 3 blocks away, so Vivian was able to see Lucy when she came to visit last Christmas. Vivian, Stuart and Clay (2) spent 10 days in LaJolla, CA last spring. Vivian reports that Clay added a new dimension (and about 5 extra pieces of luggage) to their travels.

Christine Davis Boulware and 4 partners have an executive recruiting firm employing 20 people, headquartered in Boston, with an office in DC. She serves on 2 committees for the mayor and on several boards of local organizations. Traveling a great deal, she uses spare time (mostly on airplanes!) to read the works of 19th and 20th century black female authors. Son Jason is 8 3/4 and daughter Bree, 5 1/2. Ebet Little Stevens is at home taking care of Elizabeth (4) and Anne (1). Kathy

McDonald married Patrick Jenevein in April '87 and expects child #1 in June '88. She occasionally helps Patrick in his oil and gas investment company in Dallas

And I, Sally Bonham Mohle, am at George Mason U. in a new position in the Student Union admin. office. (Pete is still a Budget Analyst at GMU.) Last Christmas Pete and I went to FL, an early 10th anniversary present to ourselves. On the way back we came within 2 hours of seeing Ebet Little Stevens and family; we were forestalled by an ice/snow storm which covered the nation. We had dinner recently with Tricia Waters and John Neer, in the townhouse they bought in Alexandria, VA.

Responses were better this year, but 145 didn't respond. I threatened to make up stories, but I'm not creative enough to make up that many stories, so let me say, "Shame on you!" Here, from the ones who wrote:

Lisa Allison Barnhart finished graduate work at GA State, Masters of Science in Exercise Science. She will go into Corp. Fitness or Cardiac Rehab. and works part-time for AT&T in their Corp. Fitness Center. Vicky Archer is an attorney with Reed, Smith, Shaw & McClay in Pitt. In February she saw Carol Hays Hunnley and baby, Barbara Louise - SBC Class of 2010! Elaine Arozarena is Gen Manager in Venezuela for Dun & Bradstreet Internat'l (the youngest exec. and only woman with such a position). She hopes you'll visit: Venezuela is the cheapest country in Latin America.

Browning Augustine was married 5/88 to Jamie Doswell and lives in Richmond. They were both working at Thalhimers; Jamie recently accepted a position as Regional Sales Exec. with Anne Klein II. Karen Battle Smith was married 12/87 in Salem, OR. She graduated in '86 from U of MT School of Pharmacy and works as a Pharmacy Manager. Sarah Bennett writes, "No news is good news," and adds that she is working for the WV Dept. of Culture & History in Charleston. Harriet Bielitsky enjoys San Francisco, keeps in touch with Anne Dougherty Hamblett and Quinne Fokes (both in San Fran.), had a wonderful visit from Theresa & Robert Lange, saw Amoret Thissel '82 over Xmas and was looking forward to being in Julie Brooke's 5/88 wedding.

Theresa Bland Lange didn't write, but Julie Brook said Theresa would be in her wedding; Allison Roberts and Theresa went to England together last Oct.

Mary Bolling Smith sent a correction: She was married 3/86; Martin attended. She managed Chadwick Antiques, Ltd., owned by her sister and Patricia Goldman '65, is now attending grad school part-time and enjoys being a housewife. Sorry for the goof, Mary. Julie Brooke was married 5/88 to Tommy Davis. Harriet, Theresa, K. Hagan and Stirling Cassidy were bridesmaids. Kathy Levi Hoover, Trish Moynahan and Allison Roberts planned to attend. Julie works in the Legal Dept. of Independent Life Insurance Co., hopes to be involved in business and management, in addition to practicing law.

Nina Brown in Boston works for an investment council firm in the personnel dept., doing recruiting and employee relations. Vida Bryan Davis didn't write, but Lynn Croft says Vida has 3 children. Barbara Bush gets the prize for shortest response: "Mission accomplished - I'm engaged!" Holly Craig filled us in on his name - Doug Cooper. Annie Callahan Keech's favorite news: a baby girl, Emily, in Sept. She loves being a Mom and planned to attend Betsy Simpson's May wedding.

Sigy Carlen Veasey is finishing her residency program in Internal Medicine, psyched to get out, make $$$ and catch up on sleep. She sees Muffit Sinks '80 and Susan Graham Campbell frequently.

Stirling Cassidy is having a ball in the Big Apple! She attended the wedding of Debbie Rundlett '82. Oliver Chaplin graduated from Georgetown Law School in May, took the bar in July, and planned a long exotic post-bar trip, to where, she didn't know. This fall she starts work at Kutak, Rock & Campbell, DC, the firm she worked for last summer. She sees Molly Rogers and Angie Odom often. Ann Cleland works as a vet in the outskirts of Atlanta in a "totally small" animal practice.

Windsor Cleveland Yellen had daughter, Rachel, who is blond like her mom and a great joy, 7/87. Windsor and Mitchell bought a 70-year-old Victorian house in the Sonoma Wine Country, are fixing it up. Laura Coleman Proctor expects child #3 11/88; son James will be 3 11/88. She sees Va. Donald and Caroline Hawk Sparrow often and Angie Odom. Caroline writes that Laura is an officer in the SBC Alumnae Club in Birmingham. Holly Craig is with GQ, selling advertising in auto, liquor and consumer electronics categories in NYC. She bought a condo in May, is busy decorating. Holly keeps in touch with Barb Bush, travels a lot for work and skis in spare time.

Mary Craighill Snow didn't write, but Jane Terry Lee was expecting to see her at Henrietta White's wedding in May. Lynn Croft and Jack Reeves tied the knot in May. Naiomi Weyand was in the wedding; Debbie Nast planned to attend. She and Jack live in Richmond, where Lynn hopes to find a job teaching.

Sophie Cryslar Hart and Ford were in Chinese Language Training at the Foreign Service Inst., and in Aug. left for a 2nd year of training at the American Inst. in Taiwan, in preparation for Ford's posting to Beijing, China in the summer of '89. They look forward to their 2nd tour in China.

Allison Roberts reports that Nan Dabbs Loftin had a baby boy, Earl Loftin, III, in March. Letha Dameron Zackowski writes: "Good News! Scott and I joyfully announce the birth of our son, William Spang, 2/10/88 - 6 lbs. 11 oz." Sue Leffler Creasy writes, "Dr. Lynn Danesi was engaged on Valentine's Day."

Molly Davis Garone works for a small media consulting firm in NYC, John is with The Bank of NY; both are active, skiing every weekend last winter, with plenty of biking and running. Molly is an aunt now, sister Sally '82 had a boy 2/88. Eve Devine's gourmet seafood store is going great guns. She's been on the front page of the food section for the B'more and D.C. papers and is writing her own cookbook. Virginia Donald was in London from Jan.-Aug., taking Decorative arts courses with Sotheby's. She ran into Georgia Schley '80 over there.

Debbie Donigan celebrated her 2nd year of marriage and works for TRW in the system support group. She lives in D.C. but plans to move to VA, where she'll be within 10 miles of Susan Stetson Grist '80. Anne Dougherty Hamblett says '87 was a great year! She got married, Rob made partner in his law firm, they bought a house and found she was pregnant Dec. 31st. Baby is due 5/88. They're very happy and love San Francisco after 5 yrs.

Tracy Drake didn't write but Kelly Yeadon says she visited her in FL. Chris Falcon headed for a week in Bermuda and then on to Betsy Simpson's wedding. She had a fantastic time at Liz Winson's wedding last fall, and says Institutional Sales are as fun as ever. Lori Faust Graham had baby #3, Shelby, in June; daughter Ahsli is 3. Lori is Pres. of Greyhound Pets of Amer., a member of the Nat'l Greyhound Assoc., and Pres. of Kenlor Kennels. She's going into the greyhound racing business; Kenny is still with BMW.

Mary Kate Ferguson made a New Year's resolution to take control, have more of a passion for her life. She started her own business, knitting and designing sweaters for shops in S.

FL, competed in 5 & 10K running races and is making her mark! She also painted her W. Palm Beach house pink and green.

Quinne Fokes enjoys San Francisco. She's job hunting, trying to keep the creative juices alive, joined a soccer team, "The Irving Club Cleats", ran in the "Bonnie Bell 10K", and is still swimming. She keeps in touch with Harriet Bielitsky, and Jane Lauderdale Armstrong '78 (pregnant), and was in Trish Mathews' wedding.

Christine Gilbride Sturges is extremely happy with married life after 2 years. She was teaching high school Spanish at a private school, but became disillusioned with teaching on a H.S. level; she's now a nursery school teacher for gifted 4-year-olds.

Nancy Golden took a wild vacation to Australia, New Zealand and Hawaii: went scuba diving on the Great Barrier Reef, hung out in Sydney, flew over and landed on glaciers in N.Z., went riding in Queenstown, via boat thru a glow worm cave, saw baby lambs and enormous mountains everywhere, and tried to peek at Tom Selleck's home.

Susan Graham Campbell didn't write, but Sigy Carlen Veasey sees her often and says Susan has a beautiful toddler, Sarah. I received a news clipping saying that Susan, a Commercial Lending Officer for Fidelity Bank, was named Sr. Real Estate Officer. Whitley Green writes, "All is well, commercial real estate, swimming, Jr. League, church, school, skiing, traveling." An anonymous report says Daughty Hagan is happy in Richmond with her new house and puppy. Ellen Hagan Brown and Whitney had Charles Whitney Brown III in March.

K. Hagan works for U of SC as Asst. Dir. of Admiss. She loves teaching a Freshman Seminar Course, and is in several civic groups, including Leadership Hilton Head - a group of 30 people selected to deal with community issues. She keeps in touch with Barbara Burns Wray, Jane Wark Moore, Holly Silsand and was in Julie Brooke's wedding.

Rhonda Harris was married 9/84 to Chris French (UVA '80, Darden '84), Pres. of Shenandoah Tel. Co. They live in Woodstock, VA. Rhonda worked as Asst. Branch Manager of First Va. Bank for several years, and is now at home after the April '87 birth of daughter, Rebecca Blyth.

Caroline Hawk Sparrow works hard as Publications Coord. for U of AL at Birmingham; Callen works hard a trial lawyer. Spare time is spent with friends, volunteer work, work on the house and just being couch potatoes. If boredom set in, she lives vicariously thru Va. Donald.

Carol Hays Hunley and Tom moved to Dallas, April '87. They had child #1, Barbara Louise 2/28, and Carol works with Texas Commerce Bank as an Asst. VP in Loan Review while Tom is busy with JC Penny's relocation of Corp. Offices to Dallas.

An anonymous source says that Moirra Holway is a medical illustrator. Marion Howard Wallace and Ham are busy with Diana, born 12/87. Marion is training field trial labradors but closed her dress shop. Lori Jons works for Congressman Lamar Smith in Midland (she managed his campaign 2 yrs. ago). Now she manages his District Office, is manager of the Trinity Episcopal Bookstore, and busy with volunteer work; Jr. League, museum, Chamber of Commerce Board, Leadership Midland and church activities.

Hope Keating moved from DC to Jacksonville, FL, where Julie Brooke (freshman year roomie) writes they were reunited when Hope moved in with Julie for several months. Cornelia Kennedy Susskind didn't write, but Leslie MacNeil Dobbins saw her in Lexington, KY, and Anne Sargeant sees Cornelia and Ron in Boston, says they have a baby due 5/88. Molly Davis Garone reports that Cornelia does PR work for the PBS series "Frontline". Debbie Kertzman works for the SEC, lives in DC, is very skinny and looks great. Diane Landau works as a Vet Lab Technician in Cardiac Research. She's studying for the MCat's to apply to med school and did extremely well on the GRE's. She's teaching horsemanship, living in Gladwyn, dating Kenny.

Karol Lawson works as Research Asst. to Dir. of the Nat'l. Museum of Amer. Art, Smithsonian Inst. She received her Ph.D. from UVA in May. She gave a lecture at the Nat'l. Gallery of Art as part of a grad student symposium; is interviewing for teaching and curatorial positions. Susan Leffler Creasy was expecting child #2 8/88. Kathy Levi Hoover and Michael bought a home; he started a new job on the same day, starting a subsidiary of T. Rowe Price Assoc. in Richmond, where he continues investment management as VP and Principal. Kathy works part-time as a computer analyst and volunteer for the Jr. League and SBC.

Hillary Lewis, moving to Old Town, Alexandria after 7 years in Dallas and eager to look up SBC grads in the area, is looking for a job. Sister Helen '79 is Regional Dir. of Paraphanalia, a shop in Georgetown. Sister Leslie Anderson '78 (her last name is now Battle) has 2 adorable girls in Coral Gables, FL. Jane Losse Momberger had child #3, Grace Ann, July '87. She says, "All's well - we're looking for visitors passing through town" (Salt Lake City). She enjoyed having Felicia Nelson visit in Dec.

Terrell Luck, finished VCU with another interior design degree, moved to Old Town, Alexandria and works with an interior design firm. Leslie MacNeil Dobbins and Helm went to SBC for a brief visit in Nov., which brought back wonderful memories, and were thrilled to see all the renovation. At a ballet benefit in Lexington, KY they ran into Cornelia Kennedy

Susskind. Boo Major manages and teaches at Sugar Plum Stables in Columbia, SC and is going to school to get certified in Elem. Ed., specializing in learning disabled students. She dates Jim, is having a blast, works hard, and she and her sister have a new house, which Boo says is fabulous!

Amy Marshall Lewis' life is hectic with Teddy (3) and Tara (18 mos.). They attended a 2nd B'day party for Brendy Reiter Hantze's son, and see Eve Devine (whose business, Amy says, is extremely successful). She also works on a Jr. League committee with Hannah Craighill Morehead, who just had baby #1. Amy's selling a line of children's clothing and began a real estate course this spring.

Sarah Martin is a student again, studying Art Conservation at VCU School of the Arts in Richmond. Helen Masters Durham's husband Buck got his surgery residency in Houston at Baylor, so she's leaving her bank marketing job in Richmond to look for a new job. Arch (5) is starting kindergarten and Ann Husted, born May '87, is "absolutely precious". Liz Winson writes that last May she was a bridesmaid for Trish Mathews. Quinne Fokes also wrote that she would be in the wedding.

Carrie Maynard holds the fort in NYC and was looking forward to a fun-filled, action-packed summer in Greenwich and the Hamptons - hoping to play golf and tennis. She sees Presley Neithammer Schwinn and Jim, saw Stirling Cassidy at a party and sees Blair Redd '83 quite often. Anne Marie McAndrews Pagli didn't write, but Carrie keeps in touch with AM, John and baby Alexander, and Mara Ryan ran into her on the slopes of Okemo, VT and says Anne Marie is a beaming new mother. Claire McDonnell is with Federated Investors, in Pitt., in the Marketing Dept., where she works on Direct Marketing and Computer Design. She attended Trish Mathews' wedding in May.

Sarane McHugh didn't write, but Claire heard from her at Xmas, says Sarane is still with Todd Boat Works in Maryland. Heidi Merrill de Ortiz and Rafael had a baby girl, Marisa, 6/87 and with Chris (4) and John (6), they are enlarging their house to accommodate everyone. Julie Brooke writes that Trish Moynahan was in her wedding last May. Lynn Croft wrote that Debbie Nast planned to attend her wedding last May. Carrie Maynard reports that Presley Neithammer Schwinn and husband Jim moved to St. Louis.

Felicia Nelson has been traveling thru AZ and NM, following the path of prospectors, explorers and geomanics. Work involves a position near the Extraterrestrial Hospitality Center at the Very Large Telescope, Magdalena, NM. She hopes alums interested in an outing come for dessert in neighboring Pie Town. Dana Painter Parkey is making a career change - as Bob graduates from Rice MBA program in May, she'll be trading in her 1st grade class for her own class - they expect a baby 8/88. Sue Pflugfelder is the Editorial Admin. for Vanity Fair Magazine, enjoyed skiing in St. Moritz between jobs and has a new-found serenity, even in busy NYC.

Suzanne Pomeroy received certification in Marketing and Basic Bus. Educ. 12/87 from E. Carolina Univ. She's teaching bus. courses at the Jr. College in Greenville and sends "a special hello to my old roommate Brendy R!" Ruthie Reid didn't write, but Stirling Cassidy reports that Ruthie is engaged and moving to Key Biscayne, FL, "where luckily, they do sell Cracklin' Bran Cereal". Brendy Reiter Hantzes and Nick had a baby boy 11/87. Little William Augustus and Harrison (3) are getting along very well. She decided to go on permanent maternity leave, and says staying home, so far, has been fun. Stephanie Rinaldi Charlip's daughter Allie, 6 months, keeps her busy. She plans to begin a Masters Program in Art History at B.U. as soon as she gets Allie on her feet. She and Steve love living in Boston and see Anne Sargeant, Cornelia Kennedy Susskind and Jamie Planck Martin frequently.

Rhonda Robbins Thomas is busy with Brian (5) and Paige (3). Her 4 yr. old design and space planning firm has a steady flow of projects to keep her staff of 12 busy, and with 1 yr. left in an Exec. MBA program at SMU, counts down the days till its over. She's also planning a new manufact. entity to produce a contemp. furniture line.

Allison Roberts works at Image Graphics and travels like mad - England with Theresa Blane Lange last Oct. - Charlotte, NC to see Nan Dabbs Loftin, Jane Terry Lee, and May Carter Phillips - LA to see Michelle Martinez '82, Alice Dixon '82, Disneyland, tour the star's homes and go whale-watching - Palm Beach, where she missed the Prince, but hung out with the Polo set - and was about to open the lodge in Hayward, WI for some Musky fishing.

Molly Rogers left Moseley Hallgarten where she was a broker, to join Johnson Lelmin & Co. as a broker. She sees Angie Odom, Olivia Chaplin, and Annie Callahan Keech and was looking forward to a visit with Betsy Simpson before the big day. Mara Ryan says Surgical Intensive Care Nursing is challenging and rewarding, plus, she only works 3 nights a week. She travels a lot - VT, Jackson Hole, and St. Thomas with a certain someone she met in VT, and is considering a move to CT. Mara works with a doctor who went to Hampden Sydney. Small world!

Anne Sargeant works for a Boston law firm. She sees Ron and Cornelia Kennedy Susskind and Steve and Stephanie Rinaldi Charlip all the time (Steve and Anne work together), and Jamie Planck Martin, who just moved to Beantown. Terry Sexton moved from NYC to the Outer Banks, NC and loves it. She is becoming certified as a Prof. Massage Therapist, and hopes friends will come visit. Just call (919)441-8961. Hedley Sipe Smith, working in Critical Care Nursing, is thinking of going back for her Masters. She teaches swimming for fun at the Y and has a wild curly hairdo!

Annie Callahan Keech and Chris Falcon wrote to say they planned to attend Betsy Simpson's wedding. Stephanie Skinner Fortunato is celebrating her 5th anniversary with the Bank of DE and traveling to promote precious metals sales for BOD storage programs. She and Paul have lived in Wilmington 3 yrs. and are ready for a change - they're looking for a house in the country and look forward to a cruise to Bermuda in May. Stephanie Slitt works at the Nat'l Museum of Women in the Arts, and sees Barb Bush, Lelee Frank Hazard and Susan Clay. Louise Swiecki Zingaro didn't write, but I received a news clipping that says she is Pres. of the Amherst Jr. Women's Club, which promotes social, civic, educational, philanthropic and cultural needs of the Amherst community.

Jane Terry Lee and Scott have a baby due 5/88. Jane was a bridesmaid in Henrietta White's wedding in May; Mary Craighill Snow and Olivia Chaplin were also bridesmaids. Tania Voss Ryan bought a house in Alexandria with room for children (but no children yet), and starts a new job at St. Stephen's School. She took her cheerleaders "all the way to the Nationals" in Feb. and her squad was 8th in the nation. "Rah! Rah!"

Nancy Webb Corkery and David had a baby due last April 1st! Elizabeth Webster Cotter is Marketing Dir. of Corobo, Inc.; she and Leslie were expecting 1st baby in June!

Nancy Weinberg didn't write, but her name was spotted in a letter to Spy Magazine regarding an article, "Colleges of the Dumb Rich", which mentioned SBC. Nancy's letter said that she is "a 1981 grad of SBC and VP at a major brokerage firm since '85," cites 2 other grads of "Dumb Rich Colleges" and says the 3 of them won't be buying Spy but will be watching the stock of the parent company. (The article also included W&L.)

Alex Wilson is the Dir. of Women's Programs at the Repub. Nat'l Committee and lives in Old Town, Alexandria. Susie Wilson Lyons and Robbie enjoy life in Lexington, KY. They have a son (3) and were expecting a baby in Aug. Susie and 2 friends have a catering business called "Fat Cat Catering". She sees a lot of Ashton Nesbit '82 (who is also in Lex. and was off to Australia for 3 weeks last April). Liz Winson was married 9/87 to Jeff Parker. Chris Falcon, Trish Mathews and Torie Lee '82 were in the wedding. Jeff is in the Real Estate Devel. Loan Section of Union Nat'l Bank, and a night school program for his MBA at U of Pitt. Liz is in the Torts Litigation Section of the PA Attorney General's Office and had 2 jury trials this past term.

Kelly Yeardon was commissioned as an Examiner for the Fed. Reserve Bank last year and accepted a position with the Fed. Reserve Bank of Philadelphia in May. She visited with K. Hagan in SC and Tracy Drake in FL and would love to hear from SBC alums in the Philly area. Debbie Middleton works for Harris Trust Savings Bank; she traveled around the world recently. Chris O'Leary-Rose has 2 active boys, Jeffrey (3 1/2) and Tommy (1). She works part-time in the computer dept. of a savings bank and is 1 course away from an M.A. in English. Husband Ken received his Ph.D. in May, works at the Rockefeller Archive Center, Westchester, NY. In April Chris had a mini reunion with Marlene Weber, Kathleen Graham and Felicia Nelson. Felicia planned to leave NYC to return to Shreveport; Kathy just became production mgr. for Barry Blan, NYC and plans a July wedding. Marlene sells real estate in Lynchburg, VA.

As for me, Kevin and I own The Watch Works, a watch design firm. Our SBC watch was in an ad for the Book Shop (they pictured it upside down) and our cow watch was featured in a USA Today article, about how cows are the new hot item (they pictured it right side up). Look for it in the Horchow catalogue. We're busy selling lots of other watches too, dogs, cats, horses, pigs, golf, tennis, etc., inventory is a big problem with over 200 designs. We're running out of space in our apt./office and plan a move, maybe to DE.

Please call or write if you're trying to locate classmates. Thanks to everyone who sent scoop on friends who didn't respond. I want to remind you all that we'll be needing pictures for our 10th Reunion scrap book; if you have any extras lying around, send them to me. They can be of you, your family, SBC chums, your dog, anything.

Also in the SBC area, Cape Morton has announced that she will marry Herbert Bruce Scott in September in Amherst. Cape works for Bowen Jewelry.

Maha Kanoo works in Bahrain, and visited the states last October where she saw many SBC'ers. She will be in Oubai this spring for several months, beginning a job with the Royal Bank of Canada, and will return to the U.S. this fall.

Deanne Blanton graduated from Wake Forest with a masters degree in American History with Historic Preservation. She plans a July wedding to John Henning. Rebecca Young '86 will be a bridesmaid. Deanne works for Decatur House in D.C.; she and John will live in Manassas, VA after the wedding.

Disa Johnson works in the baby products business in Concord, MA. She spent some time in Dallas on business, and looks forward to Susan Carr's '86 September wedding; she will be maid of honor. Disa will be traveling to New Zealand and Australia later this year. Jane Elliott Murphy and Brian live in Boston where Jane works as a paralegal for the firm of Taylor, Andersen, and Travers, and Brian is a management consultant for Bain and Co., Inc. Kelley Manderson is in NYC, employed with the Institutional Equity Sales Dept. of First Boston Corp. Katie Hearn works for T. Rowe Price in Baltimore. She plays a lot of lacrosse!

Martha Boxley Creasy and Grimes are in Richmond where Grimes is finishing his 1st year of law school at T.C. Williams, and Martha works for a law firm temporarily. She sees Frances Clardy and Betty Saylor in D.C., and Simone Petyon Valentine, Nancy Cunningham Mauck '83, and Susan Lazarus in Richmond. Susan looks forward to her June wedding to Jim Bailey. She works for Thalhimer's Executive Training Program, and Jim is in his residency at MCV in Richmond. Lots of SBC'ers will be in the wedding.

Roshani Gunewardene completed law school and plans to work for an attorney specializing in criminal law. She received a Public Interest Law Grant last May. Kate Byrne sells real estate for Coldwell Banker. She works out of Bethesda and deals with property in both MD and VA. Linda Manley is finishing her masters degree in school administration and is teaching 3rd grade in Campbell County, VA.

Helen Shingler DeForest and Richard were married in January. Cheryl Fortin Young was a bridesmaid and Renata Leckzas and Dian Lawrence attended. Richard is a W&L graduate and is a First Lieutenant with the Marine Corps. They live in Vista, CA. Elizabeth Morris graduates from Wake Forest Law School this spring. She looks forward to working for the Atlanta Legal Aid Society as a staff attorney with the Senior Citizens Law Project. She purchased a condominium in Decatur and hopes for SBC visitors!

Reem Saifi received her masters in computer science from American U. and has traveled in Europe, Jordan, and Egypt. She is employed with the computer dept. of the Ministry of Planning in Jordan. Linda Miller works for Frederick Computer Products in Frederick, MD. Debbie Fischer, Sandy Bernard '86, and Wendy Hyland Warren have been to visit her.

Garland Harvie Gerhardt and Mike are in Heidelberg where Garland is working for the Asst. Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations for the U.S. Army, and Mike is employed with the Assessment Branch of Intelligence. Jill Redpath is in Dallas working for the Lomas & Nettleton Co. She has seen Patti Dolan, Cara Heard '86, Lori Waller, and Anne Faulconer while visiting NYC.

Michelle O'Neill and Brigid McGlynn are in Bethesda; Michelle works for the Dept. of Commerce and Brigid in development for a private school. They went to Jane Elliott Murphy's wedding in October. They report that Carmen Pinelli is at Georgetown U. studying law, and that Mary Dragas Shearin and her husband live in Virginia Beach.

Sherry Booth will receive a masters degree from Harvard this spring, and writes that she has had some SBC visitors: Ellen Raine Joyner was in Boston in April, and Ro Gambrell in March. She reports that she saw Kama Boswell at Ellen's New Year's Eve party, and she keeps in touch with Romi Williams. Romi lives in Atlanta, working for John Portman, who is an architect and real estate developer. She sees Miltz Morgan on occasion. Ro Gambrell is in architectural school.

Cornelia Van Den Berg is finishing her masters program in French from Middlebury College through the U. of Paris where she will graduate in August. She looks forward to her wedding in 1989. Susan Palmer De Amaro works at First Nat'l Bank of Chicago. Jennifer Campbell is in Costa Mesa, CA employed by Gucci Timepieces. She plans to return to graduate school for her MBA next fall.

Halleigh Hall lives in New Orleans and is a fashion consultant and wardrobe specialist for Macy's. Susanne Schmitt is planning a September wedding to Michael Brown in New Orleans. She says they will move to Atlanta over the summer.

Lauren Swaylik works as a program manager for Allied Bendix in New Jersey. She is busy decorating her new townhouse and riding. Beth Tweedy Farmer and Steve purchased a house in Forest, VA. She is busy with her marketing business as well as modeling and doing graphics work.

Mary Nelms Rosa works as a manager of the Bombay Co. in Montgomery. She has seen Effie Holliday '83 in Birmingham, and reports that Elizabeth McGowin is in NYC studying at the School of Interior Design. Ruth Sill lives in Berkeley, CA and works for the Graduate Theological Union Library. She looks forward to receiving her masters degree in theology, and wants to continue her education with a Ph.D. in literature.

Cathrien De Liagre Bohl will graduate this fall from the Agricultural U. of Wageningen, Holland. She has traveled extensively and plans an internship this summer for Royal Dutch Airlines. She will attend Connie Van Den Berg's wedding in Holland. Janina Madigan will finish her M.Ed. this spring and continue as ass't program manager at the Central VA Training Center. Carolyn Williams married Philip DeLong last December. They live in Mansfield, Ohio, where Philip is a high school teacher. She graduated from the U. of Colorado at Boulder in '85.

As for myself, I have been having a great time here in D.C. I work for Temps & Co. as a corporate trainer, which is a real challenge and lots of fun. Thanks to all of you for the terrific letters, and have a wonderful year!

AS LONG AS THE TREES KEEP GROWING:

An Interview with Lyn Dillard Grones '45

Lyn Dillard Grones is a tree farmer. "Essentially," she says, "I sell pulp wood. It's not a very glamorous or ladylike occupation but it pays pretty well. So long as the trees keep growing, I'm in good shape.

"At the moment, I'm doing a substantial amount of reseedling. There's a twenty-year span between planting and timbering, so this round is really for the benefit of my children."

Lyn is also the chairman of Sweet Briar's Planned Giving Advisory Committee, a position she has held for the past eight years. During that time, she reports, "the whole area has grown tremendously."

Talking to Lyn about her work, it is easy to get momentarily confused: Are we discussing tree farming or planned giving? A description of one often sounds like a metaphor for the other. Not to mention that both endeavors are thriving under her leadership.

"I honestly don't remember how I ended up as chairman. I'm sure someone at Sweet Briar asked me and I must have said yes. I didn't have much experience; planned giving is not exactly a subject you are born knowing! I learned as I went along."

When it came to selecting the right plan for herself, Lyn chose a gift annuity. "I love tree farming. But at my age you want to reap what you sow a little sooner. Twenty years is a long time! With a gift annuity, you put your money in at a fixed rate and get a guaranteed income in return. It's steady and predictable—unlike the weather. I've got a lot of seedlings in the ground, so I'm praying every day for a good long rain.

"I wanted to receive an income from my gift annuity starting immediately. However, you can give at any age, get the income tax deduction right away, and start receiving an income at any time you specify. It's a marvelous way to plan ahead for yourself and Sweet Briar at the same time."

For more information about gift annuities, please write or call William H. Meadows III, vice president for college relations, Box G, Sweet Briar College, Sweet Briar, VA 24595, (804) 381-6161.

The Winner's Circle: Distinguished Alumna Awards 1988

"It is no secret that the alumnae of Sweet Briar College are women of accomplishment. They not only know their world geography, they are out there making a difference."

Judith Greer Schulz '61
President, Sweet Briar College Alumnae Association
Opening Convocation 1988

The Distinguished Alumna Award was established in the fall of 1987 to honor alumnae who have brought distinction to themselves and to Sweet Briar College through outstanding accomplishments in a volunteer or professional capacity. The excitement of Opening Convocation on September 8, 1988 was heightened by the presentation of the first of these awards—not to one, but to three winners—"winners" in every sense of the word.

The first honorees are Dorothy Bottom Duffy '49, retired editor of the Newport News Daily Press and Times-Herald; Karin Lawson '74, legal adviser to the U. S. delegation in the negotiations that resulted in the signing of the INF treaty between the U. S. and the Soviet Union in December 1987; and Diana Muldaur Dozier '60, actress, TV star and the first woman president of the Academy of TV Arts and Sciences.

The recipients were selected by a committee consisting of alumnae, faculty and the president of the College. Each winner was introduced by a faculty member from the department in which she majored. Dorothy B. Duffy and Karin Lawson were able to be present at Convocation. Just a few days before the ceremony, Diana Muldaur Dozier found that she could not come because filming began for a new series of "Star Trek," but she plans to visit Sweet Briar as soon as possible once the filming is completed.

Students and faculty were delighted to have a chance to visit with Dorothy Duffy and Karin Lawson. Karin had to leave early the day after the ceremony to fly back to Geneva, but Dorothy stayed to address Professor Goulde's religion class. One faculty member expressed the feelings of many. Said Roberta Perry, assistant professor of studio art, "These outstanding women have filled me with excitement. What a wonderful way to start the new academic year!"

Reprinted here are the introductions for the award-winners, each followed by the honoree's remarks.

□ Milan Hapala, Carter Glass Professor of Government:

One of the rewards of teaching is that of seeing the alumna whom you taught being recognized for her achievements.

Karin Lawson was a student in my classes in government in the early '70s. She had talent and imagination and she was not afraid to pass judgments, articulate them and defend them with passion. She had commitment to what Sweet Briar had to offer. She was committed to scholarship, to the dignity and rewards of a liberal education and to the integrity of the human ends to which it is addressed.

She majored in political economy, graduating cum laude and with membership in Phi Beta Kappa. In 1978 Johns Hopkins School of International Studies awarded her the M.A. degree and in 1981 she earned a law degree from the University of Virginia.

She chose a public service career as an attorney, first with the CIA and then in 1984 with the U. S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency. In 1987 she served as the legal adviser to the U. S. delegation to the INF negotiations with the Soviet Union in Geneva. Last spring Karin, in a lecture to Sweet Briar students and faculty, talked about her demanding work as a legal adviser. She had to make certain that every word of the treaty protocol reflected accurately the position of the United States. After writing many drafts she produced a document that satisfied both parties to the treaty.

The treaty was eventually ratified and Karin had the satisfaction of seeing the treaty praised as an opening to a constructive relationship between two superpowers.

In recognition of her outstanding performance as legal adviser to the U. S. delegation to the INF negotiations in Geneva Karin received a Meritorious Honor Award from the U. S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency.

In spite of her demanding commitments in Washington, Moscow and Geneva, Karin found time to publish articles in legal periodicals, to give talks to classes at Sweet Briar and to serve most recently as chairman of the Academic Outreach Program of the Board of the Sweet Briar Alumnae Association.

Karin: The Sweet Briar Alumnae Association, in grateful recognition of your service to the College, your commitment to the liberal education, and public service on the highest level of our government proudly presents you with this distinguished service award.

□ Karin Lawson '74:

Thank you, Dr. Hapala, for the kind introduction—rather embarrassing introduction, I guess. And thank you, all of you, and I mean all of you, for honoring me with this award. Just as I never dreamed 14 years ago that I would be honored by the Sweet Briar community and stand before you to receive an honor like this, never did I imagine also that I would accompany the Secretary of State to Helsinki, to Moscow, to Geneva, or sit beside the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff in the East Room of the White House and watch the President and General Secretary Gorbachev sign an arms control treaty that I had helped to negotiate and that I had in large part written—because Sweet Briar did not teach me to see into the future. What Sweet Briar did do, though, was to prepare me to deal with whatever I found in the future and for that I am very, very happy. As you heard from Brooke Haw earlier tonight (ed. note: Brooke '89 is president of student government), not one of you arrived at Sweet Briar with nothing. Sweet Briar chose you because of your intelligence, because of your achievements and because of what the College thought that you could do for your community, and maybe, for the world. Sweet Briar has built, and will continue to build, upon what it found in you, opening your minds to ideas and teaching you skills that you will need and which every one of you will use, whatever you choose to do in your life. You will leave Sweet Briar understanding, I believe, the challenges that await you, and with the skills to approach any number of them with confidence. Sweet Briar is just a beginning. Depending on your interests and the opportunities presented to you, you may choose to supplement what you are learning here, but it can be supplemented because of the very solidness, the very breadth of the education that you receive at Sweet

Karin Lawson

Briar. That breadth and that solidness will permit you to take advantage of the many different challenges that life will present you with, challenges which, as with my work these last three years, you could never even guess at now. I know that when you think of Sweet Briar a few years from now, or a decade from now, you will smile as I do because you will think of that special something that sparked an interest, or that special someone, as with Dr. Hapala for myself, or Dr. Grimm or Reuben Miller, who cultivated your mind and inspired you to challenge yourself. I think that you will always take pleasure from your association with Sweet Briar and in the completeness of the education with which it presented you. Thank you very much for inviting me here tonight.

Dr. Hapala introduced two members of the audience who are very proud of Karin's accomplishments, and asked them to stand: her husband, Keith Teel, and her sister, Karol Lawson '81, who had just the day before received her Ph.D. in art history from the University of Virginia.

□ John Goulde, assistant professor of religion:

What can you do with a bachelors's degree in the study of religion? This is a question that I would like to hear more often, but do not. After all, such a degree does not seem practical. As I reminded my students in the Philosophy of Religion class today, the study of religion, like the study of philosophy, does not bake bread, even though it might help us to understand why people do and should bake bread. So, what do you do with a bachelor's degree in the study of religion?

You might want to go on to do social work in East Harlem, and graduate work in English, history and theology at Cambridge University, Union Theological Seminary, New York University, the New School, Columbia University and the Folger Institute. If, after reading so much, you want to help others read, you might become an editorial assistant for the publisher R. R. Bowker and Company, a book reviewer for Kirkus Services, a freelance copyeditor, a religious book editor for Scribner's and a trade book editor for Harcourt Brace Jovanovich. After working with trade publications, you might want to shift to newsprint and become the editor of the Newport News Daily Press and Times-Herald. If you have more time on your hands after doing all of this, you might serve as a trustee for Christopher Newport College in Newport News and for the Virginia Nature Conservancy, and on the boards of directors of the Chesapeake Bay Foundation, the Virginia Outdoors Foundation, the Virginia Peninsula Economic Development Council, the Peninsula Chamber of Commerce and the Peninsula Urban League.

If, with your bachelor's degree in the study of religion, you do all these things and more, then we would know you today as Dorothy Bottom Duffy, Sweet Briar Class of 1949!

□ Dorothy B. Duffy '49:

I am honored to be one of three alumnae recognized tonight. I am also rather embarrassed. Let me tell why.

I did not choose to come to Sweet Briar College. After I graduated from St. Anne's School, I wanted faraway places, glamour, freedom—Bennington, Sarah Lawrence, University of Chicago. My parents wouldn't hear of it. They were Virginians, as were their forebears. They saw no reason for me to leave my native soil. They knew Carter Glass and his distinguished sister Meta—a resplendent exemplar of Southern womanhood. They admired the magnificent boxwoods at Sweet Briar House. I was allowed to apply to only one college. So in September 43 years ago I made a reluctant appearance on this campus.

You can imagine that a person of my great sophistication found Sweet Briar and Amherst tame territory indeed. I was sophisticated when I was 17. It took four years of college and an indefinite stretch of graduate studies to cure me of that malady.

My classmates and I sitting at Freshman Convocation in September 1945 had grown up in a difficult time. We came of age during World War II—in a time of danger, disruptions, departures; fathers, brothers, would-be lovers gone; painful solitudes, sudden death. Carpe diem—seize the day—was the prevailing mood.

Our understanding of what it meant to be a woman was an odd mixture of Snow White and "Someday My Prince Will Come;" Scarlett O'Hara dismissing her craven manipulations with "I'll think about that tomorrow;" big-busted Betty Grable promising several soldiers "I'll be loving you always;" and Lauren Bacall with her padded shoulders and skinny slither vamping Bogart. She was our ideal. You may have seen her in "To Have and Have Not"—a tough smartzy girl looking for trouble with a big T. "If you want me, just whistle. You know how to whistle, don't you? Just pucker up your lips and blow." Salty, savvy, sassy—that's what we wanted to be. Deliciously amoral. Of course, some of us had sisters or mothers or aunts who had worked during the war, who earned salaries and rejoiced in independence. But most of us expected that after college we'd marry a big, handsome man and have a little brick house and babies and dogs until he became VP of his firm. Then we'd have a big brick house and membership in a golf club. We didn't realize, you see, how profoundly the world had changed.

Some 30 days before our freshman convocation, while we were shopping for new skirts and sweaters, human history altered cataclysmically. On August 6th an American B-29, the Enola Gay, took off from Tinian atoll, glided across the Pacific to Japan, and dropped a bomb on Hiroshima. An atomic bomb. Two days later, a second bomb was dropped on Nagasaki. The atomic age had begun. A few days before my classmates and I packed our bags and headed for SBC, on September 2nd to be exact, the Second World War formally ended. The time for insouciant amorality had ended too. Moral choice had been thrust upon us, whether we wished for it or not.

What did a small liberal arts college stuck off in the sticks have to teach us, the first students of the atomic age? A lot. Amidst somnolent hills, bee-buzzing apple orchard, mooing of cows, the cruelty of 11:00 p.m. curfew and social committees, we learned life lessons. How to see. How to analyze. How to weigh meaning. How to articulate ideas. How to sift possibilities for ethical responses to the needs of our broken world. I, who was looking for interesting trouble, certainly found enough then and later. But I got something here I wasn't really looking for, and I got it in spite of myself. A good education, a queasy conscience and a lifelong compulsion to keep on studying.

This would not have been possible except for the lifesavers I found at Sweet Briar College: people, talismans, preservatives that sustained me. I found, for instance, a quiet, deeply thoughtful professor of English, Lawrence Nelson, who taught his students that the meaning of things is not fixed, not something that you discover at age 20, say, memorize and cling to always. For him the meaning of things always had to be redefined; the quest did not end after a single insight. He found meaning through literature—Shakespeare and Donne, Milton, Pope, Keats; Eliot, Lowell, Wallace Stevens. The novelists. The Bible. He taught his students to use words; he taught us too not to push words onto what is ineffable. He did not fear mystery. And he led us to await it in a poem, a piece of prose, a Bach chorale.

Mary Ely Lyman, dean of this college as well as professor of religion, advised students to begin now to become the kind of woman they wanted to be at age 50. She taught us the extraordinary Pauline paradox of “The good I would I do not, the evil I would not that I do.” That concept has come to my mind many times when I have let myself down, done something less than honorable, or performed a promise badly: it helped me live with the ambiguities and injustices one encounters in almost every endeavor. Dr. Lyman taught something else that profoundly affected my life. In class one day, commenting on Corinthians—we were, I suppose, exploring the concepts of agape and eros—she illustrated her point by quoting from Burns: “My love is like a red, red rose.” She spoke the lines with great feeling. I was taken aback. Even shocked. She was a tall, austere woman with gray hair and heavy, myopic eyes. Her husband was a revered scholar but he was terribly old and frail and wizened. Yet her face shone as she spoke and her voice was utterly different from “If you want me, just whistle!” I did not forget that chance remark. I knew I wanted for myself that sort of love.

The most important lessons I learned from Marion Benedict Rollins, professor of religion. In a real sense she saved my life by saving my sanity at a time when there were no counselors on campus to help a 17-year-old sophisticate. She was and is an amazing person, a loving presence, a gentle, intelligent leader/facilitator who taught as much by being the person she is as by what she said. You could perceive in her what it might mean to live in a state of grace. When she spoke of Genesis and the wonder-filled myth of Eden, of God making men responsible for the creatures and living things on the face of the earth, you learned the meaning of stewardship. When she taught the prophets, Amos or Hosea or Jeremiah, you saw what social justice means. Micah. What doth the Lord require of thee but to do justice, to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God. She taught about the religions of the world in terms of one God and the ways we worship. But she taught us too to hear the words of Christ, “This is my command, that you love one another. Feed my lambs. Feed my sheep.” She challenged us to learn well. In case of other atom bombs we might be among the few survivors of the destruction of the world. “Learn and remember,” she said: “perhaps you may be the one to teach the history of this civilization to founders of the next.”

Her words apply to you students today. You are already survivors—of high school, of the “me” generation kids who must create everything afresh every day in their own image and for whom tradition and custom lend no guidance. You face a world more bewildering than my classmates encountered, though ours was surely not what we expected. Yours is a world both smaller and bigger, filled with more people, more competition for jobs, more women than men, fewer princes available for more maidens, more daily danger. You have to decide what to do about excitements and temptations not generally in use in 1945—snorting, shooting, smoking. You have to deal on an existential basis with the threat of AIDS... with a plundered earth, trashed oceans, fish, animals, birds of many species dying out, plants and trees of immense value and variety being destroyed by man’s greed and rapacity; indeed, a globe whose very air is being poisoned daily.

You inhabit the postatomic age. Maybe the intergalactic age; the time when ends will catch up with the beginnings of things. You will be part of the oldest generation of women the world has ever known. Heed the words of Mary Ely Lyman—prepare now for the kind of woman you want to be at age 50. No. Prepare to be 60. 80. 100. Make your world livable. Join the Nature Conservancy, the Chesapeake Bay Foundation, The Sierra Club. Save our earth and its oceans and plants and creatures.

Be ready to be beautiful. Be ready to be alone: some of you will be alone in youth, most will be alone in old age. Be ready to find reward and satisfaction in work that you do, in contributions you make. Those of you who do find your prince probably will still have to work.

Be ready for change. In your world your only safety net is your ability to cope. Your intelligence. Your equilibrium. Reinforced by knowledge of what mankind has been through before, of how problems have been solved, of how grief has been faced, failed expectations assuaged, aspirations renewed. You’re in a place that for all its unworldly peacefulness can give you the equipment you need—a liberal arts education, language training, skill in learning how to learn, moral awareness. You carry your own golden parachute neatly tucked behind your eyes, between your ears. Enlarge it and repack it constantly. Know early that your happiness does not lie in the brick house by the golf course. It comes to you through coping and contributing. It is the by-product of your own productivity. It stems from your victory over loss and lovelessness. Be assured that the wisdom of wise women can change the world. Good luck.

□ William Kershner, assistant professor of theatre:

Diana Muldaur’s passion for acting came on at an early age and by the time she was 15, she was spending vacations doing summer stock in Cape Cod and Martha’s Vineyard. She entered Sweet Briar intent on studying art history, but instead majored in drama, graduating with honors in 1960.

Diana’s first professional link with the theatre was with APA, a New York/New Jersey-based theatre group that recreated classics; this led to her first off-Broadway performance in “The Balcony.” Broadway appearances included “Sideman and Son” with Sam Levine, “Poor Bitos” with Donald Pleasance and “A Very Rich Woman.”

Although not ready to leave the stage completely, she became fascinated with the film world and in the late ’60s began commuting to the West Coast while still performing in plays on the East Coast. Her many film credits include “The Swimmer” with Burt Lancaster, “McQ” with John Wayne, “Number One” with Charlton Heston, “One More Train To Rob” with George Peppard and “The Lawyer” with Barry Newman.

Diana’s career in television began with a series called “The Survivors” with Lana Turner, George Hamilton and Ralph Bellamy. Many of us saw her first in episodes of the original “Star Trek” series. She also won recognition for her role opposite Dennis Weaver in the “McCloud” series, had a recurring role on “The Tony Randall Show” and was nominated for an Emmy for “Born Free,” which took her to Africa for a year. Most recently she appeared in the highly-acclaimed series "A Year in the Life," which she found, "...a very important part of my life. And a very important product for America." She is unable to be with us tonight because filming has begun for a new series, "Star Trek: The Next Generation," in which she will play the chief medical officer, Dr. Katherine "Kate" Pulaski, aboard the Starship Enterprise.

In 1977 Diana joined the Board of Governors of the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences (best known for its annual presentation of the Emmy Awards) and in 1983 was elected president of the Academy, the first woman ever to hold that position. Previous to that she served on the board of the Screen Actors Guild.

Diana Muldaur is a fine example of what we encourage our students to aspire to accomplish. She could have been content with being a working actress, but also has become a leader in the television industry, an industry traditionally dominated by men. Ever a strong supporter of Sweet Briar and the liberal arts, she returned to campus in 1961 to direct a Paint and Patches production of "Picnic" and has been involved in alumnae affairs in California. When asked in an April 1988 interview for the White Plains, NY Reporter Dispatch what she felt was her greatest accomplishment, she said: "The greatest honor I've had was to be asked to give the graduation address at Sweet Briar College in 1984." In that address she told the graduating class that television has been responsible for portraying women as clichés, but that Sweet Briar turns out women ready to undertake real roles as single professional workers and more equal family partners.

Diana Muldaur is truly a distinguished alumna.

□ President Fry read Diana's acceptance speech at Opening Convocation:

I'm deeply honored to have been selected as a recipient of the Sweet Briar College Distinguished Alumna Award. It is most meaningful because it was awarded not by strangers but by family. Sweet Briar College gave me confidence in myself, structure in my life, and good friends and an extended family for all my years.

I thank you and I congratulate my fellow recipients.

And we say to our first three Distinguished Alumna honorees:

The Outstanding Alumna Award 1988

BY JUDITH GREER
SCHULZ '61

Lyn Dillard Grones '45

In 1968 on the recommendation of the Board of the Alumnae Association, President Pannell established "The Sweet Briar College Alumnae Award in Honor of the Class of 1910." The Award, presented each year at the Founders' Day Convocation, may be given to graduate alumnae who have been out of college for at least 15 years in recognition of outstanding service to the College in a volunteer capacity.

This year's recipient has been involved with Sweet Briar activities since the first day she arrived on campus as a freshman. Her special interests included Paint and Patches, the Sweet Briar News, the International Relations Club and Ains and Asses. She was a Tau Phi, a Bum Chum and vice president of student government. She majored in French.

Following graduation, she married a career intelligence army officer who served in World War II, Korea, Vietnam and in Burma and India. She lived in many parts of the world and was involved in various officer's wives clubs and their activities. She became interested in the Red Cross, working with the organization as a volunteer in Europe and the United States; eventually she served as chairman of her region and as a member of many national committees. In 1978 she was presented the prized Clara Barton Award.

Our honoree is interested in education at all levels and has served on a variety of boards and organizations supporting education. Her involvement with numerous civic endeavors includes membership on the speakers bureau for the United Way and work with her local garden club, with historical societies and with her church. Two favorite hobbies are hunting and the theatre.

She has demonstrated her devotion to Sweet Briar in innumerable ways. As a member of the Board of the Alumnae Association, she is chairman of the Finance Committee and Deferred Giving. She is active on the Council of the Friends of the Library. As a member of the Indiana Fletcher Williams Associates, she has included Sweet Briar in her will and she belongs to the Sweet Briar Circle (one of the College's large donor clubs). She served on the President's Strategic Planning Committee and is a valued member of the Board of Overseers (chairman of the Buildings and Grounds Committee), having the ability to judge issues through her own experiences and observations and also from the perspective of an alumna and a parent, as she is the mother of two graduates of Sweet Briar. Lyn Grones is the mother of Elizabeth "Keedie" Grones '76, Manager of Sweet Briar's Rogers' Riding Center, and Katherine Grones '79 of Virginia Beach, VA. Now she hopes that two granddaughters will follow their grandmother's footsteps.

A business woman, she spends many hours running a successful endeavor rather unusual for a woman — a tree farm.

Hers is a keen, quick mind, especially when dealing with figures. She has a delightful sense of humor and her own way of enjoying life. She knows more people than you can imagine, taking pleasure in friends of all ages.

She lives in Virginia Beach, VA and she is: LYN DILLARD GRONES OF THE CLASS OF 1945.

Congratulations, Lyn!

“Mister Chairman! Mister Chairman!” An Interview with Walter H. Brown

BY MARILYN A. ROSS
Assistant to the President
Sweet Briar College

Walter H. Brown

Walter H. Brown was named chairman of the Boards of Directors and Overseers at Sweet Briar College in September 1987. A partner in Brown Brothers, Harriman and Company, his financial and investment expertise directly benefits the board through his service on the Development Committee and the Finance Committee which he chairs. During the year of strategic planning recently completed, he chaired the Finance Issues Planning Committee and was a member of the Steering Committee which helped shape the overall planning process and the policy decisions which resulted.

He is no newcomer either to volunteer service in the field of education or to Sweet Briar. Holding the B.A. degree from Yale (economics), he is a former vice chairman of the Yale Alumni Board and president of the Yale Club of Central New Jersey. He also served as a trustee of Hotchkiss School and was president of the Hotchkiss Alumni Association. His wife, Catherine “Bunny” Barnett Brown ’49, has long been active in alumnae affairs and was editor of the Sweet Briar Alumnae Magazine for four years (1981 to 1985). As a result of Bunny’s work and activities, Walter became increasingly involved with the College. They both have given generously of their time and substance to Sweet Briar.

In a recent interview with Walter, we asked him about topics which we thought would interest his Sweet Briar family and are pleased to share his responses.

☐ Q: What sorts of interests do you have?

☐ A: In addition to international banking, my primary interests have been in the fields of public service and social agencies. The latter include work with United Funds and an international adoption service organization. My greatest satisfaction has come as a participating board member of educational institutions. My chamber of commerce interests include a long list involving Germany, Norway, Sweden and New York City. This has been a follow-up to my business activities and has helped improve my knowledge of, and connection with, these markets. My foreign travel began in 1954 when I embarked on two ten-week trips each year—one to Europe and one to Latin America. This was a real sacrifice to family life; business travelers nowadays rarely spend more than two or three weeks away from home. Over the years my travels have taken me to all parts of the globe with the exception of parts of Africa, Eastern Europe and Australasia. One builds up wonderful friendships in a wide variety of cultures.

☐ Q: How did you come to be involved with Sweden?

☐ A: My business connections with Sweden go back to the early ’50s. I became active with The Swedish American Chamber of Commerce after having been chairman of The German American Chamber for three years. As vice chairman of the Swedish group in New York, I have twice been involved with King Carl Gustaf and Queen Silvia, both charming people, during their visits to the United States. The most recent of these took place in April during a 15-city royal tour commemorating the 350th anniversary of Sweden’s first colony in the U.S. in Wilmington, Delaware.

Earlier this year, President Reagan proclaimed New Sweden ’88 in honor of Sweden and its influence in the development of America. In turn, Swedish business interests in the U.S., through the Chamber, made the first Lucia award to the President in recognition of his position on free trade and peace among nations. I was lucky enough to be part of the delegation presenting this award.

☐ Q: What does a Board of Overseers do? Is there any similarity between its chairmanship and professional positions you have held?

☐ A: I do not see my assignment as chairman of the boards of Sweet Briar College as much different from being a partner in a private banking firm or a director of a large publicly owned corporation. In management or surveillance, one must maintain a steady course of balancing decisions to satisfy present constituencies against the long-run financial soundness for future constituents—in Sweet Briar's case succeeding generations of students. We all want to deliver a quality product or service at a reasonable profit to attract future capital (endowment for Sweet Briar).

A college board should not involve itself with the day-to-day management of the institution—that is the prerogative and responsibility of the president. It should assist the latter in setting goals and policies, and establish procedures of surveillance of progress. It should audit the institution's financial soundness and spending policies, as well as its academic program and its adherence generally to its mission. While there are a number of risks out there for a smallish liberal arts college—unisex or coed—board members are very much aware of the need to raise student levels consistent with high quality entrance prerequisites, to refurbish dormitories, to maintain and compensate an excellent cadre of teachers, to improve national image and to raise sufficient endowment funds to accomplish all this as well as to meet an increased demand for financial aid.

Auditing of the curriculum and the effectiveness of our faculty has not yet been discussed at any great length even during our 12 months of forward planning. Surveillance of the current accreditation process is important, but it is vital that the board have some measurement of the degree to which we are teaching and the students are learning and of the product we are delivering, realizing that there are financial constraints to fulfilling everyone's wish list.

Board meetings should meld serious discussion with good humor and collegiality. Stories and anecdotes should not be long, and one-liners delivered in the Bob Hope style are the best. An ideal board member cannot be a combination of Leonardo da Vinci (versatility), Bernard Baruch (financial acumen) and Erasmus (scholastics), but we should look for at least one of each.

□ Q: Why are you so interested in Sweet Briar College?

□ A: Why am I devoting my time to Sweet Briar? There are two answers. First, Bunny made me do it, and second, it was the only way I could find to attend her reunions, which she has refused to allow for 36 years or so.

Bunny and I remember well the call from Wrede Petersmeyer, my predecessor as chairman, to join him and his wife (Frances Gregg '43) for a drink late one morning while we were all vacationing at John's Island in Florida. He said that Sweet Briar's president, Nenah Fry, and Mark Whittaker were also to be there. I was nervous about the whole idea since Bunny and I had an early afternoon starting time on the golf course, which I did not want to miss. I was sure it was going to be a request for financial support.

Wrede immediately put me at ease when he greeted us at the door by saying that they were not going to ask for money. On the other hand, my guard should have remained up because I was totally surprised when I was asked to serve on the Board of Overseers. I was getting a bit itchy about our tee-off time and rather quickly said yes after having been told that there would be only two or possibly three meetings a year. I proceeded to lose eight golf balls that afternoon, and over the next 15 months attended 12 college meetings. Wrede never warned me that we were about to embark on a year's long-range planning exercise. However, this experience stood me in good stead when I was asked to be chairman. I have enjoyed the SBC connection tremendously and have felt comfortable in the assignment.

Those who have worked with Walter and Bunny enthusiastically affirm that the pleasure is mutual. We are grateful for their good stewardship... and we promise to keep both of them in golf balls for the duration of his chairmanship! ♦

A Family Affair

BY CORNELIA PERKINS
ZINSSER '52

Many of us who read this magazine are full of concern for the world, for the troubles afflicting those who are close to us and for the fate of whole segments of society, such as the homeless in our own country or the victims of war abroad. The clue to the concerns of Nancy Vaughn Kelly '48 and the way that she handles them may lie in her Sweet Briar education. She speaks of the discipline to which her major professor Belle Boone Beard subjected her when she was studying sociology in the 1940s. She recalls Mary Ely Lyman and Beth Muncy who, with B. B. Beard "really expended an awful lot of caring and guidance and challenges to move me into responsible human 'beinghood.'" This "grass roots social worker," as she calls herself, has been involved for years, without benefit of an M.S.W., in a host of projects and programs which have changed the lives of those they reach.

Following Nancy's progress by way of reunion questionnaires or from hearing her own brisk account, one gains a strong sense of her growth in concern and commitment. In a rather familiar process, Nancy went from total preoccupation with little children and with passing interests (bridge and garden clubs) through such enthralling novelties as "a new house" when she was ten years out of college, to involvement with community programs and a well-earned reputation as a doer—a progression by which scores of us at middle age have earned our merit badges as professional volunteers. In Nancy's case the most recent installment of the story is unique—and she has brought her whole family along with her.

Nancy and husband Dan, a semi-retired lawyer/businessman and active volunteer in his own right, have worked with many different people and problems in the Northern Virginia refugee community. The area around the District of Columbia attracts numerous grade and younger half-sister Thar, a third-grader.

Obviously Nancy's energy and concern passed on to her daughter, and Susie's involvement with the Roeung family is an interesting generational twist in this remarkable story. Susie, who attended SBC for a year, received a B.A. from William and Mary in 1974. A picture editor for Time-

Life books, she shares her apartment with Roth, 18 and Sar, 19, the middle daughters in the family. (Older siblings are on their own.) Nearer to them in age, she can offer supervision as an older sister with a youthful point of view and a strong sense of responsibility, while the needs of the younger children are effectively met by the elder Kellys. The Roeung children were in and out of the Kelly households for years in an informal way, but the formal, permanent foster parent relationships have been in place two years.

The youngsters are all in school, doing well. It is important to understand the history of this family and others like it to know how much that brief statement means and to appreciate the efforts of the children and the direction which Nancy, Dan and Susie have given them. The following paragraph, written by Susie for a fund-raising project she directs to enable refugee children to attend a private summer program, tells the story succinctly:

"...A small minority of Southeast Asian teenagers...excels in school. Many young Cambodians...lost their fathers as well as other family members to war and starvation before they fled to this country. Many had never attended

Southeast Asians and the Kellys previously sponsored a Vietnamese family of six through their church. Now they sponsor and are advocates for a Cambodian refugee family: three of the family's eight children live with them as permanent foster children. Their daughter Susie Kelly, age 36, has two more of the siblings as foster children in her home. Nancy's new generation includes Map, a ninth-grade boy, Khar, a girl in seventh school before and many drop out of school because they find themselves hopelessly behind. Many are frustrated by the English language and are too afraid or too proud to ask anyone for help and have no one at home who knows more than they do. Many have severe family problems escalated by having to adjust to American culture... family groups live in isolated 'ghettos' and remain on welfare. Most disturbing are frustrated and hopeless young people... repeating the violence of their past by joining gangs and committing crimes against each other."

The Kellys' intervention with their Cambodian children has made the gloomy prospect Susie describes far less likely for the Roeungs, but their history follows her account closely. The children's mother, with no education or particular skills, was married at 15 to an older, well-to-do businessman who was killed by the Pol Pot regime in 1975. Everything was taken from the family; before Sar was six the children and their mother were wandering penniless in a wartorn land. Inevitably they were separated, a familiar horror in that period now called the Cambodian Holocaust. Susie describes their plight: "These... young people were forced to leave their country and their obliterated culture or be killed. At a young age many experienced the horrors of war and anarchy, slave labor in the camps of the Khmer Rouge, starvation and the death of family members. They survived by living hand-to-mouth, lying and cheating to stay alive..." The Roeungs were in a number of different camps over a five-year period. During this time the older girls worked full days in the rice fields. There were breakouts and escapes, recapture and a thousand terrors. Nancy suggests that the most accessible account of the sufferings of their devastated country is in the award winning film "The Killing Fields."

Despite the chaos in Cambodia the Roeung family eventually was reunited in a Thai border refugee camp where Map sold rice as a very small boy. Sheltered by an older brother, the family was cleared by the International Refugee Committee, sent to the Philippines and finally to Columbia, Maryland in 1981. They moved on to a Southeast Asian ghetto in Alexandria. Susie tells us: "Once in this country, most young refugees feel lost... fear their American peers. Many live on welfare in cultural 'pockets' and lack practical Western living skills. Since most educated Cambodian men were killed by the communists, there are few male heads of household... Asian refugees... find themselves straddling two cultures and feel ambivalent to both."

When the Kellys came to know the Roeungs it was evident that considerable support, which the mother could not provide, was needed to help the children through a multitude of problem situations—social, medical, psychological, academic. Nancy says that the kinds of learning which are semi-automatic in our culture—the measurement of time and space, for example—are totally absent in these children: no watches or rulers or yardsticks, no acquisition of such basic skills, much less the refinement of reading and writing. Nevertheless in a couple of years, with good cooperation from the public schools, Nancy's brood has mastered English, worked hard and achieved well in their schoolwork, some even attaining the Honor Roll. One of the older girls talks of the possibility of college after high school, a concept that had no meaning for her when she first met Nancy.

I find the most vital aspect of this story the impact which the Kellys as a family have had on their foster children. Dan's business background and lawyer's skills, Nancy's knowledge gained from years of experience with social agencies and the vast energy and compassion of the three Kellys have been lavishly expended on the Roeungs. Thinking of the endless detail of child rearing and the daily effort involved, I marvel at what the Kellys have done. Nancy and Dan had already "paid their dues," so to speak, by successfully raising a daughter and son. Where they are re-parenting (Nancy is quick and clear to say they are not being grandparents!), Susie is the older sister in a way she probably never imagined when she only had younger brother Derek. She and Derek have worked as a fund-raising team to help their own and other young Cambodians attend an extraordinary summer program called Legacy International, located in Bedford, Virginia. Susie describes the program: "The Cambodian Youth Fund was created... by a group of volunteers who see the Legacy International Youth Program as a vehicle for giving promising young refugees the opportunity to see a positive future for themselves. Volunteers do fund-raising projects year-round to provide... scholarships to the program. Past and present scholarship recipients work side by side with adult volunteers on these projects. Our aim is to provide a positive experience, so that they might become 'givers' rather than 'takers.' Legacy provides a caring, supportive atmosphere... Students come to Legacy from 35 countries and all economic, social, cultural and political backgrounds."

There is a completeness in the Kelly's response to their Cambodian family. They are totally, mutually involved, and a true family understanding of the needs of the refugee group has developed in both generations. Finally, there is a shared, ongoing commitment since permanent foster care, by definition, extends to age 21 and requires that foster children complete high school. The Kelly's involvement is long-term and demanding. But the rewards are great, according to Nancy. Life is a circus, she says—especially when a Thanksgiving feast includes 35 loosely related Cambodian friends. There's a child who plays the violin, another who dances with the Cambodian American Dance Troupe, learning something of her native culture, and a young acolyte who was confirmed in 1987. Myriad minor successes and failures contribute daily to the growth and well-being of these youngsters, as well as to the satisfaction of their foster parents.

Sweet Briar is proud to claim Nancy Kelly: we honor her and her family for their work. They have freely given love and support to the Roeung children and to the community of newly assimilated Southeast Asians which they represent. They have made real the promise of a new start in a new land. ♦

Directed by a kind of logic of the heart, Nancy Kelly has served her Northern Virginia community in a variety of ways...in some cases as a founder or fund-raiser, in others a board member, sometimes in charge of volunteers...but always as a guiding spirit. Agencies she has served include: Senior Citizens Employment Service; Community Welfare Council of Alexandria; Hopkins House tutoring program; Alexandria Refugee Advisory Council; United Way Emergency Needs Task Force; Alexandria Community Y (particularly its Womens Room and Resource Center); New Hope, a residential program for recovering mental patients; Northern Virginia Family Service; and Immanuel-on-the-Hill Episcopal Church, where she has done innumerable jobs.

Liberal Arts and the Performing Arts

BY ANN TEDARDS '70

Artists frequently are asked how they came to do what they do. My answer begins with my freshman year audition for the Sweet Briar Choir when Mr. Gilpin asked me if I had ever had voice lessons and would I like to study. I said no, I hadn't and yes, I would be interested, but how much would lessons cost? Upon learning that voice lessons cost the same amount as riding, which my parents had given me permission to take, I called home to ask if I might trade horses for voice.

Well, I never got on a horse at Sweet Briar, not because I couldn't find the time but because Gil had opened a door into a world which has fascinated, compelled and challenged me to my limits ever since. I am eternally grateful and indebted to this energetic, optimistic, knowledgeable little man who was my first voice teacher. Gil knew how to nurture a young voice—how to lay a technical foundation which could function as a yardstick through the subsequent ups and downs of a maturing voice. His ideals of sound became and have remained mine over 18 years of constant change and growth. I'm not sure how many of my colleagues can say that about their first voice teachers! For me, Gil was the initial stroke of professional good fortune.

In spite of this instantaneous attraction to the study of singing, my association with it had begun as an extracurricular activity and soon I was to face an inner conflict over the declaration of an academic major. I delayed the decision as long as possible, but finally at the end of sophomore year, time had run out. I needed help. I asked for an appointment with Dean Sims, who helped me to see that my talent had emerged and been recognized and that a major in voice was the logical course to take.

I must admit, though, that even after a graduate degree, 16 years of professional performance and a year as an assistant professor of voice at the University of Oregon, I still am not convinced that musical performance studies belong in the academic realm. It seems logical and natural to offer academic degrees in the performing arts only when the study is a part of a larger concept, that of the humanities and liberal arts, rather than an isolated specialization, devoid of cultural, social and historical perspective. I worry about non-Sweet Briar-like churning out of music students who have learned their conducting beat patterns, know how to play major and minor scales on seven instruments and can sing a few Art Songs in rudimentary Italian, German and French, but have little idea about the place music has held and holds in the "collective unconscious" (to borrow from Jung) of the human race. I do not mean to say that serious and arduous study of the discipline is not required, but the crossover into "extracurricular" is problematic in most academic institutions and my observation is that the problem has been skirted rather than faced head-on.

But back to "How did you come to do what you do?" "Long answer" mode is upon me: I feel compelled to talk about why my connection to the art of singing was so immediate and so intense. In fact, studying and performing the classical vocal repertoire draws together an array of interests which otherwise might remain separate areas—music, foreign languages, movement (sports and dance), poetry and drama and international relations. During my formative years, music always was a part of my life. I studied piano (albeit sometimes reluctantly) for about six years and sang in every church and school choir and ensemble possible. Languages were a special interest, perhaps due to growing up as an Air Force child living abroad off and on. In high school I organized a French Club and did special projects at the local university in Russian Studies. Sports were a big part of my life (eight years of field hockey, tennis since the age of ten, basketball, softball—everything available to a girl growing up in the '60s). Poetry and drama came later, but observing my mother teach high school speech, drama and English and direct plays was certainly an influence. And international relations? That was my other choice of academic major! (I ended up with an undeclared double major, completing course work for an A.B. in international affairs and harboring a secret desire to attend law school and work in the field of international law.) I was a young person, not unlike many others, whose interests were varied and potentially conflicting. It didn't help to be named "Best All-Round" at high school graduation—I wanted someone to tell me what to do with my life.

With the first voice lesson, I think that I realized that I could draw it all together—music, foreign languages (Italian, French, German, Russian), movement (physical coordination and rhythm, strength, stamina, concentration), poetry and drama (opera, the drama contained in one poem), international relations (linked with languages and the universality of music, not to mention the ensuing professional opportunities for travel and temporary expatriotism). I had found a discipline which would afford me the opportunity to explore multiple interests, rather than force me to narrow my focus. The fact that I was attending an institution that required a solid liberal arts course of study enabled me to interweave my interests—a process I have continued to enjoy all the years following my formal education and which I believe has contributed to my overall success as an interpreter of music.

My career as a singer has taken me places I never dreamed I would go. Initially, my strong interest in the area of early music performance practice culminated in a professional engagement with the New York Pro Musica Antiqua, which included three national tours and concert series at both Alice Tully Hall and The Cloisters. When the Pro Musica folded in 1974, I was left "high and dry" in New York City, but managed to scrape through as a free-lance singer for several years, building my oratorio repertoire and singing professional chorus gigs under some of the world's finest conductors, among them Bernstein, Boulez and Solti. As my voice matured, I acquired a curiosity about opera (an area that was a bit underplayed at SBC) and began attending acting master classes for opera singers, held by the late Met soprano Judith Raskin at the 92nd Street Y. In 1978 I was admitted to the International Opera Studio in Zurich, but chose instead to attend the summer American Institute of Musical Studies in Graz, Austria, because it lasted only two months and offered similar training (teaching the American singer about a career in Europe).

Towards the end of the summer, agents came to hear us and suddenly I was engaged for the approaching season at the opera house in Ulm, West Germany, with no time to return to New York for a supply of winter clothes! I stayed in Ulm for a year, but declined a re-engagement for a second year and moved on to another house in Klagenfurt, Austria. That year I entered international voice competitions and was thrilled to win the Mozart Prize in Barcelona, Spain. After two and a half years in provincial Austria I decided to return to a cultural metropolis, moved to Vienna and studied with a voice teacher there. Shortly after my arrival the Austrian Radio engaged me to sing a contemporary work scored for orchestra and baritone and soprano solos (composer: Wolfgang Rihm; text: Friedrich Nietzsche). After the concert I was approached by a representative from one of the major European concert agents and through them received the bulk of my engagements for the ensuing five years. I truly had a marvelous time living in Vienna and appearing as a soloist with the Vienna Symphony, the Austrian Radio Orchestra, the Vienna Boys Choir and various chamber ensembles performing music from the Baroque to music hot off the press. Concert tours took me to Italy, Germany, Bulgaria, Spain, The Netherlands, France and Greece—nice opportunities for a person interested in other languages and cultures and international politics.

Toward the end of 1986 I began to feel uncomfortable about living abroad. I had met a few American singers who, having completed their professional careers in Europe, were feeling homesick for the United States in their retirement. I thought that I would prefer to make that adjustment earlier and began to investigate possible avenues for returning to the U.S.A. The Washington Opera hired me for its production of Monteverdi's The Coronation of Poppea in the winter of 1987. While singing in Washington I sent some applications to universities which had advertized openings on their voice faculties. No sooner had I returned to Vienna than the University of Oregon telephoned with an invitation to interview. So, back to the States I went—this time all the way across, to the idyllic Pacific Northwest for the first time in my life. When the job was offered, I swallowed hard, said farewell to my Bohemian life in Europe and came home.

I often hear the observation made that

"Despina" as the "Doctor", Così fan tutte

I am not a “typical” soprano. And when I was living in Europe, people sometimes remarked that I was not a “typical” American. Either I have successfully dodged the pigeonhole syndrome or I am simply by nature a global, eclectic sort who landed in a time and society bent on intense specialization and political nationalism. Or perhaps the ways in which my Sweet Briar experiences influenced my life make me atypical. Whatever the reasons, being a musician has afforded me the luxury of choosing my own distance from the mainstream. This luxury comes with some trade-offs, of course—lack of financial and job security, for one—but if living on the edge is attractive to a person, then a career in the arts is a good route to take. ♦

Ann Tedards as “Despina” in Mozart’s Così fan tutte, Ulmer Theatre, 1979

After graduating from Sweet Briar with a major in voice, Ann Tedards earned the M.M. in voice from UNC-Chapel Hill in 1972 and began her career as a professional singer. She is the author of a biography of Marian Anderson, published in 1986 by Chelsea House Publishers (NYC) as part of a series of books entitled “American Women of Achievement.” Since 1987 Anne has been an assistant professor of voice at the University of Oregon. She continues to perform professionally, both in this country and abroad.

Sweet Briar On The Journey Of The Czars

BY ROSALIE BARRINGER
WORNHAM '51

Remember the colorful brochure you received along with the Christmas bills last January? The six-page color spread with the golden onion domes and the shot of the cruise ship announcing two glorious weeks in the Soviet Union with everything included and six days cruising down the Volga? You sighed, paid the Christmas bills and threw the promo for the dream trip in the round file. We, on the other hand, threw away the Christmas bills and sent in our deposit for the Journey of the Czars—uncharacteristic behavior for two people reputed to be conservative, cautious long-range planners—Whee! Let's GO!

They say that timing is everything; skillful presentation of exotic and distant places can make one a little crazy in the middle of winter. But it was more than that. For us, who uprooted and migrated to California over 30 years ago, there was (along with the lure of the golden domes and the cruise ship Alexander Pushkin) the yen to hear soft Virginia speech patterns once again, to experience the warmth, the friendliness and the sense of community we took for granted through four years at SBC and VMI. For 30 years I have had recurring dreams of the dells, dogwood in the spring, the road to the Monument (hiked in ankle-deep mud past the apple orchard), the whiff of the dairy when the wind blew from the south, red brick buildings with white columns—the remembered aura of Sweet Briar. I was disappointed when my girls chose Stanford without even considering Sweet Briar and Tommy went to Berkeley in spite of a bid to UVA. Of course one can't go home again, but could we have the best of both worlds? The combination of gracious and delightful traveling companions, a trip with all details planned, a mysterious new culture to explore and a full-faced look beyond an iron curtain lifted by Glasnost was irresistible. A traveling corps of 150 and the prospect of being herded about en masse was the only negative aspect.

We spent the next seven months reading, listening and watching anything remotely connected with the USSR and skimming history books saved from college (ours and more recently, our children's). Russian language tapes played in Tom's car, vocabulary drill took place at the dinner table (with very limited success!), A Day in the Life of the Soviet Union occupied the coffee table. We bought sink stoppers (in two sizes, just in case), tp, a new camera and 30 rolls of film in an X-ray-proof bag. Daily weather reports and temperature ranges in Moscow were logged.

Finally July 27th arrived. With name tags and SBC tulip bulb buttons dutifully, firmly pinned on, we assembled at Kennedy's Aer Lingus gate with 30 other Sweet Briarites to be warmly greeted by Noreen Parker of our alumnae office. And there were familiar faces... Kitty Hart Belew '49 from sophomore year in Randolph and Nan Locke Rosa '53 from the field hockey team... of course we connected. We hadn't changed that much!

Passport and visa check upon arrival in Moscow was a heart stopper as we were silently scrutinized, some of us for as long as five minutes, by a young Soviet Army person with a face so stern and unsmiling we wondered if the "thaw" were an illusion. No one was detained, we all "passed" inspection and subsequent encounters with uniformed authority-types were nonthreatening. Traffic policemen are unarmed and military personnel in places frequented by tourists were clean-shaven youths, nearly all male, on leave to act as tourists also. Military presence in metropolitan areas is low-key and no military bases or installations were on any of our travel routes—not suprising considering that Intourist, the Soviet Travel and Tourist Bureau, plans what one sees, where and when and handles all transportation, tours and internal travel arrangements. Our Intourist guides, for the most part, were attractive, outgoing and knowledgeable. University educated, they were walking encyclopedias of facts and figures. Most had a good sense of humor and were quick to adapt to the relaxed, infomal manner which characterized our group after the first evening cocktail party get-together. Our arrival was delayed six hours; the vodka, champagne and caviar served at the icebreaker cocktail party at the Cosmos Hotel set the tone for the camaraderie which developed among the travelers—Sweet Briar, Hollins, Mary Baldwin, Hampden-Sydney, Washington and Lee and William and Mary alums from the '30s to the '60s—everyone knew someone or was related to someone who knew someone. The network connected and my fears of not being able to plug in after 30 years faded. Southerners are enthusiastic travelers, well-informed, flexible and able to face delays and inconveniences with humor and equanimity (including the 16 folks whose luggage finally caught up ten days later in Leningrad). The few who did not fit this pattern stood out; by the morning of the third day the group dynamics had been established with roles of leaders, followers, helpers, entertainers, facilitators, conciliators and complainers clearly identified, all in the spirit of friendship and goodwill.

Our personal goal was to see everything, not waste a moment and remember it all in perfect detail. We fell short.

Rosalie "Pinkie" Wornham and husband in the courtyard of the Kremlin in Moscow.

To choose one descriptive word, "MASSIVE" conveys the impression. Buildings, statues, tapestries, paintings, monuments, palaces, towers and cathedrals, all are larger than life. By the year 2000 a national goal is for each Soviet family to be housed in a three-room (plus kitchen, bath and balcony) apartment in a multi-story complex constructed of preformed concrete. Entire self-contained mini cities of apartment complexes ring each metropolitan area we visited (Moscow, Kazan, Ulyanovsk, Volgograd, Leningrad). These are served by fleets of buses, trollies (fare: 5 kopecks or about 12 cents) and subways. In Moscow eight million people occupy multi-story housing; one remembers the cartoons of the Levittown postwar era, about people getting lost because all buildings look the same. Major streets are eight to ten lanes wide, easily accommodating the volume of private automobiles. Enormous red stars, illuminated for holidays and parades, adorn streetlight poles. Parks and grassy areas (uncut and untrimmed in Moscow but carefully tended everywhere else) occupy many city blocks, each with a dominating statue of Lenin along with statues of heroes of the Revolution and The Great Patriotic War (WWII). The Cosmos Hotel, built for the 1980 Olympics, is massive with 2000 rooms and 40 elevators. Red Square is massive. Ivan the Terrible's cannon (the largest in the world!) did not fit into the camera lens. Repair work and reconstruction is constant and many buildings look old before they are completed. The statue of Mother Russia in Volgograd (the former "Hero City of Stalingrad") is 86 meters tall atop a hill approached by 3000 steps. (It was 98°F that day.) The Volga River flows for 2500 miles draining a million-square-mile area. Massive. Leningrad has 300 bridges. The Lenin Volzhskaya Hydroelectric plant at Togliatti (built with "unrepatriated" labor after the war) boasts 21 turbines, each taller than a four-story building, and provides electricity for Moscow 1000 miles away. In the same city where the Volzsky Motor Works produces three million cars annually (70% of the USSR production), 4500 workers sit down to lunch daily at the same time, each in his assigned chair and place. The Hermitage, the Winter Palace of the Czars, houses three million art treasures. Massive. Beds, bath towels, Aeroflot seats and tomatoes are not massive.

Lenin is revered, his likeness in various attitudes and moods (avuncular in a portrait in the kindergarten room, contemplative in the statue outside his university in Kazan) is anywhere and everywhere. Young Pioneers, two boys and two girls in uniform holding mock rifles, form a daytime honor guard at his birthplace and his boyhood home in Ulyanovsk. The guard changes every 20 minutes; the privilege of standing guard is eagerly sought. Stalin is "out." We saw no likenesses of him anywhere, nor of those who came after him. Gorbachev, Glasnost, Perestroika are "in" and a spirit of optimism prevails. People on the street in summer are well dressed in bright colors; each little girl has at least one large bow in her hair. Boys have short hair, wear knee pants and Adidas-type shoes like kids everywhere. There is no litter because there is little to buy, hence little to throw away. Soviet citizens queue up for everything and while more expensive than the state stores, the free open markets offer a variety of fresh produce to buy. The supply of consumer goods is limited and costly, a fact that those currently in power hope to remedy. Alcoholism is a problem in the Soviet Union; in an attempt to discourage the consumption of vodka, stores where alcoholic beverages may be purchased are open from 2:00 to 7:00 p.m. five days a week. Bars in the Intourist hotels are closed to Soviet citizens, but there are a few "neighborhood pubs."

The impact of The Great Patriotic War is profoundly evident everywhere. A tetrahedron at the side of the road on the route to Moscow from the airport marks the spot where the German Army was stopped and turned back. Volgograd, née Stalingrad, is a new city built since 1945. One ruined building, a mill by the river, remains as a monument to 200 days of constant shelling and the loss of 600,000 citizens and soldiers. Parks, soldier monuments, old women selling flowers to be placed on tombs and mass graves of unknown defenders, eternal flames guarded by Young Pioneers give the entire city a shrinelike essence. The Mother Russia statue complex is a memorial shrine of epic proportions, along with the adjacent Pantheon of Heroes where visitors slowly walk the interior perimeter to the recorded music of Bach, Beethoven and Schubert. The sculptured hand holding the eternal flame is 20 feet tall and the names of thousands of defenders adorn the mosaic walls. One statue of a woman holding the body of a young man, perhaps her son, bears similarity to the Pieta. Tears were impossible to suppress, so overwhelming was the realization of the loss and the suffering endured here. Olga, our Intourist guide, said, "Hardly anyone in my generation has known their grandparents. Almost no one has ever known a grandfather." Those of the "missing generation," the Babushka pensioners sweeping the streets and acting as people watchers in the museums are mute testimony. Nearly all are women.

Cosmonaut worship is a cult. Sputniks, rockets, space themes dominate signs, posters, friezes around monuments. Sputnik launched a new era and Yuri Gagarin is still the National Hero. We acknowledged Sputnik but balked when the sites where the Caterpillar tractor and the McCormick reaper were invented were solemnly and seriously pointed out. Good manners, "good taste and good judgment" precluded catcalls from the Sweet Briar contingent. Alums of other colleges were not so tied to tradition!

Children are adored, cherished and protected. Families are encouraged to have more than one child and substantial ruble bonuses are paid for each additional child. Maternity leaves are generous, medical care is free, full-time day care is provided. We visited a showcase kindergarten/day-care center in Ulyanovsk and were greeted by a courtyard full of scrubbed, well dressed, beautiful Caucasian three-and four-year-olds waving little Soviet flags. After a tour of the spotless classrooms, nap rooms (neat little rows of box beds, each with a pillow arranged in a peak), playrooms and mini locker rooms, we were treated to tea and sweets "prepared by the children" and a flawless performance of songs and dances whose main theme was World Peace and No More Fear of Nuclear War and Bombs Falling While We Sleep. It was a slick PR number but, even so, the children were enchanting, the hospitality warmly extended and the experience delightful. Pictures were taken, gifts exchanged and a good time was had by all. A tour of a Young Pioneer Camp (9-to 14-year-olds) was equally intriguing...and similarly "set up." The children, in a summer camp mode, seemed genuinely interested in us although we all felt a bit "hustled" for gifts. Our three dozen ballpoint pens went quickly and we were glad to have a pocket full of San Diego buttons to pass out. I did NOT give up my Sweet Briar tulip bulb pin in spite of requests! At the gate to the camp a crowd not made up of Young Pioneers (no red scarf!) also pressed us for gifts.

Even in the egalitarian society, some are on the inside of the fence and some are on the outside. Young Pioneer palaces and camps are sponsored and supported by individual trade unions. Here again they were all Caucasian, we saw no minority youngsters in the showcase.

What would we like to repeat? A chance to travel with this group again and to maintain the found-again "Virginia Connection". . . Our time in the Hermitage again and again and again, two hours in this magnificent place provides only a tantalizing taste. . . Another look at Red Square at night and another performance of the Moscow Circus. . . More early morning walks, several miles through neighborhoods near home base hotels, saying "dobryn-oostro" to passersby and watching their reactions. . . Another hydrofoil ride across the Gulf of Finland, this time without the rain. . . and time "at leisure" in Leningrad, one of the world's most beautiful cities. What would we NOT like to do again? Fly Aeroflot (that's a real whizzer and I am not a white-knuckle flier). . . Have pear juice for breakfast. . . Brush our teeth with "safe" fizzy lemon soda from a cloudy green bottle. . . Entrust our luggage to anyone. . . Drink warm Pepsi. . . Ride in a Moscow taxi or an "air-conditioned" Soviet tour bus. . . Visit the rest rooms in the Kazan airport.

Would we do it all again? DA, da, da. With a Sweet Briar alumnae group? Most certainly, double-DA, da, da! Noreen and Kitty Seaman, our SBC professor on tour, greatly enriched our experience. Tom claims I am like the family dog: You say, "Wanna go for a ride?", open the car door and I jump in, not caring where we are going. Our passports are current, we can pack in 20 minutes and I can't wait to see what the alumnae office dreams up for next year. Remember what you missed by paying your Christmas bills! Spasebo, Sweet Briar, for a unique and wonderful experience. ♦

Ed. note: The Sweet Briar Alumnae Association will sponsor a second trip to Russia, June 30 through July 13, 1989.

Rosalie "Pinkie" Wornham's three grown children include daughter Wendy, a pediatrician in Cambridge, MA, daughter Cynthia who works in marketing and international public relations in NYC and son Tommy, "the youngest vice president Wells Fargo Bank has ever had!" After 20 years of "wifeing and mothering," Pinkie began her own career in independent education and has been Associate in Admissions at The Bishop's School in La Jolla, CA for 15 years. She claims readiness to travel "at the drop of a hat" with her "roommate of 37 years," husband Tom.

Report of Alumnae Council 1988

By Trish Neale Van Clief '72, Second Vice President and Council and Reunion Planning Chairman

More than 125 alumnae returned to SBC October 1-4 for Alumnae Council '88. The days were full of meetings and discussions of the upcoming year's activities, including club programs, fund-raising, student recruitment and Reunion. Dedicated alumnae renewed their ties to the College, strengthened old friendships and made new ones, then focused on short- and long-range goals designed to maintain, strengthen and encourage interest in and knowledge of Sweet Briar College.

Among the session's highlights was the Alumnae Council Seminar held Monday, October 3, designed to present a consolidated picture of what Sweet Briar is today and how we as alumnae can represent this to today's young women. Speaking on behalf of creative club programming was our beloved director of the Alumnae Association, Ann Morrison Reams '42. Everything from lectures to tours to mini-classes have proven effective in bringing club members together in a productive way. Carol Beaird Riedlin '80, president of the Denver Club, outlined the extremely popular "College for a Day" program, which features lectures from participating colleges in a one-day intensive seminar; over 300 people joined this year's Denver group. Sandra Taylor Craighead '74, Financial Aid Chairman, spoke on behalf of the Richmond, VA Club, as did Barbara Tragakis Conner '85 for the Washington, DC Club. In both clubs, "networking" has provided SB alumnae with valuable information in many fields, from house hunting, to seeking medical help, to job placement opportunities.

Alumnae were issued a challenge in the second half of the three-hour program. Director of Admissions Allie Love called upon alumnae to use our College's best asset—ourselves—in encouraging young women to look at Sweet Briar. Never before has competition for the best and brightest been tougher for women's colleges. There is no question that enrollment is the critical challenge facing our alma mater as the 21st century approaches. As alumnae, we can help identify and encourage top young women in our communities by mentioning Sweet Briar whenever possible—parties, committees, office chit-chat. All you need to be an Alumnae Admissions Representative is love for Sweet Briar. The admissions office will send you all material regarding facts and figures—but nothing is more compelling to a young person than a one-on-one comment from a loyal alumna.

Other highlights of Council:
☐ Introduction of Monica Dean, new director of public relations: she will be working to put Sweet Briar's "best foot forward" in all aspects of publicity.

☐ Student Panel: Student Government President Brooke Haw, House Presidents' Chairman Latane Spencer and Judicial Committee Chairwoman Wesley Powell impressed us with their poise, frankness and ability during an informative panel discussion.

☐ State of the College Update: following an elegant cocktail party with faculty in the Pannell Center, dinner was served in the Wailes Center for alumnae, department heads and the senior staff. President Nenah Fry, Vice President and Treasurer Tom Connors, Vice President for College Relations Bill Meadows, Dean Robin Bowers and Dean of Student Affairs Bob Barlow brought us up to date on Sweet Briar today. A lively question and answer period spotlighted again the need to locate the best and the brightest students, so many of whom lean toward coed campuses.

☐ The impressive and moving Alumnae Memorial Service was conducted by The Reverend Susan Lehman. Lisa Claypool, a senior from Okemos, MI, was the soloist.

☐ Founders' Day, featuring the address "Having It All: Opportunities For Women In The '80s And Beyond," by Nancyellen Keane '78. Everyone was elated at the announcement by Sweet Briar Alumnae Association President Judy Greer Schulz '61 that 1988's Outstanding Alumna Award recipient is Lyn Dillard Grones '45.

We left campus to head home to our many different states and communities with renewed spirit and determination. The unique legacy of Sweet Briar is her alumnae. The bond of excellence in values and education, kept strong by tradition and vital by continuing vision, is a tie that leads us into the future with confidence. Alumnae Council brings it all into focus. All alumnae are encouraged to return to this invigorating weekend held each fall.

WANTED: BANQUET-SIZED TABLE

Anyone who has a banquet-sized table (the bigger the better!) she would be willing to donate to the College, please contact Jocelyn Palmer Connors '62, P.O. Box AB, Sweet Briar, VA 24595, (804)-381-5602. Table is needed for conference room in Fletcher.

Helen McClure Gager Award 1988

Nancy Jenkins Copeland '72 is the recipient of the Helen M. Gager Award in Chemistry, in recognition of her distinguished work in the field of chemistry. She holds the Ph.D. in molecular biology from Indiana University. After two post-doctoral fellowships, she became associate staff scientist at the Jackson Laboratory, Bar Harbor, ME. She taught two years at the University of Cincinnati College of Medicine and currently is Section Head, Molecular Genetics of Development, Mammalian Genetics Laboratory, National Cancer Institute. She has published 53 papers in her field.

At lunch during Council, Oct. 4, 1988, L-R: Nancy St. Clair Talley '56, Snowdon Durham Kisner '59, Sarah T. Ramage, Mary Cooke Carle '59, Ann Young Bloom '59

New Assistant Dean for SBC

Barbara Temple-Thurston has joined the administrative staff as assistant dean and director of academic advising. Dr. Temple-Thurston came to Sweet Briar from Northern State College, Aberdeen, SD, where she most recently served as assistant professor of English and director of the honors program.

Dr. Temple-Thurston received her B.A. from the University of Witwatersrand, Johannesburg, South Africa, with a major in English literature, and her M.S. Ed. (with major in English Education) and her Ph.D. (with major in Modern British literature and minors in Victorian and Modern Continental literature) from Southern Illinois University. She is an expert on post-colonial literature, has presented many papers on aspects of South African literature and recently published an article on Nadine Gordimer in the journal World Literature Written in English. An article on James Joyce, "The Reader As Absentminded Beggar: Recovering South Africa in Ulysses," is forthcoming in the James Joyce Quarterly.

A recipient of the 1987 Burlington Northern Faculty Award for excellence in teaching, research and service, she has participated in a National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH) Summer Seminar at Cornell University and an NEH Summer Institute at Indiana University. She was elected to the Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi in 1979.

The Sweet Briar community welcomed Dr. Temple-Thurston, her husband Peter, a practicing artist and art educator and their 15-year-old daughter, Beth, in mid July.

Sweet Briar Riding Sweatshirts

Help support the Riding Council: buy "Sweet Briar Riding" sweatshirts and corduroy baseball caps! Proceeds go toward Riding Council activities. Sweatshirts (gray with lettering "Sweet Briar Riding" in pink, Sizes L and XL) are $25.00 + $3.00 p/h per shirt (VA residents add 4.5% tax). Caps (gray with pink lettering or pink with gray; adjustable backstraps, one size fits all) are $10.00 + $3.00 p/h. Please make checks payable to Sweet Briar Riding Council and send to: Leslie Carson, Head of Riding Council, P.O. Box 266, Sweet Briar, VA 24595.

SBC Staff Service Award Recipients Honored

Fourteen Sweet Briar employees who have worked at the College for 10 years or more received Staff Recognition Service Awards at the Founders' Day Convocation.

Honored for 30 years of service were Emma Johnson (Food Services) and James H. Rose (Physical Plant). Five honorees have been at Sweet Briar for 20 years: Annie Branham (Wailles Center), Preston Brown (Riding Center), Susan Kitchen (Food Services), Carson Warrick (Food Services), Patricia Wydner (JYF). Seven were thanked for 10 years on the job: Roy Barbour (Grounds), Anita Hildebrandt (Academic Secretary), Wayne Irving (Security), Diane King (Book Shop), Willis M. Smoot, Jr. (Physical Plant), Debbie D. Shipe (Security), Cecile Vosburg (Information Center).

1988 Bulb Report

This year 47 clubs, Solos and the alumnae office sold 1,167 bulb orders for a total of $73,644.37. 1988 top-selling clubs were:

Richmond	$7,262.61
Washington	6,705.36
Greensboro	3,821.20
Philadelphia	3,807.69
Amherst/Nelson/SBC	3,792.63
A total of 19 sellers were bonus winners. Seven sold between $500 and $749, two sold between $750 and $999. Special mention and thanks to this year's Bloomin' Alumnae, those with consistent sales records of $1000 and more:
Linda Mae Visocan '87
Amherst/Nelson/SBC	$2,815.39
Irene Mitchell Moore '41
Greensboro	2395.55
Julia Gray Saunders Michaux '39
Richmond	2,001.06
Lydia Goodwyn Lorentzen '34
Richmond	1,760.52
Chloe Lansdale Pitard '61
Philadelphia	1,622.63
Dorothy Nicholson Tate '38

Fairfield County	1,225.89
Virginia Quintard Bond '31
Boston	1,093.38
Mary Swift Calhoun '31
Solo	1,000.55

Congratulations to Linda Mae Visocan '87, our top seller, who will receive a free trip to Holland. During Alumnae Council the name of the winner of the Sweet Briar Sweepstakes was drawn. Virginia Quintard Bond '31 was chosen, but asked us to draw again since she is a past winner. The lucky sweepstakes winner is Margaret Craighill Price '41, who will take her prize trip to Holland next spring. All alumnae with sales of $500 or more were entered in the Sweet Briar Sweepstakes.

THANK YOU to all our sellers!

January can be bleak,
When winter weather starts to peak;
Mid Winter Ugliers are the cause
Of many a rotten case of Blahs.
But watch your mailbox, where you'll find
The Summer Bulb Book to ease your mind;
Plan your yardscape while the days are dark—
With SBC blooms you can live in a park!

BUY BULBS!

LIFETIMES Center Announcements

1. All Alumnae working in recruiting/personnel areas, please consider coming to campus to recruit. If that is not feasible, invite senior resumes. Call Carter Hopkins at (804) 381-6151 for further information.

2. The LIFETIMES Center has a new computerized PLACEMENT REGISTER to help alumnae search for employment or change career fields. Simply fill out a form, attach resume and we will pre-screen job listings submitted by employers throughout the year. For registration materials/information, call Carter Hopkins.

3. Don't forget: The Florence Elston Inn offers alumnae a wonderful, year-round retreat on campus when you return for career planning/placement purposes. Get away from everyday distractions to concentrate on career goals for a day or two (or more!). For reservations call Liz Rodriguez at Wailles Student Center, (804) 381-6154. The LIFETIMES Center is open all year for your convenience.

TRAVEL!

AUSTRIAN SPRING: VIENNA AND SALZBURG May 31- June 20, 1989

Trip Directors: Dr. Diane Moran, associate professor of art history, SBC and Dr. Lucia Gunz, formerly of the Kunsthistorisches Museum, Vienna

Our 13 days in Vienna and 6 days in Salzburg will include 3 operas, several concerts, a ballet, the Viennese Boys' Choir and a performance of the famous Lipizzaner horses. Additional activities scheduled: privately guided visits to museums, galleries and notable architectural sites, day trips to the monasteries at Melk, Durnstein, Klosterneuberg and Heiligenkreuz and a tour through the beautiful lake district to St. Wolfgang. English-speaking Viennese professors will add their expertise in Austrian history, politics and culture, and, to increase enjoyment of the operas, lectures will be offered in advance of the performances.

Price: $3,400 (subject to change) includes accommodations in the four star Pension Pertschy, located in the heart of Vienna, and in the charming Weisse Taube pension in Salzburg, double occupancy ($150 surcharge for single rooms); continental breakfasts; round-trip airfare from New York or Washington; all tickets, entrance fees, bus tours, train fare to Salzburg; academic fees. Lunches and dinners are not included, but many fine restaurants in every price category are located near our hotels.

ENROLLMENT WILL BE LIMITED, BASED ON DATE OF APPLICATION. THERE WILL BE NO BULK MAILING FOR THIS TRIP. FOR DETAILS, PLEASE CONTACT: Dr. Diane Moran, Dept. of Art History, Sweet Briar, VA 24595. Telephone: Daytime (804) 381-6119; Evenings and weekends: (804) 384-1548.

Jane Pratt Betts's two daughters surprised her with a party on her 90th birthday. Grandchildren, great-grandchildren, nieces and nephews came from all corners of the U.S. Jane is thankful to be still in her own home and to have very few ailments.

1922

Jeannette Kidd Sheridan is still carrying on, living alone in an apartment, still too young for a retirement community. Her 2 children and 5 grandchildren are all busy with various projects and careers.

To the members of our class who were able to send in news of their activities - many thanks from those of us who for various reasons were unable to reply. We look forward to hearing from you next year.

We suffered a real loss in August when we learned from Joe Gilchrist of the death of his wife Edna Lee. Her leadership in many phases of our class activities began in our freshman year and grew in scope through our four years of SBC. She was an inspiring leader and will be greatly missed.

Ruth Will Beckh must hold the record for our class with 8 great grands. She enjoys visiting them and is fortunate to join them on trips. Kippy Van Cleve attended her 55th reunion but missed the 60th because of "shingles". She hopes for a shot at our 65th. A hope for many of us. She is fortunate in having two daughters living with her. Mary Stoddard keeps busy as a volunteer in hospital and church. Confesses to a little bad bridge. Spends 3 months in FL but keeps the location secret. Tsk-tsk.

Gertrude Collins wrote in Oct. '87 that they had just returned from 4 1/2 months abroad - covering spots from Rome, where they had lived for 17 years, Sicily and Paris to London, where they found many old friends. She sends warmest greetings to all who remember her. How could we forget our first class president and Lake Day champ! Lib Rountree and George still live in Hawaii, both retired from their active life of recent years. Lib still teaches an adult Bible class. Have one son in Honolulu and one in California whom they visited in summer of '88 then up to Oregon for a fishing trip. Do you remember Lib on campus practicing fly casting so as to accept a fishing invitation?

Ruth Johnson writes from Westminster-Canterbury in Lynchburg where she has been a resident for 3 years. Her best news was of a visit from Mary Loughery last year. She sees and enjoys several SB alumnae who live in NC and old Lynchburg friends from 60 years ago when she and her husband lived in Lynchburg. She says she joins the club of lessened hearing and seeing. Dot Liff finds group living happier than living alone. She loves her new home which is like a fine resort hotel and leaves her no responsibilities. Dorothy Fairbairn has had a house full of guests since returning from Florida where I was lucky enough to have an extended lunch with her and two charming daughters. Before all the company, she had a most enjoyable week with daughters in Bethesda, visits with many old friends and a day at the National Gallery to see the Gauguin exhibit.

Peggy Posey says she is the last survivor of her closest friends at SB and is happy to have this link with the College. Two bouts with bronchitis and a cataract operation have ended her traveling temporarily. She had a most pleasant experience of loving expert care when she spent 5 days in hospital in Limerick, Ireland. Their granddaughter graduated from Williams and will be entering med college in September. She sends greetings to the 1925 hockey team.

Ellen Newell Bryan I think holds the record for our class for keeping up enrollment at SBC. Her daughter Mary Bryan Sullivan '58 has a daughter entering SB in the fall and one great grandchild a future candidate. One granddaughter, Ellen Bryan Tozzer '87, was married on Ellen's 83rd birthday. Ellen and Wright attended a reunion of war prisoners in Washington and went to California for a recent reunion of ancient Girl Scout board members. Wright is recovering from his stroke nicely. The surprise of her year was a phone call from Mary Speed who was in Atlanta en route to a cruise on Delta Queen. First conversation in over 60 years!

Goodie Eskesen Smith and husband live a most enjoyable life at Delray Beach where there is plenty to do. They take numerous trips in all directions with Maine one of their chief loves. Marjorie Shepherd enjoys keeping in touch with Betty Moore Rusk and Mary Bristol Graham and sends greetings to all of '26.

I live a busy, happy life with a finger in many pies. Next year I'm going to curtail my activities and act my age. It has been a privilege to hear from you - keep me posted.

I do appreciate all the news you send. Carolyn is wonderful about passing on to me the messages she receives. Boyce Lokey Martin and Harold have sold their house which they built 48 years ago. Their address is 3060 Pharr Ct., N.W., #611, Atlanta, GA 30305. Harold is not well but Boyce sounds like her same perky self. One of their 4 children graduated from SBC. They have 9 grandchildren. Ten years ago the Martins lived for a year at Sea Island, GA while Harold wrote the history of the Cloister Hotel and the Sea Island Company. (Ed.'s note: The Alumnae Office received the sad news that Boyce Lokey Martin died on July 10, '88.)

Gladys Wester Horton and Len have a new address: 401 E. Linton Blvd., Delray Beach, FL 33483. Gladys is losing her vision but Len helps and I found her card totally legible. Agnes Sproul Bush and Scootie Gorsline rooted the SBC equestrian team to the national intercollegiate championship at Richmond, VA. Liz Copeland Norfleet also has a new address: 1600 Gordon Avenue, Charlottesville, VA 22903. Liz continues her interest in the English Speaking Union and Woodberry Forest School.

Mona Stone Green and Thornton hope to get to SBC in 1989 to see their granddaughter, Sarah Stone graduate. The Greens have three great grandchildren and do not seem to have slowed up a bit. Jane Callison Smith has reached the great grandmother group also. She plans to come to reunion in 1990. Mary Burks Saltz continues her volunteer telephoning although she is not very well. Elizabeth Saunders Ramsay lost her husband soon after they moved to a high-rise in Memphis. Liz Stevenson Tate and Bobby certainly have not slowed up. Liz drives ponies in competition and Bobby plays golf. Liz keeps in touch with Ruth Keeler. The Wilber and Pauline Blackwell Fund is a great success. Evaline Edmands Thoma has settled back into life in Sun City, AZ. Sims Massee Rand still works at the hospital once a week in spite of crushed vertebrae and a painful brace - Wow! Serena Ailes Stevens has been up to her neck in family affairs since Mark's death in Thailand in 1987. She plans to join Josephine Reid Stubbs and Stephen for a cruise near Savannah in November. Dougie Lyon Stedman belongs to a bridge club which was founded in 1925 and she still enjoys golf. Emmy Riely Lemaire was at Squam Lake, NH in July and went to Brazil in August. This is the first year I have not heard from Ruth Hasson Smith, our May Queen. Our greetings to her.

I wish there was space to quote Katryne Blake Moore's letter to Carolyn Martindale Blouin. Katryne is roaring ahead with her bed and breakfast establishment and her indomitable will to make the most of this life.

Your secretary returned to Bathurst Inlet in Canada's NWT in July to enjoy the arctic wilderness.

Since these notes which you read in December are due in August the news is not the newest. Thanks, all of you who sent me a little about yourselves.

This is another BIG year for us and I hope as many as can will be at our 55 reunion. Lib Scheuer Maxwell expects visitors for the Spoleto Festival, so cannot get away. Last spring she hosted a mini-reunion with Dee Hutchinson Howe, Bonnie Wood Stookay, Cecile Birdsey Fuessle, and Martha Lou Stohman.

Martha Lou had a busy year. She went to reunion in June '87. Last summer she went to Copenhagen. Met Miss Stockholm's niece who works in the U.S. Embassy and who said that Miss S. was buried in a cemetery near the Residence. In Feb. Martha Lou and her daughter, Suzy, explored two small islands off Puerto Rico. With her new word processor Martha Lou is working on a memoir of growing up in Missouri. Her book on John Witherspoon, a dominant figure in the Presbyterian General Assembly, will be reprinted next year for the bicentennial. Lib Maxwell also had a reunion with Judy Daugherty Musser in Toronto. They both have children living there and grand-children entering Harvard in the fall.

Sara Merritt Brentnall hopes to come to reunion as she missed our 50th. Nan Russell Carter also plans to come and keeps in shape for the tennis reunion with Kitty, Nancy and Mary McCandlish Livingston. Nan plays golf, tennis and goes downhill skiing in winter. She still helps handicapped with horseback riding. Kitty Means Neely went to her San Francisco apartment last winter for the final time. Cecile Fuessle and Betty Bryce Reed had lunch with her in February. Sad to report Betty died suddenly in June. Kitty will spend this winter on Baylor's Lake.

Mary Ann Page Guyol moved from Washington to her old hometown - Red Wing, MN, within walking distance of the library, post office, and grocery store. She went to Alaska in July and northern Wisconsin in August. Nancy Hotchkiss Boschen went to New Zealand with her husband - a good trip. They are moving into Essex Meadows retirement home but expect to entertain traveling grandchildren first. Marion Gwaltney Hall was in hospital with a broken hip and had to lie still until it healed. Hope it was not too long.

Marjorie Lasar Hurd busies herself with a big house, a job, children and grandchildren, and a great-grandchild. Therese Lamfrom Beck reports four grandchildren, one at Furman, another at Univ. of Indiana, and a third at Wisconsin; the fourth hopes to go to Purdue. The Becks celebrate their 52nd wedding anniversary Jan. 1988. Rosemary Frey Rogers is still busy with local zoning Board of Appeals, Regional Planning Commission, and acting as president of the Association for the Preservation of Tennessee Antiquities. A foot operation slowed her down a bit. Louise Greenwood Lippitt, Greenie, had an operation. She hopes to get to reunion. Mary Walton McCandlish Livingston also hopes to join the returnees.

We were greatly saddened to learn of the death of Helen Bean Emery's husband, Nat, and the death of her sister, Mary Archer Eppes '29. Mitzi Hanifen Fried also lost her husband after a bout with cancer. She goes to visit their children and attended the wedding of their grandchild. A few physical problems bother her but her spirit is great.

Helen Hanson Bamford still spends six months in Ohio and six months in Florida. Eleanor Alcott Bromley visits every April. She was nursed back to health by Helen last spring. Eleanor went to Scotland and England in Sept. She still volunteers at the World Council of Affairs. Connie Burwell White and her husband had a 14-day trip from Nice up the Rhone in July.

Class of 1938 at Reunion '88

Before leaving they were in the throes of selling their house. As they spend three months every winter in Scottsdale they hope to move to a townhouse.

Dorothy Turno Gardner won't be able to come to reunion as her disabled husband needs her care. She will be with us in her thoughts. Marie Lange Gaskell won't come to SB. She lets her young friends and grand-daughters visit her. She had a nice visit from Eleanor Esterly and enjoys the community where she lives.

Margaret Ross Ellice not only is looking forward to coming back to reunion but also to seeing her eldest grand-daughter graduate. She still enjoys rural life in New England and had a great trip to Russia, Latvia, Estonia, and Lithuania last year. Marite Stephens Sheridan loves SB in the spring and hopes to return. They are well, happy, and busy. Two of her grandchildren are married and she has a great-granddaughter.

Elizabeth Mayfield Chapman sold her house in Morven and moved to Richmond. She hoped to go to Greece with her husband's niece in September. Lydia Goodwyn Lorentzen had a delightful bulb trip to Holland in April. Perfect weather, gorgeous flowers, and wine, dined and chauffeured every day. In June she went to Alaska for 6 days; the snow was breathtaking. Nancy Butzner Leavell is working hard to make our 55th a success. Becky Strode Lee stays busy visiting her 4 children and 12 grandchildren from Africa, to Florida, to Maine. In Maine in August she was with 3 children and 7 grands.

Julie Sadler de Coligny enjoyed the reunion planning week-end although only four '34s were there. Her granddaughter completed the freshman year at Sweet Briar. Daughter Anne Davis works in the SBC Development office and arranges flowers for special events. Daughter Julie '68 has her shop, S'AMANDA'S, in the old Faulconer's store in Lynchburg. Julie loves being near campus. The new guest house is in business and the campus is beautiful.

Each year I leave Florida for a while in the summer. A kind friend has invited me to visit her in Portugal in August. From there I'll fly to Paris for five days, then to London for a week. My oldest daughter, Louise, was made Chief of Psychology and Director of Out Patients at the Mecklenberg Mental Health Center in Charlotte, NC. My youngest, Roberta, is now a vice-president in an Atlanta bank, and Suzanne '68 is studying for a masters in business. Suzanne attended her 20th reunion May '88 and says I must go back for the 55th.

Stay well and I hope to see many of you in May '89.

Robert and I just returned from our Golden Wedding Anniversary trip to find your notes awaiting us. We had a fabulous sojourn in SD, seeing Mt. Rushmore, the Black Hills Passion Play, touring the beautiful Black Hills and the breathtaking Badlands. From there we went on to Calgary, Banff, Lake Louise and Jasper, ALTA. We made a trip out onto a glacier, and a white-water rafting trip. It was a fly and drive vacation we will never forget.

You have by now heard from Dolly Nicholson Tate about our reunion, and our record-breaking gift to the college. To those of you who were unable to attend, let me say that you were sorely missed. We had a marvelous time. Pres. Nenah Fry and Ann Morrison Reams went all out to make our stay on campus a memorable one.

Marion Brown Snider (Brownie) and grandson, Ken, plan a trip to the Dome across Canada from Quebec to Calgary with overnight stops along the way, and then a bus tour of British Columbia, and down the Pacific Coast to San Francisco. Billy Heizer

Hickenlooper and Bo plan a trip to Canada in Aug., and then to a grand-daughter's graduation in Washington. Ann Walker Newton is starting over again with a new 9 mo. old grandchild adopted by son Blake and his wife, Belle. Her youngest daughter, Julie, plans to marry this month. Josephine Happ Willingham's son, John married in July. In Oct. she plans to go to France with a group.

Margaret (Janie) Weimer Shepherd and Walton left the week after reunion for an SBC trip to Scotland with 11 ladies who love to travel. They stayed in stately homes and a castle in the Orkney Islands. Had a wonderful time lunching with charming families and their children, seeing their gardens and homes. Kitty King Corbett Powell and husband, Ben, traveled to Oregon in July for two weeks.

Mary Thompson Fabbrini wrote to say how much she hated to miss reunion, but that she is now up and off to San Francisco for two months to continue her recovery from the operation that prevented her from joining us at SBC in May. Nancy Old Mercer and Blair left reunion to travel to Annapolis, the Eastern Shore of MD, Virginia Beach, Williamsburg, and Lexington, where they visited with Frances (Frannie) Bailey Brooke and George. Nancy and Blair spent the summer in Colorado and hoped to see Cecily (Ces) Jansen Kendrick. Nancy plans a visit to Baton Rouge in May, 1989 for a granddaughter's graduation. We look forward to seeing you then, Nancy. Betty Dail Windeler regrets missing reunion, but is now walking again, slowly, after breaking her foot. Dottie Mather Goyert and Billy Hizer Hickenlooper brought her up to date on our reunion fun. Betty plans a brief trip with son, Dail and his 5 children.

Margaret (M. J.) Miller Raber writes from Maui, HI where she is spending 2 months on her 38th visit. On her way, she traveled to Long Island, NY for a week's visit with daughters, Judy and Janet, and then to CT for a week with son John and family. In Aug., the Rabers will return to San Francisco for a week with old friends, then go to Long Island and CT again, before returning to Hilton Head, SC. In the winter, they usually go to FL, but plan to journey to AZ this winter. That's some traveling. M. J. Ethlyn Biedenbarn Swayze attended a family reunion in NC after her trip to SBC. This summer she traveled to Destin, FL to visit a brother and his wife, and then on to Santa Fe, NM to visit another brother, and to attend the opera.

Rebecca (Becky) Kunkle Hogue is green with envy of us who returned for the reunion, but has been busy with her clan,—golfing, ruby-mining, picnicking, white-water rafting, folk schools, craft fairs, lots of eating and enjoyment. I was so delighted to hear from Elinor Edenton Smith after such a long time. She tells of husband, Baxter's stroke 9 yrs. ago, but of being grateful that he can still drive and take care of his personal needs. Their travel is limited, but they still go to Marathon, FL for 3 months in the winter, and to Highlands, NC in the summer. Son, Baxter and family live in Atlanta, and son Eden, wife and 4 yr. old live nearby in Jackson, TN. The Smiths are still active in church and community activities, Meals on Wheels, and teaching illiterates.

Bessie Lee Garbee Siegrist and her husband celebrated their Golden Anniversary on June 25, with a lovely reception at the Winton Country Club given by their children. All these years I thought I was the first graduate of our class to marry, but she beat me by 4 days! Congratulations, Bessie. I bet I still am the first great-grandmother. Dorothy (Dottie) Gipe Clement is bubbling over with enthusiasm about the reunion, feeling "just like an 18 yr. old." Two weeks after our reunion, she and John drove to Cornell for his 50th and found it as exhilarating as ours. Driving home through PA, she returned to her birthplace to see once again her little playhouse with the "smiling pagoda roof." She came away feeling as if she has "slipped happily into her second childhood." After spending 2 weeks at their house in N. Michigan, they returned home to the normal routine of children and grandchildren.

Frances (Frannie) Bailey Brooke and George spent most of the summer air-conditioning their home in Lexington. They expect a visit from their children and grandchildren in Aug., with a trip to Myrtle Beach, SC in Sept. In Oct., they plan a trip to the Yugoslavian Coast, the Greek Islands, and then to the Italian Coast. Helen Walton Andrae left SBC to go on to Williamsburg with some classmates. They had 4 more days of reuniting along with some sightseeing. Carolyn Potter Ryburn and Frank are off on their annual trek to London, spending 10 days in Scotland, 4 of them at Interlocken Castle—luxury in the beautiful Highlands, sheep dog trials, and Saturday fairs.

Mary Gjellefald Weible wants all to know she has moved from her home of 71 yrs. in IA to Rochester, MN. She and Dudley now live at Charter House, a retiree apartment complex owned by the Mayo Foundation. They love it and the interesting new people they have met. The Weibles still own their home at Clear Lake, and will be there for the summer. Ida Todman Pierce writes that the SBC trip to Patagonia and the Falkland Islands was great. They also visited Cape Horn, and enjoyed watching the penguins and other interesting birds. Lucy Taliaferro Nickerson asks me to tell all who were at reunion that she regrets having to leave early because of illness, but reports that she is now feeling better.

Cornelia Hicks Kaufman now lives in San Francisco near her children. She and roommate, Pauline Womack Swan, communicate often by phone. Barbara (Fergie) Ferguson Hill is back on Cape Cod for the summer, enjoying golfing, fishing and boating. She got together with Mary Ann Housel Carr to tell her about reunion and show her the pictures. Judy Bemis Wills rejoiced over the reports of our reunion from Janet McFarlan Bergmann, Marge Thaden Davis, and Marion (Mackie) Fuller Kellogg, including a rundown on the schedule of events, descriptions, and even a picture of the "Tulip Singers." Jane (Shangai) Gregory Marrow delights that our 50th was such a success, and regrets that she missed it. She wants all to know she is at home in Tarboro, NC.

Marge Thaden Davis is spending the summer at their place in Freebold, NJ. Nancy McCandlish Prichard and her husband are in a "continuing education" program with a doctor daughter, 2 Episcopal priest sons, their spouses and children. Josephine (Jo) Sutton McCandlish lives next door, and keeps in touch with the Richmond, VA Briarites. Louisa Grace Prince missed reunion because of a family reunion and a granddaughter's graduation. Katherine (Kay) Hoyt stays busy birdwatching and golfing. She also conducts nature walks for 4th graders, and volunteers for the local hospital and "Meals on Wheels."

Helen Hays Crowley had emphysema and 2 cataract operations. We all hope you are feeling better now, Helen. Lewellyn (Lew) Griffith Longstaff had sciatica but is now undergoing therapy and feeling better. We hope the worst is over, Lew. Marion (Macky) Fuller Kellogg and Mary Brown-Serman Walke went home with her from SBC, and stayed a few days. They went swimming at the Country Club, and visited the Science Center and Imax Theatre—a "fitting ending to a glorious reunion."

Thanks to Elizabeth (Mickey) McGuire Williams, Dorothy (Dot) Thomas Upton, Molly Talcott Dodson, and Marion (Macky) Fuller Kellogg for your nice notes of appreciation and encouragement. Thanks to all of you for your newsy notes. Please keep them coming. Robert and I do so enjoy hearing from you. Until next time, our best regards.

Hearing from so many of you is such fun! Thank you! Several of you spoke of enjoying the summaries of the class questionnaires, but there are corrections: Lucy Call Dabney's younger two are not the same age but a year apart. She has 4 grandchildren and another expected. The Dabneys, Douglas Woods Sprunt and Worth, and Virginia McGuire Brent and Jack all planned to take the SBC sponsored tour to Italy in October. Gege Moomaw Hall has only one daughter, 38, living in Rosell, GA, but her two sons are Billy, 36, and Hugh, 26, living in Greensboro and Richmond respectively. Gege enjoys Bill's retirement and being back in Roanoke. Alice Sweney Weed has a new address: 1085 Ivy Hill Drive, St. Paul, MN 55118.

After receiving the summary a number of you hurried to send in your statistics, for which I thank you. Other summaries: Sad to say it was her husband's death which delayed Cynthia Abbott Dougherty's reply. She still lives in Quogue, NY and NYC. Her sons are 44 and 39, and her daughter is 41. She has 5 grandchildren. Jeanne Buzby Runkle and her retired husband live in St.

Petersburg and have 2 sons, 37 and 38, a daughter, 33, plus 8 grandchildren. Margaret Leonard Proctor's husband is a retired judge. She has a daughter, 44, and 2 grandsons. Through her marriage she acquired 4 step—"chillun," 5 grandchildren and 3 great grandchildren! Rene Mitchell Moore's husband still practices law. They planned two great bar association meetings for the summer: Toronto in August and Buenos Aires in September. The Moores have a son, and their daughter, an SBC graduate, has 2 teenaged daughters. As of March 23 Dot Myers Morehead and Moose are the delighted grandparents of John Myers Morehead, Jr. and were looking forward to summertime at Wrightsville Beach. According to the alumnae magazine of Salem Academy in Winston-Salem, NC, Dorothy was awarded the 1988 Alumnae Service Award which recognized exemplary volunteer service as president of the alumnae association, and as a trustee of Salem Academy and College. She also served as chairman of her class fund committee and has been president of the Bowman Gray Medical Center Guild and secretary of the Forsyth-Stokes County Medical Auxiliary. She was vice president and secretary of the Winston-Salem Junior League and served on the board of directors of the Children's Center for the Physically Handicapped.

You will be saddened to know that Marion Robbins Alexander has been widowed since last she wrote. She lives in Houston and has 2 daughters, 42, and 44, 1 son, 31, and a granddaughter 1 1/2. Peggy Gearing Wickham and her attorney husband live in Richmond and have 3 daughters, 39, 37, and 25, and 1 son, 32, plus 2 grandchildren. Edna Swann Carter and her retired husband live in Morristown, TN. With 5 children and their 5 spouses, who are as dear to her as her own children, she has had a busy life and is thankful for Sweet Briar's training. Their 2 sons are 45 and 38, one an engineer with Bechtel, Oakridge, and one a lawyer in Memphis. Her 3 daughters, 43, 40, and 36 all have degrees in the field of psychology. One is a teacher, one is in guidance, and one works in a psychiatric hospital for children and young people. Her 10 grandchildren range from 2 months to 20 years. One grandson is at the US Naval Academy. Finally this from Ginnie Wilkinson Swanson in Effingham, IL: Her husband is retired. Their 3 daughters, all happily married, live in Lansing, Tulsa, and Houston. They have 9 grandchildren. Ginnie says that when she stopped prom-trotting and settled down, she made her mark very seriously! In January 1988 she was selected citizen-of-the-year in "recognition of meritorious contributions to the improvement of life in Effingham and the promotion of the welfare of its citizens."

As for the rest of us, much of our news reads like a travelogue. How fortunate we are! Indeed Sudie Clark Hanger sounds that refrain, saying, "The Lord has been so-o good to us!" The Hangers enjoyed a fabulous week in London going to tea and seeing plays, then two long weekends entertaining friends and houseguests at Sea Island. Back in Atlanta to teach the bible lesson to her church circle, Sudie had fun relating her travels to those of Paul on his first missionary journey. Now that Bill has hired a president for his company, he can be as retired or as busy as he wants to be. Jan Darby Cranfield had a lovely SBC-sponsored Caribbean cruise in February, made even more pleasant by the presence of Grace Bugg Muller-Thym. Just before setting off on the cruise, Grace visited Frances Meek Temple Rowe. Frannie still paints and volunteers; she wrote while packing to go to her grandson, Bill Hiscock's, graduation from the U.S. Naval Academy. John and Nancy Davis Reynolds spend most of January and February in Florida and 6 weeks in early autumn in Emerald Isle, NC. It is their good fortune to have 3 of their 5 grandchildren living in Asheville. Last winter Betty Duffield Fajans took a terrific 6-week trip to Australia and New Zealand followed by a week in San Francisco with her daughter and family. Now her days are filled with daycare, church choir and guild, AAUW, gardening, etc. After 48 years, she was delighted to be able to recognize nearly everyone at reunion! I always look forward to Bobbie Engh Croft's annual Thanksgiving letter, but this will be 1987 news: Crosswell undertook yet another job (in addition to the rest) as Chairman of the Board and CEO of First Illinois Corp. During the summer they had trips and family gatherings at the ranch in Wyoming and at the beach. In the fall they took Bobbie's 92-year-old mother to Arizona where she winters, spent time in Tucson, and planned a January expedition to the Virgin Islands. I wish all of you could see the snapshot of two rugged cowpersons, Bobbie and Crosswell, riding double and looking less than half their ages! When time permits, Eloise English Davies works on her book, but last summer she and Tom took a semi-official trip to Moscow and Leningrad as guests of the Soviet government in July and continued afterwards to several Black Sea resorts and cities of the old Silk Route. Betsy Gilmer Tremain and Mike intersperse foreign with domestic travel: Europe in the fall, Florida in the winter, visits to daughters and to Mike's sprightly parents in the spring. In August the Tremains, Elsie Diggs Orr, Sudie Clark Hanger and Bill, Ann Hauslein Potterfield and Tom, and Helen Sanford planned a reunion at Lake Tahoe. After a fine trip to Yugoslavia and Russia in the spring the Potterfields settled in their Greenbrier River home for the summer. Now that two of her time-consuming responsibilities have ended Helen Sanford is busily trying to get around to doing those things she means to do. By the end of the summer Di Greene Helfrich looked forward to an addition to her Martha's Vineyard home which would result in 3 guest rooms for friends and children. All of Di's brood now reside in the Baltimore area since Dan's family returned from Florida (their first son was born in May). Di is working part time and doing meals-on-wheels. She has been working on a 50-year-book for her Abbot-Andover class of 1938 and suggests we do something similar. My Baldwin class made up a good questionnaire that was copied at cost for those subscribing. It was wonderful having that to read and to keep after our 50th. Do we have any ideas and volunteers for such a project? Ann Morrison Reams says the Alumnae Office would help us. Another European traveler (Germany, Switzerland, Italy, and Austria) Jean Hedley Currie wrote as she was leaving for Massachusetts to assist following the birth of a second child to her son Douglas and his wife. Later Jean would visit her daughter in Connecticut. The greatest change in life-style this year is that of Shirley Hauseman Nordhem and Al. After living their whole lives in suburban Chicago, they pulled up stakes and moved to Skidaway Island, 12 miles from downtown Savannah! From this beautiful base they can explore the southeast coast in their boat. Their oldest daughter Paula was to be married in August. Within the previous year she had graduated from Yale Divinity School, been ordained in the ministry, and become associate pastor of a church in Springfield, MA. Shirley's second daughter received her MBA in Kansas City where she continues a challenging job in the field of medical technology. A year and a half ago Ruth Hensley Camblos and Josh climbed 6,593 foot Mt. Le Conte to the highest overnight lodge in the Great Smokies and drove 2400 miles to New Brunswick and Nova Scotia for salmon fishing and sight-seeing. Now that Josh is retired, they continue to work in the community but are traveling and enjoying one another's company and that of their 3 children: Stuart in Durham, Margaret in Augusta, and Josh Jr. in Boston, and their 3 grandchildren. Having already traveled widely through the world, Rut Jacquot Tempest and Rone undertook a fascinating in-country tour last summer: sailing from Boston for 2 1/2 weeks on MV Newport Clipper, with many ports of call (one being Norfolk where their Houston lawyer son happened to be on his Naval Reserve duty), to Washington! Their older son, a newspaper correspondent, has recently been assigned to Paris. You can imagine their next destination. Charlie and Dot Malone Yates had the joy of seeing their grandson graduate from Dartmouth in June. Dot is occupied with the business of building a home in High Hampton, NC. Over the Memorial Day weekend Margaret Preston Moore and her 8-year-old granddaughter attended a Preston family reunion in Roanoke where they were joined by Pres' other daughter and son and their families. Pres and her husband had an unforgettable trip to China in 1987, but unfortunately Gerald has been unwell lately and was in a nursing home, temporarily. Pres hoped. Writing from Arizona Barbara Ripley Furniss says she is immersed in the Hispanic history of that part of the country and in teaching English to our new citizens. The exciting news from Jeanne Sawyer Stanwood is the marriage of her 37-year-old daughter, Cynthia, heretofore a highly successful career woman with Blue Cross/Blue Shield in Boston. Years ago Jeanne wrote a children's book for her son John. Now she is illustrating it with such pleasing results that she hopes to have it published. Eddie Syska Peltier's European trip included not only a trip on the Orient Express and cruising on the Riviera but also hot air ballooning in France. Wouldn't you love that? Jane Taylor Lowell continues her numerous volunteer activities devoted to helping others and is now living year-round in Cape Coral. Her son is now a Captain, USN. Margie Troutman Harbin and Tom were headed for Albuquerque to see their newest grandson, an especially happy addition to Frank's family which included a little girl. Tom is still practicing but has given up eye surgery. I confess that the activities and travels of Si Walke Rogers make my head spin and I'm unable to unravel just when she went where: England, Scotland, Spain, Africa, and a cruise to give up smoking, and to London in the spring to visit her daughter Liz. Si is distressed that Liz (my godchild) and her family have moved so far away. Si and her children are devoted, and as they grow older, she finds their problems heavier. She herself is on a demanding health regimen. She is still ecstatic over 42's splendid giving record: 89% contributing to the largest 45th reunion gift ever!

Just in the nick of time (in fact as Carol and I were loading the car for a month at the beach) came welcome word from Grace Lanier Brewer whose daughters are now 43, 40, 38 and 35, three of them being SBC alumnae. Her physician husband hopes never to retire. 88's greatest event for Marion Mundy Young was the birth of her first grandchild, Caroline Marion, to daughter Ann (SBC '82). Marion looks for the youngster to enter SBC's class of 2010! Mary Alice Bennett Baumberger and her second husband Peter live in Geneva, Switzerland but travel a great deal, though she's by nature a homebody loving her cats, dogs and orchids. She loves visiting her widely scattered children: son John on a working ranch in Wyoming;

Bennett, a Phoenix realtor; and Mary Alice who raises horses in PA. Her 8 grandchildren include her namesake Mary Alice.

Lastly, and with sorrow, I must tell you of the death in May of Betty Hanger Lippincott's husband Schuyler. Betty, you have our sincere sympathy.

During the 3 years that I have been secretary, I have felt I have had a finger on the pulse of our class, the women of 1946. Each year seems to bring a similar flow of cards. First was our pride in our children, their accomplishments and their families. Then a sense of freedom, discovering new careers or retiring from old ones. And then the opportunity of traveling all over the world. But in some cases the years have brought sorrow. It is of such sadness that I begin our annual class letter.

In July, I received a letter from Hugh L. Watson and an announcement of the marriage of Charlotte Dinsmoor Olin and Hugh Watson on May 7, 1988. Such happy news. But inconceivably, in the same letter an article fell out reporting her untimely death within the same month. I know all of the classmates of Charlotte send their heartfelt sympathy to Hugh Watson.

This year brought a lot of cards telling of family and friends' reunions. Jessie Strickland Elcock and Walter are enjoying Big Canoe, GA. They just returned from a lovely family beach trip with 3 of their children and their families, missing only their Manhattan daughter. Jessie just reread Anna Karenina and thinks it should be required reading at 63, not 19! Their travels have taken them from the Caribbean to England this year. Jessie had a "joyous" reunion with Tody Corcoran Hartzer at the beautiful mountaintop home of Dottie Caldwell near Waynesville, NC. "None of us, not one, has changed a bit; slim, beautiful and unwrinkled." While on the other coast, Pat Groesbeck Gordon and Ralph are "in the grandparent pattern and holding" with a count of 5. They enjoy retirement and traveling. Also out West, Martha Titterington Leonard (Twitter), in spite of her "iffy" health has good news about the October wedding of her youngest daughter. "I'm acquiring also an instant 7-year-old granddaughter!" Twitter sold her house and is condo shopping. She enjoys calls from SBC friends.

From their "Shangri-la" in Destin, FL Caroline Rudolph Sellers (Rudy) reports their last child, Will, is being married, and they will honeymoon at NYU, while attending tax law school! Rudy and Phil drove through France and Spain last fall, thwarting a pickpocket, but he did take her notebook of "what to do", but more important, "where to eat".

With all the traveling we all seem to be enjoying, I am amazed we don't meet more frequently. With Duane's sabbatical from his law firm, Jane Richardson Vieth and he spent 6 weeks in England, and their 3 children and their families joined them in London for the last week. Margaret Sibley Lewis (Margo) and her husband have added some more exotic names to our list with a trip to Alaska, with interludes to Florida and California. Then on to Tokyo, Singapore, Kuala Lumpur, Bangkok, Borneo and China, ending in Hong Kong, our favorite city. "Memorable moments" included cuddling orangutans, trishaw rides, and boatrides through the klongs. "Faraway places—."

Then some cards bring news of renewal of friendships. Hallie Nixon Powell had an interesting reunion with some SBC alumnae when they attended the Garden City of America convention in Chattanooga. Among them were Sadie Gwin Allen Blackburn '45 and Libby Vaughan Bishop '44. Sadie is first V.P. of GCA and Libby is director of GCA. Sarah Bryan Glascock '47 welcomed them. Elinor Clement Littleton (Ellie) (bless you, Ellie, you wrote your maiden and your married name) visited with Ann Hill Edwards, who was returning from her son's Harvard commencement where he received his Ph.D. Wonderful news. She also saw Ann Colston Leonard '47 who had attended an SBC tennis camp, and loved it, and ran into the Whitemans at church in Vineyard Haven. Anne Hill Edwards sends more details of her son, Ben's graduation. She and Grif, and Ben's wife and baby, named Grif, were all present. Ben and his family live in Durham where Ben is assistant to the Dean of the School of Arts at Duke. Anne and Grif celebrated his 70th birthday at home with family. From Elizabeth Gurley Hewson (Betsy) we learned that the Edwards accompanied Betsy and Tom on a memorable trip through the Panama Canal. The Hewsons had a wonderful family reunion, 31 strong, from all over the world to celebrate the 95th birthday of Tom's mother at "Skytop", PA. "After that we have just been boating all over the sound."

As an elder in the Presbyterian Church, Ellen Robbins Red has been writing a history of their local place of worship. Ellen published a book on Houston history last year and "I am now considered a bona fide historian." A trip to Costa Rica and a trip to England this fall and then a birding trip to Victoria Falls and Botswana round out their travels. She and David celebrated their 40th anniversary. From another author, Joan Morse Gordon "a great year". Her late husband's book, which she had edited, was published. Then she went around the world on the Semester at Sea program administered by U. of Pittsburgh. Gone from Jan. to May, she was an adult coordinator. "Am finally getting my BA from the U. of Pitts." Jean Love Albert and Jack have had a busy year with one marriage and 2 grandchildren, making a total of 5. Jean was president of the Amherst Woman's Club. But the big news was that Jack had a horse racing at Penn National!

Ann Farr Lewis and Bob enjoyed a visit to SBC recently. Ann has just finished a busy 2 years as pres. of the VA State Golf Assoc., and they are going to Ireland on a fall golfing tour. From Tassie Brooks Augustine, "I have 5 children and 6 grandchildren, so far." Tassie is busy with the church choir and their thrift shop. Other loves are traveling, of course, and work with the Colonial Dames. News of the marriage of daughter comes from Betsy Bowman Townsend. Audrey, SBC '78, was married to Scott Bertram and they are both employed at Chapel Hill. A word of warning from Jeanne Parham Coors who had a bout with ovarian cysts which were, fortunately, benign: "Get those physicals every year!" Jeanne saw Wistar Watts King on a stop in Columbus, GA. "She hasn't changed a bit." No travels, no classmates seen, nary a grandchild, reports Betty Ann Bass Norris. The status is quo "I truly think fondly of those years we spent together."

Lucy Jones Bendall (Cholly) has a new job teaching in the adult literacy program for Piedmont Comm. Col. "We get together with Polly Pollard Kline and her husband when we go to Richmond to visit our children." Louisa B. Lloyd continues to devote herself to the caring of a woman stricken with polio some 30 years ago. She is to be admired.

"My granddaughter, Catherine Gornto, will be a freshman at SBC this fall," writes Charlotte Sprunt Murchison. "Her mother, my daughter, graduated in '69 so maybe we have a tradition going." We don't seem to need excuses to travel, but Leila Fellner Lenagh has several. Her daughter Madeleine, in Holland, received her "Docktoranders" law degree. She is legal advisor to the Planning Comm. in Haarlemmermeer. "I'm understandably proud, and love seeing my grandsons, too." Then she visited with Jessie, her youngest, who lives in London. They drove through the Lake District and the Yorkshire Dales. She looks forward to seeing Bea Dingwell Loos and Jean Love Albert on trips through Maryland and Virginia for calligraphy meetings.

From the beach house at Jacksonville comes a letter from Helen Muchison Lane. Some of her note was about our daughter, Camilla Wodehouse SBC '71, who, with her husband Chuck and children have recently moved from Jax Beach to Richmond. But a memorable quote was "A lot has gone on in between... but time has just added more memories, not blurring the good ones at SBC." With Ed retired, more traveling is in order, such as a trip on the World Discoverer to Antarctica. Helen represents our alumnae association on Sweet Briar's Board of Overseers and is also involved with public television. Helen has invested in several rental properties. Their son, Edward, is a lawyer, and Palmer is married to a young lawyer in Washington and has a daughter. Anna, with twins, will be down soon, and Charlie, unmarried, is a fish farmer, raising bait fish. Happy but busy times

Edwina Young Call (Wheats) writes, with authority that Ade Jones Voorhees has "left West, bygawd, Va., bag 'n baggage, forever!" She and Rosie Ashby Dashiell, Polly Vandeventer Saunders, Lyn Dillard Grones '45, and Perk Traugott Brown '45 all went to visit Ade and Coerte's 1700's Merry Point House on the Piankatank. Ade's children are all within visiting distance, except one who is in Maine. "We were thrilled to see SBC take top honors at the Nat. Intercollegiate Riding event." Rosie writes Dave is slowly retiring and their lives go on at an even pace.

Bami Rollins Napier, Allison Buchanan Herbertson, and Julia Bristow had a wonderful mini-reunion in September. Upon hearing that the Herbertsons were visiting from Scotland, Bami flew to Norfolk, spent the weekend with Julia ("a most gracious hostess"), and then the two of them went to Williamsburg to see Allison and her husband, Neilson. Allison, who was Julia's roommate at Sweet Briar, lives in Lundin Links, Fife, Scotland. Bami hadn't seen the Herbertsons in 10 years or Julia since 1944! Before returning to Columbia, MO, Bami visited Sweet Briar and stayed in the new Florence Elston Inn. Bami's older daughter, Julie, is doing nurse's training and Laura is working on a degree in accounting.

Ken and I had a glorious fall with a month in G.B. where we drove 3300 mi., mostly on the left hand side! We went from way north in Scotland at Ulapool, to Land's End, and from Wales through the Lake Dist. to the York Moors and Whitby and back to London. Then to Florida and the Keys with family and friends. We have just said farewell to children and grandchildren after 2 weeks and have heaved a great sigh of relief. They call our place "Crocker Country Club" so you understand our responsibilities. This fall we will spend a month in Mexico, a favorite haunt. And, God willing, I'll be sending cards to all of you in June. So start making news and let me know what's happening.

And now for "Wheats'" slogan. '91 fer fun, '96 with stix'.

Yippee! We have our own election year winner! Congratulations to Lexington VA for electing its first woman attorney Louise Moore to the City Council. Louise, an attorney since 1975, serves on many civic boards and the vestry of her church. Bill Bailey Fritzinger's daughter, Laurie Muldoon, gave birth to Tyler in 1987. If my count is correct there are now 7 children under 8 years old. Bill welcomed some of them as visitors last summer in Weston, VT. Dottie Barney Hoover is a part-time worker at The Complete Kitchen, a gourmet kitchen shop, in Wilton, CT. While visiting Cleveland she was entertained by Jean Probeck

Beverly Benson Seamans and husband Danny traveled to Antarctica last January and enjoyed the breathtaking scenery and millions of penguins. They found the Falkland Islands windy and bleak but with wonderful birdlife. Back in Marblehead, MA Beverly enjoys her grandson who has inspired several sculptures. Bev exhibited at the Memorial Art Gallery in Rochester, NY last spring. Mary Waller Berkeley Fergusson had a wonderful visit last Feb. with Muffet Murchison Corse in Atlanta. She met Muffet's son, John, a Baltimore lawyer, and heard tales of her daughter's twins. In May the Fergusson's attended their son's graduation from Law School in Charlottesville.

Our appreciation to Sally Bianchi Foster for her suggestion of a joyful memorial in remembrance of classmates no longer with us. The memorial consists of 3 beautiful Chippendale teak benches, with memorial plaques, which have been placed on the front porch of the new Florence Elston Inn on campus. One plaque states, "In Memory of our Classmates With Whom We Shared the Joy of Sweet Briar, Class of 1950." The wording on the other 2 plaques is the same except that "Beauty" and "Spirit" are substituted for Joy, respectively. The benches were chosen by Mary Morris Gamble Booth with the help of Jocelyn Palmer Connors '62. Sandy, Sally's new grandson, was born last May. Son Andy married Clare Keefe last Nov. They both work for the same law firm in Philadelphia. Edith Brooke Robertson after 2 years at the rural Miller School is delighted to be back in Norfolk. "I'm a city mouse, not a country mouse!" Edith is busy with an aging mother, retired husband and volunteer work as sponsor to Parents Anonymous and a Museum Board member. Nevada Marguerite Tinsman, Edith's first grandchild, was born in 1987 to her daughter Elizabeth. Son Petyon worked for EPA in Wash. DC last summer. He will complete a masters degree at U.Va. next June.

Judy Campbell Campbell went on a back pack trip into the Sierra Mountains with a group of photographers. She returned home to La Jolla with a picture of fresh bear prints! Judy spent 3 months in England where daughter Holly worked for Saachi and Saachi. Holly has been transferred to Japan. Judy is remodeling her CA home. Dolly Clark Rasmussen, when not raising funds for the Republicans with her sing-a-long band or working at the White House, is welcoming her new grandchildren, traveling, or working out on the tennis courts. Husband John began teaching an engineering management class at George Washington U in preparation for his third career. He resigns from Pepco in 1989. Bookie Coryell Feldman and Jack wintered again in CA visiting daughters in St. Louis, MO and Afton, WY en route. Their fifth grandchild was born in May. One daughter owns an antique shop, another has opened a nursery school, one is with the forestry service, and another is studying business management at Northwood College. Bookie and Jack are remodeling and rebuilding their home in Conway, MI.

Our deepest sympathy to Mary Ellen Davis Gettel whose husband Bob died in Dec. 1987. Bob's career was in business administration. He supported the church and higher education including the endowment of scholarship at SBC. Mary Ellen returned to teaching in January and is enjoying her work and students. Kate Edwards Crane's daughter was married at home in Longview, TX April 30 and is now living in Dallas where her husband is vice president of Hinton Mortgage and Investment Co. and she works in foreclosures with Murray Mortgage Co. A single son is a lawyer in Houston, TX. B. G. Elmore Gilleland's spring trip for teachers to France was so successful that a trip for next spring to Germany and France is in the planning stages. B. G. and Guy enjoyed Spain, Portugal and southern France last summer. It is a pleasure to report that Barbara Favill Marshall's first grandchild, William Edward Vogler, was born on black Monday, Oct. 19 just after the stock market closed. He made an otherwise bad day into a wonderful one.

Jo Gulick Grant's retirement in Lyme, NH, is very active. She is a part-time English tutor, antiques dealer, choral singer and grandmother. Her daughter Ellen was awarded an MFA from Brooklyn College last May and married Anthony Alfieri, an NYC lawyer, in July. Ellen is on the art faculty of the Churchill School in NY. Son Nicholas is now a Navy helicopter pilot in San Diego. Ann Green Pangel's daughter Susan graduated summa cum laude from the U. of New England in Occupational Therapy. Another daughter married in Oct. Ann and Heinz enjoyed a vacation in Myrtle Beach and a Ceramic Convention in Cincinnati. Patricia Halloran Salvadori's daughter Margaret married Jeffrey Thomas Black on August 20. Jeffrey is a counselor and researcher for Thresholds, a psychosocial rehabilitation agency.

Garland Hunter Davies has one more year of teaching before retirement. She is looking forward to spending a lot of time playing golf. The grandchild count remains at 4. Lucy Kreusler Carey and Earl went to Poland the summer of 1987. She found it a bitter-sweet experience. She reported "the country has acquired this drab, grim soviet-style look. It's much freer than Russia. We drove around the country with friends in a private car. It would have been unthinkable in USSR. People are as friendly and hospitable as ever. Poland is dominated by Russia and the people hate it. Jarzelski's government has little support." Elsie Landram Layton attended an advanced French Conversation course before she and Tom set off for the French countryside in September. In Nov. Elsie went on an "Around the World" trip with Canadian friends.

Kay Leroy Wing continues her work as Vice-President of Financial Federal Savings Bank. Husband Wally's retirement was a short one. He is now selling a solid grease product that makes bearings last longer. Son Doug was married last April. His is a civil engineer and has his own construction company CouDev in Chicago. Margaret Lewis Furse and Austen enjoyed the Yale-sponsored course "Shakespeare and the Modern Theater" last summer at Oxford. Son Austen worked last summer for George Bush in Washington. John is in drama school in San Francisco and Jainie, in NYC, is the mother of Elizabeth. Mary has recently moved back to Austin, TX from Mary Baldwin College. Peachey Lillard Manning's home base is Haverford, PA but she spends as much time as possible in Naples, FL. Daughter Melinda is European correspondent for the Christian Science Monitor. Son Matthew is pursuing his Ph.D. at U.Va. in theology. Amanda, in Boston, is a waitress and has internships with filmmakers.

Ginger Luscombe Rogers is taking courses towards a masters degree in Preservation at Kent State U. She serves on the boards of the Akron Art Museum, the Architecture Board of Review in Hudson and is a director of the local preservation group. She continues to ride, play tennis and golf. Her son is with Salomon Brothers in New York. One daughter married an Englishman and lives in East Anglia, England; the other daughter is in NW Arkansas. Helen Missires Lorenz's son Charles Henri married Cindy Diane Harn in Sept., 1987. Son Bill is a computer systems analyst living in Los Angeles. Helen presented several Advanced Placement Workshops for the College Board and served as a grader for exams. She continues Chairman of the Language Department at the Hockaday School in Dallas. A trip to Switzerland, France and Italy was enjoyed in August. Jane Munnerlyn Carter's card came from her summer home in Ponte Vedra, FL where she was anticipating an active time with visits from her 3 Atlanta sons and their families and her daughter Jane from Bedford, NY. Jane is a top notch horse show jumper and is reaching for the grand prix level. She also does media work associated with the horseshows.

Rita Murray Gourd and Jim love year-round living in Delray, FL. Grandchildren keep popping onto the scene and "we love them and leave them with great joy." Rita is a ranking tennis player in FL. She and her partner are ranked third in the 35's and over. Having reached an advanced round in the National Grass Court Championships she and partner returned home and were demolished by two 13 year olds with braces and pigtailed! Nancy Nelson Swiggett and Bob spent the summer on their boat in Nova Scotia. They then headed west to celebrate Nancy's birthday at tennis camp in CA. In between trips Nancy and Bob are involved in the community and baby sitting with grandchildren, one girl and two boys and one on the way. Janet Neumark Fribourg's card arrived from the Mediterranean where the Fribourg's boat was docked across from St. Marks Square in Venice. A daughter had just joined them and the plan was to sail in the lovely islands of Yugoslavia. A second daughter Marci lives in Naples, FL and is the mother of two. Pat Owens Purvis and Tom were expecting their first grandchild last July. They planned to return to England in August.

Ginny Page Love on a typical day can be found shopping for birthday and anniversary presents for one of her 8 children or 12 grandchildren. She travels with Bill and enjoys tennis and golf. Polly Peck Thomas and Howard have retired and find life in Rockwall, TX busier than ever. Their two older sons are married and the youngest, Rob, has his MBA and CPA and is single. Sam Peck, their 3 year old grandson is a joy. Anne Peyton Cooper has retired from her job and committees and will be traveling with Jim as much as possible. They went to East Africa in September and will spend the winter months in Eleuthera. Jim, my godson!, graduated from Kenyon College last May and Nancy is a sophomore there. Ann Preston Vick has moved to a new home in DeLand, FL. The twins are both honor students in their senior year. John is first in his class at Woodberry and Tal received the prestigious scholarship at Virginia Episcopal School for his senior year. Joyce Roseborough White, after 30 years in Arkansas, has moved to Memphis, TN. Four children, 9 grandchildren and a retired husband keep her busy.

Lola Steele Shepherd's visit east last summer took her to VA Beach and a visit with Edie Brooke Robertson where they talked and talked and Lola learned of Edie's work with abused children. Daughter Gina was visited in Richmond and daughter Sallie and son in Concord, MA. Nancy Storey White and Ed returned to San Miguel de Allende, Mexico for 2 months last summer. Before leaving Sarasota Nancy completed a course in Social Gerontology and had become a grandmother for the fifth time. Mary Dame Stubbs Broad and Doug were given a trip to Cape May, NJ by their children for their 35th anniversary last May. Son Douglas Congdon Broad Jr. married Beverly Hogshire Burrage in Rocky Mount, NC on June 4. Doug is instructor of architecture at Nash Technical College and an architect. Joan Teetor Marder divides her time between her home in Scarsdale, NY and an NYC apartment. Husband Steve will soon be retiring. Joan has retired from piano teaching but does volunteer work. Her current project is spearheading a community effort to build an indoor pool for the Village of Scarsdale. Daughter Emily graduated magna cum laude from Georgetown Law School in May. Son Raymond was married in August and has entered NYU Business School in pursuit of an MBA. Joan attended stepson Rick's wedding in Germany last fall.

Betty Todd Landen wrote "this was my year to explore the services of the local hospital. I'm still around to revel in the development of my adorable 1 year old granddaughter so obviously the hospital treated me well." Jane Tomlinson Myhre of Bergensgt, Oslo is a widow and has retired from her work in accounting. "The retirement means when people call me to fill out their income-tax returns they no longer pay me." Jane has 11 grandchildren, 9 her husband's and 2 hers. San Veach Brooks lives in New Haven, CT and summers in Ripton, VT. She raises Corgi and Rutweiler dogs. Daughter Libby received her Ph.D. from Yale in Epidemiology this year. Son Tobby and wife live in Indiana. They, too, are Yale graduates and have traveled widely in China. Tom has an MA from Yale. Josh lived with a family in Japan for a year before entering Yale where he is now a student.

Ellen Warner Hudson completed a stint as president of Nashville's Youth Museum and now has time for golf, tennis and a brand new hobby—painting! Ellen finds life blissfully full with both children married and living in Nashville, 2 lovely grandchildren and a retired husband with time to travel. Sally Webb Lent continues as an enthusiastic public school teacher in Hyattsville, MD. Only half of her 31 students were born in the USA and only 2 of the children have non-working mothers. The school provides programs from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sally visited her daughter Laurie and grandson Javier in San Francisco and her mother in New Hampshire last summer. Carol Williams Feussner has sold her too big house on the too big property in Linwood, NJ and has moved into a beautiful Adult Community in her hometown. She couldn't be more enthusiastic about her gorgeous condo. Marianne Williams Sizer received her BSN-RN nursing degree 11 years ago and now teaches Health Occupations Education in 2 high schools. She has 3 grandchildren and lives in Lookout Mountain, TN.

Dotsy Wood Letts lives in Palm Beach, FL with husband Gavin and daughter Sophy and husband Ault. She's seen more of Judy Campbell Campbell than anyone else even though Judy lives in CA. Evie Woods Cox and Pete moved into their retirement house in Birmingham, AL last spring. It has no steps and is easy to take care of. Yvonne Worley Randall, painter and sculptress, was named one of four Georgia Artists of Excellence this year by Elizabeth Harris, Georgia's first lady. A collection of Yvonne's oil paintings and sculptures were displayed in the governor's office for 3 months. Yvonne divides her time between her family which includes 8 grandchildren and her work.

Last June Dottie Barney Hoover, Sally Bianchi Foster, Marianne Delacourt Holland, Dorothy Montague Chohnoky, Anne Peyton Cooper and San Veach Brooks all came for lunch on my terrace. Our mini reunion reminded us that in 1990 we will all be returning to SBC for our 40th reunion. We look forward to being with you again.

Can you believe it's time for our THIRTY-FIFTH reunion?!? How can that be when we're only in our early forties? You'll be getting all sorts of encouragement from Dilly, Weezie, and me, so put May 26-28, 1989 on your calendars now and start making plans for you and your hubby or friends to spend it at Sweet Briar with the greatest group of friends you've ever had. The college considers the 35th to be one of the major reunions—second only to the 50th, so everyone come!!!

Apologies to Betty Walker Dykes whose news didn't reach me last year and whose name was misspelled in '86. I'm not responsible for the typo, but am sorry that her news was left out. I do try to include everyone who sends something.

Anne White Connell finished her master's degree in May at "Ole Miss", works as a graduate assistant and plans to get her Ph.D. there.

Mary Hill Noble Caperton keeps very busy with her business—a reservation service for guesthouses and bed and breakfast places in the Charlottesville-Albemarle area. They have over 60 regular lovely accommodations in gracious homes and guest houses and about 150 more for big weekends. Their offices are in her husband's building right in town. Ruth Sanders Smith still works but they fly to Florida for golf all the time. Martha Dabney Leclerc retired from teaching Spanish at Hampton Roads Academy in Newport News in June and already misses it. Their next-to-youngest (of 5) has had 3 of her greeting cards published on her way to a career in art.

Bev Smith Bragg is Mission Coordinator for the Conference of the Methodist Church, which requires a lot of travel to meetings, but she still continues to write and to travel with Bill. They went to Burma and Thailand in June. Margaret Davison Block is Chairman of the Cherokee Garden Library at the Atlanta Historical Society. It features a history of horticulture in North America, especially the Southeast. Sounds fascinating to me as a docent for the oldest extant formal gardens in the country—Middleton Place. Louise Aubrey McFarland has built a house in Cashiers, NC and welcomes all visitors. They go up there from Columbia often and they will be at reunion—see, that's 4 of us already! Peggy Hobbs Shaw moved to Naples, FL to a wonderful spot right on the Gulf. They've done a lot of traveling this year with a little trailer. We are all reaching that retirement age when there'll be lots of time to visit each other. The welcome mat is always out here when you want to "do"

Charleston. Margie Morris Powell was here in April, but we weren't able to hook up.

Ann May Via's daughter, Mary, graduated cum laude from Sweet Briar and then spent a year traveling the Pacific and Far East. Dilly Johnson Jones and Paul visited the Deatons (Ruthie Frye) in March on their way to an ACC Tournament, and were visited in Jan. by Milan and Adelaide Halapa who were en route to SBC from a sabbatical in Florida. Paul III works in Macon, Sanford and Gene are in DC and Louise, who got her masters from LSE, works in corporate finance at a branch of NCNB in London. Lynn Carlton McCaffree's travel has been mostly to Baton Rouge to care for her mother or to see the kids in Norfolk and Connecticut on trips with Mike. This will change when Mike retires August 1st. They plan to stay in Northern Virginia for now.

Caroline Chobot Garner volunteers at a local historical museum and at Blackwater National Wildlife Refuge which is near them in Maryland. Thom is rector of Old Trinity Church at Church Creek, and the rectory is on a tidal estuary of Chesapeake Bay. My kind of place with all that good birding. Ann Thomas Donohue's idea of retirement is to be a government consultant rather than a regular worker. She attended a Van Der Meer Clinic at SBC - just a casing of the campus in preparation for reunion, I trust. Their own wonderful trips included Detroit, Cleveland, and Columbus! Doesn't that sound like I'm an effete eastern snob? Well, actually I was, but all that has changed since we had one of the best weekends of our lives in Indianapolis in June at the first ever reunion of Yokohama American High School. Our first was our fortieth! Of 270 available alumnae, we found 135, and 75 of those came!—most bringing spouses. We had a fabulous time and many of us have visited each other since. Let's see if the class of 54 SBC can do as well. That would mean 112 of you would have to come. Plan now to help our statistics and have a wonderful time.

Cindy Sinclair Rutherford has had a dream come true with her appointment as principal of a junior high school where she hopes to continue on her quest towards a middle school system. They visited Sweet Briar during a trip east. It was the first time Cindy had ever been back and now she has to come again next year—I hope. Both of their sons are disc jockeys—one with a morning drive show in Montgomery and one with an afternoon drive show in Denver. Bill injured both shoulders in one day wrestling with the outboard engine on his sailboat, resulting in two rotator cuff repair surgeries. He has also returned to sculpture after 5 years as the executive for the Wichita Arts Council. Jean Gillespie Walker continues to juggle her time back and forth between Sea Island and Bluefield. Their best trip didn't even include Jean—George went to Denmark for duck hunting.

Meri Hodges Major endured three huge furnace soot explosions in her wonderful house requiring professional house cleaners and repainting everything and even more difficult, replacing all her fabrics (not covered by insurance), and forcing the cancellation of house tours. All of this set back the recovery of surgery she had on her hand. I hope Meri keeps a diary because some of her sagas would make a wonderful story.

Joan Potter Bickel has had her first setback with MS last fall. Let's hope she's better and can make reunion. Not being able to complete their move into their new house months and months after they had hoped to doesn't help, I'm sure.

Jerry Dreisbach Ludeke and John also fulfilled 2 dreams this past year—a hike to the bottom of the Grand Canyon and a trip to Peru, the latter with their son who was completing 2 1/2 years with the Peace Corps in Costa Rica. Their other son teaches English in Japan.

The class sends its sympathies to the family of Mary Elizabeth Ballard Ward, who died in November a year ago. We also send our sympathy to the family of Meg Hetley Peck who died in July '88. Meg, who earned her masters from Yale in 1956, had been business manager since 1980 of the Yale School of Medicine's Dept. of Human Genetics.

Jean "Sissy" Morris Long has a month-long trip in Ireland, Wales, Scotland, and London. They are also members of our no-grandchildren-yet club. Faith Aldrich Wykoff finds the first grandchild adds a new dimension to one's life. She's still crazy about her interior decorating business, but knows she's working too hard. Ann Venable Rogers and her husband visited SBC last year and he said it was the most beautiful school he'd ever seen. Doesn't that make you want to come back and see it? Ann still teaches at the Planetarium and they sail a lot. Their son was President of the Student Body at Harvard Business School. Ann Collins Teachout and family spent last Christmas in Hawaii with their daughter and family who were on leave from Japan where they are missionaries. Ann is remodeling a new home and learning to play golf. Anne Sheffield Hale visited with Anne "Pinky" Walsh Cahouet in Washington and spent 2 weeks with a Dutch friend in Amsterdam. Mary Ann Robb Freer had trips to St. Thomas and Hilton Head. We had hoped to get together on the latter but I was inconsiderate enough to break my back. Her father died at 94 1/2 having gone to the office until he was nearly 92. They finished their vacation house at Lake Monticello, east of Charlottesville and have moved to Chevy Chase, MD.

Barbara Chase Webber wonders why we're so busy now that all the children are on their own. Hope she's not too busy to come to reunion—hint, hint! I got a wonderful long letter from Joy Parker Eldredge giving her travel itinerary since last year and it would make your head spin! Some of the highlights are: Switzerland for the International Ski Championships, Singapore, Bangkok, Bali, San Juan, the West Coast, (throw emergency surgery for a strangulated gall bladder in here), Vienna, Verona, Monaco, the Greek Isles, Lake Como, St. Moritz, Chicago, South Bend, Boston, AND then they will sail in January on the Royal Viking Sun's inaugural voyage from San Francisco to Sydney, flying then to Bangkok and Hong Kong and then home to rest up for the really big trip of the year—to the reunion!

Not to be totally outdone, I'm going to meet Bill in Africa again this fall. My sister and her husband are coming with us. Then we'll both rest up and save our money for reunion. (Our SBC reunion years are the same.) There should be enough hints in this jumble of the notes I've received from you all to convince you that if you're not coming to reunion, you'll be the only one. You'll be hearing from us a lot. See you there!

I am still reeling from the excitement of our 30th Class Reunion in May. More about that later.

Joanie Black Davidson and Keith visited their daughter Dianne in Milan, Italy, in May; Dianne, who received her MBA in Milan, studying on a Rotary Scholarship, works for a consulting firm. Dianne was married in August to Mauro Calvi. Cynthia's baby is 2. Suzanne will graduate from Cal Tech in December. Joan still sells real estate in Palos Verdes, CA and plays lots of tennis. From Betsy Robinson Taylor: "I moved—because it was time! I'm now singing to the people of Santa Fe, NM." One of the sons of Bette Rae Sivalls Davis and Paul married a California girl this summer. The Davises' daughter left her job in petroleum engineering to open her own needlepoint shop in Midland, TX, where B. Rae enjoys helping her. Shortly after attending reunion Winnie Leigh Hamlin was a delegate to the Triennial Convention of the Episcopal Church in Detroit, MI where she saw many SBC friends. Son Jeff graduated from U.Va. in '86 and works for General Electric in Philadelphia. John, Dartmouth '87, is with Bain Consulting in Boston and Frank is a junior at UVA.

Mary Kay Polley Bullard broke many years' silence with a brief note from Oklahoma City. Both her children, John, 29, and Laura, 25, work in John, Sr.'s interior design business—the third generation to do so.

Nancy Gawbaker Gilbert and Carter, from Gainesville, FL went to Budapest in August where Carter attended the meetings of the European Ichthyological Congress. They later traveled in Italy, Germany, Austria and Switzerland. Nancy enjoyed seeing Ethel Ogden Burwell when the Gilberts were in Ann Arbor on business. Helen Burkett Stevens had a busy trip following Reunion. She visited Stephanie Butan Profaci, who also attended Reunion, for several days in Chestertown, MD then stopped to see her son, daughter-in-law and their two darling children before proceeding on to Darien, CT where she took a place for the summer. Helen now lives in Vero Beach, FL where she plays a lot of tennis. Marietta Eggleston Burleigh still trades commodities in Memphis, TN. Two of her children are married as well as Robert's daughter; the other 2 are unmarried. The Burleighs love being grandparents. Marietta had a ball at Reunion!

Ann McCullough Floyd and John are moving from Columbia, SC their home for 27 years, to Murrell's Inlet on the coast. Ann had a wonderful visit with Kenan Myers van Vranken at Princeton this spring. Now for my mystery card: A note from Columbia, SC, unsigned, announced the birth of someone's first grandchild, Caroline Reeves Cotter on June 15th. Congratulations to the anonymous grandmother! Class president Tibby Moore Gardner kept us all organized at Reunion. She wrote that she didn't know how much she missed everyone until she "re-uned". Tibby was in Charleston for Jane Pinkney Hanahan's ('57) daughter's wedding in late June. She and Jane Oxner Waring had lunch together. She also attended Patty Williams Twohy's daughter Tricia's wedding in July in Richmond. Both weddings were wonderful. Tibby, Mollie Archer Payne, who also "re-uned", and Ginny Tyson Lawrence had lunch together in July. Tibby and husband Bill vacationed with Dianne Chase Monroe and Sam in Durango, CO in August. Joan Nelson Bargamin's son Stephen, 24, got married in September '88 in the UVA chapel; he is in insurance law and claims. Paul, Jr., 25, is finishing his master's thesis in international politics and hopes to have a career in the CIA or the foreign service. Joan is freelancing as a photographer and has covered two National Press Club events. She and Paul have been reunited with Joan's freshman roommate Ann Watkins Custard and Norm, a retired Army colonel. They are now in Virginia where Norm is a civilian employee at Ft. Monroe.

Dorothy "Poogie" Wyatt Shields, after two rewarding but stressful years as an educational coordinator with adolescents in treatment for alcohol and drug abuse, has accepted a position as guidance coordinator in a very good middle school. Her daughter Julie is attending SBC Junior Year in France from Univ. of Wisconsin, Madison. Carter, recently graduated from Tulane, went on an archaeological dig in Antigua in the summer and is job-hunting in Washington, DC. Poogie thought Reunion was great! Charlie and Julie Boothe Perry's daughter Katherine was married in March in Australia, where she is getting her masters in education. The Perrys had a reception on the lawn of their home in Alexandria for the newly-weds on May 28, 1988. Son Armistead and his wife Sara live in Alexandria; Robin, a UVA graduate, is working at the Boar's Head Inn in Charlottesville but hopes to find a job in Santa Fe this fall. The Perrys moved "around the corner" in August and Julie plans to go back to school "now that the kids are all finished."

Peggy Fossett Lodeesen and Jon returned for Reunion and renewed old friendships. Jon is a specialist in Soviet Affairs so they have spent many years abroad, 2 in Russia. Their son David, 14, is an excellent athlete in ice hockey, swimming and diving, as well as a good student in an honors program at his high school. Peggy, who lives in Bethesda, MD, is very active in Republican politics and worked on the Bush campaign. Beedy Tatlow Ritchie, also in Bethesda, wrote that since her business takes her to California so much, she has decided to move to the L.A. area on a trial basis. Daughter Laura is a freshman at USC-LA; son Chad is with Advantage International and son Hank has just joined EDS. Eleanor Humphreys Schnabel and Hank just moved to Montclair, NJ where Hank has taken an executive position with Laura Ashley, Inc. It was fun to see Hump at Reunion.

Ruth MacKie Gabay, Mendham, NJ teaches computer science, grades 1-8, in a Catholic school. She is developing a new curriculum. Mark, 25 is a Lt. j.g on a nuclear submarine stationed in Charleston, SC; Allison, 23, is in an actuarial program with Travelers' Insurance in Hartford, CT; John, 20, is in a work-study program in auto mechanics; and Matthew, 13, is in the 8th grade. Husband Ken is a senior marketing representative for IBM. Hope Sparger Hanbury and Harry built a deck and benches this summer on their house at Fire Island which they are enjoying very much. Hope is a manager in the Documentation and Design Group of Systems and Technology at Citibank, NYC. Lee Cooper Van De Velde is director of the Philadelphia office of Spencer Stuart, the third largest executive search firm in the country. Coopie made a brief appearance at Reunion and wrote afterward to say that she "remains thankful, above all else, for good friends." In Easton, PA, Jean Lindsay De Streel is still an ESL teacher and travels to 5 schools a day. She has kept busy also qualifying her Gordon Setter. Jean handles the dog herself and also finds time to ride. Daughter Margaret graduated summa cum laude, Phi Beta Kappa and Phi Sigma Iota (foreign language honors) with honors in English from Hamilton Coll. Although she is now a research assistant for her former government professor, she plans to go to Europe to work while deciding her future. Son Giles, a sophomore at Temple, spent the summer living and working in Philadelphia. Jean and Quentin enjoyed some time this summer on the north shore of Boston. Adele Scott Caruthers, Wellesley, MA is now a medical secretary for 2 internists but keeps her occupational therapist registration up to date. She graduated this summer as valedictorian of her class for docents for historical tours of Beacon Hill and other Boston sites. She had to make a speech to her 58 classmates in Old North Church. For fun Adele plays tennis and does water-color painting; she is also very involved with a peace group called Beyond War. Adele combined a trip to see her parents in Lynchburg with Reunion.

Olivia "Libby" Benedict Karlstrom and Olof live in Flint, MI where Libby is director for the Michigan Office on Aging. Olof is in private law practice after serving for a time as City Attorney. Libby's daughter Elizabeth, a veterinarian, was married Sept. '87 and lives and works in St. Paul, MN. Son Ben is working on his MBA at Tulane and John graduated in May from Boston U. Olof's daughter was married in November. Ruth Frame Salzberg and Bob brought a beautiful hot air balloon all the way from West Hartford, CT and gave tethered rides all during Reunion. It was one of the highlights of the weekend and added excitement to the schedule. It was Bob's first visit to the "Patch" and he assured Ruth that he "just loved Sweet Briar girls!" Ruth summarized her visit by writing: "But the joy of reunion was seeing how well our friends have used the gifts that Sweet Briar gave to all of us. I'm very proud to belong to the class of '58!"

Life remains busy in the Kuntz household. I resigned from Carillon Park in January and am now doing free-lance writing. I continue as Clerk of the Vestry and serve on the Altar Guild and sing in the choir. After chairing the flower show for the second year for the Garden Club of Dayton, I am doing publicity this year and am on the board. I am serving my second term as treasurer for Women in Communications as well. The highlight of the last 12 months was taking all 3 daughters to London for a week last November with a Jr. League group. Lee and Martha and their husbands are "status quo" except that by the time you read this, Don and Martha should have made Eddie and me grandparents! Anne is still supervising the toddlers at the Kettering Child Development Center; in the late afternoon she is director of the extended care program at the private school she attended for grade school, the Miami Valley School. She has her own apartment in Dayton where she lives with 2 cats. We will have the whole family together for Thanksgiving, the first time in 4 years. Eddie and I are planning to go to Sea Island in the fall to see his father; I was in MI at Columbus Beach on Burt Lake 3 times this summer. I also had a marvelous trip to Charleston, SC with the garden club in April and talked to Jane Oxner Waring. I learned that Eleanor Cain Pope is the new director of Zone VIII of the Garden Club of America and Sandra Stingley Simpson ('87) will be her vice-chairman. The trip to SBC was also one of the neat happenings of the year.

REUNION!!! 27 of your classmates made their way back to Sweet Briar from the class of '58. The weather was wonderful and we had a marvelous time together, housed on 1st Grammer. From our raucous class meeting to our ragged but enthusiastic skit to the sumptuous dinner-dance to chapel, everyone had a ball. The Connors, Jocelyn and Tom, entertained our rowdy group at a picnic in their beautiful home, the old Gilchrist house, on Friday night. There were meetings and workshops and tours. As I said before, Ruth and Bob Salzberg's balloon was a tremendous hit; they were so generous and thoughtful to do that. We stayed up late, drank too much and talked and talked and talked. Six of us even climbed up to the top of Monument Hill at 10 P.M. Saturday night, and I have pictures to prove it! We missed all of you that didn't make it; but those of us who did left with a feeling of gratitude for being together. I, too, am proud to be a member of the Class of '58!

In the past year I have found myself reading the class notes of the several alumnae magazines that come to our house. I have yet to find a class so active and involved as ours. Of course, this is just my impartial and unbiased view.

For example, Mary Sturr Stuart brought her husband of some 3 days to our 25th reunion and now a year later, they are en route to Hawaii for golf and tennis. In January they were skiing in Colorado. When home in Orinda, CA Mary supervises the Misuse Section of Chevron's travel card division. Chris Christie continues as a freelance writer, doing lots of commercial work, while also writing a play based on Richmond Pulitzer Prize novelist Ellen Glasgow (1873-1945). She has received several grants for the play which will be produced by Barksdale Theatre in the spring of 1989. Her son Daniel just graduated from the school of architecture at U.Va. and is now in France helping to restore a 14th century castle. Chris was in Spain in May and will be at Martha's Vineyard with Betsy Shure Gross in September.

Lynne Rynders Welch didn't make it to reunion but a phone call from Alice Warner Donaghy who was visiting near Fredericksburg, inspired Lynne to start renewing old friendships and she is now corresponding regularly with Martha Baum Sikes and Reyhan Tansal Larimer. All 3 have children starting college next year. Martha is a lawyer in Toccoa, GA and is running for a third term on the Habersham County school board. While taking her son to Harvard she met Anne Dillabough's daughter Melanie Zekian. Martha's daughter is a senior looking at colleges. Patsy Carney Reed has one daughter planning on grad school, a son at Dartmouth and second daughter at the Knox School. She is in Centerpoint II, a Jungian psychology study group with friends and recently saw Allison Moore and Tom Garrett whose daughter Brandon is being married in July

Douglas Dockery Thomas has adapted well to NYC and is fund raising for Carnegie Hall. Her son is at Taft. She and her husband recently returned from a month in Europe where they visited friends in Italy and also attended the International Verdi Competition. Douglas said that 40% of the entrants were from Japan but the best were Russian and American. Our other artist musician, Mary Jane Schroeder Oliver has been "artist-in-residence" this past year in the Amherst County Schools and has successfully entered several competitive exhibitions, even gaining a purchase award at a regional exhibit in Winston-Salem that was judged by the curator of the National Gallery and a prize from Clement Greenberg (the critic) who judged a national show in Chattanooga. Son Jasper is studying violin in upstate New York and Juilliard and the end of the summer will find the Olivers on a college tour with Jasper who takes after his mother in another way. He is captain of the lacrosse team at VES. Mary Jane and Loren's neighbor at SBC, Jocelyn Palmer Connors keeps up with our many active alums who serve on Friends of Art or Library or those visiting daughters on campus. She has recently seen our "angels" Nancy Hudler Keuffel and Ann Allen Symonds as well as Barby Ross Goode and Parry Ellice Adam who was visiting daughters Aubrey '89 and Gladden '90. Dylcie Heintz Germond was back to see Amanda, '89 and Chloe Fort probably just missed the place. I think a lot of us miss the ol' place! Jocelyn sees Peggy Mundy often in Lynchburg and spent July 4th at the Cowpasture River where she saw Mina Walker and Robin Wood as well as Macon Winfree and Bob Hilton who have restored a 1793 Virginia historic house called "The Stone House on the Cowpasture River." On a trip to Richmond, Jocelyn saw our Circuit Court Judge Lydia Taylor who was named woman of the year in Norfolk. Lydia says that Jocelyn "looks exactly as she did at SBC." Lydia had to miss reunion to go to a judges school in Reno and then take her 2 daughters to San Francisco. One is in 8th grade, the other in 6th grade at Norfolk Academy. And this summer, Lydia is off to another judges school. Barby Ross Goode's daughter is at Davidson and will debut in Charlotte at Christmas. Anne is just out of UNC at Chapel Hill and will be married April 8, 1989. Barby enjoyed time in San Francisco and the wine countries. Alice Allen Smyth visited with Eve Pringle Boyd, Mina Walker Wood and Ray Henley Thompson and all their husbands at Pawleys Island. Ray's oldest son is a freshman at Cornell. She had a recent call from Chloe Fort who was on her way to London, through Charlotte. She also heard from May Belle Scott Rauche who was on her way to Caesar's Head. Alice stayed with Betsy Cate Pringle in May at UNC graduation. One out and the last one off to Princeton in the fall Anne Parker Schmalz' son Peter will be a senior at Princeton and Nick is off to Babson as a freshman so her husband Bob is set to begin a masters program at Hartford Theological Seminary, but will not give up his law practice - they like to explore new fields in that family. Remember when Anne went from plant doctor to nursing school and she loves her new career as a nurse at Yale New Haven Hospital. Their daughter Caroline is a banker on Nantucket and Jenny is a teacher in Boston. Anne and Bob gave each other a new 18' sailboat for their 25th anniversary. Dru McEachern Martin' son Will is a freshman at Duke and daughter Ellie is looking at colleges. Dru is still working at Charleston Day School. Bill is in real estate. Pat Perkins Wolverton' son just graduated from Duke and now works for a DC bank. Her other son works for a bank in Phoenix, all following in the footsteps of their father David who is the CEO of a bank in Wichita Falls. Their daughter is in jr. high.

Peggy Johnson Curtis finished her course at Sotheby's in London last December but is looking to return often to London as a troop leader for garden and art trips. Her girls are in Morocco and Spain and she too has seen Chloe Fort and Brooke Hamilton Cressall, our class president whose son is a senior at the U. of the South. He then plans grad school in film. Brooke continues to love SBC as much as or more than she did back in '59 and '60 and suggests that we all should "start socking away a bit for SBC in the coming year." I second that motion. One of our class "angels" has just become the head of all the SBC angels. Nancy Hudler Keuffel has just become National Reunion Gifts Chairman for SBC. She is also selling private label belts, accessories and sweaters. While in San Diego she visited with Effie Castelli Sammis. I run into Nancy and her daughter Susan whenever I am in Detroit judging skating competitions. Another Detroit is Mary Elizabeth Hannah who is very proud of the doctoral program in school psychology that she started last year. Her private practice is booming, and she visited NYC, Chicago and New Hampshire.

Addie Kamke Cooke is trying to rejuvenate the Rochester SBC club, trying to convince the local planning board to allow the Cookes to enlarge their boathouse and trying to finish the restoration of their house. She is doing 3 bronze sculptures in her spare time, is sending her son off to Bucknell and has SBC hopes for her daughter in a few years. She recently gave a talk to women's clubs in Richmond and Lynchburg about gardens. Another class artist is Sue Hunt Wright who is doing custom framing and oil painting. Her elder son is just out of med school and her younger is moving to Clearwater. Mary Louise Kelley Moore is another avid gardener and currently president of her gardening club. Son Mark graduated from W&L. Thomas will be a sophomore at Wake Forest and Timothy is a junior in high school. Julia Shields adds that Mark Moore is engaged to Lee Patrick. Julia is chairman of the English dept. of Charlottesville HS. After a week of reading AP English exams in New Jersey and a week at the Shakespeare Institute in DC, Julia was on her way to Scotland for the summer. Andrea Denson Wechsler missed our 25th because of illness but is better now and hopefully will be with us for the 30th. It's not a day too soon to plan for that you know! Carol Davis Wells owns a jewelry company in Omaha. Her oldest graduated from Stanford, John is a chef in St. Louis, and Peter is a sophomore at Kansas U.

Anne Allen Symonds' son Allen will be a junior at Stanford, Jonathan will be a sophomore at W&L and David will be in 8th grade at Indian Mountain School in CT. Anne is enjoying her work on the SBC alumnae board (I remember my time on the board too as a very special experience) and is also chairing the search for the new artistic director of the Alley Theatre in Houston. In the spring she is in charge of the Zone IX Flower Show. All this must have been the cause of her 3-day jaunt to London recently.

Colette Carozza Volpe is a lawyer, has a son about to be a college senior and has just recently moved to Washington, D.C. In that vicinity is Sally Sharrett Perryman (Maryland actually) who works part time at her husband's car dealership but also keeps up with her gardening, tennis and historic preservation work. She and her husband have had some fun trips to California, Kauai, and Australia this year and will be back to California no doubt to see her newly married son there. Her other son is in Delaware. Susan Rusmisl Ide is assistant professor of English at Keystone Jr. College where she also edits the Pierian Spring, a magazine for faculty writing. In April she read some of her poems for the Mulberry Poets and Writers Association in Scranton, PA. Adele Vogel Harrell visited her daughter who was a student in London last year and then celebrated her 25th anniversary on a cruise of the Mediterranean aboard the Sea Goddess. Her daughter Glenn graduated from Princeton and is now an editorial assistant at House and Garden in NYC. Adele continues to be busy with her research.

Winnie Swoyer Phylfe is packing children off in all directions after sailing home from Bermuda on the family sailboat. Her son Trevor is out of Kent and off to Occidental College in L.A.

and her daughter Robin will be at the Westminster School next year. Her stepdaughter Gailen will be at Concord Academy and her stepson James at Rye Country Day. Ann Ritchey Baruch is also juggling children's schedules. Her son Ritchie is at Penn, daughter Marcie at Wittenburg and David is in 6th grade. In addition to all her work for SBC Ann is a trustee of the Haverford School. In that capacity she attended an NAIS luncheon in NYC where she saw many SBC faces - Jocelyn Connors, Lucy Martin Gianino '60, Molly Owens Parkinson '61, and Betsy Smith White '59. Anne Dismukes Shepard went back to school and now has a brand new MBA from Columbus College. She will be job hunting in the fall. Her daughter Morrie is at Georgia Southern and Sarah is a senior at Brookstone.

I hope to see Barby Ross Goode in Charlotte when my book How to Market Needlepoint is presented at the fall needlework market. My co-author and I have been to Anaheim, Vegas and Chicago in connection with the book and will be doing seminars at all the needlework markets for the next 2 years for our publisher. I also hope to once again represent my region at the National Women's Curling championships and will be judging several skating competitions. Heidi will be on my curling team again and is now a marketing associate for the country's oldest law publisher. Ken has become a computer buff. So am I - that's how we wrote the book. Meanwhile, Anne Parker Schmalz, Brooke Hamilton Cressall and I want to thank you for your generous donations to the alumnae fund for our 25th. Wouldn't it be great to beat last year in what might normally be considered an off year for donations? As each of your children graduates from college, why don't you celebrate by making a donation to your college, Sweet Briar.

Once again, it was GREAT to hear from those of you who wrote! Your cards and letters make that part of my life come alive again. I can't wait for the rest of you to write—why not sit down and dash off a note now? Corky and I'll try again to do a mid-winter update, so please, everybody, let us hear from you!

Meredith Aldrich is coming down the stretch on her Ph.D. thesis. She and husband Dunbar Moodie have 3 children: Mary Jane (Barnard), James (Yale), and Benjamin. Judy Barthold De Simone is a plaintiff's lawyer (civil). She and husband Frank have 2: Frank (MIT this fall), and Liz, 16. Judy sees Linda Wallace Bailey and Skeeter. She also hears from long lost Serain Martin, who is in Denver, after being a buyer on the West Coast, and several years in Florida. Serain's husband is Bill Downey, and she describes him as a "Montana cowboy." Betty Booker continues with the Richmond Times-Dispatch. She was the keynote speaker for a recent gathering of the Va. Federation of Women's Clubs. Cherry Brown Peters, husband Charles, and son Trey (13) spent a week last summer in Texas playing cowboy; Charles and Trey also spent a week at Scout camp. Cherry is a computer expert for Va. Power and Charles is Dir. of Community Development for the City of Richmond. Trey is also computery—he taught it at a day camp this summer.

Kathy Carroll Mathewson and Dave have a thriving international consulting firm, and Kathy also volunteers for the Greater Alton (IL) Growth Assn. Daughter Heather is a freshman at Wellesley, and Carrie is a h.s. freshman. Mary Anne Calhoun Farmer and Tom already have TWO girls at SBC! Manie is a Dean's List sophomore, and Harriet a Pannell Scholar freshman. Katherine (7th grade) is still at home. Another college freshman (at W&L) is Chris Swann, son of Nancy Conkle Swann and David. Second son Andrew went to basketball camp in the summer. The Swanns recently moved to Atlanta, where David is EVP of First Atlanta Bank. Last year Nancy was Chairman of the Trustees of newly merged Carolina Day School. Bunny Cord and husband Steve Melton added Benjamin Cord Melton to their family in the fall of '87 to join Stephanie (2). They plan to move to Houston at some point.

Evie Day Butler loves Ft. Worth, TX, where husband Geoff is head of Ft. Worth Country Day. Sons Lee (17) and William (11) are both in Ft. Worth for school this year. Geoff, Jr. is on the Dean's List at U. of Colorado. Travel last summer included Wyoming, Hot Springs, AR, and Destin, FL.

George and Barbara Dublin Van Cleve are busy: he as Counsel for the House Republican Conference and she as speechwriter for Treasury Secretary Baker (written in July). Daughter Christina is an Echols Scholar at UVA (sophomore), Willie is in 4th grade, and twins Michael and Lizzy are 8. After a long silence, it was great to hear from Marlow Engelhardt Peters and John from Germany. They'll be there at least until 1990—Marlow is in charge of library service for isolated Air Force units in 17 countries and travels to "strange and wonderful places!" Deanie Finch Hampton and Tom's son, Tom, started in college this fall, but daughter Julie has one more year in high school. Deanie says she is "retired," but is busier than ever, remodeling and traveling. Marcy Fisher and baby Rod (13 mos.) are thriving in Somerville, MA, where she is a public housing consultant—Rod fills most of the rest of her time.

Marilyn Garabrandt Morris and family are in Wilmington, DE, where daughter Blair is in third grade, and son Tony in first. Marilyn is working part time for a former client who is establishing a Holding/Finance company. She saw Ellie Gilmore Massie and Mary McGrew Lee. Ellie's husband Adrian is starting a new business with her sister's husband in Greenwich, CT and loves not having to commute! Their boys enjoyed hockey camp last summer.

Vi Graveure Patek and Mark are sending Sarah to Harvard; Sheila is in 11th grade and Emily in 8th. Vi is finishing up teaching requirements in Latin (already certified in French) and hoped to be teaching this fall. Mark is in his 23rd year with IBM! Peggy Henning Minnick also teaches Latin, at a private school. Husband Jeff has a custom cabinetry business, and Linden (12), Duncan (10) and Margaret (6) are growing up too fast. Mary Haskell Haywood has gotten out of the furniture business and is studying to be a real estate agent. Harriette Horsey Sturges is in her second year of postulancy for ordination as a deacon in the Episcopal Church, and is more than halfway through her MTS degree at Duke. Husband Conrad is a lawyer, son Boyd at Wake Forest, and Richard spending his senior year (h.s.) in Spain. Linda "Hovs" Hovde Buehler is head of "Leadership Lafayette" in Lafayette, IN.

Another language teacher is Jeannie Jackson Exum, who teaches French at Kinston (NC) high. She and Joe enjoy their 3 children: Jay (freshman at Chapel Hill), Manning (15), and Sallie (10) and weekend house on the coast. She saw Anna Hicks Potter Derby and Harriette Sturges. Pam Jones Brown's husband Joe narrowly lost the race for Lt. Gov. of Nevada, but they all learned a lot. They have 4 sons, including one at school at Mercersburg Academy in PA. She says the campus reminds her of SBC and wonders if there are any other alumnae sons there. Sally Kalber Fiedler and Jay celebrated their 22nd wedding anniversary last summer. Son Jay is a freshman at Duke, and daughter Julie studied Russian and psychology at Choate last summer. Ginny Lee Butters enjoys traveling with husband David (investment banker), now that both sons (Andrew and Morgan) are at boarding school. She also enjoys church and volunteer activities. Lee MacKubin Miller, Rick, and children Patrick (a high school senior, 6'3" and very musical), Macon (seventh grade) and Anne Lacy (pre-first) moved into a new house last summer after more than a year of renovation and hard work. They have 5 1/2 acres on the outskirts of Atlanta.

Martha Madden Swanson is still at Georgetown Univ. as Asst. Dir. of Student Programs, but husband David has moved to George Mason U. as Director of Business/Auxiliary Services. Son Michael is a high school senior, and Sarah in 8th grade. Randi Miles Long and Herb's Melissa started college this fall; Kent is a freshman in high school. Herb travels a lot for Chevron; Randi volunteers, tutors math, and is a Deacon at her Presbyterian Church. Wick Nalle Rowland and family have moved into a new (old) house (in Houston); serving as general contractor for remodeling kept her busy all last spring. Oldest daughter, Julie, went to camp in July; Wick is active in her church as President of women's group and chair of choir touring group. Marcia Pace Lindstrom won the Pensacola Jr. League's award for developing a children's museum. Husband Fred has a private counseling practice. They have three sons: Chris (W&L and vice Pres. of his class), Ashley (14), and Ellison (11) (both tennis buffs). Bob and Laura Penick Felt are in the D.C. area, where Laura keeps busy with Naval Officers' Wives obligations, mah jong, basketball games, and remodeling a 1903 Victorian house. Daughter Elizabeth is a freshman at Va. Wesleyan; Emily is a junior in high school. Katie Lou Pritchett Harris is real estate broker and owner of firm. Husband Norman is a lawyer. One daughter (Pressley) is at Rhodes College; son West and daughter Nikki are in high school.

Weslie Rivers Robb is an American Horse Show steward and works on renovating their Charleston beach house. Nat is Asst. Secy. (NC) for Crime Controls and Public Safety and a general in the National Guard. All 3 children are in college: Elizabeth is a pre-vet senior at NC State; Nat a business/communications junior at Appalachian; and Catherine plays volleyball in her freshman year at Davidson. Arch and Marty Rogers Brown live at Va. Beach and had a chance to visit SBC when delivering son to lacrosse camp at W&L last summer. Daughter Peggy is looking at colleges. Marty visited with Mary Meade Gordon Winn at the beach last summer. Mag (Magda) Salvesson teaches courses on British portraiture at Cooper Union and the New School in NYC. She is also active in Architects/Designers/Planners for Social Responsibility, a group dedicated to stopping the arms race. Sally Thomas is director of development at the Reuben H. Fleet Space Theatre & Science Center in San Diego.

Sid Turner is taking a renewed interest in nutrition after two bouts with clogged coronary arteries. Dog raising and showing are on hold temporarily.

Anne Ward Stern teaches in a small school while husband Ed directs a new play "Rocky and Dugo." Along with Robbie (10) and Ward (6), they had trips to Cape May and Cape Cod last summer. Penn Willets Mullin enjoys her trips to SBC for the Alum. Board, and seeing Jane Nelson while she is in VA. She also writes for a textbook company in San Francisco, and has published two novels for teens. Judy Wilson Grant claims that she runs an Olympic training camp: all 4 of her children (Newell, 17; Margaret, 11; Will, 9; and Caroline, 5) are involved in sports! She says husband Newell pays bills and "I drive all the time!"

It is with great sadness that I report the deaths of two members of our class: Nancy Terrill Fentress Thompson (Terri) (of pancreatic cancer on March 13), and Elizabeth Mc Chesney Scott Dunn (Chessie) (of breast cancer on May 9). I speak for all the women of '66 in extending our deepest sympathy to the families and friends of Terri and Chessie.

My family is fine. Nelson remains busy with some lawyering and a lot of volunteer and board work for Planned Parenthood and Louisville's soon-to-be Nature Center. Son Pen surprised us by choosing Grinnell College in Iowa, but in his 18-year-old wisdom, did exactly the right thing for him. Ted (13) is getting the KY Country Day Middle School into shape, and I continue to love my p.r. work at the Lou. Presbyterian Seminary.

You've sailed into your forties with your usual aplomb! Kay, universal accolades on your poem... we all identified.

Margaret Arnold Jackson is still teaching emotionally disturbed and behavior disordered students in Macon, GA. She is adding guidance and counseling to her MED. Jim, Meg (14) and James (9) gave her an "Over the Hill" (not true!!) party. Margaret is director of counselor training and waterfront at Camp Hollymont for Girls in N.C. owned by Dini Cecil Pickering's in-laws. Who said all those bruises garnered in boating and canoeing on the Sweet Briar lake were in vain?

Kathy Barnes Hendricks and her 2 boys (6 & 3) studied in England this winter/spring. Kathy is trying to balance husband, children, pet causes and part-time garden design business. She sees Becky Keister and is planning a Woltz, Kendig, Mitchell reunion at her mountain home. Betty Brewer Caughman is full time mom, heads project to develop church library and is President-elect of Chester Assembly debating club. Jerry still commutes to Charlotte daily and they have been house-hunting, but the Caughmans are "reluctant to leave our almost completely restored 1924 house, great friends, and wonderful community."

Candace Buker Chang is "doing adaptations & really enjoying my work" outside Boston. Candace, Jeannie (14) and Sonia (10) went camping and tip-sleeping with Candace's folks in the Rocky Mountains' Glacier Park. Earlier this spring, they went to DisneyWorld and EPCOT, and on to D.C. to see Jane Gott and husband. Candace and Jo Shaw Robinson, Ed, and Jo's 3 kids will celebrate 40 in Memphis together.

Roy and Stuart Camblos Rodwell are embarking on a 3 week stay at Oxford University under the aegis of U of C, Berkeley. This winter Stuart underwent major back surgery to correct a spinal defect and her doctors promise she'll be back to tennis this fall. She spent a "glorious week" at Caneel Bay, St. John's for her birthday. All 5 daughters are flourishing (3 natural, 2 step). Jennifer, the eldest, will be in 9th grade at St. Catherine's this fall. Sally Campbell revels in her newly extended family, daughters (13 & 10), stepsons (14 & 10), husband Tony and 2 cats (ageless). Sally is communications officer for a statewide ecumenical/social action organization and is very involved in her choir which has elected to turn professional, Maine's first! Amy (13) wrote an essay that earned her a chance to spend 4 weeks this summer in the USSR at an international camp dedicated to world peace. Sally sees Tracy Savage regularly and "treasures our 'old' friendship more and more".

Stuart Davenport Simrill is PREG-NANT, "one for our old age"! She and Spenser love their life in Wyoming, OH, a beautiful Victorian town, where they conveniently live right next door to the church. The Simrills went to Haiti last year and returned with a wonderful 18-year-old son to join their 12-year-old, 6-year-old and the baby in utero. Additionally, Stuart is working on a center for homeless children in Cincinnati. Debrah Denemark smugly reports she isn't 40 for another year but she is moving from her nearly finished 152-year-old house in Old Town Alexandria to Dallas, her 3rd move in 4 years! Debrah's been promoted to divisional controller for Northern Telecom's Corporate Networks division in Dallas. Before accepting her promotion, Debrah had a "glorious return trip to South America." Now the Dallas-D.C. commute. Fran Dornette Schafer and Tom introduced their new son, William Curtis, born 11/12/87. Fran took a 6 month maternity leave and confessed it felt strange after 14 years of work.

Betsy Edwards Anderson writes "I do hope lots of our class will return on our 20th reunion in 1990. It sure would be great to see everyone." Betsy has marked her calendar, how about the rest of you? Betsy has 3 kids, 13, 11, and 6.

RoseAnn Feldman Braun gave birth to Alexandra Ariel 6 weeks before her 40th birthday. The baby joins Jake (2). Marc and RoseAnn are both practicing law full time which RoseAnn remarks "seems restful compared to taking care of 2 little ones." Claudia Forman Ostrander accepted a position as Group Vice President in the Real Estate Industries Group of Maryland National Bank. She spends a lot of time on the road shuttling between the Baltimore headquarters and her offices in Rockville and Tysons Corner. 8 yr. old Ross "keeps me young" and "being single after 19 years of marriage is certainly interesting." Claudia sees Chris McLean Buck ('71) often and they share fond memories of SBC!

Betty Glass Smith writes that Ran (6) and Corbin (5) will be in "real" school this year. Bill has completed 20 years at Virginia Power and Betty has been with Sovran Bank for 11. Betty is another eager attendee for the 20th! Schuyler Gott Herbert finished her tenure as President of the Junior League of St. Louis and joined the Council of the United Way. Her "real" job at Mercantile continues to be busy. Schuyler sees a lot of her adorable godchild, Pete LaPierre, and his mom, Citicorp's Jessica Holzer. Schuyler was one of many to write of Wallis Wickham's wedding to Dan Ramer. We all wish Wallis great joy. Steve and Fran Griffith Laserson are planning a 2-week "tented safari" to Kenya and Tanzania in October. She is especially anticipating the homemade cake creation of Tenley (8) and Galen (4).

Karen Hartnett took time to write during what had to be an incredibly hectic time as the fate of her company, First RepublicBank, was being speculated upon on the front pages of the Wall Street Journal. Karen, as Senior Vice President and Chief Human Resources Officer, is "thrilled to be part of the exciting changes taking place in Texas and the Southwest economy." I smell a book, Karen! Karen joined Susan Lykes Mueller, Pam Piffath Still, and Kay Parham Picha on the Caribbean cruise immortalized in Kay's poem. The pictures are wonderful and will be on display at Reunion. Connie Haskell took a 3 month leave of absence from Digital Equipment Corporation to visit her sister in India and returned with a new appreciation for the USA. Connie has been working on award winning interactive video training projects for DEC. "Quite a culture shock to come from India to the Awards banquet at Caesar's palace, Las Vegas!" Joanne Hicks Robblee is leaving her dream house and school counselor position to move with Clay (15), and Jessica (12) to Japan where new Colonel Paul will be Staff Judge Advocate of Japan and IX Corps. "Sweeping the Long Island swim meets this summer" are Mary Jane Hipp Brock's children Walker (7) and Susanna (4). Mary Jane is renovating and moving to another apartment "as always" as well as chairing Nominating and an Endowment Committee for the NY Jr. League. She is also Secretary and Board member of the Big Apple Circus, a non-profit organization that pitches its tent at the Lincoln Center and "does some wonderful things with kids in hospitals". Susan Holbrook Daly has moved back to DC after a wonderful golf-filled 11 months at the Air War College in Montgomery, AL. Susan is enjoying working with her dad at Mt. Vernon Realty. Susan and Skip have 2 girls (12 & almost 16). "I'm having mixed feelings about a driving child on the roads here"! In Lexington, KY Elizabeth Holloway Playforth is married to a cardiovascular surgeon and manages a small horse farm "while chasing a 4+ year old son." The Playforths had a wonderful foxhunting trip to England. Baird Hunter Campbell welcomes SBC friends to Annapolis but "prepare for noise and confusion" with her 3 children (7+, 5+, & 3+).

Page Kjellstrom is still in Protocol at Chemical Bank and has founded and acts as VP of the Board of New Council of Protocol Executives. She has done the big events at Nabisco Tennis, Metropolitan Museum and Greenbrier and has a major happening in San Francisco this fall. Page vacationed in London and Paris and visited with Jo Prevost Browning while attending the French Open. Jo has just had a 2nd son. Lucy Lombardi Evans is still a dedicated runner; with a twin jogging stroller for Elizabeth (3) and Morgan (1+) she can dash all over Littleton, CO.

Allen Lybrook is working towards her masters in nursing in Richmond. Lorie Harris Amass is celebrating her 40th in France and Vieve Minor Moeckel stayed with Page when she brought her daughter to NY. I can't imagine a better resource for where to go and how to do it!

After 6 years as VP of Institutional Sales at Drexel Burnham Lambert, Diane McCabe Reid is joining Deutsche Bank Capital Corp. in a similar capacity. Diane and Brandon live in Chappaqua and commute to Wall Street where Brandon is a partner in the investment counseling firm Drundage Story & Rose. Jillian Michelle joined Brittany Mills (4) 12/87. Diane confesses that with the 2 little ones and 3 stepchildren (15, 13, & 10) "the Reid house is usually quite lively"! Dallas dwellers Kenn and Tricia Mast George have 4 children. Tricia is on the Jr. League Sponsor Committee and Executive Board of the Presbyterian Day School. Kenn is forming the 4th largest ESOP in the U.S. and also serves as Finance Chairman of the Dallas County Republican Committee. The Georges celebrated their 40th sailing the Gulf Coast of La Jolla. Emmy Moravec Holt is busy with 3 kids, half-time teaching and various volunteer activities. Emmy and Bill had a wonderful "honeymoon" at Sea Island, GA and have completed their annual summer swing of NY and MA to visit her family.

Aspen residents Bonnie Palmer McCloskey, Tom and their 4 kids are taking full advantage of the outdoor wonders of the Rockies. Bonnie is an active volunteer and looks forward to the annual summer music festival. Julia Northrup will celebrate "my 40th birthday bicycling from Seattle to Vancouver and Victoria BC - 350 mi. round trip".

Class laureate, Kay Parham Picha, is building a new home in the country and hosting an exchange student from Denmark. Kay will teach middle school math and join David as adult advisor for their church youth group. Mandy (12) and Tom (11) are having a wonderful summer at camp. Mary Jo Petree Murphy was rousted at 7 am with a glass of champagne and surprise breakfast for her 40th birthday. Mary Elizabeth is entering her junior year and has her heart set on Davidson. Will enters 8th grade and Jay is in 5th. Mary Jo gave Katy Warren a surprise croquet/cocktail party. Everyone wore white, hats, etc. "very Gatsby"! Marcia Pollock Ragsdale sees Emmy Moravec Holt and Mary Scales Lawson since their children attend the same schools.

Marcia acts as a fashion rep for 2 clothing lines, does oodles of volunteer work at Will (13) and Craig's (8) school, assists the children's choir at church and squeezes in the odd tennis game. Marcia is building a mountain retreat right on the cliff at Caesar's Head, South Carolina's highest point. Kathy Potterfield brags of her drought defying flower garden. She still works at the hospital and consults in geriatrics. Kathy lost 80 lbs. in preparation for the "big 40", walks 3-5 miles a day and looks and feels marvelous. Way to go! She plans a theatre trip to NY and an antiquing junket to Indiana as well as her family reunion at Holden Beach NC. Jane Richley Rafal claims she lives in a car shuttling tennis playing Alex (14), Andrew (10), Julie (6) and Tim (4) to their many varied activities. Her eldest, Rachel, graduates from high school in January and starts Endicott early. The Rafals celebrate the summer at their Montauk beach house.

Last year, Kate Schlech took the plunge into home ownership and "the ink was barely dry on the contract...when I got promoted and transferred to Dallas, as assistant chief of the Antitrust Division's field office". She is renting a small cottage till she works up the nerve to buy again. Kate spent Christmas in England & Scotland with her sister, "reunited" with her family in Bethany Beach, DE and skipped up to DC a few times. She hooked up by phone with Jean McKee Carmichael who is working at the YWCA and they hope to engineer a face to face get together. Bill successfully pulled off a complete "surprise" party for Margaret Sharp Howell. Lorene (5+) joins Ruth (9) at school leaving Margaret free to pitch in at Bill's fast growing architectural firm. Elizabeth Smith-Adams "picked the 'Year of the Crash' to eschew law, at least temporarily, to work as a stockbroker in LA." After 6 months of bi-coastal commuting, Elizabeth has moved back to DC and works for a local brokerage firm. Hope the career move shows an up-tic really soon!

A major milestone for Heather Tully and Richard Clink! "The longest either of us has EVER lived in one place: 48 months in Peachtree City!" Benjamin is in pre-kindergarten and Amanda in 1st grade. Tauna Urban Durand is pursuing an elementary ed certificate and other grad studies at the U. of S. Carolina where husband Doug teaches. Tauna's twins, Rob and Ted (11), loved their month at camp in NY. Doug and Tauna spent a week in the Dominican Republic, hiked and visited friends in their old Colorado stomping grounds and went to the beach to watch Loggerhead turtles nest. Katy Warren bought a house in June and "nearly killed myself since then trying to get it in order!" Mary Jo took Katy to their condo in Kiawah, SC for well deserved R&R. David and Barbara Waters Larson are immersed in the frenetic lives of their "typical teenagers": David (17) and Beverley and Lulu (14) in Montgomery. Barbara is Director of Development for the Alabama Shakespeare Festival. It is one of 10 professional regional theatres in the country with a "40 week schedule and $21 M facility." Barbara is also involved in Leadership Montgomery and the United Way after many years with the Jr. League. She sees a good deal of Linda Bennett Singer, Louise Hayman, Kathy Barnes Hendricks, and her fellow Montgomery resident, Kitty Litchfield Seale.

Another classmate bound for the Orient. Johanna Yaple Wolski is a Director in MSDRL-Japan, a division of Merk, Fortune's most admired company for the last 2 years. Her husband also works for Merck Sharp and Dohme Research Labs-Japan where they expect to pass the next 3-5 years. "Interestingly my last position was in corporate licensing where I reported to Elizabeth Wyatt '69."

This drought has convinced me that cockroaches and poison ivy will inherit the earth! Gil and I seem to thrive under the demands of our computer industry jobs. Our 10-year-old boxer now has a dashing 3-yr.-old male companion to keep her young. Keep those cards and letters coming... until next time... be joyous!

Mary F. Witt, MD, 3006 Weymouth Drive, Richmond, VA 23235

Elizabeth Andrews Watts,

Pungoteague, VA, and Jane Frierson went to SBC in June for a Van Der Meer Tennis Clinic. "We stayed in the Alumnae Inn in luxury while the other tennis players stayed in the dorm!"

Phyllis Becker is still in LA working at KTLA, Channel 5. She's on the board of directors of Animal Allies, an animal rights group. She sees Kirk Coleman Lammerding and her two children.

Betsy Biggar Hellmuth, Chagrin Falls, OH and Ted will attend Ted's Hillsdale reunion in October. Ted is still a salesman of investment research, traveling to California one week per month. Katie starts 6th grade this Fall, TJ begins the 4th grade and Kimmy at 5 will wait a year to start kindergarten. She still has her business—turning their house into a boutique two weeks in the Fall and Spring—and adds, "If anybody else would like to do this please write." 180 Millcreek Lane, 44022

Nancy Blackwell Marion, Lynchburg, VA and David's third child, daughter Molly, was born 9/10. Son Fritz (5) and Lucy (3 1/2) are looking forward to the arrival of a German au pair. They are constantly renovating their old house and a new building for the typesetting and graphic design business. (Her company designs this magazine.) In South Weymouth, MA, Marcia Brandenburg Martinson lived through major kitchen remodeling (from pre-Thanksgiving until the middle of March!). She taught a couple of speed quilting courses this year. She can't believe that next year is our 15th reunion and hopes everyone is making plans to be there. "Our latest Coast Guard transfer has brought us to Kodiak, AK, an island 250 miles southwest of Anchorage," writes Sally Brice-O'Hara. She is Planning Officer of the Coast Guard's largest base while her husband is skipper of a buoy tender. His sea-going tour takes him away from home about half of the year, so she's temporarily a single parent to their sons, ages 6 and 4.

Mary Lee Burch Weil, Geneva, NY, is a mom again. Grayson Paul was born in May, 1988. She is still teaching French and English and will have three classes in the fall, after a move to Canandaigua in August. Steve and Beth Burton Rooney are approaching a 10th wedding anniversary in Vancouver, BC. They are happy "DINKS" (double income, no kids) and spend time at their jobs, on their boat or traveling. Felton and Mary Bush Norwood won the Atlanta Opera Ball's grand door prize last year—a trip to Rome—and took the trip in March. Felton's eldest, Palmer, is at the College of Charleston and is making her debut this summer. Dorsey is a senior at Westminster and will be staying with a family in Spain this summer. Rounsaville Enterprises is still going strong. Mr. Rounsaville and Mary are writing his memoirs and applying for a new FM station right outside Atlanta in Roswell, GA.

Pat Carroll Bankenstein, Seven Valleys, PA, says "After 10 years we are almost finished redoing our 'railroad station' home (130 years old). Jennifer, 6, and Neal, 4, have slowed down the progress some." She is still consulting in Right-to Know and Superfund regulations 3 days/week and is on the board of a shelter for abused women in the York area. She had dinner with Mary Killorin and Karla Kline Bradshaw in DC. Jeannie Cartwright Dickson, Waco, TX, is substituting as a dental hygienist, and is busy with Austin, 8 1/2 and Annalisa, 2. She is community research chairman for the Junior League, and husband David is a bankruptcy attorney. Sally Clary has recently moved within Alexandria and is trying to get the new house in shape. She's also accepted a new position as a lobbyist for an insurance trade association. "Thank God for summer," writes Bonnie Chronowski Brophy from Summit, NJ. Chris, 10, is at camp. Meggie is in the throes of terrible two's. They had a good year settling into their neighborhood

Pam Cogghill Graham and Joshua Graham were married July 4, 1987. They are busy going back and forth between Greenwich and their coop in NY. She just saw Maureen Hynes Binder in Boston. Mary Combs, Houston, TX is marrying Jack Greer Taylor, Jr. in Naples, FL in December. Blaine Converse returned to LA about 18 months ago after 4 years in Scotland and has been working on a succession of films ever since. She's hoping to be around for the reunion. Julie Cooper is director of a new Child Support Enforcement Office in Culpeper, VA. Julie, who has a masters in personnel management from Lynchburg College, has worked in the state Child Support Enforcement Division for 10 years. Wanda Cronic Howell and Lee are preparing to move in to their new home in Griffin, GA. It is a copy of the Red Lion in Williamsburg, VA. The house is less than half a block from her parents' home which is good since her father has had further health problems this year. She continues to learn about operating a car dealership (Cronic Chevy, in Griffin) and will eventually be the dealer. Leslie Elbert Hill and David spent the last year building a home, and moved in just in time to welcome their third little son into the world—Mark Hayden Hill.

Laurie Epstein in Lake Forest, IL visited someone "very special" in Washington state in May. On June 1 her father suffered a near-fatal heart attack. He is recuperating well at home and she's running the company in the meantime. In NYC, Laura Elkins Robbins, and John have a new baby, Adele, Allbriton's new baby sister. They are moving down to Dixie, where John will open an architectural firm in Oxford, MS, Laura's home town.

Karen Fennell Idema in Grand Haven, MI moved again in June, though within the same town. She and Henry have taken on a major remodeling project with their turn-of-the-century house near Lake Michigan. Meghan enters kindergarten in the fall. Andria Francis Haruda and family went to Disneyland in San Diego in October '87. They also traveled to Napa Valley, Lake Tahoe and New York. She's still doing property management and is working on getting her state psychology license so she can start a private practice in psychological testing. "It's the usual busy summer for Furniss (9) and Christiann (7) with swimming, boating, sailing and day camp", writes Emory Furniss Maxwell from Annapolis, MD.

Mary Shaw Halsey is still a partner of Sidham-Halsey Architects in Manhattan. With husband Rob and her 20 month-old Ned, life is full. Barbara Hansen Smith and Bill are in Charlottesville, VA where Bill is a resident in anesthesiology at U.VA. Barb stays busy with their three girls. In Micanopy, FL, Nancy S. Hardt has begun a second career in medicine as a pathology resident. Her work concerning ultrasound-histopathologic correlations of tissue is being recognized on a national basis. Katie turns 5 in July and Will turns 3 in March.

Cynthia Hardy McCabe has had a very full year in Louisville with Brian (10), Tiffany (6) and Caiti (1). David is still pastor at Buechel Presbyterian Homes and Services of Kentucky (retirement facilities management). She's still trying to get her monogramming business going. She was in a show sponsored by the Junior League last Thanksgiving and ran into SBC'er Connie Butler who does applique.

Debbie Hart Eiserle is fine in Fort Wayne, IN. Deborah Hooker Sauer, Gary, and the boys have just relocated to Hudson, Ohio. Motorola promoted Gary to regional sales manager of the surrounding area. Anyone nearby, please give them a call! Pam Hughes Ganse is enjoying being at home with Leah (2 1/2). Husband Dave still has an architecture practice in Stephens City, VA. She enjoyed a reunion in November with Taffy Moffett Litz, Debbie Ryan Cairns, Katherine Vuicich Schinasi and Cindy Craighill Archer.

Sarah Johnston Knoblauch has retired from Montessori to pursue her art full time. It is her fifth year teaching children art in her basement studio. Brendan is now 5 and Kett 2. She has seen a lot of Betsy Biggar Hellmuth as her T.J. has taken her art class and Sarah helps out with Betsy's "Open Gate" clothing business. Michael will be finished with his MBA in the spring. Kathy Kavanagh, Wellesley, MA is "enchanted with Asia." She spent three weeks on business there last January. She continues as Director of Development and Alumnae at Dana Hall School and as a partner in The Franklin Group, consultants. It was so good to know that Haideh Khosrowshahi Partovi is in Sacramento with her husband, Hossein, and her 11-year-old daughter, Heleh. Her parents and many relatives live in New York. Hossein teaches physics at California State University and Haideh is getting her credentials to teach French. Penny Lagakos Turak and George were at Sweet Briar in April attending a Friends of Art meeting. Their gallery is fine and a booming American art market is keeping them hopping.

On 8-8-88 at 8:00 p.m. Mary Landon Barkley will become Mary Landon Darden. (Hope this was approved by her astrologer.) She is marrying Bob Darden who is a writer for Billboard Magazine, an editor for a national magazine, and is writing books for Thomas Nelson Publishing Company. They will live in Waco with their collective 3 children, Daniel, Rachel and Van. Nancy Lea Houghton and Hoot, Albuquerque, NM, just can't resist adding on...once again their house is under construction. Nancy and the children will spend July in Hilton Head with her mother, then return to VA where grandmother Lea will keep Casey (7.5) and Blake (3.5) while Nancy meets Hoot in Toronto for an ABA convention. Hoot specializes in real estate and construction law and will speak at the convention. Alethea Lee, Ossining, NY, continues with her painting and needlepoint and church activities. Karin Lawson, Alexandria, VA, is still involved in the INF arms control treaty negotiations. She attended the Spring Alumnae Board meeting, and spoke with the government majors concerning the treaty and US-Soviet relations. (Ed's note: See article on Distinguished Alumna Award, this issue.)

Missy Leib Veghte, Salem, NJ is still teaching and playing lots of tennis. Her son Rox (8) just went to Disney world with his godmother Evie Carter Consles '73. Jeannie Manning Schmidley, James, Max (5) and Will (2) are in Cleveland, OH. James is the new Chief of Neurology at Cleveland Metropolitan General Hospital. She has continued her part-time legal work 2 days per week at Ameritrust and has redecorated the main floor of their home.

"By the time we receive our alumnae magazine concerning our class, I will have had a little boy!" writes Ann Stuart McKie Kling, Dallas, TX. Her due date is in September. Bill's business continues to do well (marketing consulting)—he moved to bright new offices in April after buying the company for whom he had previously worked.

Edie McRee Whiteman's new neighbor in Richmond, VA is Mary Witt! (Mary and Fritz Will plan to marry in November and live in Richmond.) Edie is raising two boys and working hard at her job with the Virginia Association of Museums. All 200 members met at the new Radisson in Lynchburg in April and had a big event at Sweet Briar. Jamie, their oldest started school (K) this year at St. Christopher's and loves it. Alexander is 18 months. Barbara J. Moore just bought a house in Fort Worth, TX. She's still in private practice as a psychologist. Nancy Mortensen Piper and Christopher's big news last year was the birth of a baby girl, Katie, in Dec. '87. She goes to work with Nancy and plays in the child care center in the House of Representatives while Nancy tends to the affairs of the Committee on Small Business. Nancy sees Cindy Conroy, Sharon Mangus, Linda Kemp Couch and Betsy Roberts on a regular basis. She also gets together for "Girls Night Out" a lot with Jody Anderson Wharton, Lisa Walder '75, Dorothy Lear Mooney '78, and Jane Mooney '77. Nancy is still active in the Junior League and works with the child care center. She is secretary of the Parents Association.

Virginia Nolte Rude is settling into a new home in Billings, MT after a move from Butte in June. Husband Dean was promoted to director of accounting and customer services for the Montana Power Company. "My Three Sons" (10, 7, and 3) keep her busy at home and running the proverbial "Mom's Taxi" to sports and saxophone lessons. She's looking forward to attending our 15th in '89 since she hasn't seen anyone from SBC since graduation. Connie Norweb Abbey, in Kirtland Hills, OH bought a house two years ago that has required a huge amount of work. She was pregnant with twins when they moved. Those two will be two in September and Lindsey will be 5 in November—all girls! She's involved in community activities. She sees Betsy Biggar fairly often, Sara Johnston Knoblauch once in a while and is in touch with Claire Sandifer in Paris. Nancy Nunnelley has "the same condo, same husband and same job—owner of WRAPS (packing and shipping company with husband)" in Nashville, TN. She and Gilbert are packing lots of artwork and getting lazy college students to and from school with all their stuff.

Debbie Pelham Bigum is busy with Lindsay (5) and their new addition Courtney (1). She anticipates a transfer to West Germany in March 1989 from Grafton, VA. Jane Piper, St. Louis, MO spent 5 days in July down in Sherman, TX visiting Sherrie Snead McLeRoy. Melanie Porter Sons, Carrollton, TX is "finding motherhood much more challenging than her previous career." Natalie Elizabeth arrived in March and Alexander is 2 1/2. Ann Pritchett Van Horn, New Orleans, LA left the world of paralegals behind a year ago for the world of pre-school and loves it. She and Marion Van Horn Eagan had a wonderful reunion with Paula Hollingsworth Thomas in New Orleans recently. She wrote her card en route to New York to visit Mimi Bain Haik '73 for a week. "Big Woodie" joined them in NY. Tinka Pritchett, Chevy Chase, MD, "Architect, Weaver, Gardener, Mother" traveled to Sweden, Norway, and Finland this past August with her husband Bruce and son Gabriel (2 1/2). "We have moved to the Mt. Vernon area of Alexandria, VA," writes Sally Rebutisch Randolph. She saw lots of SBC'ers at Ceci Kirby's wedding last December and had a great time. She plays bridge with Sally Clary and Karla Kline Bradshaw. Her children are Elizabeth (6) and David (4). Rossie Ray Spell wrote from Atlanta: "I had surgery for breast cancer in February and have been undergoing chemotherapy for the last 6 months. It's not as bad as it sounds. In fact, 3 weeks after the surgery I was back to playing tennis and my team went to the Atlanta city championships in May! Penn and I are in the process of adopting a child. Any of you who are in Atlanta visiting, call me." Thank you for sharing your triumph over adversity with us Rossie. We send you and Penn a lot of love and best wishes for the days ahead.

"My year off work is stretching into a second year!" writes Janie Reeb Chadwick from Coconut Grove, FL. She's finding it such fun to be foot-loose and fancy free in the beautiful Florida sunshine. "Unfortunately", she adds "the Junior League of Miami has discovered that I have some extra time and has put me to work." She's leaving soon for Norfolk, VA to visit her sister Molly Clark '77 and plans to see Sandy Taylor Craighead and Elizabeth Andrews Watts. Bern and Mary Ann Reese Rosenberg bought a 50 acre farm in August in Montgomery, TX. At last, she is able to have horses again. Rebecca is 4 1/2 and loves the country—especially the animals. "While working an 80 hour week for 4 months I passed the ISID professional exam" wrote Jan Renne, Costa Mesa, CA. She's traveling and designing all over Southern California and enters her work in design competitions for restaurants; in her spare time she exercises and gardens.

Debbie Ryan Cairns, Richmond, VA and Scott now have three children—Allison Ryan Cairns was born on Mother's Day of this year. Sam (8) and Elizabeth (6) think she's great. They got together with Cindy Craighill Archer and Tom and their two, Cameron (2) and Tommy (6 mo.), Katherine Vuicich Schinasi and Garry with Jack (3), Elizabeth Nicholson Lewis and Bill, and Mary Satterfield Worrell, and Dave last April. Debbie will return to work at the State Corporation Commission, part-time, in September. In the fall of '87 Jana Sawicki, Bangor, ME received tenure in the Philosophy Department at the University of Maine. She has been on sabbatical in '87-'88 and spent a month in Paris doing research. She was a visiting scholar for the year at MIT. She recently had a visit from Sarah Clement '75 and will see Georgie Vairo '72 next week. One area she's currently researching is reproductive technologies. Colleen Shannon Robertson and her family are moving to Washington, DC from Boca Raton, FL in August and she's looking forward to seeing some SBC friends in the area. "Benjie is now 13 months old", writes Julie Shuer, Beverly Hills, CA. Her husband Steve's law firm dissolved May 30 so he with 5 other fellows started their own firm specializing in litigation and sports law. Kareem is their client. They're doing a small remodeling project to their home so Julie can move her office there.

Susan Stephens Geyer, Dallas, TX continues to spend time with children who have cystic fibrosis. She just got back from her fourth year at summer camp with them. Stewart (8) completed first grade. Julia (5 1/2) will be in kindergarten next year, and Edward is 4. They see Leslie and David Hill frequently. Cindy Sorenson Sutherland, Mission Hills, KS attended the Democratic Convention in Atlanta as a delegate for Jesse Jackson. Last month husband Dwight and Cindy hosted a party for the "Freedom Fest" concert against apartheid, live from London's Wembley Stadium. She has also been active in the mid-America Coalition Against Intervention in Central America.

Sandy Taylor Craighead, Richmond, VA has been elected to the SBC Alumnae Board and is treasurer of the SBC Richmond Chapter. She and husband Billy are active in their church. Billy serves on the finance committee and she's on the board of trustees. She joined a service-oriented sorority after she graduated (Alpha Kappa Alpha) and is treasurer for a chapter in Richmond. Her brother-in-law is campaign manager for Chuck Robb who is running for the Senate from Virginia. Her sister, Marsha Taylor Delain '76 is back in the U.S. living in South Carolina and working for the SC Board of Education. Kathy Telfer Johnson, Ann Arbor, MI, spent the summer preparing for the arrival of Telfer Rockwell, born July 27th. She and Tom cooled off with Courtney and Mr Spooks, their faithful black lab, at their summer place on a lake. Connie Terhune, Eastham, MA is still working yearround at a silk screen company called "Wind Screens" and taking a second job in the summer manning an information booth for tourists. Hasn't heard from Moi Fulton or Marcia Paca in years... where are you girls?

Now for Liz Thomas Camp. She's campaigning for an SBC reunion at Mary Witt's wedding in November, where she and Edie Whiteman will be bridesmaids. Jack was sworn in as a U.S. Judge for the Northern District of Georgia. Liz says "I am a mother now, spending the summer swimming, training the new pony 'Polly', cutting grass, doing kid stuff." She's chairman of "Georgia Don't Mess Up a Good Thing" program—a statewide anti-litter campaign mounted through the garden clubs of Georgia, a fundraiser for the Georgia Trust for Historic Preservation, ruling elder of the Newnan Presbyterian Church, and teaches Sunday school. Liz and Jack heard Georgie Vairo '72 a Fordham law professor, speak at the first judicial conference in May '88 in FL along with U.S. Supreme Court Justice Anthony Kennedy. Georgie gave an excellent lecture on summary judgment. Liz and Barbara Ashton Schiller took the boys and Sophia to the beach for summer fun.

Helen Travis, Woodside, NY is still assistant human resources manager at DDB Needham Advertising. She's organizing the March of Dimes Team-walk for DDBNeedham—the 18.6 walk around Manhattan—and is working on HelpLine, a suicide crisis telephone line in NYC. She's visiting friends in Tucson, St. Louis, and Hopkins, MN and will travel to England and Ireland in the fall. Gabrielle Urbanowicz Wehl has been named to "Who's Who of American Women" and is still with the Bell, Richardson, and Sparkman firm in Huntsville, AL. Helen Sockwell is running for the Huntsville City Council and is doing freelance art/sculpture. Natalie Ward has been living and working in Woods Hole, MA, since 1975. She's an independent marine mammal researcher studying humpback whales in the North Atlantic and the Caribbean. Since 1984 she's researched humpback whales on Bequia—100 miles west of Barbados—site of an active humpback whale fishery. An article of hers on the fishery was published in the Caribbean Oceanus magazine. She's getting a masters in science education this year and is also writing articles for kids magazines on whales. Husband Jonathan Larkin is a landscaper and flamenco guitarist. Daughter Aaries (9) accompanies them to the Caribbean and attends the local school for two months of the year.

Lynn Watson Philpott, Pine Mountain, GA is looking forward to her Junior League placement at the Day Butterfly Center at Callaway Gardens this fall, the only butterfly house in North America. Sonny, Drew (5) and Kate (3) and Lynn are planning to vacation in Florida after blueberry season. "My most newsworthy info concerns my March trip to Paris with Ruthie Lentz, her sister Julie and their aunt, Ruth Purcel '49. Returning to Paris 15 years later with the same friends I was with before was such great fun," writes Lee Wilkinson Warren, South Hill, VA. "I'm looking forward to a visit next week from Susan Stubbs Brown and her family. Susan's brother is going to be married in Chapel Hill, NC and Susan's incorporating a visit to VA since we're so close." Mary Witt is "following her heart" and moving from Atlanta to Richmond to be with Fritz Will whom she met at the Martin's Bull Roast. Mary and Fritz are to marry November '88. Fritz is a U.Va. Commerce School grad. Mary will be working at a pediatrics practice. Cathy Weiss Thompson, Winchester, VA and Tom are building their dream house in VA on 5 acres after selling their Berryville farm. Chris Weiss Pfeil and Dave, Rocky River, OH enjoyed a trip with their one-year-old Richard Lee to see sister Cathy in VA. Now it's back to teaching part-time for the Cleveland Museum of Natural History and racing the family sailboat on Lake Erie. She's also active on the long range planning and development committee for her independent high school. Suzanne Williams Click is assistant editor of the OGPS Review (Old Greensborough Preservation Society).

"This has been a year of all work, and play when I can squeeze it in" writes Ruthie Willingham Lentz, Memphis, Tennessee's hottest new stockbroker with J.C. Bradford, 1(800)238-7110. She traveled to Paris with Aunt Ruth Preucel '49, Lee Warren, and sister Julie for a week in March. Spent a day in Tours with her "family" the de Parnys. David (7) attended computer camp in August. Last but not least your editress is pooped after hours of typing. After 5 long years I will be relieved to pass the baton to some very charitable person in the Class of '74. I am not sure I'll make it to Reunion '89 as I'm very tempted to see Mary Witt walk down the isle in November and one can't do it all. As for the Boyds in Detroit, MI, we are fine and enjoying our permanently temporary status in an old subdivision full of new families in a very interesting midwest city. Doug is working very hard with Union Carbide's Linde Division selling industrial gases to GM. I am starting a Michigan Women's Jewelry Division from scratch and have had a great response so far (patterned after the Southern WJA in Atlanta.) My greatest love after Doug and Clayton is the Birmingham-Bloomfield Art Association, where I have rediscovered figure drawing and oils. We truly lucked out on the childcare problem with a neighbor who formerly taught in a Montessori school and stayed home to be with her last child. She teaches Clayton and about 7-8 other children in the mornings and keeps them on a straight and narrow but happy line the rest of the time. I was just tricked into heading up the babysitting co-op for this year so I expect to be having more little people around on a more regular basis. Come and see us in Bloomfield Hills, all you cross-country skiers!

The Class of '78 proved its "greatness" again as more than 70 classmates attended our 10th reunion making ours the largest returning class ever! For those who missed it, these notes will fill you in.

Leslie Anderson Battle's girls, ages

3 and 1 1/2, keep her and Mike busy but they did manage a week of skiing in Steamboat Springs last spring and a trip to Williamsburg. They plan a weekend in Jacksonville, FL to visit Anne Baldwin Mann and her family. Anne and Randall took advantage of our reunion to incorporate a visit to Lexington and to Linville, NC for golfing. Anne stays occupied with daughters Caroline and Elizabeth, Jr. League work, tennis and smocking.

Barbara Behrens Peck is now the fulltime managing editor at Clarkson Potter Publishers. Her husband Jeff started a new job with Burlington. Barbara is excited about the February publication of a book which she designed—The Natural Garden by Ken Druse, gardening editor of House Beautiful. Barbara keeps busy with her house in Chatham, NJ and in her own garden. Mimi Borst Quillman attended reunion and especially enjoyed the '78 ride and being back at the barn. She has two "wild" boys, Ian (1 1/2) and Travis (4 1/2) who loves all things Mimi doesn't! Mimi saw Ginny Craig in Naples in March, Leith Colton Derish who has bought a house in Armonk, NY and Meg Richards Wiederseim in Birmingham, MI.

Melanie Bowen Steglich, new class co-secretary, will be alternately compiling the notes with me. She and Lee are in Dallas, TX where Lee's dental practice is rapidly growing. They had a busy summer and got a lesson in parenthood while keeping Melanie's nephew for 2 weeks. Paula Brown enjoys leasing and selling commercial real estate in the DC area and says that women are now being noticed in that field. She visited Colorado and planned a New England trip in August. Lee Carollo Plorsich spent the summer as a project manager at Broderbund Software revising a computer-lab interface project. She also explored Marin Co., Mt. Tamalpais, and Pt. Reyes beaches with her 6 yr. old son, Bobby. She was taking up ballroom dancing and playing horn again before starting a new honors chem. class at her high school in the fall. She heard from Tricia Mason Terraneo who is still in L.A.

Toni Christian Brown classifies herself as a "home executive," raising her girls Claibourne and Finley and training her springer spaniel for a working dog. She and Jim sold their video business and bought a farm in the Allegheny Mts. where they plan to build a home. Jim enjoys selling real estate. Carol Cordell Mullins and Keith bought a house last Dec. in Denver. Carol is an Assistant Attorney General for the state of Colorado and volunteers in the Denver Jr. League speaking on the legal aspects of adoption at the Rocky Mt. Adoption Exchange.

Lenore Cox lives in Lynchburg and works for First Colony Life Insurance. After a week of tennis and sunning in Hilton Head, she drove directly to SBC's reunion. She enjoys tennis and her health club and sees a lot of Lisa Spruill Darby. Virginia Craig in Naples, FL sent rave reviews about our reunion. Cannie Crysler Shafer was "entrenched at summer camp" where she and Win co-direct the programs for girls and boys respectively at Camp Susquehannah. Their daughter Francie enjoys pushing her baby buggy around during the activities. Cannie will be the chairman of the Social Services Council for the Philadelphia Jr. League next year.

Deborah Davison Weidner and Doug recently moved from L.A. to Newport Beach, CA. Deb is in acting class and has done 3 commercials. She will start auditioning for T.V. and film after doing some theater. Robin Jones Eddy visited the Weidners in July. Dana Dotten Endacott (US Navy) will be promoted to Lieutenant Commander in 1989. She will have completed a masters degree in educational leadership by then and will transfer with her husband to the Naval Air Station in Fallon, NV, in Dec.

Cathy Finley Onder missed reunion due to the birth (2 mos. early) of her daughter Kelly. Kelly is fine, and Cathy is taking time off from work to be with her and Sean (3 1/2). Cecilia Garcia-Tunon Lear and Steven bought a house in Vienna, VA. She has managed an office for Ask Mr. Foster Travel at the State Dept. for 6 years and loves it. Libby Freeman Goetz, in Roswell, GA is busy being Mom to Ralson (4 1/2) and Lissy (2 1/2). Her husband Wade is constantly working on new real estate development projects.

Mickie Guppton McKelway and Hank had a baby girl, Katherine Mosby, in Sept. 1987. Drusie Hall survived the 4th annual Hot Air Balloon race in Nashville in June. Fifty balloons participated to help raise money for the Ear Foundation. She says she has zillions of letters to write as a result of reunion. Muffy Hamilton Parsons is no longer Director of Alumni Affairs at the Ohio State U. College of Medicine but has a new job as a mother. James Hamilton will be 1 on Christmas Eve. Muffy still works with the Jr. League and the Central Ohio SB Club.

Suse Hudson Fitzgerald wrote from London where she and Rusty lived for a year. By now they should be living in Belfast, No. Ireland, where Rusty is greatly interested in observing the political situation firsthand. Their oldest son Ryan (8) will be attending Irish schools after visiting his grandmother in Virginia for 9 weeks. Van Thomas (3) was "charming his way through Great Britain." Elinor Humphrey Comer and Stewart were expecting their first child in Oct.

Eve Jackson London brought a copy of the movie which she made senior year at SBC to reunion. It was shown at our class picnic at Dean Barlow's house and inspired much laughter and reminiscing. She has extra copies for $15 for anyone interested (88 Country Club Blvd., Birmingham, AL 35213). Eve stays busy with Mitchell (3 1/2) and Jack (9 mo.). Kathy Jackson Howe and Root are the proud parents of Jane Richardson (Janie) born 2 weeks after their attendance at reunion! Siblings Trey and Khaki are fascinated with their sister. Root finishes his training Dec. 31.

Robin Jones Eddy, in Lexington, VA is fulltime single Mom for 4 yr. old Stets. Robin visited Deb Davison Weidner in CA and Holly McGlothlin in San Francisco where she had dinner with Hunter Davis and heard Hunter's 4th album. Robin then traveled through Oregon, Idaho (white water rafting), Montana, and Minnesota. Nancyellen Keane, in Richmond, VA is a legal counsel to a British-owned chemical company, Albright and Wilson Americas, Inc. Karen Kuhlman Keseric and Nick live in Chicago with their 2 English cocker spaniels, Putter and Chipper (Nick is an avid golfer), and a 3 yr. old hunter-bred Virginia thoroughbred. They spend their weekends at dog and horse shows.

Jane Lauderdale Armstrong and Mike have moved back to Atlanta from the San Francisco area. Mike accepted a position with Bankers Trust in August, and in Sept. they were expecting their first child. Maggie Laurent Gordy spends her days chasing 2 children and a 60 lb. dog, Belle, who is now going to obedience classes. Maggie wishes she could find such a thing for Meg and John! She gardens and reads when she gets the chance.

Karen Lemon Hassett will be the mother of 4 when you read this! Her 4th child was due in September. Her husband Mark opened two more Lil' Dinos restaurants in North Carolina this summer, and he joined the Pinehurst Polo Club where he is an avid player. Marybeth Lipinski McAdoo now lives in Phoenix, AZ and loves it but misses the trees and greenery of the East. She is a legal administrator for Cleveland-based Squire Saunders and Dempsey. She rides her horse every day despite the summer heat. Marybeth saw Carey Johnson Fleming in Chicago when she attended a conference there in May. She regretted having to cancel her reunion plans which were coupled with a cancelled business trip.

Catherine Lumsden is at the Naval Postgraduate School in Monterey, CA where she is working towards a Masters in National Security Affairs with a specialization in Soviet Studies. She just returned from a vacation in Hawaii and spent a week in Newport as part of a war game. Cathy was honored by being selected as an Outstanding Young Woman of America.

Liz Maynard Hoyt and Mark have relocated to Atlanta where he will transfer to a management position with a Marketing Research company and attend paralegal School. Liz was in retail at the store level in CA and plans to get back into the corporate retail level in Atlanta. Leigh McDonald Forrester and John have a 6 mo. old baby, Catherine Alexandra, and a 2 yr. old son, Ian. They are in Kansas City where Leigh is the Director of Sales for the Meeting/Incentive Division of Passport Travel.

Cindy McKay Frick and Ken were tolerating the heat in Columbus, OH and awaiting the October arrival of their first child. Cathy Mellow Goltzmann is a Flight Service Manager with TWA, both domestic and international. She and Chris flew to London, Scotland, and Ireland in the fall and to St. Johns in the Caribbean for her birthday. Chris owns St. Louis Braid Co. which manufactures shoe laces and braid accessories.

Betsy Moore Rice has "retired" since her son, John Reiley, was born Sept. 1987. She enjoys spending time with him and with Molly (5) and volunteering with the Jr. League and other efforts in community mental health. Mary Moore Garrison and Michael have been in L.A. for 8 years. Mary teaches English as a Second Language to adult immigrants and takes voice lessons and sign language. Michael is starting an electronics firm. Mary enjoys SBC alum connections in L.A.

Becky Mulvihill McKenna gave birth to Erin McKenna on May 25, so missed reunion. With 3 girls now, she will return to work as a marriage and family therapist on a part-time basis and will do a small amount of private practice work. Her husband Ken has taken a position as a counselor at a local high school. They both enjoy working on their old home in St. Louis, MO. Susan Negaard Birch and Larry moved into a new house in Lake Forest, IL in July. They recently saw Anne Stelle, Janet Rakoczy Hudson, and Carrie Ruda Clark and planned a week in Nantucket in Aug. with her sister Robin (SBC '81) and her husband.

Katherine Nesbit was living in Uperville, VA and commuting to Rosslyn, VA for her job as a senior systems analyst/systems programmer for Kastle Systems. She loves her work but hoped to end the commute by moving to Fairfax in the fall. She stays in touch with Edie Baird. Ileke Osinga Scully is a staff accountant in Hartford, CT with Price Waterhouse, specializing in the small business/start-up area. Her husband Mark plans to go to Johns Hopkins for a masters in International Relations. They will have to endure a commuter marriage until Ieke can be transferred to D.C.

Mary Page Stewart and Bob brought the newest Stewart (Geordie, just 4 wks. old) to reunion. Ellie is now 3. Julie Plautz Bodenslab and Mark moved to Allentown, PA where they built a home. Mark works for Air Products and Chemicals, Inc., in Industrial Gases with Magnetic Resonance Imaging. Julie spends her time with Phillip (6) and Peter (2 1/2) and volunteering for the Jr. League and for the American Liver Foundation.

Lauren Place Young missed reunion due to the birth of John Webster (Jake) in April. Lauren and Chris spent the winter in Maui (early maternity leave) since her job in real estate booms in April, and she could not escape working then. Marianne Hutton Felch and Jean Beard Barden visited them in July and showed them a video which Jean made of the reunion! Sally-Ann Polson Slocum and Bill spent 3 weeks in England and Wales during reunion. Sally-Ann is Director of Sales and Marketing for Fairfax Hospital System, and serves on the board of the Center to Prevent Childhood Malnutrition. She took charge of a fund raising dinner for 300+ at the home of the Ambassador of Peru, and also serves as a Girl Scout leader for the only developmentally disabled troop in the area.

I. Katherine Powell Heller, have moved from Cleveland to San Diego, CA where my husband John is a Fellow in adult spine surgery at UCSD Med. Center. I enjoy the wonderful climate and am spending all my time with our daughter, Laura Flynn (10 mos.). The zoo, Sea World, and the beach seem much more appealing than medical illustration this year, but I will do some freelance work at home. Missy Powell Adams lives in Baltimore, MD with Ross and 1-yr. old twins, Philip and Whitman.

Lisanne Purvis Davidson and Douglas spent 2 weeks in England as he has business with Harlech Television in Cardiff, Wales, as an independent film producer/director. Lisanne switched from litigation to corporate law within her firm and likes it very much. Katie Renaud Baldwin lost a baby due in July so could not attend reunion. She and Smanda (2 1/2) spent 2 weeks in Michigan. Katie still teaches preschool and administers the program. She spends her summers working at Petersburg Fisheries and this year ran 2 salmon roe rooms.

Anne Riordan Flaherty and Kevin moved to Louisville, KY in July where Kevin will do a fellowship in corneal surgery. Nancy Robinson Lindberg managed to obtain her M.D. degree and have her second son Timothy both at reunion time! She will do a residency in Family Medicine in Tuscaloosa, AL.

Carrie Ruda Clark and Jack brought both sons, Andrew Burrus Hutchison (9 mos.) and Johnson (5 1/2), to reunion. Carrie does referral business in real estate and "rejuvenates herself" by singing in the "Washingtones" and by serving on the board at Johnson's school. Sallie Sexton Mc Kinney has moved into her first house in Pennsylvania. She apologizes especially to Edie Baird for not making it to reunion.

Anne Simonds Lowe and Rick have a 15 mo. old son, Jeffrey Samuel. Anne loves being a fulltime wife and mother, and Rick works at E-Systems as a computer programmer and has completed his MBA. They enjoy spending time at their family lake house each summer. Cassandra Smith Babbitt has been in the Philippines for 3 yrs. where Jim is a Commander in the Navy. They have three children - James (7), Ian (4 1/2), and Hilary Frances (10 mos.). Cassandra has traveled to Japan, Korea, Guam, Hawaii and Hong Kong and hopes to get to Australia, Bangkok and Singapore before leaving in the next year. Dru Springer Oswalt was expecting her third child in November.

Anne Stelle moved 2 days after reunion into her first "home" in 2 years. She and son Kip flew to Virginia from Chicago - the plane impressed Kip greatly! Suzanne Stryker Ullrich, Rick, and their 2 sons went to Washington state for a family reunion and to Vancouver and Victoria, British Columbia. They survived Alex's (7 1/2) first swim team season which meant getting up at 6 a.m. every Saturday and will have the same with Andrew (5) next year. Suzanne and sons spent August in the northeast. Julia Sutherland is press secretary for former Virginia Gov. Charles S. Robb's U.S. Senate campaign. Julia has been communications director for the Va. Democratic Party since 1986. Catherine Taylor Moore and Bob are still in Orlando where Catherine is Vice President and Manager of the Loan Review department for Sun Bank N.A. She hears from Betsy Ryan who is in Atlanta with Robinson-Humphrey. Ann Thrash Jones had to miss reunion due to job demands. Her husband Bob has practiced law with Hansell and Post since 1985, and she is a paralegal at Alston and Bird, right across the street - which makes for daily lunches together! They backpack with children Chris (7) and Mary Patrick (2). Ann laments that Bob is still caving.

Dianne Torn Duffy and her husband live in Western Ft. Lauderdale where he is an equine dentist, and they buy and sell thoroughbreds and a few ponies. They have a 2 yr. old daughter, Devin. The Duffys hosted Toni Christian Brown and daughter Finley last March. Audrey Townsend Bertram married Scott in Sept. '87 and spent a month in Europe and a month windsurfing in Aruba. They enjoy the country life in Effland, NC.

Cindy Whitley has completed the academic part of her Masters in Historical Archaeology at William and Mary with only her thesis left to complete. She spent the summer doing a fellowship with the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation, supervising an excavation. She bicycled from her apartment to work and enjoyed being outside all day. Liz Williams lives in Alexandria, VA and runs the Business Development Section of a naval architecture firm. This is her first season eventing her mare, Boozier. She visited Marybeth Lipinski McAdoo last winter in Phoenix and saw Mickie Gupton McKelway and family in June. Ann Yaeger is still selling computers for AT&T and worked at the national Democratic Convention training "The Great State of Texas" on the computers used for voting. She spent the 4th of July with Francie Root (SBC '80) in Hilton Head.

Monica Shaffer married Richard (Rick) Karo in Sept. 1987 and spent 3 weeks in France. She is an executive V.P. in marketing and media services at an advertising agency and planned to spend time in Budapest in the fall where Rick would be filming a movie. They both "work like nuts" in NYC and spend weekends at their home in Rhinebeck, NY

Many of you did not sign your cards, but through some detective work most lost souls were identified. The following one remains a mystery. She and her family are building a house in Madison, VA on 10 acres of wooded property where sons John (4) and Adam (1 1/2) can play. She works as Vocational Services Manager for her planning district, managing 2 vocational training programs and one job placement program for disabled persons.

Our thanks are extended to class officers Becky Dane, Cannie Cryslar Shafer, Suzanne Stryker Ullrich, and Lu Litton Churchill for the many hours spent in serving our class for the past 5 years. You've kept us great through '88, and we appreciate your efforts.

Marie Engel married Fred Earnhart in May in Virginia Beach, throwing, as she would say, a killer party in the process. Cindy Hewitt Kellam and Lisa Blake were bridesmaids. The ceremony was beautiful. The reception was at one of those military officers' clubs down there, where Marie had a great band, good food, and a mighty accommodating bar for all of us to enjoy. The happy couple honeymooned in Bermuda. Many classmates attended that wedding and also the wedding of Jean von Schrader to Peter H. Bryan in July in Arlington. Molly Finney was maid of honor. (Dirt) Nancy Daugherty Davidson, Brianna Boswell Brown, Dorinda Davis and I were bridesmaids. The happy couple honeymooned in Sanibel, FL. Lisa Church and Molly Johnson were among the 30 or so alumnae from a variety of classes who attended the festivities. Liz Richardson, after years of anonymity in Austin, graced us with her presence as well. Liz looked smashing and loves Texas. She is concurrently dating the members of Los Lobos and, in her spare time, works in sales for a printing company.

Dirt and Mike Davidson crashed Jean and Peter's honeymoon. They met up at Disney World and something about the place forced both couples to rethink any imminent plans for parenthood! The Davidsons will be stationed for the next 3 years in Ft. Hood, TX. We should soon be hearing from Dirt in her capacity as class treasurer; if we don't, we'll know the rattlers and water moccasins got her.

Charlotte Prassel Fitzgerald and Andy attended Torie Lee's wedding to Henry Adams in Richmond in October. Charlotte is back with ADP as a district manager. She and Andy have been playing tennis and racketball, and took a canoe trip down the Shenandoah with newlyweds Marie and Fred Earnhart in August. Nancy Trimble administers sales contracts for Xerox. She also has a small graphics business in which she paints t-shirts, designs logos, etc. She writes that Monika Kaiser got married last January, and that she's kept up with Leslie Hertz and Liz Kauffman. Liz passed the Ohio bar. She is still writing on the side, and still riding, though her show horse is retired now. On a recent visit to NYC, Liz saw Rhoda Harris and Debbie Price Bowman. Debbie married Jeffrey Bowman, who works for Standard and Poor's, in May. Rhoda and Melissa Byrne '83 were in the wedding in Daytona. The happy couple honeymooned in the Algarve in Portugal, and then settled into a new midtown apartment in NYC. Rhoda Harris is at Paine Webber, Inc., in NYC as an associate in research and development financing, but found time to tour Spain and Portugal and vacation in the Caribbean.

Patricia Whelan Schenck has had her hands full with Lilian Jane, who arrived on Memorial Day. Patty has just begun tutoring Spanish in her home in Baltimore, but as Bob is in his last year at Johns Hopkins as chief orthopaedic resident, the trio will soon be heading for Cincinnati, where Bob will be a fellow in sport medicine. Consuelo Michelle Martinez is Lillian Jane's godmother. Michelle attended the christening after a lengthy visit to Florence, Italy, from which she returned affianced to Alessandro Cartei, whom she met during her Junior Year Abroad. Preliminary plans include a stateside fellowship for Alessandro, who is studying to be a geriatric psychiatrist. Meantime, Michelle will carry on as regional sales coordinator for Benetton Corp. in Los Angeles. She's planning to get a low-maintenance pet, probably a tortoise, and she was recently the SBC rep at a college night at Marymount High School in Bellair.

Leigh Leibel is a reporter for CNN in Atlanta. Her German shepherd, Chiquita, has flunked dog school. Ethel Burwell spent a month at camp and still finds her work with Young Life in Fairfax, VA very rewarding. Pamela Walsh was married to Thomas A. Warren of Old Greenwich, CT in June. Anne Workman '81 played guitar and sang at the ceremony. The Warrens have relocated to San Juan Island in Washington State, where whale watching has become their favorite pastime. Pamela is an RN at a convalescent center. Thomas nurses oysters at one of the area hatcheries.

Lollie Noble has left her job of 6 years as a real estate appraiser and property manager in San Antonio to start her own business doing custom needlepoint designs and commissions. After attending her third and last brother's graduation from W&L, she hooked up with Heather Pirnie Albert at her home in North Carolina. Fran and Cindy McMechan stopped by Heather's for Memorial Day weekend. Heather saw Frances Mantho and Chris McFadden in April at Suzu Balog's ('83) wedding in Boston. Heather's daughter, Rebecca, is now 3. Mike is still with the Marines, and Heather has finished her second tax season with H&R Block. Martha Tisdale Cordell and David took a second honeymoon to England and France in October. They returned refreshed to Tulsa, where David is a suffering law-firm associate and Martha works with the Career and Personal Development Center at the U. of Tulsa. She does recruiting in Chicago twice a year, and would love to get together with any classmates in the area.

Frances Mantho is providing daycare for, and teaching, nine children, ages 12 to 24 months, in DC. I must have seen Molly Johnson a hundred times this year. The last time I saw her was at Ernie's Crab House in Arlington; I believe she said that she'd bought a house and that she was working as a paralegal for the firm that handled McDonald's vs. MacRooms. Betsy Kaiser Smith and Pat are enjoying the outdoor life in Jupiter, FL. Betsy is an account executive with Cellular One, and Pat has opened his own dental practice in Juno Beach. They moved into a new home on the Intercoastal waterway this fall.

Alice Dixon has been working on her master's, house repairs, volunteer work, and keeping Henry the Labrador in line. She visited Michelle Martinez in LA in the spring. Connie took her whale watching and star searching. Alice is president of the Richmond alumnae club, and works for Carter Wallace in her spare time. Danielle Bielenstein works at the National Museum of Natural History. She has one more semester and a thesis before getting an M.A. in physical anthropology at GWU. She is doing administrative work and science projects, which include human skeletal reconstruction and analysis and research in the Easter Islands. Cathy Adams has sold her house, packed up her dog, Penny, and moved to Richmond. She has started classes at the pharmacy school at MCV and hopes to meet up with classmates in the area. (Cathy, call Alice.)

Sylvia Hossain is at Penn State, where she earned an M.S. in electrical engineering and has entered the Ph.D. program. She will be doing research in solid-state device physics. Kit Johnson opened her own advertising and sales promotion agency, Johnson & Mace, last fall, and business is good. She bought a condo in Woodbury, CT, and is fixing it up. Fay Powell Smith and Tom are in Madison, VA. They gave Stuart a brother, Philip Price, in July. Mary Lavigne is racing and raising thoroughbreds and working for an equine vet in Shreveport, LA. This December she plans a trip to New Zealand and Botswana. Alice Keyes got her M.B.A. from Georgetown, and works and lives in DC. Janet Goss is also in DC. She is an attorney with the National Victims Resource Center, specializing in family violence.

Brianna Boswell Brown and Randy traveled this year and spent the rest of their ill-gotten gains on lawn gardening supplies for their Dallas manse and flea and tick spray for Duffy. Martha Coretti married Michael Coghlan in August. Michael is a medical student at John's Hopkins. In May Peggy Thistlethwaite married Robert Hart, a urology resident at GWU Hospital, where Peggy is a surgery resident. Lisa Seay was a lovely bridesmaid, and Rhoda Harris came down for the event. Peggy and Bob live in McLean, VA. Lisa Seay is still the rental property manager for Fairfield Ridge, a resort on Edisto Island, SC and loves it.

Debra Autrey Bock ceased working and is waiting for her second child to join 3-year-old Adam. Debra asked for news of Mimi Evans and Lynn Hanna. Sorry Debbie, those two have been stingy with their news for the past two years. Betsy Bell Liles works for Jock at Liles Construction in Charlotte, NC, and takes care of Welch. She's seen Kathy Reynolds Barsness, George and their baby boy, who was born last October. Kathy has gone back to work as the recruiting coordinator for a law firm. She sees Molly Finney and Molly Johnson and keeps up with Sally Davis Daniels and Jenny Hebb LaRose. Sally and Mark settled into Greenville, SC, just in time. Robert was born in February, and Sally has enjoyed the change from mortgage banking to motherhood. Mark is still with Tanner Chemical, and Sally is exploring the suburban phenomena of volunteer work, garden club, and keeping up the golf and tennis games. Jenny's baby, Molly Elizabeth, was born in July. Betsy and Jock visited Jenny and Keith in Hartford.

Mary Ames Booker, in Woodstock, VT, works for Billings Farm Museum. She's working on the Farm Manager's 1890 House restoration, and loves it. She'll be a first-time aunt this Christmas. Libby Lee Gantt Castles and Guy moved into an old house in downtown Charleston, and spent 6 weeks painting and scrubbing. Guy is a first-year pediatric resident, and Libby Lee teaches maths at Ashly Hall. She still plays golf and has a new puppy. Molly Finney found a new home this spring, not too far from Jean and Molly Johnson. She's still working for the National Spa and Pool Institute. She was in Reno early in the year and had Bri and Randy come down to enjoy the work-related freebies. They skied, she worked and shot craps at the casino. She's got a cat named Clarence Anne Edmunds Hansen is in her third year of medical school at Vanderbilt. She and David are living in Nashville. Dansie Allen finished the interior design program at the Colorado Institute of Art in Denver in March and married Dr. Roger G. Little, II, in Spartanburg, SC, in May. They have settled in Rochester, MN. Roger is a Ph.D. research scientist in immunology at the Mayo Clinic. Dansie is a commercial designer. They bought a 1929 house on the river and have moved in lock, stock, and Samoyed, named Talko.

Lisa Zuke Kline and Robert had Ian Russel in February. Their racehorses are winning and all is fine in Leesburg. Diane Dunaway, in Atlanta, finished her landscape architecture boards in June and ran the Peachtree road race in July. She and Sally Shapard Peek saw each other at Torie Lee's wedding. Sally and Mark have moved to Griffin, GA, where Mark is in the textile business, and she is looking for a job and fixing up the new house. Beth Engelsmann Flanigan, Peter, and Drew (4) are in St. Louis, where Beth gets in some volunteer work.

Anne Goebel moved from DC to Philadelphia, where she is in the chef training program at the Philadelphia Restaurant School. Despite the cuts and burns, she loves it: after Wall Street, Anne says she's finally found something creative. Lou Shore Winship and Blanton moved into a new house in Atlanta and expect a human addition to their family of two Springer spaniels and one alley cat. Lele Frenzel Casalini sent me a picture of Eli, whom we met at the reunion. And now Tom and Lele have a little girl, Liza Maria, born in July. Tom's son Guido and Eli are already proud of their little sister. All have moved into the new Victorian farmhouse in Zionsville, IN, where Lele is decorating and landscaping the surrounding Victorian gardens. Jill Maple is completing her M.B.A. and still working as a marketing manager for Times Fiber. Roberta Perillo visited her throughout the summer in CT. Bert is living in NYC and is a successful wine distributor for a firm in NJ. Jill also keeps in touch with Kim Hicks in Richmond, Aimie Lisner, who got married in September, and Angela Averett Rock, who is in Bethlehem, PA. Daniel is just about to hit the terrible twos, but Angela has found time to study for a degree in psychology at Moravian College.

Rachel Giles Gronsky and Joel will be moving from Houston to Seattle, where Joel, a mechanical engineer, has taken another position with Boeing. Rachel has her eye on some land, a farm and some horses. Polk Green moved to Lynchburg, VA. She's going to be working with old friend

Donnie Crist, who has built an 8-track studio. They intend to write, record, and play in the area and try to get their music published.

Gracie Treadwell has been exchanging transatlantic visits with her German boyfriend, Georg, in Berlin. They toured the southern part of Germany this summer and saw Lori Teeter. The three of them scoured Heidelberg trying to hit all of Lynn Hanna's old haunts. Gracie has but one thesis to go on her M.B.A. She's living in Takoma Park, MD. Lorie Teeter sought a stateside reporting job this year, but she's once again Paris-based, now for Fairchild News Service. She will travel throughout France and Germany, writing for Fairchild's 30-odd specialized publications, including Women's Wear Daily. Lorie writes that Claude Becker was promoted and transferred from Paris to CBS's London News Bureau. Sylvie Gueyne is still a technical translator in Paris.

Heidi Slavin moved to New Stanton, PA and loves the country. She earned an MA in special education, and she is now a director of residential programming for mentally retarded adults. She attended a weeklong conference in DC, where she caught up with Frances Mantho. Liz Hoskinson has joined Ann Magnin, Inc., a fashion public relations firm in NYC. She and I were the foot-soldier subcommittee for the NYC alumnae club's September benefit. She's been doing a lot of horseback riding, and keeps up with Liz Seacord '81. Rosemary Hardy works with behaviorally disordered boys at a psychiatric hospital in Kansas City. Her work kept her from her yearly trip to VA to see Rebecca Coggin Hubert '83 who should be a first-time mother by now.

I lied. Lisa Church was not, is not, never has robbed a liquor store. Lisa has been a promotion manager for McGraw-Hill for 7 years now, but she's thinking law school for the future. She has completed her M.B.A. Debbie Rundlett and Dick Greenwood (U.Va. grad from Texas) were married in the Yale Chapel last October. Quite a few classmates attended. Debbie and Dick are living in Guilford, CT. Debbie finished her masters of divinity at Yale and will be parish associate at a Presbyterian church in Brookfield. Ann Morton Young and Charlie had a girl, Caroline Marion, in February. Ann Morton has worked out a part-time arrangement with the NRECA. Carol Searles Bohrer and Jason moved into a new home in Alexandria, VA. Valerie Youree, who has been doing interior decorating besides managing a DC art gallery, is helping Carol dress up the house.

Leslie Taylor Kavanaugh, Richard, Ryan (7) and Ann Marie (3) are in West Chester, PA. Leslie is controller for Richard Dodge Sterling in Chaddord. Richard is a producer for Fred S. James, Inc. in Philadelphia. Patti Snodgrass is still with the Loudon Times-Mirror, where she is the copy editor and sometimes business reporter, photographer, and paste-up artist, too. She performs in the community theater and has proofread a local-history book. She's seen Molly Johnson and Betty Hull lately. Patti attended two Redskin games last season! Gay Kenney Young and Robert are still in LA. Gay travels a lot for Travel & Leisure magazine and has just been promoted to senior account supervisor. Robert is an account director with an ad agency. They see Wendi Brunell Plenge and Steven, who have a beautiful 2-year-old girl, Sharsten.

I didn't hear from Camille Taylor McDuffie this year, but have read about her husband, Robert, a highly regarded concert violinist who plays all over the country. The McDuffies reside in NYC. Nancy Smith is teaching French at John Rolfe Middle School in Richmond. Her business, which involves hand-painting pocket-books, tote bags, and trinkets, is a continued success. Lucile Redmond Flournoy and a friend have started a business hand-painting children's furniture. Tom's company, Flournoy Development, which buys properties for apartments, is doing well. They have discovered scuba diving and have taken two great trips to Cozumel and the Bahamas. Dorinda Davis completes her M.A. in counseling at the U. of Ala. in December. She is under the mistaken impression that she will be the one receiving the multimillion dollar phone call from Publisher's Clearing House any time now - but that money is mine. I need it. I've been a Grendel with charge cards and unlimited credit. I'm in my fourth year at European Travel & Life and my lifestyle has become affected. I am considering a move home to Texas, after the World Series but before quail-hunting season. If anyone can come up with a job in Austin and/or a place to live, call me any time. By the way, my freshman year roommate has been found. Katharine Holdship Jones returned from France, where she was one of Europe's top salesmen in computer hardware, to join Wang in NYC. Welcome home, Katie Jones!

Amy Simmons is an Account Exec at Dia Media, Inc., a multi-image and video production company in NYC. Ava Spanier is in NYC too, working for Citibank. And so is Cara Heard who is working in Real Estate. Elizabeth Haynie is still in NYC working for Sotheby's as is Harriet McNair. They enjoy seeing many SBC classmates.

Helen Jarvis is living in Atherton, California and working as a systems operator in the main control center at Stanford Linear Accelerator (SLAC). Nancy Ray is a financial analyst with Crestar Bank in Washington and recently moved to an apartment in Falls Church, VA. Anne Smith returned to Washington State from Design School in London and is working in a clothing store. After living with me for a year in Alexandria, and working for Senator Bob Graham from Florida, Susan Mann has returned to Hilton Head and looks forward to going to graduate school in the new year.

And as for me, I am still a marketing rep for IBM working with the CIA—it's a very challenging job but I enjoy it very much. As of publication of these notes I will have bought my first house and hope to have taken a much needed vacation. Thank you all so much for responding. All the best in the new year—I look forward to hearing your news next year! Cheers!

In The Sweet Briar Tradition

If your 1989 New Year's resolution involves financial matters, the Sweet Briar Development Office has a variety of pamphlets that may be of some help on the subject of income taxes, estate planning, or charitable gifts:

□ Simple Ways To Reduce Income Taxes highlights methods that are available to the majority of tax payers and includes a summary of the changes in federal tax laws effective now through 1991.

□ Personal Estate Inventory is a planner designed to help you compile a complete list of your assets: personal property, real estate, insurance, trusts, etcetera. Use it to formulate an estate plan or to provide a financial guide for your loved ones in case of an emergency.

□ Your Will, Your Way explains the benefits of having a will regardless of your age or the size of your estate. The information is intended to help you prepare your first will or update an existing document.

□ Why Charitable Giving Is A Good Investment outlines the income and tax advantages that go along with making a gift to just one or several non-profit organizations. Find out how you can provide for yourself, your spouse, and your children while supporting the institution of your choice.

To obtain a copy of these pamphlets, write or call William H. Meadows III, Vice President for College Relations, Box G, Sweet Briar College, Sweet Briar, Virginia 24595 (804/381-6161).

DENNIS VAN DER MEER

TENNIS CLINICS

June 2 - August 5

Dennis Van Der Meer, regarded by many as "The World's Leading Tennis Teacher" will return to Sweet Briar College to personally conduct his ongoing tennis clinics. Along with his staff specialists, Dennis will instruct professionals, adults and juniors with his innovative teaching techniques. For reservations, call Dennis's toll-free number: (800) 845-6138

SWISS STUDENT PROGRAM

June 30 - August 5

Two groups of high school students from Switzerland will be learning English at Sweet Briar this summer. The first group of 40 will be on campus from June 30-July 22; each student will then spend ten days with a host family in Virginia. A second group of 30 will stay at Sweet Briar from July 22-August 5. As well as attending English classes taught by Sweet Briar faculty members Dominique Leveau and Nancy Goulde, the visiting students will take part in a full range of social, cultural and outdoor activities organized by Summer Programs staff members Archie Waldron and Nancy Hudson, with the help of Kim Judy, director of Sweet Briar's Outdoor Program (SWEBOP). (Open only to Swiss students)

GIVARGIS SOCCER SCHOOL

July 17-21, July 24-28 and July 31-August 4

Jim Givargis, professional soccer player and coach, will again conduct three clinics (residential and commuter) open to boys and girls ages 6-17.

Coach Givargis and his internationally-qualified staff will provide intense technical soccer training for these students on the Sweet Briar College campus.

SUZUKI INSTITUTE

July 30-August 5

A residential program designed for violin, piano, flute and cello students (and parents) who study the Suzuki repertoire with a Suzuki teacher. The week culminates with a final concert of performances by all participants.

Research and Writing: A Joint Undertaking

BY EDMUND BERKELEY

Dorothy and I began our involvement in research and writing together in 1957. We had moved from Sewanee, where we had lived for some years, to Richmond where I was beginning a new position as the assistant administrator of the University Center in Virginia. I had previously been teaching biology at a number of institutions, including Washington and Lee University, Washington College (MD) and the University of the South at Sewanee. Our three children were all away from home, at school and college, and Dorothy found herself with some spare time for the first time in many years. She wanted to try her hand at writing but was uncertain about a subject. She found it one night when we went to Williamsburg to hear a lecture by an old friend, Dr. Conway Zirkle, a biology professor from the University of Pennsylvania. The lecture was sponsored by the garden clubs of Virginia on what they called "John Clayton Day," honoring the Colonial Virginia botanist, author of the Flora Virginica and Clerk of Court for Gloucester County, from 1720 until his death in 1773. Zirkle told us later that giving the talk had been difficult because no one had ever done adequate research on Clayton's life. Dorothy knew at once that she had found her subject and soon thereafter became involved in research. I encouraged her, but had little time to help and I was not at all optimistic about her being able to discover new information about Clayton's life. She very soon proved me wrong, and little by little I was drawn into what became a joint undertaking. This eventually led to our first biography: John Clayton, Pioneer of American Botany (Chapel Hill, The University of North Carolina Press, 1963).

Neither Dorothy nor I had anticipated that our first writing effort would lead to a continuing series which has lasted for more than 30 years. While we were doing research for the Clayton biography we were asked by the Virginia Historical Society to edit the scientific writing of an earlier man by the same name, the Reverend John Clayton, who had spent only two years in Virginia as the Church of England rector at Jamestown 1684-1686. He was a well trained scientist, and many of his observations in Virginia were published after his return to England. The two John Claytons had been so often confused that we could hardly avoid researching both men. In 1965 we published The Reverend John Clayton: A Parson with a Scientific Mind (Charlottesville, The University Press of Virginia).

In the course of our research for the first Clayton biography we learned that he had asked his London agents in 1769 to send him a young scribe. His eyesight was failing and he needed help with both his clerk's duties and his botanical studies. The scribe who came was John James Beckley, then 12 years old. He lived with Clayton until the latter's death. Later he had a distinguished career as a clerk in many capacities. In 1962 we wrote an article about him for The Virginia Magazine of History and Biography entitled: "The Ablest Clerk in the U.S., John James Beckley," in which we were able to establish that Clayton's scribe was the same John Beckley who later became Clerk of the Virginia House, mayor of Richmond, first Clerk of the U.S. House of Representatives and the first Librarian of Congress. In 1973 we published a full biography entitled: John Beckley, Zealous Partisan in a Nation Divided (Philadelphia, The American Philosophical Society).

In the meantime we had returned to our original interest in the history of American botany, and published in 1969 Dr. Alexander Garden of Charles Town, (Chapel Hill, The University of North Carolina Press), about the Scottish doctor who practiced for many years in Charleston, South Carolina. He was an able botanist, for whom Linnaeus named the gardenia. Incidentally, this book was dedicated in part to Caroline Sparrow, the Sweet Briar professor credited by Dorothy with having inspired her interest in writing. In 1974 we published another biography of an early American botanist, Dr. John Mitchell, a native of Lancaster County, Virginia. He also achieved some fame in another capacity, as suggested by our title, Dr. John Mitchell: The Man Who Made the Map of North America (Chapel Hill, The University of North Carolina Press).

Clayton, Garden and Mitchell were contemporaries and friends. A fourth man, a friend of all of them, was John Bartram, the great Quaker botanist of Philadelphia, who for years supplied England and a number of other countries with vast quantities of American seeds and plants. It was inevitable that we should undertake Bartram's biography. We did so in 1982 with the title: From Lake Ontario to the River St. John, The Life and Travels of John Bartram (Tallahassee, University Presses of Florida).

While doing research for our early biographies we were made aware of a fine collection of papers at the University of North Carolina library concerning another clergyman who achieved renown as a botanist in the 19th century, The Reverend Moses Ashley Curtis. In 1986 he became the subject of our seventh biography, A Yankee Botanist in the Carolinas: The Reverend Moses Ashley Curtis, D.D. (1808-1872) (Berlin-Stuttgart, J. Cramer, Gebruder Borntraeger).

Our eighth and most recent biography (1988) is George William Featherstonhaugh, The First U.S. Government Geologist (University, AL, The University of Alabama Press, History of American Science and Technology series). In this case we deserted our customary writing about botanists. In the course of our earlier work we kept encountering references to Featherstonhaugh and became fascinated by him. He was many things besides a geologist, and a biographer's delight.

Our research and writing has provided a great many unexpected rewards. A number of our subjects had English and European backgrounds or connections which have required several trips abroad. We have worked in a great many libraries in this country and elsewhere, including England, Scotland, Wales, Ireland, Holland and Sweden. We have met and corresponded with many interesting and congenial people, and we have been assisted in innumerable ways. We still are a little astonished to realize that everything we have ever written has found a publisher, although sometimes with difficulty. I have been retired for some years and we can work together more easily than when I was teaching. We find writing an ideal retirement occupation, something that we enjoy and can carry on at our own pace. We did some work in England and Scotland this past summer and managed to spend a week in Wales and to take an 11-day trip along the coast of Norway as a bonus.

We are now back at work on our current project, editing the complete correspondence of John Bartram. ♦

Edmund and Dorothy Smith Berkeley '32 have produced numerous books, articles and biographical sketches on colonial science and scientists and on other aspects of colonial American history. They celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary in 1986 and last November welcomed their first great-grandchild. Their daughter Judith Berkeley Harrison '60 spent three years at Sweet Briar, leaving to marry in 1959.

Freelance Writing: A Fascinating Way to Earn a Living

BY HOLLY SMITH '72

I didn't go looking for a newspaper job. I actually was invited to join the staff of the Richmond Times-Dispatch back in 1973 in the pre-Watergate days when being a reporter wasn't very fashionable.

The invitation came after one of the Times-Dispatch editors saw a freelance story I'd written for a Charlottesville weekly—a detailed account of an evening spent at a cockfight, an event that some good-ole-boy friends took me to in return for my promise to keep the location secret.

I was working as a cabinetmaker's helper at the time, and came across the cockfighting shed while out with my buddies picking up a load of cedar wood. When they took me to the fight, I found a scene straight out of a Faulkner novel. The story just wrote itself.

So I was coaxed into being a full-time reporter, but I bless the T-D editor who enticed me into the business. It's been a fascinating way to earn a living.

For one thing, it's an endless education. If you're curious about something, you just go find out about it. And you're never bored. In fact you never know when you wake up in the morning just where you'll be in the afternoon.

One of my earliest stories was about trainee plastic surgeons who practiced their skills on women prisoners at a jail in Goochland County (under the supervision of qualified plastic surgeons). Two of the main operations the women wanted were breast reduction (for women who suffered back trouble because their breasts were so big) and breast augmentation. The young doctor who was proudly displaying his handiwork invited me to feel the breast of the bare-chested black woman lying on the examining table, to see for myself how natural her breast implant felt. Ever since then I've expected the unexpected.

After the Times-Dispatch I worked for three years on a weekly paper in England, then eight years on a daily paper, The Record, in Bergen County, New Jersey.

The stories I covered in England were often depressing, since I was working in a declining area near Liverpool. Factory closures, poverty, and death by hypothermia were frequent subjects.

As a general assignment reporter on The Record I covered a raft of subject areas. One day I'd be writing about President Reagan's visit to a local school, the next day I'd be deep inside the state prison interviewing a compulsive rapist.

One assignment led me to a place I wouldn't have gone on my own initiative—an all-black Baptist church in Newark on Easter Sunday. The church was in a dangerous-looking area, but filled with smartly-dressed members. And what a thrill the service turned out to be! The joyous songs and prayers built to a religious high that was palpable, far different from anything I'd experienced in an Episcopalian or Anglican church.

Other high points included a column I started called "Thursday's Child," a simple feature that consisted of a picture of a boy or girl who needed to be fostered or adopted and a few details about the child. It led to dozens of children finding homes.

Sometimes the pleasure was a cumulative process. For example, my job required me to get to know several small towns well. I had to keep up with the school system, local businesses, courts, police, council and town administrators. At times I probably came close to knowing those towns more thoroughly than anyone who lived there, because no one else had access to all the town's working parts.

Over the years I took courses on property tax and municipal finance, and that information helped to dissolve much of the mystery of how the towns worked. As the pieces fell together I experienced the feeling that a car mechanic must have when he can take a car engine apart and successfully reassemble it.

Some of the knowledge proved potent—while looking at the fine print in a legal ad I found that a local business, a garden shed manufacturer, wasn't paying property taxes, which meant that all the other local taxpayers paid more to make up the shortfall. My questions triggered action by the factory's landlord that caused the troubled company to fold, leaving its 150 employees out of work. I'd pushed the buttons on a new toy and created chilling consequences.

The discomforts of the job come in many forms. Having to talk to relatives of people who have just been killed is one of the most stomach-turning duties. I don't know any reporter who doesn't have to steel himself for that task. Luckily the reporter frequently finds that these people want to talk to reporters, because no one else will talk it over with them.

And there are downright frightening situations, like the morning I was covering a toxic chemical spill, without any protective equipment, and the wind suddenly shifted: for a moment it looked as if it would blow in my direction.

Or the time I went down to the Newark docks to report on a drowning. The docks I needed to reach were in a remote and scruffy area. As I drove to them at dusk, I saw that the road ahead was flooded with water. About the same time I noticed some ferocious-looking guard dogs behind a warehouse fence. Then I realized they were outside the fence and were actually a pack of wild dogs.

There I was, safe in my little red Fiat, but I figured that if my car stalled in the water ahead and I got out to find help, the dogs might eat me. I took the gamble; luckily the car chugged along through the flooded low spot and I lived to write the story.

And as I spent more years a hack (I've never considered myself anything as august as a writer), I was struck by the qualities of different types of people.

Firemen, for example. In covering fires I've developed high respect for firemen's courage. To run into a burning building, not knowing what harm they might meet inside, takes—well, I'm not sure what it takes, but I'd be scared to do it. Unless you've stood close to a fire and seen firemen at work, you may not know how much risk there is and how much physical effort is required.

My hat goes off as well to the people who fill the unpaid job of council member for their towns. It's a difficult, time-consuming task which usually attracts able people.

It was interesting, too, to see how the general public reacts in various situations. It often seemed, judging by the turnout to school board meetings or planning board meetings that the more complexly important an issue, the lower the attendance. But if an issue directly affected an individual—increased the number of students in his child's class or potentially lowered the value of his house—he'd turn up like a shot.

Equally interesting was seeing how a member of the public could change things within his local government or school system if he took the trouble to be well-informed and presented his arguments clearly.

Over my years of reporting I saw certain "truisms" emerging, truisms that appeared no matter what part of the world I was in.

One was that newspaper reporters can seldom get the full story on what they're writing about. To bring up good old Faulkner again, he showed in his novel Absalom! Absalom! that no one person has a lock on the truth—it takes seeing a situation or a story through many people's eyes before you get the real shape of it. Unfortunately newspapers, by their very nature, can't spare much time or expense exploring the average story, so readers are served up an incomplete picture of the events being covered.

As for newspapers per se, I think people give them far more credibility than they deserve.

First, it's important to keep in mind that a newspaper is a business, not an instrument for the public good.

On the reporting side this often leads to heavy use of young, inexperienced reporters because they are cheaper to employ than the more experienced. And these new reporters usually don't have the benefit of prior training—they get thrown off the deep end.

The business aspect also means that there isn't time to delve deeply into every story. A certain minimum number of stories must be cranked out each day to keep readers satisfied—and to keep the advertisements from bumping together.

Another grain of salt that newspapers should be taken with: the speed with which stories sometimes have to be written. If a story "breaks" close to the final deadline, it is written in a rush. Chances are it is written at about the same speed as the reader is able to read it. Faster if he is a slow reader.

Add to this the normal failings of the communication process—misunderstandings, crackling telephone lines, rain-splattered notes, editing errors—and you'll know why reporters roll their eyes when someone says, "It must be true. I read it in the paper."

I have to say that I've found reporters and editors to be, on the whole, hard-working and sincere people. They know their newspaper is a powerful tool, often a purveyor of "instant justice," and they treat it with respect.

The responsibility can be highly stressful. At times during my career, I worked as an editor, and for portions of certain days the running of the news operation of the entire 250,000-circulation paper was in my hands. After a shift of editing copy, jockeying reporters and photographers and coping with a stream of problems, I'd go home tense and tired. That experience makes me understand why so many full-time top editors have a reputation for hitting the bottle.

Because they're human, editors can bias the news coverage toward what affects them the most. If there is a dangerous highway which the top editor has to drive down every day to get to his job, expect to see plenty of stories about it.

The whole process by which subjects are selected for stories, and where those stories are placed in the paper, is often capricious. The most important story may not be there at all—because reporters haven't come across it and those who know about it aren't telling—or because the paper's editor hasn't directed the reporter to research it thoroughly—or because no one yet knows that it is a major story. For example, it could be that the clearing of the tropical rain forests should consistently be page one news.

The prominence a story is given can depend on things like whether there is a good color picture to go with it. If there is, and color art is needed for page one, that's where the story may go. There are some days when there is very little news breaking and nothing deserves to go on page one. But since there must be a page one, lots of middling stories are elevated to that rank.

I find failure to follow up stories one of the worst sins of newspapers. Reporters and editors seem to have a very short attention span. A story can be page one for days, but if it then moves into a situation where a long court battle ensues or a lengthy investigation is undertaken, it may never be seen again. There's no conspiracy involved when this happens; most likely the reporter who covered it has gone to another beat, another paper, or left the profession for a higher-paying job, and no new reporter has been assigned to follow the story.

Despite such failings, I think newspapers bring far more good than harm to their communities. They entertain, inform...and they help to keep people honest. Think of how often people contemplate wrongdoing but change their minds when they think: "But what if it gets into the papers?" ♦

Holly Smith '72 was born into an Army family and moved back and forth across the country while growing up. "My roots are Route 66," she contends. She left SBC to attend the College of Arts and Sciences at UVA in 1970, the first year the college admitted women. While working in the Richmond Times Dispatch bureau office in Charlottesville, she met her husband, Neil Osborn, a journalist on a rival paper. They moved to his native England for a three-year stay, then returned to the USA for eight years. Neil was recently transferred to London where he is the editor of Euromoney, an international finance magazine. Holly freelances for several U.S. and U.K. publications. The Yellowstone Fires

BY KATHARINE
BLACKFORD COLLINS '63
Staff Writer

A firefighter at night.

*L*ast summer unprecedented forest fires raged in Yellowstone National Park and in the surrounding six national forests that make up the Greater Yellowstone ecosystem. Early in the summer I became interested in the logistics of firefighting—the massive response that federal land managers are able to mount within minutes of a reported fire on public land. Smoke jumpers parachute out of helicopters and attack a fire less than an hour after the report. Ground crews, food service, portable toilets, shower trucks, communications system, first aid tents—all are routinely in place within several more hours.

Little suspecting where it would lead, in early July I asked my editors at the Casper Star-Tribune if I could do a feature and photo display on firefighting logistics. I wrote a story detailing the short and fairly insignificant history of the 165-acre “Pocket Creek Fire” in the Bridger-Teton National Forest in the Wind River Mountains near Pinedale.

Two weeks later a number of fires in Yellowstone began to burn out of control. As the undisputed “in-house expert” on forest fires, I was assigned to fire duty. For two weeks in July, and another two weeks in August and September, I camped, roamed, interviewed, choked—and most importantly learned—as I filed daily stories from Yellowstone.

Chinook helicopters were in short supply in late summer as thousands of fires raged in the drought-stricken West.

Snowfall finally drew the curtain on the fiery drama which dominated the front pages of newspapers in the middle and northern Rockies, and nightly television news across the nation throughout the summer of 1988.

Fires covered much of the drought-ridden West last summer, their perimeters enclosing some 5 million acres. But national attention was focused on Yellowstone, no doubt in part because of its stature as the "crown jewel" of America's parks, but also because the $115 million cost of fighting the Yellowstone fires made it the costliest firefighting effort in history.

Midsummer reports estimated that over half of the park's 2.2 million acres were burned, but in the final analysis, the acreage affected was determined to be much smaller—20 percent burned to some degree and about 10 percent truly blackened.

Park officials announced in November that the firefighting was concluded, but debate over what went wrong and what should be done about it will continue to smolder for months and years to come.

At the heart of the controversy is the question of whether to revise a 16-year-old "let burn" policy under which wilderness areas of our national parks and national forests are allowed to burn as long as federal land managers remain confident that people, property, historic or cultural sites or endangered wildlife are not threatened.

On center stage in the unfolding drama were scientists, park officials, politicians, residents of "gateway communities," firefighters and fire officials. Competing interests caused these groups to clash regularly throughout the long, dry, windy summer.

By contrast there were no bureaucrats, politicians or scientists 2 million years ago when Yellowstone experienced catastrophic volcanic eruptions. Nor did the human race participate in a similar event a mere 1.2 million years ago. No one complained of the subsequent collapse of the park's central portion, forming a 28-by-47-mile caldera, or basin. Magmatic heat powering those eruptions still powers the park's famous geysers, hot springs, fumaroles and mud pots.

The presence of the human race, even in sparsely-populated Wyoming, complicated Yellowstone's most recent cataclysmic natural event. For the so-called "gateway communities" of Jackson and Cody, Wyoming and West Yellowstone, Gardiner and Cooke City, Montana, the fires were perceived as a disaster.

West Yellowstone and Cooke City were threatened by fires raging out of control right at their borders. A number of homes were destroyed in Cooke City, and the town was evacuated several times. Park visitation showed signs early in the summer of breaking all records. But as fires spread and worsened, the resulting road closures and shutdown of major park facilities discouraged travel and by mid-August the summer tourist season was over for Yellowstone. The economic outlook for the gateway communities was indeed grim.

However, some 200 scientists who routinely conduct research in Yellowstone view the park as a unique laboratory, the heart of the largest intact ecosystem in the continental United States. For this group, large-scale fires are a natural event—an event that has recurred in 200-400-year cycles. Mary Meaghar, a biologist who has observed and studied the park's elk and bison herds for 29 years, concedes that "if you're a herbivore you may be on short rations for the winter." But she insists that we must think in "geologic time" when evaluating any cataclysmic natural event. The benefits for wildlife in the long-term, according to Meaghar and other scientists associated with Yellowstone, far outweigh any short-term negatives.

Politicians were caught in the middle last summer. They were obviously moved by the plight of their constituents in the gateway communities, yet they were wary of contradicting scientific predictions that the ecosystem will benefit from the fires in the long run. Fire management—and by extension, husbandry of federal lands—became an issue in Wyoming's U.S. Senate race. Democratic presidential candidate Michael Dukakis, Secretary of the Interior Don Hodel,

Secretary of Agriculture Richard Lyng and governors of Wyoming, Idaho and Montana all congregated and grand-standed before hundreds of journalists and dozens of television satellite dishes.

The policy debates will go on. The central question will be whether the future management of Yellowstone is to be decided by politicians, bureaucrats or scientists.

While man debates the fate of the park, the processes of regeneration have already begun. The 1989 season promises to be an exciting time to visit Yellowstone. In the wake of late August fires that swept through the Lamar Valley in the northeastern corner of the park, some plants displayed a remarkable resilience—particularly remarkable at that late point in the growing season. Sticky geranium leaves and a variety of grasses pushed their way through the blackened floors of forest and meadow, promising an even greater comeback this spring and summer.

Lodgepole pine covered as much as 80 percent of the forested part of Yellowstone before the fires, and it was these beetle-infested pines and their accumulated deadfall that constituted much of the burned portion of Yellowstone. Sunlight will now penetrate more easily to the forest floor, guaranteeing an abundance of wildflowers.

Ashes will add valuable nutrients—potash, calcium, iron and magnesium—to the soil. These same nutrients will leach into the watershed, improving and diversifying aquatic life.

As the fires passed, they created a vegetative “mosaic” of burns, partial burns and non-burns that will become the new habitats of Yellowstone’s plants and animals. Large expanses of green remained even last summer, and new growth in burned meadows will be increasingly abundant.

Few large animals perished in the blazes, and for some species the 1988 fire season was “the best news in their lifetime,” according to John Varley, the park’s research director. ♦

Katharine Blackford Collins '63, a French major, spent her junior year abroad in Paris. HAPPY ONE HUNDRED AND FIRST BIRTHDAY TO FRANCES MURRELL RICKARDS '10 !!!
JANUARY 20, 1989

L-r: Jennifer Crispin, Assoc. Prof. of Phys. Ed. and Athletics at Sweet Briar, and Monica Mahoney '89 in Columbus, OH as Monica receives Woody Hayes Award, Jan. '89.

Sweet Briar Student is Field Hockey All-American

For the second straight year, squad captain Monica Mahoney '89 has been named to the Division III College Field Hockey Coaches' Association All-America Team. Monica, who had 18 goals and 6 assists this season for an average of 1.57 points per game, was the only All-America representative selected from a women's college.

A four-time All-Old Dominion Athletic Conference selection, she was voted 1988 Player-of-the-Year by conference coaches. The senior midfielder led conference scoring in '85, '87 and '88; her career points per game average of 1.4 is a college record.

Also an accomplished lacrosse player who learned the game at Sweet Briar, her 40 goals last spring earned her All-Conference and All-Regional honors. She will captain this year's team.

Monica, from Louisville, KY, is a Sweet Briar Founders' Scholar and art studio major. Named twice to the All-America Academic team, she is a recipient of SBC's Whiteman Scholar-Athlete Award. She received Freshman Honors, is on the Dean's List and is the art editor of the Sweet Briar News. As the alumnae magazine went to press, another honor came to Monica: she received a Woody Hayes National Scholar Athlete Award, given each January by Ohio State University's Sertoma Club to outstanding men and women who have completed NCAA eligibility and demonstrated excellence in athletics, academics, leadership, community service and high moral character.

Sara Meyerdierks Ross '73

Sara Meyerdierks Ross Elected to YWCA Academy of Women Achievers

Sara Jane Meyerdierks Ross '73, assistant vice president of communications at the Washington-based National Association of Manufacturers (NAM), has been elected to the YWCA Academy of Women Achievers, an honor conferred on "women of outstanding accomplishment" by the New York City YWCA. This year 127 women from across the country were chosen after being nominated by chief executives of major businesses, unions and non-profit organizations.

Sara oversees the complete media operation at the 13,500-corporate-member association, as well as serving as spokeswoman and handling promotional and writing activities. She is a former public relations agency executive, lobbyist and Capitol Hill staffer.

Sara majored in drama at Sweet Briar. She holds an M.S. from Boston University.

Mary Beverley Taylor Haque '73

Mary Taylor Haque Honored by American Society of Horticultural Sciences

Mary Beverley Taylor Haque '73, associate professor of horticulture at Clemson University, was recently selected recipient of the 1988 Outstanding Undergraduate Educator Award by the American Society of Horticultural Sciences. (ASHS). This award recognizes distinguished contributions for a period of 10 years or more to undergraduate education in horticultural sciences. ASHS has over 5000 members, including research scientists, educators and other professional horticulturists in the USA, Canada and 80 other countries.

Her citation noted that six of her students have won national awards for their projects and that the Clemson Horticultural Club was named outstanding club in the southern region while she was co-advisor. She has published numerous abstracts and articles on education.

At Clemson Mary Beverley teaches advanced landscape design, plant materials, landscape implementation and senior seminars. Named Teacher of the Year several times, she was chosen one of 10 top teachers in the College of Agriculture.

An English major at Sweet Briar, Mary Beverley was head of the tennis team and on the basketball team. She holds a master's degree from North Carolina State University and is the daughter of Mary B. Herbert Taylor '45.

Mark Magruder

Sweet Briar Professor's Film Accepted by PBS

"The Walls That Speak," a visual interpretation of Cro-Magnon Ice Age Art, was shown by the Public Broadcasting Service on station WBRA in Roanoke, VA January 11, 1989.

Mark Magruder, assistant professor of dance at Sweet Briar, wrote, produced, directed and choreographed the work. He describes it as an artistic visualization of living history showing how man related to himself, his tribe and the world around him. Based on Ice Age artifacts, the work theorizes dance, music and the presence and use of horses at the time.

The film also depicts three different roles of man: as hunter/gatherer, member of a group; his connection to the unknown or the present reality of nature; and man as an artist, a translator of beauty through art and dance.

Georgene Vairo Confirmed as Dalkon Trustee

Georgene (Georgie) Vairo '72, associate professor of law at Fordham University in New York, has been named to fill one of three vacancies on the Dalkon Shield Claimants Trust. The trust was established as part of A. H. Robins Company's bankruptcy reorganization plan to resolve 196,000 injury claims against the Richmond, VA pharmaceutical firm stemming from an intrauterine birth control device called the Dalkon Shield marketed by A. H. Robins in the 1970s.

An economics major at Sweet Briar, Georgie, a Tau Phi, was president of student government as a senior. A member of Phi Beta Kappa, she earned a master's degree in education from UVA and her law degree from Fordham, where she was first in her class of 320.

"A Day in June, Sweet Briar College"

Martha von Briesen Exhibits Photographs

A collection of 35 photographs by Martha von Briesen '31, director of public relations at Sweet Briar College from 1942 to 1973, was on exhibit at Westminster Canterbury in Lynchburg, VA during December 1988 and January 1989. The photographs, taken at Sweet Briar and during Martha's travels from the late 1930s through the 1950s feature interesting landscapes and buildings in rural Virginia and in New Hampshire, Vermont, North Carolina, Colorado, Wisconsin, Austria, Ecuador, Ireland and Italy.

Dorothy Sales Wins Award for Excellence

Dorothy Sales, who has been employed at the Sweet Briar Book Shop since 1945, has been awarded the Virginia College Store Association's 10th Annual Associates Award for Excellence. The award, which is judged by a committee of bookstore managers from Virginia colleges, recognizes a full-time clerical employee for the outstanding job he or she has done.

Roscoe Fitts, manager of the Book Shop, notes that Dorothy is known for her kindness to people: "Returning alumnae often ask for Dorothy." Helen McMahon '23, Book Shop manager from 1947 to 1971, observed, "Dorothy learned to do everything in the Book Shop. Those were the days when duties were not so completely outlined. She was quick, tireless and good-natured. If she had had the opportunities that women have today, she could have chosen any career."

Dorothy was born on campus in the cabin that now houses the Farm Tool Museum. At one time, her entire family was employed by the College, some since its founding. Her father, the late Sterling Jones, fired the bricks for many of the original buildings; her mother, Aurela Jones, retired from the College with over 50 years of service.

She began work with the buildings and grounds office as a teenager in 1943, moving to her Book Shop duties in 1945. In the 1960s she worked part-time as a housekeeper in the Alumnae House and part-time at the Book Shop. She is the senior employee not only of the Book Shop but of the entire College! In early days Dorothy rose at 5:30 a.m. "when it was pitch black" and walked "three and a half miles cross-country to work, then three and a half miles home at the end of the day."

She has seen many changes at the Book Shop: "When I first started, it was nothing but books, greeting cards, stationery, decorative trays, a few gifts and no space. Now we have computers, clothes, just about everything." Helen McMahon recalls going to see the expanded Book Shop after her retirement: "When I expressed surprise at the increase and variety of what the Book Shop now carried, Dorothy replied, 'Yes'm, we've got everything but secondhand cars, and after Christmas I reckon we'll have those'."

Dorothy has never entertained serious thoughts of looking elsewhere for a job. "Sweet Briar is like family. I've spent my life here. I'm so used to the place, I don't notice the difference (from the past). I've just spent my life doing."

The Spring of Seventy at Sweet Briar

BY MICHAEL D. RICHARDS
Professor of History, Sweet Briar College

“The Spring of '70 at Sweet Briar” has something of a history of its own. I was asked to speak at Alumnae Reunion '85; since that was the 15th reunion of the Class of 1970, it seemed an opportune time to take a look at the 1970 student strike. In addition to asking members of the class to set down their memories of the event and their thoughts on it 15 years later, I gathered what documentary evidence was available on campus. Particularly helpful was a file that Professor Glenn Van Treese had kept. (Symptomatic of something, I am not sure what, I had not kept anything from that period even though I am an historian with a long-standing interest in protest movements.)

The talk I gave seemed to interest not just the Class of '70 but other classes as well. Encouraged by this, I gave the talk, in different form, in the '86 Sweet Briar Faculty Lecture Series. The audience for the second lecture was composed mostly of students. For them the events I described and analyzed had the quality of legend. I also found that I could not assume that they would recognize a particular name or understand a term commonly used in the period.

The lack of knowledge about the events of the '60s and the tendency to romanticize them are two important reasons for continuing to investigate the period. I have done this now on several occasions. During the 1982, 1984 and 1989 Winter Terms, I taught a course on the '60s with Professor Lee Piepho, a Renaissance man in more ways than one. Lee has been an invaluable source, especially when it comes to understanding the arcana of rock and roll. The summer of '86 I presented a modified course on the '60s to Sweet Briar's Elderhostel. Talking with people who were parents in the '60s, people for whom that period was more nightmare than glorious party, was one of the most interesting experiences of my life.

All of these activities have figured in one way or another in the writing of this article. It is one of the first fruits of a research effort which I hope will eventually result in a book. It is also a very personal project: I am investigating a period that had a tremendous influence on me and, in effect, composing a "portrait of the professor as a young man."

In the spring of 1970, students at Sweet Briar, like students at many other colleges, went out on strike to protest the incursion by the United States and South Vietnam into Cambodia and the killing of four students at Kent State. The strike is a subject of some controversy. I should make a couple of matters clear before saying anything more about those events. First, I am hardly an objective observer. I was an active though not particularly important participant in the events at Sweet Briar. At the time, I believed that we could hardly have done less than we did to respond to the situation as we saw it. I still think that way. If, however, I cannot be fully objective, I can at least avoid being judgmental. In the spring of '85, preparing to speak at Reunion, I asked members of the Class of '70 to write or call to let me know how they had viewed events then. Some of those responding told of being hounded or ostracized for not sharing then-prevailing opinions. Some had since revised their ideas, others had not. The point of that testimony is that people saw the situation in different lights—perhaps an obvious conclusion but one that was not easy to see then. At the time I found it difficult to understand how people could not support the strike and other efforts to protest against the war. Now I have only respect for those who responded to the crisis, whatever the nature of their response.

I want to sketch in some background before discussing the events at Sweet Briar. The war in Vietnam, the central element of the protest movement, had been going on, with a few years of peace in the 1950s, since shortly after the Second World War. The United States had been involved in various ways almost from the beginning, but until 1963 its commitment in both men and materiel was limited. That year there were approximately 15,000 military advisors from the United States in South Vietnam. The following year Congress passed the Gulf of Tonkin Resolution, which gave President Lyndon Johnson virtually unlimited power to wage war without a formal declaration. By December 1965 troop strength had reached nearly 200,000. In 1966 it doubled to nearly 400,000. By early 1968 it seemed to have leveled off to approximately 540,000.

The Tet Offensive in January and February 1968 shocked American public opinion. Viet Cong penetrated the grounds of the American Embassy in Saigon and VC and North Vietnamese regulars attacked nearly every major city in South Vietnam. The Tet Offensive was carried out at great cost to the VC and North Vietnam. The United States and South Vietnam could legitimately claim a military victory. Psychologically, however, the effects were devastating. Numerous Americans had believed President Johnson and others who for several years had claimed to see the “light at the end of the tunnel.” The Tet Offensive brought into question any previous claims that victory was near or that the South Vietnamese would ever be able to defend themselves. Even people within the Johnson Administration began to question in a serious way the likelihood that the war could be won.

As the war had widened, a peace movement had grown up alongside. The beginnings date back to 1965 with a series of “teach-ins,” efforts to acquaint Americans in colleges across the country with facts about the war and with reasons why the United States should not be involved in it. In October 1967 the protest against the war increased greatly in terms of visibility and press coverage with the March on the Pentagon, described in his usual charmingly egocentric way by Norman Mailer in The Armies of the Night.

The peace movement was divided. Some went so far as to favor the Viet Cong and to regard the protest against the war as their contribution to some sort of world revolution. The majority of Americans protested against the war as an activity that was misguided or counterproductive. Many, of course—those of draft age and those whose sons, brothers, lovers, husbands or friends were of draft age—had personal stakes in the protest.

Nineteen sixty-eight was a crucial year. The Tet Offensive and conclusions that many in the Johnson Administration drew from it convinced President Johnson that it would be in his interest and in the best interest of the country not to seek another term. Over the next few months an extraordinary series of events occurred. The assassination of Martin Luther King, Jr. in April was followed by a student strike and takeover of the administration building at Columbia. At Columbia, Tom Hayden called for “two, three, many Columbias” in imitation of the Cuban revolutionary Che Guevara who, a few years before, had talked of the need for “two, three, many Vietnams.” The assassination of Robert Kennedy, a leading contender for the Democratic presidential nomination, seemed to many the final unbelievable event. However, it was easily topped by the August Democratic Convention in Chicago. American TV viewers were treated to a new spectacle: the “police riot.” Young radicals were beaten senseless and bloody in the streets of the city while the convention, meeting under tight security, nominated Hubert Humphrey as its candidate for president. The system seemed to be cracking under the strain.

One way of looking at the '60s entails seeing 1968 as a high point, a dramatic culmination of much that had gone before. According to this thesis, the counterculture and radical politics began to lose momentum, to splinter. Certainly if one follows the disintegration of the SDS (Students for a Democratic Society) into the Weathermen faction, which moved in the direction of guerrilla-style campaigns and terrorism, or if one traces the way the counterculture folded back on itself and concentrated on drugs and rock music, it is difficult not to believe that whatever promise the '60s had, had disappeared by the late '60s and early '70s. To this idea of peaking and then disintegration, one might add the extent to which American commerce, ever alert to the possibility of making a buck, seized on elements of the counterculture disappeared or were distorted after the traumatic year 1968. However, I would like to emphasize the persistence of protest against the war in Vietnam. This not only lived on; it reached a peak in '69-'70 and only finally ceased when American involvement in the war ceased.

It has taken me a long time to get to Sweet Briar, fall semester, 1969. Sweet Briar in this period is interesting because it demonstrates in a microcosm the ideas I have sketched. By '69 Sweet Briar had undergone many changes. It had greatly increased in size in the early '60s. It had challenged the prevailing interpretation of the will of Indiana Fletcher Williams and had begun to admit black students. Students generally were aware of and concerned about many of the issues being debated nationally.

While a Sweet Briar News story on the Self-Study in progress in 1969 cited, as a major conclusion of the study, student apathy as a serious problem, other stories from the paper furnish evidence to the contrary. “Tempo,” a student-organized symposium, showcased avant-garde artists, writers and filmmakers in 1968. In '69 it brought a number of political activists, Tom Hayden among them, to campus. Finally, in the spring of 1970, it sponsored a symposium on the “...Black Man in America.” New dress regulations were introduced in 1969. The question of parietals was discussed. A Sex Information Committee (a most unfortunate acronym) was formed. Paint 'n' Patches staged “Viet Rock,” a protest musical. A large crowd of students, faculty and staff turned out on 15 October (which happened that year to be Founders' Day) to take part in the nationwide Moratorium, an event that had been organized as a dramatic expression of public opinion against the war.

and protest movement. A good example of this would be the Broadway musical “Hair,” opening in 1968, supported by mostly middle-class audiences paying good money to be shocked by flesh, profanity and references to drugs and deviant sex practices. By the 1970 appearance of “Getting Straight,” an obscurity of a movie starring Elliott Gould and Candice Bergen, both the counterculture and radical politics had been turned into a commercial product.

There is much truth in the idea that many elements central to the '60s either

In many important ways, Sweet Briar shared national interests and concerns. It reflected the increasingly vocal opposition to the war, an opposition that had lost some ground when some of its supporters wanted to use it as the basis for a revolution and that had lost additional ground while it gave Nixon a chance. The events of the spring of '70 can only be understood in the context of an intense national debate on American involvement in the war in Vietnam, a debate in which a large number of Americans stood firmly against the war.

On April 30, 1970, President Nixon announced that American and South Vietnamese forces had attacked communist sanctuaries in Cambodia. A few days later, Americans were stunned to hear that National Guardsmen had killed four students and wounded several others at Ohio's Kent State University. The May 8 Sweet Briar News, the last issue of the year as it turned out, ran a front-page article on the National Student Strike. Over 300 colleges had gone on strike. The debate at Sweet Briar, to strike or not, was just beginning. On May 7, a Thursday, about 100 students and a couple of faculty had a meeting in the Quad. Those at the meeting agreed to hold a teach-in Monday afternoon and a community meeting that evening to decide on whether to strike.

More than 700 people attended the Monday, May 11 evening meeting. Most of those speaking favored suspension of classes with no penalty for students who did not wish to complete course work or take finals. The vote at the meeting was 517 in favor, 198 against and 3 abstentions. A letter sent by the Steering Committee to parents to explain the strike and its purposes emphasized a moderate, constructive approach. "We stress the need for reform within the system."

The faculty met the following day to consider its response to the results of the community meeting. After much debate, it agreed that no student would receive an automatic "F" on the final exam for failing to take it. It was left to the judgment of the individual faculty member to determine the basis for a student's grade in a course. Many faculty let it be known that a student could accept whatever grade she currently had if she wished to participate in the strike movement. Some felt it imperative that students fulfill all the requirements connected with a particular course. The decisions that had to be made were not easy ones. Faculty had to set the obligations of their profession against what some saw as the extraordinary needs of the moment.

It was not an easy time for students, either. Some, of course, regarded the strike as a party, an unexpected early vacation. Others, whatever their political sympathies, felt that they had to finish their course work. A large number plunged into the frenetic activities associated with the strike. Like most other '60s movements, the strike movement at Sweet Briar featured committees and the production of a great quantity of propaganda. Committees ranged from the "Sweet Briar Movement for a New Congress" to the "Area Action Committee" to the "Give-Nixon-A-Chance Committee." Those at the center of the strike went from committee meeting to the typewriter or ditto machine and back to another meeting. The intensity of these few days can be seen in the partial schedule for May 14:

9:30 a.m. Area Action Committee:

Facts on Vietnam; Intensive Discussion in Small Groups

12:00 p.m. Chapel: "Poetry of the Music of Anguish"

3:00 p.m. "Canvassing, Lobbying and Campaigning: Ethics and Methods"

7:30 p.m. Area Action Workshops—Approaches in Amherst County

8:45 p.m. Lantern Bearing

In addition to protest against the incursion in Cambodia and the killings at Kent State, the strike had two important objectives. One was to begin organizing for a grass-roots effort in the fall to help elect peace candidates to Congress. A second was to provide information on the war to residents of Amherst County.

To some the events at Sweet Briar seemed only a pale imitation of events elsewhere or, more sinister, some kind of conspiracy put together by outsiders working with a few radical students and faculty. These are judgments that cannot be dealt with in any definitive way. Sweet Briar was about a week behind many other colleges and universities in going on strike. Students from Princeton apparently had some influence on the course of events. Yet some of those active from the start believe that it was an indigenous movement, Sweet Briar's own response to national events. Clearly, some of the hotbeds of radicalism in academe had taken the lead. The Sweet Briar community had followed, but in its own way.

The efforts to reach the wider community of which Sweet Briar is a part were not successful. Amherst County residents who came into contact with Sweet Briar students that May were unfailingly polite but equally unconvinced by earnest endeavors to enlighten them. The next fall a relatively small number of students took part in the attempts to elect peace candidates to Congress. It was not much different elsewhere in the United States. Massive acts of public protest had done about all that they could do to change the nature of American politics.

The fact that results limped far behind expectations in 1970 should not lead us to regard the strike at Sweet Briar and elsewhere as a failure. That Sweet Briar staged a strike is one indication of just how far challenges to authority and new ideas had permeated the fabric of American life. Sweet Briar was not as far behind in terms of its ideas and opinions as many of us, in our despair, thought. The various currents at work across America were active at Sweet Briar, too.

For a brief period of time that May, those of us at Sweet Briar and many others in colleges nationwide experienced something quite rare: the feeling that we were a part of a momentous historical development. That what developed turned out to be not so momentous, that whatever the '60s are as a period in history turns out to be a mosaic of developments, most of them less dramatic and stirring, takes nothing away from that moment of high crisis and common response. ♦

Annual Report of the Vice President and Treasurer

BY THOMAS N. CONNORS

Last year at this time I reported that the College would face very challenging times during fiscal year 1987-88. The stock market had just suffered its sharpest decline since 1929, the dollar was steadily dropping in value in comparison to other major currencies and there was talk of an impending recession. Although the stock market did drop drastically, it made a nice recovery before June 30, 1988. The value of the dollar stabilized, and has been moving upward lately, and the recession never occurred. These events, coupled with the fine cooperation and hard work of faculty, staff and administration, enabled the College to successfully weather these challenging events.

The market value of our endowment, which started the year at $45,000,000, dropped as low as $41,000,000 on Black Monday, but finished the year with a 4.9% gain in investment value. However, since the College now spends approximately 6.5% of the market value of the endowment each year, the endowment was valued at $44,000,000 at the close of the fiscal year, June 30, 1988. The long-range financial plans for the College, which were adopted by the Board during the Strategic Planning process, call for a decreasing percentage of endowment spending until we reach a level that equates to 5% of the previous three years' market value. The stock market has continued to perform well since the start of the new fiscal year and at this point we anticipate a modest increase in value on June 30, 1989.

Total revenues of the College increased slightly by $394,000 or 2.7% while total assets increased to a level of $80,836,000, 7% above last year's total of $75,548,000.

Once again total expenditures were below budget, which enabled the College to finish the year with an excess of income over expenditures and transfers of $174,000. The College's investment in plant and equipment rose 10.1% to $21,078,000 as projects approved during the Strategic Planning process were started.

Fiscal year 1988-89 is the first full year which incorporates the financial strategies developed and approved by the Boards of Directors and Overseers during the Strategic Planning process. It is hard to imagine entering into another challenging year without such a plan. Everyone at the College is working hard to achieve our primary long-term objective of increasing our enrollment to the levels established during the planning process and at the same time increasing the quality of our student body.

NEW DIRECTORY

Finding a former classmate can be like hunting the proverbial needle in a haystack. Soon an updated directory of alumnae will be available to help locate old friends.

The 1990 SBC Alumnae Directory scheduled for release in April/May 1990 will be the most up-to-date, complete reference ever compiled on over 10,000 SBC alumnae. This comprehensive volume will list current name, address, phone number, academic data and business information (if applicable), bound in a classic library-quality edition.

The Alumnae Association contracted the prestigious Bernard C. Harris Publishing Company, Inc. to produce the directory. Harris will research and compile information by mailing a questionnaire to each alumna. (If you prefer not to be listed, please contact the Alumnae Office in writing as soon as possible.)

Finding your SB friends can be as easy as opening a book! Look for more details in future magazine issues.

NEW MEMBER OF ALUMNAE STAFF

Diana Davidson, new assistant/computer programs coordinator in the alumnae office, graduated from Lynchburg College in 1988 with a B.A. in business management.

REUNION!
May 26 - 28
1989
COME!

REQUEST FROM NOMINATING COMMITTEE

The Nominating Committee of the Alumnae Association Board is looking for alumnae who would be interested in serving the College on the Alumnae Board. If you know someone, including yourself, whose talents you feel would be an asset to the board, please submit her name to the alumnae office.

The Nominating Committee reviews all names each year and seeks a balance of age and geographic representation on the board. Although it is impossible to ask everyone to serve in any given year, we are most appreciative of your help in finding those individuals whose qualifications and love of Sweet Briar make them excellent candidates. NOMINATIONS DUE BY APRIL 15, 1989.

"CONTEMPORARY CULTURE IN JAPAN"

will seek to examine issues of value, lifestyles, and Japanese identity (nihonjinron), especially among Japanese youth.

Speakers will include:

Edwin O. Reischauer, Professor Emeritus, Harvard University; former United States Ambassador to Japan.
J. Victor Koschmann, Professor of History, Cornell University
Takei Sugiyama Libra, Professor of Anthropology, University of Hawaii

The symposium is planned as the culmination of a two-month long "Festival of Japan" that will feature a series of exhibitions, talks, classes, films, demonstrations, and performances intended to foster a greater understanding and appreciation of Japanese culture, history, and society.

Katherine Upchurch Takvorian '72

NOMINEE FOR BOARD OF OVERSEERS

The Sweet Briar Alumnae Association Board submits the name of Dr. Katherine (Kathy) Upchurch Takvorian '72 to the members of the Association as a candidate for election to the Board of Overseers of Sweet Briar College.

After graduating from Sweet Briar with an A.B. in chemistry in 1972 and with an M.D. from Duke University Medical School in 1976, Kathy did an internship and residency (internal medicine) at the University of Texas Health Science Center in Dallas, 1976-79. From 1979 to 1982, she held a fellowship in rheumatology at Massachusetts General Hospital. She is now assistant professor of medicine, University of Massachusetts Medical School and associate chief of rheumatology, Worcester Memorial Hospital, Worcester, MA.

Kathy's husband, Dr. Ronald Takvorian (B.A. Harvard, M.D. Stanford) is also a physician (oncology). The Takvorians have three children, Sam (5), Kate (4) and Sarah (1).

Kathy is the daughter of Ann Samford Upchurch '48 (a member of the Board of Overseers from 1973 to 1977) and twin of Virginia (Ginger) Upchurch Collier '72. As an undergraduate she was a Judicial Board member 1969-72; Judicial Board chair 1971-72; member of the tennis team 1968-72; member of the choir 1968-70 and of the Sweet Tones 1970-72. She received Freshman Honors, Junior Honors, was a Tau Phi member 1970-72 and graduated summa cum laude with highest honors in chemistry. She was elected to Phi Beta Kappa as a junior.

In 1986-87 Kathy was Reunion Gifts Chairman for her class and currently serves on the Boxwood Circle Committee.

Other names may be added to the ballot if they are sent to the director of the Alumnae Association, Sweet Briar, VA 24595, accompanied by the signatures of 15 alumnae and written consent of the nominees within two weeks after publication of this name as the nominee. If no additional nominations are made, the director of the Alumnae Association is instructed to cast a ballot to elect the proposed slate. The elected candidate's name will be submitted to the Board of Directors as the nominee from the Association for election at the spring meeting of the Boards of Directors and Overseers.

NOMINATIONS REQUESTED FOR 1989 DISTINGUISHED ALUMNA AWARD AND 1989 OUTSTANDING ALUMNA AWARD

All alumnae are urged to send names of candidates and sufficient information to establish their qualifications for these awards to the alumnae office. Nominees' files will be kept active for three years and considered each year. They may be renominated.

The Distinguished Alumna Award, presented at Opening Convocation, honors alumnae who have brought distinction to themselves and to Sweet Briar through outstanding accomplishment in a professional or volunteer capacity.

The Outstanding Alumna Award, given in honor of the Class of 1910 at Founders' Day Convocation, is presented to graduate alumnae who have been out of college for at least 15 years in recognition of outstanding service to the College in a volunteer capacity.

LETTERS OF NOMINATION, including any clippings or additional material, are DUE BY JULY 15, 1989.

Edna Lee Gilchrist

Edna Lee Gilchrist, 1903-1988

A tribute by Elizabeth Bond Wood '34

From the September day in 1922 when Edna Lee entered the Sweet Briar gates until her death in 1988 her life was closely entwined with her college.

In 1969 at the annual meeting of the Alumnae Association President Anne Gary Pannell said, "Last June I announced the establishment of an award which was named in honor of Sweet Briar's first class—the Class of 1910. Today I have the honor of making this award, which gives recognition of outstanding service to the College by a volunteer. The alumna, by unanimous choice, is Edna Lee Gilchrist, Class of 1926."

President Pannell added, "I shall not dwell at length on her honors as a student—from May Court to student government, Tau Phi and the like, but list briefly some of her contributions to the continuity and change of this college. Only a few years following her graduation she became president of the Alumnae Association. Shortly after that she was elected to the Board of Overseers of the College.

"During the war in which her husband, Major Joseph Cox, was killed she returned with their twin girls and served in the admissions office. President Meta Glass maintained that her presence there partly accounted for the rising number of applications—even during war times."

She also took a very active part in Sweet Briar's first development program and during the Fiftieth Anniversary Campaign she headed the committee for the fine arts center. It is fitting that the greenroom off-stage, given in her honor by The Honorable and Mrs. Edward Thompson Wailes, bears her name. In the Seventy-fifth Anniversary Campaign she assumed leadership for the endowment of the religious program.

In 1949 Edna married Joseph A. Gilchrist, Jr., and with her daughters returned once again to the campus. For over twenty years she made their home, The Farm House, the center of much of the gracious living and entertaining that is associated with Sweet Briar. Mrs. Pannell once said, "Whenever the College has guests whom I want to see Sweet Briar in a very special way, I make sure that they are exposed to Edna's charm."

The resolution from the Board of Overseers at the time of Joe's retirement as farm manager read, in part: "Their mutual concern for human dignity and natural beauty and their unfailing hospitality to all comers have endeared them to a host of friends and neighbors...Edna has served the College with enthusiasm and zeal in capacities so varied that they defy any modest cataloguing."

Edna's ability and talents were quickly appreciated by the Lynchburg community to which they moved in 1971. She served on the vestry of St. Paul's Church, as a member of the Board of Directors of the Sovran Bank, as chairman of the Board of Trustees of Seven Hills School, where a building is named for her, and she was active in the Garden Club of Virginia. Sweet Briar benefitted by association from the recognition she received.

No description of Edna would be complete without mention of her wide-ranging friendships with old and young alike, her financial support of many causes, her rather rigid emphasis on the importance of good manners and the amenities of daily living and last but not least her good looks, impeccable grooming and never-failing sense of style.

To paraphrase Hamlet, Act I, scene 2, we who loved and/or admired her shall not look upon her like again.

John B. Rogan

John B. Rogan died on November 26, 1988 after a long illness. A great friend of Sweet Briar College, Mr. Rogan served with distinction on the Board of Overseers for ten years, from 1972 to 1982. Originally from Ohio, he came to Charlottesville to attend the University of Virginia and stayed for more than 40 years. A successful businessman with many civic interests and activities, he was the owner and president of the Boar's Head Inn, Charlottesville, which extended its hospitality to the College on many occasions. A memorial service was held on November 30, 1988 at the First Presbyterian Church in Charlottesville.

John B. Rogan

Joseph H. Davenport, Jr.

It was with great sadness that the Sweet Briar community learned of the death of Joseph H. Davenport, Jr. on November 2, 1988. He and his wife Alice (Hedy) Edwards Davenport '45 are beloved by many who knew Joe through his generous service to Sweet Briar College as overseer, director and vice chairman of the Boards of Directors and Overseers. Joe Davenport was key to the success of the Generations Campaign, our last Capital Campaign; on Sweet Briar's behalf he visited 70 cities, interviewed 350 people and made thousands of telephone calls. His volunteer service to his hometown, Chattanooga, is legendary and he was the recipient of numerous distinguished service awards. Characteristic of Joe was his self-effacing sense of modesty, his zest for life and his love of family. A memorial service will be held in the Sweet Briar Chapel in April, 1989.

Helen McMahon, P. O. Box BB, Sweet Briar, VA 24595

Greetings from your pro tem secretary! I can't remember how long it has been but Jan Guignard wrote, "What do you mean, pro tem? It's more like pro-life!" For your sakes, I hope not, but hearing from 16 of you has given this old gal a tremendous lift! I'm happy to report that the news from most is happily upbeat and good, with the inevitable sad notes too.

Jane keeps very busy, enjoying life at home and in her garden (pictures of her roses are spectacular). Her trips are usually no farther than South Carolina and Atlanta. Children and grandchildren come often to visit her in Sarasota where they enjoy the water and sandy beaches nearby. We've had some good visits when Jane visits her brother Sanders at his summer home in Little Switzerland.

Marie Klooz reports that she is legally blind but well and busy. She keeps in touch with Muriel MacKenzie Kelly who lives in Bethesda. Muriel's sister Dorothy has come from New Orleans to live with her. Her son MacKenzie has retired and lives nearby in Takoma Park and son Keith has just finished The Union Station job! The Kellys have 7 grandchildren and 9 greats!

Elizabeth Mason Richards sends best wishes to all of '23 from Norwell, MA. She and her husband live in the home they built 30 years ago in a charming old town near Cape Cod. They have 6 grandchildren and one very special great grandchild. Marjorie Milligan Bassett in Scottsville, AZ is much better after 2 years of inactivity due to a heart condition - good news indeed. Margaret Nixon Test lives in Pasadena in a retirement hotel whose residents are most congenial and where she finds the Golden Years full of interesting things to do and nearby places to visit, contrary to popular belief that we only retire and rest. She enjoys all news of Sweet Briar, especially that portrayed in the alumnae magazine.

Tom Gathright (Phyllis Payne's husband) called me with the sad news of Phyllis's death. Tom loves Sweet Briar and wants to stay on the mailing list to receive news of us, and the College.

On my return to Sweet Briar in September, I was distressed to find that I had missed Helen Quayle Preston's visit. She wrote from the new Florence Elston Inn located in Sweet Briar's most beautiful woods as you drive in from Route 29. "How thrilled I am," she wrote, "to be at Sweet Briar." Her son John and his wife, after visiting her in Bedford, Quebec, persuaded her to drive with them to their home in Greensboro, NC - hence the very happy visit to Sweet Briar, her first in 20 years. She loved all of the old, admired the new, and had the good fortune to meet President Fry at Sweet Briar House. She left equipped with all of the Bookshop's treasures which bear the Sweet Briar seal. I had not known that Helen's husband, Ross, died at their home in Bedford last December. Our heartfelt sympathy goes to Helen and her family.

I was concerned and saddened all last fall and winter about the declining health of my friend Dan Boone '27 who, after her mother's death, made her home with me here and at Little Switzerland. Dan died January 10, 1988.

We had owned and operated our camp for girls, Glenlaurel, in the Blue Ridge Mountains of North Carolina for 19 years. We had a cabin within a mile of the camp since 1968, having sold Glenlaurel in 1964. We gardened (principally lilies and wildflowers) and took many mountain trips, including bird and wildflower walks. We agreed with guests that living at Sweet Briar and Little Switzerland provided the best of all worlds.

From Virginia Thompson McElwee, a long cheerful letter written for her by an old friend who has helped since Virginia lost her eyesight 7 years ago. She still works in her garden daily and sees well enough to keep the raspberry patch in good enough shape to provide her with berries for jams and jellies. Virginia and Polly Goodnow Blackall remained close friends since freshman year at Sweet Briar, and returned once for the dedication of the Chapel in 1967. Virginia's affection for and loyalty to the College led her to make a charitable remainder trust to Sweet Briar many years ago. She leaves Maine in late October to fly to Florida where she will be, until May, at 501 Yacht Basin, Apt. G 19, 501 Mandalay, Clearwater Beach, FL 34630.

Corine Walton Hess moved a year ago from Coral Gables, FL to be near her son and granddaughters - 1417 White Pine Circle, Lawrenceville, NJ 08648. She is happy to be near her family, especially great granddaughter Alexander Corine, aged 3. Corine's elder granddaughter, an attorney in DC, recently married a naval intelligence officer; they live in Georgetown. Lorna Weber, always responsive, writes that there is little of interest in her life for her classmates - no doubt a nasty cold which made her feel every year of her age colored that observation. However, the good grandmother went to Athens, GA from her home in Fort Worth to help with the new baby. Flying to Athens via Charlotte brought her within 50 miles of Little Switzerland, so we hope she can add that trip sometime soon.

Kay Weiser Ekelund's account of her activities fairly made me dizzy! She is lucky healthwise and very fortunate to have 5 great grandchildren near her. Her activities include altar guild, hospital gift shop, Tuesday musicales, and Women's Farm and Garden Club. She keeps in touch with Helen Grill, who lives in Tiffin, OH, and Helen Welch Tucker in Laurinburg, NC. Queenie Wise O'Neal, an original and still active "Macon girl", is now happily situated in a beautiful retirement apartment complex in Macon. Her address is 200 Pierce Avenue, Apt. 312, Macon, GA 31204. Fitzallen Kendall Fearing hopes to have an apartment there soon too. She, Queenie, and Beth Hall Hatcher are on the go, Fitzallen reports. Queenie has 2 great grandchildren in Columbus and 2 on Lookout Mt., Chattanooga. She was leaving, the day she wrote, with her son and his wife to attend the Scottish Games on Stone Mountain, similar to the annual Scottish Games at Grandfather Mountain near our summer home - a colorful, exciting event which the campers enjoyed every summer.

Kay Zeuch Forster writes from Knoxville that she is still aboard, with many happy memories of the Sweet Briar trip we took in 1971. I can add my own good memories to hers and recommend the alumnae trips wholeheartedly.

No great grandchildren, but 85 girl campers, ages 10-15, for 19 years, adds up!

President

Emily Jones Hodge (Mrs. Hanson H.), 2723 Shipley Road, Apt. 220, Wilmington, DE 19810

Secretary

Mildred (Kitty) Wilson Garnett (Mrs. Theodore S.), Box 330, Mill Point, Belle Haven, VA 23306

Here's hoping many of you are still hanging in there - also my request may never have reached you. If you are still eating regularly, do drop the college a line so I can find you.

As you might guess, M. Brown Wood was the first to answer my plea. She and Mac, her naval officer husband, lived in Norfolk where he was stationed in the Navy before retiring to Hopkinsville, KY where they now live. We exchange a word or two at all too few intervals.

Mary Lib Turner Baker snorkeled on the Great Barrier Reef when visiting Australia, has been to the Soviet Union, to the West Indies, and recently to Egypt with the English Speaking Union. Her 4 are married and a grandson arrived last June. Martha Ambrose Nunnally has 4 great grands. The Altar Guild keeps her busy plus sewing for the great grands - no dull moments.

Emily Jones Hodge, our president, lives near our son in Wilmington, DE, but being no traveler, I seldom go there. They come to see me, which is appropriate for an 82-year-old. My dear solar house is in Belle Haven, VA on Mill Point Farm. "The" and I built this house just before he died, and then I sold my Norfolk home in June. My daughter, Maria Garnett Hood (SBC '61) and her husband, Bob, now own and operate Camp Greenbrier, so I stay in Alderson, WV from June until September. If any of you ever drive through that beautiful state, please stop and let me at least feed you - remember Camp Greenbrier, Alderson, WV (304)445-7168. (Belle Haven number on the Eastern Shore is (804)442-7972; use it.) I am thrilled to be spending time with beloved roommate, Tinka Johnson Brehme at Thanksgiving in Washington, DC where her Mary Archer, my godchild, is now living with her husband, the new ambassador from Tunisia to the United States.

Emilie Halsell Marston has been visited by her California daughter and two six-year-old granddaughters! She'll have Christmas '88 in California. Gretch Orr is all involved in the upcoming election. She's still painting. Virginia Davies Nettles is in fairly good health and is living in Lakewood Manor Home in Richmond.

A word from Marion Chaffee in Florida - would love to hear from her SBC friends, 550 County Road 94, Palm Harbor, FL 34683. Alice Eskesen Ganzel reminded me of our "soc" class with Dr. Folsom, whom she says (I agree) instilled in us a "lively interest in social problems national and international."

A card arrived late from Gerry Dreisbach - she has been traveling around. It was good too to hear, belatedly, from Elise Morley Fink. Frankie Sample Holmlund and Hilda Harpster report that "life goes on at a slower pace." (I haven't noticed any slowing down here on the Eastern Shore.)

My last response is from Bebe Gilchrist (Mrs. Richard Edwards Barnes) who lives in Crystal River, Florida. She spends her summers in Cashiers, NC and was a landscape gardener. I saw her with Dan Boone at our 60th. My love to all of you. Please keep in touch. Our ranks are thin.

President

Natalie Roberts Foster (Mrs. Walter S.), 2702 Richelieu Avenue, SW, Roanoke, VA 24014

Secretary

Anne Toole Rotter Wellford (Mrs. R Carter), Sabine Hall, Warsaw, VA 22572

Dorothy Ayres Holt lives in Hampton, CT, a small town, on top of a hill. Stays busy with hospital volunteer work, church and politics. Her son and his family just 10 miles away. Keeps in touch with Eda Bainbridge Kolbe, Polly Hill and has seen Martha McBroom Shipman and Harriet Wilson Tarbert in Florida.

Martha von Briesen stayed home in air conditioned comfort during the summer. She attended the Founder's Day luncheon for retired faculty and staff people at SBC, also a lecture to mark the 40th anniversary of the SBC Jr. Year in France. She was on the original committee, 1948-1973, and maintains her interest in the program. She expects to visit friends at Wesleyan University in Conn. in early Nov.

Isabelle Bush Thomasson is serving her third 4-year term on the Alabama State Board of Education - started in January. They are in charge of K-12 as well as 41 two-year junior, technical and community colleges. Her district covers 11 counties. "Have made progress though confronted with many problems and much controversy - a real challenge."

Jean Cole Anderson's granddaughter's wedding was in March - Jennifer, son David's daughter. A year ago Jennifer went with Jean to California and to Seattle for an abbreviated Alaskan trip. Jean and Helen Lawrence Vander Horst have resumed their "Travelog" series. She goes to garden club meetings and still volunteers at her church thrift shop.

Virginia Cooke Rea said her 80th birthday was great though said milestone was not a favorite. One daughter and husband came from Washington, D.C. and had a lovely dinner party at the Country Club. In June the Reas went to Salem, OR to see their daughter Jane's family, especially 2 yr. old Korean boy, Nathan, whom she describes as adorable.

Jean Countryman Presba: Summer too hot to enjoy their Wisconsin lake 'til late afternoon. To Denver to visit son Dave in late July and August. They enjoyed exploring mountains around Steamboat Springs but found even Denver was hot. Jean is looking forward to Florida where they will be until May.

Josephine Gibbs Du Bois: Her husband died of ALS in May on his 76th birthday. "We had 51 good years together." In Oct. Jo sailed around the San Juan Islands with her daughter and husband. Jo and her daughter hope to spend Thanksgiving with Polly Swift Calhoun and family.

Susan Haskell Harrell: Living in Richmond, VA, together; 2 children, 5 grandchildren and spouse. Mary Henderson Stanton: "Alack, alas, am not too well so don't live the gay life I once did. My main interests are my daughter in NY and my cats. What a comedown from the active person I was."

Gillette Hilton Pritchard: "The extent of our wanderings is Tucson or the Los Angeles area as my husband has not been too well. My sister, Elizabeth Hilton '29, had a stroke last summer which has taken much of my time. She gets complete physical care in a nursing home but is dependent on me for all other care."

Laura Howe Smith: "Am slowly going out of my mind at the prospect of moving after 43 years in the same house. In Nov., expect to be in a Life Care Community at 10450 Lottsford Road, Mitchellville, MD 20716. Perhaps I'll get to SB from there."

Virginia Quintard Bond hates to think of age as she still has too many things to do. Except for a hip that isn't behaving as well as it did for 5 years after a complete replacement, she is a healthy specimen. She went on a trip to Russia this summer with the SB group and 7 other southern colleges - total group 150. Very congenial group, though large. Cruised on the Volga 6 days on a perfect little Russian ship, the Alexander Pushkin which she reports was an unusual treat, a flying visit to Leningrad and Moscow too short for all there is to see. Her two youngest grandchildren are a challenge since she is not at home with blocks and dolls. She does volunteer work at the Dedham Women's Exchange. Being an active board member of several organizations in Boston is no longer part of her life. "Selfishly I plan to enjoy what is left of it at a leisurely pace."

Mary Stewart Kelso Treanor and Wally returned from 5 weeks in Europe the end of Oct. They plan to attend reunion next spring even though not our year and hope many of our class will be there. Charlotte Kent Pinckney writes from Richmond, VA that they have moved to Westbrook, Apt. 419, and are very happy there. Helen Lawrence Vander Horst has a new grandchild. Spent 2 weeks in July with her daughter and her family in Swampscott, MA. Enjoyed the Rameses II exhibit in Boston. Says her life is full and lots of fun.

Martha McBroom Shipman writes, "Martha will make me a great grandmother in January. Lee continues as a child support specialist in the District Attorney's office in Clarksville, TN; Anne has two teaching jobs; Ship III spent the summer in New Zealand as an AFS exchange student; Meg Shipman had 8 weeks in Europe in the summer and is finishing her studies at Concordia College in Bronxville, NY; Jane Shipman is an account executive with a PR firm in NYC." As the result of a fall at her summer cottage in Michigan, Martha has a new knee. She spent part of the winter in Florida with daughter Jane and hopes to be walking better by February.

Martha McCowen Burnet, a former columnist for the Greensboro (N.C.) Daily News, wrote an amusing article, "Depression Memories Are Not All Depressing" for the Greensboro News and Record which appeared in that paper Mar. 6, 1988.

Natalie Roberts Foster took her Vietnamese protegee to SBC in April to see a Paint and Patches production and again in Sept. when the SW Virginia Opera Co. took its "Pagliacci" to Babcock. She was looking forward to a two week tour of Italy led by Anne Morrison Reams ('42) and husband. Nat visited Sarasota, FL, and Devon, PA in July and Sept. She had a 10 day visit with relatives in Santa Rosa, CA taking side trips to San Francisco and Yosemite.

Toole Rotter Wellford: "In Sept. we had a wonderful weekend at a cousin's wedding at the Greenbrier, West Va. In a group of Colonial Dames who came to see our house in Oct. were several who had gone to SBC. Among them were Sue Graves Stubbs '33 and Ella Jesse Latham '33 - so very good to see them again - and good to see the other SB girls whose years at the College did not coincide with mine. We are having Carter's three children, their spouses and 6 grandchildren for Thanksgiving. Great fun, every year. We are busy trying to keep up an early 18th century house and garden and a 2000-acre farm.

Ruth Schott Benner and Earl spent February in Naples, FL. They spent most weekends in spring and summer at the Lake of the Ozarks where they still have their house and day cruiser. Ruth went to Dallas in May and expects to go in Oct. to see daughter, Frieda, and grandchildren and 4 great grandchildren."

Helen Sim Mellen and Howard were just home (in Oct.) from their usual trek to New England to see the leaves. An early summer tour of the Canadian Rockies was all they'd heard it would be. Had several days in Seattle - returned East by train - an experience - no more white linen, etc., in the dining cars, all plastic! North of Minneapolis were aroused about 4 a.m. to be taken by bus around a freight derailment. Polly Swift Calhoun is a prep school house mother. From her card: "12 of us are going to Eugene, OR, Dec. 26th for our son's (Ted) wedding to Karrin Emmert, then camping in Southern Calif." On Nov. 12, 1987 the Lakeville (CT) Journal carried an article entitled "Polly Calhoun: A Lifetime of Giving" telling of her unselfish service to her family, church and every facet of her community. From the article, "A few months before Polly and Frank Calhoun celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary in 1981, Polly completed her book, Cornwall, Conn.,

A Small New England Town. The book was another gift from Polly to the town she loves and the culmination of work for a B.A. degree in Sociology from SBC after a long marriage, life on a farm in a small town, 6 children and 11 grandchildren." The article was reprinted in the summer '88 edition of the Sweet Briar Alumnae Magazine.

Orla Washabaugh Shenk expects 2 great grand additions to the 2 great grandsons she now has. Keeps busy with bridge and various meetings. Until the weather turned cool she took daily swims to help her worsening arthritis. Has had visits from both sons and families and favorite nephews and all like Tampa as much as she does. Peronne Whittaker Scott and Bob are active in church work - he is Jr. Warden, she involved in the annual Preview Coffee and Bazaar (over $5,000 in orders at Preview in May). On Dec. 5th the Bazaar itself. Both children and families live in FL. In Feb. they are expecting a second great grandchild.

Ella Williams Fauber, in Westminster-Canterbury in Lynchburg, is looking forward to news of our class. Harriet Wilson Tarbert: A card from Harriet last April saying she had just returned from Naples, FL, where she saw Eda Bainbridge Kolbe and Dorothy Ayres Holt. They get together every winter for a reunion. She says Naples has an active SB Alumnae Club, and Eda has a beautiful apt. in Bentley Village, a retirement home, and likes it very much. Evelyn Day Mullen had an interesting visit to London in August to attend the annual meeting of the T.E. Lawrence Society. The speaker was Dr. Philip O'Brien who had spoken at Sweet Briar's Friends of the Library meeting in April.

Betty Thompson Reif was first to respond to my late-in-the-month appeal for news, thereby setting a good example for all of us as we revel in our good spirits, energy and surprise at having crossed the three-fourths century mark. She talks about doing "old lady" things in addition to working 3 days a week at the Carnegie Museum. She had been to Russia in May and still summers on the Upper Peninsula of Michigan where her grandchildren make up the fifth generation to enjoy the family's summer place. Betty also keeps in touch by attending S.B. club meetings where Anne Baker Gerhart also renews friendships.

I too was lured by the Sweet Briar sponsored trip which included a week on the Volga River, preceded by Moscow and followed by Leningrad. I was struck by the openness of our guides, the ongoing restoration of palaces and churches, the cleanliness of the cities. How spoiled we are with our many amenities and economic expectations and achievements. Russia has reached a point of "must change" but revelations of corruption of power and lack of infallibility of the Union have pulled the props out before their replacements have been identified or accepted. (Obviously my own assessment!) Ellen Lee Snodgrass Parks '37 and Katherine Estes '41 added much to the pleasure of the trip.

Marion Walker Alcaro received her Ph.D. in American literature from Drew University in October 1987. Her committee allowed her to write a biography rather than the usual academic dissertation and it has been accepted for publication. Congratulations and a big thank you for letting your classmates enjoy this hard-earned honor with you. Marion continues other writing and this year was a judge in the Nevada Poetry Society's annual contest.

We have two golden wedding anniversaries to report this year. Pat Whitford Allen and Nick were honored by their daughters in June by a festive reception which Helen Wolcott and I attended. We were sorry not to see Alice Laubach there since wedding pictures revealed a svelte Alice among the bridesmaids. Does anyone have news of Alice? We're late in reporting that Katherine James Hall and John have marked their 52nd year together. They are fortunate to have their 5 grandchildren also in St. Louis (ages 26 to 6) but still leave for 6 months in Vero Beach, FL in late November.

Helen Wolcott is heavily involved in volunteer work at her church and the Presbyterian Home, has enrolled in easy action aerobics, and has season tickets for performances at two of Washington's theaters. She cruised in the American and British Virgin Islands, enjoying the small ship which lowered its ramp right on the beaches where passengers could snorkel, swim or sun. This fall she visited friends in the Thousand Islands and could watch the large tankers making their way along the seaway less than 50 feet from the deck of the cottage.

The important letter from our Fund Agent, (8 years of service) Lucy "Hobby" Hoblitzell has just arrived and I marvel at her inspiration and dedication to us and Sweet Briar, to say nothing about licking all those stamps and folding all those sheets. Let's open up and say a monetary thank you. Hobby and Sue Rutherford were together on a fall trip to Australia and New Zealand before Christmas 1987. Since then Hobby has 3 Founders' Day luncheons and an Alumna Council meeting on record. She says Grammar dorm is getting a much-needed face lift, the parlors in Randolph are "wow" and we should be making plans right now for our 55th in May 1990. She says she'll need a trip to Weight Watchers rather than another tour outside the country.

Frances "Poody" Morrison Ruddell agrees that we should be telling the gals to keep working toward a 55th reunion. So we shall! The Ruddells spent the summer at their cottage in Michigan and enjoyed a special treat when Ray Adler Cochran visited. Poody is planning winter birding along the Gulf Coast before spending some time at their favorite Circle Z Ranch in Arizona. Next time we hear from her it may be Hong Kong since her youngest daughter, husband and boys will be there on a business assignment of some duration.

Marie Schroeder Packard probably can offer some tips on Hong Kong which was included in a trip to China plus a visit to Bangkok. We were sorry to learn that Marie's husband has been gone over a year. Other belated news, this time from Hester Kraemer Avery's son, who said that Hester was recovering from a broken arm just below the shoulder. Hopefully by now she is able to have suitcase in hand to pursue the trips she so loves.

Other months old news give me the opportunity to say happy half-century together to Grace Langelier Irvine and to Mary Almar Smith Johnson. Grace and Vess have racked up 52 years and take joy in their talented grandchildren: one sings beautifully, one plays the harp fantastically and one rows on the 8-man shell for the University of New Hampshire. Mary Almar and E.G. have 2 married children and one unmarried and 6 grands. She keeps on the go as a volunteer and Board member of the mental health association, Hospice and the church choir, and plays tennis and practices water aerobics regularly.

Genevieve Howell Gist has volunteered over 1000 hours at the hospital. She enjoyed a family reunion at Hilton Head Island in June where 27 of the immediate family gathered. She hears from Harriet Taylor Leo who is doing fine after some health problems were resolved. And speaking of health Marguerite Duval McGinnis had an appendectomy which resulted in some complications. She has joined the group that begins to realize we're not as resilient as we used to be. Also in that group is Sue Strassburger Anderson whose vascular problems of last year make it difficult to do much walking. Sue is having an implant following cataract surgery in November and sounds vibrant and cheery in spite of restrictions on her preferred style of living.

Virginia Cunningham Brookes shared with us the news of Florence "Billie" Crane Goodfellow's husband's death. Virginia and her semi-retired husband continue their traveling and spent 6 weeks in England on business and pleasure earlier this year. Another traveler is Jane Lawder who especially enjoyed visiting locations of biblical events in Israel and the area around Cairo during the fall of 1987. This year she visited the Glacier National Park in Montana and returned to Denver by way of Yellowstone just before the great fires. She may have been among the last to have seen the Park in its unspoiled splendor.

Lav Dillon Wintzer moved to a retirement home in Hockessin, DE in Sept. '87. She still goes to Wisconsin summers but fears that she must put Fritz's beloved Elkhart Lake on the market next summer. Lav attended a fabulous wedding in San Francisco and visited her daughter in Ketchikan, Alaska. She hopes to return for our 55th. Alison Dunne Harrison says they are still chugging along and going to Mexico for Christmas. David and Judy are publishing Canoe Magazine in Seattle and Gail and Eddie are in Pasadena where Eddie trains racehorses. Julia Peterkin had a nice visit this summer with Mary Templeton and her sister Jean in Buffalo. Mary had planned delightful activities, from ballet to the zoo. Julia has a new volunteer job as a docent at an historic mansion on Blennerhassett Island in the Ohio River - hard work but fun. Julia received the sad word that Madison Hunt, husband of Betty Hamilton Hunt, died this summer, just short of their 50th wedding anniversary.

It's been a year now since Blandina Jones Skilton attended a real family affair - the wedding of her oldest grandchild. The bride's father, Blandina's #2 son, an Episcopal priest, married them; her great uncle, Blandina's brother, gave her away; her sister was maid of honor and her oldest cousin was a groomsman. What a happy occasion.

Not so happy is the news of deaths among our classmates since my last column to you. Ora Davis Fishburne died January 24, 1987 and Ruth Billman Lewis on April 30. Jean Pickard Westnedge's death on September 1, 1987 was reported to the college by her daughter. The executor for Mary Duglinson Day sent word that Mary had died January 25, 1988. I had a note from Paul, Virginia Gott Gilbert's husband, that lung cancer had caused Virginia to leave us on July 13. And Martha Crumrine, Rebecca Marriner's sister wrote that after several years of poor health Becky died on July 17. Each of us has fond memories of happy times at Sweet Briar with our friends and we are grateful for their lives among us. We wish for God's peace to be with their loved ones and with us in the days ahead.

Do remember to keep Sweet Briar in your heart. And thanks for writing.

Although you may click your heels with glee every time you receive a communication from me, there just may be a limit. Hence, no postals, but this letter is based on notes to the Alumnae Office.

Kay Bonsall Strong had a thrilling experience when she received with her 4 children for her brother, Major John Halsey Bonsall, MSS Field Artillery, posthumously, the Croix de Guerre. He was killed in France in 1944. Needless to say, they were all so proud of his extraordinary heroism, as are we. Jane Lewis Kingsbury and her husband have been active in establishing an ecumenical ministry at Smith Mountain Lake, VA. They meet every Sunday in a Catholic Mission Church, and are being sponsored by Presbyterians, Lutherans and Episcopalians. One of the treasures in Ruth McFarlane Debevoise's house is the portrait of her great, great, great, great grandfather, George Clymer, one of the 6 signers of the Declaration of Independence. She and her husband had a wonderful cruise along the beautiful fjords of Norway to the North Cape.

Suzette Boutell McLeod and her husband continue their work in computer modeling and simulation, and recently had fun in Orlando, FL and taking part in sessions for "Pioneers and Peers" in April, 1988. Their son continues his work as an architect in Washington, and their other son is now a priest in the Episcopal Church in Pawleys Island, SC. He is the father of their 3 grandchildren. Jane Holden Walker moved to Rancho Santa Fe, NM, in 1987. Shortly thereafter, it was discovered that her husband had cancer. He died 3 months later. She is now trying to adjust to a new life in a new area, having lived in Chattanooga for 35 years. We send her our heartfelt sympathy. Also to Betty Frazier Rinehart whose darling mother died in 1987. Alas, also to Lucy Gordan Jeffers whose husband died in September. And I hope that's all. Forgive me if it is not year attending Ocean Spray Company's annual meeting in Maui, HI, followed by a 2-week automobile drive through German, Austrian, and Italian Alps with her son Richard and his family. They expect their 8th grandchild in March. Ole! Anne Dearstyne Cornwell took the marvelous SB trip to Australia, New Zealand and Tasmania. Furthermore, she is always attending a glorious family reunion somewhere. I saw Anne in Naples, FL, with Boot Vanderbilt Crampton and Gracey Luckett Bradley last Feb. Mardie Hodill Smith had a total knee replacement in March, and was able to play golf by June. They recently had a Panama Canal cruise, and in March, Spain and the Canary Islands.

Lee Montague Watts has returned to Vero Beach after a lovely summer in Palo Alto with her daughter and grandchildren. Kitty Lawder Stephenson still loves to dance and fish and hunt. Any fish stories she may tell are true, for she sent record pictures for our 1984 scrapbook. Betsy Bell Emmons winters in Naples, FL, where she hosted Sweet Briar Day last February. She summers near her children in Portsmouth, NH. Kay Richards DeLancey was so busy, marrying, grandmothering and settling her children I was dizzy. But a very happy pavane.

Barbara Earl Reinheimer and Fred have moved to a retirement home in Santa Rosa, CA, with the romantic name of "Valley of the Moon". Another retirement home couple are Ellie Wallace Price and Sam, still in Wilmington, DE. They had a marvelous trip to Hong Kong and visited the sites in China - a fantastic birthday gift for her 70th. Another darling Sweet Briar husband, n'est-ce-pas?

Jean McKenney Stoddard and John were in Italy last winter. It was "glorious as always". They took all the children and grandchildren with them. Anne, their oldest, is in New York with the United Nations in the press office of the U.S. Mission. Their second daughter lives in Stamford, CT with her PAN AM pilot husband and her children. Their youngest, Kiki, works at the Chamber of Commerce, while her husband is the local newspaper editor, as well as First Selectman. Their son, Andy, is an assistant v.p. at the Bank of California in San Francisco. A letter from J. O. Sartor last March tells proudly of her husband's being the king at the Cotillion in Shreveport. Their daughter, Ibby, SB '68, had been queen. Ibby and her husband were about to leave for Saudi Arabia, where he had accepted a job at Aramco. They are all outstanding children. She sent pictures, and they are a beaming, glittering family. These will go to our scrapbook, and may I repeat Lottie's plea to you all for pictures for Janet Thorpe's reunion scrapbook.

Ginger Wellford and Sumner Farwell had lunch with Julie Ridgely Howe in Whitefield, NH, after his reunion at Dartmouth. I believe I have already reported his subsequent death. Ginger visited her sister-in-law in San Jose, but her arthritis has forced her to slow down. She has a writing and reporting job with her church. Time passes by very quickly for Anne Parks whose garden produced generously after a summer of ample rain. She went to Charlotte, NC for a seminar on Egyptology. Ethel Hauber Crowe rented a flat near to everything in London, and revelled in the museums and shops that she had been too busy to see before.

Gracey Luckett Bradley took a Royal Viking cruise to Montreal. She is the first to step right up and say she'll be an angel ($5,000) for our 50th. We have 2 others that we know of and hope to hear from more of you - and are sure we will. This is our one and only 50th you know, and my respect for Sweet Briar ever deepens. If not an angel, do be of the company of Heaven, and give something.

My husband had a heart attack in October, and is now almost back to his old self - (November). Received some wonderful books I recommend, particularly, Sarum, by Edward Rutherford and Bonfires of the Vanities, by Tom Wolfe. May be unpleasant, but is hard to put down. We receive wonderful letters from our daughter, Beth, living in a charming house outside Oxford while they all enjoy John's sabbatical.

A shower of good wishes upon you, one and all. I so look forward to seeing you in May.

It's unanimous! Every card from those who attended our 45th Reunion stated that it was great. So everyone start planning now to be at our 50th.

Another great event was the SBC trip to Italy from which I have just returned along with Ouija Adams Bush and Bob, Mary Love Ferguson Sanders and Lynn. The class of '42 was also well represented - Ann Morrison Reams and Bernie (our hosts with the most), Virginia McGuire Brent and Jack, Lucy Call Dabney and Todd and Dougie Woods Sprunt and Worth. My mind is still whirling from all the marvelous sights!

Ouija and Bob not only went to Italy but acquired a third grandchild on June 26 - Elizabeth Dunlap Miller - Mama, Jeannette '71. No. 4 is expected in mid-January - Parents - Stuart and Carla Bush. In their U.S. travel this summer, they saw Brooks in Massachusetts, Munce in Ohio, and in Louisville - Fayette, Marguerite, Helen Lawton Mitchell, Anne Tweedy Ardery, Ann Williams Tuley, and Mary Wheeler Hilliard

Brooks had a fun summer visiting friends and relations and is now back to volunteer activities and rug making after a short vacation at Campobello where the Roosevelt summer home is

In October Skip Bracher Leggett and Jack went on a trip up the Amazon with a stop at Devil's Island. Pauline Boswell Fosdick and Jim are both enjoying retirement from the University of Wisconsin. They ran into Ruth Hensley Cambios and Josh in their travels recently. Sally Bryan Allen reports the marriage of her youngest child, Gus. She says 11 down and 1 to go! I bet she gets the prize for the most "grandchillun" - 16. Dorothy Campbell Maher and Jim missed Reunion because they were on a long-planned trip to the Northwest - Oregon, Washington, Vancouver, and Jasper - 9200 miles! Dodi Cheatham James and Harry had 2 trips - Yugoslavia in July and London in Nov. They are expecting their fifth grandchild in April from son Michael and his wife. Dodi is still "painting away" and flower gardening. She thinks we are a "pretty well-preserved bunch" as of the 45th. Congratulations, Dodi, on being our new class president.

Beth Dichman Smith and Charlotte Garber Rudolph have communicated with everyone - a great letter - since they are our new fund agents. Beth went to England in the fall and then with her daughter to Italy where she had a bout with pneumonia. She returned to London and recovered. Lynn Emerick Huidekoper came to her first Reunion and found SB "truly a superior institution". As of Nov. 5, she became Mrs. David Guild Dethefs - a bride at 67! Congratulations and much happiness to you both. Barbara McNeill Yow "loved seeing old (strike that!) classmates at Reunion and joining in the 'Who are you?' game."

Annabelle Forsch Prager has two of her children's books being reissued by Random House as part of their "Step into Reading" Series - The Spooky Halloween Party and The Surprise Party - something our younger grandchildren would enjoy. In the summer she went on a wilderness trip to Alaska for 12 people - in a converted mine sweeper with a crew of 8. There was even a scary encounter with a grizzly bear! Mary Love Ferguson Sanders and Lynn were at the 45th for their first time ever and plan to be back for the 50th. Besides their trip to Italy, they made their "annual trek" to Colorado and New Mexico in July and a brief trip to the Texas hill country in Sept. Janice Fitzgerald Wellons and Jim have a 5th grandchild, Karl Martin Waters, IV, born to Bennet W. and Marty Waters. Janice is still teaching piano to a few select students - "Thanks to SB's wonderful music education."

In Sept. Posy Potter Hazard had a wonderful motor coach trip through Wyoming, South Dakota, and parts of Idaho and Utah. She says Yellowstone was depressing but still has many beautiful areas. Primmy Johnston Craven's daughter, Felicity, 4 years after her aneurysm, is living independently in an apartment for the handicapped in Chatham. She is assisted by personal care attendants and doing great. She volunteers at the Headstart Program. Joyful news! Bonilee Key Garrett and Gavin went to Miami in late April for their daughter Janie's marriage to Jack Everhart. The groom's godmother was Margaret Preston Moore, and they had a good visit together. Ann Jacobs Pakradooni and Dik are busier than ever. Besides her "Joie de Vivre" boutique, they have a 3 year old travel agency - Floating Fantasy Tours - specializing in cruises. She says they love every hectic, overcrowded moment, but we missed them at Reunion. Prentiss Jones Hale spent 10 days of the hot summer on Cape Cod with her sister-in-law, and she and Pete had a trip to New Hampshire staying at The Inn in Hancock. Also, their California son, Sam, came East for a visit. Betty Potter Kinne Hillyer and Bill went to London and Paris, taking their daughter and her husband with them. They left 6 dogs behind! She promises to come to our 50th.

Tookie Kniskern White and Bob had a trip to Greece, Turkey and Ireland in May-June, thus missing Reunion. Tookie has retired from Family Court after 20 years. Their 10th grandchild was born in Feb. '88. Their oldest one is 18. Fay Martin Chandler very modestly did not mention her one-woman show in the Mills Gallery, Boston - Oct. 6-29, '88, but Brooks sent me a post card showing art objects and pertinent information. She has purchased an Engine House in Brighton, Boston which she is converting to 6 studios, including one for herself. Fayette McDowell Willett says that Roscoe's health is not good, but friends are marvelous about stopping by to see them - especially at the cocktail hour so that they have practically a daily party. With 3 grandsons to spoil and garden club work, she stays very busy. Junk McJunkin Briber and Frank went from SBC to D.C. where she visited daughter, Anne, while he went to Boston for his 45th at M.I.T. They spent the rest of a very hot summer in Milwaukee except for some visits to their son's cottage in northern Wisconsin and one to Mackinac Is. They are back on Amelia Is. Caroline Miller McClintock and Gales have retired back to Greenwood, SC 29646, 103 Woodbridge Road - where they lived for 26 years before going to Columbus, GA - to be nearer their children. Our sympathy to Caroline who lost her mother in Sept. Harriette Morris Haller and Bob have both retired and now travel a lot. They are active in church work and civic organizations. They have one son in Atlanta and one in California. Karen Norris Sibley reports 5 grown children, 4 married, 4 in Atlanta, 1 in Charlotte, NC, and 9 grandchildren. She says Jimmy is tired of traveling, but she plans to keep on the move even if alone.

Sandy Packard Sargent and Len arrived home from New York and Seattle just in time to be evacuated because of Yellowstone fires! Fortunately the wind changed and that particular fire was turned. She says cold weather has helped and they can relax and finally unpack but it wasn't a good summer for the Park. It's undergone a lot of changes from the burning but is still great. Catherine Parker Silverman has retired from her job at the NY State Division of Human Rights. She is now teaching 3 days a week at City College and doing some research and writing in the field of human rights. Barbara Perkins Maxwell has many fond memories of SBC although she attended only one year. She and Jack have been back on campus, though, when one of their daughters went there. They have two other daughters and three grandsons all in New York or Atlanta. Jack retired during the summer so they plan to frequently visit those cities plus England, Switzerland, and Austria. Ping Pingree Drake wrote me a letter just before she and Em left for a 2 week vacation in northern Italy - Venice then Florence where they visited friends in a nearby farmhouse. Their 12th grandchild arrived in July - Virginia Pingree Drake. Harriet Pullen Phillips and Orms missed Reunion because of a family reunion - all 3 kids and one and only grandchild. They took a trip West in July - Colorado mountains and Flagstaff, AZ. In Aug. they had a bike tour in Quebec. They're now involved in planning events for their '89 parish centennial.

Peggy Roudin Weinberger's husband, Howard, is an active surgeon at Lenox Hill Hospital, NY, and she does volunteer work there. They travel often, golfing and sightseeing around the world. Their children, Joan and Tom, are married and fairly near New York so they see their granddaughter (10) and grandson (2 1/2) quite often. Page Ruth Foster and Jim were in California in early Oct. shopping and visiting daughter, Dolly, in Santa Rosa and son, Nelson, near Nevada City. Betty Schmeisser Nelson is a glutton for punishment! After 5 years as our secretary, she is now secretary for the class of '39 at Bryn Mawr School. She is also busy with all sorts of volunteer and church work, not to mention fussing over 4 cairn terriers. Shug Shugart Short's daughter, Joan, has completed Divinity School at Emory U. and has a church outside New Orleans. Her husband, retired Air Force, is now in Seminary there. Shug has a dozen "grands" ranging in age from 6 months to 20 years. Her son, Ross, in California is diapering for the first time at age 40. Byrd Smith Hunter and Henry were involved with family during the summer. They stayed in the new Inn at SBC when visiting Carter ('68) and Ed Hopkins in Aug. Grandson, Hunter, served as acolyte in church during their visit. They also visited Baird ('70) and Bill Campbell on the Wye River on Maryland Eastern Shore in Sept. Cynthia Smith Brutzman has retired from the personnel office at Penn State U. She writes the "Animal Accents" column for the local paper. Her husband, John, is a retired news editor. She has 4 step grandchildren. Margaret Swindell Dickerman still puts in time at the newspaper, but her son, Morgan, is now the publisher. She had two nice trips - one to New Orleans with daughter, Alice, and one to Savannah with daughter, Margaret. Ann Tweedy Ardery reported on the gathering at Nancy Eagle O'Bannon's to see Ouija and Bob. She and Phil are fortunate to have all 7 grandchildren in Louisville. Virginia White Brinton and Ben have switched to apartment living and are thoroughly enjoying it. Ben is with Grosvenor Books, a USA and London based publishing company. Betty Weems is still in Boulder, CO and we'd thought she was coming to Reunion - Maybe the 50th!

Weezie Woodruff Angst and John went to Alaska to enjoy the 2 grandchildren and to cool off from St. Louis heat and to Maine to visit friends and to cool off again. The worst heat and drought in the 20 years they've lived there. She says they'll head for Delray Beach, FL before Christmas to warm up! Not to be left out of the grand-kid race, Esther Jett Holland has another granddaughter, Kristin, born to Bo and Susan Holland in Sept. Maria Jones Tisdale ('75) and George will add No. 6 to my crew. Thanks for the good response to my request for news. Next time let me hear from more of you

Many thanks to all of you who sent cards telling me how life has been going over the last year. It sounds as if we're still in there kicking, enjoying retirement, grandchildren and even new careers.

Ginger Barron Summer makes retirement sound like Fat City as she describes a relaxed life for herself and Lloyd of fishing and golf interspersed with visits from SBC friends at their home in Ponte Vedra. Jacquie Murray Sanner, Shirley Lewis Johnson, Irish Munter Derr, Jean Old, Margie Redfern and Eleanor Crumrine Stewart joined her there last April for their annual mini-reunion. In September she and Jean went to Chicago for an SBC function and visited Shirley at her home in nearby Northfield. Meg Dawson Hillyer whose husband died a year ago, came to Ponte Vedra last fall after a detour to North Carolina where she visited Jacquie in Tryon and Emily Schubert Carr and Virginia King in Asheville.

Jean and Shirley continue to see the world together. They traveled by steamer down the coast of Norway last summer where at midnight on June 21 they drank champagne in broad daylight at the North Cape. Jean headed to the Bahamas in November for a cruise on a neighbor's yacht. Jacquie is continuing her work in pastel and ceramic sculpture portraits, her toy production, and teaching pastels at the local arts center in Tryon. She is also studying French. Crummie is still "chasing birds," as she describes it, traveling to such places as the Yucatan Peninsula and Costa Rica in search of neo-tropical varieties. She bemoans the disappearance of the tropical rain forests, which threatens the birds' existence.

Another active retiree is Jackie Stilwell Clarke whose "humdrum" life includes summering in Maine, wintering in Florida, celebrating a first grandchild and writing a new musical comedy (her fourth), scheduled for production in New Hope, PA, in April. And still other non-retired retirees are Fannie Ulmer Conley and husband Delbert each of whom has started a new career in Jacksonville. Delbert is now a stockbroker and Fannie a real estate agent. They still have time for golf, however.

Eleanor Bosworth Shannon's big news is about Edgar's recent retirement as professor at the University of Virginia. Edgar began his teaching at the university 32 years ago. He served as president from 1959 to 1974 at which time he was named president emeritus. All five of their daughters were on hand for a festive retirement party given by the English Department. The Shannons have two grandchildren, one of them a boy, which they're finding "quite an experience" after all those girls.

Nan Hart Stone and Billy spent a month last year visiting friends in New Zealand and Australia. She's been taking courses this year in history and economics and "enjoying a little erudition." Also seeing the world are Cecil Butler Williams and Ernest. Recent jaunts include Hawaii and a Mediterranean cruise. Sandwiched in between were a couple of extended grandbaby-sitting stints capped by the wedding last December of their daughter Ceci.

Sara Ann McMullen Lindsey and Doug entertained Judy Burnett Halsey, John, and daughter Eugenia, at their country home in Essex County, VA, where the Lindseys spend about half their time. They had their first grandchild a year ago March and headed for Italy with an SBC group in October to revisit old haunts. Their youngest son graduated with an M.B.A. from U.Va. in May and is sailing around the world for 2 years. Judy reports that Eugenia, a free-lance TV news reporter working out of Washington, is married to a reporter for The Washington Post. (Do they share scoops?) The Halseys' SBC daughter Mary Shaw lives in NYC. Judy and her sister Eugenia Burnette Affel, SBC '42, attended a horse show near Richmond at which the SBC team won the national championship for the third year in a row. The Richmond SBC Club held a tailgate party during the event where Judy saw Ann Marshall Whitley. Ann is writing booklets on Daisy Williams, Sweet Briar House and the architecture of the old buildings at SBC. This is keeping her busy while the old Boxwood Inn building, where the museum is located, undergoes renovations. Ann reports that Alex Marcoglou Tully is still associated with Colt Industries in New York but spends time in Athens keeping her mother's affairs in order.

Aimee Des Pland McGirt took a school group to France and Spain last spring. Eleanor Stafford Milio recently taught Developmental Education at Prince George Community College and last fall worked as a volunteer for the Bush-Quayle ticket in Maryland. Martha Smith has been working to build services for the mentally ill in Virginia and GINNA WALKER CHRISTIAN has been equally busy in conservation efforts.

Katie Street Sharp moved last March to a new home: 9180 Hester Beasley Road, Nashville, TN 37211. Katie's life stays filled with family. This includes her mother, age 93, who lives with her plus four grandchildren ranging in age from 19 to 15 months. Further keeping her occupied is a small ceramic business and gardening, "which revives me." Also into new quarters is Ceci Herr Perry who moved last winter to Canary Cottage, 1200 Four Pines Court, Lexington, KY 40502.

Here in North Carolina, Kay

Weisiger Osborne recently had four groups of her photographs of the Grand Canyon and Lake Powell exhibited at a local arts center in Salisbury. She travels as frequently as possible to Seattle where daughter Kathy lives and to Gainesville, FL, to visit her married daughter, Jeanne. Son Bob lives in Chapel Hill. Also from Salisbury, Jean Ferrier Ramsay reports that husband John is curtailing his responsibilities in his architectural firm. Son John Jr. operates his own business in Salisbury and Raleigh while granddaughter Susan Saunders continues to make a name for herself in the tennis world. An anonymous card reports that the writer - Carol Blanton McCord? - visited with Sash and Link Rice last summer when the Rices came to Baltimore. The McCords (if my guess is right) toured country inns in New Hampshire last summer and last fall took their boat south on the Inland Waterway. Grandson No. 7, a boy, was born in October.

Marie Tucker Bowerfind observes that they seem to be years behind all classmates - still up to their eyeballs in education: Bill, 20 in 3rd year at UVA; Jane, 26, in 2nd year at Case Western Reserve Medical School; Tuck, 29, in 1st year Yale Divinity (Berkley Episcopal); and Peter, 31, in respiratory Therapy at University Hospital in Cleveland Heights. Pete is dreaming of retirement from same though he will keep up his private practice.

The Trotters have moved permanently to Raleigh and we're enjoying condominium living. Jim, as of this writing, is still legal counsel to Gov. Martin. The election is 10 days away so you'll know by the time you read this whether we're still eating or he's unemployed. A year ago March our son Jim married a darling German girl whom he met at the Defense Language Institute where he was studying German and she was teaching it. He's assigned to the German Air Force as a pilot and Evelyn's enjoying being "back home." Daughter Olivette is still in Salt Lake with her husband and our sole grandchild. Son Vermont lives in Dallas.

I've loved hearing from everyone and hope that next year the roster of correspondents will be at least twice as long. (And be sure to sign names—in full!)

Greetings from Louisville. Bill and I are just back from 2 weeks on Hilton Head Island - glorious weather - great food! Back to the usual - hospital work, church work, and absolutely adorable grandchildren - 3 girls and a boy. I see Jean Duerson Bade daily at the swimming pool. She and John are thrilled about having son Craig and his wife Katie living here now. Daughter Lyle is here also, and son Johnny and wife and 2 children are still in California. Jean and John travel some and enjoy their boat and horses. One of the horses ran at Churchill Downs last spring.

Nancy Merchant Henry is still in Louisville enjoying memories of our 35th reunion and looking forward to 40 - says to tell Randy she will request a single. Merch volunteers for the CASA Program - court appointed special advocate with abused, neglected and dependent children in Juvenile Court. Daughter Nancy graduated from Stanford in 1987, and is working on her doctorate in English. Son Frank lives and works in Louisville. Merch plans to go back for graduate work in Jan. She had a brunch last year in Chicago with Toddy Barton. Toddy called me to tell me about seeing Merch and we had a great visit.

Angie Vaughan Halliday and Bob are into gardening and enjoy it. Youngest daughter Marion was married in June and is in law school at U.Va. Angie and Bob are planning a fall trip to Virginia. Daughter Jane and son Culver are in Louisville. Malcolm in Boston and Paul in Chicago. Angie is studying taxes and plans to do preparing again next spring. Ann Red Barstow, in Houston, has retired from teaching full time but is still tutoring. She is into tennis and does volunteer work as receptionist at Montrose Clinic for AIDS. Ann has 6 beautiful grandchildren. Her youngest son is engaged.

Sue Taylor Lilley and Bob have moved into Orlando and remodeled the house Bob's father built in 1936. They have a new granddaughter. Daughter-in-law Natasha Davison is in the touring company of Cats. The "Red Fox" took her under her wing in San Francisco and showed her the town. Sue and Bob's last "chick" is a senior at Davidson College.

Terry Faulkner Phillips thinks I am a saint for writing this column. I am inclined to agree with her, but I really do love hearing from you all! Terry enjoyed her new pool during the long hot summer. She is still teaching owners how to train their dogs. Husband Wes' furniture building business and restoration business is becoming known all over Virginia. Their son is a rock musician whose band, Red, Black & Blue, is aspiring to be known state-wide also. Terry and Wes had a fun trip to VT where they picked up another German Shepherd from the monks in Cambridge, NY.

Ann Mountcastle Gamble and Bob sold their house in New Canaan, CT and spent the winter of '87 in their condo in Sarasota, FL. They left for Madrid, Spain in time for Christmas with daughter Daphne and her husband Peter McNaughton who live in Paris and were expecting a child last March. Daughter Christine works in London. Ann and Bob are studying Spanish and History of Art - plan to return to the states in November '88. Ruth Magee Peterson is looking forward to a safari in Kenya next June and son Charles' wedding in July. Patty Lynas Ford and husband Dick had a month in England visiting in Devon, Dorset, Cornwall, and Lake Ullswater, but have returned to the "Rat Race". Patty is in the Division of Epidemiology (cancer and heart research) at Stanford University Medical School and Dick is at Christ Church in Los Alton with responsibility for pastoral work. Daughter Becca and her husband presented them with their first granddaughter. Dan works at Pebble Beach and Becca at Spanish Bay. Daughter Elizabeth has 2 stepchildren - Althea, 16, a pole vaulter, and Chris, 14, who likes football. Patty and Dick are planning a reunion with Ruthie Clarkson Costello, Julie Micou Eastwood and Diane Aubineau.

Sue Bauman Gill lives in Hagerstown, WV. Husband William is in the printing business; Sue raises Labrador retrievers. Her 6 grandchildren are too far away to see as often as she would like - 2 in Houston, 2 in Jacksonville and 2 in Chattanooga. Ann Patesch Hazzard and Rutledge have just returned from a trip to Greece and the Greek Islands. Soaked up ancient history, climbed hills and mountains, loved swimming in the clear beautiful Mediterranean. They traveled by plane, ferry, Flying Dolphin, and car - a "wonderful trip." Their granddaughter is walking now, keeping them on their toes.

Mary Pease Fleming and Rives are too busy to be retirees. Rives into a new career in real estate and Mary playing a lot of pianos. They have 6 grandchildren and Mary has begun a tradition of making each a quilt - she enclosed a picture of herself holding one of the quilts. Barbara Birt Dow and husband Billy visited on their way south last spring. Mary writes that Seymour Laughon Rennolds and John are in England and Ireland.

Jean Stapleton Hellier and Burge had a busy year concentrating their efforts on ORS Associates - their management and relocation consulting company. Their third grandchild arrived in March. All 3 - Michelle, Ryan and Jennifer live in Annapolis, so the grandparents see them often. Jean and Burge bought a condo in Delray and had a great visit with Betty Brawner Bingham in Ocean Ridge, FL. They would love to hear from any of you who are in the D.C. or northern VA area.

Carolyn Sample Abshire is up to her ears in volunteer work in Alexandria. David travels extensively as President of CSIS and is looking forward to the publication, by Harper and Row, of his book Preventing World War III which draws on some of his personal experiences in NATO. Lupton will receive his masters of Divinity at Boston U. next May and hopes to spend the next year in Uganda. Anna is home after 4 1/2 years in Hawaii. She received her MSW last May. Mary Lee will receive her masters in Experimental Psychology at Central Washington State. Phyllis is studying at Louvain in Belgium and Caroline is in the ninth grade

Anna Leslie Coolidge Richardson writes that they are having great fun with 4 granddaughters and with stamp collecting. Betty Brawner Bingham travels: Yugoslavia, Hungary, South Africa. Found S.A. with all its problems a beautiful land with lots of positives. She enjoyed visiting with Jean Stapleton Hellier and Burge Mary Emery Barnhill, husband Dick and their 2 college age children spent January through April of '88 in London, Dick teaching and all traveling a lot in England and Scotland. They had a visit with Ann Mountcastle Gamble Mary writes that coming home was a "real culture shock."

Jo Williams Fraser and Bob have just returned from a fantastic trip to Iguacu Falls in Brazil. They had a delightful lunch last spring with Joan Davis Warren in Philadelphia, comparing notes on travel. Jo is still learning the intricacies of Word-Perfect and doing volunteer work at the Birmingham Museum. Elizabeth Cooke McCann has a small political consulting business - worked on an Oktoberfest for northern VA congressman Frank Wolf and updated a list for the Alexandria Republican Party. In May they went to Germany to welcome their first grandson and enjoyed side trips to Florence, Venice and Paris. Betty Jane is in Germany and daughter Carolyn in Harrisonburg is planning a New Year's Eve wedding. Cookie has 2 granddaughters - 13 and 5 - in Alexandria and her car sports a bumper sticker reading, "If I'd known grandchildren were so much fun, I'd have had them first."

Anne Sinsheimer writes en route to NYC bound for Italy with SBC tour, accompanied by Mary Davidson Rucker, Mary's sister Gail Bazzarre '55, and about 25 others. Anne has been busy the last 2 years supervising the remodeling of her family's 104-year-old building - a learning experience that turned out very well.

Tsun-Hsien Kwan Bhagat - "Sunshine" - is still working in the quality control lab of the Sanitary District of Elgin, IL, as a chemist. Her oldest daughter Smrute Dale is in her 11th year as a flight attendant for Delta. Smrute's husband works for Gillette and is stationed in Australia for 2 years. Second daughter Anjaci is a legal secretary in San Diego and son Snehal has finished his masters in Geology and is job hunting. Sunshine's husband Shantilal has been invited to lecture in Prague next June and they plan to tour Europe. Hope to see "Busse" Isolde Werhahn '53 in Stuttgart

Marcy Staley Marks and John, in Portland, OR, hope to have a visit from Julie Micou Eastwood and Dick and Ruthie Clarkson Costello this fall. They have just returned from a study tour with the American Friends Service Committee to the Middle East - Jordan, Israel, Egypt, and Syria. Fascinating and disturbing - terrible suffering in the occupied areas

Kae Fretz (once Goettelmann) teaches in a group home for 5-11 year olds who have been abused. Kae has 5 children (aged 17-35, some married and some getting unmarried) and 2 wonderful grandchildren. She enjoys a busy and good life - is just back from four lazy days in Vermont. Jacquelin Woods Gorman, on the Eastern Shore of Maryland, is recovering from an operation for cancer of the ovaries and optimistically starting chemotherapy. She is enjoying having time for their daughters at UVA and for grandchildren - boys, 6 and 9, and a girl, 2. Husband Aubrey still commutes to Baltimore 2 days a week

St. Claire Hayden D'Wolf writes from Wilmington, DE that her daughter Thelma was married to Ward Elliott October 3, 1987. Patty Carlin Friesse was married to Richard on October 13, 1988 and is living in South Salem, NY. Richard was Patty's high school sweetheart, is former president of Ziff-Davis Publishers, and still publishes Unique Home. They have 7 children between them and each became grandparents in May. Patty has retired from an active real estate career and is doing what she loves most - going to school and specializing in medieval calligraphy - her love since a wonderful course at SBC.

Sue Lockley Glad has resigned her post of 5 years as scheduling secretary to California Governor George Deukmejian. She is enjoying a new challenge as Deputy Director of External Affairs at the California Museum of Science and Industry. Sue leaves this month on a Stanford Study Tour of Asian capitals: Janet Broman Dingle has caught up with many old friends on various trips this past year, one of whom was Billie Herron Goeltz in Stowe, VT. They had a great visit. Janet and Larry have 8 grandchildren between them. They will spend several months in the Fort Lauderdale area again this winter. Pinkie Barringer Wornham and Tom are alive and well in La Jolla. The high point of their year was their trip to the Soviet Union with the SBC group - did you see her article in the winter issue of this magazine? En route they had a few days in NY with Cindy and some time with Wendy in Boston

I had a nice note from Joan Vail Thorne last fall - no news but it was wonderful to hear from her. Mary "Hod" Bardin Lyon remarried last year - an old beau whom she met at Bolles in Jacksonville in 1945. Her children - a girl and 2 boys - are doing well: one with Ph.D. in biology is teaching, one with DVM is going into research, and one is with Zerox.

It's time to consider 1990! Our next reunion is only a year away so begin planning now. Start by convincing your roommates to come and then start planning for that "little bit extra" to make the reunion donation a colossal one! If you have any ideas between now and then about slogans, songs, costumes or skits for the presentation, jot them down and bring them along. If you think of anything special you would like to see on the questionnaire for the scrapbook, let me or Shirley know. It will be a wonderful time so set aside Memorial Day weekend, 1990, and plan to be there.

Once again our most popular activity seems to be travel. Africa has been a popular destination this year. Bexy Faxon Knowles and Bob went to Kenya on safari and found not only magnificent, vast countryside teeming with wildlife but delightful cool weather. Mitzi Streit Halla and Roman continue their continent-hopping, hitting South Africa in May as well as Seoul and Hong Kong in February and Canada in June. With their boys at opposite ends of the country now—Kenneth in MA where he recently received his masters at Boston U and Brian on board a Navy destroyer out of San Diego—I foresee more domestic travel for Mitzi

The message from Nancy Douthat Goss was an excited scribble about an October safari in Botswana and Kenya via Victoria Falls with its finale in the south of France. They returned in time for son Ned's wedding in November. Having been to Bermuda, Holland, Maine and Hilton Head in the past year, Marty Hedeman Buckingham and Dick were looking forward to a November trip to South Africa. Their children are not far away. Linda was married last year and is only 10 minutes away. Steve works for Harris 3M and lives in Philadelphia.

European destinations were also popular. Gail Davidson Bazzarre and her sister, Margery Davidson Rucker ('51) spent 2 weeks in Italy with an SBC alumnae group in October. Gail wrote a wonderful account of the trip, which is available for reference in the Alumnae Office. Babs Garforth Jackson and Ivey spent two weeks in Italy in September. She is working part-time in an antique shop, playing tennis and enjoying both grandsons. The second son of daughter, Eve Jackson London ('78) was born in March. Sandy Rhodes Berglund spent May in Europe, mostly in Rome where her youngest son, Conrad was doing his junior year from R.I.S.D. She also travelled to Roanoke for the wedding of daughter Lisi Carlen ('84) in September and then to Philadelphia to visit daughter Sigy Carlen ('81) who had just finished her residency in Internal Medicine. Older son Eric is teaching at Princeton. She plans to stay home for a while and enjoy sailing and backpacking in Colorado's gorgeous mountains. Evelyn Sanders Haugen and Will spent 2 weeks in Yugoslavia in October and loved it. George is a student at Fuller Theological Seminary. He and his wife moved to Pasadena after 2 years in Zaire. Walter is practicing law with Will.

Mary Boyd Murray Trussell and George had a lovely trip to England and France in June. They went to a country wedding in Sussex and then visited French friends. They ballooned in champagne country and did a lot of back road touring, providing lots of opportunity for Mary Boyd to practice her "fractured French." For Diane Johnson DeCamp a month in England is an annual winter event and she spends her time staying in old inns and visiting antique shops and fairs. She plans to work part-time in a decorating shop when she returns, having accumulated lots of experience working on her new, contemporary home since she moved in last May. Barbara Plamp Hunt and George started out in England for 3 weeks where George attended the Lambeth Conference and went on to Turkey and Greece for 3 more weeks. Lydia Plamp Plattenberg met them in Athens along with Bar and George's daughter, Sue. They all spent a week on Corfu. Reports from both Lydia and Bar raved about the island. They were all headed for Louisville in early October for reunion with all the children and grandchildren. Bar and George's second grandchild, Jessica Anne, arrived in August, the daughter of son Paul and his wife. Paul was ordained to the diaconate by his father in June and entered the priesthood in January, 1989.

Among the stay-at-homes there have been weddings galore. Camille Williams Yow's daughter Camille was married in December, 1986, to Robert McDuffie, a concert violinist. Son Andrew married in June, 1987, and lives in Atlanta. Camille has recently finished remodeling her 60-year-old house, does volunteer political and historic-preservation projects, and enjoys working on her new perennial garden. Charlotte Orr Moores also had two weddings. Daughter Jeanie and son Robert were married within 7 weeks of each other this past spring. Son Jack is still in the development office at Vanderbilt U. where their youngest, Louise is a junior this year. Georgia Knobloch Smith's son was married this past summer at the Villanova Chapel. Her youngest son entered W&L this fall. She owns Two Rivers Realty in Rumson, NJ, which keeps her busy. Peggy West Valentine and Henry's daughter, Ida, was married May 28th to Bart Farinholt, son of Tabb Thornton Farinholt ('56) and Blair. They are in Charlottesville where Bart is in his second year at Darden School of Business. Sue Lawton Mobley and John's daughter, Anne ('87), was married in May to a young man from Ireland. Sue is pleased that they will live in Atlanta! Nancy Boggs, daughter of Patty McClay Boggs and Flip, was married in March and is living in Raleigh, NC, where she is a tennis pro at a local club. A nephew's wedding in Philadelphia this fall gave Patty the opportunity for an enjoyable visit with Peggy Anne Ewart Riter ('54) and Sally Bumbaugh ('54). In November, Lee Fiducia Hartmann and Reudi's daughter, Denice, was married to Randy Palazzo (a nice Italian boy—Lee's father is thrilled!). They will live nearby as both work in Jacksonville. Lee visited son Greg in Lexington, KY, in August and found out why he loves living and working there. Her youngest, Eric, is in college in Florida.

Anne Lyn Harrell Welsh and Bill enrolled the youngest of their daughters, Carol, at Princeton this fall. Jeanette Kennedy Hancock and Jimmie's boys are both in law school, as is Anne Williams Manchester's daughter, Sarah. When she wrote, Anne and Eli were planning an October jaunt to Albany to see Jane Feltus Welch on stage as Florence Nightingale's mother! Elise Wachenfeld dePapp's daughter Erika, a junior at Dartmouth, is the last of her students. Her two oldest are in Boston: Anne is a medical resident at the Brigham and John an engineer with Polaroid. Elise has returned to the show ring, spends all her spare time riding and competing in combined-training events and is having a wonderful time.

First time grandmothers include Amanda McThenia Iodice whose granddaughter, Amanda Ruthe Iodice (2), lives in Kodiak, Alaska. Now that Don is retired they may be able to visit her more often. Honey Addington Passano's grandson, William Harrison Hill, was born in September 1987, and lives in Boston, a little closer for visiting. Little Lauren Leigh Maynard, born May 30, 1988, lives nearby so grandmother Ruth Campbell Vanderpoel can spend lots of time with her!

Pat Smith Ticer, still very much in the political arena, came in first in the city council elections in Alexandria last spring so is serving as vice-mayor again. She enjoyed being a delegate to the Democratic National Convention in Atlanta last summer. She and Jack visited son John who is living and working in the Boston area and liked everything about it but the heat! Daughter Margaret is married and living in Virginia Beach, Catherine is living in Greenwich, CT and working in Westchester, and Virginia is in her last year at UVA. Emily Hunter Slingluff's book, A Present to the Newborn, has been selling very well and is available in the SBC Book Shop. Emily was awarded the Virginia Fulltime Homemaker Award from Eagle Forum, a national pro-family organization. Ginger Chamblin Greene's husband, Art, has recovered from his hip replacement surgery last winter and we can assume that he is taking Ginger dancing again!

By special request, I will not mention a certain mini-reunion last August as some people are really tired of hearing about it. It was smaller than usual anyway, as only the Gosses and Manchesters joined Shirley Sutliff Cooper and Tom in Maine this year.

My autumn journey to New England had several highlights. The fall color was at its peak and Didi Stoddard and I did enough driving, walking and even biking to appreciate it fully. We spent a very breezy afternoon walking on the beach with Dianne Verney Greenway who is living in a tiny house in the sand dunes of Plum Island at Newbury, MA. She was recovering from an onslaught of family occasioned by the wedding of her daughter, Virginia. Anyway her new location is beautiful and as she is concentrating on her photography, should provide her with many fascinating opportunities. Didi and I saw some of her work and were properly impressed. We spent a lovely weekend on Martha's Vineyard where I amazed myself (and Didi!) with my incredible athletic ability—at least 25 miles of bicycling in two days! The great thing about visiting Didi is that although she fattens you up with her marvellous gourmet meals, she also makes you work it off! We had a wonderful week.

That's it for now. If you haven't sent this year's fund check, DO IT TODAY! And plan now for 1990!

It is now Spring, 1989 - reunion time! Just in case the Reunion Committee missed you, please part with some of your hard earned dollars for the Class gift - we need full participation. Then pack up your body and send it off to Sweet Briar at the end of May for good times and old friends.

Two who won't be with us are Alice Morris Gaskell hiding out in Cornwall and Sue Wedderburn Murray who has a new address in Boat of Garten, Inverness-shire, Scotland. Sue and Ian are living in an old mill which they renovated in the highlands. Ian has taken early retirement and Sue is looking for work.

Judy Welton Sargent, husband John, and daughters Susan, 22, and Mary Catherine went to Australia in the late spring for 3 weeks. Everyone had something to celebrate. Judy and John reached the great age of 50 and their 25th anniversary. Mary Catherine celebrated her 21st birthday and Susan had just graduated from Vanderbilt. Judy spent 3 1/2 weeks in the Far East with John on a business trip in October. Susan Hafer Hambrick and Robert went to China, Hong Kong and Japan in November, 1987. In July '88 son Robert III was married in Hickory, NC. The Hambricks cruised Alaska in Aug. '88.

Some of us jumped the gun in September when we attended the annual Board of Overseers gala in Chicago. Alice Cary Farmer Brown, Linda Knickerbocker Ford, Jane Jamison Messer and I had a grand time seeing each other and plotting some ideas for reunion. Alice Cary was on her way to Wilmington, DE for her son's wedding on Oct. 15th. Son Stuart who caught the garter will be wed in 1989.

Gay Hart Gaines has a granddaughter, Ashley, born in January on Stanley's birthday. The Gaines bought a place in Vail, CO where they are planning to spend Christmas and lots of time in '89. Gay is working with the McCarter Theater in Princeton, NJ. Harriet Henderson Stubblefield and Austin became empty nesters when their daughter, Laura, was married in '87. Harriet took a trip to Paris in April and a fall color jaunt to the Berkshires in October. Harriet completed a course in chemical dependency in June and will start volunteer services in this field. Ann Eagles Carrell and Bill continue their church work in Louisville, KY. Son, Bill, Jr., who is at Davidson was honored as a new NC fellow - a leadership honorary group. Ann and Bill traveled to NY, CT and DE where they had opportunities to visit with Jini Jones Dyer and Judy Welton Sargent.

Marge McCollum Tillman is now Associate Director of Schnick School where she has been teaching for 15 years. Judy Nevins LeHardy and Ward moved to Fredericksburg, VA and are renovating their 90-year-old Victorian house. Ward retired from the army in August after 32 years of service. Son Peter is a sr. at the Naval Academy and Sally and her 3 children live in Fredericksburg. Married son Marcel lives in Columbia, SC and Ward, Jr. is in Springfield, VA. Mary Blair Scott Valentine will be a grandmother on or about 10/22/88. Details unknown at this writing. Kitty Watjens Fleming is still happily married to Fred, after 31 years. Their older daughter is married and the mother of their first grandchild, Ashley. Son Rick, not yet married, works for the Smithsonian in DC, and younger daughter, Barb, was married this past summer. Fred and Kitty are runners - Kitty runs 4 1/2 miles a day - and both play tennis.

Erna Arnold Westwig will be at daughter Karen's graduation from Boston U. Communications School during our reunion. Son Eric is a sophomore at Cornell. Erna is Director of Guidance at Addison School. Erna and Ralph had a wonderful safari in Kenya in July. Sue Hight Rountree is involved in many projects for Colonial Williamsburg plus continuing renovation of their home. Chris, 16, is at Holderness School in NH and Jeff, 19, at Mary Washington.

Tabb Thornton Farinholt's son Bart married Lola Valentine (daughter of Peggy West Valentine '55) in May. They are living in Charlottesville while Bart finishes business graduate school. Vivian Butler Scott is in Montgomery, AL. She has a child in 6th grade and a son, Anderson, in the advertising business in Montgomery after graduating from Yale. Daughter Fairlie is a freshman at Sewanee. Vivian has seen Sally Beattie Sinkler in Atlanta several times and reports Sally has a very successful real estate business.

Mary Ballou Handy Ballentine has been spending lots of time in Ireland the past 3 years while husband Michael works on an article for Town & Country magazine about a garden over 100 acres called Mt. Cougrez in County Waterford. Sons Teddy and Joe are in real estate in D.C. Daughter Cricket took a semester off from UVA to work in London. Roland Reynolds, a sr. at Groton School (Mass.), is co-captain and quarterback of the football team. Polly Space Dunn is now an empty nester. Her daughter Elizabeth is a sophomore at UVA and Eleanor, 15, is at Oldfields. Polly is planning a trip to Vail, CO in February where she hopes to see Betsy Colwill Wiegiers. The Dunns bought property in the NC mountains where they plan to build a vacation house.

Snowden Durham Kisner wrote and wrote in tiny letters. Being a confirmed member of the over-the-hill-gang, I pulled out my trusty spy glass to find Snowden became a grandmother for the second time in Dec. '87 when Chuck's daughter Leslie delivered a daughter. Son Kenneth is finishing his masters at Wm. & Mary. Richard is at Shepherd College. Chuck gave a surprise 50th birthday party for Snowden in April. Among the SBCers there were Betsy Colwill Wiegiers, Di Doscher Spurdle, Grace Suttle '60. Snowden's sister Louise Durham Purvis, '62, and cousin Tito Shepherd Scott, '43. They had a ball!

Judy Franklin Campbell and Bill run a busy B & B and full-time antique business from their c.1745 farmhouse in the Brandywine Valley of southeast PA. Betsy Colwill Wieggers spent most of the winter '87 in Vail, CO. August and Sept. '88 the Wieggers were at their ranch in CO. Betsy visited and museum hopped with Virginia Mackethan Kitchin and Corky when they were in NYC recently. Ann Pegram Harris is busy with charity work plus getting all the plans together for reunion. Ann's daughter Martha was married in July. At the reception, 6 other couples became engaged, including son Jay.

Merri Hagerly Rumrill has completed studies at George Washington and opened a landscape design business which is a dream come true. Her children are nearly launched. Katherine is at VA Tech and Charlie at UVA. Richard graduated from Wheaton College and is working in the communications field. Dudley graduated from U. of Rochester and is working for an architectural firm. Gretchen Smith Falk is Director of Operations at CA Book Auction Galleries in San Francisco a rare book auction house. Gretchen and Charlie went to Kenya in the summer of '87 to visit their daughter who's working in the Peace Corps. A trip this spring to France, Spain and Germany included a stop to see their middle daughter who lives in Germany; youngest daughter is a sr. in college. Gretchen reports visits with Dede Ulf Mayer and Lucia Woods Lindley and says they both look wonderful.

Sarah Jane Murdock Moore has a new granddaughter born in Sept. to daughter Sally in Portland, OR. Sarah's son, Jim, Jr., will be married in May. Lizora Miller Yonce is president of the Family Center Board in Greenwich, CT. Daughter Elizabeth is in her second year at UVA, Logan is in his 3rd year at Lake Forest College and son, Clay, is a management consultant with Bain & Co. in Boston. Lizora reports that Elsie Prichard Carter's daughter is teaching at Greenwich Academy in the middle school which is headed by Jackie Hekma Stone. Ann Smith Heist's daughter is a jr. at SMU and a member of Pi Phi. Ann and John swapped their oceanfront home in Jacksonville, FL with a friend in Geneva, Switz. for June. They continued to Brest, France, to visit the family of an exchange student who had lived with them. The Heists operate an apparel store and shopping village in Jacksonville.

Virginia Ramsey Crawford has 3 grandchildren. She continues as a school librarian in Greenwich, CT. The Crawfords celebrated their wedding anniversary with a hurricane in Bermuda - not what they expected, but they survived. Ali Wood Thompson and Travis went salmon fishing north of Vancouver Island to celebrate their 30th wedding anniversary. Ali works with the elderly and does some charity in addition to managing condominium rentals on Maui. Ali and Travis plan to move to Maui in 2 years when Travis takes early retirement from Boeing.

Mary Harrison Cooke Carle is busy with drawing classes and has returned to teaching music after 18 years. Caroline Green, in Milledgeville, GA, writes that everything is great. Sally Mayfield Schreiner just started her second year at Chicago Theological Seminary. Liz Meyerink Lord is an interior decorator in Pebble Beach, CA. The Lords' son, Christopher, is an investment banker with Prudential Bache in NYC. Anne Wimbish Kasanin and Mark had a relaxing vacation in Sicily in Dec. '87. Rachel Bok Goldman is loving every minute in Chicago and finds the city exciting. Rachel and Allen weekend in Michigan where they pursue gardening interests. Rachel became a grandmother last May when Allen's eldest son and his wife had a child.

Just received a card from Barbara Sampson Borsch. She and Fred moved to Los Angeles when The Very Rev. Dr. Frederick Borsch was elected the fifth Bishop of Los Angeles. Barbara is readjusting to the S. CA lifestyle known as "culture shock". Barbara was Administrator of the Commission on Ministry of the Diocese of New Jersey before their move. The Borsch's and 4 other SB alumnae with their bishop-husbands attended the Lambeth Conference in August (see photo this issue) and Barbara reported on the women's agenda at the conference for The Episcopal News of Los Angeles.

Life in San Diego has had its ups and downs this past year. I moved into my dream house the end of April and I'm still moving in. Played lots of golf during the summer in addition to 2 new jobs. This afternoon Sue Perry Farmer is coming over to inspect my place and gab. Sue's son Pete who has been living in Japan just married an English girl in Tokyo. Ali Wood Thompson will be in town next Tuesday and we'll be getting together for lunch. Then I hope to see Barbara Sampson Borsch in Los Angeles before long. Went up to meet a friend in San Francisco in October, but didn't have a chance to track down any classmates.

Looking forward to seeing you at the 30th.

It's difficult - no impossible - not to brag on the exceptional group of women who laughed, cried, reminisced, and sang during those all-too-brief hours in May when nearly 50 of us celebrated our 25th class reunion. The proudest moment had to be the presentation of $90,242 - the largest 25th reunion gift ever raised for the college. Sixty-three percent of our classmates donated, thanks to Anne Carter Brothers and Nancy Dixon Brown who developed an impressive "outreach" method to make sure we all were contacted personally by someone we knew well.

Many of us are preoccupied with the high school and college careers of our children, and watching them head into the "real world" after school. Judy Johnson Varn's twins graduate from high school this year, and Judy hopes that college acceptances will replace college-seeking correspondence in the mail box. Kathleen Caldwell Patten has all 3 children at Baylor School in Chattanooga. Barbara Yocum Miller is "seeing the first two through college while still having a couple of live ones at home (ages 9 and 14) to keep Mom happy." Irwin Leatherman Zanone's daughter graduated from NYU last June and works at a New York gallery, while son Philip is at Vanderbilt and daughter Katie in junior high. Harriet Reese Jensen's daughter Marianne graduated from Dickinson College last May, while her two sons are in college in Denmark, where Harriet and her husband Jorgen continue to farm and raise horses (and entertain Sweet Briar alums). Stevie Fontaine Keown is contemplating a "completely empty" nest following her daughter's graduation from UVA and her son's graduation from McCallie. She is also contemplating a return to the work force after she and TV broadcaster husband Mark finish renovating "this old house" on Lookout Mtn., TN. Another "Lookout Mountaineer," Lee Kucewicz Parham had to miss reunion, which conflicted with the graduation of her "rock-climbing son" Rob from McCallie. A picture from Lucy Boyd Lemon Edmunds reveals Lucy's son and daughter have Lucy's incredibly blond, blond hair. Lucy lists "finding colleges for children" as a major occupation.

Children's weddings and children's children are crowding in there, vying with schooling as a preoccupation, and competing with reunion weekend in some cases. Elizabeth Randolph Lewis' daughter Ann was married the weekend after reunion to a medical student at the Medical College of Virginia. And Ella Brown Hughes finds time for a growing passle of grandchildren in between teaching high school students and chaperoning them on trips to Europe.

But not everyone is dealing with the graduations and weddings of off-spring. Youthful group that we are, we sport a few such as Sarah Whitener O'Connor and Carol Cline Palmer, who are bundling youngsters off to kindergarten this year. And Anne Pinckney Gay's daughter Annie was also off to kindergarten this year. Jean Meyer Aloe has that moment to look forward to, with 4-year-old Charley still around. She is aided no doubt by her charming daughters Jennifer and Betsy, who joined us at reunion.

Mary Lou Morton Seilheimer and her husband are completing a pool and landscaping project at their Warrenton, VA home. The landscaping should be top-notch as Mary Lou is now president of the Warrenton Garden Club and can compare notes with gardening and landscaping aficionados all over the country. Betsy Beale is now the proud owner of 2 future (she hopes) racehorses. Now that Virginia has passed pari-mutuel racing she hopes her "babies" will be ready when the track gets finished. Betsy had such fun at Reunion she wishes she could re-enroll!

I never tire of hearing what new careers SBC alumnae are pursuing. Barbara Noojin Walhall has seen her estate jewelry business grow from part-time several years ago to an apparently more-than-fulltime partnership with two others. She travels frequently to New York from her home in Birmingham. Valerie Elbrick Hanlon was executive director of the Washington Bach Consort for three years, and continues to work for a London firm that produces commemorative medals. In her spare time she is renovating her family home in Washington for resale. Lynn Carol Blau writes for a variety of travel and restaurant review magazines. But a picture of Lynn skiing at Vail last year with her husband shows that the occupational hazard of such a career has taken no toll on Lynn! In a closely-related field, Sallie Yon Williams continues in the cookbook publishing and culinary teaching world. Anyone who saw Sallie at reunion knows she looks more like an aerobics teacher than a master chef. Sue Jones Cansler enjoys her job in Atlanta with a micro-computer software developer.

Penny Pamplin Reeves made a career leap, at least geographically, last year, when she became the director of advancement of the George School in Newton, PA, and had to relocate there from Charleston. Son Peter is a freshman in college and Ned a junior in high school. Another school administrator, Jane Yardley Page, is elementary school director at the Breck School in Minneapolis. My husband John and I were lucky to briefly intercept her ambitious tour of national parks in Wyoming and Montana last summer, and enjoyed dinner with her in Jackson, WY. Lucetta

Gardner Mannion has also made a career change, having left special education for the mortgage business.

Our practicing attorneys are branching out and will soon be able to represent us in any way needed. Anne Smith Simet is a partner in Buffalo's largest law firm, mainly defending clients in employment cases. She is "still the only woman in litigation" in her firm. Having just completed a 10-year restoration of a Victorian home, she and husband Don are starting on another. Lark Schulze has practiced health care law in Baltimore since 1982, and still has one son - "a six-foot athlete with a whimsical view of life" - at home. Hazel Walling Nourse specializes in real estate law, wills, trusts and corporate work near her Bedford, NY home.

Nancy McDowell Fairbanks, with all three children in college, was looking forward to attending a family therapists' meeting in New Orleans, and a visit in Atlanta with her roommate Sarah Hitch Hill. Sarah is "thriving" on her research project on Cherokee women, a part of a doctoral program in anthropology at Emory University. Some of us are currently absorbed in Episcopal church-related careers and lives.

Chenault McClure Conway is a lay chaplain at the Massachusetts General Hospital and Tempe Parker is a program officer for the Episcopal Diocese of South Carolina in Charleston. Also in Charleston, May Bowers Morris is involved in two Episcopal parishes served by husband Don, while May continues teaching learning disabled children.

Mary Trabue Meyer, a librarian in Nashville, is active in environmental causes and advocacy for women's reproductive rights. McNair Currie Maxwell, who had to travel a lot further than I did to reunion, teaches Latin in the Los Angeles area, and recently saw 14 of her students bag gold medals on the National Latin Exam. Glenda Carlson Goodman assists her husband in his investment research business. Ann Clute Obenshain and Boyd are raising two daughters, one in high school and one in junior high, and Ann heads up an elementary school computer lab. Karen Gill Meyer, a realtor in Paradise Valley, AZ laments that "the more successful you are in residential real estate the fewer weekends and evenings you have." Mary Groetzingher Heard is teaching third grade in Brookline, MA, while she and husband Edward have been "celebrating our 25th anniversary all year."

Priscilla Langley Pay and her delightful husband Tony traveled the farthest to our reunion, from Sussex, England, where Priscilla is a "math teacher, farmer, cashier, math examiner, gardener, property developer and parent." Betty McDonald McCutchen is chairman of a task force on teenage pregnancy in Ellijay, GA, where her husband Joseph edits and publishes an economic and political newsletter. Lynn Reiersen Burchard writes for a weekly newspaper near her Williamstown, MA home.

Practicing and promoting the arts is an important part of the lives of many of us. Marta Sweet Colangelo proudly reports a $20,000 grant for an art program she's worked on in her children's school (but fears her third-grade son is "out to abolish school" in general). Susan Scott Johnston is planning to be the Grandma Moses of Pawley's Island, SC in her newfound hobby as a watercolorist. Cheri Fitzgerald Burchard continues to demonstrate success in her art career, having recently had several watercolors accepted at juried shows. Pat Calkins Wilder continues to pursue her interest in photography. Jessica Bemis Ward is working hard to renovate the old Pest House in Lynchburg for use as a museum. Frances Graham MacIwinen is a very committed board member of a foundation preparing to build a $30 million performing arts complex in a depressed riverside area of Greenville, SC. Julia Fort Lowe devotes a lot of time to Nashville's symphony orchestra. Robin Swaim Davis, not far away in Memphis, commutes frequently to New York booking music workshops and recitals. And Randy Kendig Young says art history studied at Sweet Briar has "enriched" her life and she finds it difficult to say "no" to any worthwhile arts project. Barby Rockefeller Bartlett is trying to find more time for a budding painting career, while Susan Terjen Bernard calls herself "mother to 42 artists" in her role as executive director of an art center in Norfolk.

But education of the Class of '63 will never be complete, and many of us continue to collect degrees and certifications for new professional pursuits. Debby Doherty just received her doctorate in psychology from NYU. Lyn Clark Pegg became a licensed psychologist during the summer after reunion and squeezed in a family camping trip in the Rocky Mountains to celebrate. Nancy Lane Rogers Burghardt is in training as a family therapist in Ontario, Canada, while she and husband John raise two teenaged daughters. Leslie Smith Elger is in a graduate library science program, and although she plans a career in reference or children's librarianship, she fantasizes being a travel reporter. Polly Wirtzman Craighill has received a Master of Laws in taxation since our last reunion, and continues to practice law in Washington.

And we are part of that magnificent group of Americans who are moving and changing. Ann Funkhouser is now Ann Strite-Kurz, having married Bill Kurz shortly before reunion. She's left Connecticut and settled in Beaverton, MI, continuing to conduct needlework and embroidering classes and seminars around the U.S., but leaning more towards the "publishing side of embroidery." Ann Leavell Reynolds was at reunion and preparing for a move to Pennsylvania, where husband Herb will be medical director at the University of Pennsylvania Medical School. Ann plans to continue high school math teaching. From far away to yet farther away, Nerissa vom Baur Roehrs, husband Heiner and daughter Marina have temporarily left Germany and are in Tokyo for the next few years. Lucy Olis Anderson has survived two moves since the last reunion and now lives in Charlotte, with husband David and two teenaged daughters, and numerous animals.

Strenuous recreation and just being outdoors are important to all of us in varying degrees. Nancy Wood had a good summer working in her garden and enjoying the southwestern Virginia mountains, where she works as a social worker in a mental hospital.

Olive Wilson Robinson and Roby report that "now that the (3) girls are all grown, we have moved to the country to raise cows, harvest apples and grow ornamental trees." Heidi Dillingham Aehegma grows organic taro and ginger in Naalehu, HI while raising 6 children. Keitt Matheson Wood enjoys "anything outdoors," including gardening, walking, and skiing. She also has a pilot's license! Sally Strain would like to be outdoors more - sailing, hiking, gardening - but is desk-bound a great deal as a personnel officer in a Washington bank.

Betsy Parker McColl had a demanding schedule of tennis tournaments for last summer and fall. She continues to be a credit to us on the circuit. She delighted me with tales of 11-year-old Eliza during our post-reunion drive down to my brother's farm in North Carolina. Cathy Detmar Nicholls continues as master of fox hounds in Devon, England, while their 20-year-old daughter Heather attends Bennington College. A picture of Ann Knickerbocker McCulloch shows the great results of her jogging habit and she's "glad to be jogging at 46, even if slowly."

The pacesetter in travel continues to be Betty Stanly Cates. Though she missed reunion at SBC she and Alvin have managed several mini-reunions, traveling to Adelaide, Australia, where Renee Regen Sage and her husband Ed "really rolled out the red carpet." The Cates' were joined in Vero Beach by Nancy Dixon Brown last August, before Nancy returned to her special education teaching and the year's carpooling demands. Just before reunion the traveling Cates also linked up with the traveling Moreys - Julia Arnold Morey and Russ. The Moreys were planning a trip to East Africa earlier this spring. Laura Lee Brown Deters was also Africa-bound when she wrote, wedding that trip in between leading two museum collectors' trips Chris Devol Wardlow wrote about a 10-day trip to Italy with husband Gary, a well-deserved vacation from her job as purchasing manager for a company in Littleton, CO. Chris recalled the trip she and I took to Italy together during our Junior Year in France.

Anne Carter Brothers and husband John enjoyed 10 "wonderful days" in Scotland in August before getting their 3 sons back in school. Ginger Cates Mitchell plans a trip to Wyoming next summer, and promises to get in touch. She kept on "reunion" last summer, attending a UVA 25th with husband Ed, and said "there was lots of tale-telling." She was joined there by Mela Bond Magevney and Betsy Flanders Spencer and their husbands. Nancy Nix Karnakis joined her mother and sister for a three-week journey to Norway last summer, exploring the southern region where she traces part of her ancestry. Pru Gay Stuhr and Ed drove to St. Louis for the Dalmatian National Society, "seeing many spots before our eyes" - over 450 Dalmatians Leading as usual in the good humor and wise perspective column is our own SBC Board member Allison Stemmons Simon. She reported being back to traveling and working for the college after a summer "becoming an expert in home elevators." Allie spent much of last summer helping her parents through illnesses and lessened mobility. Last fall she and Heinz visited his family in Germany and took in part of the Salzburg Festival. And Lisa Wood Hancock is taking a well-deserved break from corresponding with classmates! But she was truly the spirit of reunion - fun-loving and reaching out to all of us. It's a little scary taking over this job from Lisa. Those of you who were not at reunion probably have not heard the sad news that Dearing Ward Johns' husband died, a few months before reunion. We were all so glad Dearing could be with us.

The 25th was my first SBC reunion and my only vacation for the summer of 1988. Soon afterwards my reporting job landed me in the midst of a national news story - the unprecedented fires in Yellowstone National Park. Attractively attired in hard-hat and fire-retardant clothing, I spent much of the summer there, long enough to see beginnings of the regeneration process - new grasses and wild geraniums poking through fire-blackened meadows within weeks after the flames swept through. Ed's note: See Katharine's article in this issue. Yellowstone is as majestic as ever, and the more interesting for the fires and their aftermath. Please come see for yourselves this summer, and call me for travel tips about the parks (Yellowstone and Grand Teton) and other great places to visit in Wyoming.

Imagine you had time for a trip from Vermont down the coast to Florida, up through the midwest and out to the west coast to check out what your friends from SBC '67 have reported. You'd find Gretchen Bullard Barber and that cute crew we met at Reunion settled in their new home in Vermont where the kids have become avid skiers and horse riders and Gretchen and David squeeze as much tennis as possible between the events of their children, the oldest of whom they took to England for her 10th birthday, which promises to become a tradition. They visited Sue Morck Perrin and Bill at home in Greenwich, CT this fall and for a week at the beach last summer. All is well with Bonnie Jackson Werbe who is also in Greenwich. Across the way in Portsmouth, NH, Barbara Annan, now a "perennial student," is studying for her second Masters in Counseling Psychology to top off her degree in Pastoral Ministry.

Maria Wiglesworth Hemmings is finishing a sabbatical in Stamford, CT as she finds no work and all play tests her sanity. She's looking for part-time work which will allow more time with Anne, 7, and Emery, 11. She's found Janie Hansford Bronson in New Canaan, whose husband John observes that two thirds of the '67 physics majors are there. (They'd better report in. I wasn't aware we had any.) In New Haven, Judy Bensen Stigle is filling the time that these notes used to take by producing grandchildren (one this month, one due in January), planning a Sept. garden wedding for the last daughter and enjoying trips to their new beach house in FL.

Next, the train into the Big Apple to spend the morning with Mary Ellen Martin in Harlem testing your skills teaching reading to adults. Spend the afternoon with her at the Council of Foreign Relations. Then to an evening meeting of her book club. You join Gracey Stoddard Sloterbeck for dinner to hear that she's single again and stepping up and out (and standing much better, too, after her back operation). She enjoyed a great expedition on a four masted schooner off the Baja Peninsula, snorkeling and watching sea lions up close and gray whales from afar. She returned to become Account Executive for Corporate Annual Reports, Inc. (a gift-matcher, I'm sure). An early morning workout with Mary Cary Ambler Finley where she kindly gives you the choice between tennis, squash and paddle ball, knowing she's the favorite at each since, for the first time in a decade, all her kids are in school. Linda Fite picks you up to take you to her home in Kerhonkson since you have no idea where that is, but know that it also houses cats, dogs and a bird, in addition to her 3 kids, 10, 12 and 15. You are treated to a concert by the budding musicians before dinner.

Back to the City to lunch with Kate Barrett Rennie, in town for the day from Scotch Plains, NJ. She tempts you to bag the rest of your trip for Barbados which she visited last summer with husband Bob, Katherine, 15, and Chris, 2. She also describes her work for Literature Services at Al-Anon Family Groups Headquarters, Inc. and for Michael Dukakis. You and Kate meet Glory McRae Bowen to watch Glo, 13, work in a dramatic sketch arranged by her NYC manager and then collect Hardy, 7, from his tap dancing class. They head back to Mountain Lakes, NJ for Hardy's swim practice. T.J., 2, takes swimming, too.

Plans to visit Colleen Coffey Hall and Bob in Princeton didn't materialize as both Bob's NYC law practice and Colleen's decorating business require much travel. She's working on a chain of optical stores from Florida to Canada as well as a Caribbean resort.

On to Pittsburgh. Eleanor Kidd Crossley takes you directly to the Carnegie-Mellon where she works as program assistant for a chaplain's program. Later a tour of the campus before you meet Eleanor's husband, Jim, for dinner at one of Pittsburgh's finest as all the young ones are off to college, the last this fall, to Radford Univ. Next morning you hop your favorite mode of transportation to the Home of the Liberty Bell for a long stay with Dee Dee Heyward Dyer and Jon. Dee Dee spends most of each day at board meetings for her countless but dear non-profit organizations. Dinnertime conversation includes projects Jon's firm, Space Design, Inc., is doing, the implications of the dwindling supply of well-educated, non-working wives to run nonprofit organizations, and other classmates Dee Dee has seen: Mary Cary, in Washington as an observer for the National Society of Colonial Dames Biennial (Marion MacRae could and would have been there if she'd known they were); on her trip to Historic Charleston with 40 other museum guides, Barbara Cochrane Buckley, who is a stewardess on American's flights from Boston; and Polly Eells, behind a cash register, one of her duties as Head of Product Development and Retail Operations for Historic Charleston Foundation.

Next stop, Alexandria, VA, lunch with Marion MacRae, Ann Carr Bingham and Norvell Jones who's taking a rare long lunch from her No. 2 spot in the document preservation department at the Archives where you'll go after lunch to see some of her charges, the Constitution, Declaration of Independence and the Gettysburg Address and some work in progress. Ann was on a day off from her job as secretary to the Headmaster at Episcopal High School. Normally she spends them pursuing her interest in medieval English history or writing poems about it. Husband, Kim, is a District Counsel for INS. Her eldest, Alexandra, will graduate in June from U.Va. while son, Kim, is happy in his first year at Wesleyan Univ. in Conn. Marion mostly takes care of business, at home, but has finally gotten the temporary jobs routine off the ground and has been to some great little companies. Her newest commitment is to go on an Earth Watch expedition every year for 2 weeks as a volunteer researcher—in 1989 to Belize. B.H. to live by the sea in a tent, dig the mounds which cover an Incan coastal trading site which predates their move inland and search the rivers for undiscovered sites. She had a visit from Lynn Frazier Gas and Francois at the end of October. They left Arielle, almost 2, at home for a change and Lynn was dying to see her after 4 days. Marion's going to Houston to spend Thanksgiving with them as they won't be moving to Washington soon, as they hoped. She also talked to Janie Eastin Hager who was raising her own little daughter, a change from raising her teenage step-sons. She's the Financial Director for all of her husband, Ed's, entities, many of which involve medical procedures he's developed. Ann Stuart Brown Swann couldn't come from Bethesda, MD. Her oldest son, Kirk, is a freshman at Dartmouth and James, a ninth grader at Landon.

Back on Amtrak for Richmond—center of the Class of '67—and dinner with Lynn Gullet Strazzini, Stephanie Ewalt Ayers, Mary Gillespie Monroe and Sally Twedell Bagley. Sally's oldest daughter, a freshman at Vanderbilt, has been tagged with her middle name, "Faulkner." Her youngest is in first grade at Collegiate where Sally is president of the Patron's Association. Her piano students, numbering 21, get left for a while as she and Philip are off to the Canadian southwest for fun and profit. Stephanie is still teaching nursery school and trying to accommodate the many activities of her 3 sons. Lisa Harvey Morton, John and their youngest son, Ty, visited in September. Lynn, up from Williamsburg, said they are in the 4th year of Ed's Army career and he is suffering through resume writing and job interviewing for the first time ever. Lyn is still an organization development specialist. Mary is still teaching chemistry and physics at St. Gertrude's High School where Alison is in the ninth grade. Both went on the school trip to England and France. They then had a 3 week visit from Alison's pen pal from Belgium. Husband, Sandy, is Records Manager for Richmond and little Anne is in the 6th grade. They saw the SBC team claim 1st place at the Intercollegiate Horse Championships this season.

Next day by rail to Charlottesville to meet Mary Bell Timberlake in from Staunton where she manages a neighborhood shopping center. Wayt IV, in his third year at U.Va., came by the restaurant to say hello to Mom. You spend much of the afternoon in the bookshop part of the restaurant, Mary browsing through local histories of the area, gathering ammunition to aid in the preservation of historic Staunton. Then off to Richmond to collect Julie, a senior at St. Catherine's, for her first college interview. Carroll

Randolph Barr wasn't available as she was off to one of her many tennis tournaments on the weekend and is back to teaching French during the week as she hasn't found anything else she enjoys so much. So on to SBC for a delightful overnight with Katherine Barnhardt Chase. Her 10 year old, Leslie, is dedicated to soccer, dance and piano and Alison, 3, entertains you with nonstop conversation. After dinner, Bob gave a short computer lesson. Next day was one of Katherine's two off-days as High Risk Maternity Nurse at the Lynchburg Health Dept., so you and she spend most of the day on campus and have a long lunch with Clay Blackwell Wooldridge. Clay has started a new job at SBC as Director of Development Services and loves being on campus. Her oldest, Chuck, is a third classman at VMI and Carter is a freshman at SBC!

Late that evening the train slid across the line into North Carolina and into Charlotte in the wee hours. Undaunted, Page Munroe Renger and Mary Lindsay Smith Newsom were both there to meet you. Page's life much the same. John and Pat now 16 and 14 and beginning to think of college. Page is still involved part-time with the Jr. League, bridge, book and garden clubs. She spent the summer between Myrtle Beach and Charlotte. M.L., Mac and Kate, who's the same age as Pat, spent Labor Day weekend with them. In fact, Page was just in Raleigh seeing M.L.'s new home, a 60 year old, beautifully landscaped. M.L. and Mac had just missed Gilbert on their scuba diving trip in Martinique but will go back next spring. She is President of the N.C. Art Society which she loves.

Atlanta made up for its absence from Reunion as Melissa Sanders Thomas and Boyce, Lindee Henderson Lucas and Arthur, Lucille Orr Morrison and Lane, and Susan Tucker all gathered at Diane Mann Lanford's for dinner. Susan busier than ever with her ever-expanding public relations firm and as newly elected Board Member of the Belgian-American Chamber of Commerce (Belgium is one of our biggest importers). She took two, two vacation trips to England and France this summer. Ah, the life of a single entrepreneur. But then, Lucille's family, including Mills, 15, Mimi, 13 and Comer, 11 went to Egypt and then on a tented photographic safari to Kenya. Melissa draws heavily on her memorable career with Ain'ts & Asses in teaching English to Japanese. She doesn't speak their language and relies heavily on pantomime and her dramatic abilities. She regales you with a demonstration. Diane is raising teenagers while keeping her interior design business going. As with Colleen, she says the remodeling/space planning aspect now predominates. Her eldest son just interviewed the "southern ivy league" as he's off to college next year. As you'd expect, all were looking fantastic.

Turning northwest to Tennessee, you are only able to speak briefly to Barbara Tillman Kelley in Birmingham who said her life was consumed with chauffeuring her three, 15, 12 and 6, to school in 3 different school systems, each involved in sports, scouts and piano lessons. While in the SBC Alumnae Office you see several news articles describing Pam Rutledge Ausley's successes as Birmingham's top realtor of 1987 ($7 million in sales; no. 2 had $5 million). Her success, it's said, is attributable to her modest, mild-mannered approach. She does this around spending 4 hours a day with her son, jogging or aerobics, playing the organ at church and taking college courses "for the love of learning". But note she still hopes to retire and become a piano teacher (Did you see the article about her in the summer '88 alumnae magazine?) A note from Vicky Baker, recently returned from abroad after 21 years, described her work in Sri Lanka on her doctoral thesis, "The Blackboard in the Jungle," which treats formal education in disadvantaged rural areas. She is now Professor of Anthropology at Eckerd College in St. Petersburg. Her son, Maurits, 16, is still in school in the Netherlands.

In Nashville, you're invited to stay at Margy Dortch Brooks'. At a tasty luncheon with Ina Brown Johnson and Peggy Handly Fitzgerald, neither of whom you've seen since '67, Ina described her responsibilities as chair of the Louisville United Way Campaign for the last 18 months which amounted to a full-time job. Peggy said it's back to leaky plumbing and sagging gutters after a year of family fantasies: she and Dick enjoyed a family trip by barge through southern France to celebrate his aunt's 80th birthday (the aunt went, too)!! The whole family went in July on a cruise of the North Cape where they had 24 daylight hours for several days. Andrew, 13, went backpacking in northwest U.S.A. and Canada and Richard, 16, is spending the fall semester in Zermatt. You can't resist a hop over to Chattanooga to see Janie Willingham McNabb and Larry's new restaurant, Churchill's, where Janie's 10-12 hour days encompass promotion, including a monthly newsletter, and bookkeeping. It's going great guns.

A big jump out to Kansas, right over Betsy Kurtz Argo at her country home, Byrn Coille, in Ohio, where she keeps dogs, cats and horses, the latter so she can enjoy the chase. In Kansas, Toni Naren Gates had the most news if not the juiciest. Their daughter, 13, went with her local agency to NYC to compete in a talent convention of 900. The youngest one in her age category, 13-17, she won the light sitcom monologue, received an award in every category—soaps, commercials and modeling and was invited to join an NYC commercial agency next summer. Toni and Bud went to Hong Kong—the K-Mart of the Orient, she says. Her son has quit football for basketball, golf, tennis and Jake, the Gerbil. Toni's four actress troupe is performing to sell-out crowds and has been hired to tour after the regular season.

And then you find Patty Stetson Agnew on her sheep ranch in Big Timber, Montana. What an amazing place! She wants us all to come visit. Patty's paintings are hanging in NYU Law School which "bought a whole bunch." She rides hard and works hard for the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation and raises two sons, Eli, 10, and Sam, 13. Next stop, Dallas and Peggy Pittman Patterson, who has learned to cope as a single parent, teacher and candidate for ordination for which she will begin interviews in January. She anticipates becoming Chaplain of Episcopal High School. On to see Josalee Douglas, your only invitation from our Californians. You have an exciting 2 days observing the state legislature where Josalee is Assistant Secretary of Legislation for the Secretary of State & Consumer Services, Shirley Chilton. She hopes to be in Washington, DC in January for the Inaugural since her very first job was with "Congressman" Bush. Up to beautiful Ashland, OR to see Gene King Leyden, the midwife, who now spends more time teaching dance and working with children suffering life-threatening illnesses, which she finds most rewarding. On to Seattle to meet Peggy Handly Morrow. She often travels to China for her job teaching birth control and went to Switzerland twice this year.

On your swing around the world, you stopped in England, of course, where Beth Gawthrop Riely and family are taking John's sabbatical. Beth is still writing about food and travel for newspapers and magazines. Chris, 13, attends Magdalen College, alma mater of St. Thomas More, and Andrew, 5, is a "Middle Infant" in the village school.

Your secretary is catching a plane in 1 1/2 hours to Houston for Thanksgiving and thanks you all for your notes.

It was nice of so many of you to answer my obnoxious little "theme" question, how do you feel about turning 40? Kathy Wilson Lamb replies that almost 40 isn't too bad, despite a teenager in the house and lots of grey hair. She and Rex have bought a cottage in Northern Michigan to get away from Atlanta once in a while. Feeling stiff the day after planting Sweet Briar bulbs, Alix Sommer Pearce says she's better at 40, but maybe not physically! She is supervisor of Gifted and Fine Arts Education for Stafford County (VA) schools, and John is in the Historic Preservation Department at Mary Washington. Pam Henery Arey finds each year the fullest until the next one comes. Living near the Chesapeake, she has learned to enjoy boating, and her children range in age from high school to nursery school. In Delray Beach, Barbie Gracey Backer feels fine about 40, "as long as my energy holds out." As well as working 3 days a week in the insurance agency with Ron, she spends time with John (3) and David (2), and expects their third child in May.

Older and undoubtedly better, reports Betty Duson. The mother of Andy (2), Betty is winding down a successful psychology practice, and managed to end up with a wonderful husband and son just under the mid-life wire. At 39, Jeannette Bush Miller has traded in her professional clothes for sweats decorated with baby spit-up. She left a position with the Montclair Art Museum to have Elizabeth in June and to stay home with Sarah (4). She adds that the frustrating part about being a full-time mother is getting nothing accomplished, except once in a while grocery shopping! From Charlotte, Claire Kinnett Tate writes that she's getting better. Her biggest regret is not keeping in touch with SBC friends, and she promises to reply if you write her.

Carolyn Jones Walthall sent a thoughtful, serious note from Mobile. She has decided to take an adventure-some approach to the next 40 years (like her mother, who may attempt hang-gliding at age 65). Linda Whitlow Knight is so busy at almost-40 that her husband Dick sent in a note. I think that makes you an honorary classmate, Dick. Linda's name was considered after Judge Bork resigned from the D.C. Court of Appeals, and she continues her work in corporate bankruptcy. Daughter Katherine plans to attend W&L!

In Salt Lake City, Anne Wiglesworth Munoz coaches her daughter Maya's (7) soccer team while Alicia (3) awaits her turn. She speaks of a "real" job doing a lot of work on a Macintosh computer, and she had a show of her batiks in December. "40 should be great!" she concludes. Our class Peter Pan, Lynne Manov Sprinsky, doesn't turn 40 until 1990 but she has managed to earn an MBA from Texas A&M and is trying to start her own business on the premise that Life is Too Short to work for someone else. Matt is a third grade Lego freak and Judith will graduate from the Houston Art Institute in May. Anne Sniffen Cates, in Clifton, VA, enjoys a certain calmness, not, she adds, to be confused with a helpless resignation to fate. As her father has just turned 80, she sees lots of time ahead for her.

The cards I sent out netted an unlikely fish - Marjie Black! She is a free-lance attorney in Helena, MN, and enjoys riding and showing horses. She wants to know how the former denizens of third floor Grammer - Susan Sellers, Claire Kinnett, Jill Lowry - are. Carol Remington Foglesong continues in Orlando as Director of Development for Junior Achievement, while Rick writes for the Orlando Sentinel and teaches at Rollins. They and their 2 boys cruise and race a 21' Precision sailboat named Gotcha. Maggie Mather Feldman writes from Syracuse that her life is full with family, house additions, and her career with the Carlisle Collection. Jacque Penny Goldstone's year has been "too adult" with Bob's mother's illness. She managed to get away to Hawaii and to Boston to see family, and they met some concert musicians in Portland this year, such as Randy Newman, Mark Knopfler, and Aerosmith. Barbara Brand wrote, "Does 40 matter? Not to me!" She and Michael moved from the Historic District of Annapolis to the Historic District of Stevensville, and she enjoys watching the migrating waterfowl on her daily commute across the Bay Bridge.

Lissy Stevenson is still in Washington with the Smithsonian but spends most weekends in Richmond and hopes old friends in Richmond will get in touch. Honey Hammer, in Ohio, mentions her job at Bank One in passing, but then gets down to the real nitty-gritty - her horses. She has 4 horses which she enters in dressage competitions, and also has several students. In Columbus, Gale Hull has no time to think about 40. As well as working as an assistant law librarian, she is also involved with a wildlife rehabilitation group, attending her boys' soccer games, and tending their birds and dogs. Nancy Wood Ambrosino has moved to Ann Arbor, her husband Drake has a new job, and baby #5 arrived in January.

Another with no time to think about 40!

Age 40 still looks distant to Michela English, who with Rob is busy with Eleanore (4) and Will (almost 2). Wendy Norton Brown figures she will still be teaching preschool and driving soccer carpools in Richmond at 40. She reports seeing Cami Crocker Wodehouse and husband, who have moved to Richmond, and her boys and Claire Kinnett Tate's attended the same summer camp in Charlotte. Betsy Proctor Jennings lives and works in Burke, VA, for the Fairfax County Schools, and her children are now 14 (Mac) and 12 (Katie). Some of us are just beginning the parenting process. Liz Mumford Wilson, married 2 years, has a one-year-old and a successful career in painting. She says that life just seems to be starting in many ways. Almost 3 years post aneurysm, Kathy Jones Youell shares some optimistic thoughts on turning 40. To be alive and improving is a blessing, she writes. She feels much more focused on her family (Blanton, 12, and Kate, 9) and looks forward to re-learning to drive, perhaps to our 20th reunion! She adds that Maureen "Moco" Conway Peebles is now working on her second master's degree in Boston, and that Lissa McDowell Stevens, working for IBM in Columbus, may end up getting moved along with her husband by the Army to the Arctic Circle.

Sue Greenwald looks forward to 40, but it doesn't sound like she can top 39. Last January she trekked by elephant to an isolated northern area of Thailand. She got married October 1 at Central Park's Tavern on the Green, with Robi Randolph Hearing, Dee Kysor Smith-Crafts, Wendy Weiss Smith, Jill Minnema Worth, and Mim Washabaugh Meglan in attendance! Mim writes from New Orleans that she's working hard as a securities analyst, but her clients are happy and stocks are doing well. Wendy Weiss Smith had a good year at 39, too. She and her husband hiked the Tetons and the Grand Canyon. Jill Mennema Worth describes herself as going faster than sound, combining the jobs of church school director, arbiter for the American Arbitration Association, and wife. Does anyone know where Martha Bickham is, she asks?

Anne Milbank Mell wrote down all that she currently does on one postcard and the writing was pretty teeny. She is "volunteered up to my eyeballs," working with her children's schools and pursuing her own interests in the NJ Youth Symphony and the SBC club. As one of many classmates who sent me a thoughtful note after last year's class news came out, she commented, "...if all I can do is to raise 3 responsible, contributing, loving citizens and be reasonably happy myself, that's quite an accomplishment."

More new babies at almost-40:

Lydia Preston Hicks had her first child, William, in January 1988. Brooke Thomas Dold gave birth to her third, a girl named Whitney, in 1987. She also reports that her braces, after 2 1/2 years, finally came off! Melissa McGee Keshishian, who serves on the board of the Textile Museum in Washington, loaned her and her husband's collection of 19th century Oriental carpets to the Pannell Center Art Gallery at SBC last year. A news blast from Rosemary Dunaway Triple: she is currently involved with the National Prayer Breakfast and works with the Congressional Wives Task Force Against Drug Abuse. Elodie Taylor Thompson is the librarian at Central Elementary School in Amherst. She retired as Cub Scout Den Leader as Clay, 11, moved up to Boy Scouts but is still asst. Brownie leader with 3rd grader Meredith's troop.

After I told you all about my experience with breast cancer last year, I received letters and phone calls from some of you who almost never send in stuff for the class notes. Nan Glaser Lagow, for instance. Nan is looking for a part-time practice as an attorney, as she still has Elizabeth (5) and Caroline (2) at home. She sees Susan Sellers Ewing and Becky Randolph Boyers, and gets together frequently with Palmer Gulley (72). Alisa Yust Rowe writes me every year to tell me that I did a good job. She said that we are never too old to dream, and that a dream is a neat thing to share with a friend. Cathy Gross Hendren finished law school at Wake Forest University and is clerking for Justice Meyer on the North Carolina Supreme Court. She also has a son Matthew (4) and husband Tom, who is "living the life of a liberated husband." Another infrequent correspondent, Barbara Payne, told me nothing of life in Crozet, but commented on the moving quality of class notes as a chronicle of women's lives: the births, graduations, deaths, illnesses, trips. Our gender is the one that keeps those trivial yet all-important records.

Wendy Weiler called to fill me in on New York classmates. Wendy still works in the investment banking community, but the most important aspect of her life now seems to be daughter Caroline (2). She looks forward to going on safari in Kenya with an SBC alumnae group this winter. Kathy Brooks Rousseau works in an art gallery in New York, and former New Yorker Pinkey Walkley Heintz now trains horses for dressage near Frankfurt, Germany. Mary Lou Skinner works in Middleburg, NY as well as in Santa Fe in her field of architecture. Ellen Weintraub works in Chicago for Drexel Burnham Lambert in government bonds, and Gina Mancusi Wills has moved to Belgrade, Yugoslavia, along with Ashley, Zack, and Olivia.

Barb Smith Young called last spring. She owns a travel agency and enjoys every aspect of the work. She and Bill travel quite a bit to watch their horses race around the country. Pamolu Oldham also called me last spring, and she has a contract with Norton Publishing Company to produce a novel. She's still writing, teaching, and creating in North Carolina.

Now I get to blab on about me. After I got through a mastectomy, chemotherapy, and breast reconstruction (much more painful than the original procedure), something wonderful happened. I became pregnant! By the time you read this, I should be changing the diapers on a 4-month-old named John. My daughter Julia (10) is very excited about being the big sister, and Steven (7) is relieved that he will no longer be the youngest. After coming almost to a standstill, my life has continued, and 40 looks good. Even bad days have meaning. Those of you who wrote and called me, thank you so much for your thoughts and prayers. And as for you non-corresponding classmates, I'm not getting any more diseases just to lure you into the class notes! Pick up your pens!

Thanks for all your notes and news! Jody Anderson Wharton had 2 get-togethers this year with SBC friends. In April Lisa Walker, Margaret McFaddin, Kathleen Ryan and Jody "did the town" in New York; they then spent a quiet weekend at Pawley's Island last August! When Jody isn't busy with her part-time job as director for a business coalition lobbying on small business issues, she is with Hank (4).

In Nashville, Bet Bashinsky White stays more than busy with her construction company. She and Case enjoyed Florida and Wisconsin last summer; then Cancun in October. Gail Bradley Ledbetter enjoys life in Greenwich with her two children, ages 9 and 6. Her days are filled with teaching nursery school, gardening, and caring for a new puppy. Cece Clark Melesco, David, his 14 year old son, and her 2 children, Cameron (7) and Clark (5) and their 145-pound Newfoundland live in Rocky Mount, VA. Since Cece's parents have moved to Rehoboth Beach, they spend quite a bit of time there.

From California Carol Clement Pavia wrote that their second son Derek William was born 2 days before Christmas, 1987. Carol bikes along the beach about 20 miles a week and runs after a toddler (3 1/2). She also sees Candy Casey, '76. Sarah Clement has been with a law firm in D.C. for 4 years now, specializing in energy law. She runs, collects records, and reads. She says the novels of Dostoyevsky best reflect the nature of her life. She sees lots of alums, and misses college days and the VA countryside.

Jean Connor Churchill and her husband Paul had just returned from a trip to Colorado and New Mexico without the kids. Zachary (5) has started kindergarten at a Montessori Preschool; sister Mallory (2) longs to go to school with her brother. Jean continues her part-time social work.

Cogs's (Anne Cosswell Burris) 3 boys are busy with soccer, karate, tennis, baseball, and T-ball; Mom and Dad are juggling schedules to make all the games; and 2 yr. old Carrie is "one of the gang"—she loves GI Joe and trucks. Anne is Placement Chairman of the Junior League and is seriously thinking of opening her own business.

Cathy Cowdery Etheridge lost her Mom to cancer, but also gave birth to their 4th child, Elliott. Now Cathy is busy with home schooling. Catherine Cranston Whitham is still enjoying recruiting for Thalhimers, and recently recruited two from SBC. She volunteers at the Va. Treatment Center, works in her garden and swims laps. Whit and the children are fine.

Its the same old zoo around Beverley Crispin Heffernan's house—horses, dogs, cat, turtle, etc. She and Jim took Chris (3) and Jimmy (7) to Texas and Florida last summer. They saw several alums in Houston, then in Florida survived 3 days at Disney world. Their quad attempted a reunion in NC last year. Cynde Manning Chatham, Nancy Haight, and Robin Singleton Cloyd made it, but alas, Bev did not! In New York, Bonnie Lee Damianos-Rampone is experiencing a little "empty nest" syndrome since both her boys are in school now. She is making quilted wall hangings; her goal is to have a quilt in every room. Last summer her family rented an island in Maine with some friends. Stephanie Dewey Hoffman and her husband have just survived 8 months of building a house. They're still working together in the advertising business. Look for their chip clip products sold worldwide.

Louisa Dixon in Besancon, France, is still Assistant to the Director of the Knox College Junior Year Program. Sounds like a great job. Louise was in VA over the summer. Mary Dubuque Desloge and Chris enjoyed a trip to Disney World without the children. Then, everyone went to Michigan over the summer. They affectionately call their boys Moe, Larry, and Curly. Two are in school, and the other goes next year. Kathie Shirk Gonick is back practicing law with the family firm. Joellen Lenoir was married last spring.

Jeannette Egli Drake married Andrew Drake last year (June 13). They both work for Westinghouse - he is a senior engineer and she an emergency planner. They provide training and consulting services to the nuclear industry, mostly in the US; however Jeannette will be off to Italy in Dec. for a short assignment. Jeannette is also celebrating her 13th year in the guard service. Francine Ely Cannon and Rob have 2 boys, Alex (6) and Scotty (4). They run 3 businesses in D.C. all having to do with photography, and are preparing to expand this year to a new location. For their tenth anniversary they went to C'ville to see the old stomping grounds.

Linda Frazier Keith and Jules love CA life—a much faster pace and more fun times; party is the by-word. Jules made Commander this year. Linda is teaching math & science to 7th and 8th graders. Catherine is in the 6th grade and is a blossoming adolescent with definite ideas and opinions. Chris is in 2nd grade and into every sport he can find. Their family has enjoyed camping in Yosemite, Napa Valley, and Redwood National Parks. They all go in their camper, even the dog Cocoa and cat Smokey. Debbie Goitein Hodge and Angus expect their second child in December, to join daughter, Devon. Angus is now assistant store manager at Apex Lumber Mart in Trenton, NJ.

Patricia Goolsby and Gary live in Madison Heights and have two children, Laura (10) and Brian (6). Pat is completing her 14th year as elementary school teacher in Amherst County. In Middleburg, VA, Katylou Gray Brittle is still galloping race horses and managing Dominion Saddlery. She and Gould love their house of 4 years. She writes, "We have 4 horses, 3 dogs, and lots of fun." Lisa Hall moved back to VA and is doing internship in the Paper Conservation Lab of the National Gallery.

Ellen Harrison Saunders's son Harrison (6) is in kindergarten and loves it. Mary-Carson (3) goes to storyhour at the library once a week. Ellen and Whitney look forward to a trip to Acapulco in late Nov. Ellen is very involved with the local Historic Garden Week Tour and the Session of her church. She just went off the SBC Alumnae Board and will miss it. I know they will miss her, too! Ann Henderson Stamets and Jay have been in San Diego for 2 years, and love the Rancho Bernardo community. Jon (6) played tee ball last spring and is now involved with soccer. Ann continues her catering business and started substitute teaching this year. Jay commutes 30 miles to work each day and plans to retire to another job in 2 1/2 years. They have probably been married longer than anyone else in our class since they were married about 5 hours after graduation in the SBC Chapel.

Mary Henningsen Collins's twin girls, Caroline and Tory, arrived last October the day before they moved in to a larger house! Their older daughter, Mayde, now 3 1/2, has grown accustomed to her sisters. Mary left her job before the twins arrived and now works harder than ever. Husband Chris still works for Marsh & McLennan Insurance Brokers running their Japanese and Korean operations and traveling! Elise Jeffress Ryan stopped teaching French last June to stay home with Will (3 1/2) and Elizabeth (7 1/2). Over the past 4 years Elise has enjoyed directing French total immersion weekends and even two in German, Herr Horwege!! Bill is still practicing law.

Beth Jones Elkins and Steve are settling into life outside Philadelphia. Beth works from her home as a benefits consultant and enjoys the flexibility which gives her time with the kids, Meredith (4 1/2) and Greg (2 1/2). They recently went to W&L for Steve's class fund agent weekend and enjoyed seeing the Blue Ridge Mountains.

Jennifer Jones Embry was married to James Embry last July. She is a vice president in the real estate department of United Savings Association of Texas and James is President of Embry Engine and Equipment Co. of Houston.

Barbara Joynt King and David announce the birth of their first son, Collier, on Sept. 6th. She enjoys her neighbor, Celia Gerrard Veselka and her darling children, Hana (7) and Sam (3). From Syracuse, NY Christine Kjellstrom Douglas wrote that the latest addition to their house is Bisbee the bassethound, now nearly a year!

Puff Kline Sassone incorporated a company (June 87) that provides full service consulting for the IBM mid-range computer user. She's just hired her first employee. Her firm hires working parents who wish to work part-time, which I think is a great idea. In March, they were blessed with their second red headed, blue-eyed child, Elise. Carol Leslie St. John and Tommy enjoy their 3 boys. Tommy's new business (now 2 years old) is going great guns, and Carol's interior design business is hectic but wonderful. They look forward to some time away by themselves this winter.

Susan Lilley Strasshofer has remarried to a symphony musician, Paul. They have a new baby girl, Anna, in addition to Susan's 11 year old Patrick. Susan is teaching English at the University of Central Florida and writing free-lance. Linda Lucas Steele continues as Director of College Relations at Hollins. Her son Evan enrolled in first grade this year while Molly (15 months) keeps everyone busy. Linda says, "Our family is still involved in polo with Roger playing in tournaments in SC, PA and VA. This fall we're hosting the Roanoke Symphony Cup on our polo field in Fincastle."

Dot Lyons Heffner and Glenn enjoyed visiting last summer in Maine with Gwynne Taggart Barter and her family. Dot hopes to get a partner soon in her neurology practice so she can have more time off. Margaret McFaddin is finding out that home ownership can demand a lot of time! She moved into her first house recently (4434 Pineridge Road, Columbia, SC 29206). Margaret has managed a few trips—Chicago, Philadelphia and Jamaica—and says, "I plan to return to Jamaica in Feb. if Hurricane Gilbert hasn't destroyed my hotel!!" She's also hoping to convince her niece to visit SBC this fall so she can visit, too.

1988 added two potential SBC'ers to Shari Mendelson Gallery's family—Victoria Louise and Emily Chapin. The twins arrived 7 weeks early, so they spent a month in the hospital. The twins join their two older brothers. Shari is back now doing her consulting/marketing business. Holly Morrisett Emison expanded her company, Snelling & Snelling, as well as Snelling Temporaries. They're shooting for both offices to be number 1 by the end of 1989—looking out for the offspring, Holly says. Graham (5) started kindergarten; Anna Hading is 2. Lynn Norris Pfeiffer is using her music at last. She recently became organist and choirmaster at her church and thoroughly enjoys it. She still substitute teaches at her boys' pre-school.

In the D.C. area, Emily Mai Nguyen Woo opened her own financial consulting practice, Money Managers. She also had the honor of speaking last fall at the National Economists Club in Washington. Mai says "I am happily married to Gene Woo. We have 2 sons and a daughter. I often think most fondly of my Sweet Briar years. Campus. Professors. College friends. Great Time." Patty O'Malley Brunger cares for her 2 boys and husband. She's active at their schools, teaches Sunday School, and is on a soccer field often since Mark coaches both boys' teams. The family enjoyed a trip to Disney World last summer.

When Kathy Sue Orr Knuth wrote, she and Roger were getting ready to visit Melissa Greenwood Riemer and Jeff in London. Melissa and Jeff were also planning to join them for a weekend in the French countryside. Closer to home, Kathy Sue is on the Board of the Junior League of Chicago, and is still with her PR job at Kraft, at the moment working on a special event taking place at Epcot Center. Kathy Wilson Orton, John, and the girls spent 2 wonderful weeks in Aspen, CO last summer, and many weekends in Galveston. Betsy begins 1st grade and Ginny loves pre-school. Kathy's job as Area Chairman over several banks in Houston is still challenging. In her "spare time" she's on the Boards of the Symphony, Alley Theater, and the Houston Zoo.

On a whim, Kathy Osborne moved to Seattle in January 1988 and loves it. She works at Seafirst Bank and spends most of her spare time enjoying the beautiful outdoors. Jane Perry Burden remarried last Dec. to David Burden. They recently moved to Hilton Head, SC with Jane's 3 children. Also on the island are David's 3 children from a previous marriage. Jane wrote, "Thank goodness we live by the beach!" David is in real estate development with one other partner, and Jane teaches languages at Hiton Head Prep. Linda Poole Maggard wrote, "Keeping busy with my 2 tigers, Buck and Ben. Try to play golf once a week. My outlet from home has been my work in bringing Martha Stewart to Orange County for a Junior League fundraiser. Other than that, I'm Mrs. Mom." In Lexington, KY, Ashley Randle Averell and Skip are adjusting to parenthood and loving it. Their son, Randle Meigs Averell, was born May 11, 1988. Janet Richards Oikawa and Shio have exciting news. David Ken was born on April 26, 1988. Naomi (6) and Mari (3 1/2) are very proud of their baby brother.

In Charlottesville, Anne Ross Shipe and Jim enjoy Ross who began nursery school this fall. Jim went to Yugoslavia last May for a meeting. Anne sees a lot of the Vonetes twins who look great, and would like to hear from others. Sara Ruhle Kyle and Ted devote most of their spare hours to their ongoing landscaping project. Sara says, "Ted and I find that young Richard (3) and Peter (1) are wonderful companions and a great source of entertainment. That said, we're also glad they go to bed early!"

Jan Schnibbe Cleary wrote to say that major house construction which more than doubled their house is now complete, one year later. Jan and her family were excited about the Olympics taking place in Seoul since both their adopted children are Korean (Kevin - 4 1/2 and Allison - 17 mos.). Jan has left her teaching job, but stays active teaching Sunday School and being treasurer of Kevin's nursery school. Jamie has been principal of a local school for the last 2 years and is active in school and town activities. Betsy Scott Kimmel and Dennis moved to Berwyn, PA about 2 miles from the Devon Horse Show, so welcome any SBC friends who may attend the show. They have 2 children. The entire family enjoys skiing so is looking forward to a snowy winter. Dennis has taken a new job as Director of Client Services for Bio-Pharm Clinical Services, Inc. Buffy Shelton Montgomery and Jim celebrated their 15th wedding anniversary last August by moving to San Antonio. They wanted 13 year old Jimmy to attend Jim's old school and felt boarding was out of the question. Anne is 10. Jim formed his own law firm and consulting firm to the savings and loan and banking industries; Buffy does volunteer work.

After 10 years of motherhood Janet Sheppard Kelleher gave up the homefront in search of an ideal career. Real estate sales won out. Janet is doing very well, but finds that the stress and hours don't mix well with a family (David, 10, Sarah, 6, and Jill, 2), so she's cutting back hours and finding a balance. Ginny Shipe Cameron has moved and bought her very own house. She and Dennis separated in June. Ginny says "Scott and Andy love their new neighborhood and school. Scott started 2nd grade and Andy started kindergarten. It's tough being a single working parent, but we are really enjoying ourselves." On a lighter note, Ginny spoke with Betsey Clay Fernandez-Rizo in Madrid on a stopover from Mallorca. Betsey was redecorating her house. She teaches English now. Heather MacLeod Gale came over to visit with daughter Megan. They had a blast.

Polly Shriver Kochan and Jeff added another member to their family Sept. 1987—Andrew. They moved to Coral Gables, FL last July. Jeff has a staff position in neuroradiology at Jackson Memorial Hospital/University of Miami. Polly has been a "Mom" since July when she finished her pediatric radiology fellowship at Children's Hospital of Philadelphia. From Pittsburgh, PA Ann South Malick wrote to say that her family has moved to the "country" to have more room for horses and Angora rabbits. Since Mark was raising money for the U.S. Olympic team they were able to attend the Winter Olympics in Calgary. Ann is still riding horses and showing locally, and raising Angoras and spinning their wool.

Connie Radford Butler ('76) visited with Terry Starke Tosh last summer without her children. They got together with Sarah Dowd and spent a lovely weekend at SBC at the new Inn. Terry wrote "we were happily reliving our youth when a lady in the Dean's Office called us ma'm." When Louisa Dixon was in the states Terry visited her, and plans to see her in France in the spring. Barbie Tafel Thomas's children are in school. Grant is in 4th grade, Clay in 2nd, and daughter Lee in 1st. Barbie has gone back to work at the Racquet Club. Between carpools she squeezes in tennis, gardening, and volunteer activities. Joe is still in the printing business and enjoys teaching the children to ski (water and snow), camp and fish.

Last summer Gray Thomas Avery separated and moved into a smaller house with Catherine (4) and Thomas (1). She's working at St. Mary's in the Recovery Room. She is getting out of volunteer activities, says she's much happier now, but tired all the time. Dorsey Tillet Northrup had her third child, Margaret Dorsey ("Massie") in Dec. 1987. Last Aug. the family moved to Parkersburg, W.VA. Rose Anne Toppin Cranz still plays lots of tennis. Her team advanced to the nationals which were played in October in Tuscon, Arizona. Foster is 5 now and goes to kindergarten all day. Buzz is doing fine. They enjoyed a month's vacation in Santa Fe last summer.

Congratulations are in order for Lisa Walker. When she wrote she had just become engaged to George McCallum who currently lives in Brussels, Belgium Does that mean we lose you to Belgium, Lisa? Keep us posted. Beppy Walton is still with Delta Air Lines in Birmingham. The day she wrote she was leaving for London; was also going to Paris, and maybe Bermuda and Ireland. Not a bad life, Beppy!

Bonnie Walton Mayberry, Jerry and Megan enjoyed a trip to Disney World and Epcot last summer. Bonnie is still teaching 1st grade at Elon and even has some little "Sweet Briar" kids in her class. She's become an avid walker and has lost 15 pounds. From New Orleans Carroll Waters

Summerour wrote to say that her day camp did very well last summer—275 kids. She's involved with lots of volunteer work—Board of Junior League, Board of Trinity School (where her boys attend), and fundraiser for the American Cancer Society. Toby is involved with the United Way, coaching soccer, and his work at Arthur Andersen.

This year has been dominated by children's schedules for Ann Wesley Ramsey. However, she did manage a ski weekend at Wintergreen with Beth Montgomery and Gray Thomas Avery and a vacation with Cogs and her family at Bald Head Island. They spent the remainder of the summer at Manchester-by-the-sea, MA where the children swam on the swim team. Ann was also lucky to take a 2 week trip to Israel and Egypt where she enjoyed a climb to the top of Mt. Sinai. Mandy Weber Clark's legal career is on hold while she raises her 2-year-old daughter, Whitney. They recently had a great time vacationing in Cornwall, England where Mandy's mother lives.

Libby Whitley changed jobs and now is chief-of-staff to the Administrator of the Agricultural Marketing Service at USDA. She still has lots of dogs, a horse, and recently, raised an orphaned squirrel. She sees Catherine Whitham, Randy Anderson Trainor, Sandra Vonetes, Beth Montgomery, and lots of other SBC'ers. She's hoping to see everyone at our 15th!

Worden Willis is now living in Rhode Island in a Victorian house right on Narragansett Bay with her 2 sheep dogs, Bert and Ernie. She recently became a vice president at Rhode Island Hospital Trust Bank, and is a commercial lender; she is also treasurer of the Junior League's Annual Antiques Show. Wendy Wise Routh and Carlos had a baby girl, Lexie, Oct. 87 and expect their second in May. They also acquired a yellow lab to keep Lexie company. Wendy is still in New York, in interior decorating so joins Carlos in Southampton on weekends.

The class sends its love and sympathy to Betsy Brooks Jones whose brother Paul died in August after a short illness. Bill and I have had a good first year of marriage. Bill takes the CPA exam early in Nov. We've planned a much needed getaway to FL later in Nov. I've changed jobs at Sovran. I am now in Personnel as a recruiter/interviewer. I enjoy it but find it very fast-paced, and stressful at times. I'm co-chairman of the training committee for the Jr. League and am also on the League's Board. Again, thanks for all of your wonderful news. Don't forget that we have our 15th coming up in 1990!

It's hard to believe that 10 years have passed, but they have; leaving us older, wiser, fatter and thinner! Please try your best to make it to our 10th. Read these notes carefully and then please send me updated info in the spring!! For a change, in alphabetical order: Piper Allan had a mini reunion with Teresa Marshall Tingley (who is in Palm Harbor, FL working as an underwriting supervisor for Ohio Casualty Insurance) and Pam Ramsdell Mitchell accompanied by husbands and children in FL. Piper is a lawyer in Orlando and a 1st year Active in the Junior League. Susan Andrews Cruess is a 2nd V.P. and Team Leader in the Metropolitan Lending Group at Northern Trust Company. Susan expects a second child in February. Susan Anthony Lineberry, mother of boys, is the Promotions Director for the Newport News Parks and Recreation Dept. and was recently commissioned by the City to do a drawing which was presented to Pearl Bailey at the dedication of a library named for her. (How does she have time to do that?)

Janet Baldwin McColloch practices law on her own in Texas and expects her 2nd child in the spring. Beth Bogdan Tetrault is still working for the Henrico Area, VA, Mental Health and Rehabilitation Service. Laurie Bowen Carmichael writes from Alabama that she expects her 2nd child in March and is designing and building a new house so will most likely miss our reunion. Page Breakell Beeler has her hands full with her twins (one of each) and her 3 1/2 yr. old. Holly Butler Prather is the proud new mother of a baby girl and certainly prefers taking care of the baby to taking care of her boss! Betsy Byrne Utterback found time this fall to leave her new house and 3 children and vacation in Paris where she hadn't been since Jr. Year Abroad.

There seems to be a rush of new house building and buying. Sally Byron LaBarre is now in a new house in Maryland along with a new baby Mary Cowell is the Product Development Manager for the mail order catalogue of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts. Saralee Cowles was quickly initiated into her new job with the Treasury Department in Washington as the person in charge of travel and special events. She accompanied Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady to W. Germany in the Fall. Hannah Craighill Morehead is part-time in real estate and spends the rest of her time with her 18 month old daughter. Caroline Curme Angelica is in a new house in NJ and commutes to NYC to her job with the Bank of New York. (Get used to this new house business - there's lots more!) Sandie Erlebach Gershenfeld has started a small gift business out of her house so she can stay home with her 2 boys. Leslie "Pete" Forbert Miller is warming up her video camera to capture us in all our splendor at our 10th.

Gay Goracci Slimak has completed her residency in Internal Medicine and has settled into a fellowship in Gastroenterology at an NIH-Georgetown combined program. She reports that both Ginger Pierson and Carol Robinson are fine and Carol is back in school in the M.Ed. program in counseling at Wake Forest University. Internal Medicine seems to be the field of choice of our doctors. Vivian Hamlett McEntire is starting her own practice of internal medicine in July 1989 in Montgomery, AL. Corby Hancock has left Charlottesville and is now head of the Science Department at the Boys' Latin School in Baltimore. Corby sent news that Jeanne De Gaetano is in Salisbury, MD working for Purdue Chicken and that Janell Conrad Corvin is in Richmond expecting her 2nd child. Cathy Harold is a book editor in Philadelphia and is making some additional money designing, making and selling jewelry. Cheri Harris Lofland has moved to the Chicago area and is Manager, Customer Communications with the Nutra-sweet Company.

Karen Hines Cousins was married in September and after a Hawaiian honeymoon is living in Enfield, NC. Lisa Hite, while at home with her 2nd child, is implementing a therapeutic horseback riding program for the physically and mentally disabled. Margaret Hixon Griffith is back in Houston after a year in Aspen awaiting the birth of her 2nd (potential!) redhead. Jane Hubbard Sams had a taste of the good old days at her husband's W&L reunion and had a mini SBC reunion in the Fall with Nancy Hatch and Chic Grones. Marianne Hutton Felch has a full schedule as a mother, vestry member at her church and as the Activities Chairperson for the Chatham Township Newcomers Club. She is also local Chairman of UNICEF. Clara Jackman Garbett is still teaching first grade in King William, VA and enjoying her daughter in her free time! Karen Jaffa McGoldrick is in Atlanta training and teaching Dressage full time and showing her horse 4th level. She writes that Pru Saunders Pitcock is a new mother and probably figuring a way to get back on her horse as soon as possible!

Aimee Kass is in Waldwick, NJ fresh from a National Freethought Convention. (I could use that kind of convention!) Connor Kelly had lots of "news" - new condo, new job as Head Expressive Therapist at the Hebrew Rehabilitative Center for the Aged. Jenny Kelsey Breining will be toting a brand new tot at our 10th but fully expects to attend wearing tent dresses. Susan Laramore Hill is in Houston studying Romance Languages, volunteering with Meals on Wheels and as a tutor at a teen runaway shelter. Cindy Lee Sinchak is in Schenectady, NY with two daughters, a third child born in August and an E.R. physician husband. Julia Lenardi won't be at our 10th because she'll be a bride in Lake Tahoe! She's a sales representative for a software packing company in San Francisco. Washington, DC brings news of Helen Lewis who is the district supervisor in an East Coast retail chain. She bought an apartment in Georgetown and takes art classes. Susan Lord is in Fredricksburg, VA as a systems analyst for EG&E WASC (screams computer!). Her group writes frequency coordination software for the Navy. Lots of traveling but time to be a bridesmaid in Tricia Paterson Graham's wedding.

One of our few overseas classmates, Kim Louis Stewart, is in London where her husband is in the cable TV business and Kim is developing an idea for a film which will be shot in East Africa. Jeannette Rowe Cadwallender was featured in an article in The Washington Post on Americans in Australia. "Jeannette," the article stated, "came here for love - to marry her Australian husband...Now she relishes the rural life, its slower pace and lack of social climbing...Her third baby was born this summer."

Kelly McBride Hudson owns an interior design firm in San Francisco. Robbie McBride Bingham was married in September and is in Los Angeles working for Shearson Lehman Hutton. Elizabeth McMartin, Blyth Steere and Louise Wright McHaffie were in Pittsburgh for Robbie's wedding. Lauren MacMannis Huyett had her 3rd child in June and lives in Bethesda where she and Laura Tucker Camp share a cleaning woman! Sherri Manson is in Philadelphia applying to grad schools in Marketing. Alison Mitchell met her future husband at Carol Zimmerman Gutzwiller's wedding. Alison is marrying Carol's husband's brother! Alison is a pediatric oncology nurse in Atlanta.

Tricia Paterson Graham "adores" married life and tries to keep her figure by taking ballet and tap and jazz lessons. She is a clinic administrator for the Mobile County Public Health Department. Holly Perkins-Meyers will take some time off from her law practice and will probably be maternity bound at our 10th. Irene Rothschild Dorfzaun writes from Quito, Ecuador and represents various firms from Europe and the States.

Phyllis Shelton Higginbotham writes that getting to our 10th may be a little more difficult than our 5th - she'll have a 2-year-old and a 3-year-old along for the festivities! Phyllis is renovating her house and is working two days a week at her old law firm. Sarah Skaggs performed her choreography at Lincoln Center in the "Serious Fun" festival last summer. She taught at Sweet Briar during Winter Term, performed in Europe in March and will be collaborating with Mary Gearhart '78 on a Spring Concert in New York. Amy Smith is back to full-time reporting at WSET-TV in Lynchburg and is the host of a half hour Public Affairs program.

I ran into Mary South Gaab at the local jungle park last spring with all our kids in tow. She was visiting from Iowa and now lives in Ohio. She juggles ice hockey, ballet and room-mothering. I can't say this any better than Sara Pope Titchener: "3 children, 1 husband, 1 new job-politics!" Melinda Treutle says that since moving out of NYC to NJ her social life has picked up. She is a Vice-President with Mid Atlantic Bank in their Trusts and Investments area. Becky Trulove Symons writes a glowing report of new motherhood and a new house in NC where she moved in December '87.

Pam Weiler traveled with the SBC Alumnae group on an African safari in February, taking time off from her job in sales for a specialty German chemical company. Nancy White Bryant says business is booming with her Fine Arts consulting firm and she is also involved with a magazine for people who fly their own planes. Judy Williams Carpenter and her husband took their first vacation in 3 1/2 years in October. Her son, known as "The White Tornado" is expecting a calmer sibling in April. Vicki Wingate handles capital budgeting for the SC Department of Mental Retardation. She is in a Christian fitness program aptly named "Body and Soul" aerobics. Wendy Werthen writes from Atlanta that she is in a new job with Johnstown Management Company in commercial leasing real estate. Bridget Wray Gardner took a vacation in Lake Tahoe with her husband last August, returning to spend Labor Day with her twin daughters.

I am closing in on my first year of both-kids-in-school-so-go-back-to-work. I am the Board/Staff Liaison at our local Art Museum. After 6 years of not working it sure is a nice change!

Now, fellow classmates. Our 10th is a biggie - please do your very best to attend. Some of us are choosing to bring no additional baggage (except the kind we can't get off!), but for those who do - know that there are tons of babysitters and that you'll have a date for every party!! See you in May!!!

She sees Elizabeth Sprague O'Meara occasionally. Suzanne Balog works as a contract administrator for Inter-systems Corp. Barbara Pratt and Michael Zerega were married in the chapel at Duquesne University, Pittsburgh, PA—Michael's alma mater. Barbara is a financial advisor with RTD Financial Advisors, Inc. They live in Philadelphia harbor in their yacht called "The Honeymoon." Terri Ruth married George Holz in August. They live in a 100-yr.-old Victorian house in Atlantic Highlands, NJ. Tish Littleton married Alfred J.T. Byrne last December. He attended Washington & Lee University and Law School and is a managing partner in a London law firm. Barb Paulson married Steve Goodbarn in Kansas City, KS in August. Bridget O'Reilly Holmes and Melissa Byrne were bridesmaids. They spoke to Carey Cathcart's parents who say Carey is teaching school in London. Amy Painter Hur married Russell M. Hur of Houston, TX in May, 1987.

Laura Mixon deRodriguez Miranda is 'happily married and living in Caracas'! She is in the corporate banking division of a local banking group. Wendy Chapin Albert is trying to come back to earth from a super trip to Hawaii with husband Tolly. She totally recommends American Hawaii Cruise Lines. She is working as a realtor and looking for a house. Suzy Ireland Dupree and husband Ric are still in Lexington, KY. Ric is a broker with Merrill Lynch and Suzy is a paralegal. Katherine Robinson Davey is busy with daughter Laura Katherine and her job as an art consultant. She and husband Drew will move to Rochester, NY where Drew will complete a 3-year fellowship in Neonatology. Alice Cutting Lambier is planning a trip to Australia with husband Rick. She works as a travel agent and is getting into the horse breeding business. She has two horses and a dog—says her children are of the 4-legged variety! Kathy Barrett is back in Richmond and loves it! She is manager of a retail clothing store called Irresistibles. She also does some modeling. She sees Katrina Evans ('87) a lot because Katrina manages the Georgetown Park Irresistibles store. Bobbie Serrano Black also lives in Richmond with husband Paul. She is a paralegal, Paul is a lawyer. She sees Nancy Cunningham Mauck and Patee White quite often. Patty Sheehy has been busy showing horses. She has a new PR job planning parties and big events—right up her alley! Leslie Malone Berger and husband Kevin live in Wilmington, DE. Kevin works for ICI Industries. They bought a house and enjoyed their swimming pool during the sweltering Delaware summer heat! Wylie Jameson teaches English to 11th-and 12th-graders in Rochester, NY. She goes to graduate school part-time for her master's in English. Barbara Miraldi works at Funk & Wagnalls as a copy editor in Ramsey, NJ. Jennifer Ditter is in search of a new career after several years in the airline industry. Kit Gibson is busy in her new position at Chemical Bank running the Customer Service Center for high net worth individuals. Ann Goldman works in sales for a Dallas chemical company. She hopes to make it to NYC for the Commonwealth Ball! Karen Kerlin is a Sr. Programmer with Specialty Hospital Group in Washington. She is in her last year of graduate work for master's in computer systems. She and Gigi Harsh were "baseball buddies" this summer, hitting the Orioles games. Gigi is assistant manager for a handcrafts store in Georgetown called Appalachian Spring. Ellen McKneally lives and works in Raleigh, NC, at Management Systems Associates, a hospital software firm. She saw Diane Dawley in September at Jordan Lake in NC. Sarah Sutton Brophy and husband Michael bought a house in Carlisle, MA. She works for the Concord Museum and Michael is a silversmith. She sees Sarah Babcock often. Sandy Ahern Simmons is a loan officer with First National Bank in Atlanta. Her husband Michael has been accepted into Officer Candidate School; they will move to Quantico, VA. Katie Grosvenor enjoys life in Aspen, CO, working at a theatre restaurant and working on her gemologist certificate for diamonds and colored stones through a home study course. Melodie Goodwin moved to Rochester, NH where she teaches 7th grade at Dover Junior High School. Catherine Campbell Harris teaches in Amherst County. Tracy Gatewood is in Birmingham, AL, working for Alabama Magazine in advertising. She sees Ellen Howard a lot as Ellen goes to law school there. Phyllis Feddeler Fejzuli has lived in Europe for the last year in London, France, Yugoslavia and Russia. She married Alen Fejzuli in April. She is currently in her last semester of MBA school at the U. of South Florida. She would like to get in touch with Beth Fallon, Bridget Ferguson and Susan Foster. Cate McNider calls me once every three months to fill me in on her activities. We've been playing phone tag so I don't have any news now, but she is in NYC, working hard at her acting career! My job at Lotus Development Corp. keeps me very busy, but I manage to find time to take a course at NYU and get out every now and then!! Thank you all for your responses—I love keeping up with all of the "scoop"!

I had the pleasure of spending a weekend in Atlanta last spring to see Anne Mobley marry Peter Blair Murray on May 7th. Many SBC friends attended; included in the wedding were Cameron Carter Clark, as maid of honor, and Carole Thrash. Anne and Blair live in Athens; Blair attends the University of Georgia. Carole Thrash works for an Atlanta bank. Ansley Merritt is working for a law firm after attending paralegal school and waiting to hear from law schools. She sees a lot of Melinda Bradley who also works for an attorney.

Ellen Tozzer Smith and Powell live in Athens, as Ellen finishes up at UGA getting her BA in psychology. Powell works as a computer consultant and sales manager. She sees many SB grads including...Kathy Fons Barkley, Verda Andrews, Whitney Bolt '88 and Paige Shiller '88.

Kristen Kreassig Carter was married last May to 2nd Lt. David S. Carter (VMI). Terry Lawrence, Andi Williams '89, Tiffini Mirratel '89 and Brenda Kivan '89 were bridesmaids. They are stationed at Fort Riley, KS where Dave is an Army Officer and Kristen teaches preschool. Last year she attended Old Dominion University for graduate school and plans to finish her MS in Education at Kansas State University this spring. Dawn Wronski Martinez and husband Marc (W&L '84) expect their third child. Marc, in the Marine Corps, has been stationed in Kansas City, MO since April 1985.

Eileen Taylor married Carl Nathan Rodgers 7/23/88 at waterside in Norfolk, aboard the Navy Spirit. They "set sail" for a cruise for the reception. 2nd Lt. Kelly Reed attended the wedding and served as hostess at the reception. Kelly, after graduating from an officer's training course in Fort Eustis, VA returned to Lawndale, CA in August. She now attends USC, completing the Management Effectiveness Program, while working at the Hilton. Also married last April, was Kathy Bryan Sanders, to John Sanders

(W&L '86); they now live in Bayreuth, West Germany, where John is stationed with the Army. Kathy works at an elementary school. She and John enjoy life in Europe and have done some traveling. She hopes anyone who is close by will come to visit them

Many of our friends have settled in Texas...Linda Rowland Blount married Stephen Howard Blount 5/30/87. They moved to San Antonio where Stephen is going to law school. Linda had a beautiful baby boy, Robert Rowland Blount, 6/26/88. He's the joy of their lives. She sees a great deal of Alicia Parker, Victoria Chumney, and Shannon Wood and says they are crazy as ever. I had a great time visiting with Victoria Chumney when she was in Washington in November; she still lives in San Antonio, working for Savin as a sales accountant to the Federal Government. Shannon Wood moved back to San Antonio after a winter in Aspen, CO. She is office manager for a photography studio. She plans a trip to Africa in January for a month as a volunteer for an Earthwatch program in Kenya. Dana Driver produces the 10 o'clock News for the CBS affiliate in Sherman, TX.

Mary Hunter, who has been in Alexandria, will spend the next 2 years in the Peace Corps, teaching science in Lastu, Africa. Christina Knowles and Melanie Nelson gave Mary a big farewell party in October. Betsy Cunningham came up from Richmond where she is enjoying life. I also saw Ginger Pascoe, who is still living with Stacey Lee, and working for Merrill Lynch. Leslie Ross came down from Boston where she works for a catering firm. Leslie often sees Ellie Schnabel, who works in fundraising & development at Tufts University School of Dentistry. Ellie takes classes and volunteers for several Boston non-profit organizations. She ran into Beth Bennett '88 and Katie Kenough '88 over The Head of the Charles weekend, had a mini reunion.

Teresa Pike married James Devant Majors 9/17/88 in Atlanta. Many SBC graduates and friends attended; included in the wedding were Rebecca Michie, Christina Knowles, Courtney Banton and Patricia Winkler '88. Teresa is in her 2nd year at Emory Law School, while Jim finishes up his final year at Emory Medical School. He will specialize in surgery with a program in the Atlanta area. Courtney Banton is working in Atlanta in the marketing department of a bank.

Sara Mason lives in Chapel Hill, works in real estate. She is planning an August wedding to Douglas Gooding, who is at Duke Law School. Alan Evins Williams was married 10/1/88 to Miller Williams and has started a job as a media assistant at a Birmingham, AL advertising agency. Jean (Sam) Lewis Guergai was married in June to Mustapha Guergai. They now reside in Falls Church, VA. After the wedding Sam returned to Spain for a month and a half, then joined her husband in Casablanca, Morocco, where she met her new in-laws. She hopes to continue her education so she can eventually teach Spanish. Gloria Cole Bauer works with Edward D. Jones & Co., Member New York Stock Exchange, Inc., in South Boston, VA. She and husband Andy are having fun restoring a c. 1890s farmhouse. Caroline Lewis Taraschi, in NJ, is busy pursuing a degree in landscape architecture and will start her own gardening business this spring.

Carol Tuttle and husband Greg moved back from the Outer Banks of NC to Amherst. They are restoring an old home on Main Street. Carol works part-time at the Amherst Accounting Service. Beth Powie Parker is at Southern Seminary as assistant director of admissions. She hopes to go to graduate school soon. Janet Page works at the Charlottesville, VA, Blue Ridge Hospital—occupational therapy in the psychiatry department. Cameron Clark married Charles Sipe (UVA '87) 8/27/88. Many SBC friends attended; her attendants included Caroline Trask, as maid of honor, Carol Goodman, Anne Mobley Murray, Corrine Cunningham ('86) and Hedley Sipe ('81). It was fun seeing so many friends including Suzanne Wells, who now lives in Charlottesville. Cameron and Charles live in Alexandria, Charles is in his 2nd year at George Mason Law School and Cameron works in DC at Sherson Lehman Hutton. Cameron enjoys married life very much.

Blair Beebe was married 10/22 to Harvard B. Smith (H-SC '87) in Winnetka, IL. Caroline Trask, Liz Wilson, Elizabeth Rudlett ('86), and Selby Phillips Smith ('84) were bridesmaids. Blair and Harvard bought a house in VA Beach, where Blair works for Sovran. Julie Trant and Mary Via attended the wedding. Mary Via writes that she had an incredible 8-month trip to the South Pacific, Australia and Southeast Asia. She is interviewing and hopes to find a job in NYC.

Many other SBC alumnae have ventured to the Big Apple. Heard from Tami Trebus who works in advertising as an assistant account executive at Korey, Kay and Partners. She is having a great time living with Dana Ostrowsky. Ann Moorberg is an account executive for a public relations firm. One of her major accounts is Louis Vuitton. She will be in Heather Brown's ('86) wedding in 5/89. Beth Nelson is also living in the Big Apple. At NYU, Pam Miscal is completing her master's in psychology. She has seen Drew Hardy often and has spoken to Lee Carroll as well. Lee received her degree from SBC in May after taking a year off. She spent the summer on the beach relaxing, and has now started the daily routine of work, for a PR firm which works for private colleges in Devon, PA. Drew works in Washington as the assistant director of administration at the Atlantic Council, a foreign policy "think-tank".

Many others are in the Washington, DC area...Ellen Smith is finishing her 2nd year of law school at Georgetown U. She is living in Georgetown with Priscilla Newton and Renata Leckszas ('85). Having seen Cecy Gunn several times this year, she seems to be enjoying life in DC. Working for Congressman Robert Dornair's office on the Hill is Maggie Fogarty. She spent several weeks in CA last Fall campaigning for Bush/Quayle. Not only is she an avid campaigner, but also a world traveler, spending June in Medjugore, Yugoslavia. Also on the Hill is Julie Geddes, working for the Republican National Committee as an assistant to Maureen Reagan. She spent August in New Orleans working for the Republican convention. Julie lives in Alexandria with Whitney Ball ('84). She frequently sees Tory Willson who works at the White House and lives in Alexandria. Tory does a great deal of volunteer work and riding; she is waiting to hear from law schools. She sees Stephanie Dee Hardin, who also works at the White House. Heather Davenport is in Alexandria working in sales for the Morrison House Hotel. She loves her work and is waiting to hear from graduate school. Caroline Trask and Carol Goodman live off Dupont Circle in DC. Caroline works for the Smithsonian - special events for the National Gallery of Art. Carol works in the financial division of Clark Enterprises, Inc., a holding company for real estate developers in Bethesda, MD.

Liz McKnight teaches kindergarten in Alexandria at a private school. Working for Britches of Georgetown in management is Paige Taylor, she says it's a great deal of work, but really loves it! She sees Ginger Pascoe, Leslie Cantrell and Christina Savage ('88) when she isn't working. Paige had a great time in the Bahamas last fall. Leslie works for an accounting firm in DC. Julie Dorsett is also in the DC area working for the Chambersburg Area School District as the Assistant Business Manager. She went to Commencement last May, enjoyed seeing all the familiar faces Betsy Baker works in Bethesda for the Navy, in medical research. She is living with Lynn Mathias ('86).

I spent Thanksgiving in Miami where Erin Sapp married Daniel Beldy. Liz Wilson, a bridesmaid, Suzanne Perratt, who lives in NYC, Sharon Staley, who is back in Nashville, were also at the wedding. It was great fun to see them and to spend Thanksgiving in the sun. Mary Yorke Robison married David Dates in Charlotte, NC last fall. Many friends attended the wonderful wedding; included in the wedding were Lloys Frates ('88), Monica Mahoney ('89) and Harriet McNair ('86). Mary Yorke and David teach at Charlotte Latin.

Missy Ackerman is getting her master's in exercise and sports studies at Smith College in MA. She also coaches JV Field Hockey and Lacrosse, and assists the intramural programs. Also in the Boston area is Page Franson, working for MEDITECH as a programmer. Page continues her enthusiasm for sports, plays soccer and softball as much as she can. Her softball team last summer took first place! Erin Kelley teaches Spanish in Ashburnham, MA, and is the assistant volleyball coach.

Laurie Woolverton is at the U. of Illinois at Chicago studying architecture. Vikki Schroeder works for Target Stores in their central purchasing department and does some professional technical theatre work around the Twin Cities. In her second year of veterinary school is Anne-Marie Farrell who is living in Columbia, MO. After a trip backpacking around Europe, Georgianna (Girl) Conger is working in an antique store in Aiken, GA. She is still painting, riding and showing her horses. She teaches art, both privately and at the art center in town. Laurie Starrett continues to ride, while looking for more permanent work. She is now a BeautiControl consultant in Dover, DE. Last summer she saw Stacey Lee and Erin Hintz in Dewey Beach.

Junie Speight is finishing her master's in English literature at VCU, hopes to find a job in Richmond in public relations. She works at the American Cancer Society in the Road to Recovery Program. Rebecca Michie moved to Richmond and lived with Junie last winter.

Susan Scales is on the West Coast in SF, living with Anne Souder ('86) and working for an insurance agency. She misses the East Coast, but doesn't think she'll move back any time soon. She sees Stephanie Wilt ('88) who moved to the San Francisco area. She also sees Margaret Colangelo who works for the Cathedral School for Boys as a teacher's assistant. Molly Ziebold left SF and now lives in Washington, DC after spending a month at Rehobeth Beach. Vicki MacMillan is in Santa Cruz, CA, attending San Jose State to get her teaching credentials. Last summer, she played and went to the Grateful Dead Shows; she saw Kim Bleacher in DC in September.

I am having a wonderful time in Alexandria working as an account representative for Clinton Computer. Last fall, I spent a fun-filled weekend in NC with Susan Scales, Dede Connors, Amy Watkins, Rebecca Michie, Junie Speight, and Maggie Fogarty. We should all get together again soon! Thanks to all of you for the terrific letters, and have a wonderful year!

In The Sweet Briar Tradition

Katherine Macdonald, Professor Emeritus, retired from the Physical Education Department at Sweet Briar in 1983. She lives on campus and remains active in the community. In the photo at right, Kay is busy helping Chaplain Susan Lehman and her husband John Dalzell renovate their home in Warm Springs, Virginia.

KEEPING UP WITH KAY

What's the difference between deciding to do something and doing it? For people like Kay Macdonald there is none. She is a doer in the most energetic and positive sense of the word. Though technically retired from teaching, she is still at it — this time teaching poetry to gifted elementary students. "It's just a little thing," says Kay, "but I have an awfully good time."

Kay's other "little things" add up to full weeks. She is the secretary of the local humane society and involved in their annual fund raising efforts, secretary of the Friends of the Amherst County Library, and a volunteer for SWEEP.

"SWEEP is something I just wandered into. There is a big trailer in the parking lot on Elijah Road and Sweet Briar students are organizing and collecting trash — paper, bottles, and aluminum — for recycling. They're doing a great job of it, too. It is, I hope, the wave of the future for everyone."

Always eager to act in support of a good cause, Kay recently rolled over her Interest Retirement Account, giving a portion of it as an outright gift to the College and investing the remainder in a single life gift annuity.

"I decided I wanted to do something for the College and I had to do something about my IRA eventually, so I marched down to the development office and put them to work on the project. As things turned out, I got a considerable tax deduction for my gift and I'll continue to get some income from my gift annuity.

"I'm glad I got it out of the way. I'd rather be writing poetry than worrying about capital gains taxes!"

Single life gift annuities provide income for the donor and valuable support for Sweet Briar's permanent endowment. For more information, please contact William H. Meadows, III, Vice President for College Relations, Box G, Sweet Briar College, Sweet Briar, Virginia, 24595 (804/381-6161). ♦

When in London...

To: Sweet Briar Alumnae
From: Ann Reams, Director,
Alumnae Association

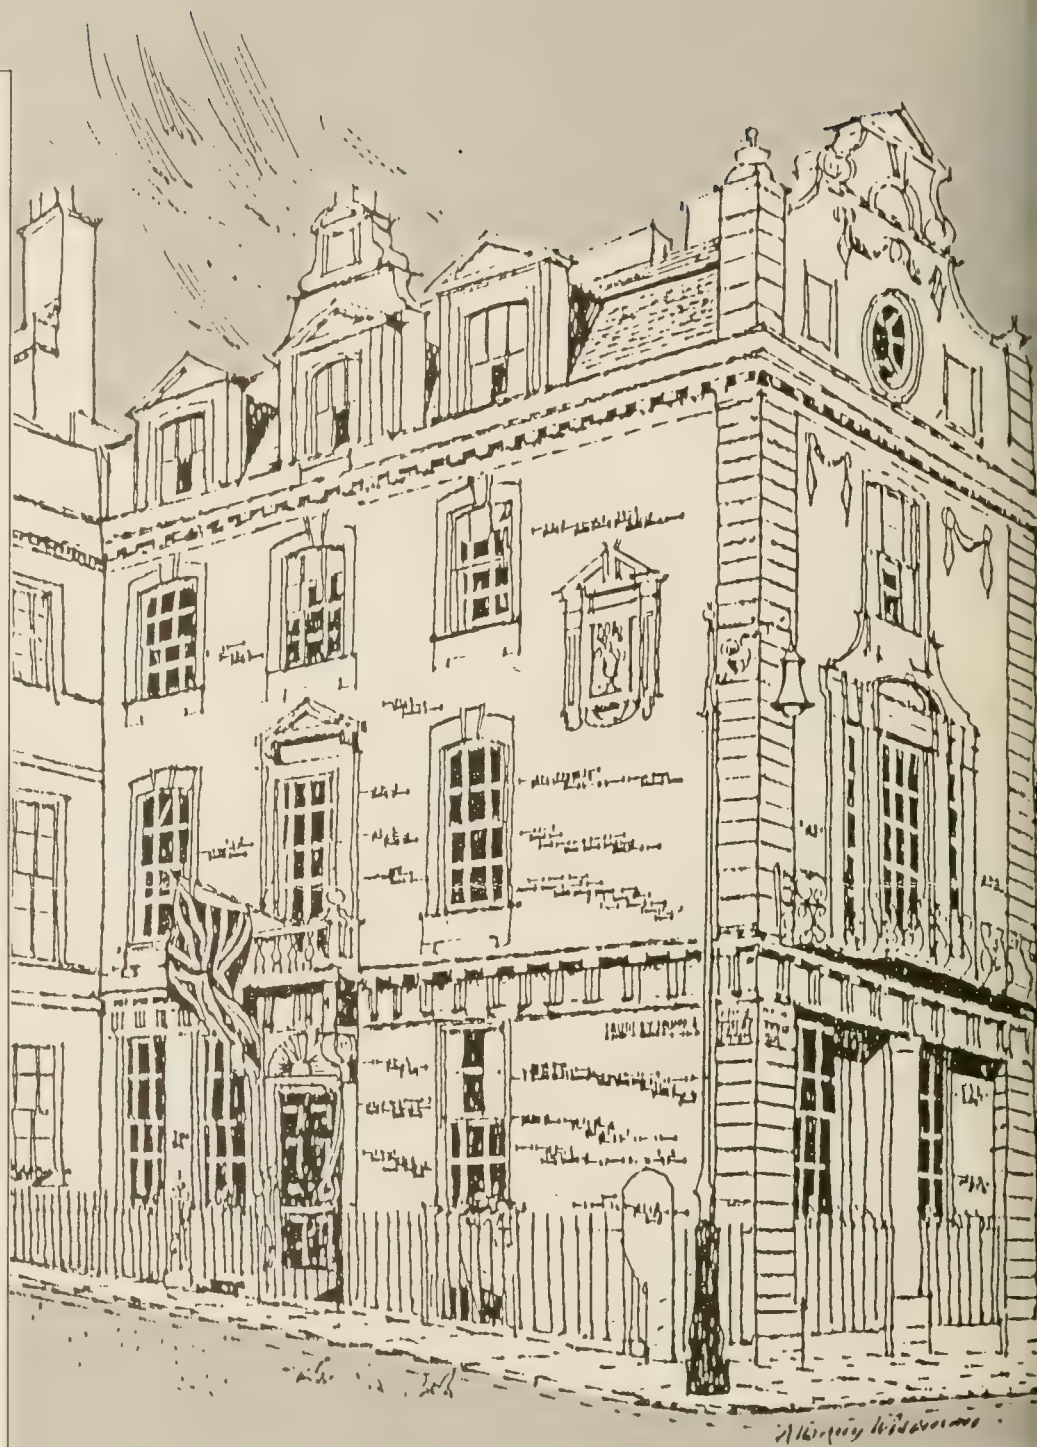

We are pleased to announce that the Sweet Briar Alumnae Association has been able to establish an affiliation arrangement between the Florence Elston Inn and the University Women's Club in London, England.

We will encourage their members to stay at our Inn when visiting this part of Virginia and in exchange they will welcome our alumnae, faculty and staff to stay in their facilities when in London. Family and friends of Sweet Briar guests would also be welcome. The facility is a rather elegant house with 24 bedrooms, both single and twin, a beautiful dining room, drawing room and library, and is located in the West End near shopping, theaters and galleries.

Julia Mills Jacobsen '45 and husband Jake enjoyed a stay at the Club last October. She writes: Somehow, the Club's address sounded familiar. Ah, yes—the London home of Dorothy L. Sayers' "Lord Peter Wimsey." The house, acquired from the family of Lord Arthur Russell in 1921, is on the historic registry and the dining room, library and parlors have been maintained with integrity. When we arrived we weren't sure whether we were in Lord Peter's home or on a BBC set for an Agatha Christie film ("At Bertram's Hotel"). It was both! The Club is in Mayfair, a block from Hyde Park and convenient to everything. You will enjoy this delightful, friendly place when you visit London.

We hope that this arrangement will prove a pleasure and a convenience for many of you. Requests for reservations should be directed to:

BEAUTY with a Letter/ JUROJIN with a Deer

Utagawa Kuniyoshi (1798-1861) Beauty with a Letter/Jurojin with a Deer from the series Seven Women/Seven Lucky Gods, 1848
 Woodcut, 14 5/8 x 10 1/8"
 Gift of Mr. and Mrs. Victor W. Henningsen, Jr.
 (Mayde Ludington '48)

Beauty with a Letter/ Jurojin with a Deer was one of the woodblock prints from the Sweet Briar Collection on display in the Pannell Art Center during the February-April Festival of Japan.

This color woodblock print was designed by Utagawa Kuniyoshi, a pupil of Toyokuni. Kuniyoshi studied traditional Japanese painting of the Tosa school, Chinese ink painting, and the naturalistic styles of the Maruyama school as well as Western prints. The artist is best known for his depictions of battle scenes, heroic warriors and ghosts.

The subject of this print, Beauty with a Letter/Jurojin with a Deer, is full of symbolic meaning. In the foreground, a beautiful woman is holding a scroll symbolic of wisdom. Behind her the wall hanging bears a representation of Jurojin, one of the seven gods of good luck who is identified by his scholarly robes and age. Jurojin is seated with a deer, the symbol of longevity and one of Jurojin's attributes. The deer motif is repeated in the pattern of the woman's kimono. The fact that Kuniyoshi's father was a textile dealer in Kyoto may account for the artist's careful attention to the decorative details of the woman's clothing. Kuniyoshi's penchant for cats is demonstrated in this print by the inclusion of the playful tri-colored cat, or mike-neko, which is regarded as a symbol of good luck. ♦

Contemporary Culture in Japan: The Ewald Scholars Symposium

BY CHRISTOPHER L. C.
EWART WITCOMBE
Assistant Professor of Art History
Sweet Briar College

Sweet Briar's ninth annual Ewald Scholars Symposium, held on April 12, was the culminating event of a two-month-long Festival of Japan. The Festival, which began on February 14 with the opening of an exhibition of Japanese woodblock prints from the Sweet Briar Collection and of kasuri weaving by the Japanese ikat weaver Kumiko Namba, continued through the first week in April with a series of interdisciplinary and cultural events that included an Akira Kurosawa film festival, the showing of a series of documentary films on Japan, a demonstration of raku pottery firing, and a display of the martial art of karate.

The Ewald Scholars Symposium topic was "Contemporary Culture in Japan," to address which four outstanding scholars and experts were invited to campus. Keynote speaker was Edwin O. Reischauer, former United States ambassador to Japan and University Professor Emeritus at Harvard University.

In his opening remarks, Reischauer commented that even 10 years ago a symposium on contemporary Japanese culture would have been inconceivable. The considerable interest now shown by the United States in Japan, Reischauer believes, is the result of Japan joining the United States among what he called the "first world" of industrialized, democratic nations. As members of a "first world" society, the United States and Japan together face major problems. Especially pressing among these are economic relations and trade. The complex, interwoven economies of the first world have become difficult to operate and problems exist, particularly in the trade imbalance between Japan and the U.S., which has been exacerbated by the over-production of goods for the international market by Japan, and the enormous deficit in the United States. Reischauer felt these economic problems were more serious than the nuclear problem or the problems of pollution and environmental destruction faced by the first world. Another problem Reischauer identified is cultural development. Both Japan and the U.S. face a variety of problems in education, crime and drugs, the role of women in modern society, and ethical problems tion as something imposed from the outside, as if it has been forced to change against its will under the power and influence of Westerners. Reischauer noted the problem of distinguishing between westernization and modernization; he believes that Japan is being modernized, but that modernization arrived in Japan wearing western clothes. All these are issues that Reischauer cited as reasons why cooperation with and understanding of Japan has been difficult. He commended Sweet Briar for holding this symposium devoted to promoting greater understanding of contemporary Japanese culture.

Following Reischauer's introductory remarks, Hiroshi Inoue, professor of sociology at Kansai University in Osaka, Japan, presented a paper on "Television and Contemporary Society in Japan." Television first appeared in Japan in 1953; color sets became available in 1960. Inoue believes that the rapid diffusion of television since 1953 has been the result of both economic and technical conditions (for example, the rapid growth of the household electrical appliance industry after 1955), and social and cultural conditions in which television was able to provide entertainment at a time when, after World War II, Japan's cultural facilities were incapable of catering to mass audiences. Inoue also suggested that subsequent advances in visual technology are related to Japanese culture in the desire "to make things to please the eyes."

Inoue stated that television has significantly influenced Japanese culture, explaining that, since the 1960s, it has become integrated into the family, changing family life and producing among young people today what he stemming from the rapid development in science and industry—all of which call for cooperation and understanding.

Reischauer felt...economic problems were more serious than the nuclear problem or the problems of pollution and environmental destruction faced by the "first world."

Reischauer went on to make specific observations on the problem of Japan's relationship to other first world countries. He noted, for example, that of all the industrialized nations, Japan is the only one with a non-Western background and therefore has developed differently. Moreover, because the Japanese language is not Indo-European, a problem of communication exists. Reischauer also commented on what he sees as a psychological problem in Japan. Although a leading first world country, Japan, not unlike certain developing and especially post-colonial third world countries, tends to view its industrializadescribes as a "TV generation" who, in contrast with the older (over 40) "book generation," prefer visual images and participate in an "audio culture." An interesting outgrowth of this preference has been the phenomenon of the comic book, in which not only stories but also serious topics, such as law, cooking, economics are related in the comic-strip style of cartoons (or manga). Read by both children and adults, manga have become immensely popular in Japan; Inoue cited the recent publication figure of over one billion 149 million. Although the influence of TV, and its derivative manga, may be said to be having a largely negative influence on Japanese culture, Inoue suggests that it has nonetheless enriched the visual culture of Japan and contributed in positive ways to the popularization of information (VCRs also have contributed to this: currently 80% of Japanese households with a TV set own a VCR).

The last part of Inoue's talk was devoted to how recent technological developments in Japan have brought television to a turning point and how new information technology, or what he called the "New Media," is penetrating Japanese culture. He described the development of big-screen, high-definition TV sets (or HDTV, with over 1200 scanning lines per square inch to produce very high resolution images) linked to small satellite dishes (only 20 inches in diameter) to receive DBS (Direct Broadcasting System) programs from around the world. It is this system, which is still in an experimental stage in Japan, that Inoue believes will provide Japan with the needed exposure to the news and events of other countries.

The next paper, presented by J. Victor Koschmann, associate professor of Japanese history at Cornell University, discussed "Dimensions of Nationalism in Contemporary Japan." Koschmann explained that by nationalism he meant not a pronounced or exaggerated stance but more an everyday national consciousness and sense of identity. He reflected on how our own American nationalism necessarily affects our understanding of Japanese nationalism and that we should be aware of this in our responses to events in Japan. Koschmann focussed his attention on what has been called the Agnes Chan Debate, which had to do initially with women, employment and child care. Originally from mainland China, Agnes Chan, a popular singing star on Japanese television, had married her Japanese manager and produced a son. Chan became the center of public controversy when, soon after the child was born, she brought him with her to work at the TV studio (February 1977). This was in keeping with Chan's desire to care for the baby at all times, but was not a satisfactory arrangement, and the matter came to the notice of the media. Although the issue was the basic problem of trying to combine motherhood and career, Chan's position and statements served to provoke nationalist feelings. Koschmann identified three political subtexts or themes in the ensuing debate. First: in the reaction to Chan's pluralist views and professed pacifism can be recognized the reassertion of conservative values and the rejection of the postwar ethos of peace and democracy. Second: in Chan's bringing her child into the workplace, traditional social divisions between home and workplace, private and public, female and male were confused and the debate precipitated a conservative reaffirmation of social boundaries. Third: Chan's non-Japanese identity provoked a nationalistic "impulse to self-assertion," while her appeal to internationalism (kokusaishugi), and the fact that she personified it, raised new calls to reassert an essentialist, continuous Japanese identity.

Following a Japanese buffet served in Prothro Commons and an evening Kabuki performance in Babcock Auditorium, the symposium reconvened with Takie Sugiyama Lebra, a Japanese-born professor of anthropology at the University of Hawaii, talking about "The Relevance of the Housewife: Japanese Women in Change and Continuity." Lebra first raised a question: is the Japanese housewife obsolete, out-of-date? She pointed out that 50% of women of working age (15 and older) are now employed in Japan and that women represent 40% of the labor force. Currently there are more working women than housewives. However, conservative forces, resisting this change, are attempting to reassert traditional gender divisions, arguing that women should be housewives and that the Equal Employment Opportunity Law (1976) is destroying traditional harmony between husband and wife by making them competitive in the workplace. Lebra explained that Japan has not forsaken housewifery, that in fact the contemporary trend is entrenching the position of the housewifely woman. The reason for this is the increased need for specialization in Japanese society and the fact that men must devote all their time to their work in order to keep up with technological change. Children, too, are more specialized, constantly studying to keep up within Japan's demanding education system...specializing in being school children. As a result, the wife is left with the responsibility of running the entire household. Husband and children are totally dependent on her, expecting her to be always at home, available and ready to serve them. In effect, the woman-housewife takes care of everything that is not specialized. However, as Lebra pointed out, under these circumstances, housewifery itself has become professionalized; the housewife is also specialized—or specialized in being nonspecialized—because, in contrast to the past when a woman might be involved in other activities and work beside keeping the household, being a housewife is now all housewives do. The housewife looks after the overall human needs and promotes the identities of her husband and children over herself and her own identity.

In this area of caring for her family, the role of housewife overlaps with that of mother. Motherhood is highly respected in Japan, carrying with it an important culturally significant status. Housewifery has been glorified into motherhood and mothering thereby has been extended to include the husband so that the woman becomes the overall caretaker of the entire family. A disadvantage to this role is that should a woman make demands on her husband, a Japanese husband may turn away from his wife to seek the more perfect "mother" in the form of an undemanding, "peace-giving" woman with whom he might also have an affair. Lebra observed that the motherlike image of women appears in many aspects of Japanese life.

Lebra concluded that what is becoming out-of-date in contemporary Japan is the exclusive or specialized housewife (in spite of the conservative element). Housewifery remains important but is regarded by increasing numbers of women as another career to be pursued alongside, or before, one in the workplace. Many women are reentering the work force after their children are grown. The majority of Japan's career women have been housewives for part of their lives. Japanese traditionalists are not happy even with this compromise; they argue that women should be home-bound. It is still a fact that when children are reported as the subjects of violence, sexual abuse, victimization, delinquency, murder, or are themselves criminals, it is the mother who is blamed and held responsible. The mother accepts this responsibility and so feels guilty, especially if she is working and not at home. Mothers serve as the absorbers of social maladies in Japan, and tend to accept this. Thus, on one hand mothers (and by extension housewives) are glorified, while on the other, mothers (or women) are blamed for social ills, two sides of the same coin. There is a great deal of pressure, therefore, on women as mothers-housewives and on women who pursue careers. Most Japanese women are squeezed between opposite pressures.

Christopher Witcombe, one of the organizers of Sweet Briar's Festival of Japan, has been Assistant Professor of Art History at SBC since 1983, and chairman of the department since 1986. His special field of interest is 16th-century Italian art; with his family, he will spend next year on sabbatical in Rome, working on a book on 16th-century Italian prints.

The Honorable Dale Harris

The Honorable Dale Hutter Harris '53 Named "Woman of the Year"

The Business and Professional Woman's Club of Lynchburg, VA has named Judge Dale Hutter Harris as its "Woman of the Year," in appreciation for her exceptional qualities of leadership and integrity and for her distinguished achievements in improving the community.

Dale has been judge of the Lynchburg Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court, 24th Judicial District, since 1982; she is the 24th Judicial Court's first full-time female judge. Since 1986 she has been a lecturer at UVA Law School. In 1989, she became a trustee of Lynchburg's Virginia Episcopal School. She was listed in "Outstanding Young Women of America" in 1966 and in "Outstanding Civic Leaders of America" in 1967. She is also listed in "Who's Who of American Women."

Dale's long service to Sweet Briar includes terms on the Boards of Overseers (1970-74) and Directors (secretary 1973-76; vice chairman 1976-85), and from 1973-76 she was chairman of SBC's $10 million capital campaign. In 1978 she gave the Opening Convocation address and in 1986 she was the Founders' Day speaker. The Sweet Briar Alumnae Association presented her with the Outstanding Alumna Award in 1980.

A 1953 Phi Beta Kappa cum laude graduate with a major in religion and social problems, she earned an M.Ed. in guidance and counseling from Lynchburg College in 1970 and the J.D. from UVA in 1978. (Immediately after her SB graduation, she worked for a year as assistant in the admissions office.) Dale and husband Edward R. Harris, Jr., delegate to the VA House of Representatives and financial consultant, have three daughters and a son.

Lee Cullum

Lee Cullum '60: A Household Word in Texas

When you watch the MacNeil-Lehrer News Report, look for Lee Cullum from the Class of 1960. Lee, who has been editor of the editorial page and leader of the editorial board of the Dallas Times Herald since 1986, appeared several times on the PBS news program during the presidential campaign as a member of a 3-editor nationwide panel reporting on how the news from Washington was being received around the country. The panel is convened from time to time; it discussed the inaugural address, met twice on the topic of Senator Tower's nomination for Secretary of Defense (the Dallas Times Herald thought Tower should withdraw), and is now covering the Bush administration. During the presidential campaign, Lee also appeared on ABC's Nightline with Ted Koppel to discuss her paper's endorsement of George Bush.

Lee Cullum's name is a household word in Texas. In the early '70s Lee worked with Jim Lehrer on "Newsroom," a new type of newscast-talk show on the Dallas public television station KERA. When Lehrer won national fame and a job in Washington as co-anchor of PBS's MacNeil-Lehrer Report in 1972, Lee became executive producer and moderator of "Newsroom." This made her the first woman in the United States to anchor a daily news program.

Lee spent her 1956-57 freshman year at Sweet Briar, then transferred to Southern Methodist University, her parents' alma mater, and graduated in social sciences, with emphasis on history, religion and philosophy in 1961. The alumnae office staff wondered if, in the midst of her exciting career and hectic schedule, she ever thinks of Sweet Briar. "Every time I edit copy I think of Sweet Briar," Lee said, "especially of my English professor, Miss Stockholm, who taught me how to write. One lesson in how to avoid superfluous words, I will never forget. In the margin of a paper in which I had written, 'The events in Little Rock have served to heighten our awareness of racial discrimination,' Miss Stockholm had pencilled, 'On a tray?'"

Lee remembers SBC as "a place of indescribable beauty and great intellectual stimulation. It was at Sweet Briar that I became a serious student and developed intellectual interests for the first time. Thanks to Marion Benedict Rollins, I discovered a great interest in religious studies which has stayed with me."

After graduation Lee began her journalistic career writing a social column for the Dallas Times Herald and was billed, even then, as "a bright new star with the best about-town column in the southwest." She left the newspaper after several years to marry, help her husband Jim Clark in his political career in the Texas legislature, and raise a son, Cullum, born in 1966.

Having a child "makes you understand that it's time to take life seriously," Lee told the magazine Texas Woman which interviewed her in December '79 when she was well established as a TV celebrity. "I started spending a lot of time thinking about what I would do with the rest of my life." Lee started writing again in 1967 and has been collecting awards and "firsts" ever since.

The Texas Observer, for which she wrote free-lance political articles, listed her as a contributing editor. Her interest in politics led her to start work on a masters degree in Urban Studies at SMU, but she left, at Jim Lehrer's request, to join "Newsroom." She stayed with public television for 10 years, leaving KERA as vice president of program development and production in 1981, to work as an account executive with the public relations firm of Hill and Knowlton. In 1982 she became the first female editor of the Dallas city magazine, D magazine. Under her editorship, the magazine won the Dallas Press Club Award for Best Magazine in 1983 and 1984, and was nominated for a National Magazine award, the most prestigious in the country, in 1985. That same year Lee returned to Hill and Knowlton as director of client services, leaving in 1986 to take over her present position with the Dallas Times Herald. In announcing her appointment, the chairman of the board of Times Herald Printing Company said, "The editorial page is the soul of the newspaper, and that soul has to be headed by somebody with dedication and conscience... Cullum has both."

Lee's numerous broadcasting awards include the C. E. Shufford Award for Outstanding Journalist in Dallas-Fort Worth in 1973, and the Matrix Award from Women in Communications in 1977 and 1985. Somehow she makes the time to volunteer with community groups; she is on the Greater Dallas Crime Commission and is one of the founders of the Dallas Committee on Foreign Relations. In private life, she is divorced. Her son graduated from Yale in May and will spend a year in Japan before starting doctoral studies in the government department at Harvard in 1990.

The alumnae magazine staff asked Lee, who has such a distinguished record in both television and print journalism, if she preferred one over the other. She replied: "Both are stimulating... It is great fun to work in television, but print is the fundamental medium. After I report something on TV, I always check the papers to see if I got it right."

Jacquelyn Jones ponders her reply to a question from Alice Love, director of admissions (l.).

Jacquelyn Andrea Jones Believes in Planning Ahead

Friday, April 21, 1989, Jacquelyn Andrea Jones arrived early for a very important appointment scheduled for 3:30 p.m. In a special dress for the occasion, she presented herself at Admissions House for an interview with Alice Love, director of admissions. Jacquelyn Andrea Jones is three years old. She hopes to be a member of the Class of 2008.

Too soon to be thinking about college, you say? Not at all, in Jacquelyn's opinion. When asked her age by a slightly incredulous Allie Love, she replied reassuringly: "Three. But I'll be four next year." In fact, she may skip some of the in-between years (in between kindergarten and freshman year 2004): according to her grandmother, Helen Cornwell Jones '40, if something goes amiss at home, Jacquelyn has been heard to remark: "I'm leaving right now and going to spend the rest of my life at Sweet Briar?"

Now that's commitment.

Twins Joan (l.) and Jill Armstrong.

Sweet Briar Twins Spend January on Capitol Hill

Twin sisters Jill and Joan Armstrong, Class of 1990, spent January Term on Capitol Hill as interns for their senator, Connie Mack, from Florida. Their duties included meeting and greeting celebrities arriving for the presidential inaugural dinner at Washington's Union Station. They agreed that the most exciting part was standing 10 feet from President Bush and seeing him get up and sing along with the Dukesmen from Yale!

Under the auspices of Professor Tom Gilpatrick (government), the twins spent the month working for the senator's press secretary, Kate Rentschler. As well as the inauguration festivities, they enjoyed a party thrown for them by Senator Mack and his staff for their 21st birthday, January 13.

Joan, president of the junior class, has been elected senior class president and hopes to go to law school. Jill, who was vice president of the junior class, will be chairman of the Social Committee as a senior. The twins' hometown newspaper, the Belleair Bee, interviewing them after their month in D.C., observed: "Both girls positively enjoy the political scene. Who knows... future representatives from Florida?"

President Fry To Resign in 1990

BY MONICA DEAN

Director of Public Relations
Sweet Briar College

Sweet Briar College President Nenah E. Fry has announced her decision to resign at the end of the 1989-90 academic year.

"Sweet Briar College is now positioned at a point where it can and must capitalize on its many assets," she said. The College is preparing a major fundraising campaign, and "given the nature of a modern campaign, I cannot in conscience guarantee that I would wish to see that process through the years required for its achievement." Thus, "the College can most effectively accomplish its goals with the catalyst of a new presidency."

Dr. Fry will conclude her seventh year as president at the end of the next academic year. She notes that that length of service is typical in most colleges and universities today, according to "Presidents Make a Difference," a report of the Commission on Strengthening Presidential Leadership, sponsored by the Association of Governing Boards of Universities and Colleges.

During President Fry's tenure, she has overseen many changes at Sweet Briar College. Under her direction, the College initiated a process of strategic planning, in which the mission and goals of the College were defined and a strategic plan established.

"We affirmed the mission of the College to prepare women for the challenges of the 21st Century," she said. The admissions program received special attention to assure the College's position as a highly selective, nationally recognized, liberal arts college for women. To this end, the College has a new Admissions House and has developed new admissions programs and publications.

Sweet Briar's program development emphasizes women's roles in a global and technological economy. The College has added Junior Year programs to its distinguished Junior Year in France: programs at the University of Seville in Spain, at Royal Holloway College and Bedford New College at the University of London, and at St. Hilda's and St. Hugh's Colleges at Oxford University.

The College has developed an Asian Studies program along with Latin American Studies and European Civilization.

Sweet Briar has added a Bachelor of Science degree and has instituted programs to encourage high school girls, especially minorities, to study mathematics and science. Guion Science Building will be renovated. As part of the academic emphasis under President Fry, the College has greatly increased students' and faculty access to personal computers with new or augmented computer facilities, including the new Woody Learning Center. Through a grant from the Jessie Ball duPont Foundation, Sweet Briar's library resources are linked electronically to those of other area colleges and to the Lynchburg Public Library.

In addition, under President Fry's leadership, the Management Program has grown increasingly sophisticated, with certificates offered in Arts Management, General Business Management, and Public Administration.

President Fry has drawn special attention to the quality of campus life for Sweet Briar faculty and students. The faculty recently approved an innovative program of Honors Study for freshmen and sophomores. A total of five of the residence halls will be restored. The second is near completion and work on a third will begin this summer. Other capital projects have included the construction of the recently completed Florence Elston Inn, which provides accommodations for prospective students, their parents and other guests of the College.

Under President Fry's leadership, the College's endowment has grown significantly, from $24 million to $44 million.

Dr. Fry, 55, a native of Chicago, has been a leader in higher education and has spoken widely on the issues of the education of women. She will be a keynote speaker at the national Council for the Advancement and Support of Education (CASE) conference in Washington, D.C., in July.

Recently, she served as a panelist at the spring meeting of the Virginia College Placement Association in Richmond, addressing the topic of preparing students for the workplace of the 21st Century. She was a panelist at the recent meeting of the Association of Virginia Colleges, and a speaker at the "Panel of Presidents: Higher Education and the Student Community Service" conference at the University of Virginia. Last year, she was the keynote speaker at another CASE Conference.

President Fry earned her master's degree and the doctorate in European history from Yale University. Her graduate honors include being named a Lewis-Farmington Fellow, an R.R. McCormick Fellow, and a Junior Sterling Fellow.

She was a summa cum laude graduate of Lawrence University in Wisconsin, and taught there and at Wilson College in Chambersburg, PA early in her career. In 1975, she became Dean of the College and professor of history at Wells College in Aurora, NY, where she served until 1983. She was the recipient of the Christian R. and Mary Lindback Award for Excellence in Teaching in 1968, and holds honorary degrees from Wilson College and from Lawrence University, where she also serves as a trustee.

Dr. Fry, a Phi Beta Kappa Associate, serves on the Executive Committee of the Association of Virginia Colleges, as an Evaluator for the Middle States Association, and on the President's Commission of the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA).

She serves on the Advisory Committee on Self-Regulation Initiatives of the American Council on Education and the Committee on Minority Representation of the National Association of Independent Colleges and Universities. She is a member of the American Historical Association, the Society for French Historical Studies, and the Berkshire Conference of Women Historians. She is the founder of the Public Leadership Education Network, a consortium of women's colleges designed to encourage young women to enter public life.

She is also a member of the Board of Directors of the Lynchburg Fine Arts Center, Inc., Lynchburg, VA. ♦

Bouquets of Roses from the Admissions Staff

BY DEE S. HUBBLE

Assistant Director of Admissions
Sweet Briar College

The Alumnae-Admissions Representative Program was revamped in 1987 when Dee Hubble, assistant director of admissions, was named coordinator of the program. The admissions staff is tossing roses this summer to give special thanks and recognition to five alumnae-admissions representatives who, in their own ways and styles, have contributed a vast amount of time and energy to the recruitment effort. Rosy kudos are also due a rising junior at SBC, a coach and a faculty member who understand the importance of their individual involvements in the admissions process. Bravas! to all eight Very Important Persons.

■ Lynne Gardner Detmer '68 has taken an active interest in the admissions effort this past year as the AAR coordinator for the Fairfield, CT area. Her full-force recruitment plan was personalized; after telephoning her 11 AAR helpers to request their aid, she sent hand-written notes, giving each one a prospective student's name, address and telephone number, as well as other information. She also offered her AAR helpers guidance by suggesting the best type of follow-up for each student, based on the AAR's and student's common interests. Also serving as president of the local alumnae club, she organized a successful luncheon for area high school guidance counselors; 35 counselors and alumnae attended. Dedication and strong organizational skills are essential to the success of any alumnae volunteer program and Lynne demonstrates both. Her mandate to all alumnae: promote SBC enthusiastically. "Be proud of your college—tell everyone about your alma mater. You, as alumnae, are the best advertisement the College can have. The future of SBC depends on the quality of the students and faculty. All alumnae must help attract those top-notch students who will ensure the College's longevity."

Lynne, a music major, religion minor at SBC, now is completing the M.A. in humanities from Manhattanville College. She is a past championship collie breeder and for several years has designed and marketed her own line of jewelry (see p. 15). She makes the time to work for Sweet Briar, even though her six tropical birds, five children, four dogs, three cats, two houses and one husband demand a lot of attention, too.

■ Anita Loving Lewis '41, East Berlin, PA, one of the most persistent and reliable AAR volunteers, sets a prime example of devotion to Sweet Briar: she has sole responsibility for recruitment in her region. Last year, nine out of the 14 accepted applicants from her large geographic area enrolled in the freshman class. She feels that her personal calls and notes greatly influenced their decisions to enroll. Part of her recruiting strategy is to make sure that she constantly updates her knowledge of SBC as it is today—and to present that picture of the College with the same enthusiasm she felt for SBC '41 at her graduation. She keeps in close contact with the alumnae and admissions offices and returns to campus once or twice a year, which helps her to see and understand changes. This year she had lunch or dinner with all her area students while on campus. One of her freshman recruits, Catrina Curley, noted: "Mrs. Lewis is so dedicated to Sweet Briar. I figured that it must be a good school if she has been loyal for 47 years!" Last fall, Anita visited 20 high schools, talked to the guidance counselors, delivered catalogs and followed up with telephone calls. Her determination to find intelligent prospectives obviously impressed her husband: he drove her to each of the 20 schools, all in a 35-to-50 mile radius of their home! She also organized a Christmas party to show the SBC video to alumnae, current students and prospectives.

A sociology/economics major in '41, Anita's 1989 mission is "to help raise the quality and academic standards of the College." At the rate she is working, achievement of this goal should be no problem.

■ Caroline Ferguson Corum, ex '88, Arlington, VA, had to leave Sweet Briar after freshman year because of personal matters difficult to settle at long distance. She received a B.A. in social sciences from American University and last fall enrolled in the graduate law and business schools at George Mason University for a combined degree.

Although she did not graduate from SBC, Caroline remains close to friends she made here. Two years ago she contacted the admissions office to volunteer her time for recruiting. Since then she has contacted 15 to 20 students every month, usually by telephone, writing the AAR contact report forms and sending them to the admissions office promptly. Caroline says that "Sweet Briar is still a very special place to me. I liked it when I was there. So when I moved to D.C., it was a fulfilling way to spend spare time and meet new people. I also felt young enough to be able to relate to prospective students and feel comfortable doing so."

■ Nancy White Bryant '79, Croton-on-Hudson, NY, as Region III Chairman on the Alumnae Board, is coordinating the development of a broad-based AAR networking group within her area. She is concentrating on Westchester Co., NY, Fairfield Co., CT, NYC and Long Island as the targeted regional recruitment effort. It is her dream that every AAR oversee a "small piece of the pie" by taking interest in "her own backyard"—in being responsible for contacting students in the immediate area, visiting local high schools, meeting the guidance counselors and representing the College at college day/night programs. Nancy understands that women of today, especially SBC alumnae, are so busy with their professional and family lives, plus community activities, that sometimes volunteer work seems overwhelming. However, representing SBC as an AAR "can take as little time as a simple telephone call, a luncheon, a personal visit when called upon. You can be as involved as you want to be." Nancy also feels strongly that every time an alumna has the opportunity to mention Sweet Briar College as her alma mater, she should do so. A studio art major, Nancy is the principal owner of White Bryant Fine Arts Consultants, Inc. in NYC. Using her SB education in every aspect of her work, she advises corporations, partnerships or individuals on particular art pieces to collect or purchase. She arranges financing, purchasing, shipping, framing and installation for each of her clients, including the Chase Manhattan Bank, Homart (real estate division of Sears), the Robert Martin Company and private individuals. She is coordinating an international deal with a Japanese buyer. A good example of a young alumna who demonstrates the validity of a liberal arts degree!

■ Joy Kathleen (Kathy) Garcia Pegues '71, Jeffersonston, VA, with a B.A. in English and M. Ed. from UVA, teaches sophomore English and honors American Civilization at Fauquier HS in Virginia's Hunt Country. When asked to represent SBC at a local college night in the fall, she sent back a four-page letter listing 16 prospective student names with a descriptive paragraph about each one. Her advice is to record as much information about a particular student as possible and send it to the admissions office immediately. Last spring she drove eight prospective students to a Sweet Briar Open House on her own time and at her own expense.

Kathy, impressed with the literature used for recruitment, also often requests that the video be sent to her or to prospects—she feels that this is an excellent recruitment tool. Her idea to pass on to all AARs: she had her SBC green-and-white paper banner laminated, to be used year after year at college programs. She writes, "I try to recruit the brightest and the best... I am happy to be a rep — next to my choice of a husband, Sweet Briar was the best decision I ever made (and I wouldn't have met my Wahoo anywhere else!)"

■ Carey Bates '91, Avon, CT, a rising junior who loves Sweet Briar, is extremely interested in the admissions effort. Last year a college program was held in the West Hartford area; college freshmen from there were asked to talk about their institutions. Carey spoke for SBC, one of a few women's colleges represented. Others present included U. PA, Yale and U. CT.

When Carey visited her own Hall HS, she talked with a junior she felt would be a good match for SBC. During summer vacation she invited this prospective to dinner to discuss SBC more extensively—and immediately sensed an uncertainty about women's colleges—but "after a wonderful and lengthy spaghetti dinner, the student went home very excited about SBC." Next morning, the student's mother called the admissions office, talked to a counselor for over an hour and was excited herself. Afterwards Carey regularly communicated with her candidate and urged admissions to keep sending new info. The student attended an Open House, extended her stay to four nights, applied EDP and will enter the freshman class next September (Class of 1993).

■ Jennifer Crispen, associate professor, physical education and athletics, concentrates on students' interests first and foremost. Jennifer was an undergraduate at the University of Massachusetts and earned an M.A. at Smith College; she understands the difference between a large and small college experience and supports the latter 100%. She also has taught at several other women's colleges, believing in the women's college focus. When talking with prospectives and their parents, she emphasizes academics before discussing sports/extracurricular interests.

Jennifer's sister, a freshman hockey coach at a New England high school, invited Jennifer to teach a summer clinic there. A ninth-grader seemed to be a good prospect for a small women's college. Jennifer kept up with her; finally during her senior year the student made a campus visit. Jennifer arranged for her to stay with a hockey team member, eat dinner with other team players and have an appointment with a math professor. This student graduated from SBC in May '89. Jennifer's extra efforts made the difference. She has recruited students across the country. She is willing to travel to any alumnae club to visit high schools and to talk with counselors, prospects and parents at an open forum. This could be a good club project: pay travel expenses for a faculty member to visit your area.

■ Judith M. Elkins, professor of mathematical sciences, takes an active role in the admissions process by devoting her time to the admissions committee, reading applications. It is her personal commitment to be fair to both the prospect and the institution when considering applicants for admission. She firmly believes that college is a time when an individual has the opportunity and encouragement to develop intellectually and personally and thinks Sweet Briar an excellent environment for this to take place. She writes or calls a good candidate whenever asked and has traveled for the admissions office. She enjoys sometimes-lengthy meetings with prospects and parents over dinner, in her office or at Admissions House. In her words, "Human interaction at this level, early in the application process, is essential in conveying the total mission of the College. Books and computers do not create a successful student. It is the growth and development of her talents and abilities, while she is here, that mold a productive and self-fulfilled member of society for the future. This entire process begins in recruitment."

Professor Elkins holds a B.A. in mathematics/physics from Wellesley, the M.A. in mathematics from Harvard and the Ph.D., mathematics from U. of Wisconsin-Madison. She first began teaching at Holton-Arms School and has taught at Mt. Holyoke, Drew U., Wesleyan, California State-San Diego, Rutgers U. and Ohio State. She has been at SBC since 1975 and is the Charles A. Dana Professor of Mathematical Sciences. Best of all, she has two daughters at Sweet Briar, one a rising junior and the other an entering freshman! ♦

Dana Dotten Endacott '78: Forging Paths Where Few Women Have Gone Before

BY NOREEN DONNELLY
PARKER

Assistant Editor and Class Notes Editor
Sweet Briar Alumnae Magazine

Dana Dotten Endacott '78, a pilot with the U.S. Navy, took her first military solo flight in a T28 aircraft on a cold February morning in 1979. In inexperienced hands, the engine of a T28 is apt to backfire in cold weather, and if that happens, the plane has to be returned to the hangar for some costly maintenance work. Dana was hoping it wouldn't happen on this special flight. As she sat in the cockpit getting ready for take-off, she noticed some male coworkers walking out onto the tarmac. They kept coming until there were 35 in all, and they ranged up silently along the edge of the runway, arms folded, to watch Dana take off. They had not come to cheer her on. Dana felt that, for the sake of all the women who would want to come after her, she could not make a mistake. She didn't—but those moments before take-off were just one example of the occasional resistance she encountered in a field that was, and still is, heavily dominated by men.

Students at Sweet Briar were intrigued when Dana told them this story during her two-day stay on campus in October '88. Her visit was sponsored by the Alumna Resident program which brings young alumnae in nontraditional careers back to campus. The story helped to answer the students' first question: what had it been like to go from a women's college to the male world of navy flight school? The film, "An Officer and a Gentleman," actually gives a pretty good picture of Aviation Officer Candidate School, Dana told them. Her advice for any young woman going into a nontraditional job is, "Be as well prepared as you can be so that no one can fault you because of your sex. In a highly visible spot, it helps to have very strong skills." At the same time, she cautioned, a woman mustn't put too much pressure on herself or feel she can never make a mistake.

Quiet confidence emanated from Dana as she addressed the students, and they wondered how she could feel at home in the intimidating world of instrument panels and fighter jets pictured in the Navy brochures. Dana replied: "Sweet Briar really helped me to develop the confidence I needed to attempt an unusual career. The most important part of my education was the rapport I had with the faculty. Professor McClenon (chemistry) and Professor Horwege (German) were so patient and helpful. They sent me out into the world expecting to be listened to and to have my questions answered."

A degree in mathematics or the sciences is not required for Aviation Officer Candidate School (one of Dana's colleagues was an English major) but the Navy likes to see one year each of calculus and physics and Dana found her chemistry major very helpful. Mechanical ability is essential. Although Dana had a very traditional upbringing and would help her mother lay the table while her brother helped their father repair the car, Dana always wanted to be outside working on the car.

Dana looked chic in her uniform of a crisp, tailored navy-blue suit with knee-length skirt and black patent high-heeled shoes. On her lapel gleamed the coveted "gold wings" of the naval aviator. It was a little startling at first to see the lieutenant's insignia—two gold braid stripes and a gold star indicating that she is eligible for command—on the sleeve cuffs of a young woman who still looks like one of the students. But as she talked about flying EC 130 turbo-prop multiengine aircraft over the Atlantic relaying messages from the Joint Chiefs of Staff to the nuclear submarines below, missions on which she held the lives of her crew of 19 men in her hands, the accoutrements of authority on her uniform began to seem very natural. Already she has been selected to be a lieutenant commander, though the actual promotion has to await Congressional approval.

Did any awkward situation ever arise on those 12-hour flying missions, scrunched up in a cockpit with some gorgeous guy, the students wondered? Dana has a personal philosophy never to socialize with or date anyone she works with, and this has prevented any awkwardness. There is no official policy yet on questions like this; the Navy is doing research to develop a "fraternization policy" and should have one within a year or two.

Dana's own strict code regarding coworkers did not prevent her from having a marvelous social life, especially on her first overseas assignment in Japan. If she had been unusual in Navy flight school, in Japan she was a curiosity! When invited to the homes of Japanese student navigators whom she tutored in English, she felt a little funny, sitting with the men while their Japanese wives were only seen bringing in the food—at least until the meal was over. However, the men accepted her and she felt greatly honored when they let her fly a P2 aircraft of the JMSDF (Japanese Maritime Self Defense Force).

The U.S. Navy provided a good social life in Japan too. A friend took her to lunch one day in the wardroom of the aircraft carrier USS Midway when she was docked in Yokosuka. A pilot at the same table turned out to be her future husband, though at the time he seemed "a neat guy but just another A7 pilot." The two met later back in the U.S., recognized each other, and were married at Thanksgiving, 1987. The students wondered: Was she married at sea? Did she have to wear her uniform? Dana reassured them that, though there were military sword-bearers at the wedding and her husband wore a uniform, they had had a customary wedding and she wore a traditional white wedding dress. They also wondered if her hair had to be short. (It doesn't; above the lower edge of the collar is the rule, and hair can be long if it is worn pinned up.)

Dana's flying missions over the Atlantic were with the VQ-4 Squadron which keeps an around-the-clock schedule so that there is always a plane to relay messages to the submarines in case facilities on land are blocked or knocked out. Flying these planes, Dana earned the only "warfare specialty" heretofore open to women multiengine pilots. Several other warfare specialties are beginning to open up, but women are still barred from combat, and this restricts the opportunities for promotion. Although Dana's priorities have changed since she entered the Navy 10 years ago, and she now wants a well-rounded life including marriage and a family, she remembers feeling held back in her career and getting "hot and heated" over the issue of women in combat. She points out that it is a political, not a Navy, issue, that the Navy allows women to do as much as they can within the law.

The students in Professor Hartman's philosophy class had a lively debate on another controversial issue—whether women should be drafted. Dana was interested to see that most of the class thought that, if the draft were reinstated, women as well as men should be subject to it. Several students who were against this idea at first, ended by supporting it.

During a public lecture to the Sweet Briar community, Dana showed a Navy recruiting film about training on an aircraft carrier. It was very exciting, with jets roaring onto the deck every 30 seconds (they have 2 seconds to stop) and taking off (they have 2 1/2 seconds to get to the lift-off speed of 150 knots per hour). But there wasn't a woman in sight. Dana apologized for having to show a film with no women, but explained that there is one aircraft carrier on which one would see women—the USS Lexington, a training ship which carries crew members and students of both sexes. Women can fly the C-1 and C-2 "carrier-on-deck" aircraft, transporting personnel, supplies and mail to the carriers. Though these don't come hurtling in like the fighters, they are still difficult to land. Planes are guided in with a special fresnal lens and the main rule is, "Don't aim for the deck." (Sounds like teaching a novice winter driver who is sliding towards an oncoming car to steer into the skid!) But the woman who wants to fly a carrier-based fighter jet will have to wait. Apart from the restriction on women in combat, there is the problem of space. The Navy doesn't like a carrier to have 5000 men and two women. A ship would have to be redesigned to provide separate quarters for women; it is a question of expense as well as policy.

Students wondered how Dana had become interested in flying; she recalled developing a love for it after having had a few lessons one summer, as a teenager. While attending Sweet Briar, she took flying lessons and received her pilot's license at Falwell Airport in Lynchburg. On graduation day, Dana collected her diploma, slipped away from the ceremonies to the airport where a friend had a plane ready for take-off, and managed to fly over the crowd and scatter rose petals just as the closing prayer was being read. Dana's fame as "the only student to buzz her own graduation" lives on.

Faculty children had some astute questions too. Hunter, son of Carter Hunter Hopkins '68, wondered how many lifeboats a carrier had. Dana said she'd have to look that one up. Christopher Horwege asked why, if she loved to fly, hadn't she joined the Air civilian life. A female colleague on the strenuous flying missions over the Atlantic had two children under 10; her husband, who was not in the Navy, had a more flexible schedule.

Most recently Dana was an NROTC navigation instructor at Jacksonville University, Florida and working on a master's degree in educational leadership, with a view to leading Navy training programs in the future. Commercial airlines are always luring pilots away, but the Navy is offering bonuses for pilots who commit to further service and Dana plans to complete a 20-year stretch, as long as her career can mesh with her husband's. She and Steven, a 1974 graduate of the Naval Academy, were transferred in December '88 to Fallon Air Base in Nevada where Steven will fly the F-18 fighter jet and Dana will fly a C 12.

On her Sweet Briar visit, Dana was amazed to find that one of her heroines in aviation, Nancy Love, was the mother of Allie Love, SBC's director of admissions! This Sweet Briar connection made Dana's brief outline of the history of women in U.S. aviation come alive. A proposal by the late Nancy Harkness Love during the Second World War led to the establishment of the WAFS (Women's Auxiliary Ferrying Squad) which later merged with Jackie Cochran's unit to become the WASPs (Women's Air Force Service Pilots). Congress was slow to confer military status on the women but the Army needed them so desperately that they hired them anyway, as civilians. Military status, with the accompanying benefits, was finally conferred on the WASPs in 1977.

Dana's enthusiasm for her work and for Sweet Briar radiated from her. Evident too, from the animated conversation with faculty and staff over dinner, the vitality of the class discussions, the intense interest shown by students in Dana's lecture and the eager questions afterwards, was the pride that Sweet Briar takes in her, as she forges paths where few women have gone before. ♦

Force? Dana said that she had indeed thought of the Air Force first, but that the brochure they sent turned her off. On the front was a pink castle with the legend, "And she lived happily ever after," and on the back was a woman sitting in a plane with the gustlock (like a mooring rope) in place. "I could see she was sitting pretty but not going very far," said Dana. Meanwhile, she had learned from an article in the Wall Street Journal that the Navy was looking for female trainee pilots. She applied in her senior year and was accepted, one of eight women. This year 25 women were accepted into the Navy's flight training school.

Can one be a Navy pilot and cope with a family? Some certainly do. The Navy allows women to fly as co-pilots until the eighth month of pregnancy (with a medical waiver), and maternity benefits and leave are the same as in

Reflections on a Career in Dance/Movement Therapy

BY E. CONNOR KELLY '79,
M.A., A.D.T.R.*

In 1986, I had the opportunity to return to Sweet Briar under the Alumna Resident Program to talk about my “non-traditional” career. I felt both excited and anxious about the invitation. Here was an opportunity to talk about my career, yet I was not sure what I could offer the Sweet Briar community. Working in a state institution for developmentally-disabled adults where jeans and sweatshirts are the everyday attire does not readily lend itself to an image of sophisticated professionalism!

My career decision was based on many smaller ones over the years. I remember declaring a major as a sophomore. I knew I loved dance and I knew I wanted to work with people. Professors were generally supportive, yet they did not know how psychology and dance might interrelate. One professor was disappointed that I was not continuing my study of mathematics. I studied two years and enjoyed it, but the only career I could envision was computers, and I had no interest in working with computers. He suggested that maybe I liked math for the same reason he did, for “the aesthetic value.” I laughed then but can now see the truth in that statement. One of the reasons I am interested in the arts is for the aesthetics. Recently I had dinner with a friend and fellow SBC classmate. She remembers when we chose majors. She commented that she was shocked by my decision not to major in math, yet said she had so much respect for me because I had chosen what I wanted to do.

Sweet Briar helped me realize this choice. The comprehensive exams enabled me to integrate information that would help me in my career. Graduate school provided the fine tuning. I feel fortunate to have had all the opportunities I did at Sweet Briar through the liberal arts curriculum.

As I observe current trends in education, I become disheartened to see that physical education and the arts are considered extra, and are often cut from the budget. Research by Howard Gardner (1985) at Harvard University supports the notion of multiple intelligence. This includes intrapersonal, interpersonal, spatial, bodily kinesthetic, musical, logical/mathematical and linguistic intelligence. Those who are more intelligent in the last two areas do well in our school systems and on standardized tests. The implications of this research extend beyond the school system and into the area of disabilities as well as career counseling.

I have chosen a field that supports learning in a more experiential, non-traditional way. When I returned to Sweet Briar and taught several classes, I realized I had achieved a high level of understanding and sophistication in my work. I also realized that the field of dance/movement therapy has given me tools that enrich my personal, as well as my professional life.

Professionally, it gives me a method to look at clients holistically. I see how they hold their bodies, interact with others, express their feelings, execute movement sequences. From these observations I hypothesize about recurring life themes and problem areas as well as strengths. Next I design a treatment to test my hunches, explore themes, uncover more material and work in depth.

Dance/Movement therapy and other action-oriented therapies provide a model for treatment that integrates expressive, emotional, physical and communicative aspects of the self. Traditional medicine reinforces the belief that health is the absence of symptoms of illness. I believe that health is a reflection of lifestyle and includes attitudes, nutrition, work and leisure pursuits. In short, dance therapy focuses on the process, not the end product.

As a dancer and an athlete I had often focused on the product, mastering certain skills and maintaining physical condition. As I discovered other aspects of movement, such as the creative process and the power of movement to elicit memories stored in the body, I discovered an inner wisdom in the body. I learned to listen to my body. I have become more aware of foods and tastes my body needs. I choose physical pursuits that are satisfying to me.

The clients I see have lives structured by others. They rarely are given the opportunity just to "be," to listen to themselves. When they choose to be introverted, staff frequently interpret this as "antisocial" behavior. Dr. David

Singer (Ph.D.) in a lecture to clinical supervisors suggested that supervisors encourage interns to "find their own voices." I believe this is a goal in therapy with my clients also. For so long their voices have been that of the institution. I encourage self-initiated responses from my clients. I often phrase my comments as questions so as not to be too directive. I provide time in the sessions for exploration.

Many of my clients have missed out on mastering basic stages of play. Children's play establishes the basis for future learning, creativity and decision making. Most clients did not have real opportunities for play when they were children.

We can all learn more about ourselves by learning more about our bodies, the way we move, how we use different movements in different situations and how to move most efficiently. Can anyone tell me that they have never felt tension, had muscle soreness or an injury? Our language uses body concepts to describe certain ways of being: carrying the weight of the world on your shoulders, standing on your own two feet, pain in the neck.

Access to this information helps me be a more effective therapist. The commitment to grow, learn and make an impact on the world, no matter how small that contribution might be, is what I believe a career decision is all about. Time and time again my clients show me that it is not the size, quantity or scope of an achievement that matters so much as the self-worth and satisfaction that they receive from doing something they have chosen to do — no matter how trivial it may appear.

For the past seven years I have been putting into practice and integrating much of the knowledge I acquired in school. I have had many experiences where I think I have known something for years. Then suddenly (it seems) I am in a situation where I have a strong bodily sensation and I know I truly understand a concept for the very first time! To know is not only to have an intellectual idea, but to experience it on a bodily level. Somehow as it is enacted it becomes more full and real. This is where I believe the field of dance/movement therapy can contribute to the world's collective intelligence. ♦

Connor Kelly earned her M.A. in dance therapy from New York University in 1981. When she wrote this article for the magazine, she was working in a 700-bed institution for the developmentally disabled and mentally retarded adults. She has since taken a position at Boston's Hebrew Rehabilitation Centre for Aged — a position no less challenging. As Connor describes it, "Working with institutionalized people, whether they are mentally retarded or afflicted with Alzheimer's, is the same to the extent that you are dealing with people who have been separated from their families and are experiencing a severe loss of control over their lives. I give them room to express their feelings and gain some control."

"The responses I look for are extremely subtle. Sometimes just getting someone to sigh, or smile, or sustain eye contact signifies a real breakthrough. Simple things like that keep you going. In fact, they mean a lot to everyone — family, doctors, nurses — concerned with the client's well-being."

The lecture/demonstrations Connor presented at Sweet Briar in 1986 are gradually becoming a more routine part of her work. She gives "in-house services" as part of her job, speaks at professional conferences and performs workshops for universities and other institutions.

"The origins of the arts therapies," Connor explains, "date back to ancient Greece. The Greek culture was very integrated in the sense that the mind and body were treated as one and people used the arts all the time to tap into those joined resources. We have since separated our spiritual and physical selves to the point where basic art forms like dance are looked on as luxuries or elitist pastimes. One of my missions as a dance therapist is to bring the arts back into people's lives on a more regular basis. I would also like to see movement and dance better appreciated as a method of teaching and learning. This is a point I really can't stress enough. I've seen it work for people who were otherwise considered impossible to reach."

Do Your Dream!

(How to Fill That Empty Nest)

BY LYNNE GARDNER
DETMER '68

What to do about empty nests? Anticipate. Organize. Prioritize. You only have one life to live! Do as much as your time and energy allow.

The nest starts emptying when your youngest goes to kindergarten. Precious hours are returned to you. Plan your time to accommodate both family needs and your own. Having children, you already know the art of prioritizing; use this knowledge for your own growth.

Think of all the things you can do with unclaimed hours. You can matriculate at a nearby college, taking courses you missed at Sweet Briar; get a part-time job; become more deeply involved in a volunteer program; help Sweet Briar as a club officer, alumnae-admissions representative, super bulb seller. Select something which interests you, budget enough time to do a good job and enjoy.

Organize your time. This takes thought—and family communication and cooperation. Talk about what is important to you and how the family can work together to make it happen. What you want to do with your life should be considered equally as important as the desires of other family members.

"Example A" of all the above: I always have had outside commitments. First (and forever) is singing. Rehearsal time is, and always has been, sacrosanct; whatever it takes to make it happen, that is uninvaded time. Adequate preparation for singing engagements takes priority over everything except real emergencies.

When the children were little, I felt that activities other than singing should be home-based. Using genetics information gleaned from Jane Belcher at SBC, I bred championship collies. The whole family took great pleasure in our 13 litters. All those puppies! All that love! Now we have only four dogs, three cats and six tropical birds, but the memories are incomparable, and I still get to be midwife.

Once both children were in school all day, I decided I had enough time to study for a master's degree. Manhattanville College is a fine institution only 30 minutes away, offering an MAH (M.A.

Lynne Detmer

death and dying as it is reflected in his sacred cantatas."

The benefits from my studies, although intangible, are manifold. The combination of music and religion enhanced both my singing and my faith. My religious understanding and commitment expanded. I now sing with much greater conviction, making possible a greater depth of communication with the congregation. My life has been enriched by what I have learned.

During the three years spent completing the course work for my master's degree, I thought seriously about what I wanted to do when I had received it. Many conversations and much soul-searching later, I decided against a career in teaching and against further study to become a minister.

While sitting on the floor of my good friend's studio stringing her beads (collected during worldwide travels) into necklaces, we yakked about starting separate jewelry businesses. By being officially in business, we could purchase our materials wholesale, sell some pieces and keep as many for ourselves as we wanted. Since I was not to be a teacher or a minister or star at the Met, why not? Sweet Briar graduates can do anything! (We can at least try!)

Business cards and tax resale numbers in hand, we sallied forth into the fashion and boutique world. Strung a few, sold a few, learned a lot.

People began asking where to get my necklaces. Lo, a store wanted to carry my jewelry line! Soon there were too many orders to keep track of longhand; I had to learn how to use a computer to handle all the bookkeeping. Step-by-step I have learned buying, designing, marketing and accounting techniques. From an idle thought on a summer day a booming business was born.

Consciously choosing a specific market "niche," I use semi-precious stones, finest crystals and precious metals, making necklaces I would want to wear myself. My course load included advanced religion courses as well as independent studies in music. At this point I have completed the course work and am working on my thesis, entitled "Bach: his religious attitude toward death and dying as it is reflected in his sacred cantatas."

Time management becomes more important as we fill our lives with rewarding activities. I constantly juggle the business, singing engagements, volunteer commitments to my church and local convalescent home, and Sweet Briar projects. I have found a daily/weekly/monthly planner tremendously helpful in budgeting time for each. Somehow there is always enough time for children, friends and travel. (Ed. note: Lynne and her husband Jim were enthusiastic participants in Sweet Briar's trip to Russia in 1988.)

Each of my activities is very rewarding. Singing and jewelry design, although demanding, are creative. Working with others to strengthen Sweet Briar is satisfying—it feels good to be giving back something to the College which gave me the confidence and background to use my time effectively.

Projects still to be added in my life: conversational German and Russian, and piano and guitar lessons.

For all of you who see an empty nest coming: the hardest step to take is making the decision to go forward with a dream...to actually make that first step. Do your dream! Sign up for an academic course; apply for a resale number; commit to music, art, computer or language lessons; apply for a job. Contact Carter Hopkins at Sweet Briar's LIFETIMES Center to take advantage of the LIFETIMES program. Decide. Organize. Make it happen.

After all, it is your life. ♦

Marjorie A. Woody Learning Center

The new Marjorie A. Woody Learning Center, dedicated in October 1988, contains the Woody Macintosh Lab, with 11 Macintosh computers available to students 24 hours a day. Also in the Center are the Academic Resource Center, which provides tutoring and study help, and an office for the College's microcomputer specialist, who assists students in using the computers. These three offices are closely connected; students use computer technology to simplify the mechanics of writing but need the Academic Resource Center to sharpen fundamental writing skills.

The Macintosh Lab computers are linked in an advanced computer network which gives access to a Laser-Writer (a printer producing typeset-quality printing for resumes, brochures and illustrations) and software for a wide range of interests from statistics to graphic arts. The Lab has an overhead projector, allowing projection of a computer screen display onto a large viewing screen while holding classes.

The Woody Center is heavily used even though there are 59 additional campus computers available to students. It was built through the generous bequest of Marjorie Abbott Woody who, with husband Buck Woody, owned "Buck's Place," a popular spot for SB students from the 1940s through the 1960s. Mr. Woody died in 1984; Mrs. Woody in 1985.

Director of Development Retires

Martha Mansfield Clement '48, who came to work with the development office in 1978 and became director of development in 1986, will retire at the end of May, 1989. During her tenure the College completed its most successful Generations Campaign, began the Reunion Giving Program, now recognized as one of the nation's best, and reached the $1 million level in the Annual Fund. The leadership she provided these programs and others was critical; the College is indebted to her.

Martha does not intend to be idle! Her first project will be to join Mark Whittaker (ex-SB vice president for college relations) in a consultative position at Stetson University, FL. Martha will move to Florida during the summer of 1989.

CABOOSE JOINS SB STATION ON CAMPUS

Frances Hester Dornette '44 (dec.), like many other SB students, rode the train to come to college. In 1988 her husband, Dr. W.H.L. Dornette, was reminiscing with President Fry about Frances' trips to SBC and his own train rides to visit his sweetheart. Idea: why not have a caboose sitting in its proper place next to the Sweet Briar station? It could be a memorial to Frances, who died in 1981, and to all the students who remember train journeys to campus. Dr. Dornette got busy.

Norfolk & Western caboose No. 557736, built in 1948, took its place beside the old station on January 25, 1989. The station, moved to the campus in 1973, is now used by the Studio Art Department. The caboose, refurbished and painted in Southern Railway colors, will be used as a pottery studio. It will be dedicated at a future date.

Mina Wood

Landscape Design Consultant Appointed

Mina Walker Wood '62, of Lynchburg, has been appointed to serve as consultant in landscape design and horticulture at Sweet Briar. She holds a certificate in landscape design from the American Landscape School and in 1974 started her own business, Landscape Designs. As a free-lance designer she works with both residential and commercial sites.

Very interested in the restoration and maintenance of historic gardens, she has been responsible for the design of many projects throughout Virginia and currently chairs the grounds committee at Lynchburg's Point of Honor. She is a member of the Board of Directors of The Garden Club of Virginia and former president of the Lynchburg Garden Club.

Contributions to Amherst Public Library Sought as Memorial to Helen Matthew Helen Matthew, widow of R. John Matthew, long-time director of the Junior Year in France Program, was the most important individual in the establishment of the Amherst Public Library many years ago. She mobilized the community in support of a public library, overcoming initial skepticism and even resistance, and worked for the continuing improvement of the library along with other civic causes until the end of her life. A plaque in her memory in the newly renovated and enlarged library building would be a very appropriate tribute.

Anyone wishing to make a gift to the library, dedicated to the memory of Helen Matthew, please contact Professor Gregory Armstrong, Box AY, Sweet Briar, VA 24595.

Memories of Dorothy Moran Bricken 1903-1989

A tribute by Janet Lowrey Gager, delivered at the Memorial Service in the Sweet Briar Chapel, March 2, 1989

I first met Dorothy and Carl Bricken when Perrin* and I and our children spent the 1960-61 year at Sweet Briar. I believe it was at a party at Judy and Art Vogelback's and I remember that Lydia and Peter Daniel and Toni and Larry Nelson were among the guests. The Brickens were fresh from a sabbatical in Mexico and we liked them immediately. We discovered a bond, too, in the University of Chicago, where Perrin was on the faculty and where in the early '30s Carl had organized the Music Department and the Symphony Orchestra. From Chicago Carl had gone to the University of Wisconsin as director of the School of Music; later he went to the West Coast to serve as conductor of the Seattle Symphony. Still later the Brickens returned East to Mendham, NJ, Dorothy's birthplace, where she still owned property. In 1954 they came to Sweet Briar where Carl taught piano and theory until his retirement in 1964.

Dorothy was "to the manor born"—literally, for she lived in a splendid manor house in Mendham overlooking the Hudson River. Her father was the chief engineer for the George Washington Bridge and other well-known structures. Dorothy studied in Europe and moved in fashionable circles. It was a matter of pride that a book on the Tiffany family included a photo of her as a radiant bridesmaid in a Tiffany wedding. Her name remained on the New York Social Register all her life.

Dorothy gave all that up when she married Carl, a brilliant young musician, a Yale graduate who also studied music in Paris and New York. By the time they came to Sweet Briar in 1954, the important things in her life, in addition to Carl and their two grown children, were her garden, birds, and her friendships with the people who are here today.

Upon arrival at Sweet Briar, the Brickens first rented Chinquapin, a house on Main Street, Amherst. When the furniture was unloaded, the floors of the old house gave way under the weight of the grand piano and everything had to be reloaded into the moving van. Later they purchased 60 acres with the old Brown family farmhouse on Old Stage Road, which they remodelled and transformed into the home they loved and which reflected their personalities and interests and where Gage and I live today.

Reminders of the Brickens are everywhere in this house—the brown cowhide wall-covering Carl and Peter Daniel put up in the study; the brick serpentine wall Carl built; the flowers and shrubs Dorothy planted; the bluebird and martin houses Carl erected; Dorothy's greenhouse.

Julia deColigny remembers Dorothy's taking up her shotgun to drive off invasions of starlings. Her good friend and neighbor Liz Wimer remembers going with Carl to dog-training class where Marron the poodle failed dog obedience. Both remember the great parties. At one everyone was given a child's musical instrument with which to accompany Carl on the piano. The Brickens were extremely hospitable not only to their friends but to lonesome, stray people, especially during the holidays.

I recall when Dorothy decided to sell her house and move to Oregon to be with her family. And I remember the Sunday morning in February 1977 when she asked me to come over and walk the property with her. The sun was out, the snow was melting in the woods, nature was stirring and I was captivated. I have never regretted the purchase. My daughter Anne and her family love it, and I think my husband Gage loves it. For me there will always be part of Carl and Dorothy here—their artistic ideas, their love of life, of friends, of nature.

We loved Dorothy. We shall all remember her—her generosity, her valiant spirit, and her friendship.

'20

The granddaughter of Mary Crabbs Shaw, Sarah Morgan, and her husband John visited Sweet Briar and gave the alumnae office news of Mary. Mary is friendly with Florence Elston-Beemer '21, whom she often saw in the days when she lived in Crawfordsville, IN.

'24

President and Acting Secretary Mary Rich Robertson (Mrs. Robert E., Jr.), 1406 Bolton Street, Baltimore, MD 21217
Fund Agent Jean Grant Taylor (Mrs. W. Randolph), 785 Arlington Blvd., Ann Arbor, MI 48104

We, the class of '24, regret to report that there will be no reunion for our 65th this May. Tempus fugit - so go our years; none of us can make it. Except possibly Jean Grant Taylor, who may arrive via wheelchair if granddaughter (assoc. mgr. of Sterns Store in NY) can assist. Jean and husband are dependent on home nursing aides. Betty Guy Tranter is still living in her home with no desire for retirement life. Her two lovely granddaughters are teenagers, very active and Betty enjoys them. Clara King Maxwell is also in her home though handicapped from a broken hip.

Frederica Bernhard has retired from Physical Ed. and is very active in the College Women's Club. She lives at a life care retirement center near Berkeley with the atmosphere of a resort hotel. Helen Guill, retired, living in OH, writes, "I still have a warm spot in my heart for Sweet Briar and a hello to those old enough to remember me." Caroline Flynn Eley writes a greeting card about celebrating with a large family gathering. Eleanor Harned Arp spent the winter at her home in Naples, FL in lieu of the cold of Illinois. She seems well and active.

In Aug. '88, Mary "Mitzi" Henderson, daughter of the late Mary Stephens '24 and Ernest Henderson (founder of the Sheraton Hotel chain) married Frank Perdue, head of Perdue Farms Inc., the nation's fourth largest poultry producer. They are living on his farm in Salisbury, MD. Mary, who has 2 sons by a former marriage, is a major rice producer; the headline in the Baltimore Sun read "Chicken Marries Rice"! Our son enjoyed meeting young Mary's mother, Mary Stephens many years ago when she and her family entertained him at their home in Louisburg Square in Boston while he was a student at Harvard. Best wishes to Mitzi from the Class of '24!

The three of us, my husband, son and I keep well with medication and lead fairly active lives; must add R III is full of energy and interests. Here in Bolton Hill, Baltimore and Maryland, so many alumnae of other years cross my path at lectures, garden clubs, etc. It is truly good to know our state is well related to Sweet Briar and our happy years at the "Patch".

Wishes for health and happiness for one and all of you.

"Tommy" Claybrook Bowie and Gordon spent 6 weeks at the Hillsboro Club in Florida and 2 weeks in Grenada. They enjoyed an evening with the Whitmans. Harold, Gordon and Dee Dee played tennis but Tommy stuck to golf. She is busy now with gardening and spring chores.

Grace Sollitt says this seems to be the year of implants—both Louise Bristol Lindemann and Squeak Harned Ross have had them. Grace is fine—still pulling her oxygen wagon behind her, which limits her activities. Sara Everett Toy has a first great-grandchild, Grace Elizabeth Morgan, daughter of Lisa Lee and Allan Morgan of Staten Island. Virginia Van Winkle Morledge visited Myrtle Beach and Boston last year. She sees Margaret McWilliams Rentschler often and heard from Edith Marshall '21 recently.

Our honorary member, Mary Hughes Vaughan Blackwell sends greetings. She plans to be on campus during Reunion, May 26-28, and hopes that some of us will come back and visit with her.

President Eleanor Wright Conway (Mrs. Theodore J.), 2160 Tanglewood Way NE, St. Petersburg, FL 33702

Secretary Emma Green Kennon (Mrs. W. N.), 132 Amherst Place NW, Atlanta, GA 30327

Fund Agent

Marjorie Ward Cross (Mrs. George H., Jr.), 16 Bedford Court, Wilmington, DE 19805

I had so many cards full of news it warms my heart! And makes my pacemaker purr! Eleanor Wright Conway, our simply great class Prexy, sounds content in St. Petersburg, FL and recounts visits with their two daughters during the past year. Laura Conway Nason ('61), husband and one son John, came in Feb. John, a Dartmouth grad, has his own rock group who have made a very successful record, "Moon Rocks". The Nason's older son Ted, also a Dartmouth grad, is in graduate school at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute (you remember that Grandfather Ted is not only a Four Star General but a Ph.D. as well). In July they flew to Indianapolis to visit daughter Ruth Wilms and family. Ruth's older daughter, Meg, and husband from Eagle, Alaska were there. A mini-family reunion. A late, excited note from El announced the birth, on Jan. 31, of their first great grandchild, in Fairbanks, AK. Daniel Walter Hellmer was born in the ambulance en route to the hospital after a helicopter trip from Eagle on the Yukon! Susan Marshall Timberlake (Tiny) and Wayt hope to see Courtenay Cochran Ticer at the VMI reunion of Wayt and Courtenay's brother this spring. Roberta Drane Jones and W.E. took the Royal Viking Sun's pre-inaugural cruise from London in Dec. They have spent 5 months of the year in Crystal River for the past 16 years, and the rest of the year in Nashville. They have 2 sons, Hilliard, who is with IBM in Poughkeepsie and Bill, a clinical psychologist in Virginia Beach. Four grandchildren, aged 19-22. Eleanor Franke Crawford sounded well and happy, in her Christmas card.

Dot Smith Berkeley sent me a windfall of news. She told me that Connie Fowler Keeble had a heart attack last spring so she has now moved to be near one of her sons in Beaverton, OR. I'm glad to say she is fine now and has a nice apt. only two miles from her son, Burt and his family. Her other son, a banker, lives in Frankfurt, Germany. Anne McRae spent the summer in Maine and is still writing but says her writing is momentarily at a standstill. Marjorie Miller Close and Jack visited their daughter and family in Cambridge last spring where Jenny Gray's husband was on a two year grant. A granddaughter is at the U. of Wisconsin, another is at McGill, and a grandson is at the U. of Brit. Col. so their family is scattered. Dot and Edmund spent most of last summer in Great Britain researching in London. Two weeks in Wales, a week in Scotland, then an 11-day cruise to North Cape on a mail cargo ship. Their Featherstonhaugh biography has finally been published by the U. of Ala. Press. They are now editing John Bartram's letters. Their daughter, Judy Berkeley Harrison (ex '60) and Bill moved to Raleigh, NC, where they just finished building a house, Judy is working in a hospital there. Emma Knowlton Lytle sent exciting news of the NY showing of her and her daughter's paintings and sculptures. Emma's daughter is Susan Lytle Cory. The name of the exhibit was "Eighty/Forty: The Ages, the Work of Two Artists: Mother and Daughter". I wish I had space to quote all the comments about the works of these two artists. I quote the last short paragraph from the program: "Two lives in art. Two mature artists, one realistic, one abstract, indebted yet separate. They reveal their individual, related and universal worlds in Eighty/Forty." Our congratulations to Emma, and Lytle Cory! Pat Ward Cross our dedicated Fund Agent, writes of seeing El Wright Conway in St. Pete, then on to Nashville for the college graduation of a grandson, then in September to Switzerland and France. Between travels she is still a guide at Winterthur Museum. She is also doing a great job as our Fund Agent. Virginia (Squibby) Squibb Flynn and Hazel Stamps Collins enjoyed a Sweet Briar luncheon together last February in Naples, FL. Sue Burnett Davis and Tread plan to join Squibby and Jim there this February. Squibby and Jim keep busy and happy with their volunteer jobs, visiting children and grandchildren in MA and VT. Squibby is still working for SBC in several ways. Ruth Kerr Fortune is still working in real estate and enjoying it. She hears frequently from Elizabeth Job (Jobie) Jopp. They have had some nice trips together over the years. She looks forward to the Sweet Briar magazines. Amalie Frank Kohn wrote a quick card as she was leaving for Ft. Lauderdale, and manages to visit her two daughters, one in Virginia and one in Manhattan. I'm glad to surmise that her hip replacements have been successful. Our sympathy goes to Jane Hays Dowler on the death of her sister this past year, but she says her three children have really rallied around. The family spent Thanksgiving week-end in Monterey. She says she is drowning in computers. Her daughter teaches Basic Computer Science, her older son is an engineer in computers, and they gave her a phone that is so "high-tech" she is almost afraid of it! She is thankful for her younger son who is a contractor; that she can almost understand! She is "rising above" arthritis, and is fine. Eleanor Nolte Armstrong is living in a new 25-story retirement center near her son and family. Some of her old friends have moved into the same center and she is enjoying them as well as making many new friends. Betsy Higgins Plummer is still in her own home, busy with gardening, golf and bridge. She has done much traveling this past year, with a Caribbean Cruise, a cruise into Russia, 2 weeks in England, and 3 weeks in India, which she loved! She is planning to start '89 with a visit to friends in Hawaii then go by ship through the South Seas to Peru and the Galapagos. "I think I'd better do these things while I can—it's later than you think!" Margaret Ellen Bell Hare wrote her card from "the land of the Counterpane", where she was impatiently convalescing from flu. She calls Stan a "busy little housewife". A very welcome response from Rip Van Winkle McClure in Louisville, KY to tell us she is still on foot and able to see and hear all that is necessary, but unable to keep up with national and international activities of her beloved buddy, Sally Shallenburger Brown. Her Sweet Briar daughter, Chenault Conway, has a daughter graduating from Princeton and a son Stewart, who is a freshman at Emory. Hazel Stamps Collins divides her time between Naples, Florida and Atlanta. She, Lib Douglass Foote and I had lunch last summer and I met her in a shopping mall just before Christmas, her same old sweet self! Lib Douglass Foote and I see a lot of each other, both being avid bridge players and living close by. Lib is fine and goes often to Montgomery for weddings and other family occasions. Her oldest granddaughter, Elizabeth Talley, graduated from Vanderbilt in June '88, and works for a bank; her youngest, Alice Talley, is a freshman at Georgia State University. The middle one, Meg, is a junior at the College of Charleston. We had our annual New Year's Eve party for "left over people and left over food", and everybody had a great time in an elderly sort of way. The first rule is, if you get a better invitation, accept it. The second rule is, you have to be gone by 10 PM! Ruth Remon McRae is playing in bridge marathons, entertaining visitors, and traveling, and is blessed with good health. She had a wonderful visit with Lib Doughtie Bethea in Memphis last March, a trip to Puerto Rico in April, and goes to Russia in June '89 for two weeks. Lib Doughtie Bethea has a busy, active life too, with a visit also from Ted Clary Treadwell and Ben. Her portrait artist daughter, Brandon, had a grand trip to Ireland, which included pheasant hunting. A Christmas card to Ruth from Trudy Buist Robert, reported that her husband is feeling fine after a heart bypass. Fran Sencindiver Stewart and her husband have moved from their house to a condo in Arlington, VA. Charlotte Magoffin wrote her usual cheery card, not complaining about her quiet life at home, occupied with books, music, and family. Helen Pratt Secrest says her news is much the same year after year, ballet, bridge, church work, and gardening. A happy highlight was the wedding of a granddaughter in Albuquerque which she went out for. She stayed 2 weeks with her daughter and husband, Alan. He was just out of the hospital from double heart bypass. While out there she spent a day in Santa Fe. Eleanor Mattingly Littlepage, in Hampton Roads, VA is retired from medical practice and misses it still. She retired 8 years ago to take care of her ill husband, and after his death never returned to it. She sounds well. Allice Dabney Parker writes of an active year of travels and time spent with her two daughters. A white Christmas with daughter Fleming in Westchester Co., NY; New Years Day at her home in Franklin, VA with the family gathered for the dedication of two stained glass windows in their church in memory of her husband, John. She is planning a trip in March with daughter Betsy to Egypt and Jordan, then to London for 2 weeks in a small flat. Stewart Groner Moreno tells about her accident in December '87 when her sweater caught fire. Her husband saved her life, but both suffered third-degree burns. What a nightmare accident! They are well and happy now, though, and saw their daughter and her new husband in Tuscaloosa last summer. They also talked to Betsy Higgins Plummer in Birmingham. Stewart and John see Marion Malm Fowler, and Mac occasionally. Marion (Pat) writes of the birth of their first great grandson last January. The baby and his parents spent Christmas in Lima, Peru with his mother's family. Their Florida son-in-law had a heart attack while jogging in December, but is recovering nicely. She and Mac leave the end of January for a cruise to the South Pacific on the new Crown Odyssey. Anna Gilbert Davy and Hugh, those enthusiastic travelers, have remained in the USA for the past year due to Hugh's second successful hip replacement. But, now they hope to get back to golf and travel in '89. They had a wonderful Christmas with their children and grands in Carmel. Doris Hodgdon Wenning, since her husband's death in 1986, lives in CT and divides her time between her son and daughter in Stamford. She enjoys very much the alumnae magazine.

Courtenay Cochran Ticer has moved to a retirement community in Williamsburg, VA. What a lovely place to be! Wish I had known she was there because all my family spent Christmas in Williamsburg, and I could have seen her. I predict Courtenay will have a waiting list of visitors! Barbara Munter Purdue and Bob are spending January and part of February on their annual trip to Hawaii. They came east in November to make the rounds of children and grandchildren. There is a new baby boy in the Washington, DC branch, making a total of 8. The oldest is a freshman in college. Two generations of grandchildren! They invited me to meet them in Savannah in Nov. for a couple of days, and we had a grand time together "doing" the city. We drove back to Atlanta where they spent the night with me before departing for Seattle. I'm so glad they put me on their itinerary for their annual trek east! Barbara had lunch in Hawaii with Marge Gubelman Hasterl '31 and Mildred Larimer. Mildred has angina but it is controlled by medication, and she swims every day, walks, gardens and does yoga. She had 2 nice trips in '88 - one on the QE2 from Honolulu through the Panama Canal to Fort Lauderdale, and the other in Europe.

Marcia Patterson's cousin, Beth Zehnder who writes about Marcia each year had good news for us. Marcia had a successful cataract operation and can read again! She could read her Christmas cards herself this year, and was able to spend part of Christmas Day at Beth's home for dinner with the family. She plays cards with the aides at Westminster Terrace, who care for her lovingly, and several days a week, she participates in an exercise class via wheelchair. Her spirits are wonderful! She sends her love to all of us always. Hallie Orr Barton is well and happy in Austin. Their daughter is a counselor in the Houston public schools and their son a lawyer in Austin; they have 3 grandchildren. Elizabeth Layfield Smith is still living in her home in Raleigh with her 102-year-old mother and nurses. Her husband is in a convalescent center. One daughter lives in San Francisco with her lawyer husband and son (16). Her other 2 daughters live in Denver and she has a Princeton graduate grandson who works for the Rockefeller Foundation in NY. Sally Ainsworth Glass is well and sends everybody her love. She is always happy to read our good news and sympathizes in our times of distress. Now I am down to me. My great sorrow was the loss of my older daughter Karen, last February to lung cancer two months after it was discovered. She was courageous, and I am truly thankful she didn't linger on in pain. Somehow when totally unexpected shocks come you can deal with it through faith in God's love. My pace-maker is doing fine, and I was able to take a Mediterranean cruise last fall—I climbed about 3/4th of the way up to the Acropolis, and my pacemaker said "no further", so I obeyed. It was a marvellous experience, especially Ephesus, but hard on oldies!

My love to you all.

My appeal for news-Year 1988 and I - brought an interesting observation - we 36ers seem to be breaking ourselves into well defined groups. Outstanding is "the mother of a grandfather or grandmother." Lillian Kent Steele boasts great granddaughter, Ariana Lindsay Friend. And that brings news also of one grandson, a lawyer in Washington, DC, and another in New Jersey in a private firm. Mary Poindexter Willingham and Windy have "4 great grands and expecting 2 more soon. We are multiplying with in laws and great grandchildren." Kathleen Donohue McCormack writes, "I am a great grandmother. The score: 4 sons, 8 granddaughters, 1 great grandson". The first sentence of Katie Niles Parker's card is, "Our first great grandchild, Julia Tanner Holly, was born in March and on Dec. 31 was much admired at the wedding of one of our grandsons. Anne Thompson Smith begins her news with travel but quickly says, "also acquired 2 great grandchildren, Katie Hammond and William Smith IV." Martha Talley Devereux is not yet in the great grandchildren class, but she and her retired doctor husband take pride in the achievements of their 5 grandchildren, among them, presidency of student council and English Award for the second year.

Two celebrated 50th wedding anniversaries. Jane Coolidge Stevens says: "Jim and I celebrated our 50th in June with 5 sons, 4 daughters-in-law, 10 grandchildren and some friends from our wedding party." Alice Andrews Fackert writes, "You mentioned our 50th in the past issue. We went to Nova Scotia to celebrate. Music still plays a big part in my life."

At our age (73 plus) it's thrilling to record trips for 7 of us. For Kim Carr Baldwin "the high point of the year was a trip to England with my son Bob and his wife Anne to visit my daughter Stuart (exSB), her husband Andrew and their grown daughter and son - Louise in her second year at Oxford and Matthew just returned from a hike through Nepal and India. Dorothy Harper Bridgers and her granddaughter, Mary Margaret Cranz (SB'84) enjoyed Stockholm in February and also Bermuda. It was the U.S. for Lillian Cabell Gay who enjoyed a bass fishing camp in Lake George and a fly fishing school in the Tallahassee area. "Just back from the Fiesta Bowl and a trip through the New England Islands on a cruise boat in August," I read on a card from Martha Hornor Maxwell. Surely the most travelled of us is Mary Virginia Camp Smith. She not only had a trip last year to Kenya but a 3-week trip to France, "an elegant trip under the auspices of Friends of old French Houses". And Peggy Durringer Garrett left her highrise apartment in Texas to spend Thanksgiving with her two children in Barbados. Ruth Robinson Marshall looks forward to a trip to Mary Poindexter Willingham's Florida home. And Logan Phinizy Johns writes: "D.V., Maria Gray Valentine and Ted Curtis, Jackie Moore Hoofnagle and Bill and I will transit the Panama Canal with a few ports of call in the Caribbean in February." One of the joys to me for 1988 was an unexpected "run into" with Logan in Richmond.

Then there are those not travelling but leading the good life on the home front! Margaret "Smitty" Thomasson continued hiking trips on the Appalachian Trail with a group of 11 and along with Rusty attended the Winter Forums at SBC. Also in Lynchburg Ruth Gilliam Viar is busy with volunteer work at Jones Memorial Library (genealogy), helping with "meals on wheels" and awaiting a new grandchild. Sophie Campbell Brown attended her 50th reunion at U.Va. last year and got her Jefferson Certificate. Helen Stebbins visited the SB campus while in Lynchburg for granddaughter's graduation from Lynchburg College. Margaret Robertson Whitney says, "Until I came back to Virginia to live at Goodwin House West I had forgotten how lovely is the spring. Our change of residence has brought us new friends, some with SB connections."

Emily Bowen Muller writes, "George and I are still enjoying the cool weather in the Pacific N.W.". There she has installed a Church Librarians group of Island County with 15 librarians of different denominations. Capel Grimes Gerlach reports a second knee totally reconstructed in October. Frances Gregory is in Cambridge this winter. She spent 2 weeks in Baker Hospital, but is now fully recovered. She had just been notified that "to my surprise the Department established an annual award in my name to an outstanding senior." From her friend Fran Baker Lamb, I have news of Nancy Braswell Holderness; a proud moment came when her two Presbyterian minister sons were together in the pulpit on a special occasion. There was another proud moment for one of us. Lillian Cabell Gay said, "Our Cuban 'son' who lived with us in Bethlehem and Albuquerque days was made President of Salem College in MA. We danced at his inaugural ball." "Pinkie" Scott's life is a "replay - healthy and well, all 6 grandchildren thriving, some travel, still working on the Westminster Canterbury Community here-we've started building it now."

"1988 is best forgotten by me," wrote one. So it was for several. Suzanne Mott Strother: "I lost my husband suddenly last March. However I am fortunate in having children and grandchildren nearby. So let's look ahead to '89." Dorothea McClure is fortunate also to be living near her daughter in Clemson, SC since her husband died last August. Margaret Huxley Dick's daughter Carol died out in Spokane, Washington in early March. "It's been a horrendous spring. Thank heavens for my other children who have been so supportive." Lib Morton Hodges wants 1988 forgotten, as I do. Barry had two major operations in January and these just 6 months after a broken hip. He still hasn't gotten his strength back but the outlook for 89 is better. So is it better for Robert after 1988 brought him 4 hospital stays from April to June trying to have his body "take on" a hip replacement. We hope they are now compatible.

The 1936 notes conclude with Fran Baker Lamb's charming rhyme: '88 and I, give joyful cry, of welcome to babies, of Lamb nieces, Delightful ooh's, Lovely fleeces."

Our class response has been most gratifying again. We start with Eleanor Bosworth Badal, whose letter reached me in 1988 after the class notes had been mailed. This was because she, with her husband, Dan, spend the winter months in their apartment in Naples, FL, where they relax and play tennis. "Ellie" sees her Junior Year roommate, Pat Ackard, in Naples. Back home in Cleveland Heights, OH, "Ellie" volunteers with bereavement groups and visits people in crisis. Dan, a medical doctor, is writing a second book now that his A Complete Guide to Depression and Related Effects has been published. They now have a combined family of 6 grandchildren and 5 step-children, who are scattered from Paris to Tucson, AZ. Going to and from FL, Eleanor sees Margaret Dowell Kearney in McLean, VA, and Jane Bush Long in Augusta, GA. (Jane saw Eleanor's daughter when in Paris in Feb. '88.) Eleanor enclosed in her letter a Chattanooga, TN, newspaper clipping about Mildred Moon Montague's receiving a "Big Brothers/Big Sisters" honor. Mildred, with husband, Bill, attends the (Golf) Masters annually in Augusta, GA, where they see Jane Bush Long and her sister, Mariana Bush King and their husbands. The Montagues also have seen Nancy Haskins Elliot and Katherine Estes Johnston. Katherine and Gilbert joined Carrington Lancaster Pasco and Merrill for a week in AZ. Mildred tells us that Martha Rector McGee of Roanoke, VA, is feeling better after gall bladder surgery. Another Chattanooga Times clipping was of a most attractive photo of Mildred, this time receiving another award, one for 14 years of dedication to the Boys' Club of Chattanooga. Though now tapering off her activities, Mildred is continuing to concentrate on the Children's Foundation of the T.C. Thompson Hospital.

C. P. Neel of Atlanta, GA, has resorted to Mini-Maids for housecleaning help while her tumor remains in remission. Her newest addition is a neutered Russian Blue (cat). C. P. telephones Margaret Katterjohn McCollom in Henderson, KY about twice a month, as well as Jane McPherson, SBC '44. Margaret has 4 children, all of whom with the grandchildren live in KY. Margaret babysits for her daughter's children: her son has taken over the management of Soaper Farms, where Katherine Hodge Soaper and Richard live. Katherine drove with Margaret and 2 friends last summer around Lake Michigan. In August, Katherine with her 2 sons and some of their friends and parents plus 5 oarsmen shot the rapids on the Snake River in Hell's Canyon, ID, for 6 days of excitement. Back home some more excitement awaited her—the arrival of a new grandchild.

Clara Sasser Chandler of Chevy Chase, MD, sent in a very nice note. Adelaide Boze Glascock of Short Hills, NJ, and Jim visited the Cote d'Azur in May '88 where "Polly" met a Mt. Holyoke graduate from CT, who had lived with the same family in Paris, that "Polly" had on her Junior Year Abroad, only with a 2 year's difference. "Polly" is still working hard in real estate, but she and Jim took a delightful cruise to Alaska in September, along with Grace Bugg Muller-Thym, SBC '42, and her remarkable mother. In October, when SBC President Neenah Fry and Bill Meadows were visiting Northern New Jersey's SBC Clubs, "Polly" met Constance Currie Fleming and husband at the home of Ginger Newman Blanchard.

Happy news was received from Jean Tyree about her marriage to John Marcus Oseth (Capt. USN Ret.). John was a classmate of Jean's first husband so they have many friends in common. He is a scuba diver, likes hot air-ballooning and is handsome to boot! Blair Bunting Both and her husband moved into a new home, not far from their former home, at 126 Pond's Lane, Wilmington, DE 19807. A new kitchen is the big attraction. Blair continues bereavement work with the Delaware Hospice, cooking for the soup kitchen, plus co-leading a weekly meditation group at church. Emory Gill Williams had a big Thanksgiving weekend in Richmond with their 5 children, spouses and 11 grandchildren. The night before, these children gave Emory a party for "her big birthday". This was followed by Carrington's 87-year old aunt having a reception for 150 Williamses. Now #12 grandchild has joined them. During the winter months, Emory and Carrington move to Richmond. In the spring, they return to Irvington, VA. They took an SBC trip to Italy last October. Cynthia Noland Young and Karl left CT for the South in March '88, after her bout with pneumonia. En route, Cynthia telephoned Virginia Allison Haywood, her freshman year roommate, and a luncheon in Raleigh resulted. This was a 40-year reunion! A visit by the Haywoods to Roxbury, CT was made later. The Young's 5 grandchildren are scattered in CT, CO, TX, MA, VT and NC. Cynthia and Karl are looking for winter "digs" in warmer climates.

Helen W. Taylor, M.D., now that she has retired, finally dug herself out of her house of 36 years, and can now be visited at: 408 Dundaff Street, Apt. 703, Norfolk, VA 23507. Janet Martin Bennett has lived in Sarasota for about 4 years, delivering Meals-on-Wheels once a week and swimming daily. Kathleen Ward Allen of Tucson, AZ, with husband, John, took a trip to China in '88. Each year they travel east to visit their daughter and family; then on to FL for 5 weeks in April and May. Summer finds them on Cape Cod for 10 days, then off in their camp in the Adirondacks. Virginia Leggett Cameron's calamondin orange tree was covered with small fruit in Nov. in Palm Beach Gardens, FL, signalling time for her to make jam! Teaching parapsychology and other classes has proved to be a wonderful way to meet fascinating people. Her life is calmer now that her children are well-established with 2 granddaughters.

Louise Pugh Worthing of Cincinnati, OH, with husband, Clifford, cruised Greece and Turkey last Oct., with a QE2 Winter Cruise on their calendar to follow, which will take them from Rio to L.A. via the Straits of Magellan. A granite studio is being built on their ME farm. Ramona Spurlock Fite had a grand trip to the Galapagos in Jan. and saw Anne Thomas Smith in Charleston in Feb. - "She's one handsome and vital senior citizen!" Elizabeth Ivins Haskins, "Ivy", and Bill moved about a year ago to a smaller dwelling, but warn that adding on to a house takes longer than planned. Last year's Thanksgiving was spent with 2 daughters and families on Nantucket, where they all bicycled en masse. Christmas was back in Concord, with most of their family of 4 children and 7 "grandones". Charlotte Knox Lane continues as Executive Director of Washington County Tourism, PA, and attended the National Tourism Association meeting in Kansas City in Nov. That was followed with a 7-day cruise aboard the SS Norway with her husband, returning home via FL. Their first grandchild was married in Oak Ridge, TN, last July, she being the eldest of their 7 grandchildren. Jane Westphalen Gray travels with Everett, plays tennis and loves being a grandmother. She has had their 17-year-old granddaughter living with them for 2 1/2 years now in St. Louis, MO, as their son died 11 years ago. That keeps Jane busy as well as young.

Though her postcard was unsigned, I believe it was from Reba Smith Gromel, at the moment in the Sarasota area. However, by the end of this year, she and George, after a year of not being in the best of health, will have moved to an apartment in a retirement center in Midlothian, VA. Our new Fund Agent therefore is Constance Chalkley Kittler of Ware Neck, VA. She and Kit have been quite well this past year after the opposite a year ago. They love their country home, but do a little traveling. Beth Thomas Tate from Seattle says that all is well. They recently moved into a smaller home on one floor, but in the same neighborhood as before, all before Tate had open-heart surgery, his 6th by-pass, last Sept. As of Nov. he was able to return to work. Daughter, Anne Tate, SBC '66, and family were with them for a merry Thanksgiving. Irene Vongehr Vincent had a marvelous time while attending her 52nd reunion of Kuling American School in China. Irene and John had 2 weeks on their sailboat after Labor Day, sailing to San Juan Island, which they had almost all to themselves.

Christmas gifts of a MacIntosh Control for Georgia Herbert Hart of Columbia, SC, along with Cable TV with remote controls for George, are giving them both much pleasure. She considers the 2 of them lucky to have children and grandchildren with whom they can have fun, along with being able to play golf and bridge, swim, garden, walk and read. Another active person is Ann Adamson Taylor, though in the political field. A trip to New Orleans as a Bush Delegate was a highlight in '88. Over the holidays, daughter Sally Taylor, SBC '70, a publishing reporter who covers the world, was with Ann in Baltimore. But home to Ann is still in Richmond, VA, where she keeps an apartment. Margorie Lee Stock Clemens volunteers at the local library and for the Heritage Society in St. Joseph, MI. She took an Elderhostel trip to Ireland, Scotland and London last year. Word about Helen Anderson Bryan was sent in by Mildred Moon Montague in a newspaper clipping with Helen's photo. Helen is very much involved in musical activities in Chattanooga. Her granddaughter is following in her footsteps. As a ballet dancer, this granddaughter performed in the city's Nutcracker performance over the holidays. A son of Mildred's is a Board Member of the Chattanooga Ballet.

Joy Carter Forse says that no news from her in San Antonio is good news, really. Jeanne Harris is thoroughly enjoying her retirement from the Nelson-Atkin Museum of Art in Kansas City, MO. She is now joining the DAR, tracking down her genealogy and attending Great Books' groups in KC, a most culturally-inclined city. Still enjoying Palm Desert, CA's sunshine are Clara Call Frazier and Bill. They also travel east in the spring and fall, especially to Clara's sister's home in Bristol, VA near TN. The Fraziers like it there and have found another house for themselves, to stay in when in town. Barbara Smith Whitlock of Hillside, NJ, goes into NYC, meeting "Ivy" Haskins, down from Concord, and "Connie" Currie Fleming, in from NJ, for luncheon. In April '88, Barbara's daughter took her to Palm Springs, CA, on a business trip, where Barbara had a wonderful visit with Helen ("Hug") Schmid Hardy and Bill, as well as with Clara Call Frazier and her Bill. Otherwise, Barbara and Jim get together with their children, all 4 of whom with 5 "grandones" came "home" for Christmas from CA, ME, Ithaca, NY, and Brooklyn. Barbara enclosed a New York Times article written by Mary Lee Settle Tazewell about travel in Virginia.

Constance Currie Fleming, from her summer home in Chatham, NJ, wrote of their 2 grandsons - the 15-year old at Andover, and the 11-year old on a Princeton, NJ, school hockey team. Her daughter-in-law has written two books on the Ancient Chinese Art of Placement. She and the family now live in Fairhaven, NJ, which brings them nearer to Connie. Connie and her husband winter in FL. Agnes Spencer Burke's daughter and family live in Kerwick, VA, which is near Agnes in D.C. Another daughter and family live still nearer, in Rockville, MD, while her son and family live in Mill Valley, CA. They do come east, though, and visited Agnes during the Inaugural '89 festivities. All 3 children go to the Burke's place on Squam Lake for summer vacations. Agnes keeps in touch with Stuart Hensley Woodward of Alexandria, VA. Mary Miller Naquin Sharp and Bob were in Europe for a month in December. Mary goes twice a year as U.S. delegate and v.p. of the World Federation of Friends of Museums. (If you want to join, call her.) She has 4 children from VT to NC and so far, 4 grandchildren. Mildred Mitchell Gillis and Watson are both retired but busier than ever. Living in Ormond Beach, FL, "Mickie" teaches "Parenting" classes in the public schools and also part-time at Daytona Beach Community College. Watson is a Fuller Brush representative. They have 5 grandchildren, ages 12 to 1 1/2 years. Margaret Caperton Ranken of Wilmington, DE, says her Bill is retired now so they can enjoy their 6 grandchildren more often. The Rankens have a condo on the beach in NC.

Ruth Beach Robinson's only note was about the death of Ann Sims on December 18, 1987. Ann had lived in Fort Smith; Ruth lives in Fayetteville, both in Arkansas. Maria Burroughs Livingston passes on a note of interest that the Livingstons and their life-style have been written about by Stephen Birmingham in his book America's Secret Aristocracy. "Phoopy" says that Henry is portrayed as a very handsome squire. Jacqueline Sexton Daley of Belmont, CA, had an African 'daughter' visit in August, bringing her mother and son, who was named after Jacquie's husband, Jack Ellis. Jacquie is certain that there is no other person in Kenya with that name! Jacquie's Jack is now totally disabled, so she stays close to home to be with him. Helen Cornwell Jones of Princeton, NJ, writes that her and Homer's favorite vacation spots are now in and near Asheville, NC, as well as at our campus' new Florence Elston Inn. They loved staying at the newly-opened inn where they can then stop in at the Alumnae Office, shop at the Bookstore, and visit the Dell. According to the summer '88 alumnae magazine, page 14, Helen hosted the SBC day luncheon for the Princeton, NJ, area at her home. According to the same magazine, on page 13, Elizabeth ("Nickie") Gockley McLellan is the Key Alumna in her Long Island Alumnae group. Nickie's home is in Garden City.

Hazel Marshall Sterrett Allen of Charlotte, NC, says that her Bill is now retired. All 4 children are married and have given them 7 grandchildren. Bridge is "Puckie's" favorite past-time, so she and her husband went on a great Bill Root Bridge Cruise on the Royal Viking Sky. Though Charlotte is home, summers are spent in Linville, NC, where Puckie can now play golf after having had a bad back for 2 years. She sees Mary Scully Olney about once a year when the Allens visit Savannah. Nancy Haskins Elliot of Pasadena and David had three fascinating weeks in China in June '88, and later went to Italy. Now retired, they love to travel, but always love to return home. Anne Conant Weaver still skis, sails and scuba dives. Because she is over 70 now, she can ski 'free' in her Grand Lake, CO, home territory. Elizabeth Hammer Morrell lives in North Myrtle Beach, NC, where she is very much involved in Episcopal church work and with the American Cancer Society. Martha Janney Smith McGowan is a retired librarian in Rialto, CA. She visits her middle daughter in Garden Valley, CA, as well as Oregon friends and relatives. A trip to CT in June '88 was made for her brother's daughter's wedding. Her brother's wife is Ann Whittington Smith, SBC '52. Martha then went sightseeing in Boston.

My freshman roommate, Rosemary Bjorge Johnson from Cross Plains, WI, said that 1988 was a very good year for the Johnsons. They traveled to Disney World and Sanibel, FL, with family, and then to Annapolis in June for Dick's 50th Naval Academy reunion and had 3 days with very special old friends. Rosemary later joined a U.C./Berkeley roommate, going to Isle Royale in Lake Superior where there were wildflowers, wild life, hiking trails and views to remember—all without any help from MacDonald's! Last fall, with her 2 daughters, Rosemary cruised the St. Lawrence Seaway and explored Toronto, Kingston and Quebec. Over Christmas, the whole family gathered at their son's home in Berwyn, PA. When back at their own home, she and Dick keep their house and garden in reasonable shape, and Rosemary still does volunteer work.

I am active in garden club and native plant/wildflower societies. Laurence and I co-chair a social group at our Presbyterian church, because no one else will! We had some very nice trips in '88, one being to school friend's 40th wedding anniversary in the St. Louis, MO area. I had been her maid-of-honor. It turned into a wonderful long weekend. The other half of my time is spent volunteering at our family company's offices, where I love to find fax messages from around the world each day. Our son is now President. I find the financial end of the business world, done on computers and laser printers, most interesting but often mind-boggling.

It has truly been gratifying to hear from so many of you. Next year at this time, we will be gearing up for our 50th reunion on campus. I look forward to seeing as well as hearing from all of you.

We will have quite a sizable group of '44 classmates at our 45th in May. Response to my request for news has again been very rewarding.

In June Catherine Tift Porter called to say that Pat Whitaker Waters would be in town to attend a wedding. Bev Holleman Richard had Tee, Pat, Betty Haverty Smith and me for lunch in her charming Japanese home. We had a delightful time discussing children, grandchildren and travels. Back in March Alice Johnson Fessenden had sent me quite an article about John Waters, Jr., that had appeared in The Salt Lake Tribune. Pat's son has had quite a career as a filmmaker. Pat and husband John again rented a house in England at Somerset near Glastonbury. Betty and Tee both saw Helen Crump Cutler at Ponte Vedra recently. Helen and Jack spend 4 or 5 months a year in London; the rest in Ponte Vedra.

Our world traveler, Lucile Christmas Brewster, and Bill, in the spring of '88, journeyed to Thailand, Viet Nam, Kampuchea and Borneo. They even got to Ankor Wat, and in August, went on safari in Zambia, snorkling in Egypt and to the tip of the Sinai Peninsula. Alice Fessenden has been tending to 5 G's since retirement: grandchildren, golf, going, gardening and genealogy. In the going category she has been to Mexico, Canada and Greece. Another traveler is Millie Brenizer Lucas, who is on her way to London for a week and then will journey to Pretoria, South Africa. There she will visit her son Bill, a foreign service officer with the State Dept., and his family. Richard and Betty Williams Gookin had a lovely trip touring Cornwall and Devon, and then in August Fence flew to Waterford, Ireland, for a large family wedding. In November Richard, as Protocol Officer for the State Dept., escorted the family of a deceased Ambassador of Zambia home; on the return trip he was the only passenger on an Air Force C-141, and they had two delightful forced stops on Ascension Island and Bermuda!

In the fall I had a phone call from Norma Bradley Arnold, who was at the Atlanta Airport on her way to France with Joe. They had a delightful trip with Olan and "Butch" (SBC '60) Mills. Marty Falk Vallery tried to call in January on her way to winter in FL, but I was away. When she wrote later, she was looking forward to having Norma and Joe for supper that night. Marty had talked earlier to Sterling Nettles Murray, Libby Pierce Oliver and Dotty Beutell Smith. Dotty lives in a small town in NY state and loves it. She has returned to the study of music and has had her first lesson since the 1950's.

Libby Vaughan Bishop spends at least 2 weeks every summer in Santa Fe, enjoying the cool mountain air and the operas and chamber music. She continues as a Garden Club of America flower show judge. Jane Rice McPherson reported on her wonderful family gathering with all 3 children and daughter Heather's husband at Heather's home in Indianapolis. Her son Duane is close to completing work on his doctoral degree. Jane also reported that Jean Blanton Murphy had recently lost her husband. Jean told the Alumnae Office that Jim's death in Dec. '88 left her with a tremendous sense of loss, but also deep gratitude for their enriching years together. Since last reunion, Jean has a new daughter-in-law and granddaughter, who with husband/father John moved in Jan. '89 to Alexandria, VA, 1/2 mile from Jean's house. A year ago, Jean left her job at Wesley Theological Seminary and now works part-time for Dr. Edward Bauman, senior pastor of her church, the United Methodist Church. In May, Jean is going to Greece with her 2 youngest daughters, arriving home on May 26, hoping to head for SBC pronto, jet lag and all!

Anita Lippitt Clay visited her son and his family in Marietta, GA, over Christmas. Tee and I had lunch with her and heard all about her Italian lessons and her continued interest in music. Anne Mitchell Betty and her husband, a retired banker, recently purchased a town house in Asheville. They also have a winter home in a fishing village in FL. Both sons are bankers, one in FL and one in Atlanta; their daughter is also in FL.

Ray and Margie Eggers Perry went in the fall to New Zealand, Australia and the Great Barrier Reef. Mary Jane Brock spent 3 weeks in England and then went to CA to visit friends at Thanksgiving. In the past year, Ann Moore Remington in her role as travel agent has been to South Africa, France, England, Holland and the Canary Islands. Sloan Hawkins Ward and her husband were off to China with friends in January. Her 3 children, all married, live from Mississippi to Manhattan.

Lois Patton Odell's job at Family Service has expanded to include Eldercare Consultation Service provided by IBM and Aetna for their employees, so she does not plan retirement soon. As in the past she has enjoyed Elderhosteling in Kino Bay, Mexico, and in Sorrento, Italy, with Don. Pat's daughter, Lauren MacMannis Huyett, SBC '79, will attend her 10th reunion in May. Pat and Louise Smith Barry meet periodically. Louise and Wright have had a very "mountainous" year: CO for her father's 90th birthday, Yosemite, the NH White Mtns., and a visit with Murrell Rickards Chadsey and her husband in VT. Ricky wrote that Chad, currently president of the Yale Club, gave her a tea dance for her birthday in Nov. at the Yale Club. She was planning a trip to St. Croix to see her first grandchild in March; her son is managing a resort there. Her other son is in real estate in NYC and a bona fide explorer when he can get away.

Louise Hesson Shelburne had a busy year as President of Women of the Church in her Presbyterian Church in Asheville. Ellen Boyd Duval Miller and Billy continue to enjoy their life in the country. Marjorie Woods Williamson and Rush spent 5 fabulous weeks in China with Elderhostel and were planning a trip to Fredericksburg and Williamsburg for Christmas. Hannah Mallory Perkins enjoys retirement in her lovely tidewater town of Tappahannock where many challenging volunteer activities present themselves, such as the local literacy program, historic tour guiding, the church and a capital campaign for St. Margaret's.

Helen Gravatt Watt and Bill had a wonderful 2-week bus tour through Germany, Switzerland and Austria last summer. They also spent a week in Oxford with friends and enjoyed visiting old haunts. Peggy Gordon Seiler is using her legal background as a volunteer serving as Chairman of the Public Affairs Committee of Va. for the Mentally Ill. Mildred Faulconer Bryant is busier than ever since she retired from teaching after 35 years; she teaches a Bible class at her church, and is church treasurer and secretary of the Women's Club. Margie Ridgely Keith's daughter was married in September and her son's wife had a little girl weighing under 3 pounds, at birth, but now growing by leaps and bounds.

Emily Wilkins Mason reports that husband Tom is still acting; he has a small part in "Mississippi Burning" and played a demanding role in "Painting Churches" in a summer theatre in Mars Hill, NC. They are going to Guatemala in Feb. and will return by way of Mexico City and San Miguel d'Allende. Em also reported that Anne Woods Guzzardi's son is a resident physician at Roanoke Memorial Hospital. Adeline Taylor Nunez has kept me informed on the drought situation and referred me to some excellent articles on how to deal with it in home gardening. Dot Denny Sutton took a cruise from San Francisco to southeast Alaska last summer and went back to CA for Christmas.

Sally Anderson Bowley is now in Washington, D.C., working for a company that makes black and white contrast toys for newborns. She misses her plants and is adapting slowly to city life, but is enjoying tremendously seeing so many SBC friends. Persis Ladd Herold is a few blocks away and Phyllis Tenney Dowd is close by in Reston, VA. Phyl has retired from teaching in the Fairfax Co. system as a learning disabilities specialist, but is a volunteer tutor and placement officer with the N. Va. Literacy Council.

Marian Shanley Jacobs continues as a vocational consultant with attorneys as clients and as "Vocational Expert" for the Social Security Administration in disability cases. Her son Bill, Jr., and his family moved from Dallas to Des Moines and live only a few blocks away; her daughter manages a jewelry store in Des Moines and her son John is a PC marketing manager with Wang. Alice Hepburn Puleston loves her predictable life. She lives close to her son, so she enjoys her grandchildren, and she sings in the church choir and serves on the Worship Commission.

Jinnie Noyes Pillsbury participated in an Elderhostel in Germany and one in Greece and she attended the International Congress on Mathematical Education in Budapest. Her daughter Jeannette is working on her Ph.D. in education at UVA, Jaquie hopes to finish her master's degree this year and Hannah is with a bank in Los Angeles. Mildred Littleford Camm retired 5 years ago from the hospital Emergency Room in Fort Thomas, KY. Her daughter and family live nearby, and her son lives on the Camm farm near Monroe and has a busy landscape business in Lynchburg. Connie Sue Budlong Myrick has a fascinating and strenuous job seeing that about 500 people deliver more than 900 meals a day to the elderly in Memphis. Kay Mensing Teitgen and her semi-retired husband Ralph find themselves busier than ever now. She plans to stop by SBC in April as they return from FL. Her second grandchild was born on Feb. 29th last year!

Mary Churchill Walker Van de Water, husband Ken and daughter Julia went to England in the fall. Marjorie Willetts Maiden spent her year studying Spanish. She went to Alaska in May and June, spent 3 weeks in Australia, went to Kauai to recuperate and then to the Straits of Magellan; she hopes to use that Spanish in Buenos Aires. Greetings also came from Pat Stickney, Mimi Etheridge Wood and Muriel Abrash Schapiro. Both Mimi and Mugsie hope to be present at Reunion. Mugsie is still active in Bookclubs and as a volunteer at the Jewish Community Center Library. She is the editor of Hadassah Bulletin. Her daughter Bambi, the TV interviewer, married Robert B. Jones in July.

Virginia Gowen Brown retired from Paris Junior College in Aug. '88 but still lectures on gerontological subjects. Husband Bob is retired also. Honey McCall's husband Harry is still very active in his law practice in New Orleans. Margy Brendlinger Robinson retired from her part-time job as consulting clinical psychologist with the county Dept. of Social Services. She volunteers with a group of local Lutheran churches, working with the homeless. Margy and Walt live by the golf course in Cary, NC. They have 4 adult children and 3 grandchildren all of whom (except an artist son and granddaughter in NYC) live within 50 miles. Jane Williams Bradley and Harve visited England and Scotland in Oct. '88. Between them, they have 7 grandchildren. Jane's son, Jim Wann, has a new musical, "Chattanooga". Virginia Watts Fournier and Paul spent 2 weeks in S. Africa in the fall with Virginia's sister Bruce (SBC '54) and her husband who had business there. They flew from Johannesburg to Capetown, then drove up the coast to Durban and inland to a game reserve.

Since my term as Class Secretary is coming to an end I want to thank all of you for sending me so much news over these last 5 years. I felt when we were still in school that we were a very special group, probably because WWII brought us together, but whatever the reason, it has been very rewarding for me to be in touch with all of you.

Goodness, when I raised my hand at Reunion last June I had no idea what I was in for... a refresher course in English grammar and punctuation, an urgent need to learn to type (which I never did while editing the SB NEWS), an orderly filing system, total recall of over 40 years of friendships and the ability to decipher Egyptian hieroglyphics and ancient Chinese characters! What a debt we owe to Phyllis Thorpe Miller for her newsy letters and good sentence structure. What fun it has been to receive all the cards and notes. The glow of our 40th reunion permeates the notes and the unanimous vote is in—it was a memorable occasion for all 53 of us (plus some husbands) and we are already talking of the next one. We must have Martha Mansfield Clement to welcome and take care of us and Vi Whitehead Morse to have us for Friday night dinner in her beautiful Amherst garden, and we will not sing without Harriette Bland Coke to lead us in "Beer, Ale or Light Wine." Oh, the beauty of Sweet Briar uplifts us all!

Judy Blakey Butler's position as a care provider for the elderly or for newborns allows her time to spend 6 weeks in winter on the East Coast having Christmas with all 4 offspring and one "grand" and yet live in a cliffside house in OR with a view of Mount Hood out her bedroom window. Peggy Sheffield Martin and Tom celebrated Christmas with all their children and "grands" plus a big 40th wedding anniversary in February. Peggy volunteers with the Atlanta Botanical Garden and the new Dorothy Chapman Fuqua Conservatory. Patty Traugott Rouse's full-time job with The Enterprise Foundation allows her to travel with Jim to Barcelona, Vienna, and Tokyo this spring, but the 2 sets of twin grandchildren of about the same age bring them back often to their Columbia, MD home. Pat

Smith Nelson loves Naples, FL but goes back to Charleston, WV whenever a grandbaby is due. The high points of Betty Ann Jackson Ryan's year were the pleasures of our 40th and the attendance of her whole family at son Bill's wedding to Catarina Lindquist in Sweden. Since Jane Ransom Gray's husband Milton retired they spend their time visiting 3 daughters: Elizabeth, a teacher in Phoenix; Kathy, an art director in NYC; and Pamela, a student at Yale Drama School. Ann Orr Savage and Robert have serious plans to leave NJ and retire to VT, but in the meantime Ann is busy volunteering at the hospital, library, and speaking French for fun in Westfield. Virginia Wurzbach Vardy enjoyed the Elderhostel program last summer, and as soon as she retires from her pre-school teaching in Annandale, VA will do more traveling. Speaking of moving, Wayne Stokes Goodall plans a spring move to Charlottesville where her daughter Ellison and family live. Wayne described reunion as "fantastic," adding, "the older we get, the more we appreciate good friends and continuity."

Martha Davis Barnes drove from reunion to the Spoleto Festival in Charleston, then had a month in New England, and has now become a sales representative for her son-in-law's zany T-shirt business BIG NED DESIGNS; she sold a large order to Atlanta's Macys. Judy Perkins Llewellyn and Norman did the reunion, then flew to Scotland for 2 weeks of golf with Farmington, CT friends, and then Judy settled back to running her church consignment shop and restoring a 17th century museum garden. Caroline Rankin Mapother's great sense of humor and good cheer have carried her through a complete overhaul of her Louisville, KY house and the chairmanship of the National Society of Colonial Dames of America in KY. Our Doctor Jane Luke was sailing from Tokyo to San Francisco when their vessel had to stop to rescue 15 Taiwanese fishermen from a burning, sinking trawler. Since then Jane has been on the shakedown cruise of the Royal Viking Sun, and now she's back in Boston cheering for the Red Sox or the Celtics. Betty Kernan Quigley has had a happy smile this spring since she chaired the Fauquier County Republican Committee in Marshall, VA. Suzanne Hardy Beaufort writes an inspirational letter describing her many months of dealing with a broken femur, surgery, pins which did not hold, wheel chair and walker, and the need to accept a state of dependency on others with grace and good cheer. Her daughters, Bon, Zanne, and husband Ron, and the Augusta corps de ballet have helped during this ordeal. Nita Minchew Faulk and Ralph were given a surprise 40th anniversary party December 22nd by their children who spent a whole year gathering mementos, pictures, and clippings from friends all over the country; we all remember their "Moonbeam Jar" at SBC. Diane King Nelson did not send any news because she was too involved with memory research for the Faulks' scrapbook. Martha Frye Nye and Bill's long letter carried details of Martha and her Hickory Choral Society singing Verdi's "Requiem" in Avery Fischer Hall, and another at St. Bartholomew's Church in NYC. Her son Stephen had a premier of a one act opera, "Favorite Night", also in NYC. The Nyes tutor non-readers in a literacy program in Hickory. Martha Mansfield Clement is taking early retirement from Sweet Briar this June and moving to Florida, where she will do some consulting work with Mark Whittaker who is now at Stetson Univ. in DeLand. But first Martha will accompany the Sweet Briar Alumnae trip to Russia, June 30-July 13. Anne Ricks Griffin and John sent a charming picture of a Pawley's Island family vacation. Betsy Anderson Gorrell will cover 3 corners of the country from St. Albans, WV to FL to AZ, visiting friends and family. Ann Rowland Tuck and Jim had such a good time at the 40th that they plan to return. Liz Graves Perkinson brags about her Winston-Salem but she covered a lot of ground with SBC travelers in Russia and Scandinavia and she even saw McCall Henderson Revercomb on a trip to DC to see her daughter. Betty Gibson is looking at grizzlies and glaciers this June on an Alaskan trip. Phil Thorpe Miller and John toured Kenya with an SBC group in February, then she went back to proof-reading bills for the AR legislature. (With her beautiful calligraphy we imagine she writes the documents too). Mary Louise Lloyd's card from Downingtown, PA says of her Capeland Run Learning Center, "Peaceful year-school growing and busy." Those are the good vibes Weezy can enjoy with an M.A. from Yale and a Ph.D. from Bryn Mawr. Vickie Brock Badrow (She is listed as Annabel on our class list!) took time off from teaching in her beloved kindergarten, and library work in Flint, MI to catch a 15 pound, 31 inch, brown trout in Lake Michigan.

Helen Pender Withers and Burks are building a new house but will keep their same White Stone, VA address. They got together at Christmas with Marguerite Rucker Ellett and Tazewell and their mutual grandchildren in Alexandria, VA. Meon Bower Harrison and Arch announce the birth of grandchild #1 born to daughter Mimi; their other 3 children are involved in "computers, comedy, and management". Eve Godchaux Hirsch and Rosemary Gugert Kennedy attended an SBC luncheon in New Orleans where Eve talked about reunion and Rosemary talked about the tennis match in Paris and then about her new book, Bach to Rock, introducing famous composers. CBS has published a 90 minute audio cassette tape to go with the book. Evalena Sharp Vidal, her son Larry, and her SBC '85, magna cum laude graduate, Vicki, were also in Paris in the late spring. Evvy has a new position as director of advertising for the U.S. subsidiary of the French crystal company, Virreries et Cristallerie D'Arques, J.G. Durand e Cie. In Mauricetown, NJ she is the first female member of their Cumberland County Rotary International. Helen McKemie Riddle and Royce have a son William R., who's on the faculty of Vanderbilt Medical School. Royce spends many volunteer hours with the Northwest Texas Council of Boy Scouts as well as with his busy veterinary practice in Wichita Falls. Martha Sue Skinner Logan and Robert see Louise Devore Towers and Charles when they leave FL for the NC mountains at Cashiers. The Towers' 5 daughters and 10 grandchildren have shared some wonderful travels with "Beezie" and Charlie.

We send our thoughts and prayerful good wishes to Dorothy Williams Taylor's husband, Jim, who has had surgery and chemotherapy and is improving. What an inspiration and encouragement to others Ann Paxson Gail's life is; she has been on kidney dialysis for 5 years, yet has been able to take numerous trips and even visit SBC friends Bea Backer Simpson and Nan Steptoe McKinley.

Another treat at the 40th was to meet Closey Faulkner Dickey's Whitney, whom we have read about for years in that tiny handwriting Closey sends at mid-winter. Their large family, fascinating trips, sailing and skiing on both coasts, have brightened the winter blahs for many of us. We are concerned and send thoughts and prayers to their third son, Colt, as his wife Lynn goes through treatment for a tumor. We wonder if the Dickeys ever sail by Ynes Jova Cline and husband, Bob, who have a new sailboat with plans to sail 6 months from FL to their home in Saugerties, NY, or if they have tied up next to the "Compadre" which belongs to Jane Miller Wright and Howard. The Wright's card needs to be quoted in full, "...mail finally got to us here at St. Vincent, Caribbean. Howard and I are on our way home to Long Beach, CA after having the 'Compadre' away 5 years. We saw E. Med. this summer-Turkey, Greece, Yugoslavia, Italy-back west to Gibraltar, Canaries, and across (18 days) Atlantic. We'll go to Galapagos after Panama and estimated time of arrival CA 1st July. It will be hard facing reality-but will make next reunion. Wayne Stokes Goodall sent me the class picture-handsome bunch of wise women!"

Renewing our friendship with Pam Terry, who went only one year to SBC, was fun for she has had an exciting life as executive director of the National Barrel and Drum Association; she was widely known in many countries before she retired last winter. Westray Boyce Nicholas had a lovely trip to the Channel Islands and to Devon and Cornwall in Sept. Twink Sockwell and Warren spent 2 weeks in Puerto Rico in Jan., after a nice Christmas with all children and grandchildren present.

Your class secretary committed a dastardly crime at the end of reunion last June for I came home with the handsome class scrapbooks which Nancy Moses Eubanks and Phil Thorpe Miller had made, using your questionnaires and photos. Here are a few random sentences gleaned from the questionnaires: Caroline Haskell Simpson is president of a Geneva, IL historical preservation society charged with restoring two 1850 houses. Helen Elliott Sockwell and Warren will have gone from SBC to Glacier Bay, AK, to NYC, to Puerto Rico, and maybe to Chattanooga's antique emporiums by the time you read this. Elizabeth Beltz Rowe hooks rugs in Alpharetta, GA as it was done in the 1800's. Mary Barrett Robertson is very active in 2 garden clubs and the National Society of Colonial Dames of America in GA. Betty Lou Bruton Lyons does watercolors in her Clearwater, FL homeplace. Sally Davis Spencer studied 4 summers in a mini-course at Oxford, and has designed her house in the country. Ardis Fratus Porter is active with the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. Tate McArthur Todd's husband, John, owns 3 grocery stores in Greeley, CO, and she is the buyer for a gift store there. What fun!

These notes are my first effort at keeping us all in touch, and I fear I have overlooked, misquoted or messed-up some of the notes, so please feel free to call my hand. I missed hearing from so many of you so if you will keep in touch I will write up a whole new set of '48-ers for the next edition. Our new class president, Eleanor Potts Snodgrass, will have married off her daughter, Julie, and have mastered the game of golf by the time you read these notes. You will hear from us long before our next reunion. Meanwhile, I am going to the flower markets in Amsterdam and the Chelsea flower show in London in May with some Chattanooga friends and my daughter in law, Nancy. Thank you for being a part of my wonderful Sweet Briar remembrances.

Here I am sitting on the most beautiful quiet sands of Exuma writing my notes. You've been wonderful in giving me lots of grist for the mill and I love it.

Sally Anderson Broyles is learning a new field at her part-time job at the Atlanta Decorative Arts Center and loving it. She and Norris had a heavenly journey down the coast of Turkey last year and this year around Corsica and Sardinia. Travel plus tennis camp and 2 1/2 grandchildren have kept the Broyles busy. Cynthia Balch Barnes wrote sadly of Art's death in Sept. but is thanking the Lord for her 7 children who are helping her put her life back together. Sue Basewitz Mentzinger writes of her new marriage to the "most wonderful man in the world" named Robert and that she has a new practice in Huntingdon, New York. Her son has presented her with her first grandchild named Alan and her dentist daughter is about to marry another dentist in Newport, RI on June 17th. She visited SBC in October and the absolute highlight of her trip was a visit to Mrs. Rollins in Lynchburg. Mrs. Rollins, now 90, is still one of the most interesting, radiant and charming people she has ever met and she never misses Jeopardy. Sue is feeling radiant herself I can tell. Mary Bailey Izard writes happily of grandparenting but reports that one of her grandsons aspired part of a styrofoam hat while Mary and Jack were babysitting in Tampa. But, after a broncoscopy and lots of TLC all is well.

Deedee Bell Lyon writes from her new permanent address in Syria, VA, 30 miles north of Charlottesville. Having resigned from The Very Thing, Deedee is now decorating with the Second Yard in Charlottesville and looking forward to riding her beloved 8 yr. old Arabian horse. She will attend some 25, 35 and maybe 50 mile rides this year. Pat Beach Thompson writes from Mt. Kisco that she has reached the 4 grandchildren mark with a wee granddaughter named Arielle. Pat had just finished acting in a production of All My Sons playing Kate and last Nov., the Thompsons bought a beef and cattle farm in Millerton, NY. They've already had 43 calves. Josephine Bierhaus Barrow is still "social working" at a local psychiatric hospital. Son Edward was married last Oct.; daughter Elizabeth and her family moved from Boston to Wyomissing, PA and son John and his wife are in Winston-Salem where John is the assistant at St. Timothy's and Frances is in law school at Wake Forest. Josephine is still active at St. Paul's and is turning into a demon quilter!

We got a really great long letter from Casey Black in Danville, CA. Roger is still doing telecommunications consulting and Casey is involved with the community Presbyterian church, lots of tennis, and camping with Roger and Ginger, their golden lab. The Black's daughter Susan was married this year in CO and their son David was made manager of the Squaw Valley Lodge. Mary John Ford Gilchrist wrote to tell us that after living in the house where she was born for 50 years (with Stuart for 34), the Gilchrists moved to Alexandria and love it. Real Estate is their bag in Irvington, VA and Mary John manages a branch of a large Richmond firm. So if you're at the Tides Inn anytime soon, the Gilchrists are building a house right next door and invite you to call them.

Gail Hall Swearingen in San Antonio, reports that she loved seeing Joanie Holbrook Patton and Anne Hoagland Kelsey in Washington when she and Joan were attending their 40th reunion at Mt. Vernon Seminary. Gail and Harry have 2 married daughters, 2 precious grandbabies, and one son who has graduated from Princeton and Univ. of Texas graduate school and they all live in Texas. Wonderful!

Brigitte Guttstadt continues her work as a clinical social worker in private practice. Brigitte traveled to Guatemala in March and to Germany this fall. Nancy Hamel Clark sends her new address: 39 Sturbridge Lane, Greensboro, NC 27408.

Joanie Holbrook Patton always writes the best news. All of her children so productive - from Ben, a possible soldier of fortune with a degree in political affairs, and Helen a budding young actress complete with Equity card to sister Margaret Georgina of the order of St. Benedict, Bob Patton, a novelist with 2 novels in agents' hands this year, and George, Jr., a triumphant member of the family working with the Special Olympics and now building a house. Patton Consultant Service is beginning to make its mark and Green Mountain Farms had its best year ever.

Barbie Hoyt Boyer is happy as a clam in Philadelphia - a born again Christian, active in evangelism and a grandmother for the 5th time. Sue Judd Silcox writes that all is well with children moving around the USA and Sue working part-time as director of development and PR for a large mental health center. Martha Legg Katz has a lovely new sculpture studio and invites us all for tea. Marge Levine Abrams, loving Miami after 18 years of wonderful climate, is a legal assistant for a major law firm. Jane Mattas Christian has a retired husband who is doing a lot of fishing and a son, Phil, who is getting married this month of April. Gay Maupin Bielsenstein writes from NYC that all is well and Bunny is still in Washington editing a magazine of historic preservations. They still have their family home in Portsmouth, VA and spend Christmas and summer vacations there.

Loved hearing from Eulalie McFall Fenhagen in New York where Jim is president of the General Theological Seminary. As they are launching a 20 million dollar fund to restore national landmark buildings, Eulalie says the entertaining is mammoth. Spent last spring in Paris on sabbatical and had a lovely time. Carroll Morgan Legge has a new grandson, Christopher Allen Martin, and she's been babysitting in CT with him. We had a lovely visit from her here in Little Compton last fall when her daughter was renting - picnicked on the beach, ate lots of fish and loved seeing her. Wonderful card from Peggy Nelson Harding running her own accounting business and also, please, doing cross-country skiing, whitewater canoeing, kyacking, and board sailing. Peggy has 3 grandchildren and she sounds as if she's growing younger not older.

Polly Plumb Debutts Spalding is living in a Victorian townhouse in Washington, D.C. after 22 years in McLean, VA. She and John love being in town near their offices, after all the formality of the past. Find them at 1403 Foxhall Road, NW, Washington. Millie O'Neal Palmer says 'hi'. Millie, come see us now that David is retired. Nell Orand Lynch looks forward to this summer in Fisher's Island for a complete change of pace. Neela Perkins Zinsser sent us love from Sweet Briar and we send it back. She says Tom is ensconced in community projects and she, I think, is ensconced in SBC. Donna Reese Godwin has just welcomed grandchildren #1 and #2 and is waiting for #3. George Godwin is better after a year of health problems and the Godwin group just completed a move to larger, beautiful new offices.

Exuberance from Kitchie Roseberry Ewald Tolleson as Roy is fine and playing golf. Kitchie is opening The Very Idea this month (antiques, etc. at discount), having sold The Very Thing. She was just elected to the board of Monticello which she finds fascinating. Life is good and her children fine. Frances Street Smith and Gordon have stayed put in Chattanooga - all 3 children are married and they have 5 grandchildren. They recently traveled to Alaska, China and British Isles. Laura Radford Goley enjoys being back in VA. With her mother, she attended several sessions of Sweet Briar's Winter Forums in January. "Excellent program as well as surroundings," she wrote. Janis

Thomas Zeanah writes that her daughter Caroline Hawk Sparrow ('81) is the current president of the Birmingham Sweet Briar Alumnae Club. Janis and Caroline are both publications coordinators for U. of Alabama at Birmingham. Janis's son, Jeff Hawk, made her a grandmother in Feb. Marianne Vorys Minister has a brand new granddaughter and just called me on her way to CT to help daughter, Courtney. Marianne Minister Interiors is flourishing and she and I have fun comparing notes.

Sandra Zelig Mulinos went to Australia and lived on a 41' sailboat last January and on the way home, stopped in Hawaii to visit Joan Stewart Rank. Sandra bought an old house in Rye, NH, tore it apart and is now putting it back together. Just one more thing - some people, in their zeal to write, forgot to include their names on the postie. So I have news from somewhere but can't figure out where. Little Compton is beginning to bloom. Spring comes slowly here but it's worth waiting for. Love to all.

Greetings to our responsive class. It's heartwarming to receive a stack of postals. You'd never guess that some of us reached senior citizen status this year.

We were saddened to know Alice Guggenheimer Mackay died on June 18, 1988 after a courageous fight with cancer. She was grateful to see her daughter Sue graduate from Randolph Macon on May 8th. Alice's husband, Roger, was most appreciative of class members who sent contributions in Alice's memory to New Vistas School in Lynchburg.

Sally Garrison Skidmore and Jerry enjoy their beach spot in Naples, FL but were back in Cincinnati for the holidays. Betty Pierce Bradshaw had a granddaughter, Lauren Cay, in July '88. Her last child, Chris, graduated from Texas A&M. Betty is still a Senior Field Underwriter for Wisconsin Life. Betty and Jack went to Kauai for summer vacation. She feels that Houston's economy is better. Sherrye Patton Henry and I had an elegant tea at Helmsly in New York in March '88. She was as beautiful and full of spirit as ever. Her daughter Sherrye Henry, Jr., was married in Dec. to John Raymond Garrett; both are lawyers and are magna cum laude graduates of Yale and Georgetown respectively.

Virginia Nelson Self, Sherrye's god-mother, attended the wedding. Virginia's daughter, Ginny, was married to Cooper Terry last July in Marks, MS, and they live in Nashville. Virginia is enjoying decorating a friend's house in Dallas.

News from Bet Forbes Rayburn is that all her children are married and helping her manage their farm of timber and wildlife preservation in middle GA. From Louisville, Meredith Smythe Grider writes that Sarah is in her second year of Vanderbilt Law School and will clerk this summer in Chicago; Lisa has finished U. of Louisville with an Interior Design degree; youngest, Meredith, is enjoying working in Boston and considering law school.

Kay Smith Schauer in Palo Alto says her favorite job is balancing checkbooks. She is working part time with The Hesperian Foundation, a non-profit group that writes and distributes health care books to third world countries. Bookkeeping is her primary job, but Kay has recently taken on other administrative tasks. With 6 children Linda Learnard Whitfield is full of news. Her second son, Douglas, was married in Atlanta in September and settled in Knoxville. Daughter Kate and her husband live in Isle of Palms near Charleston, SC. Her son Stewart is in Richmond with Linda and Fred. Daughter Liza is in advertising in Atlanta, and Matthew, an artist, is in a graphics program in Richmond. Linda was looking forward to the Caribbean in Feb. and had a lovely trip to Amish countryside in Nov. Building a house for the first time are Nancy Ettinger Minor and Raleigh at the Landing on Skidaway Island, Savannah. She was expecting a full family for Christmas with son Scott home from Alabama.

Philadelphia is where Peggy Anne Rogers spends most of her time, but she went to India again this year with Ludhiana Christian Medical Board and also visited friends in England. She makes frequent visits to Chattanooga, TN to see her mother and stops twice yearly at SBC for the library group. Received a beautiful Christmas picture from Litchfield Beach, SC where Joan Fisch Gallivan and Jimmy gather their handsome clan in spring and fall. They have moved to "cluster living" in Nashville, a postage stamp front yard, swimming pool and rose garden in back. The Gallivans are expecting a third grandchild in May. Joan is involved in Nashville Ballet, Garden Club, lay ministry to elderly and Bible study. She published a few articles in Southern Accents. I can always count on Julie Jackson Nichols for her observations. She described her trip to SBC in October as a real experience. "The girls today are so trendy, so with it, all high-tech Tillies." She saw Byrd and also Miss Sarah Ramage who she said "is as perky as ever with all that marvelous intelligence shining forth from her brown eyes."

Peggy Pattillo Beckham writes from Abilene, TX that their "baby," Rob (24), planned to be married in Feb. '89 in Dallas to Julie Bryson. Peggy and Bob were planning an April trip to the Galapagos with the School of American Research. They have 4 grandchildren with another expected in June. Debby Brown Stalker and Peter have settled in Santa Barbara where she is pursuing a masters in Psychology and doing some creative writing. Peter is involved in civic work here and abroad and the children are in the East. Nancie Howe Entenmann and Dick plan to visit daughter Becky, her husband John, and grandson Ian, in Puerto Rico, where they are based in the Navy. Son Dirk is an attorney in Boston. Nancie is President of Toledo Bar Association Auxiliary. Dick is Senior Warden for their 100 year old inner city church, which is searching for a new rector.

Parkie Carroll Mulholland writes from Baltimore that she and Jack had a great year, traveling to Sea Island and Phoenix where they played golf with Carolyn Dickinson Tynes and Bayard and visiting their house at Bryce Mountain, VA. Daughter Randie, SBC '80, and husband Ben are presenting them with their first grandchild in June. Son David, after 4 years in business world, is back in Darden Business School at UVA. Son Jeff is in third year medicine there, too. Parkie is busy with gardening, judging and taking care of her mother in a nursing home. Frances Shannonhouse Clardy and Jim are planning a walking tour of Cotswolds; then Kent, Sussex and London in September. Their children, Frances, SBC '85, a paralegal, and Jim, Jr., a newspaper reporter, are both in Washington, D.C. Louise Gault retired from being a full time editor and is free-lancing and writing on New York restaurants for Debrett's Peerage in London. She has traveled extensively and is doing literary agenting for any budding SBC authors.

Eleanor Russell is still teaching high school art in San Antonio and had 4 one man shows this year. She has 2 grandsons; Matthew and Dallas. Eleanor and her mother had a lovely 3 weeks in England and took seminars at Corpus Christi and Cambridge. Mary Ann Hicklin Quarngesser writes that Pryde Brown took pictures of her daughter, Suzi, last fall. Suzi graduates from Princeton in June. Oldest daughter Carson plans a May wedding to an old friend from Yale days. Mary Ann stays busy managing a real estate office, gardening, knitting on big needles, skiing and wearing stronger glasses (Ben Franklins). Lee Chang Crozier hasn't made an SBC visit yet, but her daughter Diana came by and thought the campus was beautiful. Daughter Linda was married in August, and son Daniel will be wed in May. Ann Stevens Allen's daughter Damsie was married to Dr. Roger Little, who is in medical research at Mayo Clinic. Last summer Ann and Bet Forbes Rayburn pulled a U-Haul of furniture and wedding presents from SC to Rochester for the newlyweds. They had a great trip and stayed with Macie Clay Nichols in Lexington, KY coming and going.

Betty Buxton Dietz in Raleigh has had a shop called Reflections for eight years. It features needlework, 18th century mahogany reproductions and gifts. Her daughter Paisley finished St. Mary's in Raleigh and now is at Savannah College of Art and Design. Son Burt is majoring in Horticulture at N.C. State U. where he was inducted into an honor fraternity, Alpha Zeta. Lottie Lipscomb Guttry has become a professional writing consultant, offering training programs in business writing. Her son was married in Orlando, FL, and she has 1 1/2 grandchildren. Leila Thompson Taralus had 2 weddings last fall. Son Kenneth married Ellen Martin in Oct. in NYC. He works for Drexel Burnham Lambert. Daughter Helen, who married John O'Connor in Nov., is production manager for a real estate magazine. Daughter Leila is a loan officer with First Union in Charlotte. Evie Christison Gregory spent Christmas in Williamsburg with her mother and was looking forward to seeing Prince Trimmer Knox and Joe and Eliza Marguerite Geer Wellborn and Marshall's family of 4 boys is expanding. Son Marshall, III married Debbie Dunbar in Atlanta in April '88, and they expect twins in June '89. Son Charles will marry Ruth McCasty at Myrtle Beach in April '89. All live in Atlanta. Third son, Walter, is a junior at Rhodes College, and fourth son, Michael, is a high school freshman.

Macie Clay Nichols had an excellent year in real estate. She and her family spent 2 weeks in Hawaii in June. In Nov. she visited her daughter Martha in Paris, where she is researching a thesis. Son Rob is a senior at U. of Louisville. Husband Robert balances work and golf, and they plan to return to France this summer. Paula Purse Pointer, still involved in her business, is surrounded by her family, who love computers. She says, "They speak a language foreign to me." Laura Hailey Bowen's daughter Laurie Carmichael (SBC '79) and Archie expect a second baby in March. Cary graduated from Vanderbilt in '81, and married Bill Thorpe last Jan. in the middle of an Atlanta snowstorm. Son Charles is unmarried and works with his father. The whole family loves boats and fishing. Laura and Charlie lived on their boat, Great Escape, for 2 months last summer. The children visited, crewed and snorkeled. Anne Edgerton Mills writes that after 6 years in northern IN they had had enough. They moved back to NC where they are making their beach condo home base while Dick job-hunts. Both children are married

Frances Gilbert Browne reports that the class of '56 had a fine note of appreciation from our scholarship student, Dayna Baily, class of '91. She sounds terrific: is a representative on SBC self-study committee, on the social violations board, has a 3.5 GPA and hopes to attend Oxford for her junior year. Frances urges any of us who are on campus to look Dayna up. Frances's son Paul is working at Snowmass, CO this year between college and law school. With a partner, Frances bought and renovated a 30-year-old home and put it on the market. Jeannie Applequist Bascom-Barnes was remarried in June to Kenneth Barnes, after 15 years of single parenthood. They have happily blended 11 children together and recently purchased Trollhagen Tree Ranch in Crawford, CO, 2 hours from Aspen. They plan to use this as a spiritual retreat. Jeannie's youngest daughter, Taya, was married in June, too. In June '87, Jeannie was one of 220 Americans on the 1st Soviet-American International Peace Walk from Leningrad to Moscow. They walked 450 miles for Nuclear Disarmament. Betsy Meade Hastings and Don embarked on an exciting project in Malaysia last Aug. He is beginning a 2,000 acre farm, 2 hours east of Kuala Lumpur, to raise top-grade vegetables for the Singapore market. The company is private sector with American investors, and Don will share his agricultural skills and marketing know-how. Space limitations prevent me from giving Betsy's fascinating descriptions. She plans to paint, explore and keep a daily diary. Son Chris will either remain in Atlanta for senior year at Lovett or attend school in Kuala Lumpur. Don, III will return to Davidson for sophomore year and visit on vacations. The second volume of husband Don's series, Gardening in the South, Vegetables and Trees will be published by Taylor in Dallas January '89.

Two recent long and interesting articles arrived from the alumnae office. The first featured photographer, Pryde Brown, in Town Topics, Princeton. She specializes in portraits but loves all aspects of the business—weddings, passport photos, babies, animals, etc. She says, "My expertise lies in dealing with people and relaxing them." Pryde sounds like the same person we loved and the ideal photographer. She is completing a novel also. The second article was from Southampton, NY Press on Sherrye Patton Henry. She is described as having a "striking southern-beauty queen surface with a reputation as an astute explorer of wide-ranging topics on WOR radio." She lives in Southampton when she's not in Manhattan and for several years has been at the helm of Hot Topics, a Sunday night series with panels of speakers discussing diverse topics. The town hall meetings have been a great success. News from Joyce Lenz Young is that husband Hugh is busier than ever at Mass. General practicing urology; Trip, 26, loves his career as a musician after attending Berklee College of Music in Boston; Mark, 24, works for an investment firm in Boston after graduating from UVA and Martha, 19, a sophomore at Yale, is a budding environmentalist. The Youngs had a great trip to Calgary for the Winter Olympics. Jane Slack Sigloh writes that her Sigloh/Engleby children are spread across the world from Australia to New York. Jane is assistant rector at St. Matthews' parish, Wilton, CT, and—God willing—will be ordained on June 10, 1989.

Van Hartman Ellis's daughter Mary Van (24) will marry Howard Lacy Armistead III in June and they will live in Alexandria. Helen (19) is a sophomore at the U. of Texas at Austin, and "contrary to press reports, many of us in Dallas are alive and well." After 21 years in Southern CA, Bunny Burwell Nesbit has been relocated by CSC back to VA. She packed her 6 cats and came east in July '88, bought a house in Middleburg and commutes to Vienna, VA.

David and I had 2 nice trips to San Antonio to visit our daughter Janie and her family. For our 35th anniversary we traveled to a beautiful area: San Francisco, Carmel and Big Sur. Summer was busy with my sister's wedding and our 5 grandchildren visiting. I enjoyed a flower arranging course this year, but working with cancer patients and seeking to know God better are still my main interests. David's new business at the bank includes Japanese companies opening here, which has brought new friendships and cultural exchanges. Your cards are still coming, but my space is gone. Love and blessings to each of you.

Thanks for your terrific response! Barbara Beam Denison sums it up well: "We have a very special class and I, for one, can't wait for our 30th."

Rhett Ball Thagard had fun visiting in London where daughter Betsy writes for the Market News Service and in Charlottesville where her other children are at UVA. Tom III at Law School and Beverly a sophomore. Judy Barnes Agnew teaches at Chapel Hill H.S. and has 3 daughters in college at UNC, Appalachian and Wake Forest. She says the nicest part of '88 was Lucy Martin Gianino's visit with her in Durham where Lucy's daughter is a Duke freshman. Dottie Barnwell Kerrison is thrilled to have an SBC daughter! Her son Bo, Horry, Jr., married Elizabeth Adair Pierpoint (SBC '83) August 6, 1988. They are in Charlottesville where he's at the Darden School, and Dottie and Horry love to visit from Charleston, SC.

Barbara Beam Denison has kept in close touch with visits with Patti Powell Pusey, A Massie Hill, Ellie Crosby Erdman and Ginger Newman Blanchard. Beam loves working on the Traditional Tented African trips with Teddy Hill Washer and Liz Few Penfield. She enjoys her painting and also her framing business. Three Denisons, Tracy, Heather and George, are working in and around the Bush administration! Barbara Bowen Moore put 150 rolls of film into books about her 1987 fantasy voyage around the world - including Hong Kong (where she saw Katie Mendelson McDonald), the Philippines, Thailand, China, Russia, Poland, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, Vienna, W. Germany and France. She and Clay toured China together. She took a trans-Siberian trip with a young artist friend, went to the wedding of a former math student in Poland, and met some of Milan Hapala's dear friends in Brno, Czechoslovakia. About Dr. Hapala Barbara writes, "Those major professor's impressions never leave us."

Lura Coleman Wampler finds her second year teaching chemistry at Shipley much easier than the first. Her horse boarding business in Wayne, PA has her at the barn every morning between 6-7 a.m. before leaving for school. She also sells eggs from her chickens. She has 2 at the U. of Richmond, Emelyn, a senior, and Hooper, a sophomore; and Eliza is a h.s. sophomore. Peggy Cook Montgomery and her husband Seth had a trip east from Albuquerque in their motorhome to the Maritime Provinces of Canada and visited family and friends in the Northeast. Seth has had M.S. quite a few years and took a sabbatical from his law firm for the trip. Peggy is Campaign Chair for the Santa Fe United Way. Their sons are all in NY State: Andy, a lawyer in Manhattan, was married in Oct. to Liz Lawrence; Charlie is in grad school at Cornell and David's a junior at Vassar. Joyce Cooper Toomey works in an Annapolis shop, The Chifferrobe, selling, doing fashion shows and advertising. Their daughter Cathy (SBC '84) is married and living in Columbia, SC. Christopher is a h.s. junior and Charley IV a Loyola College junior. With Jennifer at SBC as a freshman, Joyce says her husband Charley won't have to suffer "Boxwood withdrawal"!

Judith Cowen Jones is president of the Waynesboro Arts Club and does volunteer work with the SPCA, the local hospital and the Shenandoah Valley Arts Center. Over Christmas the family had a ski trip to Switzerland and will take a spring trip to Spain, Portugal and Majorca. Deb (SBC '84) is an investment banker in Richmond and will be married in Sept., 1989. Greg is a Hampden-Sydney senior, and daughter Allison bought an apartment in Madrid. Ellie Crosby Erdman's mother whom many of us admired died after Christmas at the age of 91. A year ago Ellie went to Salzburg for the Mozart Festival and this year is busy with a house addition and her interior decorating business in Princeton. Lee Cullum has been editor of the editorial page of the Dallas Times Herald for 2 1/2 years. She appeared on the MacNeil-Lehrer Report through the presidential campaign with 2 other editors from around the country to cover the candidates on a regional basis. Her son Cullum is graduating from Yale and will go to graduate school in East Asian Studies.

Mary Ellen Dohs Acey sent her first class notes card from Baltimore! She is excited about being a science teacher at the Bryn Mawr School and is spearheading the use of computers in the science curriculum with 5 computers in her lab. Her husband Basil is an architect with C. S. & D. Daughter Claire, an architectural historian with a degree from UVA, works for a publisher in Baltimore and son Ryon, a senior at St. Paul's School for Boys, wants to be an architect too! Liz Few Penfield and Teddy Hill Washer are expanding their Traditional Tented Safaris business with trips to Tanzania and Kenya!

Carolyn Gough Harding loves teaching English as a Second Language to adults in Reston, VA. Her husband Dick is at the Dept. of Commerce working on India, their son Nick is a sophomore at Yale, and Jamie's a h.s. junior. Janet Holmes Rothard was written up in the Butler, NJ newspaper as the top salesperson for July '88 for Schlott Realtors. Janet also enjoys her hobby breeding and showing Chinese Shar-Pei, the dear dogs with all the wrinkles. She's excited about becoming a grandmother in the spring!

Marylyn (Dixie) Jackson Parins is thrilled with the publication of her first book, Malory: The Critical Heritage, by a London publisher. She also had an essay, "Malory's Expurgators," published in a 1988 Univ. of Alabama Press Collection. Dixie got her Ph.D. at the Univ. of MI in 1982 and lives in Little Rock. Alice Jones Torbett is active in her family's newspaper in Johnson City, TN. She and David went to a newspaper meeting in Hawaii last spring. Their son Bob works at the newspaper in Charlottesville; son David is in seminary in Boston; and Lea is at Emory. Kathy Knox Ennis is working with the Naples, FL Guardian Ad Litem program, a volunteer program commissioned by the Florida Supreme Court to represent abused and neglected children in the court system. She and Dick have all 4 children in college or law school next year!

Mary Laird Silvia is now a certified Neuro-Muscular Therapist (St. John method) in Falls Church, VA and has also studied cranio-sacral therapy and "muscle crany." Mary sees clients 2-3 days a week in the office of Mietek Wirkus, a Polish bioenergy therapist. She and Peter had a winter trip to St. Maarten and a summer sailing trip in the Chesapeake Bay. Lucy Martin Gianino was a guest-artist-in-residence at W & L last fall acting in Steel Magnolia and teaching too. She loved visiting Sweet Briar and showing her two younger children VA which they thought beautiful! They hope Jack's show Black and Blue will be a hit in NYC. Adrienne Massie Hill continues for the Bank of New York as a consultant 4 days a week on a flexible schedule. Her husband Mal helps run their home in Fairfield, CT and enjoys his retirement taking piano, voice and French lessons!

Jan Maynard Henderson, in Hawaii, is planning a house on a hill with a view. She walked 2 five-day hikes in England last summer - great fun with 55 miles a week or more! Her oldest son Michael is working in Hartford, CT after getting a Master's in Urban Planning at Stanford. Her son David graduates from CMU in May, and her husband Hal is a new partner in an investment management firm. Mollie McDonald Brasfield is enjoying a lively new addition to her home. Elizabeth Meade Howard is expanding her magazine writing into the same kinds of subjects for video/film projects - so far doing local efforts in Charlottesville on teen pregnancy and/or families of prisoners. She asks us - any possible collaborators? She's helping her husband convert their garage into a studio for him to paint full-time. Elizabeth had fun last fall seeing Teddy Hill Washer and Charity Paul in NYC.

Lydia Montgomery Bond, in Prospect, KY, is into various "horse" organizations, and her husband Bill travels a lot as Director of Economic Development for the Louisville Chamber of Commerce. Their daughter Melissa will graduate in advertising from Indiana U. and daughter Molly, a journalism major at U. of KY, competed in the American Continental Young Riders Championship, which is like a Pan Am Games for 16-21-year-old equestrians. Jean Morris Stevenson and Don had many exciting trips, including the west coast of Mexico and Bermuda. Ginger Newman Blanchard has a full life traveling with Bob and enjoys her new SBC board duties. She has her Doncaster business and also enjoys golf, tennis, paddle tennis and gardening. Reb is getting married in Sept. 1989; Wil is working for the Russell Corp. (textiles) in AL; and Melinda and her husband live near the Blanchards in NJ.

Anita Perrin Grymes teaches the 6th grade at Collegiate and enjoys having 2 sons at home in high school while her oldest son is a Univ. S.C. sophomore. She's enjoyed seeing classmates Norvell Orgain Butler, Grace Suttle, Jane Ellis Covington and Carolyn King Ratcliffe. Patti Powell Posey has 4 extra bedrooms for traveling classmates! She and Bill took a marvelous 3-week trip to India, Nepal and Bhutan. Their daughter Glen is a James Madison U. sophomore; Biff is with Price-Waterhouse in NYC; and Brent is in the Convention Dept. of Big Sky in MT! Ellen Pringle thrives with the travel business. She took a group of ladies on an English Gardens tour last Sept. and in Oct. went on a Greek Isle cruise and even to Budapest too. She's seen Jane Ellis Covington several times and Barbara Bowen Moore and Ellie Crosby Erdman when they were in Charleston for the Spoleto Festival. Jane Riddle Lancaster writes from Dallas that she and John spend a lot of time in Aspen in the summer and winter. They expect their first grandchild in April with daughter Delany. Their son John is going to graduate business school, and their son Jim graduated from W & L in '88 and is a paralegal in DC until going to law school at Texas U. Law School next fall. Anne Rienecke Clarke is a project director in Market Research and enjoys scuba diving in the Caribbean. Her daughter Sabrina is a Drew U. junior.

Pat Russell Howard was on sabbatical from Jan.-Sept., 1988 working on a book on Entertainments for Queen Elizabeth I: 1590-1602 and another book on Samuel Beckett's most recent plays. She has given papers on Elizabethan Entertainments at Villanova and Harvard. Gale Young Walker visited her in Toronto from Vancouver, and Pat had happy reunions in NYC with Charity Paul and Norris Smith. Pat's 14-year-old son James toured Japan last June playing his double-bass with a chamber orchestra. Sandy Schuhmacher Lawrence is getting more involved in San Antonio, TX community volunteer work now that her children are away. Her daughter Sharon is a SMU freshman; Bill a first year law student at U. of Texas; and Katie is studying art in Florence for a year. Sandy's husband is a radiologist. Sue Styer Ericksen has a boarding stable on her farm in Birdsboro, PA. She teaches, coaches and travels to some 80 horse shows a year! While at the American Horse Show Association in New Orleans, Sue had a great visit with Liz Few Penfield.

Jane Tatman Walker continues as a volunteer at The Children's Museum in Indianapolis after resigning her paid job there. She and her husband moved from their house into a condo. Her son Kevin returned from the army in Germany and her daughter Kitty was offered a bank job in Berlin. Jane enjoys her grandchildren. She hosted an Indianapolis SBC Club meeting in Jan. Becky Towill McNair and Bill had an exciting trip to Germany after Christmas to visit Will. They also enjoy visiting Harriet (SBC '86) who's using her art history training at Sotheby's in NYC.

Sally Underhill Viault has enjoyed a lot of volunteer work and the proof-reading on 3 book manuscripts for which Bert has had contracts with McGraw-Hill. The first one, American History Since 1865, was published in the fall of 1988. The other 2 are written and will be published as part of a McGraw-Hill paperback series of review books - Western Civilization Since the Seventeenth Century and Modern Europe Since the Renaissance. Her mother died in Jan. after over 2 years of advanced cancer. Isabel Ware Burch is Director of Finance at the Nature Center in Westport where her son Charlie goes to school at Green Farms Academy and is president of his 9th grade. Her son Allen graduated from William & Mary in 1988, and daughter Margaret and her husband Jeff Kingston are in Colorado Springs. Dotty Westby loves her life in Ft. Lauderdale as Chief Pilot for a charter company flying mostly to the Bahamas. She's about to get her helicopter license! Her 2 children are at Colorado U., Kristen a senior and Rob a sophomore.

V. M. Del Greco Galgano (Mrs. Michael J.), 1174 Nelson Drive, Harrisonburg, VA 22801

By the time we read this news, our 25th reunion will be history, and hopefully will have been a raving success, with record-breaking attendance... and giving. I know that V.M., Susie, Grace Mary, Ginny, Mollie and myself had a wonderful time at SBC last Oct. planning for the event.

I have enjoyed writing your news these past 5 years, however, I look forward to reading someone's else's news report next year!

To my delight, Kathie Arnold Reed has surfaced, and tells me that she finally got Caroline Tate Noojin to visit her out in Santa Fe. Kathie and Tom "had a ball" on their trip to Greece and Turkey last May. Jane Bradley Wheeler is looking at colleges again, this time for twins, John and Molly, currently juniors at Westminster Daughter Bradley, who is a senior at Bucknell, spent the first semester last year in London. Jane, and others in the class of '64 Atlanta contingent, are thrilled that Harriet Houston Shaffer and Charlie have decided against a move to Winston-Salem.

In Atlanta, Susan Bronson Croft and Ed have moved into a new house "just around the corner," and are adjusting to their empty nest very nicely. Stockton is in his second year at UVA, and Gabry a freshman at W&L. Christie Calder Salomon is studying graphic design at the School of Visual Arts at SUNY Purchase. David is a junior at Brown, Tina, a sophomore at Yale, Evanne, a junior at Loomis Chaffee, and Jenny, in 7th grade at Greenwich Country Day. The Salomon's plan a trip (biking) through France this summer.

O'Fallon, IL, is home to Sheila Carroll Coopridge and Chuck, who is a corporate pilot. Sheila has begun graduate work in theology, is a candidate for the diaconate, and looks forward to being ordained a deacon in the Episcopal Church this fall. Daughter Kathryn is a sophomore at DePauw U., and LeaAnn will enter college this year.

Cita Cook is working on a Ph.D. at Berkeley and stopped in at SBC in May to do some research for her thesis, "Growing Up White, Genteel and Female in the New South." Cita, who transferred from SB after 2 years, graduated from SMU in '64, earned her masters from U.TX, and then moved to San Francisco where she taught h.s. and community college (most recently San Francisco City College) before starting her doctorate. Cita is the sister-in-law of Allyson Priest Cook '72.

Joining the ranks of the singles, and also those of graduate students, is Fran Culbertson Knight. Fran is in Richmond; her son, Bill, is a senior at Woodberry Forest.

Anne Day Herrmann and John are in NYC, where he works mergers and acquisitions for Shearson, Lehman, Hutton, and she serves on the vestry at Heavenly Rest and the Board of the Holy Trinity Neighborhood Center, tutors a couple of 6-year-olds, and is taking a course in child development. Children, Jed and Tim, are 12 and 9, and learning to play the trombone and recorder, respectively! Susan Deasy Maguire and John built a new home on Pinehurst Lake (NC). Their daughter, Kimberly, graduates from Wake Forest this year and is looking at graduate schools; son, Brian, is a freshman at UNC-Wilmington; and Trevor is a sophomore in h.s.

Keeping up with fast-paced technology changes in her computer business remains a challenge for Ginny deBuys in Lawrenceville, NJ. In the working meetings at Alumnae Council last fall, the Class of '64 was the only reunion class using its own computer - Ginny's lap-top! We all owe so many thanks to V. M. Del Greco Galgano for the agonizing efforts she has, and at this writing is, putting into the job of being our 25th reunion gifts chairperson. Attempting to raise so many dollars from a class which traditionally has given so few has been a challenge. V.M. continues to teach math at James Madison U., (where husband, Michael, is chairman of the history department), and also at Blue Ridge Community College near Harrisonburg, VA. The Galgano children are first year UVA (Robert), 10th grade (David) and 7th grade (Laura). Doots Duer Colen reports from Gladwyne, PA, that all is happy, and that she stays very busy with her job as V.P. for marketing and personnel of a large construction firm, as well as volunteer work with the United Way, Red Cross and Junior League. Doot's daughter, Jennifer, is a freshman at Trinity College, and Ambler is in the 10th grade. Husband, Joe, has a son living with them and a daughter nearby.

From Grace Mary Garry Oates... the usual 3-page typewritten letter... filled with news of several classmates with whom she has been in contact about the reunion. Grace Mary's greatest thrill was making contact, after 18 years, with her freshman roommate, Charlotte Turner Springford, in Montgomery, AL. Charlotte is writing a novel (perennially), as is Grace Mary (interminably), and also writes guest editorials and travel articles for the local newspaper. The Springford's have 2 children - Brent, Jr., 13, a Duke U. Talent Search qualifier to take the SAT as a 7th grader, and Robin, 10. Grace Mary also learned that Melody McCormick Cooke was married about a year ago and is now Melody Reger. Melody's elder daughter is in law school at the U. of Chicago, and the younger one is an undergraduate at Michigan. Linda Lee McAndrew is still very much involved in dance in NYC, and is also taking care of Patrick, 8, and Kevin, 3. Elizabeth Matheson has settled in her hometown of Hillsborough, NC, where she continues as a photographer. Her work, which was recently included in an exhibit at the National Museum of Women in the Arts, got rave reviews in The Washington Post. Elizabeth frequently sees and travels with Helen Dunn, who is still with Americana Magazine in NYC. She also sends the news that Sarah Strother has a new, very dishy, English husband.

Grace Mary came across a big spread in the April, 1988, issue of Colonial Homes featuring Stephanie Stokes' gorgeous apartment, which "occupies the library cum sunroom of an old New York mansion converted to apartments," and which she decorated. The text reported, in part, that: "Miss Stokes worked for decorators Mark Hampton and the late Harrison Cultra before starting her own firm, Stephanie Stokes Interior Design, in 1982. Prior to that, she was an award-winning photojournalist, traveling on assignments in Europe and Asia for 12 years." And finally, Grace Mary's own news. She and Wally discovered how much they had become attached to the Washington area when Wally turned down the tempting offer of a newly created chair in Economics at UNC, Chapel Hill, and they decided to remain in University Park, MD, in a new, bigger house. Wally became a grandfather last year. Grace Mary remains aghast at the idea of what that makes her and is madly considering some appropriate, not too horrific title for herself.

"Fine, healthy and happy" is how Mary Green Borg describes life with Andy and their 5 sons. Mary is teaching community college courses (such as mental jogging!) to senior citizens, and stays busy otherwise with Cub Scouts, Great Books for Kids, and singing in the Greeley, CO, chorale. Andy, when he is not being a judge, fly fishes, jogs and is really into organic gardening. The oldest boys are both varsity soccer players - Evan at Bates College where he is a sophomore, and Adam as a freshman at Ithaca College. Owen, in 8th grade, is a sports enthusiast; Ethan recently (and thankfully!) traded in his ball python snake at the pet store for a puppy; and the youngest, William, is busy learning all those 2nd grade things. Kitty Griffith writes from Brooklyn that most of her time during the week is spent on the job as V.P. in charge of USA Corporate Communications for the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce. On weekends she often visits her son, Foster (14), who attends Kildonan School near Millbrook, NY. Out on the farm in Manchester, TN, Sally Gum Berryman, uncharacteristically, is being a lady of few words when she says: "All's well here!" I trust that she is still finding lots of time for horseback riding and golf. Nancy Hall Green and Frances Hanahan lunch together frequently in NYC. Fran lives in the city and sells real estate for Sotheby's. Nancy still resides in Atlanta, but spends a good deal of time in NYC, since husband, Holcombe, formed an acquisition firm, Green Capital Investors, there. The Green children, Holcombe III and Frank, are at Dickinson College (PA) and Taft, respectively.

The Thanksgiving holiday last year was a special one for Diane Hatch. She left Fredricksburg, VA, and her Latin students to spend a glorious week in Greece, where temperatures were comfortable and the tourists few. Hedi Haug White is being challenged (and I imagine, frustrated) as chairperson of Manhattan's Upper East Side Planning Board, as its members struggle with the demands of growth versus environment. Still, Hedi is cheery... she is still a teenager at heart... and cannot understand why her 15-year-old and his friends don't want her "hanging out" with them... ha!

In Lexington, Lee Huston Carroll is set to graduate from U.Ky. with an M.A. in Math Education. Lee has quit a good systems analyst job to take up teaching—must want those summers off! She needs them—there are 7 children in the recently combined Huston, Carroll household. Two are away at school - a sophomore at Amherst and one at Woodberry. Lee joined husband, John, who spent the past year at Oxford on a fellowship, for a couple of weeks in December. While there, they had dinner with Nancy Lynah Hood, who is the curator of the museum of Oxford.

Susan Jahn Mancini visited Kate-Roy Massie Christian and Dixon at their new home in Richmond while on the college visiting circuit. Son, Nicholas, is a freshman at the U. of Chicago, and Mara Bell a sophomore in h.s. Susan continues to teach French and Italian at the secondary level, while husband, Albert, is president of the American Association of Teachers of Italian and is a professor at Ohio State. Life in Little Rock is fine and busy - so says Genie Johnson Sigler, who is the financial administrator for the Episcopal Cathedral there. Genie's daughter, Beth, is a sophomore at Rhodes College in Memphis. Caroline Keller Theus saw lots of SBC classmates in 1988: Susan Bronson Croft, Vicky Cox, Commander, Dottie Norris Schipper, Jane Bradley Wheeler and Harriet Houston Shaffer. Caroline has gotten out of 'active' farm management, leaving more time for the Murphy Oil Corporation Board and her Federal Reserve Bank directorship. Son, Jonathan, enters W&L this fall, and daughter, Elizabeth, likely will be somewhere in Europe or Asia for her junior year.

Life after the Brussels Foreign Service assignment remains an adjustment for Marsh Metcalf Seymour in suburban Washington. She and Jack had two graduations this spring - Randle from h.s. and Peter from Stanford. Hilton Head Island is second home to Scottie Newell Lennon; first is Southampton, NY. Scottie has been working part-time with her ophthalmologist husband in laser treatment of eye patients, and is also very active in fund raising for the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation. The Lennon children are Laura (20), Richard (18), both at William and Mary, and Allison (12). Jackie Nicholson Wysong and David live in a solar house in Alexandria, VA (on Nicholson Lane!), where Jackie still manages a construction office. The Wysong's have a passion for skiing. They have a condo in Wintergreen, and last March enjoyed a skiing trip to Italy. Daughter, Mary, is a junior at Randolph-Macon and is vice president of her class. David, Jr., is junior in h.s., plays soccer, and has a part-time job to support his car and skiing habit. Matthew is in 6th grade... and has discovered girls!

Last year I wrote about Dottie Norris Schipper's escapades while on a photography assignment in Turkey (handing upside down out of an airplane taking pictures). Here is one I missed - she also slept with donkey dung on her face (a "surefire" cure for wrinkles...right!). At home in Greenville, Dottie is on the SC Nature Conservancy board, and has resolved to do a journalistic campaign against acid rain. Dottie is shaken by the untimely death of close friend and classmate, Mary Peeples DeVries, in August, 1988. That makes 7 deceased members of the Class of '64!

Tina Patterson Murray is on the boards of 2 boarding schools and various social services agencies. Husband, Brean, has a brokerage firm on Wall Street. Tina's daughter, Renee, is a freshman at Dickinson College in PA, and her 2 step-sons are at Lawrence in WI and the U. of Montana. Missy Reeder Crosbie, in Toronto, stays busy with family and volunteer work. In Little Rock, Rosamond Sample Brown is a bank vice president handling national and international accounts. Rosamond's elder son is a senior at Vanderbilt, and the younger is a h.s. senior. Elizabeth Scott Porter and new English husband, Julian Grenfell, are in D.C., where Leezee's furniture leasing company, Antique and Contemporary Leasing, Inc., is now 15 years old.

Daughter, Erin, is 3rd year at U.Va., and is best friends with Ann Harwood Scully's daughter. In Lynchburg, Ann Sims Fauber's gift shop is in its 19th year. The Sims' second oldest daughter (there are 4) was married in May (the first to do so). Ann has had recent visits from Susan Bronson Croft and Mimi Couch Teschner. Nina Sledge Burke enjoys working for Stratford Hall Plantation...she is GA director. Husband, Frank, is chairman of Bank South; Eleanor is a junior at Mt. Vernon College in D.C.; and Richard will be a freshman at W&L in the fall. In January Lynne Smith Crow wrote to me en route to Kenya with her mother for a safari vacation! Lynne's son, David, is a freshman at Denison U.; Sandy is a junior in h.s., and Margaret is in 9th grade. Dona Van Arsdaire Jones stays busy with charitable and school volunteer work in Chevy Chase, MD, and is also an avid tennis player. She and Carleton, and the children, Timothy and Emily, had a skiing trip to Steamboat Springs this past January.

"The American Countryside," an exhibition of paintings by Jean Walker Campbell, was on view at the National Academy of Sciences in D.C., last Sept.-Jan. Prior to that, Jean had solo exhibitions at The Union League Club in NYC and at Johnson & Johnson, Inc. New Brunswick, NJ. Her work is in numerous private, public and corporate collections, including the Bergen Museum of Art and Science, Reader's Digest Association, and Paine Webber, Inc.

Class of 1968 at Reunion '88

I thoroughly enjoyed doing my small part for our 25th reunion, calling and talking with a few of you - Alice Fales Stewart, Allison Jennings McCance, Tria Pell Dove and Caroline Tate Noojin. Of course, Caroline I've seen several times, and I know how wonderful she looks. The others sounded just the same as I remembered, and so I assume look great too! As for me, I continue in the hectic environment of corporate aerospace, dealing with all those men! Twice married, twice divorced, I relish the independence of the single life. My 20 year-old, William is in his 2nd year at U.Va., and the boy that I thought was going to be a doctor is now into history and foreign affairs...and law school? Guy, besides having recently totalled my car, has managed to graduate from h.s. and will be off to college (U. of Florida, I think!) in the fall. His interests (besides girls and sports) lie in the environmental sciences.

Greetings to all, with special hellos to fellow reunioners. We all had such a great time. It's not too soon to start thinking reunion 1993; let's all be there!

As Controller, Lorna Allen Sorley does financial reporting, budgeting, and long-range planning for American Capital Management & Research, Inc., in Houston. Melissa Allen Kalinowsky finished her masters in educational administration at the U. of S. Carolina. She is Director of Curriculum for Jasper County Schools in S.C. Ann Biggs Lewis returned to Palm Beach after 5 years (2 in DC, 2 in London, 1 in Baltimore). She is the educational coordinator for the Preservation Foundation of Palm Beach - and her boss is Polly Jose Earl (SBC '65)!

Cecilia Bryant won the EVE Award, an annual award given by the Florida Times-Union for her outstanding contribution in education. After her term on the Board of Regents of the Florida State University system, Cecilia will return to her private law practice.

Harriet Buford Risteviski, Gino, and their daughter, Krstina, traveled to Macedonia again last summer. Kate Buster wants "to visit and photograph every part of the world!" She has become an "exercisaholic." Andrea Beerman Sonfield regrets missing the reunion, but was in the midst of her move to Hilton Head.

As Latin Language Cataloger for the Library of Congress, Phoebe Brunner

Peacock does detailed biographic and bibliographic research and descriptions of books written in Latin or in classical Greek. Phoebe hopes to take up riding sidesaddle in the time left after her job, raising twin girls, and being president of the SBC Alumnae Club of Washington, D.C. Elizabeth Cadwalader has quit teaching the learning disabled to devote all her time to mothering. Kate Conday is working hard at her marketing business, "identifying and obtaining clients for my clients." She is also writing a book for teenage girls.

Living in a boys' dorm at Blair Academy is a challenge for Candida Connard Low and David. Candy tutors students in math. Brenda Darden Kincaid loves teaching secondary mathematics, and hopes to get her master's in the fall of '89. Francie deSaussure Meade had her baby boy, Edward, Aug. 5, 1988. All of us reunioners rejoice with her. Mary Gress sends thanks to all for a most enjoyable reunion.

Libby Harvey Hodgkins and Joe are expanding their micro-analytical chemical and biomedical lab. By solving chemical problems and puzzles, they identify pollutants and provide solutions. As Libby states, "Each of us has direct personal responsibility to not throw paint thinner down the drain, for instance; or over-chemical our gardens and landscaping."

Carter Hunter Hopkins, as Director of Career Planning at Sweet Briar, continues to counsel students and alumnae in both career and life planning. Noni Keen Williams volunteers as a Guardian-ad-litem in juvenile court. She and Brooke just moved to Summit, N.J. Barbara Johnson Prickett is very busy being housewife, mother, and community volunteer. Frances Kirven Morse, on a leave-of-absence from the Brookline Public Schools, is working full-time on her masters at the Harvard Graduate School of Education. Daughter Sarah (16 1/2) is participating in the first-ever Russian-American Home Exchange. They had a Russian teen living with them for 4 weeks in the winter, and Sarah will live with a Russian family in Moscow for 4 weeks this spring.

Fifth grade teacher Deidre Leland and her husband, Frank Rhyner, biked in Ireland and hiked in Scotland last summer. Celia Newberg Steingold wishes 20th reunions were every year - she needs those belly laughs more often! In addition to a dozen other volunteer activities, Celia has become a docent at the National Gallery in Washington and loves it. During an interesting trip to China last summer, Celia got caught in a typhoon!

Kathy Obenchain Glass, teaching 6th graders, enjoys hiking in the mountains near Staunton, VA. Linda Pattberg Meixner is in Los Angeles with her family and some unusual pets. She says it is a lovely life, "and maybe this year I'll start working again!—or maybe next..." Ann Peterson Griffin is an in-house docent at the Dallas Museum, and "wouldn't trade" being a mom and wife for anything.

Addie Russo had a visiting appointment at Universite de Provence in Aix-en-Provence, and so could not attend reunion. She is returning to Baton Rouge and Louisiana State University where she is a tenured associate professor of French. Like our other new mothers, Emmy Savage Borthwick has no time for anything else but being a mother, and "keeping a path cleared through the house."

Suzanne Torgan Weston and Steve won a 10-day motorcycle trip to Alaska from BMW. They "both rode bikes." Blair Walker Lawrence, a 4th grade teacher in Warrenton, VA, is active in church and Red Cross work. Susan Williams has retired from her job as museum registrar to be home with husband, son and their animals. Cecelia Williamson Grinstead won the singles tennis championships at their club this fall. She loves being a wife, mother and housewife. When psychologist Betsy Wolfe is not seeing patients, she swims, bikes and sails.

Any other new babies? Grandchildren? Let me know! Send news early enough to beat the Feb. 1 deadline. That way we can all keep up with each other. Any ideas for better class "secretarying", please send along. I shall enjoy being your secretary again, but I need your help to make our notes comprehensive.

Thank you for brightening my January days! I am delighted to provide a way for all of us to keep in touch with one another.

In France, Stephanie Harmon

Simonard is an international tax partner with Peat Marwick and has been working for the past 2 years on a tax treaty which will help American residents of France. The U.S. Senate recently ratified this treaty. Sophie (12) and Vanessa (10) are growing fast. Husband, Baudoin, is doing well in the French office of a major German metals manufacturing firm. From London Holly Smith traveled to Cyprus last summer to interview the Cypriot president and major bankers for an article on international trade. Currently, however, Holly is writing about and doing kitchen installation work.

Vivian Finlay writes from Alaska that she and her husband, Chuck Vancura, have completed their home on a lake about 60 miles north of Anchorage after 5 years work. Vivian's private practice as a marriage, family, and child therapist is doing very well and she enjoys AK despite the economic recession.

A number of our classmates have answered the call to "Go West." Ceci Albert will have been promoted to Lt. Colonel in the Air Force by the time these notes are published. She is stationed in Los Angeles and responsible for connecting space technologies with Air Force requirements. Eliza Walbridge earned a Master of Education degree from Harvard last June and is living and teaching math on the Zuni Indian Reservation in New Mexico. In OK Lucinda Hart Kennon is practicing pharmacy part-time while enjoying her boys (ages 8 and 5) Sharon Uhler has just moved to CO to begin work as museum archivist for the Colorado Springs Pioneers Museum. From the mountains of Lake Tahoe, NV, Lucinda Lawrence Pierce sends news of her part-time work in the advertising department of the local newspaper. Her children, Emily (7) and Nathan (10), also keep her busy. In Denver, CO, Vicki White Carpenter has a private practice in physical therapy. She and Marc had their 2nd daughter, Kelly in March '88; Kristen is now 2.

Texas is home for many of our classmates. In Houston, Margaret Lyle Jones continues to work in Hematology and enjoy her growing boys. Also in Houston, Jence Montgomery Childers writes of the wonderful trip she and husband Craig took to Disney World to celebrate Mickey's 60th birthday and daughter Jennie Elizabeth's 5th. Allyson Priest Cook is president of the Junior League in Houston. A local newspaper reported, "Allyson, whose organizational talents would stand up admirably with those of CEO's in the major business leagues, this summer assumed leadership of an organization responsible for volunteerism in 29 civic, cultural and health-related projects." Allyson and her husband Steve have 2 children - Steve, 14 and Elizabeth, 11. In Midland, TX Rhonda Durham is using the new freedom which comes with having all 3 of her children in school to become president of the Midland Junior League. As her oldest son, Trevor (15), is at the Groton School in MA, Rhonda anticipates numerous trips East and would love to see classmates. Her other children, Caitlin (10) and Jonathan (6), keep her busy and happy. Betty Works Fuller writes from Austin of the birth of her son, William Richard Lewis Fuller, in Oct. He is well cared for by big sister Mary Austin (10). Betty now divides her time among motherhood, wifehood, part-time ministry in a small Episcopal Church and a 10-year old Christian education curriculum consulting business!

Love and encouragement to Elise

Webb Neeland who must learn to walk all over again after complications following knee surgery. She writes from Montgomery, AL that her girls Leslie (9) and Elizabeth (8) have gained a lot of independence during this ordeal. Birmingham, AL is home to several of our classmates. The highlight of 1988 for Susan Waller Nading was a trip to S. America with her parents. Husband, Alex, and children Murray (12), Alex (9), and Will (6) are all happy and healthy.

Marion Walker is still with the brokerage firm of Morgan Keegan, but is considering a return to her law practice. She is excited about serving on SBC's Planned Giving Committee. Margaret Hayes Brunstad, husband Jim and girls, Betsy (7) and Margaret Wade (4) enjoy their new home in Birmingham and have, of necessity, taken up perennial and landscape gardening as a hobby. Margaret is completing a rewarding year as president of a local service organization which runs an Early Intervention Program for children from birth to age 3.

In Oxford, MS Susan Scott Oliphant is Study Abroad Advisor and sometime French or English instructor for U. of MS. During her "spare" time, Susan is learning to smock for daughters Sallie (11) and Elizabeth (2).

Last August, Pamela Reid married Jared E. Lee. They now live in St. Croix where Pamela is owner and president of Tranberg Tours and Travel. Mary Pat Varn Moore writes from FL of the birth of her son, Jonathan Taylor, in Nov. Warren (8) is a model big brother. Deanna Boggs Lewis reports from Jacksonville, FL that she and husband, Richard, celebrated their 12th anniversary at the foot of the Alps, combining a business trip to Munich with a vacation in Bavaria. Their son Richard (7) enjoys T-ball and soccer. Also from Jacksonville, Linda Odum Sweat writes of a delightful visit with sophomore suite-mates Sally Blalock Seidel and Cinda Lawrence Pierce in Lake Tahoe last summer. Sally and Charles just bought their first house, in Carmichael, CA. Emily is in 1st grade.

Tennis has become more competitive for Deborah Hollings since she and Michael moved from Camden to Columbia, SC. Instead of bloody marys they really play for blood! Son Christopher is in 2nd grade and loves soccer, karate, nintendo, and reading. Marty Neill Boney writes from Wilmington, NC that the past year's highlights included a trip to Disney World, a tour of the Maine coast (no moose at all!), and a hilarious visit with Carter Frackelton. Marty works with ultrasonic patients at the OB clinic and volunteers at the women's domestic violence shelter. Kristen (10) and Andrew (7) keep the household on its toes. Carter Frackelton still enjoys working with her father in the block manufacturing business. Carter was in charge of the preview for Historic Fredericksburg's Candlelight Tour in Dec. (a great success) and she and Janet Nelson Gibson headed up their 20th h.s. reunion in October. Carter tells me that Janet and her husband just moved into a lovely new home they built, and that Ginnie Payne Sasser's 3rd child, a boy, Philip, keeps the Sassers hopping. Carter had a great visit with Mary Heller and Karen Medford Distelhorst at Rehoboth Beach in May.

In Lexington, KY Trish Neal Van Clief and DG are busy moving to a farmhouse in nearby Jessamine county. Danny (12) and Helen (10) are both on their school's basketball teams. Trish is enjoying her second term as SBC's Reunion Chairman and DG continues to serve as Executive Director of Thoroughbred Racing's "Breeder Cup", now in its 6th successful year.

Virginia is home to many of our classmates. Barbara Tessin Derry writes from Richmond that Junior League, church activities, and the antics of Will (4) and Alice (2) keep her busy and very happy. Catherine Howell Riordan and her family are moving to a new house in Clifton. Matthew (8) and Michael (6) keep Kitty busy, but she has found time to do volunteer work with 3-year-old quadruplets. Susan Snodgrass Wynne has a great and busy life in Virginia Beach. Her volunteer efforts include cancer patients at the children's hospital, local museum, Ronald McDonald House, and United Way. John (13) and Brad (7) are active with sports and school. Charlene Sturbitts, in Arlington, resigned from her law firm and started an environmental consulting firm with 2 partners. Lobbying Congress is now a major occupation, but Charlene continues to practice environmental law as counsel to another law firm while renovating a log cabin on the Chesapeake. Last spring she went trekking in the Himalayas. Jeannette Pillsbury is now a full-time student in the Ph.D. program in Educational Administration at U.Va. From Jeannette we hear of Briggett Keith who is attending VA seminary in Alexandria. Mary Phillips Donohoe also is enjoying life in Alexandria with Peter Phillips (6) and Meaghan Guthrie (3). Mary has been with Time Life Books for more than 10 years and is Director of Media Services.

Kate Williams Cox sends greetings from the sailing community of Oxford, MD where she and her family enjoy water sports and blue crabs. Kimberly (9) and Christopher (5) keep Kate busy. Karen Medford Distelhorst still does tax consulting in Annapolis about half the year. The rest of her time is devoted to tennis, skiing, and volunteer work with Historic Annapolis.

Turning towards the Northeast, Ann Brown is beginning a new job as Director of the American Swedish Historical Museum in Philadelphia, PA. She also is planning a week of cross-country skiing in Banff National Park. Once Ann finds a house she would love to see SBC friends. NYC is home to several of our classmates. Georgie Vairo is teaching at Fordham Law School and was recently named to fill one of the vacancies on the Dalkon Shield Claimants Trust. B. J. Martin, still a country girl at heart after 16 years in NYC, works at the corporate apparel firm Leslie Fay and thinks daily of our happy days at SBC. Cynthia Heye Hopkins' daughter, Christina Courtney, was born 5/26/88 and the following day, they moved to a new home in Upper Montclair, NJ! Just as the dust was settling, Cynthia went back to work as Group Product Marketing Manager for the Orthopaedics Division of Pfizer.

Many of our friends live and work in the Boston area. Joan Langenberg is studying at Tufts U. for a Masters in Occupational Therapy. Kathy Upchurch is busy with her medical practice and children, Sam (5), Kate (3), and Sarah (15 months). She has enjoyed visits with Penny Walsh Gilbert and Mercedes Gravatt Grandin and expects 1989 to be hectic, happy, and hopefully healthy. Kathy was just elected to SB's Board of Overseers by the alumnae association. Frances Nilsson works at the Babson College Library in Wellesley, MA and appreciates the liberal arts emphasis of SBC after working in a college dedicated to business. Frances and husband have gotten the travel bug and have visited Montreal, England, and Sweden in the past year. She is now attempting to master Swedish cooking for sons Anders (13) and Peter (11).

From a Maine without much snow Kathy Walsh Drake writes of her busy life with 4 daughters, Elizabeth (9), Hadley (7), Courtney (4), and Virginia (1). The carpool leaves a little time free for volunteer work at the hospital and Women's Exchange. In Rutland, Vermont, Sharon White Brown is involved with many civic organizations, while her 3 children are all skiers and horseback riders.

Here in Laurinburg, NC I remain busy with full-time teaching in the English Department at St. Andrews Presbyterian College. My husband Bill has been on sabbatical this year and will return to teaching French in September. We have passports and visas for France this summer! In the meantime Willie (4) keeps us smiling and busy. Love to all — SBC is still the best!

Do you ever experience those dewy quiet mornings (when you walk out to get the paper) that remind you of an early walk to Guion? Or do you ever walk past a sweet-smelling bush that reminds you of whatever it was that used to bloom outside the hostel? Do you ever hear an "oldie" that reminds you of a party at The Pavilion or some wild fraternity on Mad Bowl? Every so often I have these flashbacks, but particularly during the time I read your class notes. It's wonderful to conjure up that one particular time that you and your lab partner... or you and your roommate... or you and those girls you studied with in the Pit—Well, here we go again, from memory lane til the present—the Class of '76.

Canady Griffo says life just keeps getting better in VA Beach. Kevin's long distance business continues to do well. He and Kels still take their annual ski trips to CO despite daughter McKenzie who is 14 mos. Kelsey loves being an at-home mom. Sally Old Kitchen was expecting #3 in April. Maria is 7 and Leggett 4. When Anne Kiley Crenshaw wrote, she and Clarke were awaiting the birth of their second child who was due on Christmas Day. Clarke Jr. is 5. They spent T-Giving at the Homestead. Anne is still practicing law at McGuire, Woods and Battle and had a summer visit from Catherine Adams Thompson and Mike. Also at the Beach are Roberta Hauck Gribble and Russ with children Rusty 7, Bradley 5 1/2, and Katie-Beth 3. Roberta is with AT&T and Russ works for CPE.

Linda-Jean Smith was married to Lee Schneider (brother of Joella '77) on June 4 in Pittsburgh. Pam Violante was maid-of-honor. Following the afternoon reception, the bride and groom and several friends attended the Pirates baseball game. Linda-Jean and Lee left next day for a honeymoon in Montreal and on the St. Lawrence Seaway. In England Sharon Coe Glen and Jonathan had their 3rd - Andrew Keilder - on July 14. Their other two children sport adorable English accents. Sharon planned to attend Sue Walton's wedding in May. (She had just returned from Israel.) Virginia Spangler Polley and David plan a visit to England this year without 14 mo. old Frank. Gina is a Manufacturers Rep for a contract flooring co. and would like to get in touch with more SBCers in the Philadelphia area. Perhaps she could look up Laurie Fitzgerald Nowlan in Rosemont, PA. Laurie has 3 children from 3 to 6 1/2 and says tennis and paddle tennis help her to keep sane. She sees Reb and Gina Jackson Speare - also in the area - and their new twins (Robbie and Katie) and daughter Megan.

This must be an exciting time to be working at Drexel Burnham as Diana Michael-Cignavitch is. She and her husband (who live in West Orange, NJ) are expecting #1 (just wait, THAT is excitement!). Diana plans to return to work in the corporate finance dept. following maternity leave. Her husband has his own business running an ambulance service. (Speaking of excitement on the job!) Debbie Mutch was married to Bill Olander in October and they have built a home in Palm Harbor, FL. Both work at Honeywell's Space and Strategic Avionics, but Bill plans to start his own consulting business this spring. Melanie Holland Rice got right to the point, "... Trip is 4, Carrington is 7, George is still with Crestar Bank, I am still carpooling." Love it.

Lochrane Coleman Smith and Mel have had a couple of reunions this year. They attended Mary Combs ('74) wedding in Dec. in Naples, FL and hosted Carrington Brown Wise and family in Birmingham last March. The Wises were on their way to their new home in Jackson, MS. Carrington's husband, Alex, finished W&L Law School (cum laude) in May of '88 and is now clerking for a Federal Judge in MS. Their 3rd child, Elizabeth Carrington, was also born in May.

Christie Mills Allen trained 10 mos.

and ran in the Marine Corps Marathon in Nov.! She also free-lances in graphic art and computer graphics. Dave is a plumbing designer for an engineering firm and is doing a 1st class job on their townhouse basement. Debbie Massie Thurman and Russ are in S. Calif. but plan to move back to VA in '90. She writes that she is "continuing her commitment to the Marine Corps Reserves as a public affairs officer." Russ is enjoying some notoriety as a writer and military technical advisor for TV and motion pictures. He was associated with HBO's "Vietnam War Story". Nancy Simonds is an RN at UT Southwestern Medical Center in Pediatric Nephrology research and is involved in Northwest Bible Church, sports and crafts. Susan Verbridge Paulson is also involved in her church (United Methodist) in rural Rocky Ford, CO where husband Larry is minister. She also teaches private piano and organ lessons. Susan and Larry have 2 children, Christina, 6 and Danny, 4. Alix Collie Wilson moved in the spring of '87 to Cockeysville, MD (Andie Yellott's old town?). She and the children Jennifer, 7 and Garret, 4 love the new house and neighborhood. I have to talk to Debbie Vatteroot Ruck and TR. They were in Naples, FL while I was in AZ and in AZ while I was in Naples. Let's coordinate it next year, Vatteroot! Debbie is also attending Stonier Graduate School of Banking.

Like everyone else in our class, when I hear "Killing Me Softly (with his song)" on the radio, I think of Marsha Taylor-Delain. Marsha is still in the SC Dept. of Educ., in statewide testing. She sees Chris Hoefer Myers ('75) who is with ETV in Columbia, SC and last year Marsha lunched with Holly Morrisett Emison and Maria Jones Tisdale (both '75) in Richmond. Sister Sandra ('74) was recently elected to the SBC Alumnae Board.

Another interesting career and wonderful news from Becky Wilson McDonough. Becky works at Morton Thiokol (lives in Chester, VA) and was married in Feb. '88. Becky sees Missy Briscoe McNatt, Melanie Coyne Cody, Nonie Micky Daniel and Pat Neal. Sara (Sally) Crickenberger Brady and Gordon had a daughter, Sally Elizabeth in March '88; son Winston is 2. Gail Ann Zarwell Winkler also has 2, Laura, 3 and William, 18 mos. She volunteers for the Kings Daughters Service Circle, does smocking and gardening and has gotten together with Bet Bashinsky White ('75) and son. Catherine Callett is still in a private law practice in Ft. Lauderdale, specializing in real estate, personal injury and family law. Karen Adelson Strauss writes that '88 was the most pressured year of her life, so far. She has 2 children, works part-time as an environmental engineer and is in her 2nd year in a doctoral program for Public Health. She will spend 5 weeks in Europe recovering this summer!

If Phoenixville, PA is near Philly, Karina Schless should look up Gina Polley. Karina just bought a terrific house there: 1 acre, old orchard, stone fireplaces, etc. She continues to ride Drambuie (how old is that horse, now?), runs a boarding stable and hunts. Karina has been with Wyeth-Ayerst Labs for 8 years and is now in the finance dept. How about Williamsport, is that close to Philadelphia? Cynde Seiler Eister and Ron are there with Ronald, 6, Sarah, 4 and Laura, 2. Cynde is back at work part-time via home computer and remains active in church and the medical auxiliary and was recently appointed Republican committee woman.

The day I arrived home from having my daughter Caroline in Sept. I received a call from Elliott Graham Schoenig, Margaret Milnor Mallory, Teesie Costello Howell (with Chris and son Jackson), Peggy Weimer Parrish and Mary Aiken Wright. All were staying at Elliott's in Charlottesville for a sort of reunion - slumber party and it sounded like a wonderful visit. Margaret said she "hadn't stayed up that late or eaten that much since college days". She plays tennis in a Ladies Doubles League and won Div. A in Dec. Margaret's household consists of husband Bart, who is General Counsel for Guardsman, Inc., 2 sons, Barton, 4 and Bennet, 2 and step-daughter Allison, 17. Teesie reports that Margaret bought out the T-shirt dept. in the SBC Bookstore and on "the Corner" at UVA. (They sent me an adorable SBC sweatshirt for my newborn.) Teesie treks from Richmond to C'ville several times a year to get together with Elliott and Jerry and continues her work at Amer. Home Funding where Debbie Jones is also employed. The main reason for the C'ville get-together was a surprise baby shower for Peggy Parrish. Peggy and John announced the arrival of John Henry VI ("Jay") on Jan. 11, '89. Peggy truly amazes me. She started back to law school almost immediately after coming home from the hospital and will go back to her job at the Federal Reserve Board around May.

I received copies of the cutest baby announcements from Hilda Dent Williams and Cheryl Lux Cobb. Hilda's son Horace Dent was born on Thanksgiving and the announcement was a replica of a Front Page Extra Edition with pictures, headlines and news appropriate to the special event. Truly personal since Hilda has been editor of Montgomery magazine for 3 years. Hilda stayed with Margot Mahoney in Washington, DC while attending the wedding of Jean von Schrader ('82). She and Randall also hiked a section of the Appalachian Trail last summer (while pregnant - give me a break, girl!). This after spending 10 days in England in June. Cheryl Lux Cobb's announcement was equally imaginative. Cheryl and John had a heck of a time last year on the ranch in Montana. Drought and forest fires forced their evacuation 2 times (she while 9 1/2 mos. pregnant). The ranch was saved while everything south of them burned completely. They announced the calving of a Grand Champion Bull calf on Sept. 22 with a wonderful description in "ranch and cattle terms" of the calf, Adam. Ainslie Jones Uhl gave birth to twins Hart (boy) and Colbern (girl) in May '88 which necessitated a move to a larger apartment in Manhattan's East 90's. Robert is the Sr. Pharmaceutical Analyst and VP with Salomon Bros.

Mary Lewis had lots of past news to relate. Post SBC, Mary went through med school, internal medicine residency and a nephrology fellowship. She was married and has now begun work with a nephrology group in New Haven, CT. Husband Barry Bizot is finishing up Internal Medicine and will be working on his masters degree in Public Health at Yale this year. Liz Jenks Coggin and Turner have moved to Richmond and have 3 children (2 boys, 7 and 4 and a girl nearly 1). Ann Works Balderston and Biv had another child, Margaret Cox, born 4/13/88. She joins Billy, 6 1/2 and Sarah, 3. They will vacation for 3 weeks this year at the family ranch in Jackson Hole. The Balderston's had visits from both Andie Yellott and Sallie Hill Bernard Armstrong and Bob. They also heard the Whiffenpoofs sing at the Country Club on New Years Eve and Ann said it really brought back memories. Andie and Ben finally (!) eloped in March of '88 and honeymooned in St. Croix. Andie says she is happy, happy, happy. Ben is a writer, teacher and great groom (for her horse). Andie took off from teaching in the fall to work on her novel and compete her horse in eventing, but has returned to teach Shakespeare to jrs. and srs. at St. Tim's. "Oh, wouldn't Aiken, Dabney, Tamburr and Piepho be proud?" she jibed.

Will Kari Andersen Shipley ever slow down? She chaired the opening of a historic museum in Del Ray Beach, works at the local hospital, is a room mother, a school fundraiser for 2 different schools, takes kids to soccer, tennis, etc. and won the women's doubles tennis tournament at her club. This only covers about a fourth of her post card, but with 4 children, she and John are busy. They spent the summer in Lake Tox-away, NC.

Meg Shields Duke and Jamie had baby #3, Caroline... one of three Carolines born in '88 to Class of '76ers (joining the original born in '87 to Caroline Bickel McLoughlin and Hollis). Lisa Nelson Robertson and I had the other 2. We 4 have preregistered all our Caroline's for 303 and 305 Grammer. Meg and Jamie keep promising to come to Chicago and Bill and I to Denver... One of these days, Megger. Meg worked most of the fall on the CO Bush/Quayle Campaign and was in DC for the Inaugural where she organized an SBC Inaugural Reunion with Caroline and Hollis. Margot Mahoney, Sally Mott Lawrence, and Bob, Slats (Cathy Slatinshak - who could forget?), Ookie Hays Cooper and Jim and Rowena Van Tuyl Schubert and Bill. I had several long wonderful phone conversations with Row before and after the big event. Row and her daughters (Larissa and McKenzie) had a terrifying experience last year living through the big earthquakes in So. Calif. while Bill was away at work. Lisa Robertson and Tim are the proud parents of 4 redheads; their Caroline was 1 in April. Lisa is "still teaching Bible study, trying to play tennis and surviving one day at a time." Sally and Bob Lawrence have a second son, Robert Francis, Jr. Margot Mahoney wrote a long detailed letter about the Inaugural weekend, suffice it to say that even Washingtonians "stargaze". She also traveled to Aspen, enjoyed summer visits to Martha's Vineyard and Carmel and was promoted to Sr. VP for Finance and Administration for WCG. She also volunteers at the hotline for the Battered Women's shelter.

From Louisville comes word of Libba Gorin who is in her 11th year teaching and coaching at Louisville Collegiate School. Last year she accompanied some girls from their 2 field hockey teams to England for sight-seeing and hockey matches. Connie Radford Butler keeps busy with 2 children, Austin, 7 and Robert, 3, and with sewing, appliquing and substitute teaching at Robert's preschool. From the Wall Street Transcript, I learned that Erica Hain Eager is in NY working as an Analyst at Eberstadt Fleming, Inc. She received her MBA at Loyola and spends her free time sailing, riding and in the wilderness. Marilyn (Mare) Moran just returned from Club Med in the Caribbean, is traveling to FL a lot on business, to CA in May and London in Oct. "... Having a blast!"

The Texas crowd always sends lots of news, but this year I missed the usual long newsy letter from Cissy Humphrey. Dede Ryan Ale and John are expecting #2 in early July. John, Jr. was born 3/88. The Ale's followed that event up with a 2 wk. trip to Southampton and 2 wks. in Toledo visiting Dede's parents. Johnny was walking at 10 mos. and wearing Dede out. Dede is the President of the Houston SBC Club. Also in Houston is Sue Walton who is a paralegal for the Minute Maid Division of Coca Cola. She announced her engagement to Mike Claviness whom she married in May '89 in New York. Alyson Wilmer Jacobs and Nellie Osinga Brouson ('75) were 2 of her bridesmaids. She also sees Norris Judd Ferguson, Grant and little Katie in San Antonio. Becky Burt plays on 3 teams of slow pitch softball. One of her teams made regionals last year and expects to make the Nationals in '89. She traveled to Arkansas in July to dig for quartz crystals to incorporate in her stained glass designs. Becky is in Database Administration at Valic where she has worked for 7 years. Kit Newman Detering writes that Cassie is now 3 and Carlos III, 2. Kit and Carl traveled to Mexico several times this yr. where Kit took a week-long cooking course. She will also be traveling to Florence, Italy to attend cooking school in May. (This is the way to learn to cook!) She volunteers for the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo, co-chaired the special events committee for the Cattle Barons Ball and is Invitations Chairwoman for the Children's Museum Ball.

Janet Durham Sam writes from Midland, TX that 2 1/2 yr. old Juliette was a real handful after the birth of Anthony Bryan, Jr. in June. Janet loves being a mother, enjoys many community activities as well as finally getting back on the tennis courts. Husband Tony is doing very well as an "independent oil man". And Janet writes, "... Love to all my class, especially Kate Kelly Smith whom I miss and think of often." In Dallas, Tennessee Nielsen joined Micrografx, Inc. as its first in-house attorney. Micrografx markets and develops graphic software so she's "had to overcome (her) fear of personal computers." Daughter Kelsey is now 4 1/2. Beth Bates Locke has gone back to work selling cable time for the D/FW interconnect now that son Matthew is 3. She sees Kay Elisior Hopkins often since they serve on many committees together. Beth sent word that Cissy is still with Akin-Gump (law firm) as a paralegal. Kay and Joe took their 3 children, Sarah, 8, Beth, 6, and John, 2, to Disneyland last summer. She also costumed the production of "Amahl and the Night Visitors" (shades of SBC Theatre days). Kay has begun working for Neiman-Marcus Mail Order Division (love that discount!). She is still active in church activities, especially choir.

I received a card from Kathryn Smith and it took me days of detective work to figure this was Kate Kelly Smith. (Please remember to use complete names.) Kate and husband Elliott and 1 yr. old Isabel are off to London for a few years. She works part time for Town & Country there. Mark and Treacy Markey Shaw visited the Smiths in London in Dec. They also stayed with friends in the Cotswolds who have a converted grain mill built in the 1700's. Daughter Morgan is now 4 and Mark, Jr., 19 mos. Treacy plays competitive tennis, volunteers for the Junior League and does a bit of free-lance PR work. Robin Rodger Heller is back in Detroit from an 18 mo. work assignment with General Motors Europe in Opel near Frankfurt, West Germany. Bill got over several times so they enjoyed touring the German countryside together and had a very special time at Christmas. In May, back in the States, Robin put their boat, Celebration, in the water for a summer of racing. She is president of the local SBC Club, asst. treasurer (next yr. treasurer) of the Junior League and plans a trip to England and Scotland where she hopes to look up other SBCers.

Melanie Archer Graetzer saw Ann Hawkins while Ann was in town (Melanie is in NJ, Ann in LaJolla) shooting a commercial. Melanie's husband Tony "was 'pushing her (Ann's) reel' at his ad agency, so hopefully she'll be back to do other commercials in the future." Children Emily and Ian are well.

One unidentified post card arrived with the following news: "Highlights of the past year are the birth of our second daughter Ashley (Meghan is 3) and our move to a new house in Fairfax Station. I've also retired from the corporate world. . . Melanie (Holland) and George Rice and their 2 children will visit this summer. Lori Neasham ('82) and sons Amir and Michael are doing well in Hawaii."

Bill and I left city life and moved to the suburbs of Chicago just before the birth of our daughter. Caroline McKenna was born on our 1st wedding anniversary in Sept. We traveled to Hawaii, Taos, Santa Fe, NM and Phoenix on business (Bill is a VP stockbroker with Shearson Lehman Hutton) and to see my parents in Naples, FL and Akron. Carol Gamberg Kenyon ('77) and Mark moved nearby last year, so we see each other occasionally and Peggy Parrish visited in April while on a business trip. I was Auction Co-Chair for the Mental Health Assoc.'s Black & White Ball and on the Special Events Comm. for the Soiree on the Shore - a Jr. Lg. fundraiser. Postscript: Bill suffered a mild heart attack in late March, but is recuperating and expects to be back on his feet before you read this.

We send our deepest sympathy to Norma Neblett Roadcap who lost her father Vernon M. Neblett in Nov. '87 and Sally Crickenberger Brady who lost her father Winston M. Crickenberger in Dec. '88.

Looks as if 1988 was quite a busy year. Still unpacking from a move to Little Compton, RI, Angela Anton

Thomas is restoring an 1850's farmhouse. She is also active in the Junior League and is a mortgage officer for Hospital Trust. Angela is still racing MG's. Carolyn Birbeck Milam visited her old roommate, Trish Longest, in Richmond. Carolyn works with her husband in his real estate marketing development firm. They are building a 'weekend getaway' on Lake Gaston, NC. Beth Blair McKinney and James had a son, James IV, in Oct. Beth enjoys being home with the baby. Susan Boline Thompson and Greg have moved to Dallas, quite a change from L.A. Susan is taking riding lessons with Myth Monnich. She will be working with the Ramses exhibition at The Dallas Museum.

Amy Campbell Lamphere is the Development Director for the Illusion Theater, which she hopes will perform at SBC during orientation. Their work deals with self esteem/decision making and other very current issues. Amy is working with Sarah Skaggs ('79) and Mary Gearhart ('79) on a national dance conference at SBC. Amy and Jim traveled to Sweden and Scotland where they visited Tinsley Place Lockhart.

Susan Capozzoli sells municipal bonds for Financial Corp. of Richmond. She stays busy traveling and with aerobics and tennis. She sees a lot of Janell Corvin ('79) and Flo Rowe Barnick. Richard and Ellen Clement Mouri moved to Alexandria where he works for GE and on his masters. Ellen is home with Sarah, 5 and Cameron, 2. Ellen is also riding again, out in Haymarket, VA.

Ann Connolly Reagan and Dan expect their first child in January '89. The Reagans had a quick visit with Lisa Ward Connors just before her baby arrived last fall. Anne Darden is in Houston, in banking. Anne celebrated her 30th with a trip to Australia, and was looking forward to Susie Smith's wedding in February. Darla Davies works for ERA real estate in Charlottesville and would love to help anyone wishing to buy or sell. She is also involved in the horse business, owning two and showing often. Jeannine Davis has moved to Chestnut Hill, PA and is fixing up a carriage house. She is working at Frank Wolf, an office furniture company. Jeannine ran the NY Marathon last Nov. and did well.

Diane Delladera and Rob are building a house in Mt. Juliet, TN. Son Robert is 2 and their second child is due in March. Nuncia Digges Henneman and Paul had their first child, Andrew last March. They are now in Silver Springs, MD, where she is busy with the baby and sewing. Nuncia earned a bachelor of applied arts degree in fashion design in 1986. In North Hampton, NH, True Dow has been busy with the gymnastics school especially since the Olympics. The tree farm is still growing. True is going back to school to study graphic design this winter.

Maira Erickson was married last April to Dr. John Lawrence, Jr. Ginny Faris Hoffman and Alan are now living in Bridgeport, WV. Daughter #2, Mary Lauren, was born Dec. 28th and Allison is now 2. Ginny and Alan had a great time at Catherine Flaherty's wedding and saw lots of SBCers. Catherine and Jim were married in August and now live in Minneapolis, where she sees lots of Amy Campbell Lamphere. Catherine works for U.S. West selling software systems to advertising agencies. They are looking forward to trips to Tahoe, Bahamas, Hawaii and San Diego.

Annie Fisher McDaniel and Tim had their first little one, Marguerite "Maggie" Frances. Tim is a partner at Hutcheson & Grundy in Houston. Annie has retired to motherhood and junior league work. She writes that Lynne Howard Hurley expects their first baby in July. Beth Fletcher Lubin and Marvin became the proud parents of Hilliard Fletcher, born leap year day. Carol Foote Siana and Steve had a daughter, Allison Lee, last June.

Carson Freemon Meinen has settled down after the birth of Caroline Elizabeth last April. Caroline and big brother Buck keep Carson busy. Martha Fruehauf Ryan and Dick saw Lisa Sturkie Greenberg and Steve in Hilton Head last fall. Martha has been busy with a Festival of Trees, a fundraiser for sons' Michael and Jeffrey's school. Caroline is 19 months. They will all spend the summer in MI so the boys can go to camp. Charlotte Gay Gerhardt and Paul moved to a new house last spring and are working on a 10-year fixing up plan. Catherine is now 2 and their second child is due this June.

Missy Gentry Witherow and Lee are in Madison. Missy is now working in C'ville. Vivian Guttridge Olson is in Manteo, NC, 5 miles from the ocean. She is going back to school and working in the advertising department of the local paper. Her husband, Chad, is the town manager. They are very involved in the local scene - quite different from her hometown of Washington, DC. Carolyn Hallahan is still with IBM in Bethesda. She recently bought some land in the mountains of Maryland, but will remain in Germantown as the new place doesn't have a phone and she needs a 4-wheel drive just to get there.

Katherine Hancock Maxwell teaches aerobics and CPR, and keeps busy with Jessie, 2 1/2 and David, 7 months. Lisa Heisterkamp was married to Joshua Davis last June in Lancaster, PA, with many SBC alums present. Josh and Lisa had a great Hawaiian honeymoon. Lisa took a 2-month leave last fall and traveled the Far East, including a 30-day trek in the Himalayas.

Frances Holland Campbell and Clay had a quick trip to NYC last fall. They live in Valdosta, GA. Janet Hughes Wiles and her husband started their own law firm, Wiles & Wiles in Marietta, GA. John Jamison, Jr., is 2 and their second child is due in April, about the time construction starts on their new house. Garrow Hudson Crowley and Chris are in Spartenburg with Elsa, 3 and Mark, born last Sept. Garrow writes that Brooks Cunningham Dykes had a baby last fall. Hollis Hutchens Volk and Chris are still in Phoenix where Ann Yauger ('78) and I had a great visit this winter. Uncle Sam

When you make a good investment, IRS wants a cut. Every time you realize a profit through the sale of real estate, stocks and the like, IRS takes a percentage through taxes.

But don't despair: there are legitimate ways to reduce or even eliminate your level of taxation. We're happy to share some of the more common methods with you, in "Appreciated Property and Your Estate Plan." This free publication discusses tax credits, exemptions, exclusions and deductions; tax-free transfers; trusts; the tax benefits of charitable gifts; and more.

SWEET BRIAR

1907

1989 marks the 105th anniversary of the death of Daisy Williams, the 80th Commencement at Sweet Briar College and the joyous Reunion of alumnae returning to campus after graduating from five to 68 years ago. With respect and affection we dedicate this issue of the magazine to Daisy, without whom there would have been no Commencements, no Reunions, no Sweet Briar.

In Memory of Daisy

COMMEMORATING THE ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTH ANNIVERSARY OF THE DEATH OF DAISY WILLIAMS

The death of Daisy Williams in 1884 was the catalyst for the founding of Sweet Briar College, but our lands and buildings are the end result of the endeavors of Elijah Fletcher, a rather remarkable entrepreneur. His work ethics, educational values and moral fiber were passed on with his fortune to his eldest surviving daughter, Indiana Fletcher Williams. Elijah never met his granddaughter, for she was born nine years after her grandfather's death. A post Civil War infant, Daisy led a sheltered life between the rural atmosphere of the Virginia plantation and the sophisticated life of New York City in the 1870s and early 1880s. She was a town and country child, wealthy, beloved, dutiful and frail.

In 1865, when Indiana married the Reverend James Henry Williams, a pastor of Zion Episcopal Church in Dobbs Ferry, New York, they moved permanently to New York City. There was no longer a way to make a living on the Sweet Briar plantation. Virginia was a bankrupt state and the 67 slave families, who fetched, carried and tended to the needs of agriculture, had been freed. To embark on a career of owning and managing apartment hotels, James Henry gave up the pastorate for a business career in New York; Indiana was his partner.

Indiana's roots ran deep in the Virginia lands and her initial intention to sell the Sweet Briar plantation was cancelled. She actually advertised it in January of 1860 but the Civil War prevented the sale. No one was interested in being caught between two warring armies, nor was there time or money to tend 9,000 acres.

Indiana's only child, born in 1867, saw first light of day in Sweet Briar House, and for the rest of her short life spent all her summers in Virginia. It was at Sweet Briar that Daisy learned about nature, the cycles of the seasons, the planting and harvesting of crops and the management of a farm. She learned to ride her brown pony "Bounce" and grew familiar with the glorious land about her by riding the countryside with one or the other of her parents or her uncle, Sidney Fletcher. Daisy preferred Sweet Briar to New York and never appeared lonely for playmates or youthful confidants.

Indiana was more ambivalent, preferring New York because of its many cultural opportunities. A letter in the library archives from Indiana to her lifelong friend, Mrs. John Payne of Amherst, in 1897, reads, "I love New York above all places, do not tell my brother Sidney for he might think me disloyal."

So, Daisy's brief life was a combination of winter in town and summer in the country until she died at 16 on a cold, blustery January day in New York. She was brought home to the place she loved the best and laid to rest near her grandfather on what would become Sweet Briar's Monument Hill. Indiana and James Henry were devastated; during this trying time the seeds were planted to found a women's college in memory of Daisy.

To work with the historic properties of the College, our inheritance from the founder, has been to delve into a time capsule. A great deal has been discovered, recovered, rescued and examined—everything from furniture, silver, jewelry, costumes to letters and, of course, books. The Fletcher-Williams library is an extensive one for its day and covers a wide range, from the classics to cookbooks, from mathematics and science to medicine, poetry and children's books. The books and titles span the entire 19th century and many years of the 18th. They are written in French, German, Italian, as well as in English and Latin: the well-traveled Fletcher and Williams families were at home in several languages. Their collection of books was the nucleus of Sweet Briar's library, an integral part of our heritage.

One learns much about people through the books they own and collect. I consider a personal library the key to an individual. The Fletcher-Williams collection is comprised of books owned by all the family members; each name on each flyleaf has its interest. Some of the cookbooks have been most revealing because many well-thumbed and grease-spattered pages are testimony to the family's favorite foods. There are fascinating marginal notes, as well as recipes clipped from publications or hand-written, still inserted between the pages. Our many librarians wisely left those inserts precisely where family members placed them, which offers insight into food preferences from a time long before fast foods, packaged mixes, supermarkets and delis. Everything was made from scratch, cooked or baked by a wood-burning stove.

One morning this past April I was called to the main library: several books had mysteriously appeared from some dark recess. Found neatly stacked on a table in the work area, they had belonged to Daisy, her mother and her Aunt Elizabeth Fletcher Mosby of Mt.

San Angelo. They are in excellent condition, unmarked, and have never been catalogued into the library collection. Fortuitously Richard Rowland, editor of the Library Gazette, was in the library and we looked over the small collection together. We agreed that this group of eight books (five of them miniature books) was connected with the last days of Daisy's life.

The miniatures are not unusual in their contents, which are long familiar to the world: the words of Christ, biblical quotations, thoughts for the day from religious sources, and prayers. However, mystery remains. Where have these books been for so many decades and how did they surface? We may never know.

The miniature volumes are no more than three inches square; two of them are smaller. None has more than 50 pages, so they could have been held easily in frail hands to bring peace, comfort and solace to a dying girl. Their titles are indicative of their contents:

The Pilgrim's Rest with a preface by Lady Hope. London, James E. Hawkins
Daisies from the Psalms by F. M. H., London, James E. Hawkins

Golden Thoughts: The words of Jesus recorded in the Gospels selected by T. M. Lindsey, D.D. New York, James Pott

Peace. New York, Anson D. F. Randolph & Co.

Bible Forget Me Nots: A Daily Text-book of Divine Promises. New York, Anson D. F. Randolph & Co.

Bible Forget Me Nots consists of 31 sayings from the Bible with drawings of forget-me-nots on each page. Inside the cover is inscribed:

*Aunt Lilybell with love from Daisy
 New Year's Day 1884*

Daisy's much-loved "Aunt Lilybell" was, of course, Indiana's sister Elizabeth, who lived at Mt. San Angelo. On the flyleaf of the miniature Golden Thoughts, in Daisy's handwriting, is the date January 12, 1884. Daisy died 10 days later on January 22. These books helped prepare her for a death that her parents knew was inevitable. Her death certificate, still on file at the New York Bureau of Vital Statistics, reads: "Cause of death—Pthisis, under a doctor's care since October." The condition, an emphysemic type of lung erosion which strikes in youth and middle age, was always fatal. Daisy was a youthful victim.

Two of the large books were Christmas gifts. One, entitled The Old Oaken Bucket, is the poem by Samuel Woodworth, illustrated by Miss L. B. Humphrey. It was published by D. Lothrop and Co. of Boston in 1881. A lovely book of poetry and engravings, we might consider it a "coffee table" book today. Slipped inside the front cover is a drawing on stationery of a small Sweet Briar rose. Carefully done in pen and ink, an inscription under the rose reads, "Christmas 1883. Singie to Mamie." When Daisy was very small she couldn't pronounce "Sidney," so her uncle became Uncle Sing and she became Little Singie to her parents. This book was probably Daisy's last gift to her mother, as Bible Forget Me Nots was a last gift to Aunt Lilybell.

A second Christmas book, Pansies for Thoughts, is a collection of poems about flowers. A slender volume, beautifully illustrated with chromolithographs, it was printed in Bavaria and published by E. P. Dutton. It is another book of many religious connotations. Found inside the cover was a slip of stationery covered with Daisy's drawings in pen and ink—one, touchingly, of a bride in her wedding finery—as well as two lithographed trade cards which were used for advertising in the 1870s and '80s. (Daisy's scrapbook which, sadly, burned in the Sweet Briar House fire in 1927, was full of such cards.) Bound around the book's covers is a yellow watered silk ribbon printed with "Merry Christmas." This too must have been among Daisy's last Christmas presents.

The final book in the group was clearly Indiana's. Entitled Among the Daisies, it is 195 pages of poems about daisies by many authors, including Chaucer, Spenser, Wordsworth, Tennyson and Browning. Edited by an E. B., it was published by the American Publishing Co. in the fall of 1884, some months after Daisy's death. Daisy was at peace but her mother was in travail. A folded piece of tissue paper was found between two pages; a tiny check marked a two-line offering attributed to the Ettrick Shepherd:

 Unheeded by the mountain burn.*

This very personal collection of books spotlights Indiana's love and terrible anguish for a dying child. It reflects a helpless but unrestrained effort to provide solace in those final tragic hours and, more important, the sharing of her deep religious faith with Daisy so that Daisy would not fear impending death. The little collection was kept together as a painful but, we must presume, treasured memento of those melancholy days. It came to Virginia from New York and probably remained in Sweet Briar House until the College was built. Undoubtedly it was placed in our first library, then moved to the new Mary Helen Cochran Library in 1929.

Indiana's character is revealed in this tender assembly of books. She was 54 years old and bereft of her only child. Fortunately for all of us who have had an affiliation with Sweet Briar, she was a strong woman; out of her grief came a new commitment, to use her means to build a lasting and worthwhile monument for the future, endowed with all her worldly possessions...a college for women in memory of Daisy. ♦

Originally titled "Among The Daisies," Ann Whitley's article appeared in the Winter 1988 issue of the Sweet Briar College Library Gazette. It is reprinted here with her permission.

The Sweet Briar College Columbarium

In the spring of 1988 the Chapel Guild (Chaplain Susan Lehman, chair; Jocelyn Palmer Connors '62; Anne de Coligny Davis; Aileen Laing '57; Kay Macdonald; Cornelia Perkins Zinsser '52) met in response to community interest in having a columbarium at Sweet Briar. The Guild decided to investigate laws and cost of interment of ashes compared with burial (which is not an alternative here). Campus sites were explored. The site unanimously selected was Monument Hill. At the fall meeting of the Boards of Directors and Overseers, the Guild's recommendation to establish a columbarium was approved.

Donations to a columbarium fund, particularly those in memory of Jeanette "Dan" Boone '27, enabled the Guild to engage Mr. Jack Rinehart, Fellow of the American Institute of Architects and a member of the "Sweet Briar family" to design the columbarium. He has recently completed such a project for the University of Virginia Cemetery. Mr. Rinehart is the father of Brooke '88, the brother-in-law of Mary Cosby Rinehart '61, and the nephew of Torrance Redd Rinehart '22 and Hathaway Wright Rinehart '22.

In his plan proposal, he wrote, "With the grave site of Daisy Williams as its nucleus and focal point, a columbarium is proposed to be added at the base of the old Williams family cemetery on Monument Hill at Sweet Briar College. Radiating like sound waves or ripples from a stone thrown into a pool of water, terraces are to be placed around the old round cemetery in seven sectors. The area with the wonderful view of Sweet Briar's campus is to remain a large open, grassy space for individuals to enjoy the view or for groups to gather. This is to be a space for the very-much-alive."

The plan calls for one sector at a time to be phased in, each sector providing 48 spaces in-ground and 32 niches in the low walls that surround each terrace.

New sectors will be added when sufficient reservations are received.

Alumnae and present students, faculty, staff and Board members and their immediate families (spouse, parents, children) may make use of this facility. The Chaplain, in consultation with the Chapel Guild, will determine questions of eligibility.

Spaces may be reserved in advance of need by payment of the specified fee, with selection of a space within a completed sector. It will be possible to have two interments in one space if desired; each space is designed to hold two urns.

The Boards have approved the estab-office at other times. Families of the deceased may wish to schedule a Service of Interment with a pastor of their choice or with the College chaplain.

A Memorial Book will be maintained by the chaplain's office. Families will be given an opportunity to provide information about the individual.

A landscaping plan will be developed. Memorial trees or shrubs may be donated in compliance with the design. In order to ensure the aesthetics of the garden, no additional objects or furnishings will be permitted.

In conclusion Mr. Rinehart wrote, "This scheme for adding a columbarium lishment of the columbarium providing that none of the monies come from the College budget. Construction will begin when sufficient pre-paid reservations have been received for Phase I. The present cost for each space is $800.00. This fee provides for the opening and closing of the space; an urn; a vault; a granite marker 12" x 12" in dull finish, engraved with name, birth and death dates; and maintenance of the area. The cost for a second opening of the space and second urn, vault and additional engraving is $200.00. The family of the deceased is responsible for cremation and transportation of the ashes to the College.

The placement of the ashes will be arranged by the chaplain's office during the academic year and by the alumnae to Monument Hill does so in such a way as to strengthen this important memorial at Sweet Briar College. Though subordinate to the historic old cemetery it actually radiates out into the academic community, creating continuity of the past with the present, thus suggesting that this whole monument might become a monument to life."

Contemplating one's own interment at an undetermined time in the future, that time when one will be changed "in the twinkling of an eye," may not be a fact of life which most of us face easily. Neither can it be avoided. It is comforting to me to look upward to the green slope of Monument Hill and to know that one day I will be enfolded in its beauty. ♦

Star Makes Return Trek to SBC

Taking a break from journeys into uncharted areas of the universe on the Starship Enterprise, Diana Muldaur Dozier '60, recipient of one of Sweet Briar's first Distinguished Alumna Awards (September '88) made a quick visit to campus in April '89. Her role as Dr. Kate Pulaski, the starship's chief medical officer in the very successful TV series "Star Trek: The Next Generation" led her to an appearance at a Trekkie Convention in Norfolk, VA—and from there she came home ("This is home for me—always has been").

Once her feet touched "home soil" at 6:45 p.m. Sunday, April 9, she seemed in perpetual motion until departure at Diana Muldaur during interview with local press at Alumnae House.

5:15 p.m. Monday. Sunday evening after dinner with current faculty and administrators, she joined President Fry at a program for over 70 accepted applicants and their parents, on campus for the weekend. President Fry spoke on the "Value of the Liberal Arts Education" and Diana spoke of Sweet Briar as a woman's college "giving its students a strong base to go out into the world—to do anything—to meet their own challenges—to become a scientist, a doctor, a lawyer...even an actress." After answering audience queries which ranged from details about the College to her personal experiences on Broadway and in the movies and TV, she moved on to a late evening party to enjoy old friends among alumnae, faculty and retirees who knew her as a student.

Diana began Monday with an 8:00 breakfast with theatre arts students, then had an interview with local press, met with the History of the Theatre class and had lunch in Prothro Commons, where she addressed the student body and was available for students to talk with at her table. Afternoon activities included a taped interview with Lynchburg's Channel 13 (later shown on the evening news at 6:00 and 11:00), attendance at a rehearsal of the play Jungle Book, directed as a senior project by Kate Robinson '89 with a cast of fifth-graders from the Gifted Program in the Amherst County elementary schools, and a meeting with the Acting class. At 5:15 she left to fly back to CA, where she had a rehearsal call for early Tuesday morning. Perhaps Diana's next award should be for... Stamina? Vitality? Survival!

Acclaimed Nature Cinematographers

Dick and Brownie Borden '42 celebrate the "WONDERS OF THE WILD" in a 26-part TV series which began airing on The Discovery Channel April 10, 1989. Each half-hour episode airs Monday at 9:00 p.m. (ET) and Friday at 12:00 midnight (ET). Every week, the Bordens visit another corner of the natural world, from the Everglades, New England, the Rockies, and the Canadian Prairies, to the Bahamas and the African plains.

Sweet Briar Alumna Receives P.R. Honors

Melinda Brown Everett '68 was honored recently on four occasions as an outstanding public relations practitioner.

Melinda is public relations director for The Medical Center of Central Massachusetts-Memorial in Worcester. The Med Center, which comprises Memorial, Hahnemann and Holden hospitals, is one of the largest health care facilities in New England. "There's certainly never a dull moment: my duties range from coordinating a news conference for an Afghani freedom fighter who underwent surgery at The Med Center, to assisting with a reunion for 1500 'graduates' of our regional newborn intensive care unit, to writing news releases on current research. Not bad for someone who almost flunked chemistry and never dared to take biology!"

The Spring 1988 edition of Memorial's health care magazine, which Melinda edits, was selected as one of 10 best consumer-oriented print materials in the country by the Food & Drug Administration and the National Coalition for Consumer Education. The magazine, which discussed diagnostic imaging and common diagnostic tests, was chosen as a top 10 winner from over 240 entries nationwide.

Melinda Brown Everett

In May, The Worcester County Editors' Council, a professional group comprising editors from business, industry, government and health care, presented its "Blue Pencil" award to her as "the editor whose work exemplifies the highest standards of the profession."

In addition, Memorial's public relations efforts were recognized in a major case study presented in the May 1 edition of "P.R. News," distributed to 91 countries worldwide.

The latest honor: The department received first place for collateral materials for its new Mammography Center at The Mary T. Holland Competition for Creative Excellence sponsored by The Worcester Ad Club. "It was great to be recognized for doing a project to benefit women!" says Melinda.

Also responsible for editing "Connections," the weekly newsletter for The Med Center's 3,300 employees, Melinda lives in Sterling, MA with husband Wayne and two sons, Philip, 16 and Jeffrey, 13.

Sweet Briar Scientists Can't Achieve Fusion (Either)

Excerpts quoted with permission from 5/11/89 article by Tracy Wheeler, Staff Writer, The News and Daily Advance, Lynchburg, VA

Cold fusion has everything going for it, except scientific backing. And three SBC scientists who have been trying to duplicate fusion in a basement laboratory aren't going to be the first.

George Lenz, professor of physics, John McClenon, professor of chemistry and Carlos Calle, associate professor of claimed to unravel the mysteries of cold fusion have admitted their testing could have been marred by technical error.

Does that mean the miracle of cold fusion to solve the earth's energy problem is once again a futuristic dream? "It doesn't necessarily mean it's not possible," Lenz said, "but almost every day you can say it's less and less likely. . . We had real reservations about it, as most people did. . . If you take the physics known today and the chemistry known physics, set out for their basement laboratory in Guion Science Building to duplicate the cold fusion experiment that alerted the world of a scientific breakthrough for a cheap, clean energy source.

But since then, they have learned the discovery of fusion at room temperature is probably too good to be true—and now, the two scientists who originally today, you're not expecting positive results. . . But you've got to do it when reputable scientists are claiming it's possible. . . It's the kind of thing that's accessible to smaller institutions such as Sweet Briar. There's always the chance—and that's the beautiful thing about science—that what you don't think will happen may happen."

The Garden Club of America Elects President

Sadie Gwin Blackburn '45 of Houston, TX was elected president of the Garden Club of America (GCA) in April 1989.

The GCA is not a bunch of upper-crust housewives who give garden parties. "The club is much more than an information exchange among gardeners," explained Sadie Gwin. "The heart of our organization is education and community service." The GCA Founders Fund confers a $20,000 award each year to the outstanding community project of one of the member clubs. One such project is a garden for the handicapped built by the Little Garden Club of Memphis, TN. The garden has paved walks, extra benches and raised flower beds so that people in wheelchairs can smell the roses. In Philadelphia, the GCA taught inner-city children to plant seeds for a neighborhood vegetable garden in a plot donated by the city. At the other end of the spectrum, the Three Harbors Garden Club on Long Island restored the gardens of the 1740 Joseph Lloyd Manor House.

"Sometimes news about the GCA appears on newspaper society pages, but where it really belongs is with serious issues of national concern," Sadie Gwin affirms. The club advocates and supports research into environmental issues, gives public lectures, and lobbies in Washington for certain bills, for example the Clean Air Act, Global Warming Act and the Scenic Byways Study Act, which is basically a "billboard bill." The editor of the club's newsletter attended an international meeting of the Women's Committee for the Environment, organized by Russian women and held in Moscow last May. GCA administers many scholarships related to horticulture and conservation. For instance, two graduate scholarships awarded annually in tropical botany were established years before there was any great awareness of the global impact of dwindling rain forests.

In demand as a lecturer, Sadie Gwin is also co-authoring a book on Houston's residential architecture, 1820-1914. She is a trustee of the Houston Arboretum and of Houston's San Jacinto Museum of History, which preserves historical documents of early Texas and memorabilia related to the battle of San Jacinto, which secured Texas' independence from Mexico. "There is a beautiful war memorial similar to the Washington Monument, but taller, of course," she laughed. She serves on the advisory board of Austin's National Wildflower Research Center and on the Bayou Bend Advisory Committee of Houston's Museum of Fine Arts.

At the end of her freshman year at SBC, Sadie Gwin won the Freshman Honor Scholarship, but transferred to Rice University because of her parents' concern about wartime travel conditions. Graduating magna cum laude, Phi Beta Kappa, from Rice in '45, with a B.A. in English, she earned an M.A. in history from Rice in '76. She and husband Edward, an E.N.T. specialist, have two sons, Edward III and Robert (both attended prep schools in VA) and a daughter Catherine, SBC '73, now an architect in Newport Beach, CA. "With my love for Sweet Briar, and a family tradition of Virginian education, Virginia is surely my intellectual home-away-from-home," said Sadie Gwin.

Professor Goulde, a specialist in East Asian religions and civilizations, earned his B.A. from Seoul National University in Korea, and his A.M. and Ph.D. from Harvard. He spent a year as a Fulbright Fellow at Seoul National University, then taught at Central Michigan University before coming to SBC in 1986. The recipient of a Gilpin Faculty Research Award from SBC, he is currently editor and contributing author for an anthology of sources of Korean traditions. Fluent in Korean, he also reads Chinese and Japanese. He was president of the Alumnae Association's 1988 Winter Forums Lecture Series on China and served on the committee which organized SBC's 1989 Festival of Japan.

Katherine S. Griffith

Katherine S. Griffith Promoted to Vice President-Director at CIBC

Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce (CIBC) announced May 31 that Katherine "Kitty" Griffith '64, vice president, has been promoted to vice president-director of CIBC's New York-based U.S. Corporate Communications Department. She is responsible for all public relations, marketing communications, market research and employee communications for CIBC in the United States.

With assets totalling over (U.S.) $78 billion, CIBC is one of the top 10 banks in North America and one of the 60 largest in the world. CIBC's U.S. corporate and investment businesses are headquartered in New York, with branches and offices in 10 other U.S. cities.

Before joining CIBC in 1987, Kitty held various positions at Citicorp/Citibank in New York, including staff communications specialist for Corporate Human Resources, public relations director of Citicorp Publishing and senior public affairs officer. In 1984 she left Citicorp to serve as vice president in charge of public relations for First Atlanta Corp., now First Wachovia Corp., Atlanta, GA, for a year.

Kitty is a member of the Public Relations Society of America and its International Committee, the International Public Relations Association and the International Association of Business Communicators. She is a council member of the Southern Regional Council, a research and information organization based in Atlanta. Recently she was recognized in Who's Who of American Women.

She lives in Brooklyn Heights, NY with son Foster Terjen.

REUNION '89

Fun was the name of the game for Reunion weekend May 26-28! Over 600 alumnae, husbands and children gathered to enjoy the many activities.

What goes on at Reunion? Everything! Panels, lectures, hayrides, picnics, an elegant cocktail buffet (with music for listening/dancing), exhibits by alumnae artists, photographers and authors, tours of Sweet Briar House, the of Art History at SBC. An expert on 16th-century Italian art, Professor Witcombe lauds the restoration project and is satisfied that the work is being done properly. In another alumnae college lecture on Sunday morning, Government Professor Milan Hapala posed the question, "Is the Cold War Over?" and observed that while the signing of the INF treaty marked the beginning of the end of the Cold War, it will not end completely until key issues, such as the situation in Eastern Europe, are resolved. Karin Lawson '74, the lawyer who wrote most of the INF treaty signed by Reagan and Gorbachev in December '87, had planned to join Dr. Hapala but could not get away from her job with the U.S. - Soviet negotiations in Geneva.

Distance, as measured in miles or time, melts away at Reunion. Joan Oram Reid '54 and husband Bob arrived from London to join the festivities; Florence Ives Hathaway came to represent the Class of 1921—her 68th Reunion!

Class of 1929

Sparkle! Enthusiasm! Energy, Vigor, Stamina! A description of '89? No, no—we're extolling '29. From the Friday night picnic through the Sunday buffet luncheon in Sweet Briar House Gardens, the Class of 1929 was A Presence on campus. Seven alumnae and one husband came from TX, IN, VA and KY to spend a happy 60th Reunion weekend.

Class of 1934: Elizabeth Bond Wood, Reunion Gifts Co-Chairman; Kitty Means Neely, President.

Class of 1934

With one classmate claiming that she suffers from "post mature blight," eight members of the Class of '34 rejoiced in their 55th Reunion. Katharine Means Neely, Class President, reminisced about the days when only seniors were allowed to ride in cars with dates, unchaperoned. They "never dreamed of a revolution." Under the leadership of Elizabeth Bond Wood and Martha Lou Lemmon Stohlman, 72% of the class participated in raising a gift of $22,321 in unrestricted funds. In addition, 1934 announced a total Reunion gift, including restricted and unrestricted monies over five years, of $95,924!

With an unrestricted gift of $92,725, presented in honor of Mabel Chipley and Helen McMahon '23, they earned the Nancy Dowd Burton Award for the largest unrestricted gift in a Reunion year. They also announced a total of $264,337 in restricted and unrestricted gifts over a four-year period. With an 86% participation rate, their spirit and enthusiasm were contagious.

With 103 participants and 88% participation, 1944 received the second annual Award for Class Participation in Reunion Giving for classes celebrating their 25th through 50th Reunions. They reminded everyone that they were special because they were at Sweet Briar during World War II, and as a result, feel that their class was closer than most classes. Paulette Long Taggart directed two songs, "The Things We Love" and "Still Sassy Beyond the Golden Stairs." Reunion Gifts Co-Chairmen Norma Bradley Arnold and Alice Lancaster Buck presented the 45th Reunion gift of $61,584.

Dressed as a fireplug, Fritzie Duncombe Millard read a poem at Reunion Convocation and offered to replace the old fireplug with a new model. Katie Cox Reynolds and Pres Hodges Hill presented '49's gift of $72,707, far exceeding their $49,000 goal! They were proud to have a participation rate of 77%. The Class of 1954 pranced onstage sporting raincoats, and flashed the audience with their bermuda shorts, remembering the days when raincoats were a requirement over shorts or slacks. Besides being the first class allowed to wear bermuda shorts on campus (under raincoats, of course), '54 is famous for starting the Sweet Tones—and five of the original Tones (Jeanne Stoddart Barends, Dilly Johnson Jones, Weezie Aubrey McFarland, Ann Collins Teachout and Ruth Frye Deaton) were back! Arriving on campus with 35 classmates and 18 husbands, '54 broke the record for the 35th Reunion set five years ago by the Class of '49. Jean they termed the code of conduct no less complicated than the Napoleonic Code or English Common Law (example: dates might visit dorm rooms if the door stayed open a book's width and three feet remained on the floor at all times); "good taste and good judgment" were the ground rules for social life both on and off campus. V. M. Del Greco Galgano, using good taste and good judgment, announced a 71% participation rate (124 donors) and presented the College with '64's gift of $60,949. V. M.'s husband Mike, remarking later on the closeness of the members of '64, called the class "life-long bonded"

The Walter A. Weber and Grace Kiernan Weber Bird and Mammal Collection

One of the largest and most varied bird and mammal collections in the Commonwealth of Virginia, second only to those of Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, has constituted a major strength of Sweet Briar's ornithology and ecology programs over the last decade, complementing the College's superb outdoor laboratories. Through the generosity of the late Walter A. Weber and Mrs. Weber, and the efforts of their daughter, Mrs. James A. Piggott of Lynchburg, these specimens of birds and mammals were donated to the College in 1978.

Mrs. Piggott had become well acquainted with Sweet Briar's strong field biology program through one of my short summer courses in ornithology and ecology, which were a part of the early summer scene on campus throughout most of the 1970s. At about that time her father, who had collected numerous bird specimens to serve as models in his work as artist, naturalist and writer for The National Geographic Society, began making plans to move from Oakton, VA to Lynchburg, and to search for an educational institution or museum which could best utilize this collection. Mrs. Piggott immediately realized that the specimens would be of great value as an educational adjunct to Sweet Briar's outstanding living laboratories—old-growth oak forests, pine woodlands, fields, pastures, lakes and streams. Accordingly she telephoned me within a few months of completing the 1977 summer course and, on behalf of her father and mother, offered the collection for use in the ornithology, field biology and ecology courses.

The Weber Collection, complete with proper storage cases which the Webers donated at the same time, was in place in the Guion Science Building by the late spring of 1978. A detailed inventory confirmed that there were 990 individual specimens of the more than 350 species of birds, from Bald Eagle to Ruby-throated Hummingbird, representing most of the regularly occurring land birds and freshwater and coastal birds of the contiguous United States. The mammal collection, including many specimens collected and prepared by Mrs. Weber, has proved to be of almost equal importance to the College, with 65 species of mammals represented by 224 individual specimens, from Jaguar and Timber Wolf to Pygmy Shrew and Golden Mouse. Only a few of the largest university and natural history museum collections surpass this collection in breadth of coverage in the contiguous U.S.A. As an artist for National Geographic, and earlier for Chicago's Field Museum and for the Smithsonian Institution, Mr. Weber needed a great variety of species as models for his many paintings, but one or two specimens of each sufficed for his work. Thus, the collection is ideal for an undergraduate institution where variety of species is of principal importance and there is no need for the dozens or even hundreds of individual specimens of each species that are found in the large museums.

The collection was appraised in 1978 at a total value of $26,350, and even then the museum experts who appraised it wrote, "Today it would be nearly or quite impossible to put together a collection of this kind and scope." This is even more true in 1989, because of the virtual elimination of scientific collecting of birds by nongovernmental individuals or agencies, and the severe restrictions placed on the few collecting permits which are issued. Along with the 100 to 200 bird specimens already accumulated by the College as a result of birds running into windows or transmitter-towers or automobiles, the total collection would undoubtedly be valued at $50,000 to $75,000 now, and in any case could not be duplicated.

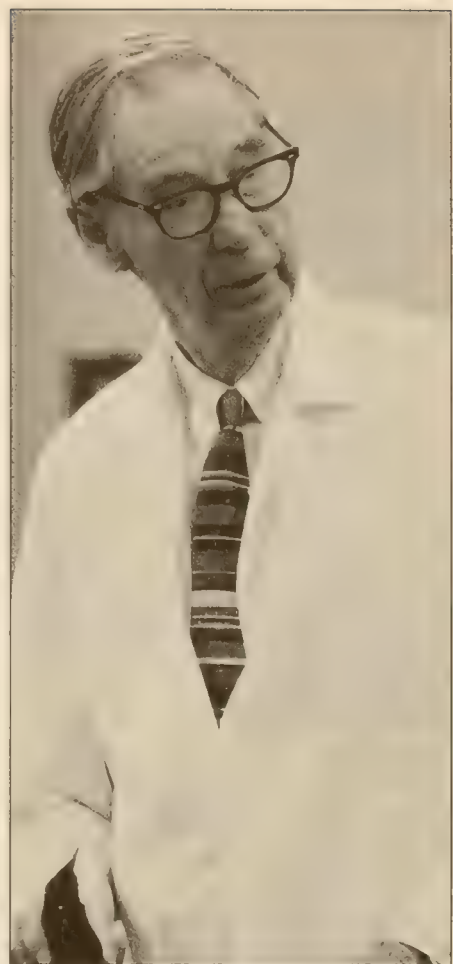

Immediately upon arrival at Sweet Briar, the Weber Collection became an integral part of the instructional program in ornithology and field natural history. Because of the great variety of species represented in the collection, and broad geographic coverage of the United States, students have been able to study in great detail the structural features of representative specimens of most of the bird and mammal groups in the U.S.A. Then on field trips to the sanctuaries and outdoor laboratories just a few minutes' walk from Guion, the students can observe how these features relate to the behavior and way of life and interrelationships of the living birds and mammals.

The highlights of the collection are too numerous to mention, but just a few, in addition to the ones listed above, are the Oldsquaw and Harlequin Ducks, Golden Plover, Steller's Eider, White-headed Woodpecker, Boreal Chickadee, Bohemian Waxwing, Pine Grosbeak, Gray-crowned Rosy-Finch, and McCown's Longspur, among the birds; and Arctic Shrew, Pine Marten, Least Weasel, Canada Lynx, Golden-mantled Ground-Squirrel, Southern Flying Squirrel, Western Harvest-Mouse and Boreal Red-backed Mouse, among the mammals.

The collection has been valuable to students in other departments, as well—particularly Studio Art—and to the broader community, in addition to the students in the academic-year field courses and the summer courses. Residents at the Virginia Center for the Creative Arts have used the specimens for reference in their paintings. Painters and sculptors from Sweet Briar and Lynchburg have used the specimens to check proportions, colors and fine structural details, as they painted illustrations for bird books, or carved and painted fancy duck decoys or songbird sculptures for the increasingly popular competitions in bird art and bird carving. Thus specimens which would have been just a few among thousands in a large museum collection, and which might not even be taken out of the museum trays more than once in a decade, or even in a person's lifetime, have been used regularly and to good effect here at Sweet Briar, as the Webers and Mrs. Piggott hoped when they brought the collection here. ♦

Professor Ernest P. "Buck" Edwards came to Sweet Briar as Professor of Biology in 1965. Since 1977 he has been the Dorys McConnell Duberg Professor of Ecology. Director of the Houston Museum of Natural History (1957-1960). The author of numerous publications on birds, he is also well known to many alumnae who have enjoyed his early morning bird walks during Reunion.

Twenty-five Years and Smiling spring term. We wish them a well-deserved, happy retirement, but we will miss their contributions, not only to the French section and to the department, but to Sweet Briar College as a whole.

They came to campus in 1963 as instructors of French and their careers took similar paths. After their initial reappointments, they were granted tenure and were promoted through the ranks of academe, both eventually becoming full Professors of French. And so for 25 years, in the midst of many changes of personnel in the department, they remained the heart of the French section, teaching the language of la belle France, its literature and its civilization to generations of young women. Gil and Glenn were not only advisers but also friends of their students. They were active in many professional organizations and spent most summers in France, doing research and traveling through its provinces.

But there end the similarities between GG and GJ (as they were sometimes called by colleagues). For if they had the distinction of being for many years the only husband and wife team at SBC to teach the same subject, they also were very independent from one another in their professional lives. Gil, a specialist in all aspects of 20th-century French literature and civilization, was particularly interested in Raymond Queneau and the 1938-1945 period in French history. Glenn, on the other hand, specialized in French literature and history of the 18th century, doing scholarly work notably on D'Alembert and Frederick the Great. Gil was a one-time assistant dean and was in charge of culture courses. Glenn developed and managed the language lab and introduced many new courses, including a course entitled Commercial France. Together they taught the translation course Thème et Version.

Gil and Glenn may be retired now, but neither one of them has slowed down a bit. They participate in campus events and are still actively involved in research and translation work, having been engaged as translators for the Works of William James, sponsored by the American Council of Learned Societies and published by Harvard University Press. They travel now more than ever. But if they happen to be on campus and you want to have a chat with them, try to spot their faithful green Dodge Polara in the Fletcher parking lot. Gil and Professor Glenn Van Treese.

Glenn will not be far away, probably returning from their daily promenade to the lake. And they will be smiling because, after 25 years of teaching, they still love it here at Sweet Briar, n'est-ce pas? ♦

Tom Gilpatrick Retires to the Garden . . . and Elsewhere!

Professor Thomas V. Gilpatrick hung up his academic robe after Commencement, 1989, having taught government at Sweet Briar for 30 years. Tom received his B.S. and M.A. degrees from the University of Illinois and his Ph.D. from the University of Chicago. He came to Sweet Briar after teaching for three years at Pennsylvania State University.

Tom brought with him many talents. He served as chair of the Division of Social Science and the Department of Professor Tom Gilpatrick at Commencement '89.

Government, adviser to government majors, pre-law adviser, director of internships in law, politics, and public service, coordinator for the Washington Semester program and as chair and member of countless College committees. His wide-ranging interests led him to a year in India as a Visiting Professor at the University of Osmania and to other assignments and posts in England and Denmark. He also has served as Sweet Briar's representative to the Faculty Senate of Virginia, as president of our AAUP chapter, and for many years as parliamentarian for meetings of the faculty.

Over the years Tom introduced many generations of students to American politics in the 'baby government' course sequence which he always taught. It was probably courses on U.S. Constitutional Law for which he will be best remembered. But what he enjoyed most over the last 20 years was sponsoring Winter Term interns, and going to Washington every January to visit those "on location" on and near Capitol Hill. He always returned buoyed up by their candor, self-confidence and enthusiasm. On campus, all of his students will remember him for his fairness and the respect which he held for them. Quiet, modest, unassuming, always ready to help a student or a faculty colleague, Tom has been a pillar of strength in the Department of Government and the College. He leaves us to spend more time at some of his favorite activities—gardening, singing (he and his wife, Jean, sing regularly in a chorus and will attend the Berkshire Choral Institute this summer), painting (house painting, that is), gourmet cooking and doing the N.Y. Times crossword puzzles. He also intends to take jazz piano lessons and improve his word processing skills, which may be of help to Jean in her profession as an ordained Unitarian-Universalist minister. They both look forward to foreign travel, starting with a trip to West Germany, Finland and Leningrad next summer. ♦

Association Perspective

It is my pleasure, as my term as president ends, to make the customary triennial report of the Alumnae Association. Having spent these past three years so immersed in Sweet Briar activities, I am tempted to spend this article "rounding up the usual suspects" for a grateful round of applause.

But most of you are already familiar with the miraculous workings of the superb alumnae staff. You are hereby assured that your Association is led by a working Board of professional and volunteer women whose collective judgment, wisdom and creativity could run a major corporation. You are reminded often that Sweet Briar alumnae are among the most generous of college donors. We could not function without such support.

However, my highest praise is reserved for you, those alumnae whose devotion to the College is proven year after year as you return for Reunion or Fall Council—not only to indulge in memories of times past but with determination to keep in touch with the Sweet Briar of today. The Association is driven by your profound interest in the College and your conviction that it must remain, as envisioned by the founding directors, "a liberal arts college of the highest rank." Whether in an official capacity or not, you maintain contact with the College and with other alumnae. You take time to write or phone your thoughts and ideas. You provide the inspiration, insight and encouragement which make alumnae activity possible. Your dedicated, watchful concern is invaluable for the continued prospering of Sweet Briar College.

The structure and programs of the Alumnae Association are continually studied and revised to help keep you informed and better equipped to communicate the values of a Sweet Briar education. During the last three years we have:

- Strengthened ties with students through an active Student/Young Alumnae Committee and with the academic sphere of the College through the Academic Outreach Committee.

- Published an informational Alumnae Association brochure.

- Established the Distinguished Alumna Award to honor alumnae of outstanding accomplishment in a professional or volunteer capacity.

- Established a Sweet Briar Alumnae Book Award to be given by clubs to outstanding high school juniors (young women who exhibit qualities desirable for admission to Sweet Briar).

- Increased alumnae participation in the admissions effort through a strengthened AAR program, emphasizing alumnae help with College Night programs, contacts with school counselors and interviewing prospective students.

- Added gift items to the offerings of the Bulbs for Scholarships project.

- Begun making reports of the Association to the Boards of Directors and Overseers.

- Donated handmade cherry furniture, including the mantelpiece, hunt-board and several occasional tables, to furnish the lounge of the Florence Elston Inn.

How, you ask, can such programs be carried out from the small warren of offices allotted to the alumnae staff? Great good news! The entire middle floor of Alumnae House has been turned over to our staff. From all reports, the added space is paying off in increased comfort and efficiency. A modest face-lift is in progress and should be completed by fall.

Finally, I recommend that you spend a few enjoyable autumn hours reading—or rereading—The Story of Sweet Briar College by Martha Lou Lemmon Stohlman '34, published in 1956 as an alumnae project. It is lively, filled with anecdotes, and will renew your appreciation for the enormity of the undertaking assumed by the original directors, volunteers all, as they mapped out and created Sweet Briar from the sketchiest of directives in Miss Indie's will. My thanks to all of you who continue in this spirit of volunteerism and for giving me the opportunity to work with you. It is with gratitude that I leave the Association in the care of our new president, Nannette McBurney Crowdus '57, and I look forward to keeping in touch with you and the College as a neighboring alumna. ♦

She came to Sweet Briar from the College of William and Mary.

Amy E. C. Jenkins Joins Admissions Staff

Amy Jenkins '89, of Buckingham, VA, returned to campus in July as an admissions counselor. Graduating with a double major in religion and history, she was the recipient of the Maxine Garner Prize in Religion at Commencement. As a student, Amy was president of the Young Democrats, treasurer of the Women's Professional Society, co-chairman for the Oxfam Project and peer tutor for the Religion and History Departments. She was also an admissions tour guide and a staff writer for The Sweet Briar News. During the summer of 1988 she studied for six weeks in England at St. Anne's College, Oxford University under The Virginia Program at Oxford.

Fund For Riders Established

The enjoyment of the SBC campus, the relationships with friends and the love of horses were all important to Terri Fentress Thompson '66 during her college years. Since Terri died of cancer in March 1988, family and friends have established the Terri Fentress Thompson Memorial Fund for the benefit of students who would not be able to ride without financial assistance. Anyone interested in adding to this fund and helping future students may contact the Development Office, Sweet Briar, VA 24595, (804) 381-6161.

HAVE WE MISSED YOU?

Alumnae were recently notified of our new Alumnae Directory and asked for input. If you have not returned your questionnaire, please do so today, to ensure accurate information. Soon the verification phase of this project will begin. Alumnae will be telephoned by Harris Publishing Company. Please give the representative who calls a few moments of time to verify your listing. To reserve a copy of the directory, please advise the Harris representative during the conversation: this will be the only opportunity to order the book, scheduled for release in March/April '90.

Fine Arts Merit Scholarship

The Fine Arts Merit Scholarship has been established to attract highly qualified students who are interested in the fine arts. Awards will be made to incoming students who demonstrate skill and dedication in music, studio art, dance, theatre arts or related fields.

Students who win freshman year Fine Arts Merit Scholarships will be eligible for subsequent awards as the endowed fund grows large enough. To be reconsidered, each recipient must demonstrate a continuing interest in and pursuit of the fine arts.

For further information, please contact: William H. Meadows, III, Vice President for College Relations, Sweet Briar, VA 24595, (804) 381-6161 or Lynne Gardner Detmer '68, 3 Yew St., Norwalk, CT 06850, (203) 847-7155

Presenting: The Sweet Briar Clock

With each passing hour, the old times together become more cherished...and what better way to symbolize those days than the Sweet Briar College Clock.

Not only a beautiful tribute but a useful one, too. For what home or office doesn't need another clock? The Sweet Briar College Clock is a personal source of pride, as it represents your insistence on quality and your personal ties to Sweet Briar College.

Only the finest American components are used, because this special clock is designed to last and to be enjoyed by future generations of your family. The traditional walnut frame around the face, with hand-painted gold border, the classic gold and black reverse-glass painting and the solid brass acorn finials make this reminiscent of the handmade clocks in the homes, estates and offices of our ancestors.

- The Sweet Briar College seal is reversed painted in gold.
- The size (20"x10"x4") is considered to be ideal for home or office.
- With its American-made quartz movement, this clock is guaranteed accurate and maintenance-free.
- The face molding of select walnut and the case of kiln-dried poplar, stained to match, are selected for grain pattern and color, and furniture-finished by hand to complement the finest room furnishings.
- An engraved plaque on a family or office clock has always been special. So, upon your request, we will engrave a solid brass plaque with your name, and other information you wish, such as degree and class.

The Sweet Briar College Clock, $139.50,
Engraved brass plaque, $15.00.

We stand 100% behind the quality of our merchandise. If you are not satisfied return any merchandise for an exchange or refund.

Presenting: The Sweet Briar Lamp

The Sweet Briar College lamp provides a special opportunity to show your pride in Sweet Briar College. In your home or office, its traditional design bespeaks the highest standards of quality. The Sweet Briar College Lamp has been designed and created to last for generations as a legacy of quality:

- All of the solid brass parts shine with a hand-polished mirror finish, clear lacquered for lasting beauty.
- The Sweet Briar College seal is hand printed prominently in gold in two places on the 14" diameter black shade.

- The solid brass parts make this lamp heavy (three pounds), and its 22" height provides just the right look on an executive desk, den table or foyer credenza.
- The versatile three-way switch permits a variety of light settings.

The Sweet Briar College Lamp, $139.50.

"Makin' Glory-the Music of 'Cile Turner," an exhibit featuring Lynchburg folk musicologist the late Lucile Barrow Turner ran at the Lynchburg Museum from Nov. '88 to April '89. A museum press release stated, "Inspired by her Southside Virginia childhood, 'Cile Turner devoted her 50-year career to the collecting and recording of the southern black musical tradition. Her performances began in the late 1920's when she had her own weekly national radio broadcast, and spanned 5 decades as she entertained troops during WWII and captured audiences in the 1950's with her concerts at Washington's National Gallery of Art. She recorded numerous albums preserving the authentic sound and character of the black music she knew so well."

President

Florence Woelfel (Mrs. Florence Elston-Beemer), 410 E. Wabash Avenue, P.O. Box 767, Crawfordsville, IN 47933

Secretary

Florence Ives Hathaway (Mrs. Lloyd A.), 32 Prince Street, Needham, MA 02192

You can be proud of your classmates who responded to the call for news. At our age it is inevitable that there is much that we'd rather not publish. To that courageous few who wrote, my sincere thanks.

Ruth Geer Boice, from Toledo, OH, writes that she had a fall last Christmas that has "slowed her down." However, she participated in a birthday tea given to her by her family and friends. She has her own apartment in a retirement complex, but accepts some assistance day and night. She is able to join the other retirees for dinner and the sociability gives her a big lift. Ruth has warm memories of her 4 years at Sweet Briar and is glad to get news of the happenings there.

Our feisty Gertrude Anderson, also an Ohian who lives in Findlay, admits no handicaps. She is in her own home, drives her own car and "at 90 thanks her lucky stars she is as good as she is." She had a lively birthday celebration with two dinner parties complete with a corsage. We say "Keep it up. We're plain jealous." She called Edith on her birthday in March.

Edith Durrell Marshall has lived for several years at the Marjorie P. Lee Retirement Home in Cincinnati. Recently, she was honored by having a fund established in her name to be used to finance the collection and preservation of the history of her beloved church. She has been a member there for 76 years. Edith is severely handicapped by osteoporosis, but her mind is as keen as always and she continues her interests, not only in church matters, but in the Cincinnati Historical Society, the Womans Club and the Girl Scouts. She has been back to the College many times and was invited to take part in the dedication of the Florence Woelfel Elston Inn. It was a cause of real regret not to be able to participate in the Daisy Chain Association's activities last May. We salute her for her bonding influence on us 21ers!

Marion North Lewin is in a retirement home and anxious to hold on to contacts at SBC. She asked her daughter to send us her new address. If you remember her, do write to her: Brandon Woods, Room 238, 567 Dartmouth Street, South, Dartmouth, MA 02748.

Gertrude Pauly Crawford stayed in Columbus, OH, last winter and was looked after by her grandchildren. She enjoyed it so much, she calls it her "second home."

Lette Elizabeth Shoop Dixon says the past year was not a good one for her. She had a stroke and lives in a nursing home "East Pavillion" in Franklin, VA. Her daughter lives 8 miles away but her granddaughter lives in town and "brightens her life" by visiting every day.

The other "Lette" Mary McLemore Matthews of Norfolk has visited her several times.

Sarah Kennedy Hurst who lives in Atlanta writes a fine upbeat letter about her situation in a highrise that has a library, laundry and is beautifully maintained. She is feeling much better and enjoys the company of the other retirees. She has outlived her family with the exception of two grandchildren who are "thoughtful of her."

The daughter of Louise Pochat

Hattersly tells of the sudden death of her mother at a dinner party last October. She said her mother was actively supportive of her church, her community and Sweet Briar. She and Edith Marshall were close friends.

And, finally, your secretary, Florence Ives Hathaway. It was a good year for me. I feel blessed to be living in my own apartment in my daughter's home in Needham, MA. I join the family, my daughter, her husband and 4 daughters (when they are home) for dinner. I enjoy gardening, church and occasionally community programs, but since my daughter works, I fill in in the myriad of ways that keep a very active household running smoothly.

At this writing, I am definitely going "back to the Patch" for our 68th class reunion and will join in the Daisy Chain Association activities the end of May. I have a yen to see the growth of our Alma Mater. Arthritis pesters me but I have my MD's "go ahead", but since I hobble, "Take a cane." This summer will be my 40th trek to Bryant Pond, ME, erstwhile home of many Hathaways.

Warmest greetings to all of '21!
(Ed's note: Florence came to Reunion - see her picture in this issue.)

Secretary

Cordelia (Deedie) Kirkendall Barricks, 100 Bay Place, Apt. 2101, Oakland, CA 94610

I'll start off with my news. I'm just as busy as I ever was, but in a different way. Those who know retirement homes will know what I mean. My family always enjoys coming to The Towers's cookouts. The first one of the season is on Memorial Day. Last July I gave a program, with slides and commentary, on my collection of over 300 crosses at St. Paul's Episcopal Church. Upon my death they are to go to St. Stephen's Episcopal Church in Wilkes-Barre, PA, to be placed in the Kirkendall Room which is in memory of my parents.

Sweet Briar had a picnic in August in one of San Francisco's lovely parks. Sorry I couldn't get there. Penn Willets Mullin '66 is still at the helm of our Bay Area Alumnae Group and doing a wonderful job. A jazz concert was featured. July 4th is the No. 2 cookout and the No. 3 cookout is Labor Day. I always have family and guests. I play quite a bit of bridge, hoping it helps my math in these inflationary times. We had 3 delightful parties at The Towers, honoring three residents' 100th birthdays. There is still a lot of ham in me because I enter all the costume parties. On Hallowe'en my partner, Ed Pye, and I went as apple pie a la mode. We won 1st prize. Let your imagination challenge you how we created our costumes. We had a Thanksgiving in its real meaning, a family affair at Bob's and Sharon's, my youngest son and his wife Christmas found us there, too, but the dinner was put on by Robbie, their daughter, because Sharon had been in the hospital. Fred, my middle son, came for both Thanksgiving and Christmas from the Veterans Home. Mary Sturr Stuart '62 came to take me to the Sweet Briar Day luncheon at a restaurant in San Francisco. There were about 15 in attendance. I'm so glad Fred stayed with me for Thanksgiving and Christmas, because those last visits will remain treasured memories. Fred died on my January 8th birthday in the hospital where he had No. 29 and 30 surgeries, and two strokes. I mustn't have self-pity, so must rejoice for his release from 11 very difficult years. His friends, as is their custom, had a memorial dinner for him, celebrating his life, to which Bob, Sharon, and I were invited. Many paid tribute to him, also at a beautiful and comforting service at St. Paul's Episcopal Church. Sharon had to return to the hospital for observation. I'm happy to report that at this April writing she is fine and enjoying having lost 35 lbs., not from surgery alone, but dieting. She vows to keep it off.

In February, 6 of our family went on a cruise around some of the Hawaiian Islands. My niece and her husband from PA joined us, their first trip to the Islands. Buck, my oldest son, from Kennewick, WA, took Fred's place. Barbara, his wife, couldn't get off from her job with the school system. Buck is retired. We celebrated Bob's 50th birthday. Mardi Gras, February 7th, found me in costume again. Three of us went as "Raisin' Cain with Abel." Mary Sturr Stuart got me the Raisin costume. Again, we won first prize! Easter was a joyous holiday, too. The church music and service were beautiful. Our friends, the Tuohys, who went to the Islands with us hosted about 20 for Easter dinner. In late March a younger friend had me to her home for overnight and the next A.M. we left for two days in Carmel. I gave up my book review and lecture volunteer job the end of December. I thought this would be my sabbatical year, but somehow I couldn't say "no" to being on a committee to establish a religious library. Are you surprised?

Martha Jamison Causey has lived in Charlotte, NC all her life, except for 13 years in NY when her husband was transferred there. She is delighted to have Louise Gibbon Carmichael back in Charlotte again after having lived in Durham during her married life. Life is stranger than fiction in that they both chose the same retirement home, and, unplanned, live across the hall from one another. They have come full circle, having grown up together, gone to the same high school and college. I'm quoting this remark: "We are holding up very well for 2 old ladies." Louise Wolf Arnold is still doing garden club work, attends D.A.R. meetings in Nantucket, and shows her paintings. Her son, Bob, is a renowned painter, getting high prices for his work. Mollie is still a devotee of horses and riding. Son, Fritz, visits quite often from his home in Mallorca. Her George, unfortunately is confined to his room, but bright, and as handsome as ever. Margaret Hogue Pfautz is active, still driving, but not far, gardens, plays bridge, and belongs to a book club. Her 3 children live near and are healthy. Her great grands will soon number 8. There will be 2 more weddings this spring in Atlanta. One bachelor grandson is still at the Naval Academy.

Lucile Smith Lindner writes from her comfortable home in Cincinnati. Her sharply honed sense of humor helps her greatly. Her greatest blessing is having her daughter, Eugenia, return to Cincinnati. A granddaughter, Alexandra, lives in Annapolis. Lucile's family includes a great great nephew and a great great niece. Mary Reed Hartshorn is still at Bradford Terrace in Milwaukee and writes that she is very busy. She has 2 great grands on the way. Dot Heribson Hawkins lauds me for being "Old Faithful." She is alone in their home while husband Howard is in a nursing home, but she spends several hours a day with him and they have happy times. Three children and 7 grandchildren are lovely to them. Almena Perkins Gudas is lucky to still have her husband Fabian who is retired from Louisiana State Univ. where he was in the English Department and continues to do some research. He helps with the house and garden. They had a wonderful time in Denver, enjoying a white Christmas and a family reunion. The occasion was to attend the marriage of a granddaughter, the daughter of Almena's older daughter, who, with her husband, live in Denver. Almena, a younger daughter of Almena, came from Houston with her family. Imagine their joy at being with 6 grandchildren and 3 little "greats." Almena stays busy with clubs, organizations, bridge, gardening, and birding.

Mary Elizabeth Welch Hemphill is OK except for arthritis, but it didn't keep her from making a recent trip from Lexington to her home town of St. Petersburg, FL, where she was royally entertained. She lives alone, except for a 14-year-old girl who stays at night, and Brandy, her poodle, a constant companion for 14 years. Mary Elizabeth is a church and party goer, and has enough energy to entertain her younger cousin for the horse races in April. Virginia Burke Miller checked in, via her daughter, Ardra Boswell, who enclosed a Christmas letter that had been sent to friends, and added later news which was sad. Virginia is confined to a wheelchair, but was able to get to Denver to see her granddaughter, Seanna, married in late 1987, and have a happy reunion with her children and grandchildren. Seeing Michigan win the Final Four in basketball was a thrill for Virginia, bringing back happy memories of her former home and husband Jim. Since Christmas of 1988 Virginia has suffered from a fractured vertebra in her back which hospitalized her for a week. Now she is back in her new facility in Denver where Ardra moved her so as to be nearer her.

Elsie Munro Haller moved from her home in Redington Shores, FL to Seminole, FL. She made this decision because of hurricane Elma which beat a path to her door, causing her to be evacuated. Many frustrations came to Elsie while restoring her home, dock, and seawall. She had eye trouble and a broken leg, and had to have help round the clock. They stayed on to help her move into a small home in Seminole which is beautified by orange and grapefruit trees. It is well that Elsie is busy dolling up her home and garden. This will lessen the pain of missing her dog, a joy for 12 years. Now she is welcoming a stray who looks like Benji on TV. Kay Agard Flewelling says hello to Ruth Pratt, and Hampie signed "Little Agard." Kay enjoys her two patios which, in April, are overflowing with roses. She belongs to a group called Earthside Nature Center. They have just completed 3 days of walkabouts through 3 acres of native California plants, 200 being labeled. Kathleen Newby McGee still lives in her husband's childhood home where she has lived for 60 years. She busies herself with church work, travel, bridge, grandchildren, and many clubs and civic organizations.

Woodis Finch Hudson is trying to decide whether to move to a retirement home. She still drives and cooks, and has 3 children and 9 grandchildren. Woodis spent 6 weeks in England visiting Helen Halford '26. Mary Sturgis still lives at the Hermitage in Onancock, VA, where she is on the flower, food, crafts, and grounds committees, makes flower arrangements for the dining room, and has her own small garden plot. Mary has happy memories of her European trips with Emilie Halsell Marston '27. They still enjoy short trips, and went this April to the annual garden tour of the Eastern Shore of Virginia. The Chrysler Museum in Norfolk was also on Mary's agenda.

Word came from the Citizens Fidelity Bank in Louisville that Mary Dugan Young died in August 1988. Our ranks are thinning. According to my, probably inaccurate, records we had 131 original class members, and now have 65, but that includes the lost ones.

Today, April 28th, my daughter-in-law, Sharon, is coming to type my notes. She and Bob just returned from Yosemite. Bob, my youngest, fulfilled his dream of retiring at 50, and I feel he'll enjoy retirement, because of his many interests. My family of 2 sons, 2 daughters-in-law, 3 granddaughters, their husbands, and 6 great grands, 3 of each sex, are all so good to me. Easy living at The Towers, too, has no doubt added to my long and healthy life. Thank you for writing to me. Those who didn't, please do in April of 1990, and at the same time think of returning to Sweet Briar for our 65th in May of 1990. I was the only one back from 1925 for our 60th, and I would have been lonely had it not been for the class of 1930 "adopting" me.

President and Acting Secretary Sara Callison Jamison (Mrs. John R.), 620 Ridgewood Drive, W. Lafayette, IN 47906

84 Reunion letters produced 7 '29-ers at SBC in May: Virginia Lee Campbell Clinch, Elizabeth Lankford Miles, Margaret Weisiger Proctor, Lisa Guigon Shinberger, Anne Brent Winn, Gert Prior, and Sara Callison Jamison.

Since the new guidelines for class secretaries restrict length of class notes, I will briefly say that the reunion program was an excellent one, the food marvelous, and the whole experience most enjoyable. Among those who sent greetings to the class were Janet Bruce Bailey, Martha Maupin Stewart, Lee Sidman Smith, and Sarah Dodgen Gordon.

Louise Lutz wrote that she is an active trustee at the Chicago Art Institute and is a member of the Library, Asia, and Textile Societies. Lou spends leisure time and summers at her Dune Acres home on Lake Michigan. Dorothy Paddock Seeber is Exec. Director of the Independent Citizens Research Foundation for the Study of Degenerative Diseases in Hastings-on-Hudson. Isabelle North Goodwin's "main news is that I am still going. Another grandchild will be married this summer, one is getting her M.A. in physiotherapy at Duke, and the youngest, 9, keeps me hopping."

Anne Brent Winn visited her daughter, Masey, and family in New Zealand and this past year moved into a duplex in Fayette Park near her old home. She is happy that her son Jack has moved back to Lexington after 26 years in NYC. Claire Hoyt Gaver retired last year, is a great-grandmother and is "enjoying a ripe old age." Rosa Heath Bridges enjoys our class news. She sees Lib Wood McMullen in Richmond and plays bridge with other old SBC gals. Lisa Shinberger's eye problems did not deter her from coming to Reunion. Her daughter, Mary Baird '67, drove her to SBC, where they visited Gert Prior. Lisa is almost as active as ever in church and community affairs.

Virginia Lee Campbell Clinch's husband Bayard died last winter. She travels to and from home to see her daughters in Denver and her son in Palo Alto, and to Boston and New York. She does the night driving with friends, which proves her all-round mobility! Eleanor Duvall Spruill's husband Jim died 2 years ago. Eleanor lives in the big house by herself but friends in Cheraw visit often and the children are wonderful. Jimmie is a family court judge and Eleanor's other son, Duvall, practices law in Columbia and has a golfing wife and 3 daughters. Eleanor's youngest daughter, Marion, has been teaching in GA. Daughter Eleanor, in Columbia, has 3 grown daughters one of whom just graduated from the College of Charleston. Mack, the second daughter, lives on a farm near Burlington, VT where her husband teaches at the university; their 2 children are both at the univ. Eleanor still paints and intends to do more. Whiz Weisiger Proctor spends much time tutoring Asian students in English pronunciation in the Arlington, VA area. She enjoys visits from children and grandchildren at her Rehoboth Beach summer home. Whiz met my daughter, Jane '59 and me in Richmond, VA and drove us to Reunion. Libber Lankford Miles and John live at Westminster-Canterbury in Lynchburg, where Libber keeps busy with gardening duties. She and John attend events at SBC throughout the school year.

My husband Jamie, Jane '59, and I combined our Reunion with a visit to our son John and wife Carol at Mallardee, their home near Williamsburg, VA. Belle Brockenbrough Hutchins declared that from now on she will restrict her travels to trips between her winter home in Delray, FL and her home in Wilmette, IL. Three of her sons and their families live in the North shore area of Chicago. Ruth Ferguson Smythe traveled to Portugal again last winter and spends at least 5 months at her Torch Lake home. Josephine Tatman Mason and Mace now live in Wilmette and are condominium neighbors of Belle's. They entertain family and friends at their summer home in Eastern Point, CT. They were in Naples, FL last spring, where Jamie and I enjoyed a visit with them.

Gert Prior entertained the '29-ers before the "class picnic" which turned out to be not a picnic but a beautiful seated dinner at Wailes Center. There we were inducted into the Daisy Chain and given symbolic pins to wear. The Daisy Chain is an alumnae group that includes all classes over 50 years.

The only unfinished business at Reunion was the selection of a class secretary. Who will volunteer to perform this rewarding labor of love? We await your response!

(Ed's note: We received the sad news that Sally Jamison's husband, Jamie, died on July 21.)

The messages you sent were wonderful! Hope all of you keep up the news and those who didn't get around to it this time will feel motivated to make up for it for the next issue. Lillian Allison Redman is now in a total care community in Lansdale, PA, enjoying Jean Baber's historical society articles and having Marietta Derby Garst as a fellow resident. Rose Beverley Bear Burks finds diversion in playing bridge and in her 7 grandchildren. She hopes to attend our next reunion. Janet Blood Brown is working through the financial complications of settling her late husband's estate. Like some of us who don't, she wishes she had followed her husband's urging to acquaint her in these affairs. She hopes soon to embark on some interesting travel. Anne H. Brooke revisited the campus last fall with her sister Sue ('29), enjoying equally the beautiful fall foliage and the comforts of a stay at the new Florence Elston Inn.

Mary E. Clemons Porzelius seems to be leading the quiet life of social amenities: bridge, entertaining in her condo's kitchen, and keeping actively in touch with her children's families and 4 grandchildren - one in faraway Switzerland. Jessie Coburn Laukhuff, our hard-working Class Agent, finds time for a Garden Club, the College Museum, and the Amherst Women's Club. She took a Thanksgiving trip to the northeast with Perry, who holds up well. Jessie also bicycles. Doris Crane Loveland, on the Eastern Shore of MD, is still doing calligraphy for the Easton Memorial Hospital and is busy with Garden Club, Queen Anne's Historical Society, and Colonial Dames.

Nevil Crute Holmes winters and golfs in Naples, FL, and resides in a condo in Asheville, NC when summer comes. Almost unique is having a 1 and 4-year old as grandchildren which "makes our friends think us quite young." Emily Denton Tunis is in a retirement home in Albuquerque near her married daughter and reports that her son is in the State Department. Kitty Gochbauer Slater, until Dec 1988, has been very active in regional Alumni affairs both in and from her home in Upperville, VA and can now (her term over) give time to her writing and real estate activities.

Margery Gubelman Hastert writes from Honolulu where her son and one daughter are near, and the son of her other daughter had come from Australia to enroll in the U. of Hawaii, that she is still active volunteering and golfing.

Katherine Howze Maclellan has this year designated a memorial contribution in honor of Joseph H. Davenport, Jr. (late husband of Alice Edwards '45). Mary and Margaret Imbrie, our joint-presidents till 1993, find their base in Woodbury, NJ an ideal spot for many short "R & R" jaunts, and thus we have news that Helen Bond is well in Chadd's Ford, PA. Ella Jesse Latham had a visit from Gail Shepard Bean whose husband was receiving an Episcopal High School Award, and then she was off on a trip to Italy just as reunion approached. Marjorie Jones Cook is now in a retirement home in Milwaukee with children widely dispersed (except for one) in Virginia, Nevada, and Portugal. She can count 5 grandchildren.

Antoinette Levillian Heslouin writes from France of happy memories of her junior year in the U.S. at SBC. She still keeps contact with Helen Martin and Rosemary Frey ('34) Rogers. Alice Martin Cooper reports as one happy mother-in-law with "two darling granddaughters... and congenial daughters-in-law" in Savannah, GA. Helen Martin enjoys these class notes though she can't offer more news of herself, but can report enjoyment of her "S.B. bulbs". Jane Martin Persen from Minnesota, writes her children and grandchildren "still live within a 50-mile radius" and that they find their little farm retirement life "idyllic". Marjorie Morse Emiling looks upon last October's 29-day trip to China, with 5 days in Tibet, as an achievement long to remember. December 31 brought a 50th wedding anniversary, and last month her 10-year-old grandson placed second in a state-wide National Geographic geography contest.

Mary P. Murdoch Martin is busy as a bee, as usual, accomplishing much in fun and seriousness, and "as to boredom - never." Frances Neville Newberry looks forward to celebration of a 55th wedding anniversary in July with a trip to the islands of Hawaii by boat in company with their daughters and family, and many of the original wedding party and additional friends. Mary Nel Neville Sieman has been having an extensive travel schedule plus planning to join the upcoming anniversary cruise mentioned above. In between, her family is not neglected, but included in visits from FL to CA. Mary K. Patton Bromfield, having retired from the Kingswood-Cotton School, now has more time to be "just plain lazy," but has future weddings of 2 granddaughters in her plans. She reports a younger one playing the prima role in "The Nutcracker" recently.

Frances Powell Zoppa wants us "girls" all "to hang in... for our 60th in walking condition." She says that kidding yourself that you're still young just may pay off! Marjorie Ris Hyland alternates residences between NC and FL except for a visit to ME to see children and grandchildren. Jeanette Shambaugh Elliott is another resident of two cities: Tucson, AZ and Old Mission, MI, enjoying cultural activities in one and relaxation in the other. As a hobby she collects Chinese painting and calligraphy. Abigail Shepard Bean has a primary concern about the deteriorating state in much of elementary education. Jean Van Horne Baber is doing work on the 100th anniversary of Dwight Englewood, her old school, in addition to her other art and needlepoint activities. She hopes someone, like her, might have an idea for a class get-together before '93.

Leila Van Leer Schwaab also celebrated a 50th wedding anniversary in 1988. They are good at hiking and spent two weeks doing just that in Switzerland. At home, with a husband still working full-time, activities include Meals-on-Wheels and church. Virginia Vesey Woodward has been blessed with a new granddaughter - the mother was SBC '73. She keeps alert to world events reading the Washington Post. Margaret Wayland Taylor belongs to an active chapter of a "Senior Center" in Charlottesville as well as a fine "Virginia Museum Chapter" group. Her husband's recent retirement was after 56 years as an active attorney. In addition to nearby tours with the above two groups, they plan to go further afield. Hetty Wells Firm finds "this state of life... a very satisfying period." Children and grandchildren are far-flung from CT to VA to AZ and CA. But, enjoying good health is a "main feature" in her present milieu.

I'm afraid I've gotten all of your cards that I'm going to and once again my mail box will produce only bills and monetary requests. Thank you for the happy interlude.

Lollie Redfern Ferguson is in a retirement home in Richmond, near her daughter and her family which makes it especially nice. Dottie Price Roberts is busy with spring planting. She tells me that she has wrinkles and wrinkles but no gray hair. I'm going to have to go to Ocean City to compare - I have gray hair, too. She had a great trip down the CA coast this winter. Dottie Prout Gorsuch has lots of fruit trees and berry bushes and thousands of S.B. daffodils that she has naturalized. She wishes Brad's cattle were not pastured so far away - she could use their end product. Dottie's children live near her and enjoy the fruit of her fields, too. Peter Dyer Sorensen also lives in Atlantic Highlands and her garden will be open for Garden Day in May. Her children and grandchildren live near her too.

Brad Forsyth didn't say much about the farm except that spring is a frantic time. She shares my feeling of awe at all the things our grandchildren know that are incomprehensible to us. They truly are our windows on the future. Izzy Olmstead Haynes, however, is right into the new world. One of her sons gave her his old IBM processor and she has really mastered it. She did her own taxes, too! I'm really impressed. Both her sons live in CA so her traveling is in that direction.

May Weston Thompson and I had lunch at Winterthur last year. They had 3 grandsons born this winter and expect a 4th grandchild this June. Agnes Crawford Bates doesn't mention her own garden but she's chairman of Historic Garden Week in Gloucester, VA this year. She's going to Bermuda in May. Biddy Sicard Sita sees lots of Sweet Briar people in Naples, FL. They are spending part of the summer in England when their granddaughter is being married and in Sept. they visit near the Hague with a daughter.

I'm glad Maggie Cornwell Schmidt's daughter, Ruthie, lives in CT because that brings Maggie to New England where I have hopes of seeing her. Ruthie and our Eleanor were in the same class at SBC. Maggie is tutoring illiterate adults and looks forward to a trip to Egypt in October. Becky Douglass Mapp and George Walter are such sailors that they keep one boat in the Bahamas as well as at home in Accomac, VA. Peggy Cruikshank Dyer and Holmes go back to MA in the summer but they spend more time on Siesta Key, FL so they're into church and committees and French lessons as well as tennis, swimming and the regular FL activities.

Margaret Sandidge Miller's husband, George, just had a book published, Provide for the Common Defense. It concerns what he feels is the critical state of our nation. They've still found time to travel around the country and see lots of friends. Ellie Snodgrass Park, I think, has had always our most prestigious job, an attorney with the Supreme Court and she says she's still enjoying it too much to retire. She had a trip to Italy this spring and her eldest granddaughter is teaching in a DC school. Bobby Jarvis Thomas is going to move to a retirement home in Yarmouth Port on Cape Cod but meanwhile she's been to France and on the SBC safari to Africa. She's just read A Leaf Upon The Sea by Lucy Gore Stead's Canadian husband. It's about his experiences with the British Navy in Malta during WWII.

Sara Kirkpatrick Fearing is one of our most intrepid travelers and this year she has been on a wonderful sounding trip through Indonesia. Wes Ward Francis travels for some good causes, National Drug Prevention, right now, as well as for pleasure, so she runs into lots of SBCers: Biddy Sicard and Francis Finley on the tennis court in FL and me in Princeton last fall. Wes' older grandson won a Presidential Citation for outstanding achievement in academics. She's off to Europe again this summer. Nancy Nalle Genung and AL arranged a party around the Princeton-Harvard game with Wes and me and 2 of Al's classmates. It was the first time I'd done anything like that since Jack died and I felt like an aging debutante. Nancy is busy with lots of activities in the town of Princeton as well as the ones we know of for SBC. In FL, they saw Beda Carlson Calhoun and Peggy Dyer.

Don Bussey, Anne Lauman's husband, said that Anne and he would love to see any of us if we are near Carlisle, PA. She is in a nursing home very close to their house. Peggy Merritt Haskell and her husband took the SBC Italian trip last fall and loved it. The guides, accommodations and, of course, all the other Sweet Briarites were outstanding.

Rosalie Hall Hurst, her husband and her daughter drove to Alaska in their motor home - their third trip, so they are particularly upset by the tragedy at Valdez. They live in Henderson, NC and are buying a new house there.

Anna Mary Charles Straub and Jack both retired this year. To celebrate that and their 50th anniversary they, too, are going to Alaska this summer.

Marion Leggett Whyte travels, golfs and volunteers with her husband's help from their residence in Boynton Beach, FL.

Kathleen Eshleman Maginnis is a volunteer docent at the Herman-Grima Historic House in the French Quarter and raises money to restore the historic cemeteries in New Orleans. She also was very active in the Republican party for the last election.

Marie Walker Gregory went to England and Scotland with a Colonial Dames tour and saw St. Andrews again.

Lillian Lambert Pennington has been in and out of hospital the last few months but says things are "better" now, we're glad to hear.

I still drive for the Red Cross and do various jobs mostly through the church but my traveling so far this year seems to be to or with the children and grandchildren. They even got Grammie in the hot tub when I went to UT with them this winter. Do call me if you're near Wilmington and I hope I'll get even more cards back next spring.

Our class is on the travel circuit along with volunteering - inspiring news as we approach another decade.

Crossroads Continuum has published Daughters and Mothers: Healing the Relationship by Juliet Fisher Firman and one of her daughters. The book is the result of 10 years of workshops. Juliet enjoys sharing this with her younger daughter, Dorothy. Juliet and Win spent 3 months in Indonesia for I.E.S.C. They make frequent trips to the West Coast to visit their son and to NY and MA to see their 2 daughters and 7 grandchildren. Life is very enjoyable for them at The Landings in Georgia.

Jane Loveland Byerts and Bill spend a lot of time with their children and grandchildren. They visit their oldest son and his family in London each year. Another son and 2 girls live in Tallahassee. Their middle son is in Baton Rouge. Their daughter, who is married to a Delta pilot, and their family live in Atlanta. Jane volunteers at the Red Cross and the hospital. Her dogs and "Golden Age" aerobics also fill her time.

Lillian Fowikes Taylor and Tyler each year go to fine resorts like The Homestead and Mid-Pines in Southern Pines. Dancing as well as golf is another favorite pastime. A family gathering in Birmingham celebrated Tyler's 70th birthday. Helen Gwinn Wallace and John had a frustrating year building a new home near Naples. They moved before the house was finished and in spite of the condition of the house most of their family visited them. Their 2 grandsons are winning ribbons in horse shows which delights Helen. A cruise on the Mosel, Main, and Rhine rivers in Germany was enjoyed by Helen Hamilton Lewis Bixby and Anne Teall Carrington and Dick. One of their sightseeing stops was Trier where Helen's husband, Joe Lewis, was military governor in WW II. Helen later went to France to visit her son and his family and toured the Benelux countries under the auspices of the World Affairs Council of St. Louis. Helen saw Shirley Shaw Daniel at the Garden Club of America's 75th anniversary celebration.

Angela Betty Cardamone O'Donnell and Ted remain in Bonita Springs, FL. He pays frequent visits to the hospital. In between his hospital visits Edge has visited Bob and Susie in TN, Jodi and her new son, a Downs syndrome baby, in CA, and her mother on her 90th birthday in Utica. She will return to CA for Jodi's baby's heart surgery. Five of her children and their spouses have visited them this year. July found Eleanor Damgard Firth and Swede plus 8 children and grandchildren in Europe to celebrate their 48th wedding anniversary. Ellie and Swede traveled via the Concorde and spent 2 weeks. They have purchased another condo in Hot Springs for the use of their children.

Our condolences to Betsy Tower Bennett on the loss of her husband, Charles, with cancer in March. He was formerly the publisher of United States Banker. The U.S. Banker of April 1989 said, "he could light up a room with his broad smile and friendly banter".

Shirley Shaw Daniel and Dick went sightseeing in Washington and Williamsburg with their Denver daughter, Dottie, and her 9 and 7 year old sons. Their bachelor son, Dick Jr., married in Newburyport, MA last Oct. Dottie and Sandy and Dick and Joanne celebrated their parents' 45th wedding anniversary in May in PA. Shirts sees Elizabeth Campbell Gawthrop '39 at board meetings of the Colonial Dames. She also sees Eugenia Burnett Affel '42 at Garden Club functions. It was trips to Nova Scotia, St. Croix, Indiana, and Va. Beach for Judith Davidson Walker and Tony. Their son, Andrew, and family live in Lafayette, IN where he is an instructor in the NROTC at Purdue. Their 2 sons helped them with closing Tony's aunt's house in Va. Beach. All children and grandchildren are doing well. Nelle Hudgens Levvis and Walter visited their 2 sons and their families in TN and VA. They met their 2nd great grandchild and enjoyed his sister (3 1/2). They stopped in charming Cambridge, MD to see Helen Carmine Barber and John - their first encounter in 45 years. Walt had back surgery in December.

For 5 years Wilma Cavett Bird has been teaching Latin part-time at Heritage Hall in Oklahoma City. She visited WW II friends in Honolulu. En route home she stopped in Chico, CA to visit daughter, Mary, and 2 grandsons. Other jaunts took her to Chatham, MA to see Jean Ruggles Hall and to Remsen, NY to see Barbara Nevens Young. Ruth Hemphill Debuys and Barbara Derr Chenowith '38 and Arthur went to Los Angeles and concentrated on museums. Her life is filled with golf, travel, and attending her ailing husband. Martha Jean Brooks Ingram and Tom had dinner with her when they were in Birmingham. Ruth visited the Chenowiths in NC while Marie Gaffney Barry's brother and sister-in-law were there.

Canada lured Elizabeth Brown-Serman Hayes and Frank in June. First a stop in NYC for art galleries. In Montreal they went sightseeing before boarding a train to Vancouver. On their return they crossed the USA via train. They spent the rest of the summer at Raquette Lake. They enjoyed electricity on their island for the first time. Joan Myers Cole and Chee Chee play in the same Round Robin Bridge Group. Laetitia Seibels Frothingham is an active member of a sewing group, works on church fairs, and paints and does aerobics whenever she can. Tish and John are devoted and dedicated grandparents. One daughter, Cheezie, and her family live near them in New Canaan.

Daughter, Anne '46, and family live in NYC and Nantucket. Their son, John, and his wife and little Tish, her husband and 3 children live in the Boston area. Tish and John spend August in Nantucket having visits from their family. Travel for Barbara Nevens Young and Ralph has been curtailed while they concentrate on repairs to their San Antonio home this year. Barbara did go to her mother, aged 98, in Remsen, NY when she had a setback. She thinks her mother may well be the oldest living alumna from SBC. Elizabeth Lancaster Washburn and William have taken the Youngs' oldest grandson, Ben, under their wings in Lexington, VA. He is a student at VMI. He helped the Washburns open their summer place. Barbara and Ralph spent the summer and into the fall in Remsen this year.

Anna Whitaker Bartel's oldest daughter, Anna Cox '66, had a mastectomy with follow-up treatments of chemo and radiation. After her daughter, Jinny, finished her Ph.D. in Educational Psychology, Beanie and she went to Spain, Portugal, and Morocco. Jinny will teach graduate courses at the U. of RI. Election to the CT Senate has come to M. Adela Diaz Eads of Kent for the fourth time. She served 2 terms as a state representative of the 30th District. Her opponent lost in all 14 district communities. She is a self-described "moderate" on social issues and a "conservative" on fiscal issues. She and her husband, Vernon, own a company that buys and sells equipment for the drop-forging industry in Kent. Virginia Smith has returned from the San Bernardino School District as an instructional aide and also from the government senior aides project. She enjoys volunteer work at St. Peter's Episcopal Church, and attending bible classes.

It was Europe all summer for Elizabeth Hudson Boba and Imre. His work takes them to Austria and Hungary which they find exciting with more relaxed conditions. The Seattle SBC group met and viewed the new college video. She is interested to know that Latin and Greek are thriving. This is a pet interest since her Classics dept. work at the U. of Wash. Bette Fawcett Collier had a stroke 3 1/2 years ago. Her left side is still paralyzed. Though it has changed her life style, she gets along pretty well. In March Bette and Jim went to the Keys. Their Charlotte, N.C. daughter accompanied them.

Lucy Parton Miller honored her mother on her 90th birthday with a luncheon. Her mother resides in a nursing home across the river from them. Lucy and Laymon have only given 2 weeks of noise control seminars this year. He would like to retire but he is in demand as a teacher. They do enjoy their classes around the country. Jean Ruggles Hall and Hunter had an enjoyable 3 weeks in Alaska. Jean and her daughter, Lynne Smith Craw SSC '64, had an exciting trip to Kenya. Her children gave a surprise birthday party for her which was attended by Wilma Cavett Bird, Louise Lembeck Rydel, and Charlotte Davenport Tuttle. The Halls continue to spend their time between Naples, FL and Chatham, MA.

This has been a year of travel for Martha Jean Brooks Ingram and Tom. Feb. in Hawaii; San Francisco (where Martha Jean talked to Patricia Potter Duncan); A Junior League Sustainers' cruise to France; and the Masters Golf Tournament in Augusta in April. In May they moved to Blowing Rock for the summer. Joan Meacham Gay continues to sell Christmas trees on a "choose and (you) cut basis". A graduate forester assists her and shares 30% of the gross profits. It is a good arrangement for both. She looks forward to another trip on the Illyria. The Virginia Museum of Fine Arts Council sponsored a 3-week trip to Spain and Portugal. Lossie Taylor Noel took the trip in April. Upon her return she found her Wrightsville Beach cottage open due to the efforts of her husband, Ted, and her daughter, Placidi. From June to Oct. the Noells enjoy visits there from their 4 children and their families. Decca Gilmer Frackleton and Robert traveled to Colorado Springs where her son, David, presided over a meeting of T.R.R.F., to Savannah for the S.G.H.S., to the American Boxwood Society at Blandy, VA, to OR for their oldest grandson's h.s. graduation and to visit their oldest son, Nick and his family. They also attended Kenmore meetings in Fredericksburg. Daughter, Carter '72, accompanied them on some of their trips. Son, Leigh, and family have moved to Richmond but he continues to teach at MWC and to practice law in Fredericksburg. A land and cruise trip to Great Cities of Asia had Barbara Holman Whitcomb aboard. In Bangkok Joan Devore Roth and Barbara met and '41 time took over. Usually Lucy Parton Miller and Laymon take some of these group trips but missed this one. Barbara is envious of the Florida group reunions and wishes for a Northeast one.

Betty Blount Kempson had a bad back fall which has resulted in much time in bed. Kenny recently had bypass surgery. They are lucky to have a wonderful maid and Betty is grateful for books, crossword puzzles, knitting, crocheting, and a positive outlook. Hawaii has given Nancy Linda Boyle Richardson permanent residence status. She has grown deep roots in Hawaii, where she volunteers for the Pacific Whale Foundation. Her summers are spent in New England. Her tripping this year took her to Ecuador and the Galapagos Islands. Edith Vongehr Bridges Cone retired last year and discovered volunteering, tennis, French lessons, cross-country skiing, and traveling. Her new husband, David Cone, and Edie have visited Puerto Vallarta, Greece, and Britain. She hopes to do some travel writing. One piece has been published in a newspaper. Her youngest son, Tyler, after 3 years as a freelancing journalist in S.A. is now a reporter for the Times-Picayune in New Orleans. Her 6 other children live in CA. Frances Watkins Centilli and Bill had health problems. Wattie had a radical hysterectomy and Bill had a colon resection. Fortunately neither required additional treatment. Their daughter, Margaret, is running for the school board in Devine, TX.

This year Patricia Potter Duncan went to Fiji, New Zealand, and Australia on a Blue Lagoon cruise. She left the cruise in Australia and pursued further travel there by train. Her summer house in Leland, MI has had extensive repairs and renovations prior to her August arrival. Alpine Martin Patterson was in hospital with kidney stones and is enthusiastic about the lithotripsy procedure which demolishes stones. After recovery Piney and Eugene went to Mountain Lake, FL where they encountered Ethel Gurney Betz, John, and Essie Cruickshank, Butch's sister. Serious golf matches and fun evenings followed. At a Southern Seniors Golf gathering at the Homestead Eleanor Damgard Firth, Lillian Fowlkes Taylor, Frances Johnson Finley '37 and Piney had a reunion. The class sends their deepest sympathy to Piney on the loss of her mother at 98.

Louise Lembeck Reydel and Charlie visited their son, Steve, and his wife in Munich. Since then Steve and his wife have returned to Georgetown, MA and are expecting in the fall. En route to Chatham from FL Lou and Charlie visited their second son, Jim, and wife, Jane, along with children Jimmy 1, and Kimberley 3.

A summer reunion took place in the Adirondacks with Martha Jean Brooks Ingram and Tom, Lillian Fowlkes Taylor and Tyler, Ethel Gurney Betz and John, Decca Gilmer Frackleton and Robert, Elizabeth Brown-Serman Hayes and Frank, Barbara Nevens Young and Ralph, Betty Doucett Neill and John, Marie Gaffney Barry and Ted, Patricia Potter Duncan, and Ruth Hemphill Debuys.

Margaret Craighill Price and Karl visited Costa Rica and Holland. In Holland they were guests of the Van Zyperden Bros. who have supplied most of the SBC bulbs for 40 years. Helen Ann Littleton White and Logan spent the winter in Marco Island, FL where she continues her watercolor painting at the Art League. She attended the SBC luncheon in Naples. In PA she belongs to several Art Centers. Sometimes she exhibits in shows. Her children and 6 grandchildren gave a great party to celebrate her 70th birthday. Mary White Miller and Ken came from Falls Church, VA for the occasion. She also attended Shirley Shaw Daniel's 70th birthday.

I do thank all of you who responded to the class note cards.

Anna Chidester Heywood (Mrs. William H., Jr.), 5553 Citation Road N., Toledo, OH 43615

Another year has rolled by and next May marks our 45th reunion. Be there! Meantime here is the latest decipherable news from your cards.

Sad to relate, Bill Heywood, Chickie Chidester Heywood's husband, died April 17th in Toledo, OH. Chickie has been our outstanding fund agent for several years. She and Bill had just moved into a new townhouse and 2 of their sons were being married this spring. I know we will all keep her in our prayers.

Joe Davenport, Hedy Edwards

Davenport's husband, who did much for Sweet Briar, died last year and a memorial service for him was held at Sweet Briar Apr. 27th. Hedy was there seeing the college in its spring attire after 2 busy months in FL. She also took 6 daughters to Holland and the Chelsea Flower Show in London in mid May.

I hope all of you noted that Lyn Dillard Grones, Virginia Beach, VA received the Outstanding Alumna Award of 1988. There was a super article about her in the 1988 winter alumnae magazine. Most of her news concerned others, but she spent the month of June in Scotland and England.

Dickie (Anne Dickson Jordan), Virginia Beach, VA and her husband, Chick, are happily retired and spent three months on Lake Champlain in the Adirondacks last summer and were in Essex, NY again in '89. They have 5 grandchildren and she sees Perk (Mary Perkins Traugott Brown) and Lyn Grones often and has seen Betty Pender Lazenby who has a summer cottage there in Virginia Beach, VA. A room in a new building at Cape Henry Collegiate School was just dedicated to Dickie. Perk is not going abroad with Lyn this summer. She had minor knee surgery but is doing fine. Alice Nicolson McIlvaine (Steve) in Washington, DC, is our real world traveler! First there was China, ending up in Taiwan visiting her son. Then a summer of sailing from the Chesapeake up to Canada. Five weeks in Kenya where friends lent them a house outside Nairobi. Steve and Rob McIlvaine also visited their daughter who does elephant conservation work in Kenya, and a son at the American Embassy in Tanzania. Christmas was on exotic Zanzibar Island and this past winter they spent some time on Eleuthera Island. It all leaves me breathless but she still has time for volunteer work in Washington, DC.

A lovely letter from Mary Kathryn Frye Hemphill, Hickory, NC, relates a story with a happy ending concerning daughter, Ellen, who had twin sons last year, lives in France and had to have emergency surgery last fall. Mary Kathryn flew over and eventually they all got back home with the help of the French doctors who were running in the NYC Marathon, and a corporate jet from NYC to Hickory, NC. More surgery and finally, Ellen, the twins and her husband (who had taught some at Lenoir Rhyne College while here) were able to return to France. But the Hemphills home became a nursery for a while with lots of helping hands. The boys were with them from the time they were 8 months until after their first birthday.

We all hope Ellen continues to improve.

Antoinette LeBris Maynard.

Washington, DC, celebrated 50 years in the U.S.A. in July. She came for the NY World's Fair in 1939; the war kept her here and Sweet Briar enabled her to continue her studies. Another anniversary for her is 20 years working at the Library of Congress in the Subject Cataloging Division in French, Swiss and Portuguese history.

Caroline Parrish Seager's husband, Bob, saw Toni at the Library of Congress while doing research for a book he is writing on Henry Clay. He is also writing a history of Virginia Episcopal School. Caroline gardens and volunteers at the local library in Marion, VA. Jean Ridler Fahrenbach, Tomkins Cove, NY, enjoyed a phone visit with Caroline on her way south for a month in FL this past winter. Son Robert graduated from Purdue this year; their first grandchild arrived last year, and she and Marvin both recently retired. Now they want ideas on how to condense accumulations of 40 years. Their two daughters are married, live in New England, and Jean and Marvin spend time at their condo in VT. Harriet Willcox Gearhart (Lovah), Centreville, MD, stopped to see Caroline for a short visit and also spent 2 weeks in San Francisco where her youngest daughter lives on a houseboat in Sausalito. Two other daughters are in NYC and one, Mary, did the technical end of a winter workshop in modern dance at SBC. Lovah's husband, David, is a part time priest-in-charge of a nearby parish and Lovah is still in the travel business. She attended a Willcox family reunion in Charles City, VA staying with Polly Vandeventer Saunders '46.

Great to hear from Doreen Brugger Wetzig, Colorado Springs, CO. Deen has four children, 2 boys and 2 girls. One of the girls is an SBC graduate and both boys are in practice with their father. Deen travels with Paul a lot. They were in China and Pakistan last fall. A week of spring skiing at Crested Butte was followed by a sojourn in tropical Dominican Republic. Joyce Livermore Foust, Plymouth, MI, may make our 45th reunion. She and her husband find retirement life busier than ever, as many of us do. They spent 5 weeks traveling south this winter and took their annual Cabin Fever Run to Georgia in a 1911 Cadillac. Summers find them in northern MI at Glen Lake. Pani Matton Luckett, Louisville, KY, spends winters in FL and attended a SW FL SBC reunion in Naples.

Eugenia Seaman Spear, Murrys ville, PA, has had some lengthy bouts with chemotherapy but is looking forward to some vacation time in ME and Chautauqua, NY. The practice of psychiatry still keeps Margaret Swann Nooris busy in Nashville, TN but she had a wonderful Easter with all 4 children, spouses and 3 grandchildren. Harriet Hazen Schmoeller Harnack is back in NV in Boulder City. She offers "tours" to any of us who happen to be in the Las Vegas area. Susan Buchanan Coupland has a new address in Durham, NC - 13 Hastings. Jane Lesh Gould, Bethesda, MD, was only at SBC one year, but has helped with bulb sales in Washington, DC and kept up an interest. She has been married twice. Her children doubled to 4 and grandchildren to 8, and she even has 3 great grandchildren! She volunteers at her church and also at Sibley Hospital in Washington, and keeps active with bowling and golf.

Elene Essary Gill, Washington, DC, writes of a terrible fire at Sheila Moore Rathbun's Middleburg, VA home. It was completely destroyed, but the Rathbuns managed to jump out of their second story window and are all right. Elene has all 4 of her children and 3 grandchildren in the Washington area so can be with them often. The Louisville, KY Sweet Briar alumnae club had a "reawakening" recently according to Jane Clarke Morrow to get everyone back into the fold. Jane has retired from AAA but enjoyed escorting a motor coach tour to Quebec and Nova Scotia last summer. She has 2 grandsons and keeps busy with DAR and an avid interest in history. Jean Portmann Allen is helping her husband who consults in trademark law. They live in the DC area for 6 months and Cape Cod for 6 months. She reports that Patricia Carr Bowie ex'45, has had an interesting career in teaching with lots of foreign travel and serious study.

Ann McLean Loomis, Weatogue, CT, has adopted a whale and will adopt a gorilla to please 2 of her granddaughters. Slug has also spent a year in training for a Pastoral Care team. Daughter, Betsy, and granddaughter will join her on a trip to England this summer flying over on the Concorde and returning on the QE2. Travel also fills a lot of Dale Bogert Baldwin's time. From Savannah, GA she will spend a month driving through our west this summer. Next, Kenya and Tanzania and later in the fall New England and Canada. She also volunteers weekly at Savannah's home for battered wives and at the museum of arts and sciences. Leila Barnes Cheatham, Griffin, GA, has 8 grandchildren to keep her young and hopes to catch up with Lyn Dillard Grones in York in July.

Reunion '90 is in the plans of Cappy Price Bass, Louisville, KY. In the meantime she will go to Switzerland on the SBC trip this summer. Her youngest daughter was married in Maui last summer; she has 5 grandchildren and is now an official resident of FL. Jane McJunkin Nelson, Lewisburg, WV, travels around the country to see her extended family, but will be visiting Copenhagen and cruising the British Isles this summer. Martha Holton Glessner, Gulf Breeze, FL, went to Bogota, Columbia to buy emeralds. The Eastern Airlines strike curtailed the trip, but it was still successful. Julie Mills Jacobsen, Washington, DC, has a new granddaughter named for her, and she still commutes to SBC helping obtain grants. She and Jake had an interesting trip to England last fall where they stayed at the University Women's Club in London. They were so taken with it that on their return Julie helped Ann Reams set up an exchange for SBC with the club. She also saw Hilda Hude Chapin on a trip to FL. The Chapins are now official FL residents. The Chapins also visited Wylene Chapman Saylor, St. Petersburg, FL, this past winter. Wylene is still enthusiastic about her work with the Carlisle Collection, as she is about her 9 grandchildren. She sees Beverley Randolph Knight '46, and Margaret Preston Moore '42, as well as Marion Brown Snider '38.

Sarah Temple Moore, Lookout Mountain, TN, and Tom had a business and pleasure trip to Europe picking up art and paintings. They operate two art galleries in Chattanooga. But they also visit their 5 sons and 11 grandchildren around the country, as well as SBC friends. Hilda Hude Chapin and Hedy Edwards Davenport, and even got to meet President Bush in Islamorada, FL. The 40 year old bridge group continues in Chattanooga with the foursome of Sarah, Hilda, Betty Avery Duff and Mildred Carothers Healy ex'45. Another summer European sojourner is Mia Hecht Owens, Atlanta, GA. The small grandchildren don't accompany them yet!

Edie Page Gill Breakell, Roanoke, VA, sees a lot of SBC alumnae through her active participation in Garden Club of America. Sadie Gwin Allen Blackburn ex'45, is national president. Margot Enright Agnides (Dede), New York, NY, continues to toil as a broker with Prudential Bache in International and Special Accounts. Ruth Hall Peckham (Tutti), Asheville, NC, and Bob have also done a lot of traveling but will stay in the cool mountains this summer. Betsy Smyth Brown writes from Austin, TX that her granddaughter, Christi, was married in Tulsa last fall. Another granddaughter performed in the San Antonio Nutcracker ballet. Her oldest son lives nearby and they all enjoyed Easter together on the ranch. Her youngest son returned from Hong Kong, is living in Manhattan and remodeling an old farmhouse in PA.

I too stay busy with volunteer work and travel. I have just finished the first year of a 4-year Education for Ministry course at my church; continue my Braille transcribing for the blind; help at the library and college and am Program Chair for our AAUW branch. But September will find me biking through the Loire Valley of France and next January hiking the Milford Track in New Zealand. I hope I survive! Keep in touch.

I would like to express the sympathy of our class for the family of Margery Babcock Chamberlin, who died after an automobile accident in November 1988, also the family of Donna Stevens Cowdery who died in April '88, and for Peggy Cromwell Taliaferro, whose husband, Austin, died in August, 1988.

Considering the dual circumstances of the impending Reunion and the distant publication of this column, it seems practical to begin with news of those who have indicated that they will not be coming to Reunion. Memorial Day week-end presents conflicts for some. Margaret Towers Talman's nephew is another culprit, as she is going to his wedding in Philadelphia and staying with Polly Plummer MacKie. Margaret's immediate family has increased by 2 as her daughter, Margaret, married Scott Corwin and her daughter, Nell Houghton, had a daughter, Elizabeth Dudley. Ellen Ramsay Clark and Ken, Ruthie Garrett Preucel and Bob visited Carter Vandeventer Slatery and Herbert in Hilton Head, GA. After 37 years in a house they built, Carter and Herbert have moved into a new place in Knoxville, TN, with room for the family on separate floors. Ellen had a new granddaughter this year.

Anne Fiery Bryan's birthday present to her husband, Dick, is a trip to England and France, financed by her "bed and breakfast" enterprise in Charlottesville, VA. They fly to London on May 23rd to start the trip with the Chelsea Flower Show. Ann Henderson Bannard and Yorke will be in Santa Fe, NM for "A Future for Children" 's occasion, a project in which they are very involved. In May, Nancy Jones Worcester and John will move into a new house they have built in Sarasota, FL and will attend their son, Peter's, graduation from the MBA program at Northwestern University. The Worcesters' had a grand visit from Joan McCarthy Whiteman and Wes when the latter passed through Sarasota on the way to their condo at John's Island, FL.

Ann Lane Hereford finds life much simpler now than during the 11 years of Frank's tenure as President of UVA. They have built a house in the country, about 5 miles outside Charlottesville. Ann keeps busy with gardening, tennis, a little bridge and, of course, grandchildren. Frank has returned to the Physics Department at UVA. Marilyn Hopkins Bamorough and Jim enjoy retirement, spending 3 months each year in Ft. Myers, FL, but like MI best, the rest of the year. They had a grand visit with Mary Fran Brown Ballard and Don in Grand Rapids in Dec. We will miss you all and you must not miss reading about it all as reported by our new class secretaries Kitty Hart Belew and Betty Wellford Bennett.

Sally Melcher Jarvis is coming to reunion for the first time, fitting it in between leading museum tours to the Soviet Union and Scotland. Patsy Davin Robinson and "Stevie" Stevens Webb will fly into Roanoke the day before reunion and we 3 will motor over to the old school. Bunny Barnett Brown is coming with Walter who now feels qualified to attend the gathering. He certainly has the right credentials, as Chairman of the SBC Board, though he has chosen to stay at the Inn, leaving late-night sessions in the dorms to Bunny.

Our class is supporting the SBC Alumnae trips. Kitty Hart Belew and Betty Wellford Bennett went on the wonderful one to the Soviet Union last summer and Bunny and I had an exciting time on the Kenya trip in February. Phyllis Thorpe Miller '48 and Edna Syska Peltier '42 were along and we had many chuckles about Chunga Munga's in Swahiliand. We just missed Preston Hodges Hill and Gene who had been there with a Princeton group. Vidmer Megginson Downing and George had "done" Kenya, plus Paris and Switzerland, last fall. June Eager Finney's card was a glowing report of the delightful time she and Bill had had with the Downings in Mobile, from lump crab salad and fresh strawberries to the lovely home the Downings are building there. Bill has retired from practice but is starting all over again with classes at Johns Hopkins in Public Health Hygiene in order to get his MPH.

Martha Query Odell and Harold enjoyed a trip to Australia and New Zealand, staying in Mom'n Pop motels, eating in pubs and getting to meet the real people. Ann Holmes Bryan, as President of the Zoological Society of New Jersey, is having fun working around a true zoo. She, Bob, and daughter, Lee, cruised through the Panama Canal, spending Christmas Day on Gatun Lake there. Kay Bryan Edwards' approaching 60th birthday last year made her decide to speed up on traveling. After a comprehensive tour of FL, she took off for the Soviet Union and was there during the Summit. She then proceeded directly to a Scandinavian cruise on a tiny converted postal boat and then celebrated the big birthday in England. Katie Cox Reynolds went to Cuba and Peru in April and May, but plans to fit in the SBC Reunion before reuniting with numerous Stuart relatives in Natchez, MS.

The 2nd floor Grammar freshmen of '45 had a glorious mini-reunion at Patti Levi Barnett's twin condos at Myrtle Beach, SC last summer. Those attending were Carolyn Cannady Evans, Betty Wellford Bennett, Sallie De Martine, Jaclyn Tappan Kern, Jean Taylor, Mimi Powell Leonard and Jacquelin Jacobs Buttram. Carolyn and Hervey had fun trips to CA, Snowmass, CO and Alaska last year. Jean Taylor is a psychologist and a lawyer. Jackie Buttram is back in TN, planning in real estate; she took time out for trips to Scandinavia and the Far East last year.

Ann Bush Train returned a delightfully filled out questionnaire and sent pictures of her and her children, all looking good. Caroline Casey McGehee and Coleman took the whole family (11) to Antigua in March. Sue Corning Mann and Hank will celebrate their 4th anniversary on May 25th - maybe, at SBC. Virginia Anderson Simons has one daughter and 4 sons in Ft. Worth, TX and one son and his family in Westfield, NJ. All communications from "Larry" Lawrence Simmons are enthusiastic on everything, but her two main enthusiasms are Charles Simmons and TX. Mary Fran Brown Ballard, who practices law and travels, seems to have time for her 7-year old grandson to beat her at chess. Joan Becker Taylor is the proud grandmother of 7, 5 boys and 2 girls.

Pat Brown Boyer and Jean have settled happily into their new home in Winter Park, FL. Ann Doar Jones and Frank have done the same "at the river" in the northern neck of VA with the children close by. Marie Musgrove McCrone and Richard parcelled out a lot of furniture and moved into a new "condo" in Richmond, VA. Betsy Der-shuck Gay has joined the grandmother ranks, with grandson, Matthew, born to son, Frank, and wife Debbie, in Birmingham, AL. Betsy's art work will be reviewed in the 1989 edition of "American Artists," an illustrated survey of leading contemporaries.

Peggy Cromwell Taliaferro chairs the Planning and Zoning Commission in Queenstown, MD, working hard to slow down the big developers. Our other active preservationist, Dorothy Bottom Duffy single handedly saved a stately old home overlooking Hampton Roads by striking a deal to buy the property, just before the bulldozers came, according to The Daily Press of Newport News, VA.

Roselise Holmes Wilkinson, our class physician, continues to work full time at the Institute for Achievement of Human Potential with brain injured children. She has two beautiful granddaughters. Betty Blair Gosling has just finished editing work on S.E. Asia for The Dictionary of Art (MacMillan Pub., London) and is working on a book on Kuala Lumpur for Oxford University Press. Mary Virginia Grigsby Mallett has a full life right now, working on her M.S. in Education at Butler University, being Executive Director of the Mental Health Association in Hamilton County, IN, and buying a new house. Due to their son's wedding in Baltimore on May 20, Judy Baldwin Waxter and Bill might miss reunion. Libby Trueheart Harris and Hiter spend a lot of time at their Irvington, VA home which was open for Historic Garden week in VA this year. Within the last 12 months, Lindsay Coon Robinson's mother died, 2 new grandchildren came into her life, and her eldest daughter became engaged to be married in July. She describes these events as "rather prosaic, but generally peaceful-somewhat more appealing to me now-we all can't be high profile!"

Goodie Greer DiRaddo is leaving her basket and loom weaving in San Antonio, TX for a trip back to the Patch, as are all the realtors in our class: Jackie Buttram in Chattanooga, TN, Judy Easley Mak and Dee Currey Nicholls, both in DC, Jeanne Crawford Kean in Columbia, SC and "Fritzie" Duncombe Millard in Winnetka, IL, who has just become a full-fledged realtor in spite of the many hours she has put into planning what we know will be a spectacular gathering.

In writing my last column as the '49er's Secretary, mixed emotions had to be dealt with. Hearing from you each year has been gratifying, interesting and fun. On the other hand, trying to convey all your wonderful correspondence succinctly has been a challenge. I felt an incumbency to report on our class historically, and decided to incorporate as many of your cards as possible in the Class Scrapbook and leave it in an unedited state for future historians to use in interpreting our era, 40 years into the world. Looking over all this correspondence induced some research. Of the 185 of us who entered the freshman class in the fall of '45, 75 of us graduated together in the spring of '49. Of those, 5 are deceased. In the past 5 years, I have heard from, or of, all but 5 of the rest, plus so many others, proving that our common experience at college age makes us united in ways we hardly realize. Thank you for these 5 years of happiness in hearing from old friends. They are the best!

Greetings from Chapel Hill and thanks to all who answered my call for news. Being so new to this job I was a bit nervous, but your cards kept pouring in and it was fun to hear from each of you, 25 to be exact.

Our former secretary, June Arata Pickett was the first to respond (bless her!), telling of the arrival of her 2nd grandchild and another one on the way, due in July. She and Bob own a condo in Sanibel Island, FL and will be hosting a mini-reunion there in May with Connie Werly Wakelee, Joan Brophy Tyree, Cinnie Moorhead McNair and Nan O'Keeffe. Another mini-reunion was held in early April at Litchfield Beach, SC when Polly Sloan Shoemaker and husband Jim were hosts for the weekend to Ginnie Dunlap Shelton and Tom, Isabel Grayson Parish and Hav, and another couple from Greenville. Lots of laughs, good seafood, and long walks on broad uncrowded beaches.

The largest number of replies came from Texas (naturally!). In Houston, Nan O'Keeffe is celebrating George Bush's presidency after working on his behalf for almost 20 years. She is still working "temporary" and has been at Coca-Cola Foods for 6 months. In San Antonio, Cinnie Moorhead McNair and Norm will celebrate 35 years of marriage in June. They have 3 married sons and 6 grandchildren, only 1 gal in the bunch. (She'll put on pressure for SBC education!) Another San Antonio, Anne Covington Phelps-Gorman also worked hard for Bush's election. She adds that she may horse race in Virginia next year with Dr. Robert Banner, the cancer surgeon. Anne Leonard Hodges of Ft. Worth says her last 2 children finish college in May. She and husband Leland enjoy weekends in the country at their lake house or the ranch and have planned a trip to Tuscany this fall. She talks to Betty Bentsen Winn and Mary Alexander Sherwood frequently. I was saddened to learn of the death in a car accident of Betty's father in McAllen earlier this year.

From the Deep South: From Charlotte, NC, Jane Perry Liles writes that her daughter Perry has been working for Bush for the past 2 years and is now in the office of National Service and loves it. She (Jane) and George spent the night in Pawling, NY with Joan Brophy Tyree when they toured New England. Both families, the Tyrees and Liles, are renting a house together at Figure 8 Island, NC, in July. All their children will join them, even Joan's soldier son, Johnny, who is stationed in Germany. Ginny Dunlap Shelton and husband Tom enjoyed a week's sailing in the Grenadines last January. At a wedding in Montgomery, AL, they ran into Nan Locke Rosa and Frank. The Rosas took the SBC trip to Russia in the summer of 1988 and loved "that huge country of contrasts". Still a travel agent, she and Frank also spent 10 days in London in Feb. From Memphis, this news from Anne Saunders Miller: Anne is teaching a Continuing Ed class in drawing for Shelby State Community College and also a class in mixed media projects. She keeps busy with gardening and a 3 year old grandson. "Sug" Cantey Patton and Stuart announce the birth of a new grandson born in Jan. to daughter Leila. From FL, Eleanor Johnson Ashby writes that she and husband Garnett enjoyed a trip to London this past winter and plan to go again in July and August, returning in time to see daughter Elizabeth get her Masters in Spanish from Middlebury College. Their daughter Stuart married in Dec. and daughter "Linden and Susan are happy in LA where she is playing Bridgett on Nightingales, NBC night time soap." Who is Susan and who is playing Bridgett? Not clear to me! Eleanor is still with Leadership Jacksonville. Congratulations to Dale Hutter Harris who has been named to the Board of Trustees at VES! Dale is a judge in Lynchburg's Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court, and is married to Ted, a delegate to the VA Assembly. Two cards from Louisville, KY: Janie Dawson Mudwilder is still on Town Council and has been elected to her church vestry. She enjoyed a couple of FL trips this winter, one with Edie Norman Wombwell who proudly writes that her husband George was promoted to Chief Financial Officer of National City Bank in Cleveland when his Louisville bank merged with it. They have an apartment there but plan to keep their home in Louisville. Son Andy graduates from Northwestern in June and Van is still in San Francisco but has applied to Dartmouth for business school. Son David and wife have a 1 year old daughter. So nice to hear from Kitty Guerrant Fields from Richmond whom I have not seen for so long! Moved Lou's death last May, she has moved back to Richmond from Washington, and is just back from 6 weeks in FL. Most of her year has been spent consolidating and cleaning out from 3 places into 1 as well as completely renovating and decorating her Richmond home in Chatham Square. She's ready now for visitors!

Moving to the Northeast: President Mary Kimball Grier was off to London as she wrote her card to me. Husband Bos will meet her in Paris the last of April where they will attend their Hartford Museum's exhibition "200 Years of American Art". Patti Tighe Walden is completing her 30th year of teaching kindergarten and she loves the wonderful world of 5 year olds! Her son Ben graduates from Villanova in May with honors in Mathematics. Her Emily is a Jr. at Trenton State. Poor Patti is recovering from a herniated disc but is healthy and quite active with school and volunteer work. Can you believe this? Little Dickie Wellborn Hopper is a grandmother 9 times! (And I thought I had the lead with my 8!) Dickie and her husband have retired to NH, love it, and enjoyed a ski trip to CO this past winter. It was sad to learn of the death of her father in the spring of '88. Flo Pye Apy acquired a new grandson, David Chester; her second son Donald is engaged to a wonderful young lady whose parents live in Maui, HI, where they'll be married next year. Third son Dean will graduate from Princeton next year. Mary Stagg Hamblett and Ken had a wonderful trip to France last year. Her family is fine - no one married yet. A long letter from Lynne Kerwin Byron who was unable to attend reunion because of a serious riding accident sustained by her daughter, Katharine, at Mt. Holyoke College. Katharine underwent 12 hours of facial reconstruction surgery at Johns Hopkins and the surgeon is delighted with her progress, and everyone impressed by her courage and good spirits. Lynne is very busy as secretary and co-chairman for Madeira School 40th Reunion. She is also chairman for the Washington County, MD, House and Garden Pilgrimage, Chairman of Washington County Historical Trust Inc. and Sec. of Save Historic Antietam Foundation. On top of all this, she's taking a computer course.

Moving to the west: Gennie Hudson Toone from KC just started a consulting job in St. Louis and commutes there every other week. One talking book each way keeps her entertained. Kim Green Stone lives near Lake Tahoe and runs a small horse ranch with husband John's help when he is not globe-trotting as a mining consultant. Their daughter, Sara, will graduate from SBC in May '89; she also has a younger daughter in college at U. Nevada, Reno, a son in aerospace engineering in CA, another son caretaking a ranch in AZ and their oldest girl teaches gifted children in AZ.

"Real Estating is still dynamite out here. I sold Robert DeNiro's home last year but the Pacific Rim clients are the big stars as buyers!" This exciting news from Ginger Timmons Ludwick in Los Angeles. She and Dave are contemplating a return to Portugal and Morocco this summer. Their daughter, Leslie (SBC x80) is now co-director for congressional relations for the AMA in Washington, DC. Son Wick lives closer to home in Newport Beach, CA.

From Basingstoke in Hampshire, England, Nancy Goldie McTaggart writes, "Splendid to have alumnae news - it takes me back 36 years; it doesn't feel like it." Nancy describes herself as a retired teacher/housewife/translator. Her daughter Kate, also a St. Andrews exchange student at SBC ('77-'78) hopes to visit the U.S. this year, if everything on their farm goes well.

As for Hav and me, our 5 sons are all happily married and living in VA and there are 8 grandchildren. We have enjoyed some strenuous and adventuresome trips since last May, through the NW Passage by ship from the Aleutian Islands to Greenland, to Papua New Guinea for a 2-week visit with the headhunters and artists of the Sepik River, to Algeria where we crossed the Sahara by camelback or foot (foot was better!) for 18 days, and more recently to the Yucatan peninsula in our own plane to visit the Mayan ruins. We're saving Europe for our dotage. We thoroughly enjoyed being at SBC last May for that very special reunion. Isn't it gratifying to learn that college friends are still close after 35 years? One of life's sweet offerings and part of the magic of Sweet Briar! Love until next year.

Your response to my card was overwhelming and it was particularly lovely to hear from some of you who hadn't written for several years. Your interests and involvements, spirit and contributions are continuing evidence that '57 is still the blue ribbon class it was at Reunion!

Diane Duffield Wood sends news of Sandy's retirement - he LOVES it! They're off to his 40th high school reunion in Hawaii in June and hope to go to Australia in Feb. '90. Duffy is now a computer whiz - keeping the Little Book Store on the cutting edge. Anne Melton Kimzey has gone into business for herself as a confectionary/specialty-food broker with a territory extending from TN eastward and south to the FL panhandle. Her daughter Anne will be the folklorist for the state of AL and daughter Rhonda is in Atlanta selling international translation services to corporations. Wedding Bells!! In August Susan Ragland Lewis married Lt. Gen. James A. Abrahamson, director of SDI (Stargate); they currently live in Washington. Our very best wishes to them both.

News from Jim Rawley: he and Ann have been traveling again - this time Portugal. Jim has a new book titled Secession due out in the fall, and the 5th printing of Turning Points of the Civil War (conceived at SBC and first published in '66) is scheduled for August '89. A 3rd Rawley grandchild is scheduled for a fall appearance.

Ann Frasher Hudson is working on 2 major seminars for the Aspen Institute: 1 for summer '89, and 1 for '90. Ann says this adds a great deal of pleasure intellectually to a summer of hiking and music. Anna Chao Pai, David and 2nd son Mike were in the People's Republic of China for 3 weeks in September '88 visiting Beijing, Xian, Chongqing, and taking the 3 gorges trip on the Yangtze to Wuhan and Shanghai. Mike, who had enjoyed "The Last Emperor" was especially impressed by the Forbidden City. Chips noted many changes since their visit in '85, owing primarily to changes in economic policy. She sends news of Virginia Marks Paget whom she visited in March in Dayton, OH, where Virginia is a staff member at the Kettering Institute, doing very interesting work. Chips is now a regular member of the Board of Overseers and will visit SBC often.

Carolyn Scott Arnold is happy in Alohaland with husband Mark in a house with an incredible view of the Pacific and Diamond Head. Her 3 children are healthy and doing well, and Mark's 3 are all married and have produced 8 wonderful grandchildren. Barbara Falge Openshaw took a self-propelled 2-week trek through the French Chateaux country + Paris and Normandy last spring. She hopes that the house in Annapolis will be under construction by son Mark's wedding at Naval Academy in July; son David bought a house nearby. An addition to the Openshaw beach house is next on the list! Lee Haskell Vest sent news of her children, claiming that she and George were dull in comparison! Graham married Caroline Proga in air-conditioned splendor on the hottest weekend in August, thereby relieving the senior Vests of some excess furniture. The rest was snapped up by Sallie who, having received her Masters in geology, is employed by a Boston engineering firm where she works on THE major project: cleaning up Boston Harbor. Graham still teaches at H. Philip Randolph in Harlem and had a cameo role in the TV show about the school. The San Antonio, TX Light of March 13, '89 carries a handsome photograph of Mollie Steves Zachry and Bartell being greeted by the Saudi Arabian Ambassador to the United States, Prince Bandar bin Sultan bin Abdulaziz, on the occasion of their being honored at the World Affairs Council International Dinner in San Antonio.

A new granddaughter and SBC prospect for Cynthia Wilson Ottaway and John: Liza Maria Casalini (daughter of Elizabeth Frenzel Casalini '72). Son Otto and Susan McNamara of Sacramento, CA married in November and live in Indianapolis; Amy Ottaway graduated from SBC in May. Cynnie and John have bought "Victories of Petosky Michigan": restaurant, bowling ally and bar. They are building an Econolodge Motel adjacent to it. Jane Rather Thiebaud sends greetings to all classmates from the U. of Maine where she is a Graduate Assistant, working on a Master's Degree in Intercultural Understanding/Bilingual Education English-French. She teaches French to 59 students, lives in the graduate dorm, and plans to spend the summer back in Switzerland.

Ninie Lang writes from campus that it was super to see Cynnie Ottaway at Commencement. She has been elected to the Academic Affairs Committee of the SBC Board and looks forward to seeing Chips and Jody. Ninie went to Bermuda after Commencement for a well-deserved rest after a traumatic year, then visited England and Ireland in July.

From Dallas Faye Rathgaber Willis announces that she has officially retired from the architecture/construction business and retired into owning a travel agency which she purchased 3 years ago. She LOVES it. Her children are still single and busy with careers. My wonderful predecessor, Marjie Whitson Aude wrote her postcard the morning daughter Lucy had her 1st child, a son. Marjie and Fritz spent the week following Thanksgiving in Eluthera with Lucy and husband Vince; Fritz tried out the flying trapeze at their circus school. Daughter Nancy had her 3rd in May; Lois now has her Masters in Optics, Carl is 2nd year at Rochester in Optics; Laurie received her M.Div. in June; and Mark enrolls in MIT in Sept. Roberta Malone Henderson has been busy with civic work, particularly the organization of Scenic Kentucky, a group formed to control billboards on a statewide basis. In December '88 Roberta chaired a public meeting featuring the head of Coalition Scenic Beauty (in Washington), who gave a rousing speech! Around the world in 100 days and Charlotte Heuer deSerio and Fran had a fabulous time. It was the maiden voyage inaugural world cruise on the brand-new Royal Viking Sun: sailing west from San Francisco to every exotic port, ending up in Ft. Lauderdale.

News of a first family wedding comes from Mary Landon Smith Brugh: Spencer married Charles Woolford, Jr. from Norfolk, VA, where they will live (Spencer teaches second grade there). Enid Slack came from Denver for the wedding and then spent several days with Nancy Godwin Baldwin and Tom at their NC beach house. Mary Landon and Lynn celebrated spring in Clifford by hunting for morels and wild asparagus! From Austin, TX Carol McMurtry Fowler writes she and Dudley are healthy and well and still breeding golden retrievers, AND are back in the charter sternwheel riverboat operation after a lovely three-month world cruise. Dudley has stopped full-time law practice and consults only; Kim does her bit for the law firm if it's a juicy case. Mary Stoll Cross, in Princeton, NJ, has been restoring and remodeling historic houses for resale in Nantucket, and working on a photographic book on the bedouins and oases of Egypt. Daughter Ann is in a Ph.D. program in Clinical Psychology, daughter Stuart is a lawyer; Polly is a skier and in the food distribution business in Taos, NM. Mary had dinner with Harriet Cooper '56 in April. Ann Gwinn Fox and Jay now have 2 sons at W&L: Ted is a senior and Andrew a freshman.

It has been a long year of recovery from a ski injury and knee surgery for Fran Childress Lee. She and Lewis returned to Zermatt last August but Fran's hiking was curtailed by her crutches; however, they leased a house in Estes Park for summer '89. In May '88 their 2nd grandchild, a boy, was born to daughter Ann, and son Val graduated from Randolph-Macon; young Lewis and Pammy live and work in London; Childress is back in school. Dee Robin wrote in May '88: "So sorry to miss Reunion. The year at the American Academy in Rome was unbelievably wonderful - total heaven as anyone would imagine. Will return to Albuquerque and reality with a thud in August (88)." Carolyn Swift Fleming was elected to Sigma Theta Tau, International Honor Society of Nursing, Sept. '88. She visited SBC in Jan. '89 and left a note saying she was in China at 35th Reunion time. A Dec. '87 Christmas letter brings us up to date on the previous 2 years of Dagmar Halmagyi Yon. She lives in the Los Angeles area and works with the District Attorney's Office in the Family Support Division, tracking down parents who are not paying child support. She and Bud take camping trips in the mountains near them and spent Thanksgiving '87 in Yosemite. Jody and Sally live in Berkeley, Laura and Tom live near Dagmar, and Steve is back in CA pursuing a degree in Aerospace Engineering.

Suzy Neblett Stevens does a fantastic job running the dress shop and gift shop at Tides Inn in Irvington, VA (owned and operated by Suzy and Bob Lee Stevens). She has an apartment in the Murray Hill section of Manhattan close to the wholesale markets she covers. She and Bob Lee have a son in training at Opryland Hotel, another designs and builds fishing yachts, one is an attorney, and a daughter does specialty catering in Richmond - PLUS 4 grandbabies. Kay Diane Moore Bowles is busy with real estate, volunteer endeavors and watching over the domestic scene which includes a son in junior high school and another in law school; both live at home. Kay D. saw Sandra Stingly Simpson in Palm Beach at Garden Club of America annual meeting. Dorothy Duncan Hodges had a visit from Mary Ann Wilson and reports that the Jr. Yr. in Spain is blossoming under Mary Ann's leadership. Dot reports a problem: her clothes live at the cleaners because she is always dropping something when she eats. Anyone out there have a cure? Nannette McBurney Crowdus has "retired" from the National Association of Realtors and has opened her own firm: NMC Associates, Inc., consultants to the real estate industry. She and Bill have moved to Spring Lake, MI where Bill's business is headquartered and her computer/fax/phone office is located. ALSO, Nannette is a new member of the Board of Overseers and president elect of the Alumnae Association.

Saynor Johnson Ponder has been busy this year with 2 weddings: son Bert and daughter Eleanor both married. Daughter Saynor is at Vanderbilt where Saynor saw Carter Donan McDowell and Charlie at Parents Weekend. A major article in the Charleston, SC News and Courier/Evening Post, dated Oct. 16, '88 reveals that Jane Pinckney Hanahan was elected president of the Robert E. Lee Memorial Association, headquartered at the Lee home at Stratford, Westmoreland County, VA. Elaine Kimball Carleton and Sam moved to Savannah where Sam has a professorship in Art History at Savannah College of Art and Design. George, 15, likes his new school and friends and Elizabeth, 18, graduated from St. Stephen's in Austin. On your next trip to NYC, stop by The Shelby, a new restaurant at 967 Lexington Avenue (between 70th and 71st) and ask to see the chef, John Colmer. He's the son of Elaine Dies Colmer and Robert, and owns the restaurant in partnership with 2 other young gentlemen from Memphis. Jeremy and I continue to work hard with and for the Pittsburgh Symphony and travel to England and VA to see our family. We had a delightful visit with Suzy Neblett Stevens at The Tides Inn when we were there in April for a family gathering. AND we are afloat: In May '88 we acquired an antique woodhull 44-foot double-cabin Chris Craft cruiser on which we played most of the summer. This past winter it was completely restored and the Casablanca is now the most beautiful boat on Lake Erie! In closing - our class sends its love and very deepest sympathy to Jody Raines Brinkley whose husband Art died in Vienna on December 30th while he and Jody were on a family trip.

Jeanne Bounds Hamilton (Mrs. D. Ross), 130 East End Avenue, New York, NY 10028

Louise Cobb Boggs overbooked herself for April when notes are due, so the Alum Office asked me, Willoughby Applegate Ansell, to prepare this year's notes. It's a good thing, too, because just writing up all Louise's doings takes plenty of time. In addition to her usual law practice and tax-time pressure, she had to fly back and forth to FL on business, escort 4 teenagers on a (stormy) cruise to Nassau, live with a torn-up-and-being-redone kitchen, and prepare for daughter Alice's graduation from St. Mary's. Louise reported positive outcomes of the hectic spree: 1. Alice will be at the U of AL this fall and 2. In taking apart the kitchen, Louise found a waffle iron, missing for 9 years!

Our Class Pres., Babs Childrey Fowler, called to remind me to remind you to get psyched for our 30th Reunion in May '91. Babs and Cal's youngest, Charlie, will have graduated from Elon with a major in communications by then. He's serving an internship with a TV station in High Point, NC. Babs attended a St. Catherine's mini-reunion and saw Mary Denny Scott Wray and Susan Cone Scott. Mary Denny wrote that she enjoys being back in Richmond. Susan's daughter Alexandra (16) signed her first professional contract, playing the guitar and singing, mostly her own songs, at First Night Virginia, an event attended by 10,000 people on New Year's Eve. Son Frederic (14) attended the summer National Boy Scout Jamboree. Stuart Bohannon Evans sent news of another reunion, this one in Ponte Vedra, FL last April. She and husband Mack spent a long weekend with Jeanne Bounds Hamilton and Ross, Judith Atkins Wall and Craig, Catherine Caldwell Cabaniss and Billy Catherine continues to paint and show her work, most recently at Meridian (MS) Community College.

Sally Mathiasen Prince and Nancy Hall also spent winter time in Ponte Vedra, after visiting Celia Williams Dunn and Larry in Savannah. They had lunch and went on a garden tour with Miss Em Whaley Whipple. Sally still owns 9 "Lemon Twist" shops and gardens and is redoing a house on Gibson Island. The Princes had a son graduate from Lawrenceville and a daughter from Yale this year. Mimi Lucas Fleming and Peter visited Celia and Larry in Savannah; both couples went on a tour of homes in Beaufort, SC. (Celia Williams Dunn definitely gets the Most-Visited Award for the class! We've been once and are planning a return trip!) After 3 years in Tokyo working as Director of Studies of a commercial language school, Diane Stevens Creedon returned to the U.S. and lives right in the heart of Boston, happy to be within walking distance of all the main attractions. She's looking for a job. A promotion for husband Bob has moved Linda McArthur Hollis and family from Chappaqua, NY to Lyme, CN. Both children are at Amherst, Jennifer as a senior and Scott (who was valedictorian of his h.s. class) as a freshman. R.B. Burks Emery is in her 2nd year of law school at W&L and says she is doing a lot better than at SBC: "It seems I've been a late bloomer—though some may call it stunted development."

Susie Pritchard Pace writes that her daughter Jean graduated Phi Beta Kappa from U. of Richmond in May. Responding for the FIRST time, Bev Ayers Peck wrote that she and husband Dave are proud to have their daughter Amy in class of '92 at SBC. Bev loves visiting the campus. Also responding for the FIRST time, Peggy Parr Gallagher caught us up on a whole lifetime: married since '59 to Tom Gallagher; 2 children—Andrew, born '63 and Anne, born '65; taught school '61-'63; entered real estate in '72, now manages the 70-agent office of Lens and Foster in Columbia, MD. Her only unfulfilled desire: to become a grandmother. Lynne Nalley Coates is a grandmother. Son Thomas's 1st child Jessica is 2. All Lynne's sons—Chris, Thomas, and Collyn—are in college, Chris working toward Ph.D. in English. Lynne still teaches jr. high. Film critic and writer Molly Haskell participated as a speaker ("Through the Looking Glass: Medial Reflections of the Family") at the Providence Journal/Brown U. Public Affairs Conference on "The Changing American Family" last March. Sara Finnegan Lycell was promoted from Division President to Group President at Williams & Wilkins (medical publishers). She was elected Chairman of the Group Executive of STM, the international scientific, technical, and medical publishers' association.

She spends a lot of time in transatlantic jets but loves the challenge. She is also a Director of SBC and states, "I cannot say enough good about the College!"

Alicia Laing Salisbury was reelected to the Kansas Senate in Nov., then elected to the Leadership Committee and chosen to head the Labor, Industry and Small Business Committee. Both daughter Margaret and son Jess will marry in '89. Also planning a family wedding is Ann Hammond Dure, whose oldest stepson Dave will wed a Yale divinity student in '89. Ann and Leon's son Beau is 18, a junior at Duke. "All A's," says Ann, "but his 2 majors will not acquire money. Blast!" Rue Wallace Judd stays busy with her Starwood Publishing, producing gardening guide calendars and horticultural topic calendars for all regions of the U.S. She sees Patty Powell Pusey and Barbara Beam Denison (both '60) in the DC area. Rue and Ardon's Nancy graduated from Wm. & Mary; Sallie is a senior at Trinity—she spent last spring semester in Cordoba, Spain. Our only foreign correspondent, Willia Fales Eckerberg writes that she and husband Lennart are in their 6th year at the Swedish Embassy in Bonn. Their 2 oldest children John (22) and Alice (21) are in Lund in college and youngest, Christopher (18), is doing his stint in the military as an assistant meteorologist. Willia says that perhaps she can at last find out why it's so difficult to predict the weather. We're all waiting for that report, Willia!

From Marin County, CA, Pat Anderson Warren writes that she was elected Trustee for the Board of Ed. and recently helped found the Marin County Women's Hall of Fame, honoring local women of achievement. Son Mark will graduate from UC-Davis and son Michael is in college in San Luis Obispo. Simone Aubry is '89's most socially active classmate. She began last spring by throwing a 50th-birthday party for herself. Among the friendly faces in attendance were Betty Pease Hopkins and Anne Farnum. She also took a long driving vacation and visited Judy Rohrer Schultz, Ginger Lutz Stephen, and Marylee Matthews Bacharach who was up in VT from Barbados. Simone continues work as Joan Kennedy's personal secretary and gardens in spare time. Judy Rohrer Schultz reports that her twin sons graduated from college; her youngest is a sophomore at Duke. Judy is in a master's program in counseling, plans to finish at Duquesne U. after a move from Erie to Pittsburgh. The alumnae office forwarded news of Barbara Sanford Mason who wrote from Clinton, MD, where husband Keith is a funeral director and Barbara handles discipline problems at a local high school. She is working towards a certificate on the development-disabled. The Masons have 2 daughters, Ruth Anne and Beth Louise, in 8th and 3rd grades, respectively. They became involved in Compassionate Friends, a support group for parents whose children have died, following the death of their son, Paul Thomas, in '83.

Paige Wilkerson Pruitt and Neil, still enjoying Hilton Head, are building a new house. They visited China and cruised down the Amazon last year. Daughter Paige is a nursing home administrator in Athens, GA and Lisa graduated from U. of GA. Only Neil, Jr. is still home and Paige has had time to serve as an elder in the Toccoa, GA Presbyterian Church. A grown family also creates changes for Deeda Hill Bradford and Reed. Only their youngest, Tom, a student at Flagler in St. Augustine, is home occasionally. Son Jay works in Birmingham and son Mike in Washington, DC. Deeda stays busy with community projects—Meals on Wheels, American Field Service, Spina Bifida, and her Methodist church. Sue Robinson Syquia still works at Lourdes Hospital Emergency Room in Binghamton, NY. "Talk about challenges!" she says. Her Lorraine is at Columbia working on an MBA and Jennifer is a senior at BU. Sue spent New Year's in Maui with Jennifer and is now redecorating her house. Lynne Adams Clark reports that she and Mort have sent all their kids to foreign climes—Allison '85, married and living in London, David and Dixon off to Australia, Susan (at UVA) to Paris for jr. year. As soon as they were gone, Lynn and Mort drove to Roper, NC to take their Rottweiler to be bred: soon there will be more small feet pattering around the Clark house. Julie O'Neil Arnheim writes from NJ that she left Rutgers after 17 years, now works for M & T Chemicals in Rahway. She has 2 boys, Richard (11) and Patrick (13) and a daughter, Lelia, who still tops her list of desirable colleges with SBC, in 10th grade. Also checking in from NJ, Bee Newman Thayer says that their youngest, Chris, will be off to Colby (ME) after older brother Bill graduates. Bee and Brad love visiting with Miriam Bennett at Colby. Daughter Emily works in NH.

And now to the news from North Carolina: First from Durham, Anne Cone (now) Liptzin married a "wonderful psychiatrist" last Sept.; between them they have 10 children! Annie's 4 oldest—Coleman, Anne, Rick, and Steve—are all graduated from college and gainfully employed or going to grad school. Her youngest, Mary, graduated from St. Catherine's last spring and is off to college. Annie is a part-time student at UNC-Chapel Hill's School of Journalism and works in their photography dept. In Wilmington, Suzanne Ruffin Roth continues her job as membership coordinator for St. John's Museum of Art. She represented the museum in a citywide adult spelling bee and won first place! In Charlotte, Sally Hamilton Staub spent an inactive year while her ruptured disc healed, but managed a fall trip to Germany. Sally works as a development specialist at Science Museums of Charlotte. Children Dabney and Richard III are college graduates working in NC. Janna Staley Fitzgerald and Bob's youngest son, Scott, is a sophomore at Rhodes College. Janna has been to Nassau and FL and to their Myrtle Beach house for weekends. Her son and Mary Hunter Kennedy Daly's son Newell graduated in the same Charlotte Latin class last year. Mary Hunter wrote to say that her daughter graduated from UNC-Chapel Hill last spring. 1989 is centennial year in Waxhaw, NC and I am enjoying the year-long festivities and doing typical Waxhavian things + planning a Sept. wedding for daughter Susan.

Judy Greer Schulz wrote from Lynchburg to extend an invitation to visit her and Steve during next Reunion. Judy is finishing her term as Pres. of SBC Alumnae and says, "I can vouch for the finest, most concerned and supportive alumnae imaginable! See you all in '91!"

Thank you for your great response! There's lots of news, and interest in attending 25th Reunion—less than a year away—already appears high.

In NJ Dryden Childs Murck and Sandy finished renovating their 200-year-old farmhouse. Dryden works part-time at Laura Ashley and enjoys embroidery and community theatre. Their son graduated from h.s. this year; their daughter will finish at Interlochen Arts Academy June '89. Both are active in music and theatre. Laura Haskell Phinizy's daughter Laura graduated from Princeton in June. She received a teaching fellowship at a prep school in Athens, Greece. Daughters Louise and Marion are fine. Laura is still at the Red Cross and a jr. warden at church. In June '87 Betsy Benoit married George Hoover, a Denver architect and professor at the U. of CO. Retired after 9 years as an insurance agent, she has been taking psychology courses. She hopes to begin graduate studies in social work this fall. Her daughter Melinda (20) attends Duke. Betsy is also busy with volunteer work at church and at Safe House for Battered Women.

From Chevy Chase, MD Joe and Courtney Manard Kane spend weekends on the Eastern Shore. She is district sales mgr. for Digital Equipment Corp. Son Scott IV begins college this fall; and Christine will be a sophomore in h.s. Joe and Natalie Lemmon Parker have had an "empty nest" in Raleigh since their children have been away at school. Karen (21) is at Parsons School of Design in NYC. Josh (18) graduated from Episcopal H.S. in VA and is off to college. Natalie is finishing her Master's in counselor education. She is doing an internship and job-sharing as Coordinator of Career Services at the Women's Center. She and Joe will spend a week in Paris to take a break from "busyness". In New Bern, NC Jane Moore Stubbs has only one in the nest - John (7th grade). Jane (9th grade) and Tray (10th grade) are at Andover. Alice is a senior at Davidson. "Life is still wildly busy, though!"

Judy Howe Behn moved from Durham, NC to Carrboro, NC so son Mark (14) could take advantage of the Chapel Hill school system. Husband Bob still teaches at Duke in the Public Policy Dept. Judy does a lot of sewing/needlework and has endless driving duties for Mark. Owning a small business is an exciting venture for Sonja Howell Baum and Chris. Their Albuquerque, NM window covering retail store is doing well. She is an "expert" non-degreed decorator of windows and is writing her own textbook. Children Chris Jr. (16), Nina (14), and Johnny (11) create an exciting household. Sherry Bradford Christhill reports she ran into Mal Leslie Welch at UVA's 100th anniversary. Their children are freshmen there. Mibs Sebring Raney keeps busy in Charlottesville with her ElderOptions. She does a lot of public speaking to groups and presents seminars on planning retirement. Bev continues to build his pediatric hematology-oncology division at UVA. He is past president of the American Assoc. for Cancer Education. After her jr. year in France, Mibsy is a psychology major at Davidson. Son Bev is deciding on college for fall. Mibs often sees Pryor Hale, who is finishing her Ph.D. in Education at UVA. Elvira McMillan Tate wrote that daughter Elvira loves Charlottesville and UVA. Minnie graduates from Connecticut College in '90. Clark and Edward are at home in Atlanta for a few more years.

Helen Scribner Euston wrote "At long last, son Greg (at W&L) has discovered Rte. 60! It took until his jr. year!" Maybe he'll meet Mason Smith, Ware and Belle Williams Smith's daughter. She is a freshman at W&L this fall. Older daughter Elizabeth will spend her jr. year at Dartmouth. Belle is still driving her son's carpools—for another 10 years! Traylor Rucker looks forward to retiring from the Navy July 1, '89. Resetling in Charleston, SC, visiting old friends and traveling will keep her busy. Babette Fraser Warren, Houston, has been enjoying their country place and 1850's farmhouse in Washington County. Son Will (15) plays defense for Kinkaid School's varsity lacrosse team. Sally McCrady Hubbard still sings in The Houston Oratorio Society and loves work at Rice University, where she is asst. editor of Studies in English Literature 1500-1900.

The move to east Texas thrilled Ross and Mary K. Pederson Kyger. He has a busy cardiovascular surgery practice in Lufkin. Mary K. is involved with the construction of their new house. Caroline graduated in June from W&L. Chris is spending a semester in Spain and Ross IV is learning golf. Merrily Austin Teasley was divorced in Dec. '87. She continues as innkeeper (owner) of the Edgeworth Inn, a bed and breakfast inn in Monteagle, TN. It was featured in the July '89 issue of Country Inn magazine. She welcomes SBC visitors. Christie graduated with a BFA from The Rhode Island School of Design. Noell with a BFA from the San Francisco Art Institute, and Bettie will be a sophomore at Kenyon College. Merrily has also traveled to Southeast Asia. Just "Hi!" came from Alice Virginia Dodd in Louisville, KY and from Connie Triplette Barker, who has a happy and healthy 16-year-old daughter and 10-year-old son in Statesville, NC. Last summer's trip to Yugoslavia and Greece was a wonderful experience for Bob and Mona Thornhill Armistead and sons. Ashby completed sophomore year at Duke; Wade graduated from h.s.; Clay will be in the 5th grade. Mona is busy with community boards and vestry.

San Francisco is a great place to live, according to Genie Dickey Caldwell, who also loves her job with IBM. Husband Peter graduated from the California Culinary Academy in April. Fair McRae Gouldin will have a busy summer sailing and racing, since Fred is Commodore of their local yacht club in Ithaca, NY. Fair will see both Ann and Cary at Miss Porter's School in Farmington, CT. I had a nice phone conversation with Blair Both, who was ordained into the priesthood last Sept. - "an earthshaking experience." Her work as assistant rector at St. Michaels in Raleigh continues to be challenging and time-consuming. Jane Merkle Borden's sons are in college on opposite coasts - Mercer is a junior at Whittier in CA and Arroll will be starting at Drew U. in NJ. Pat Markle Dresden planned to go to Denver for Arroll's May graduation and then ski with Jane in Aspen. Jane is back on the SBC Alumnae Board and looks forward ward to renewed involvement.

Several SBC alumnae have visited Mel Freese Cota in Mexico City. Eileen Stroud Clark was there in August '88 with husband Martin. They have "adopted" Mel's son Beto, who is a junior at Georgetown. In February Beth Hunt Alcott visited with her 2 children (5 and 8). Mel also had a letter from Mimi Vogt Macht. Mel's other son is a sophomore at Oberlin, and daughter is a senior in Denver. Brooke Patterson Mahlstedt has reduced her activities to being a tennis bum and a part-time volunteer at her sons' schools. Douglas (17) is at St. James in Hagerstown, MD and Andrew (13) is a local 7th-grader. Husband Paul changed jobs in March and works for a company called Betac. Jamie Hamill Sommer has her oldest 2 at Dickinson College, Carlisle, PA. The family goes on hiking trips to remote areas of Canada.

The Hydes also will be visiting one college campus this fall. Our daughter Alix will join brother Mike, a junior, at Williams. Katie (15) just completed her 1st year in h.s. I had another good year teaching preschool. I wasn't sure I could survive 11 boys and 5 girls, but things really clicked. Steve and I plan to travel to Australia this summer. Hearing from you has been great! Seeing you at 25th Reunion in May '90 will be even greater! Until then - think young and 25!

The deadline for this newsletter is a month before Reunion and the magazine won't be published until after Reunion, so all information compiled for the Reunion questionnaires will be old news for those who attend. Hopefully we'll have a good turnout. I won't print the questionnaire relating to "something you did 20 years ago which you could not tell then but are willing to share now." That will be known only to those who attend Reunion and read the scrapbook!

It is hard to believe that 20 years have passed since May '69—we were getting ready for our final May Day, thinking of comps, graduation, and life beyond SBC campus. It's wonderful to remember and equally wonderful to see where we have gone. The questionnaires are fun to read; people have many interesting thoughts on how their SB days have affected their lives.

Frere Murchison Gornto has our 1st SBC daughter and did a great job helping Ginny Kay coordinate the Reunion Gift. She continues as asst. county mgr. in Wilmington, NC. Elizabeth Wyatt works in pharmaceutical products/technology acquisition; her interests include race walking, theater, and restoring houses with her husband. On the West Coast Lynn Oakes Miller spends her time volunteering, working as a professional fund-raiser, and a part-time interior decorator. She plays paddle tennis, and is learning golf. Ruthie Hoppes is married to Ziss Frangopoulos, a banker in NYC. Her interests include architecture and historic preservation. She has renovated 3 homes in 5 years. She works on several benefit committees and NYC charities and has worked with soup kitchens and the homeless. Claudette Harloe Dalton returned to Charlottesville from Charlotte recently. She has traveled to Africa twice in the last year. She serves on the UVA Medical School Board and has taken up graphic art again. Gordon, 13, sounds like a typical teenager—wouldn't let Claudette enclose a picture of him. J.P. Powell, Washington, DC, reports that she is directing a conference on nuclear issues and their psychological consequences; it will include Soviet participation. She enjoys: reading everything she can, theater, and music. She does hands-on volunteer work at a local hospital and says she was surprised to find it very meaningful.

Jan Huguenin Assmus, in Hanover, NH, stays busy with volunteer work in the schools and church. She has been studying German and the family traveled to Germany and Austria last summer. She enjoys cross-country skiing, piano, tennis and reading. Martha Brewer continues her OB-Gyn practice in New Orleans, which obviously takes lots of time. She works to raise $ for AIDS care there, and is interested in health insurance/health policy issues. Atlee Walker sent her questionnaire from England, but promised to return in time for Reunion. She is getting a Masters in linguistics at Gallaudet and has been doing a comparison of British and American sign language. Betsy Blackwell Laundon, in Roswell, GA, has recently opened a yarn shop. She and Walt have 2 teenaged daughters. Another busy classmate is Nancy Trotter Kendall in Arlington, VT. She enjoys all sports, especially tennis, golf, paddle tennis, and both alpine and cross-country skiing, racing. Nancy is involved in numerous volunteer organizations and teaches weekly aerobics classes. She and husband Don enjoy traveling to CO, FL, SC, and CA.

Nancy Crawford Bent edits her church newsletter and works with their service league. She gives school tours and serves as 3rd grade parents rep. Free time is spent with cross-country skiing, hiking, reading, and movies. Mary Follows Pepin helps her husband run his business. She still sings frequently, and enjoys sewing/quilting. They traveled to Switzerland and Germany in '87. Lynn Pearson Russell is in Chevy Chase, MD with pediatrician husband Bill and 2 children. She works as an art historian and spends time cooking, antiquing, reading, and doing volunteer work at her children's school and with the Jr. League. Charlotte Moser wrote from a new home in Belmont, CA, after losing her questionnaire in the move. She graduated from the U. of TX and became an art critic, then a professor of art history and a published author (Her book: Clyde Connell: The Art and Life of a Louisiana Woman). She and husband Bob Benson, a biotech patent attorney, are parents to 2 Korean-born children.

Kathy Blythe Southerland lives in Charlotte, NC with husband Bill and 2 teenagers. She has several civic commitments including YMCA camp board, Chamber of Commerce Education Council and the Council for Children. She does tennis and exercise class "just for her." Anne Richards Camden may have our 2nd SBC daughter. Tracy has been accepted, but at the deadline, it was unknown whether she would be going. Anne enjoys singing in her church choir, needlework/sewing and reading. Peggy Davis Molander has moved 10 times in 20 years. Hopefully she is settled now, and planting a vineyard in Baltimore Co., MD. She and Erik are busy with a 5-year-old daughter and 18-month-old son.

Barbara Hastings Carne is a CPA after receiving her accounting degree from Georgetown U. in '84. She was recently elected director of communications for the No. Va. chapter of the National Association of Accountants. Mary Chesnutt Hunt is working on her MBA. She is employed at Yale as a MIS application specialist. Her interests: running, swimming, and working with the Guilford (CT) Scholarship Association.

Sue Roessel Gibson is a 2nd grade teacher in Ambler, PA. Teaching and being the mother of 2 preschoolers keep her busy. Sue and husband Gene, an engineer with Philadelphia Electric Co., enjoy boating, camping, and doing fun activities with their children. From across the Atlantic, in Reading, England, came a wonderful report from Katherine Kibbee Paterson. Husband Graham is the training mgr. for Digital Equipment. Kathy was promoted to Economics, Management and Business Librarian at U. of Reading (England). She enjoys making patchwork quilts (enclosed picture of a beautiful one), English and French canal cruising, films and ballets, and keeps trying to speak French. She came to USA 9/88, visited family and SBC-ers in NY, IL, AZ and GA. Daughter Katherine is 5 1/2, son Christopher born 5/26/88. Kay Hutton married Richard Barry 1/1/88, thereby adding a 20-yr.-old daughter (named Kay!) a junior at Brigham Young U. In '88 Kay was #1 salesperson in Coldwell Banker's Commercial Real Estate Office, Nashville, "beating out 19 aggressive young men." She and Richard enjoy sailing with her 2 boys. Mary Mahan Marco commented that she was doing what she expected 20 years later, but she certainly didn't realize it would leave her without a free moment. She is raising 3 active boys and is an assistant mathematics professor at Bucks County Community College. Her family enjoys tennis, swimming and skiing. Summer vacations have included Paris, Newport, RI, and Cape Cod.

Keithley Rose Miller enclosed a wonderful article from House Beautiful in which she was featured in her interior design business, on a shopping spree through a famous flea market. She also enclosed some 1969 vintage photographs, but you had to come to Reunion to see them. After living in London and Hong Kong, Keithley and husband Dwight have settled in St. Louis. She is an avid bridge player, has accumulated about 20 master points-did she get her start in one of the SBC smokers? The family enjoys tennis, skiing, and travel. Ridgely Fuller enclosed a photo of her with her horses, and it could have been '69 again. She keeps busy with her family-husband Bradley Gougin, a professor at BU and 2 little boys; horses, political work (but not enough!) and working part-time in a mental health center. Sherry Irving Titus lives in Richmond, VA with husband Kent, a physician and 2 daughters. She enjoys horses, gardening, antiques, and art. Ann Tremain Lee and Saint remain in Newport News, VA. Their 3 girls are growing up rapidly. Ann is involved with a group which brings live theater to school children in the area. She also is busy in their church and in the girls' schools. Ann plays tennis, reads, and enjoys walking. Esther Michel Lyons sent a wonderful Halloween birthday picture from her daughter's party-it somehow was reminiscent of "The Wizard of Oz." (We were just slightly ahead of "The Wiz"!) Esther retired from public accounting and enjoys volunteering at daughter Michele's school.

Liz Medaglia, an attorney, lives in Arlington, VA. She still loves horses, but doesn't get to spend much time with them. Her business has required much travel recently, including 2 trips to England and living in NYC for 3 weeks during the last 6 months. They vacationed in Italy last fall and intend to get their home decorated in '89.

Marcy Bernbaum moved to Kenya this summer to join her husband at the Agency for International Development. Luckily she didn't have to go until after Reunion. When in the states they live in Washington, but being with the foreign service, Marcy has been assigned to Panama, Nicaragua, and Honduras. She enjoys swimming, biking, photography and reading. Ginny Stanford Perdue enclosed pictures of her 3 children. She spends a lot of time working at their school and at church. She enjoys cooking and needlework and the family takes annual trips to Sullivan's Island, SC. A photograph of a family of pirates was enclosed with Barb Duffield Erskine's questionnaire. She is busy being mom and stepmom, doing community and environmental volunteer work, traveling with David through his job with Scott Paper Co., and adding on to their 1800 house.

Nancy gave me a letter which Sue

Scanlon had written explaining why she and Jared would have to miss Reunion. Only Sue can write such a beautiful story about her house burning down and the trials and tribulations of rebuilding. They hope to move back in the weekend of Reunion. Our thoughts and prayers will be with them. On to the Atlanta crowd:

Carolyn Mapp Rogers is very busy with her 3 boys and their many activities. She does volunteer work in the drug prevention and education area. Haden Ridley Winborne lists her occupation as home defender and volunteer. She loves sewing of any kind, and working with fabrics/color. Her twins are almost teenagers so she'll have double the fun. Missy Huggins Summer has a marvelous catering business; we always enjoy sharing the leftovers from parties. Her newest thing to try is a position as a travel escort. She is also driving around town in the fanciest yellow sports car as a promotion for a friend in Palm Beach. When not in the kitchen, Missy can be found on the tennis court. Nancy Wendling Peacock, in her spare time when she's not busy being president of something, is writing music, so keep your ears tuned to the top 40—she's definitely going to have a hit. She has been traveling to and from Nashville, working on her music. She begins her year as president of the Members Guild of the High Museum in June.

Carol Moseley Tash rejoined Wachovia Bank & Trust as a peak-time teller. She volunteers at her children's school, was PTA president in '88. Ginny (10) is in 4th grade, Andrew (8) in 2nd grade. Husband Gary specializes in Domestic and Family Law, practices and teaches law courses at Wake Forest Law School. Stephanie Beaudouin Piper is Features Editor of The Knoxville Journal. Oldest son Nicholas (21) is a senior at U. of TN, majoring in drama. Ben (19) is sophomore at Tulane, French major, Jr. Yr. Abroad candidate. Stephen (15) is Webb School sophomore. Phyllis Girard teaches gifted students, had had opportunity to write curriculum. She co-authored a book on curriculum units developed by Bucks Co. Gifted Program. She also had a book published on drama in the gifted class. This summer, on an Independent Study Grant, she studied the Victorian garden in the context of the humanities. Darlene Pierre, teacher/Head of the Maret Middle School, MD has finished her Masters, M.Ed. in foreign language education, but still prefers to teach math. She'll probably go back to directing plays, since course work is over. She's looking for a K-8 school to run—any offers? Penny Proctor Beebe has worked many years as a psychotherapist in community mental health settings. In WI 11 years, she moved to Amherst, MA where husband is in grad school. Has girl (10) and boy (6) and enjoyed surprise visit from Betsy West Driggs last winter. Cathy Hall Stopher just chaired the Collegiate School's "Collecting Antiques" show and sale (Richmond). Daughter Marshall is in 6th grade and Charles is in 4th. Mary Bell Coffey Shelby's husband is the editor of the Los Angeles Times. Blair Josephs Rohrer visited Germany and Austria summer '88 with Anna Blair (9) and Ivon (10). She volunteers (church, civic), plays on tennis teams and enjoys hiking, sledding at mountain home. Gene Anderson was elected assistant vice-president and planning officer at Barnett Bank (Naples, FL).

As for me—I'm getting my braces off just in time for Reunion! Who would ever have thought of an adult with braces back in '69! I have spent this year as a 4th grade assistant teacher in Ginny's school. Next year I will be an assistant in the computer/study lab. I chaired a leadership development course for the Jr. League this year and served as one of the treasurers for the Festival of Trees. Next year I will be treasurer of 2 projects and stewardship chairman at church, so I need to concentrate on keeping the books straight. Congratulations to whoever is elected class secretary at Reunion. It's great fun keeping up with this wonderful class. Hopefully lots of us will be together in May—and we'll talk about those of you who aren't there!

Gypsie Bear Van Antwerp is a teacher's assistant in a school for learning disabled children. Cindy Bekins Anderson expects her 1st baby April 20. She wrapped up her real estate work for the balance of the summer. Susan Bundy and Pam Milne '79 co-chaired the Pavilion Ball for the Charlottesville Albemarle unit of the American Cancer Society. Susan works at ManPower Temporary Service as Assistant Manager and Office Automation Specialist training IBM customers on office products. She is also on the Board of Directors for the VA Association for Home Care. Mary Buxton took trips to Ireland and Alaska in '88. Peggy Cheesewright Garner is part-time coordinator and teacher for the "Supersitter Class" at a local hospital, teaching 11- to 18-year-olds to be effective babysitters. She is president of the Seattle Alumnae Club, on the nominating committee of Seattle's Jr. League and on the board of a guild which raises money for the Fred Hutchinson Cancer Research Center. Anita Clarendon Ledsinger says her life is settling down now that the 2-year renovation of their house is done. She keeps busy planning and planting gardens and caring for her 2 little girls. Deirdre Conley was promoted to District Manager of the Hotel-Restaurant Division of Quality Beverage (a wine wholesaler) in June '88. She is the first woman mgr. in the 52-year history of the company. She learned to sail this summer—it's her new addiction. She plans a trip to Bimini for Easter. Susan Craig Smith moved her freelance graphic design business to an office outside her home last fall and is trying to make it part-time.

Diane Dale Reiling works for Federal Express after 11 years with Flying Tigers. Federal Express bought her company and she was able to transfer her seniority when she went to work for them. She has a job, doesn't know WHAT job! She and husband just finished adding a 2nd story to their house. Mary Danford is still a lawyer with the City Attorney's Office in Portland, OR Susan Dern Plank remains in Japan, helping teach English at a Japanese jr. h.s. She accompanied husband David to Singapore, Kuala Lumpur, Penang in Malaysia, Beijing, Shanghai, and Hong Kong. She had dinner with Chris Mendel Prewitt who was in Japan from the Philippines.

Christine Eng Leventhal, Peter and kids vacationed in the Dominican Republic and Jamaica last winter, loved it. Pete's health food stores flourish, especially with organic produce due to the Alar scare. Christine is busy editing, mothering, dancing, teaching aerobics and body sculpture.

Ann Evans finished her residency and went into private practice on July 1, '88 and is also Medical Director for the Emergency Medical Service of Yadkin County, NC. She bought a 3-bedroom house on "almost an acre" patch of woods and then married Larry Klett Sept. 9. She says she can be as schizophrenic as she likes—Dr. Evans and Mrs. Klett—neither is ever lonely! Valerie Fannon Phillips works for Hershey Foods as a sales and marketing mgr. for Pastamania, a gourmet line of dry pasta acquired by Hershey. Lynn Fisher Cortwright is a stockbroker in NYC with Drexel Burnham Lambert; her business has grown to include several names we'd recognize as well as a few New York Stock Exchange-listed companies. She and friend Chris Andersen have expanded their interest in horses to include a 210-acre Arabian breeding and training farm in NW NJ. They've been quite successful in the show ring. Lisa Fowler Winslow works part-time as a law librarian, doing volunteer work which includes Jr. League. Bill has his own law practice in Los Angeles. Lisa, Bill and children vacationed in HI during summer of '88 and had a wonderful time being on the beach by 6:00 AM every day!

Robin Harmon O'Neil does lots of volunteer work promoting the arts and soliciting corporate support in Columbia, SC. She continues interior design work and is recovering from broken collar bone received in a fall from a horse. Chris Hegarty Savage is job sharing as a Medical Technologist 3 days a week. Chris and husband Pat look forward to a week in CO in June—they've never been out west. After attending SBC for 2 years, Sara Hicks transferred to the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, majoring in Musical Theatre. She moved to Los Angeles to do commercials and theatre for 14 years and THEN decided to change careers in '81. She earned her M.A. in Marriage and Family Counseling. She has worked with sexually abused children, mentally retarded adults and chronically mentally ill young adults. She moved back to KY in August '88 and feels she's starting a new life. Wendy Hoilman Mitchell works at the VA Department of Agriculture on problems with the Gypsy Moth in the Richmond area. Husband Joe has nearly completed his book, The Reptiles and Amphibians of Virginia. Peggy Holloway Fitch continues dermatology practice in Aiken, SC. She was named 1988 Physician of the Year in Aiken County. Pamela Ivens Renner says to all her classmates who were relieved that she missed Reunion and couldn't complain about the noise in the dorms that She Shall Return! She had surgery so hasn't been on any horses lately. She's back at work as Membership Coordinator for Bryn Mawr Presbyterian Church. Michael still pursues a Corporate Real Estate Law Practice. They go to the Salzburg Festival in June/July to sing with the Bryn Mawr choir. Ironically they will be in Prague, Czechoslovakia on July 4.

Susan Kirby Peacock, husband David and Daniel were waiting impatiently for the May arrival of a daughter. Susan's focus is turning from pharmacy to painting. She is represented by galleries in Atlanta and NYC this year. Jane Knutson James and family plan a camping trip among the Redwoods in North CA in August. She is directing her church's Vacation Bible School for the 3rd year and giving some lectures at her women's Bible study. Jane Lucas married Carmen Garufo in Oct. '87. Her interior design firm has boomed. Carmen is an architect so they support each other's work but can never quite get away from business discussions. Ann Major Gibb and Ernie went to Disney World in Oct. '88 for Ernie's medical meeting. They saw Anne Billings McDougall and her family, who live in Orlando. Ann has gone back to school to study computer science. She's on the vestry of their church and involved in volunteer work at the children's schools. Rachel Mays Fitzgerald stays very busy at home. They built a new house and she is learning some of the bookkeeping for the family lumber business. Jane McCutchen McFadden and husband Barclay built a house in the country, moved at Thanksgiving. They enjoy the pond which her hockey enthusiasts adore. Dede McIntyre is a residential decorator living on Russian Hill in San Francisco. She remarried last Sept.-Wesley Dobbs from Atlanta. Dede writes that Palmer Lane Dorn, Langhorne King Murray, and Dabney Dalton Jacob trekked all the way to the West Coast for her wedding! Anita McVey O'Connor works as an office manager for a software developer. Husband John has a remodeling company.

Lois Means married A.H. Duchene, Jr. in Dec. '88. Lois is studying accounting. Husband Al works for the Boy Scouts and is pursuing an engineering degree. Jan Merritt had a daughter in Oct. '88 and is remodeling her house again. She enjoys teaching riding on an Arabian farm. Husband David begins work as a family therapist at summer's end and continues to play music professionally. Sara Meyerdericks Ross is assistant vice-president of communications at the National Association of Manufacturers and has been elected to the YWCA Academy of Women Achievers. She says her big news is her Feb. 25 wedding to Thomas W. Hillgrove of NH. The Blizzard of '89 hit that Friday and they had no priest, no electricity at the country club till Saturday morning, no food for the afterparty till two hours prior—the restaurant closed down. She and Thomas still managed to tie the knot and then went skiing in Utah. Now they are trying to decide where to settle, Washington, DC or NH. Angela Miller is developing a 200-room seven-story Comfort Inn hotel at the Miami International Airport and running their Comfort Inn at the Fort Lauderdale International Airport. Linda Moscato Buell and husband Ardin went on a scuba diving trip to Saba in April. They have been on 20 dive trips, including the Great Barrier Reef in Australia to celebrate her MBA from the U. of Chicago. Next year—the Galapagos Islands! She continues as an attorney at Commonwealth Edison Company. Andrea Niles Jones and Bill moved into a new house in Dec. She is active in the Hall County Medical Auxiliary as chairman of the legislative committee and spends most free time working on community projects.

Laurie Norris just bought a new house. This year marks her 10th year at the Albany Medical Center in academic planning. Judy O'Keefe Vindici is working part-time doing free-lance marketing and going to school in psychology. Betsy Oakley Smith is raising 3 sons and doing volunteer work with the Jr. League. Jane Olmstead Murphy and family have been living in Dallas for 2 years. She plays a lot of tennis and looks forward to visiting relatives back east this summer in CT and ME. Stephanie Paparozzi Williams, who lists her occupation as "domestic goddess," says she and her horse have found their "niche": Hunting. He gets to gallop and all she has to do is hold on! Betsy Perry had a baby girl, Ellen Perry Sweet (aka Nellie) in June '88. She works 2 days a week as editor of nautical books at Putnam Publishers in NYC and even finds time for some sailing with husband Neale and children. Jean Platt Spencer, husband David, Jessica and Katie spend occasional guilt getaways at their house in the Poconos. She and David spent a week skiing in Park City, UT in Jan. '89 and Jean accompanied her mother on a trip to Petaluma, CA. She gives group and private golf lessons 9 months a year, works in her brother's restaurant during the winter and does the books for David's business in her spare time. Kathy Pretzfelder Steele and family moved into a new house in Sept. '88. Her job as assistant vice-president of planning for an insurance company keeps her busy. Carol Anne Provence Gallivan still works with her business "Pineapple Galleries," which sells antiques, gifts and jewelry. She and Mills went to MT this summer and want to return to Mexico to scuba dive.

Nancy Richards Akers had her 3rd baby in August. Her 6th book, The Lilac Garland, will be released by Warner Books at the end of '89. She says that if any of us have read any of her books she'd love to know what we think! Robin Roden, with a dermatology practice in South FL, enjoys life on Key Biscayne. Husband George completed a Cornea Fellowship at Bascom Palmer Eye Institute in Miami and is the staff ophthalmologist at the Cleveland Clinic in South FL. Jeanne Schaefer Bingham gives her time to her garden, a Friends of the Library organization and a local chapter of the National Head Injury Foundation. Mary Beverly Taylor Hague was promoted to full professor, won "Outstanding Teacher of the Year" in her department, and won a state honor award given by the South Carolina Chapter of the American Society of Landscape Architects. She also received the Outstanding Undergraduate Educator Award from the American Society of Horticultural Sciences. She says there seems to be something magic about a decade of teaching combined with a liberal arts education! Margaret Sefeldt Wilson and husband Jim, children and animals moved to a new home in Darnestown, MD. She's busy breeding, training, and showing Labrador Retrievers, painting and carving waterfowl. Carol Stewart Harper and husband Doug celebrated the 15th wedding anniversary by visiting the Virgin Islands. She continues her marketing research, consulting on a part-time basis. Pat Wood Wingfield, Norfolk, enjoys life at home with family. She's recently started doing some systems programming consulting work at home for her old company in Richmond. Ginger Woodward Gast gave birth to a daughter, Annelise, on Jan. 29. Ginger got her Masters in Reading in May '88 and has a tutoring business.

Georgia Tucker Tuttle just celebrated her 20th Bronxville, NY h.s. reunion and was named chairman of the 25th in '94. She has sung with the Song Pipers 3 years, serves as Jr. League transfer chairman and teaches Sunday School. Daughter Laura is 3rd grader, Emily (4 1/2) is in nursery school. Appointed in Dec. '88 as Richmond's mental health department's "cross-cultural consultant," Dr. Roberta Culbertson lets foreign-born individuals in Richmond know about mental health services and sees that services are accessible. Part of her job is to locate the networks of Southeast Asian and Hispanic immigrants settled in the area.

I continue at UPS in the Loss Prevention Department and am working toward promotion to management at UPS. I'm singing in church, writing music and taking graduate courses at Seattle Pacific University. It was great to hear from each one of you. Thanks for letting me be your secretary. I look forward to updates next year!

She went scuba diving in Australia last fall, raises Jack Russells and is a volunteer EMT for a fire company. Beth Wade is in D.C. working at IBM as a systems engineer. She skis in the winter, runs a beach house in the summer, as well as catering for a hobby. "After 8 years of blissful togetherness", Tricia Waters and John Neer were to marry Oct. 7. Tricia changed jobs: she is working in the Exhibitions Dept. at the National Gallery of Art. She also has a new position as editor of SBC's Friends of Art newsletter and is on the board. Christine Weerasingha Hand and family have moved to Australia. Sebastian (5) and Rachel (3) "love the 'Aussie' climate;" Christine finds it a little too warm. Life is slightly quiet after London, but they enjoy the fresh air.

Libby White Drbal and Doug are in NJ near the shore. They both work for Merck & Co. in the Animal Health Division as product mgrs. Libby traveled to Australia to introduce a new horse product. She also had an SBC mini-reunion last Nov. Judith Widener Baker and Rob are at their NJ farm, breeding and training horses. She works in film and T.V. in NYC and was preparing an art exhibition for summer. Samantha is 4. Judith was commissioned for a painting in Ireland and went to Jamaica for a vacation. Carolyn Williams Seeling took a 2-year maternity leave, but is back at Int'l Business Communications, working in marketing. She, Justin (3) and Stephen are very happy in a new house by a lake in Columbia, SC. Patti Wornom Henry and family are stationed in Panama. They are "adjusting to living in a foreign country with a touchy political situation." The kids love the summer weather 365 days a year. They look forward to traveling and to the birth of their 3rd child, due Oct. 7.

Vivian Yamaguchi Cohn Stuart had Clifford Scott on 3/20/89; he joins Clayton (2). She still practices law full-time, but found time for a mini-reunion with Libby White Drbal, Maggie Shriver, Keedie Grones '76, and Addy Eshbach '78. "Things are much the same" with Ann Crossingham Cannon. Ann (9) and Will (6) love school. Ellen Wahl Skibiak and Ed, "very happily married," approach their 2nd anniversary. They plan to build a house, have been skiing in VT and spent 8 days on Kauai. I, Sally Bonham Mohle, am working in the office of Auxiliary Enterprises at George Mason U. My boss is David Swanson, husband of Martha Madden Swanson '66. This year Pete and I took the Myers Briggs test and found out some interesting things about ourselves! Thanks for writing, everybody; keep up the good work!

Many thanks for all the cards and letters. Everyone has had an eventful year - lots of weddings, lots of new houses, babies, etc! Here's the latest

Chris Corcoran married John Trauth 2/18 in Washington, DC. Many SBC'ers were there, including Heather Beck, Molly Hanley, Katie Hearn, Sue Hiller, Kim Knox. Chris works for CNA Insurance as an underwriter, John is from DC. Kim Knox, in Philadelphia, finishes up her 1st year of grad school at the Univ. of the Arts; she'll receive the M.F.A. in Book Arts and Printmaking. Katie Hearn, in Baltimore, works for T. Rowe Price and plays basketball, lacrosse, and softball in free time. Catty Hubbard and Patti Dolan visited the Bahamas earlier this year. Catty works at the Admissions Office of Norfolk Academy, Norfolk, VA and is the AAR Chairman for the Tidewater Alumnae Club. She's been traveling quite a bit, and hopes to do more in the future. Patti, NYC, still works for the Bank of New York. She looks forward to 5th Reunion. (Gulp.) Kelley Manderson left NYC for Nashville. She married C.T. Fitzpatrick III 3/4. C.T. is finishing his graduate degree at the Owen School, Vanderbilt.

Lots of SBC'ers attended Susan Scagel Young's wedding 11/88 in Boston... among them Martha Boxley Creasy and Grimes, who are still in Richmond where Grimes enters his 3rd year of law school this fall. Martha sees Susan Lazarus Bailey, also in Richmond with husband Jim, who is finishing his residency at MCV. Susan works as Assistant Buyer of Better Active Sportswear at Thalheimers. Laura Morrisette Dzwonkowski and Joey, Mobile, are now the parents of 2 - Lee is 2, and Taylor Morrisette was born 2/6. Betty Saylor is still a paralegal at Spriggs and Hollingsworth and reports that Lesley Allen Ball moved from Chapel Hill to Raleigh.

Debbie Fischer, busy finishing up her Master's degree from Johns Hopkins, still teaches Chemistry at Garrison Forest. She works with the Jr. League on a teen pregnancy project, and has been elected to serve on the local board of the League of Women Voters. Whitney Machnik, Essex, CT, manages the Griswold Inn. She runs into lots of SBC'ers there! She bicycles, has just signed up for her 2nd 100-mile tour. Her goal is to stay under 8 1/2 hours. Heidi Belofsky Turk and Gregg married 11/12/88 and live in Warrenton. Heidi is vice president of Capitol Properties, Inc., a McLean real estate development company. In addition to work and a new house, she still breeds race horses. Also in the area, Deanne Blanton and husband John Henning live in Manassas; Deanne works as an Archivist Trainee at the National Archives and, from time to time, at the Decatur House downtown. She sees Caroline Clayton, Rebecca Young, and Melissa Carrington Laurie '86 often. Leanne Weber, also in DC, works as a sales representative for commercial furniture, fabric, and wall covering. In spare time she works with the Jr. League and volunteers at a homeless shelter in Alexandria, as well as being involved with the Potomac Chapter of the Institute of Business Designers.

Cathleen Brooke Dunkle and Kurt are in Jacksonville. She is editor and corporate writer in the public relations department at Independent Life. She saw Jeannie Guthans Wilkins and Richard on New Year's. Jeannie works at AmSouth Bank as Branch Assistant in Mobile; Richard works for Federal Judge Brevard Hand. Ruthann Holland, Charlotte, received her MBA in Accounting and Finance from Mercer U. and works as an accountant for Hendrick Management Corporation.

Lisa Fondeur married Jim Flaherty 11/88; they live in Montclair, NJ. Lisa works for Fondeur-Bridges Properties; Jim is a Chemical Engineer for the Energy Companies. She's busy with Jr. League, and with the house they recently purchased. Best news of all: they expect a baby in Sept.!

She and Wendy paid a visit to SBC and says things have really changed! Mary-Nelms Rosa, Montgomery, is working toward her MBA in Human Resource Management at Auburn, and works part-time with Tiller/Butner/Rosa Architects. Romi Williams, Atlanta, still works for John Portman. She was in Yugoslavia last fall, and keeps in touch with Mitzi Morgan and Sherry Booth. Lauren Swaylick is a Program Manager for Allied-Signal in NJ. She is working on her MBA, and spends spare time playing racketball, riding, or doing aerobics. Jennifer Campbell is in Irvine, CA, still working for Gucci Timepieces/The Severin Group. She is engaged to Vincent Koehl, who is working on a Master's in International Hotelierie at the Cornell Graduate School in Paris. They will marry on New Year's Eve '90 and live in Paris.

Sylvie Gueyne, in Paris, works for OGI, a software company, as a translator. She plans to start her own business as a free-lance translator, and thinks of returning to the USA next summer with her boyfriend. Ruth Sill works at the Graduate Theological Union Library in Berkeley. She will leave the area this fall to spend a year at the University of Durham in England, and will finish her Masters in Theology and Literature. Cathrien de Liagre Bohl graduated from the Agricultural University of Wageningen in Sept. '88. She works for a Dutch company that produces teas, coffees, and tobacco and will attend Connie Van den Berg's August wedding. Connie lives in the Netherlands, works in advertising and tutors French. Last year she received her Masters in French from Middlebury in Paris. After leaving SBC, Angelique Akin spent junior year in Europe, then graduated from the University of CA. She works in San Francisco. Maha H. Kanoo vacationed in DC and L.A. She lives in Bahrain, hoped to start a new job 5/89. Suzanne Weaver married Jeffrey Paul Zimmer 5/6/89. Heather Homonnay Finly and George moved into a new home; Heather will teach nursery school as of 9/89. Disa Johnson, Ipswich, MA, now manages a small chain of baby stores and still rides competitively.

I have been busy this past year, as I made a big move from DC to NH last summer. I work for Boston U. Corporate Education Center, as a Program Coordinator/Marketing Assistant. It's a super job, and this is a great area...but a big difference from DC! I can't believe it's less than a year to 5th Reunion, it doesn't seem possible that that much time has gone by. I look forward to seeing you all, and thanks for the great letters!

The Tax Reform Act of 1986 introduced legislation that affects nearly every American taxpayer — especially those who itemize. Then came the Revenue Act of 1987 and the Technical and Miscellaneous Revenue Act of 1988 (TAMRA).

At the best of times, the tax laws are confusing. This year, you'll be relying on your tax advisors more than ever to claim every legitimate deduction available to you. We'd like to help you speak knowledgeably with your advisors. So we're offering a free booklet, "Simple Ways to Reduce Income Taxes."

This informative, yet easy-to-read publication will explain the changes that affect most itemizing taxpayers, and suggest methods to reduce your level of taxation this year and in years to come.

Dr. Hallam Hurt: Distinguished Alumna

The Distinguished Alumna Award, established in the fall of 1987, honors alumnae who have brought distinction to themselves and to Sweet Briar College through outstanding accomplishments in a volunteer or professional capacity. Recipients are selected by a committee consisting of alumnae, faculty and the president of the College. The first three awards were presented in 1988. Sweet Briar's fourth alumna to be recognized for signal achievement, Hallam Hurt '67, was honored at Opening Convocation on September 7, 1989.

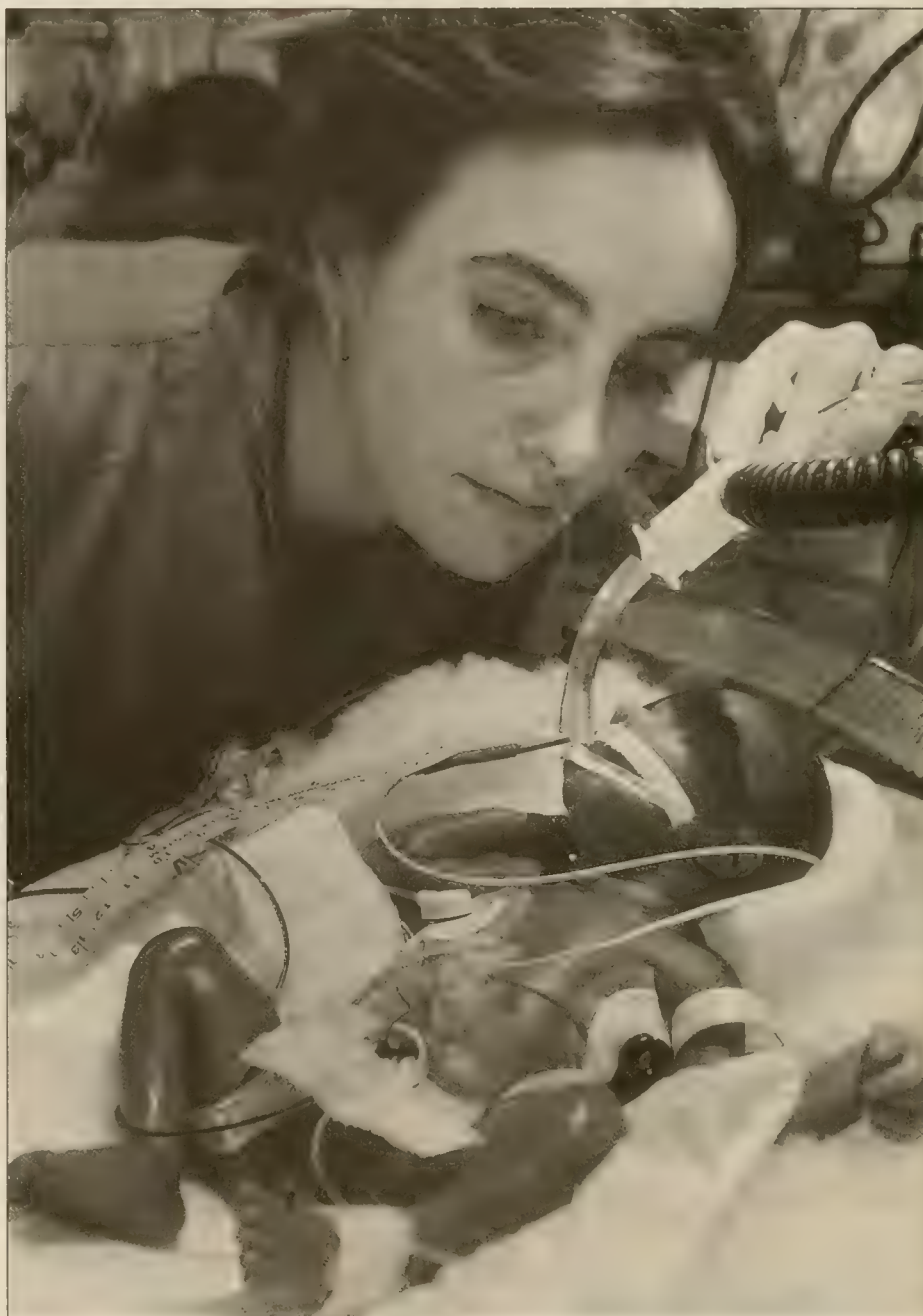

Award-winners are introduced by a faculty member from the department in which they majored. With pleasure we share Kenneth Grimm's introductory remarks and Hallam's response—and, echoing newscaster Paul Harvey, a bit of "the rest of the story."

□ Kenneth D. Grimm, Professor of Government:

At a dinner party one evening, a snobbish Bostonian walked up to the great American artist James A. MacNeill Whistler. "And where were you born, Mr. Whistler?" she asked. "Lowell, Massachussetts," replied the painter. "Whatever possessed you to be born in a place like that?" exclaimed the lady. "The explanation is quite simple," said Whistler. "I wished to be near my mother."

Despite this particularly profound bit of neonatology, it is for his art rather than his science that Whistler is remembered.

The Sweet Briar alumna we honor this year with the Distinguished Alumna Award may well be remembered for her art... I don't know about that. What I am sure of is that she will long be remembered for her contributions as a practicing and teaching pediatrician. One of America's leading neonatologists, Dr. Hallam Hurt received her AB degree from Sweet Briar in 1967, demonstrating a keen mind and good judgment by majoring in government. Following graduation she was obviously prepared to do anything... so she went to medical school, receiving her MD from the University of Virginia School of Medicine in 1971. After her internship and residency at the UVA Medical Center, she was made Assistant

Hallam Hurt checks one of her patients at Albert Einstein Medical Center, Philadelphia

Professor of Pediatrics there and also served as Associate Director of the Newborn Intensive Care Unit and Director of the Neonatology Follow-Up Clinic.

Dr. Hurt left Virginia in 1981 to become Chairman of the Division of Neonatology at the Albert Einstein Medical Center in Philadelphia. She also is Associate Professor of Pediatrics and Assistant Professor of Obstetrics and Gynecology at Philadelphia's Temple University School of Medicine.

From the beginning of her career to the present, Dr. Hurt has concentrated her considerable energy and her great talents on the medical problems of the yet-unborn and the newly-born. Her research and writing on perinatal and neonatal topics is extensive and impressive. She has received excellence-in-teaching awards from UVA and the Albert Einstein Medical Center. The author of numerous scientific papers, she has presented her work before national and international audiences.

In recent years Dr. Hurt's research has focused on the effects of a mother's drug abuse on her child. Her ongoing work includes research projects on "In-Utero Cocaine Exposure: Long Term Effects on Infants" and "Maternal Cocaine Use: Effect of Lifestyle on the Infant." Recent presentations have dealt with "The Effects of Cocaine Abuse on Pregnancy and the Developing Fetus"; "Cocaine and Pregnancy: The Role of Prenatal Diagnosis in Clinical Practice"; and "Medical Controversies in Evaluation and Management of Infants of Cocaine Abusers." Dr. Hurt is the principal investigator in a grant funded by the Albert Einstein Society to study the children of cocaine-abusing mothers.

Certainly no one can question the enormous importance and urgency of Dr. Hurt's work. We value it, and her, most highly.

Many Sweet Briar alumnae are deserving of the Distinguished Alumna Award, but, I am sure you will agree, none more than Dr. Hallam Hurt.

□ Hallam Hurt:

Less than three months ago I was in my kitchen early one weekend morning, going through the previous day's mail. My eyes fell on a Sweet Briar envelope, which I opened, certain that once again I was being invited to join the Hitching Post, the Golden Stairs or the Boxwood Circle. Instead the letter seemed more personal. I read it. In fact, I read it several times, then laid it aside in wonderment. It required a confirming call to the Alumnae Office to convince me that I indeed had been selected to receive the Distinguished Alumna Award for 1989. So, here I am—honored, filled with fond memories—and still surprised.

Since leaving Sweet Briar—the all-nighters, the weekends away, the cramming for exams, the beautiful changing of the seasons, the talking into the night about the eternal verities, both literary and personal—life for me has been very interesting. First, the trepidations of medical school, then the hustle bustle of a pediatric residency, then the choice of the specialty of neonatology—a unique world of blinking lights and sounding alarms, a world of tiny babies on breathing machines, with a myriad of wires and tubes attached to their fragile bodies.

I am often asked why I chose neonatology. My answer now is seasoned by years of experience. I believe it is the innocence of the baby that attracts me to this specialty. An innocent baby, through no will of his own, has been born either sick or well, fortunate or unfortunate. Caring for a sick baby allows you to make a difference not only in the baby's life, but in the hopes and dreams of the baby's family as well. It is truly a challenge—often bringing with it great joy, but sometimes bringing great agony. For example, you may find in one incubator a 1 1/2 pound preemie born to a drug-abusing mother who had no prenatal care. A baby whose lungs are so immature they cannot support life, whose intravenous fluids are a mere teaspoon an hour, whose very existence depends on a blend of technology, experience and intuition. A baby for whom there is no room for error. When such a baby does well, you are elated. But elation is muted by the realization that the baby may be discharged to a home of poverty, drug abuse and sexually-transmitted diseases. In the next incubator may be a full-term baby girl whose mother, having a long history of infertility, made every prenatal visit. At the last moment of the delivery the umbilical cord became compressed, cutting off oxygen to the baby's brain. Now the baby appears severely brain-damaged. You and the family, whose long-awaited child this is, struggle to make the right decision on whether or not to continue support for the damaged child.

Life is complex. Aside from patient care there are rounds, conferences, teaching and research. There are late dinners or no dinners. There are calls in the night. There is the very precious time at home with one's family. There are treasured moments of one's children growing up. There is sorrow and there is elation. There are defeats, there are successes.

How has a liberal arts education helped to prepare me for my particular career, which at first glance seems a bit wide of the mark for liberal arts? Surprisingly, in many ways—although I will say that in my first venture away from Sweet Briar, to the first month of medical school in the dreaded CELL BIOLOGY, I had no fond thoughts of a liberal arts education. Thrown in with chemistry, biology and physics "throats" from points north and south (primarily north), how I longed for more Krebs's cycle, more surface tension, more Golgi apparatus and more reverse transcriptase. But no—instead I had the impressionists, the political and social structure of India, and Proust. However, after surviving cell biology, I must say that liberal arts has given me a dimension I could never have gained in medical school. Life in medicine should not be just understanding the principles of respiration, or contractility of the heart, or intricacies of managing an infant in kidney failure. Medicine, as should be clear from the two vignettes I have given, is also drawing on all your resources—accepting the frailties and strengths of individuals, knowing that the great religions of the world place different values on life, knowing that our civilization actually is not the first civilization to have faced enormous domestic and foreign problems and knowing that one can find beauty in the most humble circumstances.

Finally, I would like a word about the choice of distinguished alumnae. Some of us choose careers that, by convention only, tot up one's accomplishments in a variety of categories that are then typed on fine white bond paper. Others do not choose such careers. Rather, their accomplishments may register only in their heads—or, perhaps, in a glance or a touch or a memory of a select few around them. One such individual who chose the course of the untyped curriculum vitae is a Sweet Briar graduate in my immediate family. This person has spent hours in caring for the needy, has made the trips no one else would make, has found the time that no one else could find, has cared when no one else cared. This person with an unwritten CV, and many like her, have my unabashed admiration. They are truly the distinguished alumnae, of whom Sweet Briar should be very, very proud.

You students have made, or soon will make, career choices. Some will be studded with professional accomplishments. Others will inscribe their accomplishments only in the hearts and souls of the people or causes they have touched. Whatever your choice, I wish you passionate involvement and I look forward to extraordinary contributions.

Thank you, Sweet Briar, for what you have given and will give.

□ And now . . . for the rest of the story:

The audience on September 7 included a very special family. "Dr. Hurt saved my baby's life 15 years ago. When I read in the paper that she was coming to Sweet Briar, I knew we had to come to see her," said Mrs. Amelia Smith of Gladys, VA. The baby was Michelle Smith, now 15. When just a few days old, Michelle caught a rare viral infection which is frequently fatal. The extremely ill child was rushed to the Neonatology Division of the UVA hospital where Hallam, then a fellow in neonatology, cared for her. Today Michelle is an active teenager, an excellent student, a cheerleader and secretary of the Student Council Association at William Campbell High School in Naruna, VA. And she was there to share in the festivities when Hallam received her Distinguished Alumna Award. "Seeing Dr. Hurt was a very emotional experience for our whole family," said Mrs. Smith, whose husband Carroll, sons Matthew (17) and Mark (13), and younger daughter Nicole (12) accompanied her and Michelle to Sweet Briar.

To Hallam, "It was overwhelming to see Michelle. That's what it's all about... It reaffirmed my faith in what I'm doing... When I got back to Philadelphia after my visit to Sweet Briar, I told the neonatology fellows and pediatric residents that seeing Michelle, whom I had helped when she was a very sick baby all those years ago, now such a bright teenager, was one of the most wonderful things that have ever happened to me." ♦

Ed. note: TV's ABC network interviewed Hallam in the hospital for a report on "crack babies" which, coincidentally, was shown on Donaldson and Sawyer's Prime Time Live on September 7, the night that Hallam received her award at Sweet Briar. Lynchburg's WSET covered the award ceremonies; its report, which included segments from the ABC tape, was shown on the 11:00 p.m. news. Hearing Hallam speak, on national television, of the innocent victims, of the "abandonment of motherhood" that occurs among crack-addicted women, and then to hear the report of her hospital's 70 percent rate of success in rehabilitating the mothers, was extremely moving and intensified the pride we all felt in our honoree.

The Outstanding Alumna Awards, 1989

Today we gather to honor the founders of Sweet Briar College—especially Indiana Fletcher Williams, who pledged all that she loved best to establish a college for women. We honor also those first volunteers who took Miss Indy's dream and command and turned them into bricks and mortar, students, faculty, graduates, alumnae.

So it is right that on Founders' Day the Alumnae Association of Sweet Briar College honor its own—alumnae who stand out because of their service to the College in a volunteer capacity.

The Outstanding Alumna Award may be given to graduate alumnae who have been out of college for at least 15 years. The first award was presented in 1968 to the entire class of 1910.

In 1989 the Alumnae Association is proud to recognize two alumnae who would be outstanding in any group; we are pleased that they belong to us.

□ This year's first Outstanding Alumna could receive the Distinguished Alumna Award, which pays homage to alumnae who have achieved distinction in their chosen fields. Today we honor a highly esteemed attorney who has always found time for Sweet Briar whenever called upon.

Since she was an "Army brat," it's hard to say exactly where she "was from" when she entered college. At SBC she was a history major involved primarily with the International Relations Club, The Sweet Briar News and outdoor activities.

After graduation, she went to law school—not a usual endeavor for young women of her day—earning her JD from the University of Kentucky. While there, she was on the Kentucky Law Journal staff for three years and editor for one year. She has been a member of the Kentucky Bar Association for 43 years.

After law school, she joined U.S. Senator John Sherman Cooper's staff. Subsequently she was a professional staff member of the U.S. Senate Judiciary subcommittee on Immigration and Naturalization, an attorney on the legal staff of the War Claims Commission and on the staff of the Solicitor of the U.S. Department of the Interior. She has been a member of the District of Columbia Bar for 35 years.

In spite of these responsibilities, she was busy with Sweet Briar. She has served the Washington Club as an alumnae-admissions representative, treasurer and bulb chairman. Elected to the Alumnae Association Board, she was National Bulb Committee chairman for four years. Her involvement with the national committee has held her interest ever since; she is the first one called for guidance or advice.

An active fund-raiser for the College, she was involved with the Catherine Sims Scholarship, the Prothro Natatorium, the renovation of Benedict and the Chapel Fund, plus taking a leadership role for her class's Reunion Gifts. Currently she is a member of the Planned Giving Advisory Council, the Boxwood Circle and The Friends of the Library. She also has been an alumnae-elected member of the Board of Overseers.

Her community involvements have included the Florence Crittenden Home, the D.C. chapter of the American Red Cross, the Board of Governors of The Washington Club, the Woman's Republican Club, the Colonial Dames of America and the Westmoreland Hills Garden Club.

Her hobbies (to mention a few) are gardening, bowling, golf, needlework, and collecting books and U.S. stamps. Her late husband was an official with the U.S. Department of the Interior. Her children are twins, a son who graduated from the University of Maryland and a daughter, a graduate of Kentucky's Center College, now married and the mother of three daughters.

This Outstanding Alumna continues to serve Sweet Briar with wit, eloquence and a quiet elegance that commands respect. The Alumnae Association is proud to recognize ANNE NOYES AWTRY, Class of 1943.

□ Our second Outstanding Alumna honoree, an English major from Indiana, is remembered by one of her classmates as always having paper and pencil in hand to jot down thoughts and phrases. She was editor of The Sweet Briar News as well as club editor of The Briar Patch. In addition to her writing activities, she was a Tau Phi, was on the Dean's List consistently and was listed in "Who's Who Among American Universities and Colleges." She served on the Advisory Council, the Church and Chapel Committee and was a member of the International Relations Club and, of course, the English Club.

After graduation, she took the publishing procedures course at Radcliffe and immediately landed a job with a publishing company in New York. After she married, while her husband was in med school, she was editor of the UVA Medical School Bulletin and later worked with the physiology department at Case Western Reserve University. Her publications include six booklets published by Educational and Music Arts and several full-length books (one served on its committee and is a member of the Williams Associates and The Friends of the Library, with special interest in its publication, The Sweet Briar College Library Gazette. After her term as president of the Alumnae Association, she was elected to Sweet Briar's Board of Overseers.

Her twin sister is also an alumna. Her husband is a physician. Their son, a graduate of Wabash College, holds an M.A. from Middlebury College (English), an M.S. from the University of Vermont (Zoology) and the Ph.D. from North Carolina State (Botany). He is married and the father of our alumna's first granddaughter—who, at 11 months, is resplendent in an infant-size pink and white SBC jogging suit. Daughter Mary Ames, SBC '82, magna cum laude and P.B.K., holds an M.A. in American History and a Certificate in Museum Studies from the University of Delaware. Mary Ames is Assistant Curator of the Billings Farm and Museum in Woodstock, VT.

Our award winner, with her wonderful hats, is a familiar figure on campus; she often visits "just to be here."

I was privileged to serve with her on the Alumnae Association Board. She set a style and a commitment to Sweet Briar for all of us. I quote from her opening remarks to the Board in 1972:

I believe with all my heart that the alumnae of any college are essential for the growth, the success and hopes of that college. Without us, the alumnae, I know that Sweet Briar would be poorer, financially; without us, I know that many good Sweet Briar students would not have applied for admission here. And I know that the entire College—students, faculty, staff, Board and administration—holds an abiding appreciation for Sweet Briar alumnae because we truly are the past, present and future of Sweet Briar.

Indeed this alumna has contributed mightily to assure the future of Sweet Briar College. From the Class of 1947, we are proud to recognize CATHARINE FITZGERALD BOOKER. ♦ present, and future of Sweet Briar.”*

on the history of Dayton's Christ Episcopal Church and one about the Wright Brothers). For five years she was Class Notes editor and for nine years, editor of the award-winning Sweet Briar Alumnae Magazine.

There are few volunteer jobs connected with Sweet Briar which this alumna has not undertaken. (Fresh out of college, living in New York, she attended a New York Club alumnae meeting at first opportunity and has been attending meetings of one kind or another ever since.) She has served on the Alumnae Association Board in a variety of capacities, including the presidency. She has served her class as an officer and worked on the Reunion Committee. A member of the Boxwood Circle, she has

Pamela Ford Kelley's Company Admitted to Inc. 500

Strolling the Marais district of Paris in the early '80s, Pamela Ford Kelley '67 admired the lace curtains in all the windows—and noticed that they were identical to those in the apartment where she and her husband lived. She wished she could buy such curtains at home.

The company's main branch is its nationwide mail order business, with over $3,000,000 in sales. Pamela, the president, opened a retail store in Newport and another in Boston. They are also in the wholesale business and offer discounts to professional designers throughout the U.S.

The company imports lace from fourth and fifth-generation lace-makers.

Pamela believes that the main key to her success in the extremely competitive mail order business lies in having a very good product: people want it. Also, when starting out, she kept her expenses low, operating out of her house, sewing the curtains herself. Today the company has 44 employees, a manufacturing area and a warehouse. "We also have extensive marketing abilities—this is critical in the mail order business." Vital too are optimism and determination. "I never take no for an answer. I assume I can make something work. Some good ideas never get off the ground because people spend too much time thinking about them. I see this all the time at the law office."

Law office? Yes. Pamela earned her law degree from Fordham in '78 and is a partner in the firm of Kelly, Howe, Scott and Kelley, where she specializes in small business and corporate law. "Working two jobs is no problem—it just means I work 12-hour days!" she exclaims. "Seriously, I like to continue practicing law because it benefits my lace business. And my dual career makes me very good at advising other people who are starting their own businesses."

All but two of Rue de France's employees are women. Traditional sweatshop female labor in the textile industry? "Not at all. Women who join the company seem to succeed and stay with us. They really like the product—it's very feminine." Pam's husband Brendan is an advertising consultant who advises Pam in the marketing area. In their scant spare time, they enjoy ocean racing. Their 40-foot boat, "Full-Tilt Boogie," sounds as if it moves at the same speed as the company!

Pamela values her SBC education more and more as she gets older: "A women's college nurtures one's own personal growth much more than any coed environment could. That background really helped me in my first job in the research department of Harris Upham, a Wall Street brokerage house. A math major, I taught myself computers and had an idea for revamping the firm's computer operations, which I took to the Pamela Ford Kelley: "I never take no for an answer. I assume I can make something work..."

Before returning to the U.S. in '82, Pamela tracked down the manufacturer, arranging to have some shipped home to Newport, RI. Today, those curtains are all over Newport and Pamela's company, Rue de France, which makes and sells them, has been chosen from among 17,000 applicants to be # 257 on Inc. magazine's 1988 list of the 500 fastest-growing, privately held companies in America. (The Inc. 500 list is the entrepreneur's equivalent of the Fortune 500.)

France and designs, manufactures, checks and ships the curtains in Newport. They sell bolts of lace as well as the made-up curtains; their prices, Pamela feels, are in the "moderately expensive" range, from $50 to $250 per window. The curtains usually provide the only window cover, but can be used in conjunction with heavier draperies. Technology in the French lace factories is very much what it was in the early 1800s; most of the French companies with whom Pamela deals are third,

Chairman of the Board. He patted me on the head and didn't take me seriously. If I'd been a guy I'd have been fired, which would have been more acceptable! I'm thankful I had faith in my own abilities. Sweet Briar gave me a very strong base from which to go out and do whatever I wanted."

Sally Haas Promoted at Hewlett-Packard

Excerpts reprinted with permission from an article by Patty White in the Summer '89 edition of the Hewlett-Packard magazine, Accent.

An intense competitor since childhood, Sally Haas is driven to succeed. Recently promoted to manage the new Region Sales Support organization, Sally has worked her way up through the Hewlett-Packard ranks during her 11 years with the company by clearly defining her objectives and relying on her determination and flexibility.

"You have to be persistent, and above all flexible, to get where you want to go. In my career, there have been many downs as well as ups, which have taught me that how I handle disappointments is equally as important as how I handle the successes."

She believes in using a mentor, or several, to look for guidance. "Pick someone you admire and think you can learn from. Your mentor has to be tougher on you than you are on yourself, prodding you to excel. I have had several mentors during my 11 years at HP, and I have served as a mentor to many people as well."

A native Atlantan, Sally has always thrown herself fully into her endeavors. She enjoyed tennis as a child, earning the state doubles championship at age 14. By fourth grade, she had decided that she wanted a mathematics major in college.

Although she was an SBC math major, she decided to pursue a career in real estate because she was anxious to get into the business world. Perhaps lured by the fast pace of her family's business, a real estate and insurance firm established by her great-grandfather in 1891, she became a real estate saleswoman—but not for her family's company. She made the $1,000,000 mark each year, but the economic recession of '75 brought the real estate industry to its knees, and with it, Sally.

Daunted yet determined to find her niche, she sought advice from business acquaintances and relatives. The hotel industry looked promising: unable to find a position in sales, Sally joined Atlanta's not-yet-opened Tower Place Hotel as restaurant assistant manager. She helped open the hotel and learned the restaurant business, but soon moved back to sales, her first love. In two years, Sally was the hotel's sales manager.

Forever one to seek new challenges, she decided it was time to start her own business—but didn't find the right facet of business to suit her; the stab at entrepreneurship floundered. A long, frustrating search for a career began again.

"By now I had matured a lot and learned quite a bit about the business world, but my math skills were rusty. I didn't have a technical background, but I finally set my sights on working for a technical company, after again seeking advice from many people."

She applied for a sales job at Hewlett-Packard. Five days later she was hired as the only female technical computer sales rep in the southern region. (There were a few female commercial SRs at the time.)

"I convinced them I was trainable. But from there I had to work tremendously hard to learn the products and prove myself." Prove herself she did. Two years later Sally was #1 in technical sales in 12 southern states. Rapid success led to Sally's promotion to Field Marketing Manager, in charge of hiring and training SRs for a seven-state area, then to District Sales Manager and various region positions. She was featured as "Woman in the News" in the 1983 August issue of Woman magazine and quoted in Glamour magazine in 1984.

"I feel fortunate to work for a company that provides an environment in which people are encouraged to try out new ideas. A former manager of mine once told me, 'If you want to become exceptional, you have to do the extra. To stay exceptional, you must continue to do the extra.' I've tried to take that advice to heart and remind myself of it often. Any time you get a new job... it's like starting all over again. You have to prove yourself each time."

Sally enjoys "puttsing" with her hands—planting a garden, building miniature doll houses complete with electricity and furniture, or building a real house during Jimmy Carter's Workcamp for the Habitat for Humanity.

Besides tennis, Sally's main memories of SBC are of studying: "I had to work very hard to make good grades there. Dean Sims was an inspiration to me, and still is."

Sally will be happy to talk with SB students or alumnae who are looking for advice or would like to discuss today's business environment. "It's hard to tell from my title—'Region Sales Support Manager'—what I do. Hewlett-Packard is an $11.9 billion corporation with 95,000 employees worldwide. My job includes managing all the marketing, training and sales force automation programs for our 12-state region. My team provides a wide variety of services that might be organized or named differently in other companies. That is why it is important to talk with someone inside a company who can advise you on the structure and potential job opportunities."

(CASE), an organization of member colleges, universities and independent schools. Kathleen, who is director of development and alumnae relations at the Dana Hall School, Wellesley, MA, will serve a three-year term as a trustee-at-large representing independent schools.

In 1987, Kathleen won the CASE "Apple" award for outstanding teaching at conferences and workshops. She preaches what she practices, her teaching being in the areas of fund-raising and alumnae relations. "I am fortunate to have the best job in the world. I work daily in the arena of philanthropy and volunteerism, and am allowed to be part of the process that opens up opportunities for giving. Now is a particularly interesting time to be involved in philanthropy, as women seem to be enjoying even more the rewards of making and development offices to assistant to the president (Harold Whiteman) and on to the office of public relations, as assistant director. In 1978 she moved to the Madeira School, Greenway, VA for eight years, working as director of the annual fund, director of publications and public relations and, finally, director of development. A two-year term as director of development and communications at the Walters Art Gallery in Baltimore followed, before she assumed her present position. In addition to her work at Dana Hall, Kathleen is a partner in The Franklin Group, a consulting firm which works with nonprofit organizations. She specializes in training volunteer fund-raisers.

After majoring in psychology, Kathleen worked at SBC for four years, moving from assistant in the alumnae

Following in her Father's Footsteps

Suppose following in your father's footsteps meant crossing several continents, learning to shoot an M16 and marching for hours at a time? Racquel Hickman '89 jumped in with both feet (in combat boots) and loved it.

A "military brat," Racquel has lived all over the U.S. and Germany, never longer than four years in any location. Her father, Lt. Colonel Hickman, is a Deputy Chief of Staff based in Kaiserslautern, West Germany. Her mother, a tour guide, coordinates tours throughout Europe and the Soviet Union. During her senior year in high school in northern VA, she became interested in SBC's International Affairs program. Fluent in German, she opted for a double major in International Affairs/German.

At SBC, she was a founding member of the fencing club. (She also founded a fencing club at the University of Heidelberg, where she spent her junior year.) She was a member of SBC's national championship intercollegiate riding team and was a Young Democrat.

The summer between sophomore and junior year, her footsteps joined her father's when she spent six weeks at basic training camp at Fort Knox, KY—her introduction to actual military experience. "It was a big shock. It was like Private Benjamin, only maybe worse!" After basic camp, she began the ROTC program offered by SBC through Lynchburg College. "Sweet Briar readily accepted my going into ROTC—they really like students to try unusual activities."

During her junior year at the University of Heidelberg, Racquel completed training books on her own and took exams proctored by her father.

Senior year she was an executive officer on the ROTC staff, coordinating and delegating assignments to other staff members. Twice a week she attended a class on Executive Management in the Military. Fridays she taught cadets tactical maneuvers and marching skills. To Racquel, the most intense part of the program was the 6:00 a.m. physical training sessions at Lynchburg College three times a week; she left SBC at 5:30 a.m. to be on time. ("That killed me!") Twice she arranged and participated in intensive field training weekend sessions at Fort Lee, near Richmond, VA. There she worked on her M16 rifle marksmanship and land navigation skills. Still, these were not the worst of times: "The last field training experience, I was the only female among 35 guys — I liked that!"

After graduation, she had six weeks of training at Fort Bragg, NC before being commissioned a second lieutenant.

Next year Racquel hopes to be stationed in West Germany in a branch of military intelligence. Down the line, if a military career doesn't work out, she would consider government work with the CIA or FBI. "The diversity of Sweet Briar and the different types of classes I've taken compel me to be interested in a lot of things...so who knows where I'll end up?"

The Cold War and Central and Eastern Europe

The Cold War has dominated U.S. - Soviet relations and the world since the end of World War II. Only in the last year or so has it become possible to talk seriously about ending the Cold War. The hope that we may see the end of it has been strengthened mainly by Mikhail Gorbachev's initiatives that have included the signing of the INF treaty in 1987 and the withdrawal of Soviet forces from Afghanistan in 1989. Gorbachev's "new thinking" on foreign issues has created western expectations that the Soviet Union is moving toward a radical restructuring of its relations with the free world. The feeling in the West seems to be that the Cold War is over. I would like to argue, however, that the Cold War will not end until the key issues that provoked it are resolved. The Cold War started over Eastern Europe and it must end in Eastern Europe. A settlement in Eastern Europe may be the key to the resolution of other regional conflicts, to the issue of human rights, to arms control and thus to the ending of the Cold War.

The origins of the Cold War are linked directly to the sovietization of Eastern Europe during and after World War II. During World War II the Soviet Union annexed the Baltic states, seized territories from Finland, Germany, Poland, Czechoslovakia and Romania, and when the Soviet armies began to expel the Nazis from Eastern Europe, the entire area was transformed into a Soviet sphere of influence. Between 1945 and 1947, communist governments were imposed on Bulgaria, Romania, Poland, East Germany, Hungary and finally on Czechoslovakia. In all of these countries communist regimes were introduced with direct or indirect help from the Soviet Union. Free elections promised by Stalin at Yalta were held only in Czechoslovakia, where the Communist Party obtained 38% of the total vote—a record that has not been broken anywhere in Europe. In Yugoslavia, Marshal Tito liberated the country without Soviet help and rose to power on the wave of popular support. In 1948, Tito broke with Moscow in order to build socialism from below, relying on worker's councils.

Czechoslovakia was a test case in the sovietization of Eastern Europe. President Benes wanted to build in Czechoslovakia a bridge between the West and the East by combining the political democracy of the West with the economic democracy of the East. He received assurance from Stalin that the Soviet Union was not interested in interfering in the domestic affairs of his country. On his deathbed in September 1948, Benes confessed that his greatest mistake was to trust Stalin. By then Czechoslovakia was behind the Iron Curtain and the Cold War a reality.

The U.S. and the West became alarmed about the aggressive behavior of the Soviet Union in Eastern Europe and the threat to Western Europe as well. In 1946 Winston Churchill at Fulton warned that the Iron Curtain was descending on Eastern Europe. In 1947, when Greece was threatened by communist insurrection, Truman promised economic help to save the Greek government. The Truman Doctrine was followed in the same year by the Marshall Plan, designed to aid the economic recovery of Western Europe and to minimize the communist threat to destabilize Western European governments by demonstrations and strikes.

The United States began to search for a foreign policy designed to cope with the widely-perceived threat of Soviet expansionism. The new policy that ended the search was attributed to George Kennan, who, in an article published in 1947, called for a policy of containment. Kennan argued that "certain characteristics of Soviet policy—the secretiveness, the lack of freshness, the duplicity, the war suspiciousness—are basic to the internal nature of Soviet power, and will be with us until the nature of Soviet power is changed." He warned that for the Soviets, "the outside world is hostile" and that "it is their duty to overthrow the political forces beyond their borders." He concluded that the United States should pursue a "long-term, patient, but firm and vigilant containment." The policy of containment was to dominate the Cold War from 1947 to the present day.

The policy of containment was militarized by a series of alliances under the leadership of the United States. The NATO alliance introduced in 1949 was the first, built by the U. S. to contain communism. The invasion of South Korea by the North Korean communist regime in 1950 quickened the militarization of the policy of containment. Eventually the policy of containment was criticized by many observers of the international scene, including Professor Hans J. Morgenthau, who objected to the assumption that the use of force in resisting communism was justified by the belief "that communism everywhere in the world is not only morally unacceptable and philosophically hostile to the United States, but also detrimental to the national interests of the United States." When the U.S. intervened unsuccessfully in Vietnam to prevent a communist takeover, the policy of containment was rejected as a basis for dealing with a communist threat.

During the 40 years of the Cold War there have been ups and downs in Soviet-American relations. The confrontations over the blockade of Berlin in 1948, the erection of the wall in East Germany, the revolutions in Poland and Hungary in 1956, the placing of nuclear missiles in Cuba in 1962, the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia in 1968 and Afghanistan in 1979 were balanced by the easing of tensions or detentes in the '60s and '70s and the relaxation of tensions started by the signing of the INF treaty in 1987.

Will the new detente end the Cold War? The Cold War will end when East Europeans are able to exercise their right of self-determination, which was denied to them by the sovietization of the region at the end of World War II. The key issue is whether Gorbachev's reforms at home and his new thinking in foreign policy will lead to restructuring of the Soviet relationship to East Europe so that East Europeans will be able to move toward political and economic pluralism.

In the past the Soviet Union viewed all attempts to democratize and liberalize the East European regimes as threats to the security of the Soviet Union. In 1968, when the Czechoslovak communists tried to liberalize the Stalinist system in their country by introducing socialism with a human face, the Warsaw Pact forces led by the Soviet Union interrupted the Czechoslovak reform movement. The invasion of Czechoslovakia increased tensions between the U.S. and the Soviet Union and the Cold War continued.

Today both the U.S. and the Soviet Union are becoming more integrated into the international community. Economic interdependence is increasing as a result of the globalization of the American economy and Gorbachev's so far rather limited efforts to open the Soviet economy to competition from the West. Politically, the world community is becoming multipolar with Japan, the Common Market countries and, to some degree, even China becoming important political actors in the world arena. The Cold War psychology is being transformed by Gorbachev's moves to quell Western fears of Soviet threat to Western Europe. Gorbachev seems to be succeeding, particularly in West Germany, in presenting himself as a leading peacemaker of our times.

Most importantly Moscow, instead of interfering with reforms in East Europe, takes the lead, recognizing that far-reaching reforms are necessary both in the economic and political spheres. In the '80s, the Soviet Union has had to sus-tain East European economies through favorable credit arrangements and vast trade subsidies. In spite of Soviet subsidies, however, the rates of economic growth in Eastern Europe show significant declines from the levels of a decade ago. Instead of the past high rates of growth, most of the countries in Central and Eastern Europe suffer from rising foreign debts, technological backwardness, declining standards of living, shortages of consumer goods and severe environmental problems. Centrally-planned economies have failed to meet the people's high expectations of rapid economic advances, rising social benefits and clean environment.

Economic failures generate political discontent and popular pressures for reforms. Hungary and Poland are best examples of far-reaching political changes that are taking place today in East Europe. Hungary is moving toward a mixture of socialism and capitalism and a genuine multiparty system. Recent legislation has created a strong role for private enterprise in the economy. Private enterprise can now employ up to 500 workers—up from the previous limit of 30. Individuals can buy and sell shares in newly-founded joint stock companies. In politics, the demand is for multicandidate elections and a multiparty system. Most recently, the Communist Party has split into reformers and status quo defenders, with the reformers demanding (in a manifesto) withdrawal of Hungary from the Warsaw Pact, a wholesale transformation of the economy and a multiparty system. The manifesto proclaimed that “the Communist Party is in deep crisis since it lacks a credible leadership, a national program and a membership that can be mobilized. The demolition of this system of Asiatic despotism, and its democratic transformation, is indispensable.”

In Poland, the demand for democracy is sparked chiefly by the nationwide rejection of the legitimacy of the communist regime and the collapse of the economy. Poland is the first country in Central and Eastern Europe to see, recently, the establishment of a noncommunist government after 40 years of communist rule. A coalition cabinet headed by a noncommunist prime minister represents the first step toward a dialogue with democratic forces and their inclusion in the political process as legitimate partners with a view of sharing responsibility for economic and political changes. In contrast to Hungary and Poland, East Germany, Czechoslovakia, Romania and Bulgaria have moved very slowly or not at all toward reforms of their economic and political systems. The economies of Czechoslovakia and East Germany have been relatively efficient in providing their peoples with material security, and their leaders are reluctant even to talk about reforms that could undermine the political monopoly of their Communist Parties. Romania and Bulgaria have weak economies and could profit from market-oriented reforms, but their countries are ruled by repressive elites opposed to all change.

In all the East European countries the eyes of the people are on Gorbachev, who is a symbol of radical change, although Gorbachev's views on reforms in East Europe are hedged with ambiguities and reservations. During his visits in East Europe, Gorbachev encourages economic reforms that would revitalize the East European economies and assist the Soviet economy in its restructuring. On the other hand, Gorbachev hints at practical and ideological limits of East European reform movements. First, reforms must not threaten the security of the Soviet Union and second, reforms cannot replace socialism. The security issue is at the center of all Soviet concerns in East Europe. Stalin acquired an East European empire in order to create a buffer of friendly states that would ensure Soviet security. Today, the instability of the East European regimes created by the demand of their peoples for democratic accommodation is a liability that threatens the security of the Soviet Union. Gorbachev has rejected the option to intervene militarily in Eastern Europe to protect a communist regime, but most observers agree that the Soviet Union would intervene if the stability of the region is threatened. It is significant that Gorbachev has accepted the non-communist government in Poland, having been assured by the new noncommunist prime minister that Poland would remain in the Warsaw Pact and that Poland's security interests are firmly tied to the Soviet Union.

The West also recognizes the danger of revolutionary upheavals in East Europe. It is in the interest of both the West and the East to promote a gradual change in the direction of economic and political pluralism and eventual emancipation of East Europe. The issue is no longer whether to reform East European regimes but whether it can be done peacefully. It may be possible to follow the Polish example, since the goal will be the sharing of power between the Communist Party and the democratic forces represented by independent trade unions, professional societies and other autonomous organizations. The sharing of power would have to take place in the framework of the rule of law and mutual tolerance of differing views on the way of reorganizing the economy and the polity of these countries. In order to make this transformation possible, the West would have to agree to support this power-sharing arrangement with economic assistance. The options include economic aid with safeguards for its efficient use, technology transfers, increase in joint ventures between Western and East European firms, political support for dialogues with governmental and party leaders and opposition groups, cultural visits, sports meets and people-to-people exchanges. Can we persuade the Soviets that democratic accommodation in East Europe does not threaten the security of the Soviet Union and that these countries after democratization may prefer to remain in the Warsaw Pact for a substantial period of time?

Momentous changes are taking place in East Europe. Our interest is to promote transformation of communism and its transition to more open societies in a gradual and peaceful way. The success of political and economic reforms will depend on the wisdom and the skills of democratic and communist forces in these countries, as well as the support of the West.

The odds against ending the Cold War are still high, but if the democratic transformation in East Europe is successful, the end of the Cold War may be near. ♦

Symbols

Of all the issues this year, none has aroused more emotion than the flag. Though the Supreme Court's ruling in the Missouri abortion case came almost immediately after its decision on the burning of the flag, it failed to eclipse the passion ignited by Old Glory.

Trying to calm the agitation, some have pointed out that the flag after all is only a symbol. But symbols carry enormous meaning, and it is dangerous to tamper with them too much.

Symbols arise from the unconscious and it's from there that they draw their power. As novelist John Gardner said, symbols can never be contrived, not even in fiction. They slip to the surface through the writing of the work.

A psychologist would say that deeply-held feelings, rooted in memory and sacred associations, are projected onto symbols, which then become the talisman for compelling beliefs and loyalties.

In the London blitz during World War II, weary Britishers would emerge from their underground shelters after a night of bombing and look to see if the dome of St. Paul's still stood. If it did, that was a good omen.

Religious symbols, of course, are the most sensitive of all. Let an artist take liberties with religious symbols (as Andres Serrano did with his photograph of the cross submerged in urine) and trouble almost certainly will erupt.

As for the flag case, in writing the majority opinion Justice William Brennan asked how far the court should go in protecting national icons. Should it be illegal to burn a copy of the Presidential Seal? Or the Constitution?

It's unlikely that damage to these two would draw the same fury, especially not the Constitution. Even though it is the true carrier of our freedoms, it is too abstract to compete with visual symbols. A collection of ideas—even powerful ideas—cannot muster the visceral force of the flag.

There are those who feel horror at book burning, since for them books symbolize civilized thought through the ages. They bind together human experience stretching across the centuries and make it available to all. But don't count on these symbols to attract the same allegiance as those of religion or nation. Surely Satanic Verses proved that.

In the commotion over the flag that gripped Congress, another symbol emerged: the Iwo Jima memorial. For the generation of World War II, it has become an emotional reminder of sacrifice, suffering and eventual triumph. Those who evoked Iwo Jima on the floor of the Senate were possibly wondering what would motivate Americans to that level of sacrifice again.

The danger for any national order is that its symbols will lose their power to unify. This happened to the military uniform during Vietnam. Ollie North revived the uniform as symbol during his Congressional hearings on Irangate. Resplendent as a Marine, he captivated his television audience in 1987, but in plain clothes two years later, he failed to win over the jury.

Part of C. Everette Koop's imposing presence as Surgeon General came from his magnificent naval uniform. Once again, those shoulder boards exuded responsibility and earned authority.

Sometimes gestures can be symbolic. Among the most moving is the military salute—young John Kennedy, Jr., still a baby, saluting his father's coffin; Cory Aquino saluting her troops on review (she had wondered if this was correct form for a woman president); Ronald Reagan's final salute to George Bush last January before his flight from the inauguration to California. There is something in a salute that symbolizes continuity, loyalty to shared convictions, a promise to keep the faith.

No doubt the majority of five justices who could not see a way to convict Gregory Johnson for flag burning are dismayed by the fire storm their decision has caused. Certainly it would be better now to make the new federal statute and the 48 state laws that already exist work instead of revising the First Amendment. Too much is being asked at the moment of the Constitution. It has always required the shield of cultural constraints. Now the breakdown in culture is leaving the Constitution exposed and vulnerable.

Carl Schorske of Princeton noted in a study of Vienna at the turn of the 20th century that sometimes people need for emotion to triumph over reason. That is the challenge facing American leaders in this flag issue — to do justice to both. They should remember that too much talk can destroy a symbol. Words can kill, and strip our symbols of their power to move. ♦

From World Hunger to American Values

The Unfinished Odyssey of Frances Moore Lappé

Author's Note: Last year Assistant Dean Barbara Temple-Thurston worked with a committee of faculty and administrators on plans for this fall's Orientation. One aspect of the plans involved dinner with a guest speaker the first evening for new students, Orientation leaders and faculty advisors. After consulting with the committee, Dean Temple-Thurston invited Frances Moore Lappé. Ms. Lappé spoke on 2 September; later that evening I had an opportunity to talk with her at length about her ideas and plans.

Toward the end of her talk with the new students, Frances Moore Lappé challenged them to make the most of the next four years, to take chances, to work for change by first changing themselves. From some, this might be empty rhetoric. However, only a few minutes with "Frankie" Lappé is enough to convince you that she lives what she advocates. Although she never quite put it this way herself, she is also a first-year student this fall, embarking on an enterprise, "Project Public Life," that entails some risks together with the promise of considerable reward at the end of the five-year life span of the project.

Lappé could easily play it safe. Last spring she published an intriguing and important book entitled Rediscovering America's Values. As she recalls in the foreword, her fondest childhood memory is the "hum" from the kitchen, the voices of her parents and friends discussing issues that mattered. Her book puts the reader in the kitchen, figurative cup of coffee in hand, listening to two intelligent, articulate voices, one conservative, the other populist-progressive, talk about freedom, fairness, democracy, human nature and hope. In the margins, Lappé places quotations from those who have considered these topics over the last three centuries. She delights in quoting Adam Smith, the Adam Smith, patron saint of conservatism, in support of positions that are populist-progressive. It isn't difficult to figure out which voice is Lappé's, even though she works hard to be even-handed. But, as she said to me, quoting the '60s communications guru Marshall McLuhan, "The medium is the message." At this point, she is not out so much to convert as to provoke a dialogue. Americans, she believes, must re-examine what they believe in order to have a firm basis for action. She would like nothing better than for the reader to become a third voice in the kitchen, a part of the "hum."

Lappé has always been radical, in the truest sense of the word, someone who is concerned to probe to the roots of an issue or problem. After college (where, please note, she majored in history), she did social work and then pursued graduate studies. Neither seemed to dent in any serious way the problems of poverty and hunger that she saw. Her response was to write a book, Diet for a Small Planet (1971), which over the years has sold three million copies. In 1975 she co-founded the Institute for Food and Development Policy with Dr. Joseph Collins. From those beginnings have come other books, among them Food First: Beyond the Myth of Scarcity and World Hunger: 12 Myths, and years of imaginative work to combat the problems of hunger and poverty. In 1987 Lappé was awarded the Right Livelihood Award, Sweden's "Alternative Nobel Prize."

For most of us, this would have been enough. Perhaps we might want more, but most likely it would be more of the same. For Lappé it is clearly not sufficient. She is sailing into uncharted waters once again. "Project Public Life: Partnership for Democratic Renewal" is now starting to take shape. A five-year national project sponsored by Lappé's Institute for Food and Development Policy and the Humphrey Institute of Public Affairs in Minneapolis, it is an effort "to transform politics from an activity of distant experts to a distinctive practice that citizens own; to reshape citizen initiative from simple protest to participation in governance." Lappé intends to work in three areas. The first involves getting Americans to view politics differently, to move away from the idea of politics as yet another spectator sport toward seeing it as a significant activity in everyone's life. A new understanding of politics (actually a return to an older perspective) requires that citizens possess the skills for participation in politics.

The second area is a "schooling in the political arts." A final area of concern is the lack of places in which public life, now so atrophied, can be carried on. The net result of these initiatives should be a practice of politics very different from what we presently know and find tedious and, often, meaningless.

Of course, "Project Public Life" may never get to the point where politics is something very different from what it is at present—but any progress along the way from here to there has to be welcome. Lappé is optimistic. More to the point, she is energetic and bright. She has established her credibility and is willing to place it on the line. Even those who might not agree with her recognize that she has done her homework and should be taken seriously. For those who heard her speak at Sweet Briar, it was an opportunity to see someone at the height of her powers, daring to think in big ways, not content with mere personal success.

When the Class of 1993 reaches the senior year, it would be great to have Frankie Lappé back on campus, this time for a few days instead of only a few hours. We could all compare notes, the seniors, Lappé, faculty, staff: what have we done since that warm September evening, what have we changed, what have we risked? I would like to think that the answers would both surprise and delight us.

Note: Those interested in more information on "Project Public Life" may write to Frances Moore Lappé at the Institute for Food and Development Policy, 145 Ninth Street, San Francisco, CA 94103 or call (415) 864-8555.

Confessions of a Potted Conifer

I was born in a dilapidated greenhouse in Vero Beach, Florida in 1968. I was the smallest of a large family. Being the runt, I stood at the end of a long line of taller brothers and sisters. Being the runt was not easy. They teased me unmercifully about my smallness and I was miserable.

One day a crowd of ladies from North Carolina came to the greenhouse, and one of them exclaimed, "I'm going to take a Norfolk Island Pine home with me."

"How on earth do you plan to do that on a plane?" her friends asked.

"Easy enough," she replied. "I'll hold it in my lap. And therefore I'll buy this little one here." She touched my topknot and I beamed with pride. "It has such a nice shape, and it will grow."

As I left my birthplace, I looked back at my tall relatives and marveled at my good fortune.

And so began my happy relationship with my mistress and her family.

On the plane ride from Vero Beach to North Carolina I served a good purpose. An ill-behaved young boy kept disobeying his mother, whose last resort was to say to him, "Oswald, look at that silly lady with a tree in her lap. She must be crazy." This served as entertainment for Oswald, but only temporarily. Then he decided to become better acquainted with me and my mistress, even to the extent of trying to sit in her lap with me. His relieved mother gladly offered to hold me instead of Oswald, so the swap was made. But not for long. My mistress preferred me.

I was glad to see the last of Oswald when we finally landed in Greensboro. My master-to-be met us and didn't seem too happy to see me. "Where are the goat and the bird cage?" he inquired. I later learned that my mistress was known to have brought other strange lap objects from faraway places.

Once at my new home on Cornwallis Drive and comfortably ensconced in the front hall, I said my prayers of thanks for such happy surroundings.

In the summer my master would move me out to the terrace to enjoy the sun and warm air. At the first hint of frost, he put me on the trolley cart and eventually set me at the dining room French doors, as I'd grown too big for the hall.

This delightful lifestyle continued for many years, when one day I learned, to my consternation, that we were moving. I couldn't imagine why, because to me 1004 Cornwallis was the most beautiful home in the world.

Moving day came, and since I had long ago outgrown my mistress's lap, I was put in the van with the furniture. I tried to tell the driver that I was a member of the family, so I was treated gently and arrived without losing a needle. In the house, my mistress mumbled that she didn't know where to put me, so she'd leave me in the hall for the present. "Oh no," I thought. "Not another hall!" This one was wide and prettier, but I longed for my dining room window.

Several days later a nice man was telling my mistress where to put what, when he spied me. "What a beautiful plant," he exclaimed. "It's so elegant it belongs in the walnut-paneled room. You don't have much in keeping with it."

God bless Otto Zenke. He had me placed in front of a large window where I lived happily until Christmas came and my master put me in the trolley cart and rolled me back to the bedroom to make a spot for the Christmas tree. It was a pretty room, but I missed the company that came during the holidays — especially on Christmas night at the open house, of which I had always been a part.

I was glad when two weeks later I heard the moaning, groaning and cursing that let me know they were taking away that dried-out tree. Then I heard the vacuum cleaner and saw the dust rise as the mess was rectified.

The next year came, and I dreaded being transferred again. Then I heard my master say, "This thing (meaning me) is too big for me to move. And we always fight over picking out a tree. Why don't we decorate this one and save all the trouble of cleaning up after one of those Fraser firs you prefer?"

"The children would never forgive us," replied my mistress, and for the first time

I didn't like her.

And then, glory be, she changed her mind. "The children say you had a good idea about the tree. They say you're too old to handle a heavy tree and get it to stand up straight in our wobbly tree stand."

"The heck they do," he snorted. "Well, let them come over and do it."

I was on tenterhooks until one day I felt ornaments being hung. "These old things won't do on this lovely, graceful tree," said the daughter of my family. "I think I have time to get some of those 18th-century hand-blown glass beauties I saw at the Smithsonian."

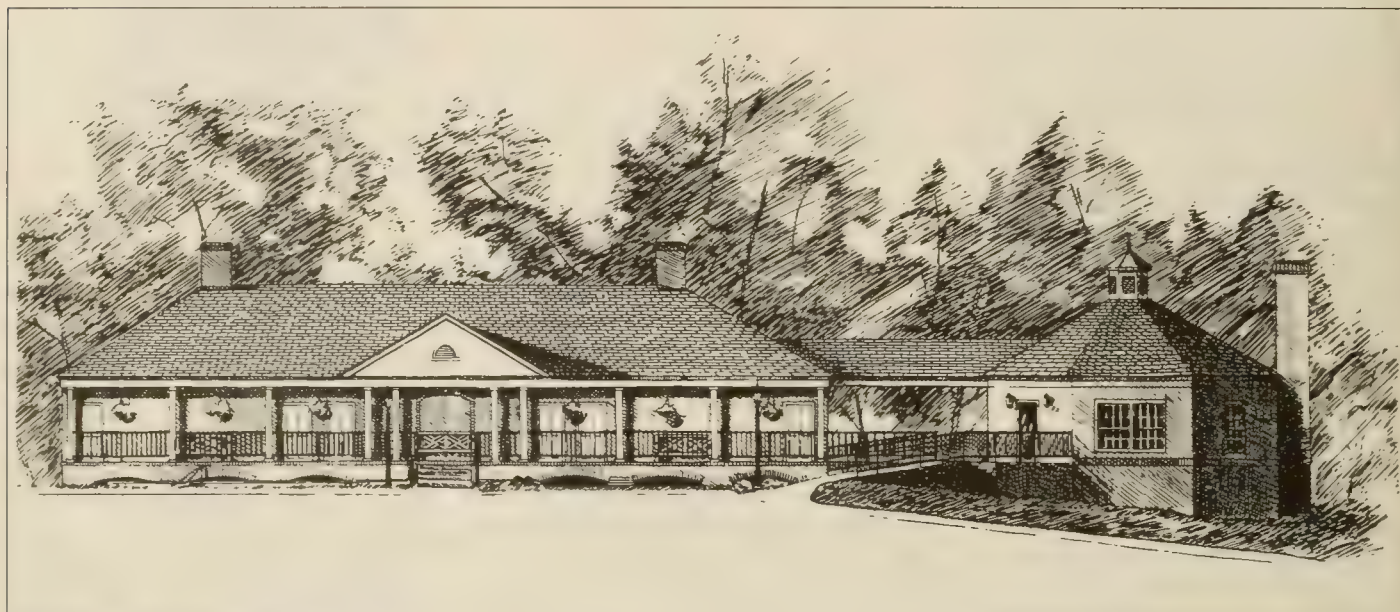

And that's how I came to be decked in reproductions of priceless museum ornaments. I don't want to sound conceited, but I've heard enough to turn my head. If only my mother could see me now—I'm a Christmas tree! Not only that, I'm a museum piece—I just heard someone say that.

Come to see for yourself! If you do, I'm sure you'll never fool with one of those messy, cumbersome, back-breaking things they call 'live' trees again. They are the cause of many family feuds, and they aren't really live. But I am. And I won't dry out or catch fire. And I'm proof that the runt of the litter is sometimes the best.

Sweet Briar's Florence Elston Inn: the Perfect Place for a Mini Reunion

Winter, spring, summer, fall—every season is a good time to gather your family or meet classmates and friends at the Florence Elston Inn for a Mini Reunion. The Inn's 12 bedrooms can accommodate 30 to 36 guests at full capacity and there are facilities for handicapped visitors. During your stay, you may wish to enjoy Sweet Briar's delicious food—with advance notice, catered meals can be served in the Inn's beautiful lounge or outside on its sunny deck.

Campus recreational facilities include two lakes and an Olympic-size indoor pool, 14 tennis courts, a Parcourse fitness circuit, the Carry Nature Sanctuary and numerous trails for walking and hiking, spotting wildflowers or bird-watching.

You might plan to take advantage of a campus event. The Babcock Fine Arts Center offers a variety of fine entertainment and the Pannell Center Art Gallery hosts travelling exhibits as well as student and alumnae artwork and exhibits from the Sweet Briar Collection.

Many points of interest are near enough for a day's outing: Wintergreen Ski Resort, the George Washington National Forest, Natural Bridge, the Blue Ridge Parkway and the Skyline Drive. History buffs savor visits to Thomas Jefferson's Monticello and Poplar Forest, Lynchburg's restored Point of Honor and the battlefield and McLean House at Appomattox.

The Inn, named in honor of the late Florence Woelfel Elston Beemer '21, is open year-round to alumnae, parents of students and prospective students and other Sweet Briar guests. The reasonable rates are another reason to start planning a Mini Reunion soon.

To make reservations, please call me—Janet Metzger, Manager—at (804) 381-6207 (P. O. Box 11, Sweet Briar, VA 24595). A warm welcome awaits!

Report of Alumnae Council 1989

By Jane Merkle Borden '65
First Vice President and Director of Clubs

SBC welcomed 137 alumnae October 1-3 for a very busy and invigorating Council session. It was great to see the hard work and dedication of so many alumnae with such varied lifestyles. The days were full of committee meetings, discussions of current issues and plans for the future.

The Founders' Day program was inspiring as always, highlighted by a lecture by Dr. Sally McMillen, assistant professor of history at Davidson College. Her topic, "Southern Women, The Legacy of Strength," emphasized the extraordinary endurance of southern women of the 1800s. The program also honored two deserving recipients of the Outstanding Alumna Award, Anne Noyes Awtry '43 and Catharine Fitzgerald Booker '47.

Members of the Presidential Search Committee are making progress. The committee has defined the desired characteristics for Sweet Briar's new president.

Two major academic changes include:

- Expansion of the Honors Program to provide special honors courses for freshmen and sophomores, in addition to the established junior honors and senior honors thesis.

- A Bachelor of Science degree; five seniors and seven juniors are in the program this year.

Nannette McBurney Crowder '57, president of the Alumnae Association, and I (as director of clubs) have designated the rejuvenation and reformation of alumnae clubs around the country as the main focus of the Alumnae Board for the next three years. We will be working closely with Regional Chairmen and Club Presidents to analyze and redefine the club's true purpose. As we all know, SBC's alumnae are one of the College's greatest assets. We need to keep these "assets" networking throughout the USA. Clubs will live again—Nannette and I are committed to "making a difference."

The beloved 40-year-old bulb project, which is no longer the income producer it was in the past, will be closely reevaluated in the next few months. It is possible that a new project and focus will evolve within the next year. Whether the scope of change will be regional or national is still to be determined.

Anne Mercer Kornegay '66, chairman of Region VIII, is working with the Board to develop a new option for clubs: a Book Award (a book about a woman or written by a woman) will be given by clubs to outstanding high school juniors during their spring terms. Details of this future program are being worked out.

"The State of the College" was addressed by President Nenah Fry, Dean Robin Bowers, Dean of Student Affairs Bob Barlow, Vice President for Business Affairs and Treasurer Tom Connors, Vice President for College Relations Bill Meadows, Director of Admissions Nancy Church '77, and Director of Alumnae Affairs Ann Morrison Reams '42. All reports were upbeat and positive, including Nancy Church's announcement that Sweet Briar drew 200 new students this year.

All alumnae are encouraged to return for this annual energizing weekend. It's well worth the time and effort to make the trip back!

ALUMNAE CAREER PANEL, REUNION 1990

The LIFETIMES Center will sponsor a Career Panel at Reunion next June. Addressing "The Benefits of My Sweet Briar Education" will be five alumnae from different Reunion classes. Please contact Carter Hopkins (804/381-6151 or Box AT, Sweet Briar, VA 24595) to nominate panelists (from classes ending in 0 or 5).

CORRECTION

In the announcement of the Leigh Woolverton Prize for Excellence in the Visual Arts, Leigh Woolverton's name was misspelled. We regret this error in the fall '89 magazine.

SBC Receives Funds for Theatre Arts

A new fund, The Jessica Steinbrenner Molloy Fund, has been established effective July 1, 1990. The fund will provide for an award to be given annually to the outstanding student in theatre arts; for support of the theatre arts program and "Paint and Patches," the student drama club; and to help bring well-known performers to campus.

The fund has been established by Mr. and Mrs. George Michael Steinbrenner III, whose daughter Jessica Steinbrenner Molloy is a 1986 graduate of Sweet Briar.

EWALD SYMPOSIUM

The topic for the Ewald Symposium April 5-7, 1990 is "Dance—Image—Meaning: 20th-Century Contemporary Dance as a Reflection of Its Time." Anthropologists, historians, writers, critics and the general public will discuss and experience the work of choreographers whose aesthetics represent or are the outgrowth of 50 years of American modern dance.

MINI DANCE REUNION

A Mini Dance Reunion will be held in conjunction with the 1990 Ewald Symposium April 5-7, 1990

If interested in attending, please contact the alumnae office (804/381-6131), Sweet Briar, VA 24595.

1989 Bulb Report

This year 40 clubs, Solos, parents and the alumnae office sold 1,136 bulb orders for a total of $68,450.94. Parents and alumnae parents purchased 111 orders (10%), alumnae purchased 412 orders (36%) and friends purchased 613 orders (54%). 1989 top-selling clubs were:

Richmond	$4,724.49
Solo	3,963.03
Washington	3,380.03
Philadelphia	2,860.66
Greensboro	2,513.35

A total of 17 sellers were bonus winners. Six sold between $500 and $749, 11 sold between $750 and $999. Special mention and thanks to this year's Bloomin' Alumnae, those with sales of $1,000 and more:

Carter Hopkins Elected VCPA Treasurer

Carter Hunter Hopkins '68, director of career planning and LIFETIMES Center, has been elected by the membership of the Virginia College Placement Association (VCPA) to serve as treasurer on the state board for the 1989-90 academic year. The Association, an organization of employers and college/university placement representatives, promotes the process of equitable and ethical placement of college graduates into employment opportunities.

SBC Staff Service Award Recipients Honored

Nine Sweet Briar employees who have worked at the College for 10 years or more received Staff Recognition Service Awards at the Founders' Day Convocation.

Honored for 20 years of service were Marshall H. Lawhorne (Grounds) and Christine Pendleton (Housekeeping). Seven honorees have been at Sweet Briar for 10 years: Hugh A. Beazley (Physical Plant), Constance M. Canada (Housekeeping), Rebecca T. Harvey (Duplicating), Sarah L. Harvey (Health Services), Wayne E. Rucker (Housekeeping), Gordon W. Staton (Physical Plant), John F. Tomlin (Grounds).

Copies of the Directory may be reserved when the Harris rep phones: this will be the only opportunity to order the Directory.

The cost ($46.95 soft and $49.95 hard bound) is higher than the last directory because the Alumnae Association lost a lot of money on the last one. This one must pay for itself. The Association will not receive any profit on sales; the monies go to Harris Publishing for the cost of producing the directory.

SBC Alumnae Directory Listings Verified

Representatives of Harris Publishing Company began telephoning alumnae in November to verify information on each alumna's listing in the new Alumnae Directory. The daughter of Frances Murrell Rickards, Murrell Rickards Chadsey '44, writes: "Mother has her clear moments and as long as she lives, she wants to support Sweet Briar. She was 101 years old on Jan. 20, '89."

Elizabeth Lowman Hall, in Elmira, NY, wonders if any of her college friends are still living. Jane Pratt Betts's niece is coming to live with her: "It will be very nice for me and I hope for her." Jane is not doing any more traveling, though her health is still good at 92.

Your wonderful response to my card asking for reports of your ups and downs will be meaningful to all of us. The most common downs were failing eyes and ears and energy. The best ups were great grandchildren. Thank you so much.

Mary Stoddard had a slight stroke in Nov. '88 which did not impair her greatly but return of full strength is slow. The most painful part is that her car sits unhappily in the garage. Dot Iliff had a great trip to D.C. visiting old friends and a delightful tour out of New Orleans including 3 days on the Mississippi River. She will have surgery on a pesky foot in late '89. She loves her retirement club where she plays a lot of bridge including one foursome called "Dot Iliff's remedial group." Dorothy Miller had a full summer with visits to family and many house guests for last VA Beach visits as she is closing her home and moving to a retirement home in Chapel Hill, NC called Carolina Meadows which is close to her daughter's home. I had a great visit with Dot in FL this winter. Ruth Johnston Bowen writes from Lynchburg where she has lived for 4 years after 43 years in Roanoke. She finds a few alumnae and old friends she and her husband knew in Lynchburg 60 years ago.

Lois Peterson writes that most of us will celebrate our 85th in '89 and she started her celebration in Phoenix where she spent her 8th winter. She flew over Oak Creek Canyon in a 3 passenger plane and then over the North River of the Grand Canyon. For her 80th she flew down into the Grand Canyon which was then allowed. On her way up north, she visited Epcot taking wheelchair route which they are well set for. In Aug. she will be in upper peninsula of MI and on to St. Paul. October brings her to her reunion with 5 former college day camp counselors. She talks often with Betty Moore Rusk as Betty has difficulty writing. Ruth Beckh wonders if any of us made Reunion this year. She had hoped to but her husband Karl said he would miss so many husbands he had known at our 50th & 55th. Do you remember how Karl helped us in our singing—our 50th wasn't it? They fully enjoy their 9 great grands and short trips.

Peg Posey writes from Lancaster of no big news - "it just keeps raining." She lives alone in a townhouse; her 4 grands are her biggest delight. One is in h.s., 2 in college, 1 in medical school. She still plays bridge 2 or 3 times a week. Ruth Abel sends the sad news of the death of her husband in Dec. '88. Her son who lives near her has been a tower of strength. She is struggling along with arthritis and the residue of a broken hip. Betty Moore Rusk has difficulty seeing, reading and writing but, true to her old lifestyle, keeps busy doing what she can. 2 of her grand-daughters were married last winter and she enjoys trips with her daughters and visits to SBC, sends best to all '26.

Ellen Newell will be in Highland, NC in July '89 with Wright who has been in 3 Atlanta hospitals following a second stroke. A change from nursing home as he can't navigate under his own steam. She will have good help. In Aug. she will be in Winnetka, IL for Mary Lee and Frank McClain's daughter's wedding. As you know, Mary Lee is Rebecca Ashcraft's daughter. She talked to Joe Gilchrist recently and he now has a cat in place of a dog. He says he has slowed down - "Who hasn't?" She did get to her second home in Sea Island, GA, for a short visit. Goody Eskesen who lives in Palm Beach, wishes we could all send our pictures. She says she pictures me in middy blouse with a hockey stick in hand - asks if I look the same. Heavens no - wish I did! She visits near Washington, D.C. a lot as she has a doctor son practicing there.

Marg Shepherd keeps in touch with her AT&T pals Betty Moore and Mary Bristol and sadly misses the 3rd musketeer, Cobby, who died in Sept. '88. She reports managing o.k. but wishes she could cook!! Meaning what, Marg? Mort Bachman is still a gardener - mainly wrestling with a pesky weed (which has taken over a life). Reports being shaky and getting feeble, but having a fine time (me too, Mort). She saw May Speed in July in VA and she looks 20 years younger than she should. Helen Dunleavy reports hip surgery which was successful. She lives near Dot Keller Iliff who is so happy in her beautiful retirement apartment. Helen still in her old home there in Denver. Sends best to all of 1926. A fall in Jan. left Katharine Tracy with a horror of steps but otherwise she is fine and divides her time between FL and Sewickley, PA.

Kippy Van Cleve still hanging in there, manages her own home in Bomoscen, VT. She has 3 greats, 2 boys and a girl named for her. Lucile Miller Matthews writes for the first time ever (how nice to hear from her!) to tell us that she has been living in Henderson, NC, where she was born, since 1971 but is about to move into a retirement home in Raleigh. Her brother and his son and family live in Wilson, which is not far from Raleigh.

Kitty Blount is doing fine. Cataract operation is all but complete and soon I'll be able to read again. I have a football knee which is to be operated on in 2 days - but a busy summer of guests and houseguests. My days are full of community engagements which makes the days streak by. Many thanks for all our reports. Those who could not make this alumnae news, remember for next year.

A recent letter from Scoutie Gorsline brought news of Louise Nelson Redd and an interesting venture at moving boxwoods from Scoutie's yard in Richmond to Louise's yard in the country. Scoutie and her sister live in the Fan district and both keep very active. Elizabeth Copeland Norfleet and Betsy Williams Gilmore recently joined them for lunch. Liz has sent a birthday cake to Betsy for 59 years. Liz lives near U.Va., surrounded by fraternity houses. She works in her study daily and has finished her third volume of the History of Woodberry Forest for its centenary celebration. Alice Leigh Caples moved to Rancho Mirage, CA, where her daughter works. Agnes Sproul Bush had spinal surgery and is walking better. She planned to visit her daughter and definitely to attend reunion.

Josephine Reid Stubbs and Stephen cruised to Bermuda on the Viking Star with Serena Ailes Stevens. Serena has a new condominium in the Harbor Springs-Bay View area of MI. All 3 hope to attend reunion. Betty Carnes traveled to Russia in 1988 and to CA to a pilot club international convention in 1989. She tutors 3rd and 4th grade students in English and math, helps a blind lady with her finances and keeps up her hobbies of churchwork, sewing, needlepoint, knitting and photography. Evelyn Ware Saunders wrote that the Amherst-Nelson S.B. Club held open house at SBC to raise money for their scholarship fund. She enjoyed going through the farmhouse where she used to visit Carolyn when they attended grammar school in Amherst. That's a pretty long friendship.

Mona Stone Green and Thornton returned to SBC for their grand-daughter's graduation in 1989. Elizabeth Saunders Ramsay travels to exotic places. She recently rafted down a river in Costa Rico. Sims Massee Rand suffers from an injured back and is unable to travel. Dougie Lyon Stedman winters at the Ocean Reef Club, N. Key Largo, FL and returns to Rosemont, PA for the summer. She hopes to come to reunion if there is an easy flight to Lynchburg. Emmy Riely Lemaire enjoys the opera, concerts and like so many others has visited Australia and loved the animals, the big cities and the out-back. Mary Bruce Dailey Dawson and Lewis will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary in 1989. Mary Bruce is having a problem with her eyes so they are staying close to home this summer. Jane Callison Smith is moving back to Lafayette, IN but hopes to join us in June. Theresa Atkinson Greenfield enjoyed an interesting program put on by the Atlanta SB club called "Living Room Adventure" on southern authors. Carolyn Martindale Blouin and Maurie have had a confining winter because Maurie underwent heart surgery. He is fine again. Carolyn had lunch with Lindsay Prentis Woodroffe in Boston. Winogene Springer Yost is president of the AR Federation of Garden Clubs. Gladys Wester Horton's husband Leonard passed away in May. They had been married 57 years. Our love goes out to you, Gladys.

Your secretary had a fine cruise over Christmas of 1988 with her son and his family. And now will a new secretary come out of the wings so that you can have a different signature on future notes

Having joyfully volunteered to be our class sec'y at our 55th for the next few years, I hasten to give you a brief summary of our statistics. I may not be able to give you an exact account of the number of new hips, knees, toes and teeth, but few of us have not had some alterations. When you see our picture you will agree that we look pretty well kept, and I'm sorry you are not all there to represent yourselves. We were shocked that only 8 of us came, but we had a lovely time and felt as natural as if it were a daily gathering with Coke and nabs in the Dell. The 47 responses were full of notices of outstanding achievements of children and grandchildren. There are 95 active class members now; of the original group of 210, 50

have died, 29 are lost and 33 have requested no mail (that hurts). During this last period between our 50th and 55th reunions our total giving, both restricted and unrestricted, has been $95,924 which is a splendid record, considering that there is always hope that we will be moved to put Sweet Briar in our wills, which 18 of us still living have done already, to say nothing of the many who have made deferred gifts.

Our group participated in everything. It was pure joy to see Beanie, who brought her daughter Vickie for the first time ever. Kitty Means Neely, the class president, said she had such a good time she purred all the way home. She wrote a cute song which we rendered in our somewhat quavery voices. Jackie Wood spoke briefly but brilliantly with references to our great gifts or lack thereof, with no apologies needed for the announcement of our 5-year total dollars. Smut Mayfield Chapman sold her NC home and is established in Richmond. She had just returned from Boston where granddaughter Amy Chapman graduated, receiving a scholarship to Vassar. Both sons are clergymen. Beth is a junior at Johns Hopkins. Don't ask me who lives where, but one wife is a Briarite. I'm glad Smut is living close by since her familiarity with Meta's furnishings gave me valuable information on the portrait of Elijah Fletcher's wife, which I use regularly in tours at Sweet Briar House.

Nancy Leavell has 2 doctor sons and 6 grandchildren in Charlottesville. Her daughter Anne Leavell Reynolds '63 is married to a doctor and lives in Hershey, PA with their family. Nan Russell Carter and Ellie Alcott Bromley were there and ready for anything from tennis to toddlers. They left to meet Mary Lee Ryan Strother in Stratford, Ontario for Shakespeare. Mary Lee's daughter Sarah '64 was married to Robin King of Dersham, Norfolk, England and they will live in Edam,

The Netherlands. We didn't see Martha Lou Stohman whose plan to help at Reunion was cancelled due to a conflict with a fabulous trip to London, Switzerland and Regensburg, Bavaria, with relatives of Karl Barth and Dietrich Bonhoeffer.

Helen Hanson Bamford was sorry not to make Reunion, but the Hanson family had a very moving experience in May. The late Bob Hanson Jr., the son of Helen's brother Bob, was a pilot who had been shot down off the coast of Vietnam in 1966; his remains were finally identified and flown home by the Navy for a military funeral with an honor guard. Young Bob's widow, recently married, attended, and his brother and 2 sisters (both his parents are deceased). Also there was his co-pilot, who survived. "Everything was so touching and dignified," wrote Helen. Helen's husband Bill died in 1985 and she spends a great deal of time with his stepmother, now a lively 89.

Dottie Turno Gardner retired recently from a delightful career in retail management. Unfortunately her husband has suffered a severe stroke and needs a lot of nursing care. She has been blessed with having a daughter living in the area whose 3 daughters are approaching college age. Her son is at the Univ. of Washington and her daughter is a junior in h.s.

Connie Burwell White spoke of trips to Charlotte but seems to have the same Denver address and is trying to get a garden started at a new townhouse with no time for fishing! Harriet Brown Ray said she asked to be removed from the SB mailing list but enjoyed writing about her life; so I'm glad the alumna representative from Temple, TX never delivered the message! She graduated from SMU; has 3 grown children, two girls and a boy; she and her husband celebrated their golden anniversary in Feb.; so I would say you're doing very well and I remember you! Edith Knox Bogaard sent a memorable card with a few terse statements: "Flunked out, two sons, uninteresting life, staunch Episcopalian & Republican, society editor of Cedar Rapids Gazette '39-'40; Junior League Pres., etc., etc. Too old now!"

Mary Ann Page Guyol has turned away from D.C. and returned to her girlhood home in Red Wing, MN - very different from Paris where she stayed in May and June, but she was still glad to get home. Margaret Ross Elice really has something to brag about. She's had first-hand contact with the campus, even tho' she missed our reunion, because she had a granddaughter graduate this year and she'll have another one next year. She says, "It was an experience worth waiting 55 years for." Charlotte Lee Fishburne takes the prize for more names of children, stepchildren, grandchildren, people living at U.Va., U.Wis., Chapel Hill, Las Vegas, Pierre, SD. I hope she will come over to Sweet Briar and read this card to me. She is leading a life of unlimited opportunity for influence on the young. Susan Arbenz Hazlett (I presume - her card was unsigned!) wrote from Wheeling, WV about her 5 sons (4 lawyers, 1 in practice) and 14 grandchildren, ages 4-28. Oldest g'daughter is in Baltimore, one g'son is in grad. school at Yale where he is captain of the swimming team, and another g'son is in his 3rd year at the naval academy.

Dee Hutchinson Howe returned her card listing 2 daughters, 2 sons and 6 grandchildren. Lib Scheuer Maxwell followed her daughter Liza and doctor husband Willy to Charleston, SC and now Liza is going to be head of Hockaday School in Dallas next year and Willy will be at one of the hospitals in Dallas, but Lib will stay in Charleston. Now there's a shock for a dyed-in-the-wool New Yorker! She loves it, and I don't wonder. She has one of those courtyard charmers. Anne Corbett Little stopped in Richmond on the way to Reunion and never made it but is into painting. She is spending 12 days in Avignon, then on to an opera tour in Paris and Versailles. Jane Morrison Moore wrote of seeing Anne in Charlotte, visiting her daughter in late spring and earlier tripping with Nancy Butzner Leavell to visit their daughters and godchildren in Baltimore and Hershey, PA. Nancy and Jane did some fine visiting and sightseeing on that trip between the Rappahannock horse races, old homes in Culpepper and Orange and the Amish countryside.

Becky Strode Lee couldn't come because she was meeting daughter Brownie in D.C. on Peace Corps business. Her new assignment will be in Mauritania, Africa, probably. Her son, Dr. St. Geo. T. Lee, Jr., was at Reunion with his wife Ann Tremain '76. I saw Beck and a lot of the family at the funeral of Louisa Strode Smith, Becky's stepmother, who lived so long at Kenmore and was an important citizen of Amherst. Virginia Broun Lawson is in Wytheville for the summer with family of 3 boys, wives and 8 grandchildren coming and going between Charleston, WV and Rd. Jo Fink Meeks had a new left hip implanted May 19 (so I'm glad she didn't try for Reunion) and is aiming for a new right in Oct. Sandwiching a family reunion in August at Harbor Springs, MI. We hope all goes well.

Reports of moves to retirement homes have come from Nancy H. Boschen (to Essex Meadows, Apt 153, Bokum Road, Essex, CT 06426) and Mary Rogers Moser (to Azalea Trace in Pensacola, FL) and Emily Marsh Nicholls (to Collington near Washington, DC). Cordelia Penn Cannon reports that daughter Claire has just returned from Africa, Stephen Cannon has bought land in Patrick County so is half-Virginian. Ashley Penn Christopher is grad of U.Va. and on NOLS trip to Africa for 3 mos David, Jr. at U.Va., is mgr. of polo team and tending horses in Ch'ville for summer. Betty Suttle Briscoe couldn't come because grandson #1 was graduating from college SCL (she didn't name the college but #2 is rising jr. at Univ. NH). The other 6 grands are all flourishing and excelling in school & sports. Chris & Betty were looking forward to a trip to Alaska.

Marite Stephens Sheridan is practically a neighbor of mine in Midlothian, VA but we still haven't gotten together. I believe she's the champ for having a 2 yr. old great granddaughter with a sibling due to arrive early '90 and a cousin any day. All these live in VT. Our sympathy goes to Robert B. Hoffman, who wrote a letter telling of the death of his wife, Connie Turner, on April 20 in FL. He included an obituary notice for the alumnae files, which we appreciate.

I think I did this job back when we had just become alumnae—before there were husbands, children, grandchildren and certainly not great-grandchildren!! My hat is off to those who have done it in all the intervening years. Mostly Lasar. She did it for ages, and this time I didn't even hear from her. Thank you for all the cards and letters. News of old friends beats the sweepstakes every time, so keep in touch! I thought I was going to love getting back in touch, but I believe it is more satisfying to tutor in hand-writing in the Amherst Elementary School. Next time please print, type or get a loving grandchild to take dictation on a postcard!

Robert and I just returned from a trip to Washington, DC to find your cards awaiting us. We spent a week in the Capital with two 12 yr. old grandsons, getting a real education in the reactions of youth to our national history. Surprising to both of us was the fact that what impressed them most was our National Cathedral. We loved every minute of our trip with them, but it took a full week to recover.

In Feb., we had a delightful trip to a private island, Lime Key, off the coast of Roatan, Honduras. This island is owned by a friend from Jackson, MS. He has built a beautiful Caribbean retreat in a lush, tropical paradise off magnificent Delmar Reef, which afforded us many pleasant hours of snorkeling, boating, and fishing.

From the many cards, I have concluded that we are the traveling 38'ers. Elizabeth Lockett Lord surely wins the first prize. From reunion, she and Roger journeyed to the Homestead Hotel, Hot Springs, VA for a few days of golf. In July, they took a cruise to AK. In Oct., there was a fascinating trip to Ecuador and the Galapagos Islands. Dec. found them golfing at the Eldorado Club in Palm Springs, GA. In Feb. and March, they spent a month in FL, with a week at Sea Island, GA on the way home. In August, Bis and Roger plan a trip to Germany and Austria, followed in Sept. by a few days at Tides Inn, VA.

Barbara (Fergie) Ferguson Hill and Larry have just returned from opening day at Wimbledon after a week's stay at Eastbourne watching pre-Wimbledon tennis. After a visit from her Texas grandchildren, the Hills leave for their summer home on Cape Cod, where Mary Ann Housel Carr just spent a month. Mary Ann called Fergie's home a "fun house." Vesta Murray Haselden and Eddie spent a week of April in Paris enjoying the sights, especially the new look of the Louvre with its pyramid entrance, the D'Orsay Museum, and a day at Monet's home in Giverny. They have also spent time at the beach, and a weekend at Grove Park Inn, Asheville, NC. Josephine Happ Willingham enjoyed a trip to France last Sept., and will travel to England this fall on a "Parish Holiday" where she will stay with parishioners in a town or village, getting to know the people and the surrounding area. She stays busy with church work, and goes to her GA mountain cabin often in the summer.

Carolyn (Top) Potter Ryburn also has wanderlust. She and Frank went to Bermuda the last of June, and then on to their flat in London for most of August and Sept. In Jan. and Feb., the Ryburns took off for Barbados, after visiting their daughter in Pebble Beach. Jessie Silvers Thompson and John made 2 trips to Europe, one on business to Wiesbaden and Frankfurt, Germany, and one for pleasure to London, Lisbon, and Athens. They also visited families in Dallas and Wilmette, with additional visits to John's home in Fort Lauderdale, and Jessie's home in St. Martin, VI. Marjorie (Marge) Thaden Davis writes from her summer home in NJ that she and Bill are going on a 6 week's cruise to South America. She was born in Sao Paulo, Brazil, lived there for 11 years, never returning until now. They sail from NY, going to Buenos Aires with stops at many ports along the way, and different ports on the return trip.

Ida Todman Pierce had an interesting trip on the Amazon River, in Jan., and 3 weeks in Yugoslavia. Margaret Wiemer Shepherd loved the SBC trip to Kenya in Feb. She reports that Maud Tucker Drane and Hardy came to Charleston for the Shepherd's 50th anniversary "gala". She also boasts of a new grandson, James Wiemer Shepherd, Jr. I am sure you all join me in extending our love and sympathy to Dorothy Gipe Clement and John in the loss of their youngest daughter, Susanna, in a freak "dirt-bike" accident last Oct. Susanna was a talented artist and photographer, so the Clements are establishing a Memorial Foundation in her name at the Toledo Art Museum, a deed which in a small way helps to assuage their grief. Dorothy and John had a good visit with Marion (Macky) Fuller Kellogg when they went to Wellesley for John's annual row in the "Head of the Charles." They plan a trip to the Greenbriar Hotel with son John, Jr., and family soon.

Frances (Frannie) Bailey Brooke and George had a delightful fall Mediterranean cruise from Venice to Istanbul, Athens, and Naples. Thanksgiving was spent in Williamsburg with a daughter, and Christmas in NY with a son. The Brookes have recently traveled to New England, and to Boston for the graduation of a grandson from the Fay School. This month Frannie and George are off on a Baltic cruise to Helsinki and Leningrad, followed by a family reunion in Aug. at Myrtle Beach, SC. Nancy Old Mercer and Blair recently returned from a trip to Santa Barbara, CA and now depart for their summer home in CO. Their oldest granddaughter will be a freshman at Vanderbilt this fall, and the youngest is cutting teeth. Kate Sulzberger Levi has been commuting between Chicago and Cambridge, MA due to husband Edward's presidency of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. On one of her trips there, she had dinner with Janice Wiley Adams and George, catching up on the past years. The Levis travel often to CA to see 2 sons and their families. Winifred Hagberg St. Peter is hoping that her granddaughter will attend SBC. Her 16th birthday present to her was a trip to the campus in way of encouraging her enrollment. Kay Hoyt has registered for a Field Ornithology session at Maine Audubon Camp in Aug., and hopes that disc trouble will not prevent her going. She is still doing volunteer work at a local nature center, driving for MEALS ON WHEELS, and working in the hospital. Rebecca (Becky) Kunkle Hogue has returned to FL after a long absence, and Isabelle Franke DeGraaf now lives in a condo in St. Pete, so maybe they will get together with Marion Brown (Brownie) Snider who also lives in the area. Brownie is flying to London in Sept. aboard the Concorde and returning on the QEII. She is Chairman of the Episcopal Diocesan Library, named Brown Memorial after her parents, and is involved with other "bookish" things like the Museum of Fine Arts Book Bonanza, and Friends of the Public Library. She also gives many lectures presented by U. of So. Fl., Eckerd Women's College Forum, American Stage Forum, and Tiger Bay Club. She enjoyed a visit from Lewellyn (Lew) Griffith Longstaff with her 4 yr. old grandson. Lew was babysitting while the rest of the family went skiing in Austria. Except for pneumonia in the spring and a 3 month hassle with sciatica, Lew says she has finally got it all together again.

Betty Moore Stowers has just completed a 2 year term on the Board of the National Mental Health Assn., and served as a lobbyist for the KS Mental Health Assn. She is also on the Action Board (appointed by the governor), an advisory group to the Kansas Mental Health Delivery System. Lucy Taliaferro Nickerson is proud of son, Paul who is captain of a duplicate bridge team which will be one of 25 teams in the nation playing at the Chicago Nationals of the American Bridge Assn. in July. Lucy and Charley just returned from a vacation on the Eastern Shore of VA and MD. Congratulations to Virginia Guild Colmore who has now joined me in role of great-grandmother, with the birth of a new son to her oldest granddaughter—only the second boy in a bevy of girls. Kudos also to Dorothy (Dot) Thomas Upton on her 50th wedding anniversary, and to Mildred Gill Williamson on her 51st. Cornelia (Dee) Armfield Cannon is at Atlantic Beach, NC with her brood, and Molly Talcott Dodson and Grif spend their leisure moments with grandchildren and sailing on the Chesapeake. Dorothy (Dolly) Nicholson Tate is still busy with volunteer work and SBC, helping to hostess a 2 day meeting in Charlotte, in Feb., of school counselors, prospective students, alumnae, and SBC administrators. Naturally it was a huge success.

Florence Caven Crosnoe writes that her oldest grandson has graduated from Texas U. and will enter law school in the fall. Second grandson will be fraternity co-rush chairman, and the youngest will be a counsellor at camp before departing on a trip to France with his French class. She and husband, Ralph hosted a stupendous (according to Mildred Pharr Clark) meal for 50 at her home on July 4th. Mildred is off in Aug. for a trip to Venice, a cruise to Dubrovnick, around the Italian "boot", and on to Nice, and then Paris for a few days. Billy Heizer Hickenlooper had a wonderful visit with Frances (Fritz) Cordes Hoffman and Frank at their glorious new home at Hilton Head, SC. She also sees Betty Dail Windeler often. Janet McFarlan Bergmann keeps busy with volunteering at the hospital, public health nursing, the library, and her church—with time off for golfing and the beach. Sarah Tomlinson Foscue and Jimmie just celebrated his 80th birthday with all their family.

The sad news of the death of Sally Jackson Mead you have seen in the alumnae magazine under Recent Deaths but you need to know, too, of the affection and esteem in which she was held. In 1967 she took over the directorship of the Charlottesville-Albemarle SPCA on a temporary basis, and remained its director until her death in May, building it into one of the best agencies of its kind on the East Coast, and winning many awards for her work. Most important to her was championing the animals themselves, caring for the abused, abandoned or injured creatures. To quote the Charlottesville Daily Progress: "Charlottesville-Albemarle can mourn the woman, but must rejoice in her accomplishment". We, too, are privileged to have known her as a college classmate!

The news from others is happier: travels, pride in children and grandchildren and their accomplishments, our own lives still full of service and contentment in retirement. Virginia Beasley Holzer's daughter's art has been selected for the 1990 Venice Biennale. Beasley herself says "still able to walk around but prefer the horse—less effort. My garden is gorgeous and I'm not." Pat Brightbill Snyder loves her full-time work in the Holiday Inn Gift Shop at a San Diego airport where she talks with people from all over the world. Working from 3 to 11 saves her from the worst of the freeway traffic. Because of Crosswell's new banking career he and Bobbie Engh Croft traveled less than usual but still managed trips to the Wyoming ranch, to Tucson and reunions with their children and grandchildren. Most importantly 1988 was a healthy year! While her husband, Tom, has undertaken a study for The National Geographic Society: "Did Peary Reach the North Pole?", Eloise English Davies works on version three of her non-fiction book. When the two nonprofit arms control associations with which they are affiliated met at the same time in the spring in Washington, the Davies put in a frenetic couple of weeks between that and the visiting retired Russian admirals and generals.

Bill and Sudie Clark Hanger welcomed two new granddaughters in '89 and traveled to Australia and New Zealand and later to AZ with the Institute for Creation Research. They had a fascinating look at evidence in and around Grand Canyon and the petrified forest including evidence from Mt. St. Helen's eruption. In May they were joyous and thoughtful hosts at Sea Island to Mike and Betsy Gilmer Tremain, Helen Sanford and her sister, and Betty Hanger Lippincott who had a grand time talking, laughing, eating, playing tennis and golf, and swimming. Hank has another Philadelphia grandson. She has decided to stay in her lovely home. "I am taking up golf at my advanced age and having fun with it!" she says. With her natural athletic ability golf should be just the thing! Hank's grandchildren are friends of Eugie Burnett Affel's grandchildren in Philadelphia. Eugie has 2 new grandsons. She solicits your ideas for our big 50th in May 1992!

Helen Sanford was particularly enthusiastic over her first exposure to Sea Island. She and her sister and niece "spa"ed at Rancho La Puerta, Mexico for a week in Aug. Mike and Betsy Gilmer Tremain were so gracious to Carol and me and a group of navy friends with whom we get together annually. The finale was a hot air balloon excursion over the Charlottesville countryside. Theatre trips to New York and London in addition to a National Trust trip to Prague and down the Danube to Vienna and trips to see daughter Lucy in Aiken and daughter Suzanne in Tulsa marked the year for Tom and Ann Hauslein Potterfield. Then it was home for summer on the river. Shirley Hauseman Nordhem enjoyed her first year of settling into their home in beautiful, historic Savannah. After the drudgery of clearing out a lifetime of goods and memorabilia prior to the move, she's not interested in collecting any more. However, many others are in favor of reproducing our 50th reunion scrapbook in some way. If anyone else moves, please send me any mementoes that might be useful for the scrapbook! Don't throw them away; that's what happened to everything of mine, (including my diploma).

Because Parkinson's makes walking and travel difficult for him, Julian and Stony Moore Rutherford have been staying at home and renovating their house. They have taken the difficult path of leaving their lifelong church for a small mission Church of the Holy Spirit, but this is a growing and joyful experience. As predicted, it was Paris in the spring for Rone and Rut Jacquot Tempest who visited their oldest son's family and saw their 4-month old grandson (born on his daddy's birthday and named for Rut's father). Their itinerary included Luxembourg and Iceland. Our champion bulb seller Rene Mitchell Moore lost $300 worth of her tulip bulbs to moles and chipmunks! The Moore's are justly proud of their daughter Warren (SBC '72) whose book Mountain Voices has been so well received. Did you read the article about Warren in the spring '89 alumnae magazine?

Things go along about the same for Bill and Gege Moomaw Hall as far as hobbies and service activities are concerned, but Gege went to Weight Watchers and shed 20 pounds! In May they cruised to Bermuda. This year's travels for Moose and Dot Myers Morehead included the Canadian Rockies, Salt Lake City, the Canyon Lands of Arizona plus the Broadmoor at Colorado Springs for a medical meeting. Dot is still ecstatic over her first grandson. Although she has been to Wrightsville a couple of times, Eleanor Ringer Linn stays very busy with the resale shop where she says "the battle between democracy and autocracy is a constant giggle combined with much pulling out of the hair. When the need to get away is paramount, there's always NYC." Looking for a family vacation spot? Diana Stout Allen recommends High Hampton, NC where her family gathers annually. The Allens also thoroughly enjoyed the SBC Russian trip. Falling downstairs and breaking her ankle badly slowed Jane Taylor Lowell down for a couple of months, but she is back now in her life full of service to others. She enjoys all of her family and is especially proud of Bob Jr. who recently completed 4 years as the outstanding skipper of a nuclear sub. Jane and Bob have been living separately for several years and find this mutually beneficial.

Two of Margie Troutman Harbin's sons live right in Rome and one in Atlanta. One is in Baltimore and Frank is in Santa Fe, NM. The Harbins love visiting them and their 11 grandchildren. Tom continues to practice and to play tennis, and Margie does lots of volunteer work: nature conservancy, library, soup kitchen, and garden club. Si Walke Rogers is such a good correspondent that paragraphs could be written about her activities but she summarized them well on her postcard: "I'm still enjoying retirement—took training for Hospice-joined a drama group and have put on plays several times. I turned out to be a comedienne and love every minute! Work at the Children's Rehab. Center and at the Y after-school program. Love it all and have some good friends." She, too, is busy with children and grandchildren, and has been to London to visit her daughter's family. Another '42 child living in Santa Fe is Toppin Wheat Crowell's daughter Lessie who delighted her parents by having a son in May. To their joy the Crowell's younger daughter Allison has lived the past 2 years in their basement apartment while completing her MA in order to teach French. I hope many of you had the good fortune to see "Wonders of the Wild" which ran 26 weeks last summer and fall (1989) on the Discovery Channel, filmed and narrated by Dick and (Betty) Browne Borden. The Borden's were on camera as well as behind the camera, a great show! Enjoying good health and a retirement busy with their Lake Sara home, volunteer and church work, and their family are Bill and Ginnie Wilkinson Swanson. Ginnie and Carolyn Monteith Clarke had a wonderful visit together in Houston 47 years after they were Pi Phi's together at U. of TX. As "Citizen of the Year" in 1988, Ginnie enjoyed lots of "warm fuzzies".

"GFWC keeps me busy along with trips to see my children," writes Alice King Harrison. Her daughters now live in Los Angeles, Panama City, and Morehead, KY where her 8th grandchild, a girl, was born in March. In addition to welcoming her third grandson and first granddaughter, Betty Duffield Fajans went to AZ Elderhostelling. Sally Schall Van Allen reports "no news, just more of the same, thank heavens!" Jean Hedley Currie's grandson graduated from h.s. and her granddaughter competed for the CT Miss National Teenager title having been the 3rd runner-up the previous year. Jean promised to give George our best when she spent July in Kennebunkport. A third grandchild, Andrea Weed, was born to Alice Sweney Weed in May, joining her two first cousins, Cameron and Alison Murphy. Margaret Preston Moore's good news was the expectation of her 7th grandchild in Oct. Pres spends most afternoons with Gerald who is in a nursing home, but she often plays tennis in the mornings and her friends have been wonderful about including her in the evenings. Eddie Syska Peltier's trips always sound adventuresome! This year it was 2 weeks in Kenya with daughter Sue as participants in the fantastic SBC Alumnae African Safari, and in Sept. a 3-week combination land tour/cruise to Japan and China. At home in Naples she has had some wonderful times with Jim and Fran Caldwell Harris

Visits to daughter Faith and the grandchildren in TX have been the extent of Daphne Withington Adams' recent travels. Daf's son Dana is working toward a doctorate in psychology at U. of Wyoming, Laramie. Harold and Jeff Jeffords Townsend took a fun Caribbean cruise in Nov. Jeff is still golfing but loving baby-sitting for her granddaughter and new grandson in Winter Park and in Atlanta. Chris and Jeanne Sawyer Stanwood were able to spend the summer on their island as usual although Chris had successful by-pass surgery in April. Jeanne joyfully anticipated a visit from her CA children, including two grands. Peter and Mary Alice Bennett Baumberger sailed the Yugoslavian coast for 3 weeks in June. "Grandmotherhood has come to me (recently) and is it ever fun!!" writes Marion Mundy Young, who now has 3. She and her husband continue the battle for the preservation of the Alexandria Historic Area. Continuing a project started by the Alexandria Bicentennial Commission, Seymour has been giving a merit scholarship to an Alexandria student planning to attend a VA college. This year's winner, a lovely, vibrant student and a graduate of St. Agnes was Alice Nostrand, daughter of Marshall Brent Nostrand (SBC '69) and granddaughter of Virginia McGuire Brent. Grace Lanier Brewer's family was beset by many serious illnesses during the past year including bypass surgery for Carlos in July '88. Happily he is now back to fulltime medical practice. Grace enjoyed seeing Ann Morrison Reams and Martha Clement '48 in Nashville in the spring.

Thank you all for sending news so that despite a month busy with grandson's graduation, staying with granddaughters in Hershey, etc., I was able to complete my class notes in time to take off for the beach. Whee! Please send suggestions for pertinent questions to be used on our 50th reunion questionnaire! My thought was to have the complete 50th scrapbook copied at about $10 or just to reproduce the questionnaires with a spiral binding at about half that amount. Di Greene Helfrich would like for us to do something more elaborate using lengthier questionnaires which could be used as a basis for writing up biographies and with then and now photos of everyone. She reckons this would cost about $25 per person (or per book, as some would not want the book). Please let me know your reactions to these alternative suggestions so we can reach a consensus.

Your notes are in and here we go! Travel, grandchildren, retirement, and TRAVEL seem to have dominated our activities this year. Some have discovered the Experiment in International Living and Elderhostel. Polly Pollard Kline and Cholly Jones Bendall had a marvelous trip through France in April studying pre-historic art in the caves one week, another spent with a family, and the last in Bordeaux visiting wineries, all in French! Pat Groesbeck Gordon and Ralph also used Elderhostel for their trip to the Ukraine for a month. It was "super", but she gained 5 lbs. "eating rotten food!" The Gordon clan heads for CT this Aug. for a reunion. Also with E.H., Julia Bristow visited Padua, Sorrento and spent 2 weeks in Perugia and Assisi.

"Merry Old England" and especially Stratford-on-Avon, was the place to be this past April, according to "Rudy" Rudolph Sellers and Phillip. It was the 425th birthday celebration of the "immortal bard" and they helped celebrate it in grand style. They have long been involved with the Montgomery Theatre of Shakespeare in their area. Happy news from Ade Jones Voorhees about the marriage of "Flo" Cameron Atherton to John Crichton of San Francisco. The Voorhees family has been enlarged by a marriage, and also a grandchild. Ade has taken the job of National Reunion Gifts Chairman at SBC and is "enjoying being involved again". And more good news from Elizabeth "Cam" Camlin of her marriage this past year to Thomas Maher, in Dayton, OH.

Had a totally undecipherable note from "Wheats" Young Call that I am certain bore good news. One of our classmates from Knoxville, TN, either Betsy Bowman Townsend or Jennie Keeling Mansfield, wrote so hurriedly about trips to Italy, Russia, Sweden, Finland and Denmark that she forgot to sign the card! Candace Greene with the support of children and friends, has returned to being a Satterfield, and is "content in a cottage on the Gulf of Mexico," in FL, where she has been visited by Virginia Wynn and other friends. "Tassie" Brooks Augustine was in Atlanta welcoming her 8th grandchild recently, and visited with Emily Albert Hanahan. She also sees Jane Pickens Church and "Moe" Christian Schley often. Sadly, she writes of the death of her husband in Nov. of last year. She is very much involved with Colonial Dames which brings her often to D.C. The news from Jean Love Albert is of the marriage of her youngest daughter in June, followed by a reunion of her family.

Helen Murchison Lane is busy, as usual, with boards, businesses and meetings, but she and Ed did find time for a wonderful cruise on the new Royal Viking Sun to Scandinavia and Russia, and they highly recommend it. Helen has been appointed head of a committee to have the rooms at the Elston Inn named in honor or memory of a loved one. If someone is interested, please contact her. The cost is $25,000. Ariana Jones Wittke is joining the SBC trip to Switzerland, and then on to Paris. Note: France no longer requires visas. Very good since Arie forgot to get one. As she said, "Sloth does pay off sometimes." For Margo Sibley Lewis and her husband it was a trip to Brazil, and a cruise down the Amazon, then up through the Caribbean to FL.

Last year was a busy one for Sue Criswell Bornschein. After 2 months in Algarve, she returned to open her artisans consignment shop on Torch Lake, MI. On closing in Oct., she circled the world, then skied in Feb., and on to FL! Legare "Jimmie" Thompson Robertson and her daughter went to Paris in May, but now she and Freddie, her husband, are recuperating from grandchildren sitting! Another mother-daughter team took an AJLA trip from Istanbul. Betty Ann "Bass" Norris and Neil crossed the Black Sea to Izmail, then went up the Danube, stopping along the way in Vienna. Her note contained sad news of the death of Pat Arms Brown's husband in April.

Dorothy "Tody" Corcoran Hartzler has a son and daughter-in-law in Albuquerque and a son, who, with his wife, left for Botswana in the Peace Corps. He teaches Communications in the College of Education and she teaches Eng. in a secondary school. El Myers Cole and Walter divide their time between Panama City and Tallahassee, and Betsy Gurley Hewson reports their move to Merritt Island, FL. Weddings are the theme for the Loos family. Bea Dingwell Loos has 2 this year. I think that is adequate. The dear friend of Louisa Lloyd for whom she has cared these past years, passed away, and she has moved to Springfield, VT to enjoy semi-retirement. Another retirement is reported by Palmer Holmes McIntire and her husband, Pope. And in the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mtns., Jessie Strickland Elcock and Walter are enjoying grandchildren, gardening, and all good things. For Jeanne Parham Coors and George, that included salmon fishing in Iceland, then on to London and Paris.

Children and grandchildren seem to occupy a lot of the retirement time of Bowdre Budd Poer and John, culminating in August with a reunion at Myrtle Beach. And the same seems to be true of Robin Evans Stroud and John. A "delightful" luncheon and get-together was enjoyed by Catherine Smart Grier and Anne Stubbs Fitzsimmons at the home of Louise Crawford Moorefield. Sally Bubb Bruch and John are still insurance brokers, although it sounds as if she is ready for them to retire. Their 3 children are all busy, a banker, social worker and marketing director of the NY Cotton Exchange. Sally observed, "Isn't it fun to imagine how we all look today?" Well, in 2 more years, 1991, our 45th reunion, we can all find out.

Ken and I happily traversed N. America this year, from Mexico through AZ (we love it) on to Chicago and down to KY, VA and FL, then back up to NH, VT and NY state, always looking at houses and property, and always coming home to Moorestown, NJ. Tomorrow we are off for a lake in Canada, and Oct. will see us in southern Italy with friends.

There are 149 of us listed in the class of '46. This letter has notes from 30. Next year is my last year as secretary, so let's make it a banner year and really put me to work! To those of you who did not write this year, please, start sending me your news right now! And thanks to all of you faithful who write every year. Remember 45th in '91!

Ann Preston Vick we salute you! We share your pride in your twin sons Tal and John who graduated from h.s. this year. Tal received the Chaplains Prize at VA Episcopal School. He is now a freshman at Stetson U. John, valedictorian at Woodberry Forest, was awarded a Jefferson Scholarship at U.Va. Ann will have many tales to tell at reunion about raising twins. Come find out how she handled graduation day with both ceremonies on the same day at the same hour.

Henrietta Hill Hubbard received the Woman of Achievement award for her many volunteer achievements. She initiated and implemented a literacy program in the Alabama prison system in an effort to reduce the 85% recidivism rate among illiterate inmates. In May, Henrietta and Charles visited Moscow, Leningrad and the Central Asiatic Republic of Uzbekistan where the Russians had just sent troops to quell the riots between the Uzbeks and Turks. Henrietta reports a democratic revolution is taking place, something she would never have anticipated in her SBC days.

Tink Springs Shannon married Martin J. Lichterman of Memphis, TN in May '88.

We extend our deepest sympathy to 3 classmates whose husbands died this year: Patricia Denning Hunt, Kay Leroy Wing and Dorothy Montague Choinoky. Our love and prayers are with each of you.

Bill Bailey Fritzinger reports that all 7 grandchildren are doing well as are the banker, architect, medical student and their parents. Dottie Barney Hoover and Maurice took a Sept. trip to Hilton Head, SC where their older daughter lives and an Oct. trip to Hawaii. In Wilton, CT, Dottie enjoys tennis, needlepointing, and her part-time work at The Complete Kitchen. Ann Belser Asher will bring pictures of 4 children and 5 grandchildren to reunion and hopefully her husband Norman. They have enjoyed 25 years in the same house in Bethesda, MD and 30 summers in Nantucket. Ann serves on the board of The Hospital for Sick Children and the Maryland chapter of the Nature Conservancy.

Sally Bianchi Foster and daughter Kate met in Australia last summer. Sally found Australia beautiful and extremely varied. Highlights were the historical sights especially Port Arthur, Tasmania and "The Rocks" area of Sydney. Best of all was a reunion on the family farm in Wangretta with Julie, a former exchange student who lived with the Fosters in 1973-74. Kate and Phil are home from their Peace Corps assignment in Africa. She is working for her doctorate at Princeton and he for a master's at Wharton. Sally and Bob attended a wedding in WY and Sally is as enthusiastic about our west as she is about Australia.

Edie Brooke Robertson's husband Peyton left Springer Mt., GA March 27 hiking on the Appalachian trail. When Edie wrote in early June he had reached Lexington, VA. His final destination is NYC where Edie will meet him and they will visit their daughter. Edie kept busy during this long separation by caring for her mother, doing volunteer work and remodeling a beach cottage at VA Beach. She also visited son Brooke in Boulder, CO. Son Peyton received his MA in Planning at U.Va.'s Architecture School. Veda Brooks Norfolk's daughter Nancy is a second year law student at Suffolk U., Boston. Veda and her husband own and she manages the Four Seasons/Norfolk Tours. They are members of the National Tour Association and plan tours, conventions and incentive travel to New Orleans and nationwide. Judy Campbell Campbell was a wonderful hostess to Dotsy Wood Letts and her mother who visited La Jolla, CA several months following her father's death. Dotsy reported "she made the trip for us... it was just great being with her." Judy and Rodney visited Santa Fe, NM last Aug.

Dolly Clark Rasmussen is volunteering in the office of Barbara Bush. She spent 10 years answering the President's mail and finds this an interesting change. Husband John retired from Pepco and is now a Senior Research Scientist and professor at George Washington U. Dolly and John went to Scotland and England last summer and enjoyed 3 days at Wimbledon. Bookie Coryell Feldman's 3-yr. house renovation in Conway, MI was completed last Nov. and the family enjoyed their first Christmas in a settled home in as many years. Bookie and Jack's winter CA stay was cut short by Jack's need for surgery. He was operated on at John Hopkins Hospital in MD for prostate cancer and is doing beautifully. Mary Ellen Davis Gettel continues her teaching at Marquette U. 2 delightful students, newlyweds from China, live with her as does a 1-yr.-old "new to me" setter spaniel dog that she is trying to train. Mary Ellen's youngest child assists the director of Lacoste School of the Arts in Southern France and she is contemplating a trip there.

Ackie Easter Henderson and Ed moved to a new house they built in the country about 5 miles west of Charlottesville. They are now embarking on a total landscaping project with the help of SBC graduate Rusty Lilly. B.G. Elmore Gilleland and Guy both retired in June. Lynn, their youngest daughter was married in July. Following the wedding, B.G. and Guy traveled with a group from Winter Park, FL to Egypt and Kenya. This fall they started remodeling their house. B.G. will be escorting a group to the Oberammergau Passion Play in Germany and then through Switzerland in the summer of 1990. Like to join? There are still a few spaces open.

Barbara Favill Marshall commented, "My how everyone else has changed," when attending her husband's 40th reunion at Dartmouth. 2 married daughters were visited in Boston and 2 grandchildren. Barbara continues her interest in the Chicago symphony - Ravinia and the American Symphony Orchestra League - but looks forward to winter retirement in AZ soon! Julia Freels Chwalik continues to enjoy genealogy. She had a trip combining research in Chester, PA and sightseeing in Brandywine valley with the Coral Gables Garden Club. Her trip included Longwood Gardens, Winterthur and the Amish countryside. Julia's husband teaches at Palmetto Senior High. Debby Freeman Cooper wrote while having her kitchen gutted and re-done! Moe Gamble Booth's husband Lea retired 6 years ago and they moved to a smaller, cozier house. They have 2 grandchildren under a year, 2 married children and a handsome 31 year old single son. Moe enjoys French, gardening and finds Lynchburg a nice place to live.

Ann Green Pangels and Heinz had a great year and enjoyed several family weddings and a summer vacation in Myrtle Beach, SC. Nell Greening Keen went to London last March to visit her daughter Elinor who was taking courses at Sotheby's. Nell's son John, 28, with an MA from U.Va. and a Ph.D. from Chapel Hill is writing a history book. Her son Hampton is in a management training program at S.E. Bank in Miami. Nell is in the real estate business. She has served as President of the Museum Society, President of the League Board and a member of several Tampa town organizations. Jo Gulick Grant went to Chatham, NJ in March for a reunion with Sally Bianchi Foster and Anne McNeer Blanken. They practised step-singing in preparation for our 40th reunion. Jo's son Nick is still flying helicopters for the Navy out in San Diego. In Lyme, NH, Jo is a housewife, antique dealer and volunteer ESL teacher. She finds it good to put down roots after 27 years of Foreign Service wanderings.

Garland Hunter Davies retired after 17 years at GA State U. Her immediate plans are to travel with Nick and take life easy. Betty Hutchens McCaleb is president of the Women's Group (250 strong) at First Methodist Church in Huntsville, AL. Betty and John celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary in June. Stokie Kyle Kimpel visited her daughter Alice in Germany in June and enjoyed her grandson. She stopped off in CT on her return for her mother's 90th birthday. Stokie's 2 sons, their wives and children joined the festivities. Stokie is happy to be home again in the "Land of Enchantment" Rio Rancho, NM. Elsie Landram Layton was disappointed that the SBC May trip to Vienna was cancelled. She says it's a wonderful trip and that if offered next spring we should all sign up.

Kay Leroy Wing is continuing her work at the Bank. She sold her home and bought a townhouse in July. She had the fun of decorating and starting with all new furniture. Kay's children and friends have been supportive and she is most appreciative of letters from classmates. Peachey Lillard Manning moved to a new house in Bryn Mawr, PA last Dec. 4 daughters, 2 son-in-laws and 2 granddaughters arrived shortly after moving day. A hot tub provides lots of fun and the place has a Roman orgy look at times. Peachey plays tennis weekly with Polly Plummer Mackie '49. Peachey spends part of the winter in Naples, FL. Bonnie Loyd Crane commutes between FL and MA and has traveled twice this year to Germany. Daughter Melinda and husband Juergen Engel expected a child in Oct. Son Matthew is at U.Va. and Amanda is in Graduate School Film Program at USC in Los Angeles. Bonnie's gallery is a must for those in the Boston area.

Helen Missirez Lorenz finds teaching exciting. In addition to her work at the Hockaday School, Helen serves on the College Board and the Exam Preparation Committee for French aptitude exams. Helen vacationed in Spain and France. Cora Jane Morningstar Spiller moved to an 1824 house in Oakland, KY. She drove through Sweet Briar last summer and found it beautiful but the changes gave her some difficulty in navigating. Cora Jane's daughter was married in Sept. Pat Owens Purvis and Tom visited Scotland's Highlands and the Isle of Anglesey. Thompson IV celebrated his first birthday in July at his grandparents home in Fort Worth, TX. Lisanne, SBC '78 lives in Mt. Vernon, NY and expected her first child last Aug. Anne Peyton Cooper is a gal on the move! She and Jim visited Africa, Italy, France and the Bahamas in '89. Son Jim is working for a newspaper and Nancy is a student at Kenyon College.

Mary Virginia Roberts Mellow and Jim have spent a lot of time traveling. Visiting their children took them to Atlanta, Pittsburg, Charlottesville, and Honolulu. Last spring they visited Ecuador and the Galapagos Islands and Peru-Lima and Machu Picchu. Last summer they enjoyed their cottage on Crystal Lake, MI. Joyce Roseborough White has 4 children and 9 grandchildren. Her husband is retired. They are looking for a smaller house. Lola Steele Shepherd stayed in CA this year and her daughter and family visited her escaping the MA summer heat. Lola is active on the tennis courts and enjoys hiking in the Sierras. Our thanks to Nancy Storey White who will prepare our class scrapbook for reunion. Nancy and Ed, our summer scholars, attended Cambridge U. in July. Nancy had eye surgery at John Hopkins last fall to improve a condition caused by an accident 11 years ago.

Mary Dame Stubbs Broad's first grandchild Doug is named after his father and grandfather. They skied at Big Sky, MT, a truly beautiful area and went to Yellowstone by snow coach. They saw lots of buffalo and elk and are optimistic about the revitalization of the park after the fire. Betty Todd Landen reports all is well with her family. Their third grandchild was due last Sept. Mim Wyse Linsky's news is the birth last May of her first grandchild Adam Michael Linsky. The only problem is that son David and his wife live in Vero Beach, FL and Mim is in Leominster, MA. Mim finds retirement great. She is playing a lot of tennis, doing the books for her husband's business and working on Synagogue projects and generally enjoying life.

Thanks for writing. I'll see you soon! Our 40th reunion will be the best ever.

The class sends its sympathies to Mary Hill Noble Caperton, whose husband, Bernard died last spring.

Well, you "shoulda" been there! Reunion was wonderful! There were 37 of us there and, as usual, everyone looked terrific. Even the 19 husbands who came had great fun. Our class picnic was lovely and the attendance of several of our favorite faculty members was an added highlight. The lectures were excellent—Mr. Hapala's was full to overflowing, of course. Lots of tennis in the afternoon. This was followed by a sumptuous feast and big band dancing with a short concert by the Alum Sweetones at "half time". As founders of the group, we were proud of the five from our class singing—they sounded great—as they always did—remember "Red Riding Hood"?

At our brief, loud, (our poor, intrepid leader couldn't get us to stop yakking) class meeting, we learned up-to-date lyrics to the tune of our Senior Show finale and our "skit" was very well received at the huge, long, combined-classes convocation Saturday morning. Thanks to Mary Jane Roos Fenn for thinking it up and writing the song. We sang in raincoats and burst forth in Bermuda shorts at the end, commemorating shorts being allowed for the first time during our era. There were lots of references in all the class skits to how strict the rules were "in our day". The current students, however, treat SBC traditions perhaps even more reverently than we did. Lantern Night, for instance, is very important again. One of our theories is that many of them have had their family traditions interrupted—or there's not enough time for them—and therefore they cling to the permanence and endurance of Sweet Briar.

Kudos again to Mary Jane for also accepting the presidency of our class for the next 5 years. Dilly Johnson Jones did such a wonderful job—let's hear a big hand for her too! And we're very lucky to have Mary Ann Robb Freer agree to take over as Fund Agent. She'll be a very conscientious treasurer for us. Our retiring agent, Weezie Aubrey McFarland did a super job. Along with the special reunion fund raising unit, (Jean Gillespie Walker and Vaughn Inge Morrisette, heads) we were able to set a new 35th reuning class record. Although our goal was only $54,000, we ended up with over $69,000!!! Many, many thanks to all of you who gave. No surprises for class secretary—you're stuck with me for another 5 years. I tried to nominate several of you who weren't there, but to no avail!

Our class stayed together in the newly renovated Randolph. I don't mean just new paint and new fixtures in the johns—we're talking carpeting, elevators, and air conditioning! We were the envy of the whole reunion. The scrapbook with all the forms you so kindly filled out will be in the Alumnae Office in case you ever visit the campus. It was great fun to read and to see the pictures of people we haven't seen for years and years. One of the most interesting parts was "how did SBC help you". Nearly everyone had some version of "SBC helped me to be me and gave me the confidence and tools to like and work well with people and make something of myself". I liked what Peggy Ewart Riter said too: "SBC made me an Ass and I still am one!" Our volunteer work seems to center around church, various boards of good works efforts, and museums.

Reunion was just a rendezvous for Ruth Frye Deaton and Hugo, Ann Collins Teachout and Bill, Dilly Johnson Jones and Paul. They went right off to England from SBC. While there, they went up to Scotland and stayed at Bob and Jane Keating Taylor's wonderful inn, Ardsheal House. What a neat idea! Or if your vacation is in the winter, you could stay at Guy and Peggy Jones Steuart's Half Moon Hotel in Jamaica or rent a house from Mary Ann Bowns Bell in the British Virgin Islands.

The big hobbies and sports are gardening, tennis and golf. Hiking, biking, and sailing are often mentioned also. And there's considerable interest in nature and environmental issues.

One of the interesting things many of us did during reunion was to visit the lovely, rustic, second home of Karen Looker Hyde and Tim—a retreat in the mountains of Amherst County. It's a beautiful site, just a half mile from the Appalachian Trail. They plan to retire there. Like others of us, they are enjoying the empty nest.

Everybody seems to have more travel in mind and with more and more retirements coming about most of these plans should come true. Some are living it, such as Anne Brooke, who lives in Wales where she helps non-Welsh speaking parents use and enjoy the language with their preschool children. Sounds like a modern How Green Was My Valley. Her goal is to prevent the extinction of the Welsh language.

It was good to see Liz Carper Hoffman after all these years. She, of course, is still gorgeous and in perfect shape. She has won all sorts of golf championships in Birmingham. They are retiring to an island in the Gulf.

There were a lot of children's weddings going on and glowing reports of grandchildren. Most of our children are interestingly employed, e.g., Winkie Bierbower (daughter of Doreen Booth Hamilton) is a free lance artist and mother of 2, Kevin Ludeke (son of Jerry Driesbach) is finishing his masters in Agricultural Economics and his brother, Scott, is teaching English in Northern Japan. Lisa Plummer (daughter of Sally Gammon) is becoming a vet-tech, brother, David is completing a masters in geology/hydrology and sister, Nancy, is a research assistant in the infant lab at CO U. Hospital. Jody Booze-Daniels (daughter of Jo Nelson) directs the horticultural gardens at VPI and brother, Jay, is a tugboat captain. Jim Reed (son of Joan Oram) is an IBM marketing analyst in Melbourne, Australia. Lisa Davis (daughter of Joy Parker) is a petroleum engineer, brother, Clark, a chemical physicist and brother, Charlie, a TV producer. Michelle (daughter of Shirley Poulson) is an architect. Steve Smith (son of Ruth Sanders) is an licensed surveyor with his parents' firm while brother, Ed, is a dentist, and brother Glenn is in real estate development in FL, where the Smiths have a second home. Bet Pope (daughter of Betty Walker) is an interior designer and sister, Margaret, an investment analyst while brother, Gene, Jr., is a commercial real estate broker. There are, of course, too many children to mention all of them. There are also untold lawyers, doctors, bankers, teachers, computer specialists, and advertising people, of whom we can all be proud too. You'll all just have to go see our book at SBC!

Both of Anne Sheffield Hale's children have been married since the last notes. Anne is serving on the board of the Rosalyn Carter Institute for Human Development. We haven't heard from Marilyn Clark Leathers in a long time. She writes that she's been in the hospitality industry for over 17 years and has been the convention planner for the City of Phoenix Convention Center for 7 years. She can put CHSE after her name as a Certified Hotel Sales Exec. I liked Lamar Ellis Oglesby's description of herself as a woman of the '50's—one husband, 4 children, 2 children-in-law, 1 grandchile, 2 houses, 2 cars, a red pick-up and a dog. Sounds more like small town America than Atlanta! B.B. Smith Stamats has gotten her initials too. After 2 1/2 yrs. of classes at the NY Botanical Garden and 2 yrs. apprenticeship, she is certified in landscape design and has opened her own business: Stamats Landscape Design, Inc. Martha Dabney Leclere has left Colonial Williamsburg after 35 yrs. and now lives in Esmont, VA, and Roger is in real estate in Charlottesville. Like us, they are really enjoying country living.

Vaughn Inge Morrisette's hobby is 6 grandchildren under 2! Several of us, including me, despair of ever having any! Faith Rahmer Croker is settling nicely in her beautiful new home in Williamsburg. Henry and Joan Polter Bickel are finally in their new home in Louisville—more of a change for Joan than for some of us. Since they were living in the home she grew up in, it is really only her second house! They were on a cruise, so couldn't make reunion. Nancy Moody is still doing legal and accounting work for family trusts and still very involved with horses. Her stepdaughter, Moira, is her assistant. Maggie Mohlman Degler has left the advertising business after 27 years for the kinder and gentler life of the housewife and volunteer. Barbara Matthews Holley retired last year too. Sissy Morris Long hopes to find time from all the book work connected with the family farm and trust to write and get something published. MaryLee McGinnis McClain still has her flower business, but plans to retire and they will move to Charleston, SC (!!) where they already own a home. One of their daughters is here also. Margot Lotterhouse Smith owns and manages her own retail office supply and printing business employing 11 people, and finds that the computer has revolutionized things for her. Again, here, there are too many interesting things about everyone to mention them all. We are a fascinating gang! So many of us mentioned on the questionnaire that one of the great accomplishments of our lives was seeing our adolescents grow into responsible adults. Keep up the good work!

My gang has all just returned from a family reunion of my mother's clan—53 people, ranging in age from 3 months to 95! Don't see how anyone lives up North anymore. The SBC reunion was a total ego trip for me since it was the first time my SBC friends had seen my art work. Their enthusiasm was most encouraging. Betty Gene Orr Atkinson and E.W. were even nice enough to buy one of the pictures I had entered in the Alum Art Show! It was a Charleston scene and I have had reproductions made of it which are doing very well. I've made a career decision and am giving up a lot of other stuff to try to go big-time with my watercolors—advertising in a national catalog and everything. When I'm famous, you can say you knew me when! In the meantime, do send me a copy of your Christmas letter so I'll have something for next year's article.

This time last year we had just been at SBC for our 30th reunion! Is the way the weeks, months and years fly by a function of age, or is it just that we all lead such busy lives?

Elizabeth Gallo Skladal, in Anchorage, AK, spent several weeks in June in Lynchburg. Elizabeth is always in VA at that time of year, is listed as "Gallo" in the phone book and would love to hear from classmates in June 1990. Son Joe graduated Aug. '89, from TX A & M in marketing and management. Older son Wayne is married, lives in Anchorage and works for Sohio. George practices law and Elizabeth teaches 5th grade and performs with the AK Chamber Singers.

Edie Knapp Clark in Beaverton, OR, took the year off to do work at the OR Graduate Center studying recombinant DNA. Her husband Rog is with Sears. Son Andy is a lawyer in Portland and Jim is assistant property manager for the Shakespearean Festival Assn. in Ashland, OR. Edie wrote that Teeny Bell Kirsch's husband Jay was faculty advisor to a recent MIT graduate who lived with the Clarks while attending Edie's school, Catlin-Gabel.

Imagine my amazement at receiving an envelope with the 20th Century Fox logo on it! Inside was a note plus a high school reunion letter from Beedy Tallow Ritchie. Beedy did it—she moved to L.A. To quote: "Moving from the east coast to the west, from a 5 bedroom house in the suburbs with a yard to a 1 bedroom Century City highrise, from Establishment mannerisms to California casual, from national politics to the international communications scene has all been a real culture shock." Son Chad, 28, a Duke graduate, travels all over the world in a sports marketing business; Hank, an '86 Tulane graduate, lives with 4 friends in Beedy's D.C. house and works for E.D.S.; Laura moved to CA with Beedy and will be a sophomore U.S.C. Beedy is assistant to Charles Wick, former Director of USIA, now on the board of Rupert Murdoch's NEWS CORP.

Betsy Robinson Taylor bought a house in Santa Fe, NM. She played the Good Witch in a production of The Wizard of Oz and loved working with 32 Munchkins. June Neighbors McAllister and her husband of 2 years, Tommy, moved to Salt Lake City, UT. Both are Fort Worth natives so they feel like adventurers. All our classmates seem to be on the move.

Sue Rosson Tejml, will join her husband Emil in Dallas next year after son John graduates from h.s. Emil is V.P. of International Sales for Hoechst-Celanese and travels world-wide. Sue will close her law office in Bay City, TX, but re-open one in Dallas. The Tejmls enjoy being grandparents to daughter Tamara's daughter; Tamara is also an attorney, practising in Corpus Christi. Bette Rae Sivals Davis works part-time in her daughter's needlepoint shop in Midland, TX, and enjoys bird-watching. The Davises should be grandparents by now.

Dianne Stafford Mayes' cookbook, Rush Hour Super-Chef, has been a great success, going into its third printing. She is editing a new book, It's Christmas, due in stores in Sept. The Mayes' older son is getting married in Greensboro in Oct.; their younger son John is in telecommunications in Dallas. Dianne travels both with the promotion of her books and also with her husband Roy who has an underground food storage business. What a treat to hear from Suzanne Brown Henry after years of silence. Suzanne has a psychiatric practise in St. Louis, MO, and also teaches at St. Louis Psychoanalytic Institute, courses for doctors, nurses, social workers, and nursery school teachers. Her older daughter is married and a pediatric resident at Chapel Hill, NC; her son is in graduate school at Berkeley in Russian Literature; and her younger daughter is a h.s. junior.

Two more classmates who broke a long silence were Joan Cabaniss Harrison in Birmingham, AL, and Marion Thorington Conover in Huntsville, AL. Joan and Randy have 3 adorable grandchildren. She and Pinkie Matheson Rowe '57 got together when Pinkie was in B'ham to lecture on wildflowers, and reminisced about Camp Ogontz and SBC. Pinkie is often quoted in the Garden Club of America's Bulletin, on wildflowers. Marion has 2 grandchildren, ages 5 and 2. Her youngest son Jack is a Merit Scholar at Brown U. Marietta Eggleston Burleigh works full time as a commodity trader in the Cotton Exchange Bldg. overlooking the Mississippi River. Son Stephen and his wife Carrie came back to Memphis for Stephen to join Marietta's husband Robert in pension administration; young Doug opened an advertising firm in Dec. in Memphis; daughter Kathryn is in a master's program; and daughter Fontaine, her husband and baby live in Davis, CA.

Ann McCullough Floyd and Tom will be moving into their new home at Wachesaw Plantation, Murrell's Inlet, SC, in the early fall. Tom's new Merrill-Lynch office will open in Myrtle Beach at about the same time, so the Floyds are really busy. Ann wrote that they are right on the Inland Waterway with a golf course adjacent so they can offer lots of activities to visitors. The Floyds spent a night with Sandra Elder Harper and Tom at their vacation home at Kiawah Island. Ann sees her cousin Julia McCullough Shivers in Atlanta.

Although I have not seen Caroline Sauls Shaw for some time, I talk to her on the phone. Robert has retired as the Director of the Atlanta Symphony but keeps a busy schedule as guest conductor of orchestras around the world. Robert was in Cincinnati in the spring to conduct the May Festival Orchestra and Chorus in the Mozart Requiem. I got down for the concert, which was sublime, and had a quick visit backstage with Robert after the performance. Caroline's son Alex is just completing a year abroad in London and will return to W&L in the fall;

Thomas will be in 7th grade at Westminster. The Shaws are spending the summer at their home in France.

Claire Cannon Christopher's daughter Ashley graduated from U.Va. in June; she says the ceremony on the Lawn was a "glorious spectacle". She had a great adventure with Jane Ellis Covington '59: the two of them joined Liz Few Penfield '59 and Teddy Hill Washer for a trek, to see the gorillas in Zaire and go on a tenting safari in Kenya. Teddy and Liz have their own safari company. Dana Dewey Woody's son Jonathan graduated from UNC-Chapel Hill with a BA in history, and is entering Bowman Gray Coll. of Medicine in Winston-Salem to follow in his father Joe's footsteps. Dana and Nina Hopkins Raine '59 have started a "relaxing book club" with a few friends and neighbors.

Elizabeth McCutcheon Williams is moving; she is now working in Bill Pope's (husband of Eleanor Cain Pope) law office and is going to school for her masters in Library Science. Betsy, widowed 2 years ago, keeps very busy. Daughter Elizabeth is asst. to the pres. of the College of Charleston and is properly attended to by her godmother Jane Oxner Waring; Lucy, a U.Va. graduate, teaches French at Heathwood Hall School in Columbia after a year in France as a Fulbright Scholar; Mary Boykin graduated this year from Heathwood Hall but did not have her sister as a teacher. Betsy sees Eleanor Pope who is Zone Chairman for the Garden Club of America. The Popes' son Joe is in the Peace Corps in Senegal and Mason is at W&L.

Linda MacPherson Gilbert and Dan have been in Louisville for 4 years where Linda works at the Univ. of Louisville as academic advisor to non-traditional students and as program coordinator for the Shelby Campus. Dan's work is with older adults and with troubled children. Their children are in IL, CA, SC, and VA, so they "stay on the road." They love their mountain house at Black Mountain, NC.

Last summer Nancy Hawbaker Gilbert and Carter attended a meeting of the European Ichthyological Congress in Budapest, Hungary. They also traveled in Germany, Austria and Italy before returning home to Gainesville, FL. Nancy also spent a hot (100 degree) afternoon with Ethel Ogden Burwell in Grosse Pointe last summer. Nancy loved seeing pictures of the Burwells' daughter's recent wedding. Cornelia Long Matson and Dick will spend the month of Sept. in France, . . . "eating, drinking, and buying for the shop". Cornelia is in her 6th year as a purveyor of fine French antiques on Osprey, FL (Sarasota area). She had a wonderful reunion at St. Catherine's in Richmond, in April. She stayed with Patty Williams Twohy and saw a lot of Tibby Moore Gardner, Mary Johnson Campbell and Molly Archer Payne. Of their 6 combined children, the Matsons have only 2 left in school. Cornelia's daughter Anna will earn her medical degree from UC at San Francisco next year and David teaches science in Rockland Co., NY. Helen Burkett Stephens spent the winter in Vero Beach, FL, decorating her new apartment. She entertained many houseguests and played tennis. Helen takes a summer rental in Darien, CT, and stopped to visit Stephanie Butan Profaci in Chestertown, MD, on her way north.

Lots of news from the "Virginia contingent". Dorothy "Poogie" Wyatt Shields, in Greenwood, VA, has a new job as guidance coordinator in an excellent public middle school; she resigned her additional job as a part-time DCE. She now has time to become a better counselor and to raise veggies, which she calls her true vocation. Poogie has a new interest, writing, mostly about justice and community. Her 4 kids are all out of their teens and "come home frequently between studies and other adventures." Caroline McIvor Dews, in Farmville, VA, is suffering from "tuitionitis" with 2 in college. Carl, 25, has graduated and is in CA; Chuck, 21, will be a senior at Lynchburg Coll.; and Andy, 18, will be sophomore at William & Mary and plans to go to medical school. Carolyn sees Elaine Schuster, in Oklahoma City, when she comes to SBC for meetings. And from Richmond, a quick line from Tibby Moore Gardner also telling of the St. Catherine's reunion; she said that no one had changed in 35 years! She has talked to Eleanor Humphrey Schnabel, Ginny Tyson Lawrence and to Dianne Chase Monroe.

Patty Williams Twohy's older daughter Patricia was married in July 1988 to Thomas Sharpley, Jr., of Savannah; they live in the Buckhead area of Atlanta. Flo Buchanan Heyward and Tabb's daughter Mary Schlesinger was a bridesmaid so the Heywards were in attendance. Patricia commended her friends Tibby Gardner and Mary Johnson Campbell for holding her hand and sustaining her through the chaos of the wedding. She also wrote of the St. Catherine's reunion and her pleasure at having Cornelia Long Matson as her houseguest. Joan Nelson Bargamin works 6 days a week in a friend's boutique and is "up to her eyeballs" in church work. She also does freelance travel planning. Her husband Paul took early retirement but he and a friend have begun a courier service, delivering kidney dialysis all over the state, to hospitals and homes. Paul, Jr. is in Richmond working on his MA in International Politics and on the Republican Senate Comm.; Stephen was married last Sept. in the U.Va. chapel and he and his bride Kristen also live in Richmond where they work for insurance companies and are studying for their MBA's. The Bargamins go to dinner and plays often with Louise Dunham Williams and Harold and Joan and Louise "do their own thing" more than occasionally. Joan also sees her sophomore roommate Ann Watkins Custard who lives in Hampton, VA.

Jon and Peggy Fossett Lodeesen enjoyed all the Inaugural activities in Jan.; Peggy is president of the Chevy Chase Women's Republican Club and calls herself a "political activist". She is still teaching Latin at Sidwell Friends' School in Washington. Son David attended ice hockey camp in Canada this summer. Julie Boothe Perry's first grandchild, Elizabeth, was born to Army and Sarah Perry; they live in Atlanta. Daughter Katherine married an "Aussie" and lives outside Melbourne. Robin, who is getting married in Oct., works for a book-publishing company. Julie is still in p.r. and enjoys restoring old houses in Alexandria, VA.

Ceci Dickson Banner and Roger visited their son Larry in China in the summer of 1988 for 5 weeks. Larry returned from Xian at Christmas after 18 months of teaching. Ceci travels a great deal with her consulting business; although her firm specializes in independent schools, she says her favorite clients are 2 zoos in Detroit and Providence. Daughter Jenny evaluates both hardware and software for the Labor Dept.; Larry has returned to grad. school; and Becky is in Vet School at Tuskegee. The Banners have just moved into a new home outside Leesburg. Eleanor Humphrey Schnabel and Hank are slowly working their way down the East Coast. Hank has accepted a position with the clothing company "Britches" so they will be moving from NJ to VA, probably Alexandria, around Sept. 1. She says that her girls are "thriving". Hope Sparger Hanbury enjoyed a Feb. visit with her father in Venice, FL. She and husband Harry recently remodelled the kitchen in their Fire Island beach house. Hope says that Citibank keeps her "far too busy!"

Joan Lamparter Downs wrote an interesting card about a trip that she and her friend Steven Goldberg took to Italy this spring. They have family with a lovely restored 18th c. farmhouse and stable outside a hill town, where "... the slopes (were) covered with yellow finestra and broad fields of scarlet poppies resembling a landscape by Monet." Steven is chairman of the Sociology Dept. at City Coll. of CUNY. Joan is Editor-in-Chief of a new women's feature magazine, Your Family. Look for it on the stands in Sept. Margaret Shannon has had to retire, for the time being, from her profession as a researcher due to health problems. They do not seem to have slowed Margie down since she finds time to do myriad volunteer jobs. Margie is active in NYC's St. James Episcopal Church parish as well as 2 others; she volunteers in a soup kitchen and an overnight shelter. She also helps at a nursing home and at a senior center, and performs with the St. James handbell choir. She recently served as president of the Ivy Club, the oldest Republican Club in NYC. Get well soon, Margie!

Ruth Frame Salzberg and Bob just moved to Farmington, CT, and still find time to balloon. Weren't they just great at Reunion? Ruth has several jobs: she is a full-time secretary and also does free-lance writing; she also handles several accounts for a new advertising firm. Their married son is going to make the Salzbergs grandparents in Oct. Their daughter just completed a 3,360-mile bike trip from Seattle to Atlantic City for the Lung Assn. I got a quick line from Adele Scott Caruthers, written before she flew to Seattle for the Consecration of a friend, Vincent Warner, as Bishop of Washington. Adele returned to a new job as occupational therapist at a small acute care hospital in Marlboro, MA, about 25 mi. from her home in Wellesley. She gets to Lynchburg fairly often to visit her parents and says that SBC is prettier than ever.

Elizabeth "Bessie" Smith Flynn, Edgartown, MA, is a grandmother; daughter Cindy had a baby boy last Sept. in Denver. Son Skip was married this June in MD; he works for Hewlett-Packard in Atlanta. Bessie wrote how much she enjoyed Reunion.

Ethel Ogden Burwell's son Armistead III graduated from h.s. in June and will enter U.Va. in the fall. With Lisa (SBC '84) and her husband Glenn Reichard in the D.C./MD area and Ethel, Jr. (SBC '82) living and working in Leesburg, VA, all the Burwell young are close together; makes visiting much easier for all. The Burwells had a great trip to England and France last summer. Armistead has taken early retirement from Chrysler but keeps busy with many projects. Ethel continues her admissions work at University Liggett School in Grosse Pointe, MI. Ina Hamilton Hart graduated from McCormick Theological Seminary in Chicago in June with a Masters of Divinity; her 3 sons and her daughter-in-law celebrated with her. She did an internship and has now been called as the pastor of the Presbyterian Church in Kingsville, OH. Ina will be ordained to the ministry on Dec. 3. Sons Jim (23, grad. of U.Wis.) and Fred (19, sophomore at Miami U. of OH) will be there but Bob (25, married and working in Seattle) will be unable to make it. Ina's sisters Sally Staub SBC '61 and Brooke Cressall SBC '62 hope to attend. "One sad note is that I am getting divorced..." writes Ina. "I am beginning life again in all new directions."

In January, on Eddie's and my 29th wedding anniversary, daughter Martha had a baby girl, Katherine Sarah—"Katie". I spent 2 weeks with the Schencks to help with the baby. What a treat! We are having a family reunion in northern MI because Don, Martha and Katie leave for 2 years in Nairobi, Kenya, the 1st of Oct. Don will be Asst. Regional Security Officer for the Embassy and all U.S. agencies in Kenya. Any of you who are traveling there, be sure to contact Don and Martha Schenck; they would love to see you! Lee and Bob bought a house in Clarksville, TN, in the spring so Anne and I went down for a long week-end in May. Lee is victim-witness coordinator for 2 counties working out of the district attorney's office. Bob is in administration with the TN State Patrol in Nashville. I am back among the ranks of the gainfully employed! I am development director for the Dayton Opera. I'm supposed to be part-time but everyone knows how that is! I was elected to the Vestry of St. Paul's Epis. Church and still sing in the choir and chair the Worship and Arts Commission. The Garden Club of Dayton is a pet project too; I'm serving as PR/Magazine chairman. Eddie and I plan to go to Kenya at least once while the Schencks are there.

Many thanks to all who took the time to write. As usual, I am amazed at how productive you are! So many of you lead really interesting lives and contribute so much to this world. BRAVO!

Mig Garrity Sturr is really into stenciling, teaching 8 classes a week at her community college, running her business, "Custom Color" and giving other classes and seminars at her home studio. Daughter Sharon is going to be married in Feb. and Dixanne continues teaching in Williamsburg. Dixon is working at the Johns Hopkins physics lab. And yet another reminder of my freshman ordeal with physics came from Laura Conneral Lawton who is teaching h.s. physics and trying to remember all that Mrs. Rappaport taught us.

Nearby in VA, Mary Louise Kelly Moore is back to gardening now that she is no longer president of the garden club. Son Mark graduated from W&L and married Lee from Hollins. Thomas is a jr. at Wake Forest, and Timothy is college shopping for next year. Elizabeth Farmer Owens' daughter just finished her sophomore year at Hollins and son Douglas has returned to Westminster College from a month in France and England. The chairman of the English department at Charlottesville High is Julia Shields who is not going to England for a change. Down the road at the "Patch," Jocelyn Palmer Connors and Tom are happy as ever at SBC, now into their 4th year there. She has seen a lot of our Alumnae Board members, Anne Allen Symonds and Nancy Hudler Keuffel. They also saw Ann Ritchey Baruch and went to the wedding of Barby Ross Goode's daughter in Charlotte last April. Ann's son Ritchie is a senior at U. Penn., president of Fiji and co-captain of the varsity soccer and lacrosse teams. Marcy is a jr. at Wittenburg, studying voice and hoping for a career in the performing arts. David is entering 7th grade at the Haverford School where Mom is still on the Board. Ann is also doing about a dozen other volunteer things. Chloe Fort and Alice Allen Smythe also went to the Goode wedding. Alice's daughter Elliott graduated from Duke, son Jordon is at Lazard Freres in NY and Henry is a rising sophomore at Princeton. Alice is thoroughly enjoying her decorating business and the opportunity to work with her brother's architectural firm in NY. Alice spent July 4th weekend with Mina Walker Wood and Robin and Ray Henley Thompson and Mike on the Cowpasture River. Then she saw Macon Winfree Hilton and Bob at their wonderfully restored house on the river.

Macon sends words of encouragement to Barbara Pearsall Muir and Angus who are restoring an 1834 house in Fredericksburg, VA where Angus has an internal medicine/hematology/oncology practice. Their son Cameron enters U.Va. med school this fall and Heather will be at Mary Washington College. Leslie is a freshman in h.s. and has become a good candidate for SBC - she rides! But mostly, they all miss us in Cleveland. Another ex-Cleveland, though much longer gone, is Judy Whitacre Snider who still does counseling with individuals from her home and probably with a little help from her Macintosh. She even used it to design the logo for her husband Dave's new consulting business. I too love my Mac and have now written and illustrated 3 books on the little beast. Judy and Dave are selling their 30 foot sailboat as they have just acquired a 31 footer which should be great for some longer cruises on the Great Lakes and elsewhere. Dru McEachern Martin writes that "Will" is a sophomore at Duke. He is a member of SAE and still travels the country sailing. Sounds like my daughter Heidi who will be in the Port Huron Mackinaw race this year... a devoted "boat bum," but by day a marketing consultant for a law publisher and by night an artist with her first showing at a gallery in Cleveland this spring.

Down GA way, Anne Dunlap Youmans reports that Cleveland finished at Holyoke in May and now works for Delta Airlines. Anne is still with Ship and Shore (the travel business) and her son George, Jr. graduated from W&L and also is working in Atlanta. Daughter Anne Brooks is still at home and George Sr. is hard at work as Macon's Chevrolet dealer. In Tacoma, Martha Baum Sykes continues to practice law. She has recently argued 2 cases at the GA Supreme Court and had an article published in the Georgia State Bar Journal in May '89. Son Matthew is a member of the Harvard Glee Club and majoring in East Asian Languages and Cultures. Her daughter Suzanne is at Converse, planning a journalism major. Down south of FL gulf coast, southeast of Gainesville, Peg Pullis Herrick and husband have just bought a 101 year old home which they are hoping to renovate. Call Barbara Muir for a dose of sympathy. Back at the Briar Patch - see how I miss the ol' place! - Mary Jane Schroder Oliver says Loren is better than ever after major surgery during Nov. Mary Jane continues as "Artist in Residence" in the Amherst School System and also has been doing a lot of singing. The whole family journeyed by Amtrack to New Orleans after Christmas. Their son Jasper won a concerto competition in C'ville and has chosen the College of Wooster in OH from among 5 performance scholarships he was offered. On Mother's Day, Jasper gave a violin recital in the SBC Chapel and Mary Jane accompanied him in one song. That had to be very special. Another classmate keeping one foot in the door at SBC is Beth Johnson Phillips whose daughter Eleanor Ann is a happy sophomore. Sandy and Jimmy are at home and Angela is a senior at Duke. Beth and Jim are buying a farm for weekend retreating. I wonder if they too will get into the restoration bit.

Gray Baird is now a retired librarian in Keswick, VA and will resume her maiden name, E. Gray Baird. Mary Steketee MacDonald has been touring the east central area of the U.S. and also taking some canoe trips in Canada and Maine. Also in the east is our class fund agent, Anne Parker Schmalz who is still nursing at Yale New Haven Hospital and also is involved in a geriatric program. Three children graduated from college and one to go - a sophomore. Anne's husband is still practising law but is spending more time on civic affairs. Anne is working on a recycling program for New Haven. But most of all, she joins in saying thank you for your donations and news and asks that you continue to send more of both each year. Patsy Carney Reed is going through a tough divorce but has some really great kids who hopefully will keep her smiling. Elizabeth is in Lake Tahoe, applying for grad. school in psychology. Brad is a sophomore at Dartmouth and Louise is a freshman at the Knox School, St. James, NY. Patsy had the happiest smile in our class so if anyone can help her keep that smile, write to her now!

In St. Louis, Virginia Ready McKeel is continuing to gather information and write articles about corporate day care and family economics. Her current job is in the marketing department of the St. Louis Public Library. Her husband is doing extensive research in Alzheimer's, her son is in C'ville working and taking computer classes at Piedmont Jr. College, and her daughter Allison is in 1st year law at W&L. Helen is living in Washington, D.C. where she works for the Banqua Inter American Desirolla. News from the west is still full of college goings and comings. Sarah Adams Moore writes of her son's entrance to San Jose State. Her daughter Heidi will be in the 8th grade this fall. Sarah was working for Congressman Ernest Konnyu until he lost in the primary. If anyone knows of an equally exciting job available in the Los Gatos, CA area, get in touch with her! In TX, Jean Gilliland Elliott is sending her youngest, James, off to W&L this year.

This year I have gotten jet lag as we continue to fly around the country promoting our book on running a needlework shop. I have also done my share of skating judging and hospital vigils as Ken had his 4th back operation and my father had open heart surgery. That was a week ago and I came home to write this newsletter and prepare another seminar for a trade show in Charlotte and tomorrow morning I return to FL to help my father go home from the hospital. In the fall, Ken and I will spend a month traveling to Australia, New Zealand and Fiji which sounds like a better way to acquire jet lag.

Our class president, Brooke Hamilton Cressall, watched her son Hunter graduate from Sewanee (U. of the South). As he heads off to grad. school in Atlanta to prepare for work in the film industry, Brooke is asking for anyone with connections in the industry to please step forward! A little networking is a good thing! Her other hope is that each of us will find just one fabulous girl to send to Sweet Briar next year. That girl will not only enrich the school but will also be enriched as each and every one of us was in various ways back in 1958-62. Our class was and is a very special class and that is exactly why we should lead the way in the search for the best prospective students for the "Briar Patch." Remember those years we shared in Amherst County, VA as you write your check to the Alumnae Fund and as you buy Sweet Briar bulbs each year. (You can never have too many!) Stay well and keep in touch!

Hearing from you recharges my batteries! Your cards, letters, and calls were great fun and much appreciated! When you read this, remember that it is time to write again for the 1990 Midwinter Update! Here is what was happening, as of last summer:

Meredith Aldrich expects to be taking education courses at Harvard this fall. She had a "wonderful visit from Martha von Briesen, who hasn't lost an ounce of her sense of adventure!" Emmy Baker Greene moved from SF a year ago to Sacramento where she is vice pres. of the Consumer Affairs Dept. of the First Nationwide Bank. Daughter Ellen is winding up her senior year at U. of CA, Santa Cruz, and son Stephen just finished freshman year at U. of CA, Santa Barbara. Kit Baker Sydnor finds "this age (middle?)" a challenge: animals, phone calls, trips to town, students, exercises — to balance the decades and the decadences. Daughter Jenn, 14, enters the 9th grade at VES this fall. Anna Bartel Cox and Boyce are going back to Europe, 25 years after her jr. year in France and his in Scotland. Their girls are 16 and 12. Kathy Bingham Glover continues as a fiber artist, and is fighting the empty nest syndrome with lots of travel (Bingham is at Miss Porter's and Littleton at St. Paul's). Kathy had a wonderful lunch with Anne Ward Stern, who "looks wonderful, and seems to be combining motherhood and a career nicely." Mary Ann Calhoun Farmer is immersed in SBC once again, as 2 daughters are there, and reports it "fun and nostalgic." Daughter Mamie is a junior (Art History major) and will spend first semester in London this year; is a QV ("Coon" says, "Can you imagine? A Bum's daughter!"); Harriet will be secretary of her class and plays soccer. Both are academic stars. Katherine (13) wants to go to SBC too! Lin Campbell is leaving her full time job at Planned Parenthood to spend more time with psychotherapy practice and writing—and will also teach a couple of grad. courses in social work. Because of her interest in Planned Parenthood, she'll also do some consulting there. Lin welcomes a regular work week and looks forward to not being exhausted!!

Nancy Conkle Swann's son Chris loved his first year at W&L. Younger son (11) is at Woodward Academy. David loves job with First Atlanta Bank (First Wachovia), and Nance loves life in Atlanta. Robin Cutler Maw (Randie) left National Endowment for Humanities in March to develop a series on "Indians in American History" for PBS, and a media consulting business. She just finished a workshop on special effects given by Lucas Films (Star Wars). Daughters Liz (11th grade) and Carlyn (9th grade) go to Nat'l Cathedral School.

Evie Day Butler and Geoff joined her parents and nieces in England last fall for a week. Evie started working for a travel agency in Jan. Youngest son William will go to camp in WY this summer: sons Geoff and Lee will hike in the Rockies for a week. Lee is also doing construction work, and Geoff is back working at NOLS. Marlow

Englehardt Peters said they were still in the same jobs in Germany, but have moved into a different house.

Mary Entwistle Limbert is going to school at night and is a teacher's aide at a model elementary school. Son Clark attends Union College in Schenectady; the other 2 boys are 15 and 12. Mary reported that Betsy McElwain Johnston, husband Randy, and their 3 children live on an island in the middle of the Chesapeake Bay, and take a boat to work and school!

Marilyn Garabrant Morris loves life in Wilmington. She had a good visit last summer on Cape Cod with Ellie Gilmore Massie. She is busy with school activities, work on the Board of an Inner City Day Care Center, and a part-time job with the holding company of a large NYC advertising agency. Vi Gravure Patek loves teaching Latin at a nearby h.s. Husband Mark is enjoying his 24th year with IBM; Sarah loved her freshman year at Harvard, and Sheila is a senior in h.s.

Pat Gromel Young notes how our paths cross again as our children go to college: Susan Kjeldsen Roos and Helen Raney Pinckney reunited at Princeton, where both have student daughters! Pat teaches at Greenwich Academy (where daughter Heather is a senior), and runs a very successful intern program to attract people into the teaching profession (coordinated with Manhattanville College, where Pat is adjunct faculty). Two of her interns and one new faculty member are SBC graduates, and Pat is recruiting more!

Peggy Henning Minnick reports that Linden (8th grade), Duncan (5th) and Margaret (2nd) keep them busy. Peggy teaches Latin and Ancient History at Green Vale; husband Jeff makes custom cabinetry. Pam Jones Brown is building a house (scheduled for completion in Sept.) on a beautiful

Robert Trent Jones golf course. She is doing the contracting—and learning the construction business! She has gone into business with a kitchen designer selling the American equivalent of the all wood, hand crafted, Smallbone English Kitchen. Joe still practices law and a position with the Bush Administration takes him to Washington every other month. Their boys are 19, 17, 15 and 13, and great! Sally Kalber Fiedler says Jay left his group and opened a solo Ob./Gyn. office last fall—and loves it! Son Lee was very happy in his freshman year at Duke; daughter Julie is looking at New England schools.

Ann Kerr Preaus finished her term as Sustainer chairman of the New Orleans Jr. League, and is now President of the Friends of Longue Vue House and Gardens. Son David will be a sophomore at Rollins, daughter Darnell a senior at Lawrenceville School and Virginia (15) a sophomore at Country Day in New Orleans.

Clare Loyd Davison will teach a lighter load this term—only four classes (beginning at 8 a.m.). Her 10 and 14 year old girls both start new schools this fall. Clare and Jim have just bought a sailboat big enough for the children to bring friends! Midge Lundy called to relay sad news: Serain Martin Downey's "Montana Cowboy" husband, Bill, died suddenly of a heart attack in June. Our love and deep sympathy go to Serain (Serain's address, if you wish to write: 1044 Downing St., Apt. 1005, Denver, CO 80218). Midge had spent some time with Shelley Turner's mother. Apparently the Cushing's disease affected her immune system, so she was unable to resist pneumonia. Shelley's parents would love to hear from classmates: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Turner, 33 Sound Beach Ave., North, Riverside, CT 06878. Midge herself sounded happy and fulfilled with her horses, Scotties, cats and friends.

Lee Mackubin Miller reports that they are happy in their new house. Son Patrick III is off to FL State in the fall and is much interested in music. Macon (8th grade) and Anne Lacy (1st) also provide much joy to Lee and Rick. Martha Madden Swanson is Director of Student Organizations at Georgetown. This year was their Bicentennial, so there was lots going on! Son Michael will enter there as a freshman this fall. Daughter Sarah, a talented dancer and cheerleader, will enter h.s. Husband David is Director of Auxiliary services at George Mason U. Martha wonders if anybody else is active in AAUW? Anne Mason Curti and family love living in Kenilworth, IL, after 20 years in the greater NY area. Their 2 girls go to New Trier, and a son, 10, will go into 5th grade. Anne teaches French, plays tennis, and enjoys the opera and symphony in Chicago.

Kathy Mockett successfully managed her husband, John Oberteuffer's campaign for the School Committee in Lexington, MA. They celebrated with a trip to Italy in April (including skiing in the Alps). Kathy is still consulting as a computer specialist; a modern link to her client makes work at home possible. Junior daughter Alyson participated in the Debate Tournament of Champions here in Louisville—one of 11 women among the 120 national qualifiers. Amanda (7th grade) loves drama and music composition and writes "terrific songs and lyrics!"

Jody Moore Griffin and family are moving to Puerto Rico, after many years in Brazil, Peru, Venezuela, and Panama, with Kodak. They have one son at Vanderbilt, another spending a year in England, and 2 younger children at home. Jody is working on a doctorate in educational administration, and works in school administration. Marge Moses Phillips has recently divorced and returned to using "Phillips" to match her children. Both children are at Middlebury College: Chip is a senior; Betsy a junior.

Marge herself is a legal assistant in litigation in Cleveland. Judy Mundy Fowler and Paul moved to London, where he heads Acquisitions and Divestitures for British Petroleum. Before moving, they had been in Salt Lake City for 6 months—Judy says she has left 2 jobs in a year!

Their son Gray is a sophomore at U. of Cincinnati, daughter Cynthia will start at U.Va. in Sept. Judy encourages traveling classmates to contact her in London. Marcia Pace Lindstrom is still involved in historic preservation and was recently appointed by the governor of FL to their Economic Growth and International Development Commission. Son Chris Pennewill is a senior at W&L (Vice Pres. of SAE); Ashley, 16, is a new student in the 11th grade at Episcopal High School; and Ellison, 13, is at home in the 8th grade. Husband Fred enjoys being the Vicar of the Episcopal Church in Gulf Shores, AL, in addition to his counseling practice.

Abby Patterson Shultis had a wonderful visit to SBC in April, where she saw daughter Parker (class of '90). She spent a week with Kit Baker Sydnor, and saw Nancy Bullard Reed in Richmond. She also saw "Buck," the horse she rode at SBC; he is now 28 (I think Nancy has him now!) Younger daughter Ashton (h.s. senior) is also interested in riding (as are Abby and Parker); Abby reports husband Gary is tolerant except when they get hurt (Abby's jaw was broken when she wrote). Abby and Gary had a wonderful month-long trip to the Far East. Janie Patton Browning and Wilson have 2 children: Will (20 and in his 3rd year at Dennison) and Laura (freshman at Boston College). They travel quite a bit because of Wilson's business in shipping and coal exports. Janie has retired from breeding dogs (Lhasa Apso—kennel name Taglhay), after 20 champions. She is still involved in music and opera, and is president of the board of the VA Opera Co. Andrea Pearson Pennington is still a Court Referee in Juvenile Court. Al is in private law practice. Their girls, Katy, and Anna, are in 4th and 1st grades, respectively.

Cindy Paugh Korfmann just moved to a "quaint old village overlooking the lake of Lugano." She is assistant to American poet and translator Allen Mandelbaum, and does freelance translating. Son Roger works for Unisys in Zurich, and plays on 2 tennis teams; daughter Kristen is a Dean's List freshman at Dennison, where she also plays tennis. To show where the tennis genes come from, Cindy herself plays for an over-40 team in the Swiss National league, and has been the singles champion of southern Switzerland. Cindy would love to hear from traveling classmates—she's the only Korfmann in the Lugano phone book! Laura Penick Felt can't believe that the Navy is moving them close to home. Bob is working at the Naval Oceanographic Office at Stennis Space Center, in MS. They bought a 100-year old house in Covington, LA, 30 minutes from New Orleans where they grew up! Daughter Elizabeth is a sophomore at LSU, and Emily a freshman at Stanford. Sharon Price Quill hoped to see Laura before she moved. Sharon is selling real estate in Loudoun County, VA, and loves it. Brian (12) is active in skiing and drama. Her stepdaughter expects a baby in Aug., husband Jim's first grandchild.

Katie Lou Pritchett Harris is also a successful real estate agent. She and husband Norman have had 2 glorious trips to San Francisco and Hawaii. Son Pressley spent 6 weeks in the summer at Innsbruck studying history; West graduated from Darlington before beginning at Ole Miss this fall, and Nikki will be a junior at Darlington. Diana Rediker Slaughter earned her black belt in karate after 4 1/2 years of training, and is going to Tokyo to perform for Japanese experts in the fall (her husband comments about coals to Newcastle!) She is still doing business writing, with clients in telecommunications, healthcare, and financial services. Husband Bill is in the legislature and practices law and their 2 boys are in 11th and 12th grades.

Wesie Rivers Robb was mainly in Charleston for the summer, except for horse show weekends (she is an A.H.S.A. steward). Daughter Catherine is a sophomore at Davidson and spent the summer taking math at the Citadel; son Nat, Jr. worked as a computer analyst in the summer and is a senior at ASU; while daughter Elizabeth is a 2nd Lieutenant in military intelligence, and a pre-vet student at NC State! Big Nat got his second star and is now the Adjutant General of NC. Wesie loves the travel involved: to Portugal, Italy, Normandy, Biloxi, MS, and Lincoln, NE recently!

They missed Susie Wilson Ashcom and Bobby's 25th anniversary celebration, but will celebrate their own in Sept.! Marty Rogers Brown's daughter Peggy graduated from Norfolk Academy and will be a freshman at W&L. She says that Mary Meade Gordon Winn's son Gordon is a "wonderful boy and won lots of honors," and will attend the Univ. of Richmond.

Penny Steketee Sidor is active in church and school, runs a Cub Scout pack, edits parents' club's bi-monthly publication, and plays tennis. Her husband, Mike, is progressing on his doctoral thesis, plus being very active in the new "reform" package for the Chicago school system. Sons Matt (8th grade this fall) and Jeff love all kinds of sports. Susan Sudduth Dodson and daughter Penn share lots of interests including church activities, snow skiing, swimming, and travel. Penn is entering h.s., after blowing away all the competition in math, French, and other areas in jr. high. Susan's medical computer business is going well. Sally Thomas Hoffman describes hummingbirds buzzing by and deer meandering up to the door. Sally is still an engineer in an electronics company.

Nell Thomson Thomas loves adventurous travel, with lots of wildlife to observe! She went snorkeling in Belize and bird watching in Costa Rica and Mexico. Brooke Tucker is still Professor of History and Chairman of the History and Political Sciences Department at Houston Baptist Univ. This year, for the third time, she received the coveted Opal Goolsby Presidential Award for Outstanding Teaching (for the 3rd time!); she was chosen out of a faculty of 108! Last May ('88), she was inducted into Omicron Delta Kappa, a national leadership honor society (founded at W&L in 1913). Brooke would love to see visitors to Houston and show off her 200 acre, 3,000 student campus!

Rab Willis Finlay continues as Professor of Biology at Benedict College and chaired a review panel for NIH last year. She is also very involved with the Nature Conservancy and Spoleto Music Festival. Son Kirkman loved his first year at U.Va. (which gave Rab a chance to visit VA); Gwathmey is a senior at Groton. Rab's husband, Kirk, has returned to law after 8 years as Mayor of Columbia, SC. Judy Wilson Grant wrote that all is well with the Grants in Denver. All 6 of them attended husband Newell's 25th reunion at Dartmouth in June. They "did" New England while they were there. Now Margaret (12) is on a 4-week camping trip "doing" OR, CA, AZ, UT, NM and WY. Will (10) camped in the Davis Mountains in TX. Newell, Jr. (8—whom I accidentally aged 10 years last year) and Caroline (6) are at home. Judy will go back to teaching 7th grade English in the fall; a note from big Newell comments that she gave up the Chair of the St.

Anne's Board of Trustees to do it.

Susie Wilson Ashcom and Bobby had their 25th wedding anniversary; she reports that their kids are over 21 and gainfully employed. Bobby continues to produce a great pack of foxhounds, and Susie sells lots of horse farms to people who have heard about the Tryon Hounds! Susie often sees Mary Haskell Haywood, who lives nearby. Muriel Wikswo Lambert's husband Clark says she is Associate Professor of Pathology at U. MD - NJ Medical School in Newark. She is researching for NIH on the role of nuclear chromatin proteins in DNA repair processes at the molecular level. She recently directed a conference in the Loire Valley (Fontevrand) for 50 of the world's leaders in DNA repair; the whole thing was funded by the scientific division of NATO. She is now editing a book: DNA Repair Mechanisms and their Biological Implications in Mammalian Cells, based on the results of the meeting. Clark is Professor of Pathology and also participated at Fontevrand; he and Muriel and children Anastasia (9), Phelps (6), and Peter (3), all spent last summer in France to prepare for the meeting!

My own family is doing well. Pen (19) loved his freshman year at Grinnell, and spent the summer in Chicago "seeking his fortune" and "learning how to support himself" (his words). Ted (13) spent 3 weeks at Western KY Univ. taking chemistry. He and husband Nelson are both active with our soon-to-be Nature and Conservation Center: Nelson on the Board, and Ted on the Advisory Council (the only child). Ted continues to make very satisfactory progress with his synthetic growth hormone treatments, and doesn't mind giving himself shots every night. I still love my job at the Louisville Presbyterian Seminary, though it has been hectic this year with a new boss and the recent move to Louisville of the Presbyterian Headquarters. In addition to p.r., I am picking up responsibilities for Alumni/ae affairs, and am now planning their first-ever full scale reunions!

Speaking of reunions. . . Marcia Pace Lindstrom wrote, "See you all in '91!" I hope you all are planning now to be at SBC for our 25th, during Memorial Day weekend 1991. A recent Smith College 25th reunion attracted more than half of their class; surely we can do much better than that! I'm thinking of 80 or 90% of us. . . plus husbands, children, and assorted whatever. NOW is the time to begin planning. I am already looking forward to seeing all of you! Keep in touch!

Circle your calendars for June 1-3, our 20th reunion is fast upon us. Share reflections on the last 20 and anticipations for the next 20. During my stewardship as secretary I've been happy to provide information on a friend whose address you've misplaced or who from '70 is in your area; so please don't hesitate to contact the Alum. office or me with these requests. Also any suggestions or admonitions regarding reunion, its preparation and its aftermath will be warmly received if not heeded. Drop a line or a jingle to your nearest officer or again advise the Alum. office and they will collar Kate and pass the word.

Margaret Arnold Jackson had the biggest bruises in boating and canoeing at SBC; now, 20 years later, she is recruiting your daughters for Camp Hollymount in Asheville, NC where she is spending her 2nd year as assistant director. During the winter, Margaret taught h.s. students with learning disorders, added school counselor certification to her masters with an impressive 4.0 average and continued her fulltime wife and mother gig.

Kathy Barnes Hendricks took a break from her garden design business to view the antiquities of Italy and Sicily. Nat (7) and Grantland (4) give her much pleasure. Husband Pete is busy with zoning work and Kathy is trying to engineer a fall weekend with x-roomies Corbin Kendig Rankin, Molly Woltz Carrison and Becky Keister.

Betty Brewer Caughman is already missing David (5) enrolled in an excellent Catholic school in Rock Hill, SC. Jerry works in Charlotte NC for Canal Industries and is on the Historic Preservation Review Board. Betty is president of the Chester Assembly and treasurer of the Arts Council.

Candace Buker Chang was off for 2 weeks in Italy & Switzerland when she wrote of her job change to manager of "Intensive Family Intervention" program for "abusive/neglectful families to prevent the removal of their children". Jeannie (15) will spend 1990 at school in Costa Rica and Sonia (11) is "still gearing up for a career as a trial attorney—she LOVES to argue her case". Candace notes her social life has improved, "40 turned out to be a great year after all!". Our lady of the moving vans, Debrah Denemark, left her 150 yr. old house in Alexandria, VA's Old Town after a few months to move to Dallas for Northern Telecom, where she is controller for the corporate networks division. Vacations even find Debrah scurrying through airports as she visits Uruguay and Chile. Terri Eoff Walsh, David and their brood of 3 tackled a big July 4 W&L reunion in Harrisonburg, VA. Then Terri fled to Estes Park, CO for her annual visit with her family.

RoseAnn Feldman Braun gasps, "This year of mothering Jake (3) and Alexandra (1) and working full time as an attorney for St. Louis county government 'was the fastest year of my life.'" She and Marc are reunion-bound and seriously considering bringing the children. Claudia Forman Ostrander asks, "What is SBC doing about child care?" Claudia chairs the Fairfax County Employer Child Care Council, a consortium of leading businesses concerned about "the affordability, accessibility, and availability of child care in Northern VA". This community involvement project is in addition to her work at Maryland National Bank. Our beloved doc/jock, Ann Gateley, makes my job easy: "Still in Houston, still teaching in medical school, still running maniacally, still would love to see classmates!"

Fran Gravely Frankstone embarked on a major family vacation touring Seattle, CO, and a final week at a dude ranch. Frances and her family are flourishing in Chapel Hill where Fran is VP and Director of marketing for Vietri, Italian importer of hand-crafted dinnerware and decorative items. Vietri now has accounts with 4000 of the major gift and dept. stores in the U.S., Canada, and the Caribbean. Mary Beth Halligan Hibbard has just celebrated the 1st anniversary of her marriage to Ken and 6 mos. of housebreaking with their new airedale in VT. Mary Beth has finished 4 yrs. as a private Spanish tutor at the Killington Mt. School where aspiring skiers try to squeeze in some education around their grueling training schedules. Mary Beth continues to be very active in the Arthritis Foundation, where she acts as chapter secretary and teaches self-help courses. MD's governor is lucky to have Louise Hayman as his inextinguishable deputy press secretary. Her daughter will spend the fall semester in London as part of the Hollins Abroad program. Louise reports running into Ann Compton in Bethany Beach, DE. Ann is off for a year to Australia/New Zealand with her husband who is active in Greenpeace. Kris Herzog started her own business, Publishing Services, to design and produce publications for clients who don't have an art director on staff. She continues to teach publication design at Indiana U. in Bloomington.

Paul and Joanne Hicks Robblee are enjoying life in Japan where Paul is with the JAG Corp. Joanne is middle school counselor, Clay (16) is focused on obtaining his driver's license and Jessica (13) is into jazz and tap. The Robblee's plan a summer vacation to Hawaii. "A happy little camper" from Dallas, TX is Tricia Hodge Parks. She "loves her new husband and new business that studies and forecasts the hoary market of new electronic products for the home". To escape from the grueling schedule Tricia, husband and children (12 & 15) retreat to Martha's Vineyard. May Humphreys Fox, Charlie, Kelly (8), and George (10) are living the sporting life in Richmond. May and Charlie biked through France and were bound for the Puget Sound in August. The kids play tennis and sail. Charlie started his own investment advisory firm and May works in the VA General Assembly as a lobbyist for a law firm. From Annapolis, Baird Hunter Campbell reports that she will be "alone in my own house for the 1st time in 9 years" since all 3 kids will be starting school. Don't fret for Baird-she has volunteer work, Jr. League and the inevitable car pools to fill those fleeting hours.

Debbie Jones has the 20th targeted and wants to see you all there. Debbie is working at Jefferson Med in Phila. John, both girls and the pooch are thriving! COPE (Council of Protocol Executives) has Page Kjellstrom of Chemical Bank as a board member. No stranger to airlines, Page has been 4 times to London (including Wimbledon) and has just returned from Lake Como near Milan. Lorie Harris Amass and son visited NYC's tour guide extraordinaire. Page took 2 weeks off to work on the Inauguration, "one of life's unbelievable experiences! Mass confusion, but it all came off."

Lucy Lombardi Evans writes of her active life in Littleton, CO chasing energetic Morgan (2) and Elizabeth (4). A note of tranquility is found in Sedrick, the white swan, who has taken up residence on their pond. SBC sent me a wonderful article on Cathy Louis Lovell and her donation of a print to the major donors to Atlanta's Scottish Rite Children's Hospital. Cathy (I can feel you blushing) has become noted for her portraits since she turned professional 5 years ago; "I read my anatomy books in the car-pool line". Each week Cathy volunteers her talent by sketching the patients at a children's hospital. Unfortunately, the picture of Cathy at her easel with sons Wood (13) and Will (10) can't be recognizably reproduced.

Tricia Mast George, Kenn, 3 boys (9,6,4) and daughter (2) started their Dallas summer with 4 baseball games a week. Kenn formed EPIC Healthcare, the nation's 4th largest ESOP. Tricia was room mother, day school board member, Jr. League fund raiser, and all around volunteer. The Georges managed skiing vacations in Taos, Vail, and Austria and have a summer junket scheduled in the southwest. Tricia "can't wait for our reunion!". Betty McLemore White heralds the birth of her first child, Jane Garrett. "At my age, thrilled but a little tired! Class of 2010 - Good Grief!". Kim Mitchell Bethea is supervising DP training at a state computer center and David is chair of Slavic Languages at Univ. of Wisconsin in Madison. Emily (5) enters kindergarten as the Betheas brace for a busy fall. Emmy Moravec Holt claims the title of Carpool Queen, her children Will (12), Lizzy (11) and Emily (8) "keep me in the car, passing Mary Scales Lawson, Marcia Pollock Ragsdale, and Fielding Clark Gallivan on the roads in Greenville".

Each year brings an unsigned card, my private puzzle. My guess is Denise Mullen; if this isn't your life, my apologies, and will the real player sign in please? Denise, or the mystery woman, has been asst. prof. in the AA dept. of Jersey City St. College for 3 years, specializing in printmaking and photography. The photo area gives BA and BFA in Fine AA and commercial photography, "administratively taxing in terms of finding time for my own work". Two of her handbound books of photographs incorporating the kallitype process were exhibited at the NJ State Museum in Trenton. Charley and Put Mundy Ebinger became guardians of Cheryl, their h.s. senior god daughter. Who better to steer Cheryl through the admissions maze to Williams than Put, the associate dean of the School of Foreign Service, Georgetown Univ.? Charley has spent a lot of time in the Far East and North Africa doing energy consulting for DC based International Resources Group. The Ebingers have just completed their vacation retreat in Nantucket overlooking a mile-long pond that runs to the beach; "the best of both worlds - New England countryside and the seashore." Put reports 2 visits with Fielding Clark Gallivan who is working on her Ph.D. in history. Gally and the 3 boys are well and happy.

Mary Jo Petree Murphy just returned from taking her h.s. senior daughter, Mary Elizabeth, on a tour to U.Va. They stopped by SBC and Mary Jo couldn't get over the airconditioning in Randolph, the elevator and carpeted halls! The Murphys plan to spend 3 weeks at their Kiawah Is., SC, summer home and then on to Jackson, WY, the Grand Tetons and a week in San Francisco. Class laureate, Kay Parham Picha moves into their new house in Randolph County, NC in Sept. David contracted the building of their house as well as running his business. Kay has been teaching 8th grade math. Mandy (13) is an excellent student and a sailor, Tom (12) "enjoys his girlfriends and is into archery and the drums". Kathy Potterfield writes from Charleston, WV that she attended her physical therapy national conference in Nashville and is involved in the regional diabetes center. The teaching and consulting have been very fulfilling. She dashed off to FL to celebrate 4 decades with some h.s. friends and has her family reunion in NC slated for August.

Tracy Savage has just been installed as Director of Development and Public Relations at National Cathedral School in DC. She keeps in close touch with Sally Campbell and family when she goes to ME each summer. Tracy keeps an eye on SBC when she attends her VCCA board meetings at Mt. San Angelo. Betty Rau Schewel has her hands full juggling life as a single mother to her 3 kids (14,11,8), president of SBC's Friends of Art, synagogue, and a host of other volunteer activities. Betty has been seeing a "wonderful man since Jan." and they are planning a hiking, cycling trip to VT. Our terrific Madam President, Kate Schlech, is still asst. chief of Dept. of Justice's Antitrust Div. Field Office in Dallas. "Work takes me regularly to such exotic fun towns as Birmingham, Oklahoma City, Shreveport and Little Rock, in none of which can I manage to get into trouble." Her vacation travel takes her to Bethany Beach, DE for the annual family reunion! Pat Swinney Kaufman is at home in NY with her 3 girls, Lily Hayes (8), Lisbeth (3), and Charlotte (18 mo.). She is doing work for filmmaker husband Lloyd, "viewing films, selecting films, organizing distribution, and feeding children".

Sally Peripatetic Taylor spends May to Oct. based in Hong Kong traversing Asia as correspondent for a number of magazines including Publisher's Weekly. Oct. finds Sally at the Frankfurt Book Fair and then 6-8 weeks in Paris. Her book Culture Shock - France, due out in Oct. '89, (Times Books Int, Singapore) was written last winter on "how to love the French." The winter brings Sally back to CA where she hopes to pass some time in Mendocino County, then back to Hong Kong pending political stability over there. "Life without children or husband has its ups and downs but so far not enough downs to settle me."

Pam Walker completed a 3 mo. trial in Wichita, KS and is back home in Little Rock for a while at least. A trip to Europe was postponed to redo a bathroom in their 1904 house. "After this year I want to retire!". Kathy Warren attended a 5 wk. National Endowment for the Humanities seminar for teachers in Lake Forest, IL. Kathy was too modest to mention she was 1 of 15 selected nationwide (thank you, Mary Jo). Kathy enjoyed decorating her new house and looks forward to teaching Mary Jo's 2nd daughter (Katy's godchild) this fall. Wallis Wickham Raemer writes of her new year-old marriage to Dan, a bio-engineer at Boston's Brigham & Women's Hospital, and newly acquired stepsons Ben (12) and Zach (10).

Wallis is just finishing a job in staff development for Brookline Public Schools developing teacher in-service programs. Wallis and Dan play tennis (they met on court), ski, and Wallis plans to catch up with Jessica Holzer and Schuyler Gott on Martha's Vineyard, and Mary Jane Hipp Brock wherever. Another voice from the Far East is Johanna Yapple Zeltner-Wolski who is in Tokyo with her husband overseeing pharmaceutical research projects for Merck Sharp & Dohme. Johanna finds the language confounding but enjoys the challenge.

Gil and I wonder where the time has flown! He is still network and technical guru for a MicroAge store and I am Director of Field Ops for Computer Devices. Thank you for sharing your lives via cards, letters and pictures these last 5 years; being class secretary has been a joy for an old nosy-parker like me. Our class banner has surfaced, so come see it and the other old relics June 1-3 of '90.

How nice it was to see everyone who returned for Reunion! Everyone, including the husbands and children, had a wonderful time. I hope all of you who couldn't make it, will try for our 20th. A big hand for Hlene Berich and Betsy Redwine Garner for all their work on the Reunion Gifts Committee. Many thanks to Betsy and Greg for the hospitality suite. And a big thanks to everyone at SBC who made the weekend so special!

Tricia Barnett Greenberg was at Reunion. She will be going to London and Paris with husband, Phil, and the 3 children (ages 10, 9 and 5) for 2 weeks. Tricia also has lots of volunteer activities including Jr. League, Medical Auxiliary, and she was APT President at her son's school, and still finds time to go horseback riding. Vicki Bates Roy will be attending medical school in Philadelphia, PA, starting this August. Penny Lagakos sent her the real estate section from the Philadelphia paper. Phyllis Becker called before Reunion to say she could not be there. She had recently bought a new house (with a pool) in North Hollywood and is very busy at work.

Betsy Biggar Hellmuth is balancing schedules of her 3 children, Katie, 11, TJ, 9, and Kimmy, 5, all in different schools. Betsy also shows a collection of clothing twice a year, which is also shown in cities across the country. Betsy would be happy to share the information on her career with this clothing line to anyone interested. In June, Kelly Borrowman Slobodian and husband, Paul, had their 3rd son, Scott Charles. Alexander and Adam are delighted. Paul took over the NY office of his consulting firm and they moved from CA to Chappaqua, NY in 1987. Kelly is a full-time mom. Marcia Brandenburg Martinson did not make it to the Reunion because a fire burned their church, Old South Union, to the ground. This is the church where her husband, Terry, is the minister and where they were married. One wing of the church remained and they are able to have services there until the church can be rebuilt. Marcia was a teacher's aide this past year and is planning to get her master's in education. Her 2 boys, Andrew, 11, and Eric, 6, keep her busy along with lots of volunteer work.

Sally Brice-O'Hara moved, with her 2 sons, ages 7 and 5, from Alaska to Alexandria, VA this year. She is working at the Coast Guard h.q. in D.C. Her realtor was John Randolph, husband of Sally Rebentish! She gets in a daily jog and works on her needle-point projects. Mary Lee Burch Weil had a great time at the Reunion. She expects child #3 in Dec. and will return to her job, teaching French, until the baby is born. Mary Bush Norwood, and her husband Felton, are keeping very busy. Dorsey, Felton's youngest, is going to U.Va. this fall. Palmer will be a jr. at the College of Charleston. Along with work, Mary has agreed to 10 volunteer jobs for 1989-90, including president-elect of the Atlanta Sweet Briar Club. (I wish we could bottle and sell some of Mary's energy and enthusiasm!) She loved seeing everyone at Reunion. Debbie Camalier Walker has 3 great children, Matthew (6), Brian (4), and Jessica (2). Fuzzy Pownall Billings and Winton Smoot Holladay have sons in Debbie's son's 1st grade class. She is an active board member of the Make-A-Wish Foundation in D.C. which grants wishes to children with life-threatening illnesses.

Robin Christian Ryan was sorry to miss Reunion but she did get to SBC in April for the Alumnae Board meeting. She "retired" in March to be with her 2 boys Christian (8) and Stuart (5). Jr. League and a new puppy keep her busy. She planned to see Ruthie Lentz over July 4th when she will visit her aunt, Ruth Preucel '49. I bumped into Sally Clary at the Toast to Alexandria in May. She could not be at the Reunion because it was her daughter's birthday that weekend. Sally sees a lot of Sally Rebentish Randolph, Ceci Kirby, and Mary Killorin. Kirk Coleman Lammerding, and her husband, John, recently built a veterinary hospital, where John has his practice, and a new house in Valencia, CA. Kirk keeps busy with her 2 boys, Patrick and Derry, and still does a lot of horseback riding.

Cindy Conroy is busy, as usual, as a legal assistant in Washington, D.C. She is always traveling. I see Cindy on a fairly regular basis for "Girl's Night Out. She is one of our fund agents along with Linda Kemp Couch. Blaine Converse is working on another film for Paramount called "Ghost" starring Patrick Swayze, Demi Moore and Whoopi Goldberg. The director is Jerry Zucker (Airplane, Ruthless People). Wanda Cronic Howell and her darling husband, Lee, were at the Reunion. Wanda, as the dealer successor for Cronic Chevrolet-Pontiac-Nissan, recently completed a course in dealership management for General Motors. Wanda was recently elected president of the local chapter of the American Business Women's Association (ABWA) and was also named the 1987 chapter Woman of the Year by Iris Charter Chapter of AWA. Christine Cummings Bass has 3 children, Samuel (9), Daniel (6), and Christina (4). Christine and her family visited SBC last Dec. and also saw her sister-in-law, Ellen Bass Brady. They love the beach life in Sarasota, FL.

Colleen Dee Butterick, and husband Merle, sold all their Domino Pizza stores a year ago. The long hours were rough and they would rather put the time in on their 73-year-old house. Daughter, Katrinia, is teaching her parents how to adjust to having a toddler in the house. (My daughter could use some lessons.) The Buttericks are planning to grow miniature vegetables, flowers, and raise some farm animals. (They are really avoiding the Noid!) Laurie Epstein's life has been hectic since her father passed away last July. (We all send our condolences.) She is now President of Grayslake Gelatine Co. Laurie said in the last 11 months she has learned the technique of real estate management and sales. She said, "Thank goodness for gardening and aerobics; they preserve my sanity." She is planning to build a new home in Lake Forest.

Karen Fennell Idema's daughter, Jennifer, was born March 8. Meghan starts 1st grade this fall. Karen and her husband, Henry, spent the year remodeling their turn-of-the-century Victorian home. Fairlie Foster Strickland and her husband, John, are in Kennesaw, GA with their daughters Kathryn (4) and Emily (1). Fairlie recently "retired" from 12 years of teaching special ed. to stay home with the children. Debbie Hart Eiserle and her husband, Dave, Jeannie (8) and David (5) went to Walt Disney World, Disney MGM studios, the beach, and St. Augustine. They got VIP passes to board a submarine at Kings Bay, GA. Dave was promoted to Manager of Quality Engineering. Debbie is a very active volunteer at the children's school.

Andria Francis Haruda's daughter Ashleigh is in prekindergarten at the Alma School. Andy is doing the book-keeping for her husband's medical practice (which is expanding) on her new home computer. Mimi Hill Wilk has been living in Scottsdale, AZ for 3 years with her oldest son, Beau (6) and daughter, Lizzie (4). She had a terrific time in Europe (8 countries) for 23 days with her brother, Michael.

Paula Hollingsworth Thomas and Steve had a great time at the Reunion. Paula has seen a lot of Barbara Ashton and Ann Van Horn this year. She also saw Marion Van Horn Eagan in New Orleans, LA. Steve and Paula are still in Kaufman, TX. Steve is Director of Court Services for Dallas County and Paula is Litigation Coordinator for Oryx Energy. Charles (7) and Elise (4) keep them busy with t-ball games and piano recitals. They are also active in their church and civic work. Debbie Hooker Sauers and husband, Gary, had their 3rd son. Debbie and baby both were at the Reunion in May. The Sauers moved to PA this year after 2 years in OH.

Pamela Hughes Ganse had a son, Ellen Hughes, 3/9/89. His sister, Leah (3) is very impressed with him. Pam sees Cathy Weiss Thompson at her children's story hour.

Jane Hutcherson Dunlop married Robert (Bob) Dunlop in July, '88 and they moved to the Philippines in Jan. '89. She is taking a vacation from her work as a computer scientist and spending more time with Laurance (6). Jane is also playing lots of tennis, golf, and is riding. She wished she could have made it to the Reunion. (OK, Jane, I guess you have a good excuse!) Maureen Hynes Binder is taking care of her 3 children, Allison, 7, Meghan, 5 and James, 2. She is a volunteer with the Jr. League of Boston; a Brownie troop leader; on the Vestry at Church; the Room Mother for both girls classes; and she loves to entertain (and as I recall—loved to do that at SBC, too). Sarah Johnson Knoblauch in OH, expects child #3 in Jan. Son Brendan is 6 and daughter, Kelly, is 3. She is still teaching art classes to children in her basement and is painting in watercolors. Sarah also sees a lot of Betsy Biggar Hellmuth.

Linda Kemp Couch and husband, Steve, "moved last year to the ugliest house in N. America." They spent the last year trying to fix it up (I have seen it and it looks great, especially with Steve's fabulous art collection.) She also sees a lot of Cindy Conroy, Sharon Mangus, Lisa Walker '75 (who was recently married) and Jody Anderson Wharton '75. Kemper is one of our fund agents and plans to sell Sweet Briar flasks for the next Reunion (20th) to raise money for our Class Gift. (This is a very appropriate and useful item for the Reunion.)

Penny Lagakos Turak and George continued the Reunion in Charlottesville with Lou Weston Rainey and her family, Sarah Johnson Knoblauch, Mary Killorin, Carla Kline, Ceil Linebaugh Dane and Barb Hansen Smith.

Mary Landon Darden reports from TX that she and Bob are adjusting to married life and stepparenting. Mary will be teaching at Baylor Univ. next year while working on a masters in Corporate Finance. Bob is working on his 6th and 7th books. She would also like to organize a reunion in TX this fall/winter. Karin Lawson is still back and forth between Geneva and Washington, D.C. with the Arms Control Agency. She is enjoying her work with her Russian counterpart. She is on the Sweet Briar Alumnae Board. Alethea Lee has been doing a lot of painting. She is involved with church activities and New York Episcopal Cursello. Sharon Mangus is doing well selling real estate in Old Town, Alexandria. I saw Sharon recently at a pool party she gave which Linda Kemp Couch and Lisa Walker '75 attended. Sharon also plays tennis with Cindy Conroy and Jody Anderson Wharton '75.

Ann Stuart McKie Kling and Bill enjoyed the reunion and it was the first time they had been away from their son, Jay (8 mos. at the time). Ann enjoys being a wife and mother and occasionally helps her husband's marketing consulting/skincare business. Thelma M. Merrill is living in Salisbury, MD and has 3 children, 2 girls ages 15 and 8, and a boy 2. She has put her career as a medical technologist on hold. Beth Meyer Costello's 3-year-old and 7-year-old keep her shuttling hither and yon.

Elaine Mills, her husband, Bob Kline, and son Christopher all had a great time at the Reunion, especially Christopher who liked the hayride and balloons. Since 1976, Elaine has been editing and publishing a voluminous collection of field notes in the Smithsonian Institute's department of Anthropology. Volume 8 is in press and volume 9 should be ready for publication sometime next year. Susan Nagle Hesse bought a house in Tarpon Springs, FL in Dec. and added a pool. Her 3 children Katie (9), Erin (7) and Lauren (4) are getting great tans and ride bikes to the beaches daily. Cal works for Acco-Babcock as District Sales Manager and "commutes" to KY and Detroit, MI. They love FL and live this unusual lifestyle by choice. Susie is sewing a lot.

Harriet Newman Twig has 6-week-old twins, a girl, Elaine, and a boy, Andrew. Big brother Jeff is 3 1/2. Marsha Phillips Smith stopped by after the Reunion for a visit. Deborah Pelham Bigum and Randy are enjoying their tour in Germany. Randy is at the Bitburg AFB where he is the Ops Officer of the 53rd NATO Tiger Squadron. She said "the shopping, traveling and wine are great!" Hannah Pillsbury wanted me to tell everyone what they missed at Reunion. To quote Hannah, "It is too bad that our whole class couldn't show up to see how beautiful SBC still is, spend lots of money at the bookstore, and enjoy those friendships created over 4 wonderful years!" A message goes to Jane Maloney, Susie Fitzgerald, Phyllis Becker and Ann Smith to be at the 20th Reunion. We are planning a pre-reunion party in Washington, D.C. Linda Kemp Couch has offered her house as the meeting place (it is a great party house). Hannah is still in Southern CA working for Security Pacific in Global Trading as an A.V.P. She spent a week in Milwaukee for a friend's wedding (it was 8 days of parties and no sleep) - this was a week after the Reunion where we partied and had no sleep. Hannah has been playing a "little" tennis, too.

Jane Piper was at the Reunion. She is heading to Sea Island and Epcot in Oct. and is still a professional volunteer in St. Louis. Ellie Plowden Boyd reports the Boyds are transferring from Detroit to Cleveland, OH (actually Hudson, OH) in Aug. Ellie is looking forward to the move and to seeing more SBCers but also hates to leave Motown and the Pistons. Rossie Ray Spell and Penn are thrilled to announce the adoption of Matthew Penn Spell, born 12/3/88. Penn started his own law firm, Craft & Spell, which is going well. Rossie still finds time for tennis, volunteer work and part-time catering.

Sally Rebentisch Randolph plays bridge with Sally Clary and Karla Kline Bradshaw 2-3 times a month. She also sees Ceci Kirby Wrasse, Laurene Sherlock, and Mary Killorin. She said it's great having Colleen Shannon Robertson and her family back in the area. Janie Reeb Chadwick has a fun new job with Polo/Ralph Lauren which is keeping her hopping all over the state of FL and back and forth to Atlanta and NY. She is president of the Bonsai Society of Dade County and administrative v-p of the Jr. League of Miami.

Jan Renne is a Board Member of ISID. She also has her General Contractor's license. Jan is listed in "Who's Who in the West" and "Who's Who of Emerging Leaders". She travelled a lot this year: San Francisco for the ISID International conference, Hawaii for vacation and job, AZ for vacation, Mammoth and local ski areas, and Reunion in May. Pam Reynolds is working on an MBA at Spring Hill College. Mary Ann Reese Rosenberg, Bern and Rebecca enjoy farm life and their weekend retreat has become their homestead. Their first foal was born this spring and they are raising Nubian milk goats. They have a variety of water-fowl and poultry. Rebecca is starting school in the fall and so is Mary Ann. She is going to get a degree in nursing

Betsy Roberts had a hectic year. She bought a new house and has been traveling to Europe for her job in the international division of the Federal Reserve. Betsy is also very active with the Jr. League of Washington. She is the Chairman of the Cookbook Committee and has been working on the new cookbook, Capital Classics, which will be out in Sept. (It is a fabulous cookbook!) She is also planning to go to Suki Hearne's wedding in Boston at the end of Aug. Patty Shannon reports from Seattle, WA that she and her daughter, Katie, 2 1/2, love the city. Patty is used to life in the Sunbelt, however, and anticipates a move to the South in the next few months. Julie Shuer was sorry to have missed the reunion but happy to be expecting a baby girl in Oct., a sister for Benjamin.

Jennifer Smith Hanes reports from Roanoke where Tom is a medical malpractice (defense) attorney. They have 2 daughters, Whitney (12) and Ann Blair (9) and are excited about a "baby boy" due in Oct. Jennifer stays busy with car pools, church activities, lots of singing and bell ringing at her church. Sherrie Snead McLeroy is president of a house museum in Sherman, TX. Sherrie is writing full-time. She won an award in Sept. for the novel she is working on. Besides the novel, she writes historical and travel articles for magazines and newspapers. She was at the Reunion in May and will be back in the Sweet Briar area in Sept. for her brother's wedding. She's going to Egypt in January, 1990. Their house was on 2 house tours last year and she doesn't recommend it. Jane Piper came for a visit in May.

Susan Stephens Geyer was sorry to miss Reunion but her daughter had her ballet recital on May 26th and her son, Stewart, and daughter, Julia had their piano recitals on May 28th. Edward (4) also plays the piano. They moved to a new house just before Christmas. Sandra Taylor Craighead and her charming husband had a great time seeing everyone at Reunion. Sandra said her first year on the Alumnae Board was great. She plans to see Elizabeth Andrews Watts and Bobby in August and sees Mary Witt Will and Fritz a lot in Richmond.

Kathryn Telfer Johnson was sorry to miss the reunion. She is busy with Telfer (11 mos.) and Courtney (5), who takes ballet. They finished another significant addition to their house and continue to look for older properties in need of renovation. Husband Tom is busy with the details of a new subdivision. Liz Thomas Camp concurs our Reunion was great and that we look better than we did in the '70's. She is an Elder at Newnan Presbyterian Church. She is planning a beach trip to Holden, NC with Barb Ashton Schiller, and boys Benjamin and Christopher, and Ellie Plowden Boyd, and son, Clayton, and Liz's kids, Harry and Sophia Rose.

Joyce Thompson Miller was sorry to miss the Reunion but she and Bryon were in Paris celebrating his 40th birthday. Meredith Thompson started work at the Livingston Enterprise as its new society editor/feature writer. In July she went on a llama pack trip in Yellowstone National Park and will be writing about it for an in-flight magazine. Meredith is also on the p.r. committee of Big Brothers and Big Sisters and is a member of the Jr. League of Houston. She would also like to hear from any other SBCers living in Montana. (Meredith, you should look up Virginia Nolte Rude in Billings, MT.) Helen Travis adopted a cat who has a great personality. She is relieved that her sister, who lives in Beirut is home for the summer. Helen continues to work out at the YMCA on Lexington Avenue.

Cheryl Viar Upchurch was sorry to miss Reunion but made it to graduation. Kelly Straughn was graduated this May and Cheryl brought 2 of her 3 girls. It was a special treat for her to stay with Sally and Bill Meadows. Cheryl's daughters Shannon (12), Kit (10), and Jeannie (7) keep her busy. She is also very involved with PTA work. Sam is General Counsel of Torchmark. Katherine Vuicich Schinasi and Garry had their 2nd child, Sarah Valliant, 10/17/88. Big brother, Jack (4) likes her a lot. Katherine reports "it's been a baby year with Pam Hughes Ganse and Karen Fennell Idema both adding to their families." Katherine said they had no damage from the storm in June but Cindy Craighead Archer no longer lives on a tree-lined street. Lynn Watson Philpott reports life in the South is slow. She said her tough job, husband Sonny, and 2 children, Drew and Kate, and a small farm keep her going. (This doesn't sound slow to me.)

Chris Weiss Pfeil had a daughter, Carolyn "Carrie" Weiss Pfeil on 7/19/89. Big brother Lee (2) hasn't mentioned sending her back yet. Chris is on the Board of Trustees at her h.s. and is organizing their reunion for 1990. (We will all be 20 years out of high school.) She enjoys racing the family's sailboat and presenting family workshops at the Cleveland Museum of Natural History. Lou Weston Rainey now has 3 children: Weston McEhvee (8), Robert "Clarke" (4) and Caroline Gabrey (5 mos.) born 8/30/88.

Angela 'B.B.' Wheelock Zavell reports they put an addition on the house and she is still painting and sanding 10 months later. Stephen took a new job and she quit hers. B.B. is devoting her time to home projects and part-time work. They took a great trip to the Dominican Republic in Feb. Lee Wilkinson Warren had a great time at the Reunion. Lee is a stay-at-home Mom. Cam is 12, Paige is 8 and the traffic flow of children is constant at her house and Lee loves it. Ruthie Willingham Lentz has been busy mothering David (8) and stock brokering at J.C. Bradford. She enjoyed the reunion. She saw Aunt Ruth Preucel ('49) and Robin Christian Ryan in Philadelphia on July 4th. Ruthie was enjoying a month of rest as David visits both sets of grandparents and his dad. Mary Witt Will and Fritz had a great time at the Reunion. Since then they had a wonderful vacation in New York and Boston. They saw Les Miserables on Broadway and saw every historical site in Boston. Mary is at the VA Dept. of Health and loves it. She sees Sandra Taylor Craighead and Edie McRee Whiteman regularly and organized the SBC Spring Cocktail Party in Richmond.

Bonnie Chronowski Brophy reports a year of travel and change. In Sept. '88 Bonnie went on a pilgrimage to Medjugorje, Yugoslavia which changed her life. Bonnie and Jim spent a week in St. Marten just before he started a new job at Paine Webber in NYC in April. They visited Chris (11) at camp in Tuxedo, NC. Meg (3) starts nursery school this Sept. Bonnie keeps busy with Jr. League, church and volunteer activities. She was sorry to miss our 15th but went to Jim's 10th at the U. of Rochester instead. Betsy Biggar Hellmuth was upset she had to miss reunion. Betsy said Sarah Johnston Knoblauch filled her in on all the fun. This year the family was too involved with a Memorial Day Parade and weekend which her husband presided over. She is definitely planning to be at our 20th. Terry Lear Evans is still a learning disability teacher. Her 2 sons will attend the school where she teaches in the fall, Patrick in 2nd grade and Jeffery in kindergarten. Her husband, Whit, just opened his own business. He creates and produces silk-screened tee-shirts, sweatshirts, etc. (We will have to get Terry and Whit involved with shirts for our 20th Reunion!) Terry has been doing a lot of horseback riding, too!

And I am still working for Congressman McDade (R-PA) on the Small Business Committee. My daughter, Katie (19 mos.), comes to work with me and is in the House of Representatives Child Care Center, of which I am sec. of the Parent's Association. I go over to see her at lunchtime every day. I will be on the Admissions Committee for the Jr. League of Washington, D.C. this year (there are a lot of SBCers in the Jr. League in D.C.). We went up to NY for July 4th for my family reunion and h.s. reunion and will be going to Chicago for Labor Day to see my husband, Chris', family. Chris came to the Reunion (his 1st trip to SBC) and couldn't get over what a beautiful campus it is. We both had a great time at the Reunion. Thanks for all the cards, letters and calls.

This has been a very productive, and shall we say, reproductive year for the Class of 1978. Here's the latest scoop!

Leslie Lewis Anderson Battle moved to a big old colonial on over an acre. She will renovate the kitchen, bathrooms, etc. Carol Baugh has been working for Reemay, Inc. since Oct. '88. She received her masters from the Graduate School of International Management. She is Marketing Communications Manager, both domestic and international. While super Mom, Jean Beard Barden, is busy with work and family. She and Bob had a son, James Scott, born on Halloween. Every one at Becky Dane's wedding got to meet him. She adds that Lu Litton announced her engagement and so did Sue Griste. Jean lives near Martha Glover Perry who recently had a baby boy and they plan to get together for the boys to play. Barbara Behrens Peck, in Chatham, NJ, left her full time job to free lance out of her home. Her most exciting news of '89 was the publication of a book she designed, The Natural Garden by Ken Druse. Look for her name on the title page! She is now designing 2 other books. She and Jeff expect their 1st child in Feb. '90. Mimi Borst Quillman tries to keep up with 2 rowdy boys, ages 2 and 5. She started as a Sales Rep. for an applied children's clothing line where everything is sold through catalogues or home parties. She saw Mary Goodwin Gamper at her daughter's 2nd birthday party. Ann Key Lucas recently had a baby boy. Paula Brown Kelley married on 6/3 Jack, who works with NASA in Washington. Carey Johnson Fleming was her matron of honor and Janet Rakoczy Hudson and husband John gave a pre-wedding dinner party which was a "stock the Kelley's wine cellar" party. Many of the participants were SBC '78ers. (When is the wine tasting party?) Lee Carollo Pforsich was laid off in Feb. due to declining enrollment in her school district and is now interviewing. She may have a job teaching Physics which would be interesting since she hasn't done much of it since 1976 in Dr. Lenz's class. Her son will be in the 2nd grade and is quite an artist, scientist, and athlete. She talks with Tricia Mason Terraneo who just got her real estate license and lives in San Diego

Toni Christian Brown and Jim moved to Lexington, VA last Aug. and are living in a big Victorian farmhouse about 10 minutes from town. Jim sells farms and estates. Toni is the Director of the Fine Arts summer program for Rockbridge County. It has been hard for girls, Claibourne (4 1/2) and Finley (2), to get used to Mommy working. She sees Robin Jones Eddy and her son Stets (4) often, since they live one mile down the road. Robin is going to Spain and Portugal for the summer. She enjoyed visits from Mari Monahan and Deb. Weidner and had a fab. time at Allison Egbert Brokaw's wedding. Nanette Cooper Dumonteil is working for Polo Ralph Lauren in Paris. She is responsible for the Creative Services Department which creates the decors and displays for all the European shops and showrooms. She writes that it is exciting trying to find the right props in the antique shops and flea markets. By the time you read this, Nanette will be married to a wonderful Frenchman, Bernard Dumonteil, who is a lawyer soon to be a partner in the 3rd largest law firm in Paris. Carol Cordell Mullins and Keith enjoy Denver. They have been blessed with their 1st child, Charles Keith, born 4/30/89. Carol took off 6 weeks from her practice with the Colorado Attorney General's office and then Keith took off 2 weeks to play "Mr. Mom". They are using a Montessori nursery near their downtown offices. Charlie is a new age baby! Lenore Lee Cox is still in Lynchburg working as a Police Analyst. Virginia Susan Craig is in Naples, FL working with Brown Brothers Harriman as an investment officer and pursuing her M.B.A. at the Univ. of South FL in the evenings. She saw Ellen Wahl Skiliar '77 in NYC and Leith Colton Derish and both are great. Cannie Cryslar Schafer's #2 child is due Oct. 1. She finished a year as Social Services Director on the Jr. League of Philadelphia. She is still coaching and teaching 4th and 5th grades at Episcopal Academy in Merion, PA. During Spring Break she and Win skied at Squaw Valley and drove down the CA coast. She had a great visit with Holly McGlothlin in San Francisco.

Mazeppa Montague Costa, in Honolulu, is a photographer for an Oceanarium and botanical park. She traveled a lot this year. Among her trips was a 17-day Orient cruise. Deb Davison Weidner lives in Newport Beach, CA where she is busy with Whitney (3) and Bo (5). They are looking for a house in the East perhaps Baltimore or Charlottesville.

Doug owns a company in Newport Beach so they will have to be bicoastal. She just saw Mary Goodwin Gamper and Maria Rixey Gamper in Baltimore and Robin Jones Eddy in Lexington. She writes that it was fun to be back in Lexington with the cows and the coeds! Liz Day Dalrymple just returned to Southern Pines, NC from a trip to Scotland and England where Chris played lots of golf and played in the British Amateur. Liz caddied for him. Emily Dick McAlister lives in Nashville, TN. She and husband, Hill, had their 1st child, Harry Hill VI, 3/10/89. She saw Helen Bauer Bruckman last summer in England where Helen, David, and twins live outside London.

Alison Egbert Brokaw married Bob Brokaw on 2/18/89 in Wilmington, DE. She lives in Summit, NJ and still works in NYC for Time, Inc., in the travel department. And Carolyn Ennis Taher lives in Cairo, Egypt with her husband, Abel, and their 2 daughters, Sara and Mariam. She survived a serious car crash last summer in Sinai. (We're thankful you are fine.) Laura Farmer Gebhardt loves southern CA. Her son, Trevor (2nd grade) already touch types on a computer. Her husband is working with a new musician and writing new songs which they hope will sell soon. She is the Controller for Showpark of San Diego which is becoming one of the largest horse show facilities. She frequently sees Ann Rubel Waddell '77 who had a 2nd boy in March. Cathy Finley Onder lives in Glen Allen, VA where she is busy with Sean (4) and Kelly (1). She is a part time paralegal for McGuire, Woods, Battle, and Boothe. Libby Freeman Goetz is busy with her children, Ralson (4) and Lissy (2 1/2) in Roswell, GA.

Juliana Frosch lives on a farm in Nelson County with her 3 children and lots of horses, donkeys, and other animals. She is the Activities Director at Wintergreen. Drusie Hall is still riding and housesitting in Nashville. Her brother, Rhoads, is at the Univ. of Richmond. Drusie serves on the Board of the EAR Foundation, and they have just finished their 5th Annual hot air balloon race where she helps out crewing. Muffy Hamilton Parsons is busy with son, James Hamilton, 2. She has been involved with the Jr. League of Columbus and the Alumnae Board of Columbus School for Girls. In Atlanta shopping in Feb. she ran into Peggy Stryker Horne who manages the Poppy. Susie Hietmiller Busch is still Program Manager at the DMV. She recently saw lots of SBCers at Becky Dane and Nancy Ellen Keane's weddings.

Jane Hemenway is wrapping up her second year in NYC where she enjoys the operas at the Met, and the off-Broadway shows. Betsy Hurley Deimel has a new name as of last Thanksgiving. Her husband, Gerald, an avid sailor, surprised her with a beautiful Pearson sailboat and they have been racing and cruising the Great Lakes. Her home port is Erie, PA where she sports her great tan! Susan Hudson Fitzgerald spent the last 2 years in London and Belfast with the Foreign Service. They are now on their way home to Roanoke where Rus was appointed Assistant U.S. Attorney. Ryan (9 1/2) and Thomas (4 1/2) are excited about being in American schools. They have bought a house on a mountain top. Susan talked with Cathy Lumsden before she left for a 2 year tour in Japan. In Birmingham, Eve Jackson London is expecting their 3rd child in Aug. Kathy Jackson Howe's husband, Root, finally has a real job. Trey (6) is very grown up. Khaki (4) is a copy of her brother, and Janie, born 6/13/88, is loved by them both. Kathy is tired of volunteer work so it is time to work on the house which she claims looks like a W&L Frat House! Nancyellen Keane Smithers got married April 22 in Richmond to Westwood Smithers, Jr. (West). Debbie Snead Shrader, Lizabeth Lefferts '80, and her cousin Carol Ann Kroese '74 were in the wedding. Several from the class of '78 were in attendance. After the festivities they spent 2 weeks in Grenada. West (the handsome guy with Nancyellen at our 10th reunion) is a lawyer who is a gubernatorial appointee running a state agency. Nancyellen is serving on the SBC Planned Giving Advisory Council and sees Annie Stelle who also serves on the council. Donna Louise Kipp is practicing law in Pittsburgh, where she concentrates on criminal law and domestic relationships. She still keeps in touch with her college beau - Roddy Townsend - whom she met through Audrey Townsend. Anne Jarrell Berry and Will had their 3rd child, Frank Jarrell, born 11/4/88. William is 3 and Ellis is 5. They still live in Newnan, GA where she has started handpainted furniture and ceramic tiles. Janet Rakoczy Hudson and John have adopted 2 pound pets - a dog and a cat. They've bought a new house in Fairfax and had a gathering of SBC '78ers over in May to honor Paula Brown Kelley. She writes news of Sue King who is a lawyer in Alexandria, VA. In Atlanta, Jane Lauderdale Armstrong and Mike had a new addition: David Coleman on 10/1/88. Jane is staying active in advertising by doing consulting.

Dorothy Lear Mooney is enjoying motherhood in Washington, D.C. She had John Fogarty on 3/21/89. Karen Lemon Hassett and Mark are trying to survive 3 in diapers, Megan, Michele and Kristen (twins), and brother, Marty who is almost in kindergarten. She was able to root for SBC when they were in Pinehurst for the Inter-collegiate Riding Championship - they looked great! Karen's twin sister, Carol Lemon Barrett, is doing fine. Marybeth Lipinski McAdoo is still in Phoenix with Squire Sanders and Dempsey. She saw several SBCers at Paula Brown's wedding and Liz Williams in D.C. recently. Tricia Mason Terraneo moved to San Diego from Los Angeles and began a new career in residential real estate. Cindy McKay Frick is a full time mommy with son, Kevin Stephenson, born 10/20/88 in Columbus, OH. Margaret Meads Nordlinger graduated from Duke in '78 and Georgetown MBA School in '83. She is a Vice President at the Riggs National Bank doing commercial real estate lending. She married Douglas, a lawyer and partner in the firm of Skadden, Arps, Slate, and they live in Potomac, MD. They have a little girl, Rachel Ann, 2 1/2.

Jeannette Mehl built a gym which has been very successful and is exhausted from teaching 6 hours of aerobics. She also teaches at the Univ. of Monterey and was nominated as best teacher by the graduating class of architects. She has been involved in professional theatre and writes regularly for one local art magazine and university publications. A local TV channel dedicated a half hour program to a day in the life of Jeannette. It was entitled "Outstanding Women of the State". She still finds time to sneak away and travel to Dallas, Miami, the Bahamas, New York, etc. She sees Mary Moore Garrison in Los Angeles quite often.

Cathy Mellow Goltermann is still Flight Service Manager for T.W.A. in St. Louis. She and husband, Chris, are going to Tahiti and Bora Bora in Oct. They are both happy with their jobs and yellow lab, Holly. Katherine Nesbit has moved closer to D.C. to end the long commute. She is employed with C.C. Pace Systems as a Senior Systems Analyst, designing and implementing computer systems. She hopes to get together with Susan Hudson Fitzgerald on their return from Ireland. Mo Moffett Kyle will not be teaching first semester due to the arrival of a little one in Sept. Her husband, Steve, will be teaching in the Middle School in the fall. This will be a change because he has always taught and coached in h.s. Ileke Osinga Scully is moving to D.C. where her husband is working on a masters in international relations/American foreign policy. She is looking for a job in accounting and enjoying the summer off. Mary Page Stewart is thrilled to be back in Baltimore in their new house. She will miss Barbara Behrens Peck in Chatham but not the NY rat race.

Elizabeth Perkinson has been traveling to NY with her younger sister where they watched the Duke vs Arizona basketball game, saw "Steel Magnolias" and "Phantom of the Opera", etc. She changed real estate companies and is now with Crowder Realty and loves her new surroundings. She is planning a week at the beach with Annie Stelle and son, Kip. She is active with the Jr. League.

Lauren Place Young has a son, John Webster, born 4/11/88. She missed our reunion due to Jake's irregular sleeping habits. It seems he finally took his first nap at 4 mos! Sally Polson Slocum is Vice President of Marketing for the profit sector of the hospital system. She is still on the board of the Center to Prevent Childhood Malnutrition and chairs the Fundraising and Special Events Committee. Her husband, Bill stays busy traveling. They met in Sudan and took a cruise on the Nile, and this time she will meet him in Kenya for a safari. Hallie Powell Horton is winding up a very busy year of volunteerism with the Jr. League and other organizations with a gala event in Oct. to benefit Seton Medical Center. Then she and Wilmot will plan their 10th anniversary trip to the Orient. Katherine Powell Heller and husband John will be moving back to the South when he finishes his Fellowship in Spine Surgery. They just bought a house in Atlanta where John will join the Orthopaedic Dept. at the Emory Clinic. Katherine has put her career on hold while she manages a house, a yard, and Laura (2).

Missy Powell Adams, in Baltimore, is completing her 1st year as the mother of twin boys, Philip and Whitman. Anne Taylor Quarles Doolittle was remarried 6/3/89 to Bob in Nashville, TN. Betsy, 5, begins kindergarten in the fall and Taylor, 7, is still residing comfortably at Cloverbottom State Developmental Center. Bob's kids are Scott, 16, at MBA in Nashville, and Lauren, 20, senior at SMU in Dallas. Anne Taylor is teaching English at Stratford h.s. Bob works in corporate finance and is a partner at J.C. Bradford. Ellen Quinn Jones has built a home in Madison, VA and constantly has new projects going. She had her 3rd child on Oct 18-a girl-much appreciated since she already had 2 boys. She still manages Vocational Services for Adults with disabilities and her husband stays home with the kids. Leigh Ramsay is still in NYC in advertising but has changed to a new agency where she is working on a new product for the elder market by Johnson and Johnson. She saw Betsy Wood in lovely ole Charlottesville in March and tried to catch the ever in motion Cindy Whitley who has relocated there.

Katie Renaud Baldwin is still in Petersburg, AK and the oil spill wasn't near them so all is beautiful there. She is teaching preschool and works summers for one of the largest canneries running the salmon productions and shipment. She plans a trip to Detroit in Aug. to have baby #2. Anne Riordan Flaherty enjoyed the year in Louisville which was highlighted by the birth of their daughter, Mary Kathleen, 8/88. They expect #2 in early 1990. Kevin finished his fellowship there and is taking additional training at Harvard. They'll live in Boston through Sept. then move to Wausau, WI where he joined a practice. They've bought a house and can't wait to put down some roots. Maria Rixey Gamper is busy with her 2 yr. old twin boys who play every Friday with Missy Powell Adams's twins.

Carrie Ruda Clark has been singing with Lauren McManus Hyett and Laura Tucker Camp in a group called "Washingtons". They entertain in nursing homes, etc., where folks are too sick or too poor to have other forms of entertainment. Her boys are growing like weeds, and Johnson goes to kindergarten now. She writes of Becky Dane Evans and her marriage to Larry. The wedding was very special and rich in tradition. Becky is an instant Mom with 2 wonderful pre-adolescent boys that were well behaved at the wedding. Barbara Mendelsohn Price has a son, Spenser Christian, who was born in Jan. Wes and Barb seem delighted with parenthood. Cece Garcia Tunon Lear and Steve had Becky Mulvihill McKenna and her family to visit. Becky has 3 beautiful girls, works as a social worker, and she and her husband Ken are back in school working on Ph.Ds.

Mary Saunders Cownt is working with her husband in their stock photography business and taking care of 2 children, a girl Windsor, 4, and James Killian, 20 mos. They recently bought a house in Sea Pines. Jane Smalley Todd and Pete have a new little girl, Jane Smalley born 5/22/89 and son, Harris, is now 2. Pete and she still practice law in Atlanta. Lucy Darby Cole is little Jane's godmother. Lucy has become the Director of Marketing at Embassy Suites Hotels, and she directs the 1-800 numbers and the reservation center. Lucy also serves as President of the Dallas Sweet Briar Alumnae Club. (She does a great job!) On a recent trip to Jacksonville, FL she and Steve had dinner with Anne Baldwin Mann and Randall. Lucy Smith Rogers had their 2nd child, Malanie Ames, born 7/5/88. Daughter, Kate, is happy with her new sister. All is well in Houston for the Rogers household. Annie Stelle is in Chicago working with First Chicago where she does lots of traveling. Kip, her son, is 4 and both he and her job give her a challenge. She serves on the Alumnae Board of SBC and now with Planned Giving. Annie gets to see Susan Negaard Birch lots. Susan says things are hot in Chicago! Her work and house are keeping her busy. She travels quite a bit and has visited with Betsy Wood, Carrie Johnson Fleming and her husband David, and all are looking great. Susan thinks that Sweet Briar women improve with age!

Julia Sutherland moved to the Washington, D.C. area to take a job on Capitol Hill as U.S. Senator Chuck Robb's press secretary. Since moving to D.C. she has attended 2 SBC weddings: Becky Dane Evans and Paula Brown Kelley. Cecia Garcia Tunon Lear is one of the D.C. SBCers that has been busy attending weddings and christenings and loves the opportunity for an SBC reunion! Catherine Taylor Moore and Bob are proud new parents of Robert Lee III, born March 11. She is still at Sun Bank managing 2 departments as the Vice President and Manager of Loan Review and Loan Documentation. She recently met in Orlando with SBC graduates, Piper Allen '79, Mary Williams '84, and Holly Pilug '84.

Ann Thrash Jones is in Atlanta. She is a paralegal at Alston and Bird. Bob's law firm merged, and he is now an associate with Jones, Day, Reavis, and Pogue. Chris is 8 and Mary Pat (The Boss) is 3. She ran into Frances Biggers '79, Alice Benton '79, and Vaughan Richardson Cooper '80 at a Jr. League Placement meeting. Peggy Stryker Horne and Lisa Neuschander Smith also live in Atlanta. Peggy's son and Chris go to the same school. Jane Hubbard Sams '79 and her family visited Ann and Bob when they were down from Chicago. Audrey Townsend Bertram and husband, Scott, opened an "Adventure Outfitters'" shop. They continue to enjoy gardening with lots of flowers, veggies, and fruit, and she enjoys windsurfing. Diane Wiese Narr was married 5/20/89 to Jerry D. and her sister, Kimberly Wiese Smith '77 was her Maid of Honor. She works with Exide Corporation as administrative assistant to the Vice President. Jerry is with Chase Manhattan Bank in Computer Operations. They honeymooned at the Golden Tulip Resort in Aruba.

Cindy Whitley finished her academic work for a masters at William and Mary in Archaeology 1 year ago. She did a Fellowship that summer at Colonial Williamsburg supervising an excavation and worked in the fall for an archaeology company in Williamsburg. She then landed a job as one of the 2 staff archaeologists at Monticello and moved to Charlottesville. She loves the job, but is 3 hours away from her steady, a Brazilian working on his Ph.D. at VA Institute of Marine Science. Liz Williams is still living in Alexandria trying to whip her house into shape between horse shows. She works as a Business Development specialist/proposal editor for a defense contractor. She is using her degree by volunteering at the Archaeology Lab. She writes of visits with Mickie Gupton McKelway and daughter, Katie, in TN and Marybeth Lipinski McAdoo from Phoenix.

Betsy Wood is leaving in Sept. for a year in London to continue her studies in Special Ed. She is being sponsored by the Rotary Foundation and will be at the Univ. of London. She rendezvoused with Susan Negaard Birch in the spring and saw Leigh Ramsay in April. Ann Yaeger works for AT&T's Computer Systems Group in NJ. She misses her "Southern Speaking" buddies, but enjoys the north! She saw Claire Dennison Griffiths '80, Francie Root '80, and Jean Beard Barden and plans to see Alison Egbert Brokaw and new husband in Summit, NJ. Julie Pfautz Bodenstab and Mark have been in their new house in Allentown, PA, for over a year. Julie stays at home with Phillip (6 1/2) and Peter (3 1/2). Peter had a successful liver transplant 5/9/89 at Children's Hospital in Pittsburgh. Monica Shaffer Karo was made a partner at her advertising agency Biederman, Kelly and Shaffer and is now exec. vp-ceo. Husband Rick's first feature film, make in Budapest, premiered at the Cannes Film Festival in May. Monica keeps in touch with Martha Glover Perry, Barbara Mendelssohn Price and Cecie Garcia Lear.

I, Melanie Bowen Steglich am still in Dallas working at my church. My husband, Lee, is enjoying his dental practice and meets lots of interesting people. I'm a member of the Dallas Summer Musical Guild, and I've been helping feed the cast of our musicals on Saturday afternoons. It has been lots of fun, and I'm secretly hoping I'll be discovered. I have seen Cathy Patton Brant who lives in McKinney, TX and will see Drusie Hall in August while I'm on a business trip. Thanks to all of you for writing. Ain't we still great!

We had an embarrassing paucity of participation this year. My postman even noticed. Don't disappoint him next year.

Robin Platt Wetherbee had great news. We all remember Jim's romantic, thunderous flybys over campus. He's now been off in space to deploy a satellite. He was pilot for the mission. David Low, W&L ex, was a mission specialist. Polk Green has released a cassette album, Blue Ridge State of Mind. (Send $7 to: Rt. 5, Box 1244, Apt. D, Forest, VA 24551 for a copy.) She's working with great musicians and enjoying her return to VA. Vicki Lasala Forrer completed her residency in pediatrics at the U. of Ariz. this year and is entering private practice in general pediatrics in Tucson. She participated in an exchange to Honduras sponsored by Project Hope earlier this year. Her husband, Scott, finishes neurology training next year. Sally Shapard Peek and Mark have moved back to Sally's hometown, Griffin, GA. Mark is working in the family business, and Sally is working on their new house and with various organizations in Griffin. Betsy Bell Liles is now president of the Charlotte Alumnae Club. She also works part time with Jock at Liles Construction and takes care of Welch (2). Angela Averett Rock and Dan are in Bethlehem, PA. Angela is earning a psychology degree from Moravian College as well as taking care of Daniel (2) and Claire (1).

Grace Tredwell has taken up bird watching. She's worked on her list of sightings in D.C., NM, and AZ. And her frequent trips to see her boyfriend, Georg, in Berlin have earned her a few European sightings. Libby Lee Gantt Castles writes from Charleston, SC, where Guy is finishing his first year of pediatric residency. Libby Lee is head of the math dept. at Ashley Hall, where she teaches geometry and calculus. Guy, Libby Lee, and their Boykin spaniel, Jesse, live in an old house on Broad Street. While Guy is creating a paradise of flora around the house, Libby Lee works on her golf game. She better beware of Molly Finney. Molly went to one of those golf camps last year and now hauls her clubs every time she travels for the National Spa and Pool Institute. She won a trip to Reno this spring and took Jean von Schrader Bryan. Molly says, "Jean couldn't stay out of the casinos." They didn't win the big one, but in the end, at 4 a.m., they didn't lose any money either. Jean has a new nephew. Husband Peter is working on his MBA, and his marketability may move them out of the Washington area. They did the southeast on their vacation and made it to Liz Richardson's wedding in KY. They celebrated one year of marriage on the world-renowned annual Canoe Trip down the Shenandoah. Marie Engel Earnhart, Fred, and Molly cohosted the trip this year. The Earnharts went to Europe in Sept. and planned to visit Leigh Chalmers in London. Marie is still working for the Chronicle of Higher Education and its new publication, the Chronicle of Philanthropy.

Patti Snodgrass visited Mary Ames Booker in VT and spent 4 days skiing without injury. She is faithfully following the Redskins and will win the VA Lottery and will become a professional football fan. But until then, she will work at the Loudon-Times Mirror as the copy editor and pitch in when needed as a reporter and photographer. Anne Edmunds Hansen and David had a baby girl, Eleanor Ward, in June. Anne is in her 3rd year of med. school. Patsy Griffith married Capt. Jeffrey A. Van Etten USAF in Sept. in Oakton, VA. They took a 2-month honeymoon in Europe. Deborah Price Bowman and Jeffrey celebrated their 1st anniversary with a long weekend in Charleston, SC. They spent July 4 in Quebec with Rhoda Harris and her boyfriend. Deborah has been promoted to consultant at SEI in NY. Gina Parish South and Robert were due for their 1st child in Dec. They are still in Atlanta, where Gina works for ADP. Lucile Redmond Flournoy and Tom had a baby girl, Lucile (Lucy) Peacock, who has beautiful red hair and looks like Tom. Brianna Boswell Brown and Randy also had a girl, Hannah Elizabeth, born 6/7/89. The Browns are gearing up for a season with the rejuvenated Dallas Cowboys and reading baby books. Dirt Davidson and Mike visited Hannah and report that she is a good-looking kid. Dirt has quit her job and is enjoying a life of leisure in scenic Temple, TX. She says that Naomi Weyand Smith and Tom have moved to Atlanta, where Tom has joined a law firm. Naomi will stay at home with Harrison (1) before returning to work as a lawyer. Katherine Egli married Bob Armstrong in Glendive, MT, in August. They will reside in San Francisco, where Kate is a grad student in education at San Francisco State.

Carrie Montague married Tim Stanny in Big Sky, MT, in August. They are in Pittsburgh, where Tim works for AEG Westinghouse and Carrie is in marketing for Alcoa. Rachel Giles Gronsky and Joel are in Seattle. Both work for Boeing. Joel is a mechanical engineer working on aerospace projects, and Rachel is a technical editor. With a baby due in Oct., they have been looking for a house with property to raise their family and some horses. They are also enjoying the beautiful scenery, skiing, camping, hiking, and boating. Heidi Slavin started her own consulting business in Pittsburgh providing behavior management and community living skills to mentally retarded adults. As business has been overwhelming, Heidi has been putting in 14-hour days. She did take time off for a cruise in the Caribbean and Mexico. She sends a big hello to Frances Mantho and Heather Pirnie Albert. Frances is now assistant director of Crystal City Play and Learn, and just got engaged to Scott Belliveau, VMI '83. She's been attending seminars and conferences, and is now a member of several national organizations for young children advocacy. Heather and Michael are still with the Marines, and Rebecca (5) has started kindergarten. "Little Albert #2" is due in Dec. They held their 2nd Beach, Booze, and Bar-B-Que Party, which was attended by Frances, Chris McFadden, Hillary Herbert, and Cindy McMecham. Several of Michael's VMI friends also attended, and Heather says they all had a wild time.

Debbie Rundlett and husband Dick Greenwood are living in New Preston, CT. Dick is pastor of the Warren Congregational Church. Debbie completed a term call as parish associate at a Presbyterian church in Brookfield and is seeking a call as pastor. She still sees Valerie Youree, Carol Searles Bohrer, and Ann Morton Young Habliston, who, with husband Charles, is celebrating the birth of Caroline. Carol and Jason quit their jobs in May and spent the summer at the beach and traveling. They met up with Debbie and Dick in West Palm Beach. Jason is now at U.Va. in the MBA program, and Carol is a mortgage loan officer. Valerie is managing St. Luke's Gallery, which specializes in old masters, in DC. This spring she went to Argentina via Patagonia and ended up in Ushuaia, the tip of Tierra del Fuego. She saw Molly Finney, Jean, Ann Morton, and Molly Johnson at Charlotte Prassel FitzGerald's house. Shortly after, on Andy's birthday, Charlotte gave birth to Catherine Cecilia (Cece).

Claude Becker has spent the past 18 mos. as assistant producer for CBS News in London. She is moving to New York to be associate producer of CBS's 48 Hours. Anne Goebel graduated from culinary school and is now working for Chateau Souverain in Sonoma Wine Country. Her parking space is 4 feet from the chardonnay grapes, and she loves living outside the city. The chef she is working with was voted one of the best new chefs in America. She is only an hour from San Francisco, and her beau is in Los Angeles, so there is respite from rusticity. Karen McLain Chiapetta and Donald had Michael David in March. After selling the businesses, they are relocating to San Francisco before the end of the year. Leslie Taylor Kavanaugh and Richard are in West Chester, PA. They have 3 children: Ryan (8), Ann Marie (4), and Charlotte Baird (1). Leslie is controller for Scott Olds-Saab in Wynnewood, and Richard is assistant vice president for Fred S. James in Philadelphia. Lisa Church was in Salt Lake City and becoming "Granola"—mountain biking and cross-country skiing, hiking and camping in WY and ID—and visiting the life-styles of the rich and famous in Palm Springs and Sun Valley, before starting law school in San Francisco. She and sister Nancy '77, met with the German side of the family for a reunion in Italy in Aug. Genevieve Pirrone is a translator/receptionist with Dow, Lohmes & Albertson in DC. She vacationed in Europe for 2 weeks this summer.

Beth Sheets Reed, Bryan, Kate (3), and Matthew (1) have moved into their new house, which they spent the past year building. She invites anyone visiting Maine to drop by and see her in Wilton. Liz Kauffman, who is practicing law in OH, took some R&R at Rehoboth Beach, and a plane crashed 100 yards from her self-occupied towel. She also saw some surfing tournaments that were as heart-stopping but not life-threatening, to her. Ethel Burwell has moved into the VA countryside to start Young Life in Loudoun County. She is working in the thriving metropolis of Purcellville and helping out with senior high youth at an Episcopal church. She spent a month in the Colorado Rockies at Young Life's Frontier Ranch. She is still riding and has lots of opportunities in her new locale. Mimi Evans graduated from the U. of Edinburgh in July '88 with a bachelor's in divinity, and started work at Gyde House, in Gloucestershire, England, where they tend orphans and troubled or abandoned children. She and her mother, who is British, have been visiting the area, which is in the Cotswolds, since Mimi was a child, and she considers it a second home. But her work permit runs out soon, and she'll be back in the States looking for work with a church, hospital, or school.

Gay Kenney Young and Robert welcomed the arrival of Alexander Chasen, who roared in at the crack of dawn and weighed in at 8 lbs., 4 ozs. Gay, who is on leave from Travel & Leisure's L.A. office, is enjoying motherhood and learning to live without sleep. Alexander's godmother, Wendi Brunell Plenge, writes that Sharsten (3) has outgrown her baby stuff and donated it to Gay. Wendi has been traveling and working for a community charity and "dreading turning 30." Alice Dixon sent a duder note: "I got my master's this spring—working on the house, too." And she put a 25-cent stamp on the postcard Dorinda Davis places second in brevity: "I water my Big Boy tomatoes and lounge by the pool when not pursuing the public's mental health. Et vous?" Caramba! Mis tomates tienen un infecion de los "leaf miners." And Consuelo Michelle Martinez didn't even write. I know she's an account executive with Benetton Cosmetics and that she went to Italy to see Alessandro and she will be moving there soon. But wasn't that her in the Star groping with Sly Stallone on a Spago banquet, and, on the very next page, promenading Muscle Beach with Crocodile Dundee?

Cathy Adams is in her second year of pharmacy school in Richmond. She saw Mary McKenna in CA and has kept up with Danielle Herubin and Anne Goebel. Betsy Kyle Donahue and David are also in Richmond. Daughter Leigh Elizabeth is 1, and their 2nd child is due in Dec. Betsy, though busy parenting, works in the public affairs dept. of the VA Museum of Fine Arts. Lynn Hanna Ingram gave birth to Jayne Marie in March. Lynn writes that the baby is much quieter than her mom and sister Rachel. Lynn's husband spent the summer on the USS Kennedy, while she visited her parents in OH. She had a mini-reunion with Robin Platt Wetherbee, Jim, their daughters, and Lisa Seay, and Lori Teeter. Sylvia Hossain received her MS in electrical engineering and is going into the Ph.D. program in engineering science and mechanics at Penn State. Her research consists of VLSI processing and semiconductor physics. Liz Hoskinson has left the world of fashion public relations to become the manager of public relations at the American Horse Shows Association. She will be traveling, writing, and, happily, hanging around horses. She's also doing lots of riding and working in her vegetable garden.

Rachel Millrood Perlman and David are living in the historic section of Philadelphia. Rachel is an institutional broker with Van Kampen Merriott. They spent the winter skiing in CO and the summer mountain biking in VT. Kit Johnson bought a house in the NC countryside and is fixing it up. She works in advertising and marketing and has a home-based agency that is doing well. Pamela Campbell Aadland is a multimedia specialist with Power Safety International, a subsidiary of Babcock & Wilcox that specializes in the design and delivery of training programs. Fay Powell Smith, Tom, and sons Stuart and Philip enjoyed a busy but satisfying summer. They live in Madison, VA. Susan Van Royen Wright enjoys raising her 2 daughters. She's working and living in CA and wishes she were on the East Coast, closer to family and friends. Andreanna Filis Lawson and Eric are moving closer to Porvoo, Finland, where Eric will be the head coach for that city's American football team. They have 2 sons, aged 5 and 2, and another child was on the way at press time. Lee Watson is an editorial associate at Harper & Row Ballinger Division, which does professional books, in New York. Softball is her new hobby. She pitches for the company team and is headed for the playoffs. She sees a lot of Susan Arnold Fortunato and her husband, Chris. Rosemary Hardy visited Rebecca Coggin Hubert '83 and son Marshall in VA. Rosemary is in Kansas City teaching severely behaviorally disordered children at a psychiatric hospital.

Rhonda Harris has been promoted to assistant vice president at Paine Webber Properties in NY. She had a nice visit with Rhonda Roggins Thomas '81 of Austin this summer, and sees a lot of Deborah Price Bowman. Jill Maple has been appointed marketing communications manager for the OEM and New Business Development Group of Duracell. She's working at the company headquarters in Bethel, CT. Martha Tisdale Cordell saw Althea Hurt '80 on a business trip to VA last winter. She dropped by Austin on a trip to San Antonio this summer, helping Liz Richardson celebrate her 29th b-day, and she made it to Liz's wedding. She and David vacationed in CO and visited sister-in-law Carol Cordell Mullins '78. They met up with Diane Dunaway and a friend of David's, too. Martha says dog Chelsea is a load and now on a diet. Cat Picasso is still participating in self-mutilation. (Somebody please help her with this cat.) Martha and David live in Tulsa, where David is with a law firm and Martha has just been made assistant dean of the law school.

Liz Richardson married Sean Gerard Cook in Sept. in Danville, KY. They will maintain a residence in Austin. Liz was thrilled to have Martha at her birthday party, at which time Martha charmed the assembly with her wonderful toasts. Liz is trying to get me in shape for the LPGA so we can make some big money and retire to a Texas spread. Sean is more pragmatic; he's been fixing up the house for his new bride. I know all this because I moved to Austin in April and stayed with Liz for 2 months. I don't have a real job yet. I freelance for Texas Monthly Press and am very busy following One Life to Live. I have a 2-bedroom house with a big backyard filled with dead tomatoes. Abdul Mohammed Betty is ecstatic with her new accommodations. No, I don't miss NY, but I do miss the pizza, the Mets, and sometimes, that inflated sense of my own importance that NY inspires. I'm basically happy being "a good ol' girl—huntin', fishin', golfin', and poppin' cold ones. Ya'll come visit."

When is a $1 million estate worth only $654,200?

Federal Taxes can devour an estate. The estate tax—an excise tax on your right to transfer assets to family members and friends—ranges from 18 percent to an effective 60 percent of your taxable estate.

Our example $1 million estate, for instance, would be subject to $345,800 in federal estate taxes were it not for certain credits, exemptions, exclusions and deductions that can soften the ravaging effects of the estate tax. Using these provisions, you can reduce—and in some cases even eliminate—estate taxation. So your family and friends can receive more of the assets you'd like them to have.

The free booklet, Simple Ways to Reduce Estate Taxes, defines the estate tax and explains how most taxpayers can use the marital deduction, the annual exclusion and more to transfer assets to spouse, children, grandchildren and non-profit organizations with minimal taxation.

SPRING 1990

An Open Letter to All Bulb Sellers and Buyers in the Sweet Briar Family

From Frances McClung Ferguson '80 National Bulb Chairman

Last fall, the National Bulb Committee determined to call a temporary halt to the Sweet Briar Spring Blooming Bulb Project. The decline in sales and alumnae interest, coupled with increasing costs, forced us to consider ending the project which, though a successful fund-raiser in the past, currently threatens to become a drag on the Association's resources. The National Bulb Committee suggested (and the Executive Committee of the Alumnae Association concurred) a two-year hiatus in the program, during which time an evaluation can be made of what the alumnae, individually and in clubs, want to do. Would alumnae prefer a national project or local projects? Can the Spring Bulb Project be revived or should we move to something else?

It is a fact that for nearly 40 years the project was an excellent fund-raiser, providing necessary scholarships for many students, expanding areas of alumnae contributions to the College and bringing clubs together. Unfortunately it is also a fact that the Bulb Project is no longer providing a significant proportion of scholarship funds. Despite annual pleas, pep talks, sweepstakes and gift items, sales and alumnae involvement have dropped steadily for several years. Last year 4% of our total alumnae bought or sold bulbs, netting only $11,894.12 for scholarship funds. (Alumnae club endowed scholarships provided $100,587 for 1985-86, 10.6% of the College's total financial aid budget; 25% of the students receiving aid that year were assisted by alumnae bulb sellers.)

The consensus of those attending Alumnae Council last October was that the Spring Bulb Project was marginal at best and, with the downward trend, would lose money in 1990—and by that I mean would bring in no scholarship funds but cost the Association in operating expenses. After Alumnae Council we were preparing to renegotiate our agreement with our supplier, Van Zyverden Brothers, when they notified us that they would no longer serve as our supplier.

Concurrently we were in contact with the previous supplier, Van Eeden Brothers. They profess to be eager to work with us again, but at our low sales level they do not feel that they can underwrite a catalog—which would mean additional expense to the Association.

The national committee met on November 4, clearly heavy at heart in considering the end of the project, knowing the emotional attachment of many to it and recognizing the goodwill built up among our customers. The committee felt strongly that since the project simply could not be continued at its present rate of productivity, Sweet Briar's interests would best be served by a time-out, rather than a slapdash attempt at the 1990 selling season.

The Executive Committee of the Alumnae Association will form a task force to investigate what kind of project alumnae will welcome and support with energy and enthusiasm. To assist the task force, we need to know your thoughts. Please respond! Send your suggestions, through your clubs or regional chairmen or directly to the Alumnae Office (Sweet Briar, VA 24595, 804/381-6131).

Our deepest thanks go to all of you who have been devoted sellers and Bulb Chairmen over the project's successful years. Your contribution to Sweet Briar stands firm; scholarships will continue to be provided from the interest accruing from the $1.3 million in endowed funds generated by bulb sales during the past 40 years.

We hope that you will give the task force the guidance needed to chart our future course.

Although the Spring Blooming Bulb Project has been put on hold, the Washington Club's Amaryllis Project remains a success. Clubs receive commissions from amaryllis sales, so you can still support your club's scholarship through sales of bulbs—Christmas amaryllis.

The jury files in and delivers its verdict. Then, before she brings down her gavel to end the session of court, Judge Lydia Taylor thanks the jury and both attorneys. "I've enjoyed hearing you present this case so smoothly," she says in a pleasant, Virginia-accented voice, adding a feminine touch to what is largely a masculine profession. She is the first woman to serve as judge of the Circuit Court of Norfolk.

Later, in chambers, Taylor and her law clerk analyze why the jury decided as they did, and discuss the foibles of the jury system. This was the last case of the day. Taylor doffs her judicial robe and relaxes. Her office, unlike the usual dark-paneled judge's chambers, has a woman's touch. To standard city government furniture, she has added paintings, a candelabra, blue cushions and a blue and white rug—to make it distinctly her own.

Born into a family of judges and lawyers, Lydia Calvert Taylor tried a variety of roles and jobs before she became what she feels she was destined to be. "It didn't occur to me in 1962 that a woman could become a lawyer," she says. So she first tried journalism, teaching and editing.

When she graduated from Sweet Briar College, Taylor took a small inheritance, flew to Europe, bought a car and traveled for three months before returning home to become a copy girl for the Washington Post. "I wanted to write political news, and eventually become a foreign correspondent, but they kept pushing me into doing society columns because I was a woman." After two years, she decided the way to become a correspondent was to become an expert on one country. She determined to learn Spanish and move to Spain, a country she'd liked in her travels.

Language lessons with an Ecuadorian woman changed her mind—one of the many incidents that have shaped her life, she says. Her language teacher persuaded her to go to South America instead, so the two set out driving the Pan American highway, and spent eight months traveling in Mexico and Central America, before finally arriving in Ecuador. After three months there, appendicitis forced Taylor to return to Norfolk, but the taste of Latin America had changed her plans forever.

Back in Norfolk, she studied for a master's degree in Latin American studies and acquired teaching credentials as well. In 1968 she campaigned first for Eugene McCarthy, and later for Bobby Kennedy. Then, devastated by the events of 1968, she decided to go back to South America. A family friend advised her to choose Chile, which has had a long history of stability and culture. However, he predicted the upheaval that was to change her life again four years later. She won a Fulbright scholarship to study political science.

The Honorable Lydia Taylor '62

Judge Lydia Taylor Offers Woman's Perspective

Taylor feels the best possible training to be a judge is motherhood. "In both cases, I'm the ultimate authority," she says, "but I can't use physical power. I must try to be logical, to explain things, and to use psychology in dealing with the offender."

BY EMILEE HINES

In Chile she met and married a Chilean law student, who was involved in politics. His party lost to Allende's Marxist party though he was still able to get a job managing the state television station. "Everyone could feel trouble coming," Taylor reminisces. "There was an attempted coup, then a second coup two weeks later that succeeded. We were able to escape before the real bloodshed."

Back in the U.S.A., Taylor and her husband went to the University of Texas in Austin, where he enrolled in graduate school and she became a book editor for the university. Their two daughters, Cecilia and Francesca, were born in Texas.

In 1977 her marriage ended and she returned to Virginia, where she enrolled in law school at the College of William and Mary in Williamsburg. She commuted, driving two hours each day, studying four hours and still trying to spend time with her children.

"I knew I had to get good grades, or no one would hire me," she recalls. "No one wanted a 40-year-old woman lawyer." The rigorous schedule was stressful, but she had no adjustment to make to law school itself. "Each profession has its own way of thinking, its own language. Law was the language I'd been hearing around the dinner table all my life, so going to law school was like putting on a comfortable pair of shoes."

She succeeded so well that she graduated second in her class, was named to the Order of the Coif, and received the West Publishing Company award for outstanding scholastic achievement. She became law clerk to Judge Walter Hoffman, considered one of America's top legal scholars, and traveled all over America.

The following year, 1981, she was employed as an assistant city attorney for Norfolk. To her delight, she was assigned to work on busing, voting rights, pornography and other First Amendment cases. In 1984 she was the first woman to be honored by the National Institute of Municipal Law Officers for outstanding public service.

From 1985 to 1988, Taylor was a judge in Norfolk's General District Court, and in 1988 she was named to the Circuit Court Bench. Taylor feels the best possible training to be a judge is motherhood. "In both cases, I'm the ultimate authority," she says, "but I can't use physical power. I must try to be logical, to explain things, and to use psychology in dealing with the offender."

This is especially true in handling cases of parole violation. "I offer them some alternatives. Then, when they choose, I ask, 'Are you sure you can go by these terms?' I don't believe in technical violations. If the violator did not adhere to his terms, he is mocking the system. He must suffer the consequences. To continually let someone escape the consequences is saying that he is not an adult. When I give my decision, I point out, 'You chose this. I didn't.'"

To people who say she is too tough on defendants, she counters that the court must reward good behavior and punish bad, or our whole system and concept of law will fall apart.

Taylor feels that it is very important to have women and representatives of various minorities on the bench, for at least three reasons. First, she says, many points of view are needed in the judicial-law-making process. Our common law has developed through usage. By their decisions, judges are making law, and this law must be representative of all America not just the male half. Second, people need to feel that the justice system is fair, or they will refuse to cooperate with it. American society is built on voluntary compliance by the majority. For some citizens, it's difficult to see fairness when judges are all "different," either by sex or race. This is especially true in divorce cases, where half of every case is feminine and few of the judges are. Third, women and minorities need to see judges as role models, she says.

Because of her legal experience and her command of Spanish, Taylor was a logical choice as Fulbright Professor of United States Law in Chile. Just as she completed a cycle of her life when she returned to Norfolk, studied law and became a judge, she completed another cycle in the summer of 1989 when she returned to Chile for a month of teaching at law schools in Santiago, Concepcion and Valparaiso. She visited the house that had been hers when she lived in Chile, a house she had designed using antique materials such as weathered tiles and centuries-old iron work.

"Chile is an incredibly beautiful country, and I love the people," Taylor says, "but I love what I'm doing here too. Being a judge takes huge amounts of time if it is done right, but it is intellectually challenging and emotionally exciting. Nobody ever invented a better job."

Charlene Reed-Miller '73 sits before Sweet Briar's SEM during Alumnae Council, October, 1989

Gift of Electron Microscope Heralds Renewed Commitment to the Sciences

BY JANET LOWREY GAGER

An electron microscope has been at the top of the Sweet Briar Biology Department's wish list for a long time. Such microscopes are very large, very complex, very sensitive and very costly, not only to purchase but to house and maintain. So when a strong commitment to the sciences emerged as a priority of Sweet Briar's 1986-87 strategic planning process, members of the science faculties were elated, and those in biology began to dream that an electron microscope might become a reality.

As fate would have it, in May 1988 Charlene Reed-Miller '73, on campus for her 15th reunion, looked up Margaret Simpson, professor of biology, and learned that an electron microscope was a much-wanted item. When she returned home, she discussed this with her husband, then an executive with Carl Zeiss, Inc. (major manufacturer of optical equipment), to see if he might be in a position to arrange for his company to donate one to the College. Subsequently, through the Millers, Zeiss presented Sweet Briar with a Cambridge Scanning Electron Microscope (SEM), which was delivered and installed this past July.

The SEM is housed in an air-conditioned inner room within a newly renovated laboratory on the ground floor of the Guion Science Building, a location made necessary in order to provide an area with minimal interference from electromagnetic fields. The SEM laboratory comprises an inner room housing the microscope itself and an outer laboratory area for the preparation of specimens. This space was formerly occupied by the Psychology Seminar Room, which in turn displaced the first floor Computer Lab, which then was moved to the second floor. Thus, finding the correct environment for the highly sensitive scope proved to be a major cooperative venture involving all the departments in Guion Hall. (The renovations were carried out by a Sweet Briar crew under the direction of Charles Kestner, director of Planning and Construction.)

Unlike a regular microscope, which uses light for illumination, the SEM uses a beam of electrons to bombard the specimen, creating a three-dimensional image of the surface. It enables biology students to examine the surfaces of cells, floral parts and parts of insects. "The three-dimensional effect is intriguing," according to Joanne Rosinski, associate professor of biology. "For example, you can see the cells of an immune system engulfing bacteria."

The Biology Department is offering Biology 250, "Scanning Electron Microscopy," for the first time this Spring Term. The course includes the preparation of specimens and preparation and interpretation of photographs. "Students will learn what artifacts to look for and how to analyze and interpret the image," Rosinski says.

The SEM also will be used in advanced biology courses and independent projects. Though Biology probably will take the greatest advantage of the SEM, Physics, Chemistry and other departments also will make use of it. In the field of physics, the SEM has had impact in materials science; in the art world, it has been used to examine the characteristics of various paints and, through the comparative analysis of paints and fibers, to authenticate and date paintings. In forensics, the SEM is used to examine hair and fibers, and in industry, to examine the surfaces of small objects, such as computer chips.

The SEM can be used in faculty research as well. On her sabbatical in 1986-87, for instance, Rosinski was "looking at factors involved in regenerating whole plants from cells." As she continues her research, she will use the SEM to look at cells going through that process.

Robin Davies, assistant professor of biology, has mammalian cells in culture which she can examine under the SEM. Davies, whose doctorate is from Princeton University, came to Sweet Briar last fall from Gentest in Woburn, Massachusetts, where she was senior molecular biologist. She knows the current and "hottest" applications of this technology.

Rosinski expects the SEM to become a valuable recruiting tool for the sciences. "Our science program provides students with the background and laboratory experience they need for jobs in industry, for medical or other professional schools, or for graduate school including research in the exciting and competitive areas of molecular and cellular biology," she explains. "This kind of instrumentation is one way of getting our message across. Of course one of the advantages of a small college is that undergraduates can have hands-on experience not so often available to students in the crowded labs of large universities."

Members of the Biology Department hope that the gift of the SEM will provide an impetus toward an eventual EM facility which will include both scanning and transmission electron microscopes, the two kinds most commonly used in the field of biology.

"Our students need to be made aware of the tremendous opportunities for women in science," says Rosinski. "The field of biology has been undergoing revolutionary changes. Advances in techniques such as tissue culture and genetic engineering have made it possible to introduce new genetic traits into organisms. Biotechnology, the application of these technical advances, has opened up a whole new area which is having an enormous impact on industry and agriculture.

"A bright woman who wants to be good in biology needs a background in chemistry, physics and math. The program we have here at Sweet Briar can prepare our students well. We offer the advantage of small classes and the attention we can give to each student. At the same time, we've done a good job of getting our students into graduate and professional schools."

Charlene Reed-Miller is a vice president and director of Research and Sponsored Programs at Danbury Hospital in Connecticut. Prior to this she had a consulting business, where the majority of the work involved electron microscopy for a variety of industries, including cosmetics, pharmaceuticals and medical devices.

Charlene received her Ph.D. in biology from Florida State University in 1978. Having studied biology at Sweet Briar under such intellectual stalwarts as Elizabeth Sprague, Miriam Bennett and Jane Belcher, Charlene arrived at Florida State academically well prepared, though, she says, "lacking sophistication in laboratory instrumentation." Fortunately, help was at hand in the person of a fellow student who was director of the electron microscopy lab—Bill Miller (Dr. W. I. Miller III), her future husband, now president of Sarastro, a company that manufactures confocal laser scanning microscopes in Danbury.

The first woman to receive the National Institute of Health's prestigious Young Investigator Award, Charlene also received a grant from the Institute of Dental Research to study "calcium transport and deposition," and two NIH grants. She is the former director of an eye research foundation in Atlanta, where she presented and published much of her work.

At Sweet Briar she was a Bum Chum, a student guide and a song leader. An avid rider, she was active in the SBC Riding Council and currently has two young horses that she shows.

Charlene has a message for today's Sweet Briar students: "You should never be intimidated by an assignment or request or say that you can't do something. As a Sweet Briar graduate, you have the preparation to do what is asked or to figure out how to do it."

Sweet Briar's Vistas: Yesterday

When asked to be Sweet Briar's consultant on landscape design in the spring of 1989, I was flattered and honored but wondered what I could offer the 3300-acre campus so beautifully situated at the foot of the Blue Ridge mountains. The answer was not much, if we are talking basic new design or drastic changes; Sweet Briar's campus flows so gracefully from the entrance gates, around the dells and up to Monument Hill and the Rogers Riding Center. Research on the architectural origins of the College confirmed my feelings that traditional plants and design are appropriate for Sweet Briar.

The College was designed by Ralph Adams Cram of the firm of Cram, Goodhue and Ferguson, principal architects for Sweet Briar during its first 30 years. Dr. Cram was already famous for the Cleveland Tower at Princeton, the Cathedral of St. John the Divine and the Calvary Church in Pittsburgh. Ours is one of the few campuses in the country where the architecture was carried out entirely in what is known as "collegiate Georgian." Instead of using the originally proposed yellow Roman brick, the Virginia red brick was chosen for the buildings. Cram also had proposed a vast, formal, baroque quadrangle with geometric parterres, fountains and pools amid strategically-placed cypresses. Instead, a more informal landscape pattern was adopted, allowing deciduous trees to grow naturally so that Sweet Briar exists almost in the midst of a forest. The formal quad, never completed, is open to cultivated fields and grazing land at the southwest end.

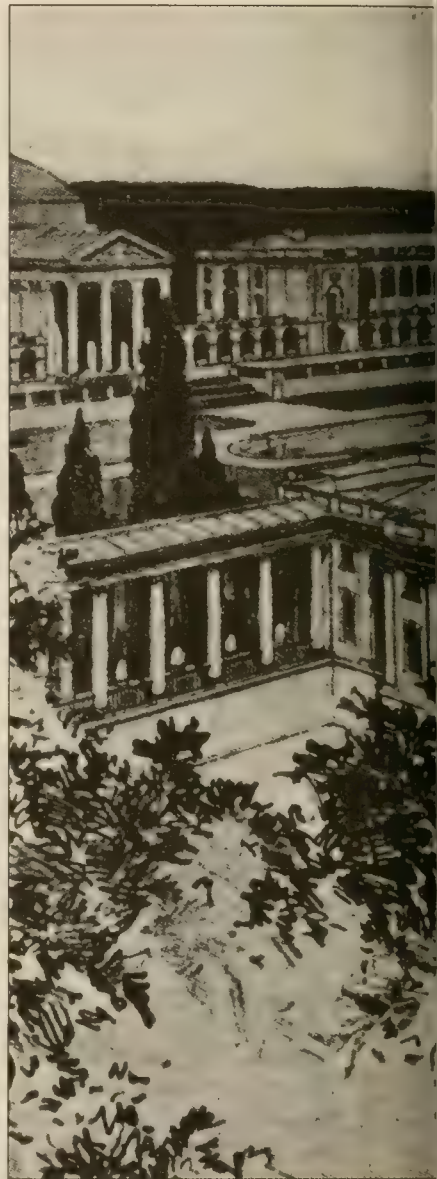

In the 1920s the Lynchburg firm of Pendleton S. Clark was hired and later became the major architectural firm for the College. The buildings constructed since then have kept to the Georgian plan, simplified to meet modern day building costs. (Only the Connie M. Guion Science Building is a definite contemporary structure.) Sweet Briar is reputed to be a complete ensemble of some of the best American classical buildings, maintaining stylistic harmony of collegiate Georgian with a Gothic spirit. Other Virginia campuses that have buildings in the collegiate Georgian mode include Hampden-Sydney, Washington and Lee, Mary Baldwin, Hollins and William and Mary.

With the less formal approach to landscaping, the parterres between walkways became simple squares of green. Paths and a simply-defined roadway traverse the central campus, with no formal drive. Reid dormitory is in the middle of the originally-designated axial drive, which would have led from the former Refectory (now the Anne Gary Pannell Gallery) to a road to the south, a drive that was to have run between the dormitories. Reid and Dew dormitories enclose that part of the quadrangle, blocking the intended vista from the Pannell Gallery. In 1929, when the Mary Helen Cochran Library was under construction, Charles Gillette, landscape architect from Richmond, proposed the road which runs north of the academic buildings and dormitories. A roundabout was located at the northwest corner in 1940 and now all traffic enters the immediate campus from the west. The Memorial Chapel completed the eastern side of the campus in the 1960s.

During the 1930s landscape architect Elsetta Gilchrist Barnes '27 played a significant role in landscaping Sweet Briar's grounds. Hired by President Meta Glass in 1932, she came twice a year to help plan and oversee new plantings. She planted many of the trees on campus, including the Copper Beech, a Cut-leafed Beech, crab apples and magnolias. Following Mrs. Barnes were Richard Webel, of Innocenti and Webel in New York, who was responsible for much of the design at the Wailes Center, the science building and the chapel, and Tom Borelis from GWSM in Pittsburgh, who designed Prothro Commons and oversaw some of the planting at Meta Glass dormitory in the '70s.

In earlier times Elijah Fletcher came from Vermont in 1810 as a schoolteacher and purchased the tract of land with the six-room farmhouse (now Sweet Briar House). The Fletcher family enlarged the house by adding two wings with three-story square towers and an arched portico over the front entrance. They laid out the gardens with extensive boxwood plantings said to have been sent from Kew Gardens in 1831. The Fletchers also planted the circle of 31 boxwood trees in front of Sweet Briar House, along with irregularly-clumped boxwood to the west of the house and the thick hedges of tall boxwood that border the garden, 300-400 in number. John Creech, former director of day, Today and Tomorrow

Proposed view of the Campus, published in 1920

the National Arboretum in Washington, visited Sweet Briar this year and commented that the garden at Sweet Briar House, with American boxwood more than 150 years old, is one of the few native gardens in this country.

With this background in mind, our ongoing efforts have been directed toward general maintenance of campus plantings, pruning and care of the American and English boxwood and gardens at Sweet Briar House, renewal of Daisy's Garden, face-lifting alterations required as the dormitories are renovated, care and renewal of plantings on Monument Hill and at the Riding Center, preservation of the campus nature sanctuaries and selection of new trees to be planted annually.

The primary focus for the next two years is the pruning and care of the American and English boxwood at Sweet Briar House. Most of these trees are very old and must undergo spraying and pruning in early spring on a regular basis. On a visit to Sweet Briar last summer Gary Koller, a horticulturist and designer from the Arnold Arboretum, advised lowering some of the boxwood in the circle in front of Sweet Briar House in a graduated fashion. This would maintain historical accuracy of size but open up the vista. Will Mays, a boxwood grower from Amherst, will prune the boxwood, with this purpose in mind, over the next few years. Several diseased boxwood on the west side of the house and along the entrance walk may be removed to enhance the spatial impact of the ones remaining. Mr. Koller also recommended replacing the overgrown English boxwood in the center panel of Daisy's Garden with some small ones consistent with the scale of the garden; the large semicircle of English boxwood at the end of the garden walk will remain.

Monument Hill, one of the most revered places on campus, has received much-needed pruning of the old American boxwood. The handsome old trees—the Chinese Fir and the Chamaecyparis (White Cedar)—still survive. Mr. Koller recommended a backdrop planting against the wall of Acer palmatum virides (Weeping Japanese Maples) that will grow 10'-to-12' tall and give brilliant autumn color. These should be underplanted with hosta or ground cover.

The renovated dormitories will need new plantings. A simple plan of dogwood, azaleas and American boxwood has been drawn for the front of Grammer. Grammer's side bed on the lower level facing Prothro will be planted with Threadleaf Japanese Maples, Foster Hollies, Liriope and Horizontal Junipers. Carson will have some additional planting in the rear.

The English boxwood around the Chapel will be removed and the grassy plots neatly edged. The American boxwood around the Chapel will be lightly trimmed for shape and for air and light.

Last but not least will come new tree plantings. Bartlett Tree Service is under contract to care for Sweet Briar's many venerable trees. Each year, inevitably, some are lost; our responsibility to future generations is to plant a certain number of new ones annually. A landscape committee will decide the number and types to plant—such as Witch Hazels, beech trees, Swamp Magnolia, Kentucky Coffee-trees, Honey Locusts, Sour Gum or Black Gum, Sweet Gum, American Elms and Columnar Beech—to add to the common trees and shrubs in the main campus area.

Sweet Briar's woods, fields, meadows, lakes and streams have offered refuge to birds and animals, first as a state game sanctuary and later as the Carry Nature Sanctuary, one of three major preserved areas on campus. The Carry Nature Sanctuary endowment was established by Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Carry of Chicago in 1936 in memory of their son, Charles William Carry. Then in 1957 an old oak/hickory forest with some beeches and a dogwood understory, just south of the entrance road, was designated a protected area supported by the endowment. Behind the science building is another untouched area, an undisturbed forest of White Oaks, Tulip Trees, hickories, Red Maple and more dogwood. Some of these trees represent classic examples that could not be duplicated in less than 400 years. Other patches of woodland on campus encompass many stages of a forest, due to the various agricultural practices over the years; these outnumber the small areas of undisturbed climax or near-climax forests. All campus wooded areas are best known through the eyes of Dr. Ernest Edwards, Sweet Briar's Dorys McConnell Duberg Professor of Ecology, who affirms that Sweet Briar's natural environment equals the best for ecological studies.

The present aim is to continue the good efforts made through the years to maintain the grounds, with particular emphasis on the boxwood at Sweet Briar House. Most new plantings will be traditional shrubs and trees, many indigenous to the area, with flower gardens for color in the proper places. Such treasures as the Copper Beech in front of Fletcher and the Weeping Hemlock along the front walk at Sweet Briar House are special landmarks to preserve. We have the responsibility to replenish, renew, renourish this great legacy, to keep it as a learning ground for tomorrow's students. For me, it will be a continuous enjoyment and joint effort with the administration, the able grounds personnel, consultants and landscape contractors to protect this God-given natural beauty. Sweet Briar's vistas: long may they flourish and thrive.

Mina Walker Wood holds a certificate in landscape design from the American Landscape School and in 1974 started her own business, Landscape Designs. As a free-lance designer she works with both residential and commercial sites. Very interested in the restoration and maintenance of historic gardens, she has been responsible for the design of many projects throughout Virginia and currently chairs the grounds committee of Lynchburg's Point of Honor. She is a member of the Board of Directors of The Garden Club of Virginia and former president of the Lynchburg Garden Club.

Jeannette Mehl: Best Teacher of the Year

In June 1989, Jeannette Mehl '78 was voted best teacher of the year at the University of Monterrey, Mexico, where she teaches the history of art and architecture. Jeannette also runs her own gymnasium and spends six hours a day giving private aerobics classes which have grown from five to 35 students per class since she started them in 1987. The common thread in two seemingly disparate fields is Jeannette's love of art. "The aerobics I teach are a form of art because they are combined with dance. I always wanted to be a dancer; dance is a wonderful means of expressing one's feelings." At SBC, Jeannette majored in art history and economics. In managing her aerobics gymnasium so successfully, she is putting her economics to good use too.

Jeannette Mehl, Superachiever: It helps to have an understanding husband.

After a graduate diploma from the University of Lyon, Jeannette began teaching art history at the University of Monterrey in 1980. At the request of her students, who were all preparing for careers in architecture, she added courses in the theory and history of architecture, reading as much as she could in the field. Although not officially full-time, she was nominated best teacher in the division in '82, '84 and '85, as well as in 1989. In aerobics, she has won certification from two professional U.S. aerobics organizations and plans to become a consultant. Jeannette also teaches music and dance history at the Monterrey School of Music and Dance. Lest anyone wonder what she does in her spare time...she writes regularly for university publications and an art magazine, and occasionally acts with a professional theatre group!

Jeannette would be a superachiever even in the New York rat race. In the conservative Mexican city of Monterrey (pop. 5 million), she is a trailblazer, and was the subject of a recent local TV program entitled "Outstanding Women of the State." "Women here have not been brought up with the idea that they should work much outside the home. A woman's life is geared to her husband and family. Mexican society is very stratified. In my aerobics classes, I work with the upper middle class, and I sense that these women want to change, to become more independent." As far as maintaining her own independence in such a traditional society, Jeannette admits that it helps to have an understanding husband. She is married to Ramon Rodriguez, a steel distributor with a degree in business administration. "He accepted my absorption in my career and my hectic working hours long before we were married."

Cynthia Whitley Digs (Up) the Past

Cynthia (Cindy) Whitley, anticipating her appearance at the March 8, 1990 EXPLORE College Fair at SBC, couldn't "wait to tell students that it's never too late to jump into a new field...especially if, as in my case, it is the culmination of a lifelong love affair with archaeology!"

As a Sweet Briar junior, Cindy did an Honors Program in Foreign Policy Analysis at Aberdeen University, Scotland. Following graduation with a major in international affairs, she spent eight years in Washington pursuing a career in political finance with various Republican organizations. "It was a hectic, 'burnout' career track; in 1985 I began to consider some major changes." September '86 saw her ensconced in the MBA program at the College of William and Mary in Williamsburg, "with the objective of ending up in the marketing division of a corporation in Somewhere, America." But by spring '87, she had reached the decision that, though graduate school had been the right idea, her choice of program was wrong. "I withdrew from the MBA program, applied to W&M's Masters program in Historical Archaeology and a few weeks later began my 'Great Adventure' in the world of archaeology."

Summer '87 was an exciting highlight for Cindy: she fulfilled the requirement of participating in a field school to learn excavation method and theory in W&M's official field program in St. Eustatius, a Dutch island in the West Indies. There she excavated the site of an 18th century Dutch sugar plantation, also periodically helping the underwater archaeologists and doing an independent project connected with an urban domestic site. Back in Williamsburg, she completed her academic requirements in May '88, passed Comps and "moved into the 'real' world to look for a job."

Luck was with her. One of her professors, the head archaeologist with Colonial Williamsburg, offered a fellowship to supervise a summer excavation for the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation. For 10 weeks she worked on the site of the home of a slave, c.1840, located near the Governor's Palace. She notes, "The quest for discovering more about slave life has become such a hot topic that the BBC flew over from England to film our site—we were thrilled!” Immediately following that experience she was hired by an archaeological contracting company affiliated with W&M to work on several short-term projects.

Cindy Whitley '78 on site at Monticello

Soon after beginning this work, she received a call from Dr. William Kelso, Director of Archaeology at Monticello, who needed a laboratory supervisor; Cindy drove to Charlottesville for an interview. Two months later, having fulfilled her obligation to the contracting company, she was on the job—which evolved into far more than laboratory work. Dr. Kelso took a two-year leave of absence from Monticello to begin an archaeology program at Thomas Jefferson’s summer residence, Poplar Forest in Lynchburg, turning over the director’s position to his field supervisor. She and Cindy now spend equal time excavating outside and working indoors in the lab

Basically, they spend their time “piecing history back together,” literally. During spring, summer and fall they survey the property for potential sites, then return to specific sites to excavate. Hired excavators help in spring and fall. During the summer, when field school is conducted, 20 students, who are college-aged or older and receive college credit for the course, assist. Winter months are spent washing, labeling, cataloging, analyzing and eventually storing artifacts found during the previous season; writing reports and articles about findings; conserving specific artifacts; visiting schools; attending conferences; and researching particular topics. Cindy now is working on her Master’s thesis, a study of 35 18th- and 19th-century coins excavated at Monticello. She hopes to present the results of her study at the Society for Historical Archaeology’s conference next year in Richmond.

In her year-plus at Monticello, Cindy has conducted a survey to locate the domestic dwellings of several of Jefferson’s slaves, excavated Jefferson’s privy and 480 feet of a ditch known as the “Ha ha,” which served as a sort of cattle-guard around the lawn, attempted to plot the layout of one of the orchards and begun a long-term excavation on the house site of Jefferson’s blacksmith, William Stewart, who, with his family, lived at Monticello for seven years. Spring plans include survey of a possible slave burial site and continuing excavation at Stewart’s site. Future plans will take Cindy off the mountain to excavate Jefferson’s other nearby holdings, Shadwell and Tufton.

Cindy is the granddaughter of Edith Durrell Marshall ’21, the daughter of Ann Marshall Whitley ’47 and the sister of Elizabeth (Libby) Whitley ’75.

Edith Durrell Marshall Receives Honorary Life Membership

Like grandmother, like granddaughter? Perhaps Cindy Whitley’s energy on archaeological digs (see above) derives straight from Grandmama, Edith Marshall ’21, who has “never entertained the thought of retiring.” Presented by her Pleasant Ridge, Ohio Presbyterian Church Woman’s Association with an honorary life membership in Presbyterian Women U.S.A. on November 19, 1989, Edith has served as church historian for 65 years. Although still on call for her knowledge and wisdom, she recently turned over her life’s work in the church—to a whole committee!

Now confined to the Care Unit of her Cincinnati retirement home (much to her consternation), recovering from a fractured hip, she serves as chairperson of the Care Center Advisory Committee, in charge of dealing with resident’s complaints and suggesting improvements in the quality of life at the Care Center.

Edith’s devoted work for SBC resulted in her award as the Outstanding Alumna of 1973. At 91, she looks forward to her 70th Class Reunion in 1991. Viva Edith!

Wes Francis: “Recreation needs a pitch.”

Elinor Ward Francis Receives Award from National Recreation and Park Association

Before an audience of 4,000 people in San Antonio last October, Elinor (Wes) Ward Francis ’37 received the 1989 Ralph C. Wilson Award from the National Recreation and Park Association of which she has been a trustee since its founding 25 years ago. “She was commended for her consistent advocacy of the importance of recreation and parks and for improving the quality of life in American cities,” stated Wes’s local newspaper, the Main Line Times.

“I’m delighted with the award because recreation needs a pitch,” said Wes. “It’s a fairly new profession. When budgets are cut, money for recreation traditionally has been the first to go—but that leaves people with nothing to do. Now the public is beginning to recognize that everybody needs recreation and that facilities are a vital part of our communities. Many large universities now include parks and recreation studies in their curricula."

Wes's eyes were opened when she did a survey for the Philadelphia Recreation Department in the late '50s. "I saw young people turn from being delinquents to being bright, creative teenagers once we got them interested in art or sports or something they enjoyed." Wes cited the example of a town in Israel, where the townspeople started a tennis center, providing rackets and balls. In two years, the juvenile delinquency rate was cut by 50%.

Recreation is not restricted to sports. "It is absolutely anything you like to do in your free time that gives you constructive pleasure," said Wes. Her own interest is theatre. An English major at SBC with particular interest in writing plays, she worked at the Cleveland Playhouse after graduation, before her 1940 marriage to George Francis. Since then she has shared her love of the theatre as a volunteer by teaching dramatics classes and workshops. She remembers one very challenging class at the Philadelphia Recreation Department. "I was teaching storytelling and creative dramatics to a class of Recreation leaders, many of whom certainly did not look as though they would be receptive—tough-looking men in T-shirts, cigarettes dangling out of the sides of their mouths. We mimed a baseball game, without ball or bat. To my surprise, they entered into the spirit of it; it went very well. Imagine my delight when one of them called me several months later to say that he and his class of youngsters had had a great time 'acting out' their game one day when the bat and ball were locked up."

Wes is especially proud of the variety of activities sponsored at Spring House, a recreation center for the elderly which she started in her local community of Bryn Mawr. "It grew from 12 original members to 600, with a waiting list. Starting out as a place for men to play cards, now it serves a great cross section of interests. For example, a naturalist from the town conducts walks, small groups get together for dinner once a week, and we run bus tours to see the New England fall foliage. Once I saw someone arrive in a chauffeur-driven limousine—you don't have to be poor to use this center. The town pays nothing except regular maintenance of the building; small membership dues cover all other in-house expenses."

What does Wes do for recreation herself? She enjoys music and travel, and has some active hobbies—she loves tennis and is "struggling with" golf. What she likes best is to spend time with her son, A. Ward Francis, his wife Kathie, and their two sons, Ward, Jr. and Adam. After family, her favorite thing is volunteer work. The numerous civic groups with which she is active include the public TV and FM station WHYI, serving Philadelphia and Wilmington. A trustee emeritus, Wes has been on the board since the station first aired in the 1950s.

Wes loves helping others: "It gives me a feeling of self-worth. When my husband was alive, he supported my volunteerism whole-heartedly and came with me to all the national meetings." Wes's husband George, a businessman, died in January '86.

One of the most inspiring events of Wes's student days at Sweet Briar was meeting and talking with a distinguished playwright who spent several weeks on campus. "I learned more from bull sessions in the dell with him than from books or lectures." To make this sort of opportunity available to Sweet Briar students, Wes established the Wes Ward Francis Fund to bring distinguished people to campus for a long enough time to have an impact on students.

Perhaps Wes's greatest gift is that she does everything in her power to share whatever she has with others.

change team from March 25 to April 28, 1990. As one of the four-member team of outstanding young business and professional men and women, she will represent District 757, which has 60 clubs ranging from Winchester, VA to Greenville, TN. Her sponsor is the Amherst, VA Rotary Club.

While in Argentina, team members will observe their hosts' way of life, and study the nation's economic, social and cultural characteristics through travel and discussions within the participating Rotary district. The visit will afford a unique person-to-person opportunity to promote better understanding and friendly relations among the people of Argentina and the USA.

Upon return, Louise will share what she has learned by addressing Rotary clubs, youth groups and other organizations.

Group Study Exchange is an educational program providing travel grants for exchange of teams, within a two-year period, between paired Rotary districts in different countries. More than 10,000 persons from 147 countries have participated in the program since its inception in 1965.

Muriel Wikswo Lambert '66: A Leader in Molecular Biology and Medical Research

Note: In reply to a letter to Muriel asking if we might feature her in the magazine, we received the following text—written by W. Clark Lambert, M.D., Ph.D., professor of pathology and husband. Hurray for Sweet Briar husbands!

DNA (deoxyribonucleic acid) is a molecule present in virtually all living cells, whether human, butterfly, rosebud or bacterium. This molecule has a particularly vital role: the sequence of bases of which it is composed makes up the genetic blueprint for the entire cell, and also for entire multicell organisms such as all of the above (except bacteria). Therefore it is critical that no changes occur in this very important molecule. However, the DNA molecule which makes up the blueprint of a single human cell is about three billion bases long, and is constantly undergoing temporary but dramatic changes in structure so that its sequence of bases can be "read" by enzymes called polymerases to make either more DNA to create a new cell, or a related compound, called RNA, which brings the blueprint "message" to the rest of the cell, where it determines its structure and function. In addition, there are many environmental factors, for example sunlight and certain chemicals, which cause numerous types of damage in cellular DNA. As if this weren't enough, certain changes occur spontaneously in human DNA just because it is constantly at body temperature, which favors the occurrence of change. In the last category alone, between 10,000 and 20,000 alterations occur in the DNA of each cell every day. These cellular DNA changes are thought to play critical roles in the etiology of a number of important diseases, including cancer, aging and probably certain neurodegenerative diseases like Alzheimer's disease.

To keep the cell's DNA intact, there are a multitude of enzymes called DNA repair enzymes, which continuously reverse the changes occurring in DNA. These enzymes are quite complex; the ways in which they act and interact with each other are even more complex. So important that we could live for only a few hours if they were to cease functioning, they are among the least well understood of any known group of enzymes. This is because of their complexity, their localization within the nucleus of the cell, the multifaceted ways in which they interact with other proteins (called chromatin Proteins) associated with DNA, and their marked tendency to become inactive as soon as researchers begin to handle them, however gently.

Into this extraordinarily challenging field stepped Muriel Wikswo Lambert, Ph.D., in the early 1980s. To overcome the tendency of these enzymes to lose activity during manipulation, she developed a system for their purification by keeping them in liquid solutions at temperatures far below freezing. (Enzymes are much more stable at lower temperatures.) Using a technique known as iso-electric focusing, she then separated the enzymes closely associated with DNA into a number of sub-fractions in which she identified many different DNA repair enzymes. By isolating these enzymes all at the same time, she has been able to sort out their functions and interactions in a way not otherwise possible. By using, in concert with this one, another system she had previously developed while at Yale, Dr. Lambert has studied the interaction of the DNA repair enzymes with certain large, redundant structural proteins associated with DNA, known as histones. Contrary to all that was previously believed, she has found that these DNA repair enzymes interact positively with histones, so that their activity is several times greater when histones are present and integrated with the winding structure of the DNA molecule.

Recently Dr. Lambert discovered that cells from patients with an inherited disease, Xeroderma pigmentosum, have DNA repair enzymes with a defect in the interaction with histones. Xeroderma pigmentosum is a condition in which patients are exquisitely sensitive to sunlight and develop great numbers, sometimes thousands, of sun-induced skin cancers by the time they become teenagers. Quite recently, she has found the enzymes which are defective in another cancer-prone genetic disease, Fanconi's anemia. Thus Dr. Lambert's career has been characterized by continuous success punctuated by several discoveries that easily qualify as "breakthroughs".

Dr. Lambert's research is funded by the National Institute of Health, in particular by a grant for over $500,000 on which she is principal investigator. She also was the chief organizer of a DNA repair meeting held in October '88 in Fontevraud, France. All expenses, including travel, for this meeting of 50 of the world's leading experts in the field of DNA repair, were paid by a grant from the scientific branch of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

She is the editor of a recent book, Lambert, M.W., Laval, J.: DNA Repair Mechanisms and Their Biological Implications in Mammalian Cells, Plenum, Inc., New York, 1989. She is assisted in her work by her husband, W. Clark Lambert and by graduate students, post-doctoral fellows and technicians. Other "assistants" include her children, Anastasia (9), Phelps (7) and Peter (4). The Lamberts live in Montclair, NJ, where Anastasia and Phelps attend Montclair Kimberly Academy.

Since 1985, Muriel has been associate professor of pathology at the University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey in Newark. She is the sister of Leonora Wikswo Pescosolido '63 and Antoinette Wikswo Best '68 and the daughter of Mrs. John Wikswo, SBC professor of mathematics from 1956 to 1970.

In addition to assisting Muriel, W. Clark Lambert conducts his own research projects, including recent discoveries in the etiology of neurological diseases with associated DNA repair defects, such as amyotrophic lateral sclerosis (Lou Gehrig's disease) and Alzheimer's disease. Clark is a well-known author in diagnostic pathology and is an editor of a major journal.

Visiting Professor from Japan

Emiko Yamanashi was Fulbright Scholar-in-Residence at SBC during Fall Term 1989. Her contributions to the College were numerous; she taught a survey course in the arts of Japan, participated in the programs of the Asian Studies department and represented Sweet Briar at conferences off campus. She was active with SBC's International Students Association and participated fully in lectures, cultural programs and other activities on campus.

Ms. Yamanashi's field of study is 19th-century Japanese oil painting. She holds both the B.A. and M.A. from Tokyo University and did further study at the University of Texas in Austin from July '83 to February '84 under the sponsorship of the Rotary Club International. Her publications include the chapter on Fine Arts in the America Handbook (Tokyo, 1986), co-authorship of the Paris in Japan exhibition catalog (St. Louis, MO, 1987) and co-authorship of the Dictionary of Japanese Modern Art

Professor Emiko Yamanashi

(Tokyo, 1989). After Fall Term she returned to her position as researcher at Tokyo National Research Institute of Cultural Properties.

Straight from the Grapevine...

Thanks to Archie Waldron, SBC's director of food services, Sweet Briar now has its own house wine, which will be served at College functions and may be bought at the Bistro by those over 21. Made from Virginia-grown grapes and bottled in Virginia, the wine comes in three varieties: a red table wine, a white table wine and a Chardonnay, all bearing distinctive pink and green Sweet Briar labels.

Archie Waldron with Sweet Briar's own wine

Archie "thought a house wine would add a touch of elegance and be a conversation piece at Sweet Briar functions." He took his idea to the senior staff, which enthusiastically held an informal wine-tasting at Sweet Briar House in January '89. The group pronounced one wine in each category superior; plans for making the wine available under Sweet Briar's private label were begun.

Catherine Bost, assistant director of public relations, designed the labels, which feature a stylized Sweet Briar Rose for the table wines and the College seal for the Chardonnay.

The wine is produced in Culpepper by Dominion Wine Cellars, a winery established by a cooperative of 15 Virginia grape growers. "The white table wine has a tad of sweetness to it," according to Dominion's representative, Carl Hilscher. "It's a medium-bodied wine with a citrus-fruity taste, and is made predominantly from Chardonnay grapes. The Chardonnay is pure Chardonnay grapes—dry, lighter and fruitier than the white table wine. The red table variety is medium-bodied with a complex arrangement of flavors, dry with a bouquet of cassis fruit and cherries, with cinnamon in the background."

No plans have yet been made for shipping the wine, but alumnae and guests on campus for Reunion, Commencement or other occasions may buy it at the Bistro. An advance note to Archie specifying the order will allow him to have it ready. Prices: $8.60 per bottle for the table wines and $9.75 for the Chardonnay. Write or call Archie Waldron, Director of Food Services, Box L, Sweet Briar, VA 24595, (804) 381-6145.

ALUMNAE SURVEY ON VOLUNTEER SERVICE ACTIVITIES

Name: _____ Class: _____

1) Did you engage in any community service or volunteer activity while at Sweet Briar? ___Yes___No. If so, specify.

2) Since College have you engaged in any volunteer activities?

___Regularly___Occasionally___Rarely___None

What was your first volunteer service after College?

3) Are you volunteering now? ___Yes___No. If so, what is your principal volunteer activity?

4) Are you comfortable with the term "volunteer?" ___Yes___No. If not, what title would you prefer?

5) What was your most satisfying volunteer activity? Why?

6) The highest position of responsibility you have held as a volunteer is (Give title, organization, length of service):

7) Have you ever been a manager/administrator of a volunteer program? ___Yes___No.

If so, were you salaried? ___Yes___No.

8) What specific training/education/credentials in volunteer management have you received?

9) Would you serve as an information resource to students/alumnae in your area(s) of volunteer expertise? ___Yes___No.

10) Are you currently employed? ___Yes___No. In what field?

___Self-employed?___Full-time?___Part-time?

11) Did your volunteer experience assist you in qualifying for salaried employment? ___Yes___No.

12) How do you think Sweet Briar could help its students/alumnae prepare for effective community service?

13) What do you predict will be the role of volunteerism in the life of a Sweet Briar graduate in the 1990s and beyond?

Volunteering: A New Look at an Old Tradition

When I graduated from Sweet Briar in 1952, I moved directly into marriage and launched, unlike today's planned career climb, an inadvertent career in volunteerism. Typical of others who grew into leadership roles over years of fairly constant community service, I didn't call volunteering "work" in those days. However, over subsequent years we volunteers have found ourselves led by experience into other pursuits, including employment based on resumes of volunteer achievement. During the past decade we have been witnessing the growth and wider acceptance of a new profession: volunteer administration.

Sweet Briar alumnae of every generation may take pride in the background the College gave us, preparing us to make the best use of our volunteer and volunteer management opportunities. What we have done with this background is a story the College believes worthy of documentation and study. Therefore, with this magazine issue we are initiating a survey designed to bring us new information about the significance of volunteerism in the life of the well-educated woman, whatever her age or era. We hope that all alumnae will join us in this important research. The results will be published in a future issue of the magazine.

Joanne Holbrook Patton '52 has spent much of her adult life in unsalaried volunteer service. As an Army wife from 1952-1980, she served in many capacities, notably with the American Red Cross and Army Community Service, for which she received the Army's highest civilian service decorations. Founding director of a national resource agency linking trainers, consultants and speakers to nonprofit organizations, she volunteers with civic, professional, education and handicapped service organizations, including SBC's Board of Overseers.

Annual report of the Vice President and Treasurer

Fiscal year 1988-89 was another successful financial year for the College. Total assets increased $3,965,000 from $80,836,000 to $84,801,000. The investment in our physical plant increased $2,513,000 as we completed additional strategic planning projects, such as the restoration of Randolph and Grammer residence halls. The total market value of our endowment increased from $44,000,000 to $47,500,000. Of significant importance here is the fact that Sweet Briar's endowment per student ($87,160) now ranks Sweet Briar among the top 2% of all colleges and universities in this category.

The operating results for fiscal year 1988-89 were once again satisfactory. Revenues increased $500,000 (3%) while total expenditures decreased. Despite some unexpected expenses during the year, the College had enough excess revenues over expenditures to be able to transfer $200,000 of this excess to our reserve for plant replacement. Although the College continues to spend operating funds on physical plant maintenance, we need to increase our plant reserve to fund unexpected contingencies.

Our endowment spending rate continues to decrease as outlined in the Long Range Financial Plan. Where the College once spent as much as 8% of the previous year's market value to help fund current year operations, we now are spending 6.6% of last year's market value. We will continue to decrease that percentage on an annual basis until we are spending only 5% of the previous year's market value. The recent uncertainty of the financial market dictates that we must protect the future purchasing power of our endowment by limiting the amount we spend.

The financial plan for each fiscal year is based upon the anticipated full-time student enrollment for that particular year. While there have been signs from many of our sister colleges that the expected drop in applications due to a lower number of total high-school-age students has finally impacted their enrollment plans, admission applications to Sweet Briar are holding steady and are being received from a high-quality pool of prospective students. Competition is keen for bright young women entering the college admission process. In order to ensure the continued financial success of the College, the entire Sweet Briar community needs to help by identifying and encouraging young women who would benefit most from the Sweet Briar experience.

Dr. Barbara Ann Hill

New President for Sweet Briar

Dr. Barbara Ann Hill, provost of Denison University, has been appointed by the Board of Directors as the eighth president of Sweet Briar College. She will assume office on July 1, 1990, succeeding Dr. Nenah E. Fry, who finishes her term at the end of the current academic year.

Provost of Denison, an independent university of 2,100 students in Granville, Ohio, since 1986, Dr. Hill was associate dean of the faculty at Barnard College of Columbia University from 1983 to '86. She previously had been associate professor of English (with tenure) at Hood College, and lecturer in English and assistant director of the Center for Academic Research at Smith College. Earlier in her career, Dr. Hill taught at Goucher College and Holyoke Community College. She earned her B.A. with Honors in English in 1965 from the University of Illinois and the M.A. (1967) and Ph.D. (1975) in English from the University of Washington in Seattle.

Dr. Hill is married to John M. Hill, associate professor of English at the U.S. Naval Academy. Their seven-year-old daughter, Katherine, is looking forward to living in Sweet Briar House.

Nominee for the Board of Overseers

Each year the Board of the Alumnae Association submits to the Nominating Committee of the Board of Overseers names of alumnae to be considered as its representative to that Board. The nominee this year is Patricia (Trish) Neale Van Clief '72, who has agreed to serve the four-year term.

Trish graduated from Sweet Briar in 1972 with a major in English Literature. Her sister, Mary Corinne Neale, graduated in 1986.

Patricia Neale Van Clief '72

Trish has always been an involved and enthusiastic member of the Sweet Briar community. As a student, she was a Q.V., a member of Sweet Tones, Aints 'n' Asses, was junior class vice president and senior class president, played varsity hockey, was on the Brambler staff and the Orientation Committee and was a member of the May Court. Following graduation she worked in the alumnae office for a year. She served as class president for the first five years after graduation and since then has been a member of her class's Reunion Gifts Committee (1982 and 1986, served as co-chairman in 1982), was elected to the Alumnae Association Board in 1984 and served as secretary from 1984 to 1986. She has served as second vice president of the Board since 1986 and in that capacity has been the chairman of Council and Reunion Planning.

Also involved in community affairs, Trish is active in the Junior League, in the High Hopes Steeplechase Association (activities co-chairman in 1986), Lexington, KY's "Fund for the Arts" (serving as co-chairman of the equine division), The Lexington School (Board of Trustees, Patron's Committee 1987-88, and chairman of the Education Policy Committee), and the Board of the Baby Health Service of Lexington, 1987-89. She is a past member of the Lexington Philharmonic Board.

She has participated in her family's farm and Thoroughbred Breeding Establishment since 1972. Her husband, Daniel G. Van Clief, Jr., is Executive Director of the Breeder's Cup, Ltd. They have two children, Danny (13) and Helen (11). Trish's interests include music, theatre, literature, tennis and thoroughbred racing. She has expertise in the areas of community relations, marketing and public relations.

Nominations Requested for the 1990 Outstanding Alumna Award

All alumnae are urged to send names of candidates and sufficient information to establish their qualifications for this award to the alumnae office. Nominees' files will be kept active for three years and considered each year. They may be renominated.

The Outstanding Alumna Award, given in honor of the Class of 1910 at Founders' Day Convocation, is presented to graduate alumnae who have been out of college for at least 15 years in recognition of outstanding service to the College in a volunteer capacity.

LETTERS OF NOMINATION, including any clippings or additional materials, are DUE BY JULY 15, 1990

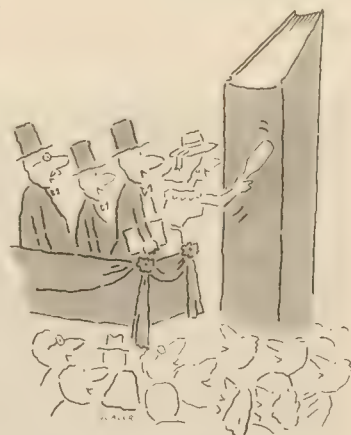

Request From Nominating Committee

The Nominating Committee of the Alumnae Association Board is looking for alumnae who would be interested in serving the College on the Alumnae Board. If you know someone, including yourself, whose talents you feel would be an asset to the board, please submit her name to the alumnae office.

The Nominating Committee reviews all names each year and seeks a balance of age and geographic representation on the board. Although it is impossible to ask everyone to serve in any given year, we are most appreciative of your help in finding those individuals whose qualifications and love of Sweet Briar make them excellent candidates.

NOMINATIONS DUE BY MAY 15, 1990.

Barbara Sampson Borsch '59
Chair, Nominating Committee

New SBC Alumnae Directory coming Soon

The new directory will be mailed in April, 1990, to alumnae who reserved a copy. If you have a question on your order or if you wish to place an order, please contact publisher directly: Customer Service Dept., Harris Publishing Company, Inc., 3 Barker Avenue, White Plains, NY 10601, (800) 877-6554.

Bed and Breakfast

Return to the gracious hospitality of a bygone era: Hurd House Inn, 1629 County Hwy. M, Edgerton, WI 53534, (608) 884-8235. Hosts Merle and Coleen Dee Butterick '74. Catering available for special events, seminars or parties. Airport or bus pickup; Continental or full breakfast; Children all ages welcome; Babysitting available; Smoking not permitted. 30 minutes to Madison, 90 minutes to Milwaukee or to Chicago's O'Hare Airport.

Club Recognition Award

This award was created to give clubs a way to recognize an alumna who has served the club and the College in an extraordinary way over a period of time. Her name should be submitted to the president of the Alumnae Association, who with the chairman of the region in which the nominee lives, and the director of the Alumnae Association, will review and approve the nomination.

Presentation of the award should be made at a club function. Whenever possible, someone from the College will visit the club to make the award.

An alumna worthy of special recognition may not live within a club area. In such cases, the alumna may be nominated by anyone and the same procedure will be followed for selection. An appropriate setting will then be arranged for presentation of the award.

Spring Appeal From Friends of Art

Autumn '89 marked the fifth birthday of the Anne Gary Pannell Center, a landmark celebrated with the October 3 opening of a major exhibition, "Heirs to Impressionism:

Andre and Berthe Noufflard." Sweet Briar's Pannell Gallery was fortunate to be one of only seven museums across the USA to host this 71-painting exhibition.

Autumn also heralded the beginning of Betty Rau Schewel's ('70) chairmanship, and the arrival of Rebecca Massie Lane, former director of the Knoxville Museum of Art, who took charge as SBC's director of College Galleries and Arts Management.

This auspicious beginning to 1989-90's Pannell Center activities followed a banner year of accomplishment. During 1988-89, the Friends of Art underwrote the funding of a catalog featuring Japanese woodblock prints in the Sweet Briar Collection. Two special exhibits in conjunction with the Ewald Symposium's two-month-long Festival of Japan, Japanese woodblock prints and Kasuri weaving by the Japanese ikat weaver Kumiko Namba, preceded a senior art exhibit in the spring and an alumnae exhibit for Reunion in May. Three works of art were purchased, an informational brochure on the gallery was printed, and glass doors were installed at the entrance to the gallery.

Such a positive report of progress is possible because of the continuing interest and support of the Friends of Art, who have helped the arts to become a vital and exciting part of everyday life at Sweet Briar. Please help to strengthen the arts program even more by joining, or rejoining, the Friends of Art.

Sweet Briar Hosts Alumnae Presidents and Directors

The annual meeting of ADAPT (Alumnae Directors and Presidents Together), of which SBC was a founding member, brought alumnae directors, alumnae association presidents and public relations officers from 15 women's colleges across the country to campus November 6-8, 1989. The program included sessions on special events, young alumnae programs, communication, effective office management, alumnae daughters and the admissions process, travel programs, public relations plans, joint research projects and college admissions videos.

Jacqueline M. Browning 1946-1989

It was with great sadness that the Sweet Briar community received news of the death of a former member of the faculty. Jacqueline M. Browning, 43, died on August 12, 1989 in College Station, Texas after a long illness.

In 1967 she received a B.A. in economics from Stetson University. After earning her Ph.D. at the University of Virginia, she served in Sweet Briar's economics department from 1973 to 1984. At the time of her death, she was an associate professor of economics and assistant department head for Texas A&M University, where she was instrumental in the establishment and enhancement of the honors program in economics. Dr. Browning is the author of several articles in professional journals and is the co-author of best-selling economics textbooks on public finance and microeconomic theory.

Above all we remember Jacki as a wise and fair-minded friend, whose presence we sorely miss on the campus and in the world.

Jacki is survived by her husband, Edgar K. (Butch) Browning, of College Station, and a brother, John Manning II, of West Palm Beach, Florida.

Memorial contributions may be made to the American Cancer Society. Memorial donations may also be made to the Jacqueline M. Browning Memorial Scholarship Fund, established to support honors economics students at Texas A&M: Texas A&M Development Foundation, Texas A&M University, College Station, TX 77843.

CLASS NOTES

1923

Secretary pro tem

Helen McMahon, P.O. Box BB, Sweet Briar, VA 24595

Many thanks to you 10 classmates who responded. Here's to your continuing interest in Sweet Briar and your good health.

Mildred Baird White, Asheville, NC is hoping that we can get together while I am in Little Switzerland next summer. How I would love to hear her play the piano again. Will count on seeing her in 1990! Marie Klouz writes that her address in Sandy Spring, MD is still the same but her health is not. She is eager for news of all of you.

Elizabeth Mason Richards from Narwell, MA is delighted that both children and their families live near so they rejoice in their 6 grandchildren. Margaret Nixon Test now lives in Chico, CA near her daughter whose family is most thoughtful and attentive. Margaret has a son in Phoenix, AZ and another in Menlo Park. She is proud of her 10 grandchildren and 5 great grands.

Virginia Thompson McElwee reports great excitement when she celebrated her 90th birthday in September. She still goes to FL for the winter. Lorna Weber Dowling writes from Fort Worth that she hopes now to come to Little Switzerland on the way to Cleveland for her annual visit with her brother. Among other activities Lorna and a friend who also plays the piano go to nursing homes 3 times a month to play for the residents.

Katherine "Bird" Weiser Ekelund returned from a beautiful trip to Belgium, feeling fit and most grateful for another delightful time. Corinne Walton Hess stopped here in August not having seen Sweet Briar since 1920. She and her son George had spent the weekend at Wintergreen on their way back to Lawrenceville, NJ where she has lived since 1986. Her granddaughter Pamela Page is an attorney for the naval dept. Another granddaughter Elizabeth Caggiono lives in Cinnaminson, NJ with her husband and 2 children, Alexander and Louis III.

Helen Welch Tucker is still in Louisburg, NC where she began teaching English at age 19. Queenie Wise O'Neal reports that the hearty Macon group still sees each other often. Fitzallan Kendall Fearing moved last spring to the same retirement home with Queenie. She plans to fly to CA to join her son and family for Thanksgiving. Martha "Fig" Newton Groover, who lives with her family in Orlando, is still spry and happy. Beth Hall Hatcher lives in Fort Valley, GA and comes to Macon often. Queenie, who often drives to Columbus, plans to spend Thanksgiving there with her children, grands and great grands.

Yor reluctant secretary spends the summers at Little Switzerland where she and Dan Boone '27 owned and operated a camp for girls for 19 years. That we were able to have many excellent Sweet Briar counselors resulted in a large group of campers coming to SBC. A banner year in 1958 - there were 5 Glenlaurel graduates.

The winters on Woodland Road, Sweet Briar are always a delight. I freely admit I have the best of both worlds.

Martha Ambrose Nunnally, the proud possessor of 2 children, 8 grandchildren, and 4 great grandchildren, keeps busy sewing. Rebecca Manning Cutler went to Sweet Briar dinner in New York and had previously gone to Greece with husband Howard and several other Sweet Briar gals. She invites us on our travels to contact her at one of her domiciles, either in Greenwich or South Carolina from Jan. to May. Libbo Matthews Wallace writes that she has grandchildren at Marshall University, the University of Cincinnati, and a third, Elizabeth Hartman, a graduate of Sweet Briar in '53, who has just returned from a Harvard Anthropological Dig in Kenya. A hip replacement gives Emily Jones Hodge a new lease on life. Last spring she attended a luncheon of just Sweet Briar alums.

Dorothy Lauver's new address is: Mrs. E. R. Leeder, c/o Lakewood Meridian Health Care Center, 1805 South Balsam, Lakewood, CO 80226. She lives near daughter Judith Lyke. "In tennis if the ball bounces twice, I can make it," says Alice Eskesen Ganze, "so I'm down to exercise class and bridge." Good for her! Another quotable line from Babe Albers Foltz, "I'm in pretty good health - can't see or hear worth a hoot, but so what!" A girl after my own heart. Tinke Johnson Brehme writes of both children, Hall and Mary Archer, the latter my delightful godchild who is presently living in Washington with her husband, the Ambassador from Tunisia to the USA. A visit from CA daughter and son-in-law and a 7 year old great grandchild was a happy event reported by Emilie Halsell Marston who herself traveled through 7 states in 14 days on a recent trip. Helen Smyser Talbott sends lovely news of several visits to Sweet Briar to see her granddaughter Wendy, a junior who is President of Paint and Patches this year.

Frankie Sample Holmlund

summers at Cape Cod and takes an occasional trip to CA to hear opera. Another traveler Jerry Reynolds Dreisbach excitedly looks forward to a December 23-30 Caribbean cruise with 11 family members. Although eyesight is poor, Gretchen Orr Hill still paints. Bebe Gilchrist Barnes of NC and FL thoroughly enjoyed her trip back to Cleveland for the 20th anniversary of the Western Reserve Herb Garden at the Cleveland Garden Center, her last project before leaving in '69. A sad note - Dr. Hinda T. Harpster of Toledo, OH, a professor at UNC Greensboro for 27 years and author of the book Insect World, died in April.

Thank you for your responses; I enjoyed them all. I was quite surprised recently to be told I'd had a stroke, for I feel so well! Still take my walks through the beautiful Eastern Shore woods and enjoy constant company from daughter Maria, SBC '61, her husband Bob, and granddaughter Garland, SBC '85, who teaches Spanish here on the Shore. Keep moving, girls; it pays off!

Dorothy Ayres Holt keeps busy with local activities - church, politics, and as a hospital volunteer. A card from Martha McCowen Burnet's daughter says Martha has macular degeneration and can't see but is as upbeat and cheerful as ever. Her big news is the printing of a collection of articles she had written for the Greensboro, NC News and Record - title, "The Red Front Door". She and Arthur had a grand visit in Sugar Mountain with Agnes Cleveland Stackhouse '31 this summer. Isabelle Bush Thomasson keeps busy with activities on the Alabama State Board of Education. In Jan. '91 when she retires she will have served 18 years representing 11 counties in a large Congressional District. One grandson graduated from W&L in June, a granddaughter is a sophomore at Vanderbilt, another grandson a senior in h.s.

Katherine Beury McFall and her husband, Tucker, are moving to Westminster-Canterbury in Lynchburg in Nov. '89 and are looking forward to being near Sweet Briar and V.M.I.

Martha von Briesen was tied down with asthmatic bronchitis from Apr. 8 'til May 17th '89 in the Health Care Center Westminster-Canterbury, Lynchburg. Regained enough strength to fly to Milwaukee in June for her brother, Ralph's golden anniversary and family reunion. En route enjoyed seeing Jane Fitzgerald Treherne-Thomas '57 at the Pittsburgh airport. During the summer she enjoyed several picnics on the Parkway. Jean Cole Anderson helps at her church thrift shop and is treasurer of her garden club. She says Helen Lawrence Vander Horst '31 will miss their first date at the Travelog when she visits her daughter, Ella, in Boston for two weeks. Jean had a quick visit in July with Perry Whittaker Scott '31 and Bob on their way to WI from FL.

Virginia Cooke Rea writes that poor eyesight prevents them from traveling as much as they'd like. Enjoyed having their daughter Jane of Salem, OR with them this summer along with her 3 year old adopted Korean son. They think he is outstanding and are pleased that they will soon receive a baby Korean girl through the same program. Grandson Richard Craig will graduate in May from Washington Univ. in St. Louis. Granddaughter Elizabeth Craig works in Boatex. Naomi Doty Stead's daughter, Janet Stead Shepardson, of Chandler, AZ wrote saying her mother is not well, is bedridden, living at home (Tucson) and "Father takes care of her. I know she would appreciate being mentioned in the spring alumnae magazine." Josephine Gibbs Du Bois visited Polly Swift Calhoun in July and with her daughter will be there for Thanksgiving, too. Peronne Whittaker Scott and Bob stopped by in the summer and they had lunch together. Jo sailed around the San Juans with her daughter and son-in-law. Talks by phone with Carolyn Martindale Blouin '30 almost weekly. Jo and Joan will visit them on their way to Polly's.

Gillette Hilton Pritchard says they stay close to home due to her husband's illness - Parkinson's. Laura Howe Smith moved to the Collington Life-Care Community, Mitchellville, MD, in Nov. '88. Mary Stewart Kelso Treanor wrote Oct. '89 that they are just home from 10 days at Sun Valley, ice skating with her granddaughter Gail. Gail is the daughter of our Class Baby and her baby boy is 17 months old! Husband Wally retired in Sept. and they travel a lot and play golf. They plan to be at our SBC reunion in '91 and hope to see everyone there. Gertrude Lewis Magavern says all is well with them - Sam still going to the office every day. Five children all married. 17 grandchildren and 2 more on the way. Still in the country until the end of Oct. and the city for the winter.

Martha McBroom Shipman moved from her house into an apt. and finds she is loving it - finally free of maintenance problems. She uses a walker, but is grateful for still being ambulatory. Daughter Jane is Development Director of the Dayton (OH) Opera Association. Jane's 3 daughters, one son-in-law and a new great granddaughter stayed with Martha for 2 weeks at her MI cottage this summer. Great for Martha since Jane's daughter, Martha Schenck, husband Don and baby are moving to Nairobi, Kenya for 2 yrs. Don's first foreign assignment as assistant regional security officer for the American Embassy. Martha's twin sister, Lee, and her husband, Bob, bought a house in Clarksville, TN. Jane's youngest, Anne, is the director of the Extended Care Program at the Miami Valley School. Son Ship and his wife, Peggy, live in Wilton, CT. He is a broker with Paine Webber and Peggy is a travel agent. Their older daughter, Jane, is an account executive with Daniel J. Edelman, a large p.r. firm in NYC. Younger daughter, Meg, will graduate from Concordia College in Bronxville, NY spring '90. Ship, III, graduated from Wilton h.s. where he made the All American Lacrosse Team. Now a freshman at the U. of Vermont. Martha spent 3 weeks in Delray Beach, FL in March '89. Had to miss Naples but says there are so many SBC girls in Delray and Gulf Stream and she hasn't met one yet who wasn't even more attractive than in college days.

Evelyn Mullen wrote that the alumnae news about her trip to England last year for the T.E. Lawrence Society meeting found another Lawrence "buff" among SBC alumnae - Alice Dabney Parker '32 - and they have had interesting correspondence. Evelyn was hospitalized upon her return from England from Aug. until Oct. She is back to normal and looking forward to the SBC trip to Egypt Nov. 3rd. She will share a room on the trip with Nat Roberts Lemon's sister Mary Bess Roberts Waynick '33 of Roanoke, VA. Evelyn attended the SBC Recognition Celebration of the Board of Directors and Overseers Sept. 21-24 in NY and went with Virginia Camp Smith '35 and "had a grand time". Evelyn went to Edisto Island, SC the week of Sept. 5th. Met May Morris '63, wife of the Rector of Trinity Church on Edisto, but no word of them or her friends since Hurricane Hugo. Mary Nice Jemison is well and happy with 7 grandchildren (4 in Birmingham) and 4 great grandchildren - 3 in Charlotte, NC and 1 in Seattle. Plays bridge twice a week or more, goes out to lunch 3 times a week and spends the month of Jan. in Boca Grande, FL.

Virginia Quintard Bond says '89 has not been her year! Since returning from the SBC trip to Russia her hip replacement of '83 went from bad to worse. Another operation June 9th, but she still needs crutches. Her doctor is reassuring. Had to give up a trip to Europe with her granddaughter, 15, who goes to St. George's in Newport. Anne, 20, a junior at Franklin and Marshall studying art. Whit's second family, Laura, 5, and Ted, 3, "are too active for me at this point. They live in Wellesley. I still live in the same house - 49 years - but am ready for a condominium - too much maintenance!" Mary Frances Riheldaffer Kuhn writes that since her retirement in '79 she has kept busy as a volunteer at her local hospital, playing bridge, being on the board of Pelican Yacht Club auxiliary, Woman's Club, church work, keeping house with her cat.

Natalie Roberts Lemon writes "On June 20, 1989 I was married to Glenn H. Lemon, native of Roanoke, VA, my high school football hero and a graduate of Duke Univ. We are settling in my house and selling his while looking forward to a riper old age. We walk 3 dogs and golf when not looking at sports or world events on TV. We are registered for the SBC trip to Egypt in Nov. and expect a visit to FL during the winter. 3 of my Chinese-Vietnamese proteges are now in college. Sung is taking pre-architecture locally. Tho is doing 3rd year at VA Commonwealth in fashion merchandising and Kim, who graduated from Stuart Hall, Staunton, VA, with honors is entering Randolph Macon Woman's College this fall '89. I passed the "healthy Virginian" requirements for Blue Cross. Toole Rotter Wellford-Carter's 3 children and spouses, 6 grandchildren and one cousin will be here for Thanksgiving weekend - "Wed. to Sun. - 16 of us - great fun. Keeping an 18th century house and garden in condition is time consuming. Our home will be open during Historic Garden Week in VA this spring."

Ruth Schott Benner and Earl go back and forth between boat and home at the Lake of the Ozarks, MO. Winter of '89 was the first in 34 years they did not go on a winter trip. Ruth spent a week in Dallas in Sept. visiting her daughter, granddaughter and 4 great grandchildren. Mary Leigh Seaton Marston went to Africa with the SBC Feb. '89 trip. "A wonderful trip which exceeded my expectations". She will go to FL briefly this winter. Is having 2 implants. Routinely plays bridge, goes to Woman's Club and keeps house in her condominium. Helen Sim Mullen asks who can equal Natalie's news? Helen and Howard enjoyed a trip to the White Mountains in NH this fall and seeing John and family in their new home. They enjoyed a trip to Switzerland in June. Expect to go to Bermuda for Christmas. Elizabeth Stribling Bell writes from Pasadena, CA, "All 3 of my sons now live in Southern CA so we can all get together - including all 10 grandchildren. I hope the response from our class is good as I love to hear about our classmates. I still get cards from Cynthia Price and Mary Leigh Seaton Marston." Polly Swift Calhoun's Peace Corps grandson, Seth Heminway, son of Sue Calhoun Heminway '58 came home for Christmas '88 from Niger in Africa. Her other son, Bill Heminway, is at the Univ. of Madrid as a junior abroad with Middlebury College, VT. Another grandson almost through law school at Georgetown Univ. Other grandsons are in the Navy, married, in graduate schools or universities.

July 10, '89 a devastating storm struck Cornwall, CT and everyone spent the summer cleaning up, repairing, building, etc. Polly reports, "The Cathedral Pines right by our house were decimated. The village is a shambles. Summer spent cutting and hauling brush, feeding volunteers. Went to D.C. for wedding of a grandson. Boiling hot. Good family reunion in the Adirondacks for my 80th. Our German exchange student of 40 years ago has been here for 2 weeks for a h.s. reunion, as has been a blind 84 year old friend who has to move out because of storm damage repairs. This crisis has been as bad as 3 or 4 deaths at the same time. School is open, so I am again house mother for 4 boarding school students. We are fine, move more slowly and take longer to do things but are still very involved in Hospice, elderly family care, church, local politics, etc. Jo Du Bois and daughter, Joan, are coming again for Thanksgiving. Anyone want to join us?"

Cynthia Vaughn Price and Dute left Oct. 1 for a 2 week Mediterranean and Black Sea trip on the Vistafjord. Cynthia says consolation for her fast approaching 80th birthday! Oria Washabaugh Shenk thinks age is catching up with her as she hasn't been as well as usual. Ailments kept her from 3 weddings of grandsons - all in CA. One brought his bride to see her. She may go to CA in Oct. to look over the retirement situation in Redding where son Bob is a newspaper editor, but hopes she won't need it as she prefers the climate in Tampa and all her family visits often. She is always interested in news of her SBC classmates. Peronne Whittaker Scott is alive and kicking - just not so high! She had a nice trip to WI during the summer and saw Jo Gibbs Du Bois who looked fine. Perry's granddaughter who lives in TX came east along with her family and young daughter (their second great grandchild) who was baptized in the Scott's church. Their middle granddaughter started medical school this fall, following in her great grandfather's footsteps. Perry and Bob keep active in church work and keeping the home fires burning. See their families often as both live in FL.

Harriet Wilson Tarbert and Walter "moved into a retirement community north of Pittsburgh. Walter has a son in Fox Chapel and I have a daughter in Edgewood - both near us. We like it very much. We knew people before moving in and have made many more friends here. We are very active and still have our home in Ligonier to go to when we wish. Retirement homes are becoming very popular since we are living so long. I have a grandson at Harvard, one at Dartmouth and a granddaughter at Duke Univ. Two grandsons have finished college and two others are still in grade school - 7 in all among 3 children. Walter has 3 grandchildren so we have 10 in all. I missed seeing Eda Bainbridge Kolbe this year since we didn't go to Naples. Harriet wants our class to have her new address: Mrs. Walter R. Tarbert, Sherwood Oaks, 100 Norman Drive, Apt. 134, Mars, PA 16046.

Hope you saved your Fall '89 Sweet Briar Alumnae Magazine. What a marvelous accounting of reunions' goings-on - and everyone looked full of vitality and happy to be among college friends once again. I can't wait to see you on campus for our 55th, June 1-3, 1990. In the meantime please look for "then" and "now" photos, programs, clippings, memorabilia for our look-at-us-now scrapbook. We have much to be grateful for as we shift gears and head gleefully into our next 5 years. Will be in touch later for that project.

Poody Morrison Ruddell still enjoys summers at their cottage in MI where she sees Eleanor Townsend Trotter and Sue Wilson Rutherford every year. Poody's children are scattered - her youngest daughter recently moved to Hong Kong where her husband has been transferred; son Steve just married for the 1st time and in CA; oldest daughter Nancy has welcomed her daughter back from her 2nd semester studying in Paris. I'm wondering how Poody made contact with Sue who has been to Egypt, sold her house and moved into a condo in Wilmette, IL - 1440 Sheridan Rd. Sue is coming to reunion. Alice McCloskey Schliendorf is getting herself back on the track following the loss of her only surviving daughter who contracted a virulent strain of malaria while on assignment in Nigeria for a world health organization. We send Alice our love. Mary Honeywell Dodds, Betty Hamilton Hunt and Alma Simmons Rountrey lost their husbands last year and are now reordering their lives. Mary's oldest grandchild was married in the fall - a happy day, and Mary invites travelers to Sarasota to let her know. Alma is busy with community enterprises providing emergency food and clothing to needy persons and will go to the Bahamas with daughter Ann early in December. She and her husband enjoyed our 50th reunion and Alma has the 1990 dates already on her calendar.

Virginia Cunningham Brooks let us know that "Billie" Crane Goodfellow was widowed last year, that Barbara Benzing Lindsay has marked her 50th wedding anniversary and that Virginia and husband Val were feted on their 50th by their 3 children and then cruised to Barcelona and traveled in Spain and France. Those 3 ought to get together at Sweet Briar in June. Sure hope they will. Mary Lou Saul says she has slowed down some but loves being a great grandmother. She stays busy with church, Garden Club, Book Club and the violin and is looking forward to our 55th. So is Alice Laubach who has had cataracts removed from both eyes and now has a 4-year renewal of her driver's license. She also is minus an appendix after emergency surgery but that will not deter her trip to Hong Kong, Bangkok and Singapore. She talks with Allyn Capron Heintz and they will drive up to Sweet Briar for the reunion.

Judy Halliburton Davis just won't let anything interrupt her plans. She fell against some brick steps a year ago and injured her shoulder but off she went to Costa Rica on a nature tour followed by a month driving around France plus a dip into Spain to search for the "spot where Roland blew his horn". Then this summer she took #3 granddaughter to Italy and finally had a shoulder operation followed by 3 therapy sessions per week for 2-3 months. Jeanne Delamarter Halversen also reported a broken shoulder plus a wrist and she too kept going in order to visit her daughter in Honolulu. Six months later she was off to Seattle for a trip around the Olympic Peninsula with a son and to San Francisco and Yosemite to see another son. In mid December she'll move into a condo at 1620 Mayflower Court, B-111, Winter Park, FL 32792. Anne Baker Gerhart had just returned from Russia when she wrote. She visited Moscow, Leningrad and places along the Volga River where her cruise boat docked. Like the rest or some of us she found the jet lag tiring and wonders if we should be called the survivors. I don't think she felt that way at the surprise party her children and grandchildren threw for her 75th birthday! She's planning now for our 55th.

Judy Peterkin also traveled west. Her trip was an Elderhostel program in China where she spent each of 2 weeks in university towns for lectures and field trips. Demonstrations had started in Tiananmen Square; she got home the day martial law was declared in Beijing. She continues to enjoy her volunteer work as a guide on Blennerhassett Island (in the Ohio River near Parkersburg) where there is a reconstructed 1800 mansion. Mary Templeton and her sister Jean visited with Judy following an Elderhostel program on Frank Lloyd Wright held in Morgantown, WV. Mary had heard from Catharine Taylor Manning who is now in the Candlewood Nursing Home in New Milford, CT. Betty Fox Moon and Warren celebrated their 54th anniversary this year and she describes their life style as happy and filled with the beauty of the mountains above Tucson or in central AZ where they have a cabin at 8500 ft. They visited the Carnival in Rio last winter in spite of crowded airports and old planes. She says she's too far away to make reunions so those of you who keep in touch regularly, don't let her miss the startlingly tranquil and fresh green face of Sweet Briar in June. Now there is real beauty! Warren like other husbands would find it refreshing too.

Marguerite Duval McGinnis would echo these sentiments - her son and his wife returned from a trip to Lynchburg and surrounding area to report in glowing terms on Sweet Briar's beauty.

Roberta Cope Gerlach probably is in Portugal and Madeira as I write these notes. Four years ago she had a right hip replacement and in April 1989 she had a knee replacement. "Now the right leg works fine." I wish she'd try attending a reunion - hearing about it can't equal being there. Gen Howell Gist has joined the list of those undergoing hip replacements but unfortunately hers involved unexpected complications which have kept her grounded too long. She hopes to visit her 16 grandchildren soon and may get East to see her Navy dentist son near Washington. Do combine some of your anticipated travels with a side trip to SBC next June. Polly Langford Payne sent a news story about her art work and plans for enrolling for her yearly art course which keeps her up to date on other artists' works. Polly is a board member for visual arts at the Fine Arts Center in Lynchburg, chairman for national defense for her DAR chapter and also an avid walker in her neighborhood. Which reminds me that Helen Wolcott and I were at SBC for Founders Day and surprised ourselves by walking up to the Monument for the memorial services. Helen had a marvelous 10 sunny and warm days in Wales enjoying the countryside with car and driver offered in exchange for a bus tour which had been cancelled. This was followed by 5 days in the Scottish Highlands and the Isle of Skye. Back home she has been at Virginia Beach and in ME and NH. I've had weekends at our family farm but nothing exciting unless you can call the installation of a septic system at the farm "different".

Lav Dillon Wintzer had a busy summer arranging the sale of the old Victorian cottage at Elkhart Lake which had been in her husband's family since 1894. She has a new car and has already logged 15,000 miles, this before a fall trip to Vermont. She'll be at reunion. Blandina Jones Skilton made her trip north for the Dartmouth graduation of her grandson and then stopped in Philadelphia for a few days. She's been family visiting in NC and SC and got to see her 1st great granddaughter. "Hugo" hit all of her family but all came through okay. She gets to Miami to see Cubs friends and keep in touch. Mary Atmar Smith Johnson didn't say how she did it but she is looking forward to getting back on the tennis courts "when my broken elbow mends". She's a busy volunteer with Hospice and Mental Health, sings in her church choir and serves on the board of her Episcopal Church Women. She and Gene had their Golden Anniversary in 1988. Grace Langelier Irvine says she and Vess "are going gently as we have for the past 53 years". They are in Ogunquit, ME and she says they get very sentimental when they think of Sweet Briar. I hope that means they'll be back for the 55th! Alison Dunne Harrison puts it a bit differently - "we are chugging along". She and Hunt had 3 weeks touring in France from Brittany to Provence. I remember Hunt as a member of our Junior Year in France and the fact that his 50th reunion took them to Dartmouth rather than Sweet Briar. I hope they'll be at SBC for the 55th.

Sue Strassburger Anderson has made a move to personal care living in Portland - 8300 S.W. Barnes Road #128, zip 97225. Her daughter Ronnie and grandchildren are nearby and daughter Valerie a pediatric nurse in Warrenton has been out for a visit. Beverley Hill Furniss enjoys her grandchildren in Annapolis where she still encounters friends from her childhood and h.s. days. She's active in the usual meetings and church activities. Laurose Schulze-Berge MacFadyen promises a contribution to the scrapbook. She missed my deadline but sent card when she returned from a trip. Many thanks. Jane Lawder made the deadline since I caught her between junkets. She's been to Santa Fe to enjoy Mexican food. Back home she coaxed along a flower and vegetable garden and took a number of fishing trips before heading for 2 weeks in SC and the beach just before the big hurricane. She'll miss reunion if current plans including the Passion Play continue on course.

It is a joy to hear from you all who took the time. I'll be in touch in the spring about the scrapbook - there's no such thing as no news even though we may walk with a slower gait, go along gently or chug through our volunteer work and family events.

I'm sure no class ever had as much fun or so many joyous personal reunions as we did at our Big Five-O! We all send endless, heartfelt congratulations and appreciation to the committee for their great organization, planning, and production... it was a tremendous and unforgettable success, and we certainly had a wonderful time! I love the daily deluge of notes and want to thank all of you for your speedy responses which I will now try to share:

Julie Saunders Michaux spent two weeks at Dixville Notch, NH this past summer and played golf daily. She is planning a trip to Europe in the spring, including the Oberamgau Passion Play, in late May in Bavaria. Helen Carey Stewart has moved to Carlsbad CA and loves it. She lives at 3363 Tyler Street, Carlsbad, CA 92008. Thanks, Patty Moncure Drewry, for this new info., Ruth MacFarlane Debevoise writes that her "good works" have ended, and she is indulging herself with tennis, bridge and gardening, between Sewickley, PA and Vero Beach, FL. Annie Benedict Swain had a busy summer with lots of house guests, lots of "summer people", and lots of visits from her son, his wife, and 2 wonderful grandsons. In the spring, Annie and Ned are planning a tour to the cathedrals of England. "How young and beautiful we all looked", comments Nancy Gatch Svien (she certainly did!). Her 3 children are living near her in Minneapolis, and this winter she is returning to the Tex-Mex border for work with the refugees.

Betsy Bell Emmons went to her 50th reunion at Duke, and then to her late husband's 50th reunion at Dartmouth, where she ran into Danny and Yvonne Dyer. Betsy is trustee at Hebron Academy, lives in Portsmouth, NH, and winters in Naples, FL. Anne Huddleston Cheek's oldest grandson is a student at Richmond University.

Mary Brower Henderson flies often to London to see her children and grandchildren, and is looking forward to spending Christmas in Egypt. She has sold her house in Manchester, VT and keeps busy in Winnetka, IL with settlement work and Altar Guild. After reunion, Jeff Welles Pearson spent 10 days in Washington, D.C. where she heard the Berlin Opera at the Kennedy Center. She keeps involved with the Shenandoah Valley Music Festival, the DAR, Garden Club and church affairs and is teaching an illiterate construction worker to read. Have received several communiques from Julia Ridgely Howe, who considers our 50th "one of the best experiences she's had in 72 1/2 years." She sent a newspaper article which she will show you later. Jean Moore Von Sternberg and her husband vacationed recently in Bermuda, and she remarked that her last trip there was with an SB group in 1936, chaperoned by Prof. and Mrs. Barker during Spring Break! Suzette Boutell McLeod and John live in La Jolla, CA where she enjoys surfing (awesome!). Last year they traveled to New Zealand and Moorea. Their son is rector of St. Charles Episcopal Church in Fort Morgan, CO, and their other son is an architect in Washington, D.C. And from CO Henri Minor Hart writes all is well with her and that Betty Frazier Rinehart is now (303-399-7653).

Augusta Saul Farrier spent a lovely evening with Henri in July, in Colorado Springs, and later had glorious travels until Hurricane Hugo hit NC with unexpected terror. Hugo brought many worries to many of us. Lottie Lewis Woolen and her family spent Sept. "digging out", and they are far from Charleston and the coast. No injuries but what a lot of labor. Marguerite Myers Glenn has a condo in St. Thomas, and was lucky to have no structural damage there. Her granddaughter is a freshman at SBC and very happy. Shirley Jones Woodard from Rocky Mount says, "No news - just thankful that all our folks escaped Hugo!" Two other hurricane escapees were Pat and Patty Balz Vincent, who spent August in England and returned to NC where, happily, the storm passed them by. Janet Morpe has been busy having mini reunions with 39ers, lunching with Yvonne, Tready, and Nat Harris Wheatley. Also catching up with Lucy Gordon Jeffers and "Bucket" Dearstynne Cornwell. Janet lives in Stamford and volunteers at the Lockwood-Mathews Mansion in Norwalk. Lil Smith is sorry she postponed going to reunions for 50 years, but made up for it this time with the fun of seeing her old (?) pals again!

Anne Dearstynne Cornwell is in Shawnee Mission, KS, travels a great deal and most frequently to England, where 2 of her daughters live. From Keene, NH Kay Richards Delancey and Bob "commute" to Philadelphia and Louisville to see their daughters and sons. Kay keeps busy with church activities and in the spring will be going to Oberamagau. Ruth Harman Keiser has had successful eye surgery and she and Al had a glorious Illiria cruise in the Mediterranean for 2 weeks, lunching in Florence with their oldest granddaughter who is studying there on a Colby College Jr. Year program. From Rancho Santa Fe, CA, comes word from Jane Holden Walker who summered on Nantucket and then with a Stanford group went to Malaysia and Indonesia, stopping off in Japan en route home. Patty Moncure Drewry says our reunion was perfect except too short—not enough visiting hours! The most delightful item comes from Cherrie Wilson Arrington whose son Chris has recently married Cherrie's daughter's step-daughter - so that now Chris' sister is also his step-mother-in-law!

Florence Swift kindly sent a photo of our glimmering halo-ed heads (taken at lunch in Prothro Commons), and along with this "high point" of '89 was the wedding of her oldest granddaughter - Congratulations! Lucy Gordon Jeffers besides seeing Janet Thorpe and Bucket, said that Janet Trosch had been in NYC for a SB fund-raising workshop. Have heard that Lee Montague Watts was also there. Eleanor Claflin Williams (Claffy) has been selected as one of the permanent artists at the Ariel Gallery in Manhattan, plus her many activities with the South Shore Art Center. She and Tom are also basking in the joys of 11 grandchildren. Clarice Bailey Robinson was recently in Paris, where her son is assistant naval attache at our embassy. He and his family entertained the SB Junior Year Abroad group, and he is also on the vestry of the American Cathedral. Jane Lewis Kingsbury and John celebrated their golden wedding anniversary, renting a house on Sea Island where they honeymooned in 1934. This time they were joined by their children from CA, MI and NY. Welcome to Arizona. Betty Barnes Bird! Her new address is 18235 125 Avenue, Sun City West, AZ 85375. We're all invited to see her, the extraordinary place where she lives, and her new blue jeep.

Louise Corrigan Jordan is disappointed not to have been at our reunion, but went with her husband to their 50th at SMU. They recently flew home on the Concorde from a cruise to the French and Italian Rivas on the Sea Goddess. Louise and Ed have 4 children and 5 grands, and live in Dallas. Mary Treadway Downs and her husband Fritz make many cross-country trips from CT to OR where their daughter and her family live. Between times Tready keeps busy volunteering for the Red Cross and her church, plus golfing and bowling. In nearby Noank, CT Kay Bonsall Strong had a memorable wedding for her daughter last July. She's busy now with church activities, Bazaar and Fashion Show. She did some wonderful sketches of the SB campus, which I've been happy to see. Thanks, Bouncy! Yvonne Leggett Dyer and Danny almost sold their house in Bronxville but changed their minds about moving. She is delighted. Connie (Ellie) Wallace Price (Mrs. Samuel T.) is in touch with many classmates including Audrey Siebert Snyder, Betsy Gawthrop, and Ginger Farwell. Connie and her husband are in a retirement center in Greenville, DE and enjoying it, plus playing lots of tennis! From Chautauqua, NY, Mardie Hodiil Smith goes to Crescent Beach, FL in Jan. for 3 months after visiting her 2nd daughter in Houston.

Leila Bond Preston from Covina, CA comments that she had a grand time at SB, "catching up," and "visiting - such a large turnout!" She then went to see Mardie in Chautauqua, back to the west coast, and later with daughter and granddaughter, to NYC. In August to San Francisco, visiting her son, and seeing the old gold rush country. And from Carol Carpenter Gillan in Houston, TX best wishes to all and she loves "keeping in touch."

Steve and Kitty Lawder Stephenson in Greenville, SC, celebrated their 50th anniversary in 1989! Sorry to miss Ginger Wellford Farwell when she was in CT in the fall. She saw Della Meade's husband, Al Kelley, and they consoled each other on the loss of their spouses. Jean Oliver Sartor "J.O." celebrated her 71st birthday with the birth of a new grandson in Irving, TX. Her daughter, Ibby, SBC '68, has been visiting from Saudi Arabia and her son lives in Chapel Hill. Narcissa Dillard Kelley has moved 6 times in 10 years and hopes to "stay put" now in Mill Valley, CA. Betsy Campbell Gawthrop from West Chester, PA says life is full of nice patterns with "more and more appreciation of the present as well as the past." Martha Fuller Leys and her husband John were in Italy in the fall. They have a daughter in NY, one in VA and a son in NC. Anna Espach Weckler is enjoying living in Sedona, AZ and had a great time vacationing in CO. No news from Gracey Luckett Bradley but she looked super over the 4th of July when we saw her in her beautiful house in Gates Mills, OH. No news from lots of you—get with it, gals!! I'm waiting!

Once again your jet-lagged secretary goes into action. I've just returned from a 17 day visit to Holland, Belgium, and parts of France. My mind is a jumble of museums, cathedrals, chateaux, D-Day beaches, Mont St. Michel, and beautiful Paris. It was a grand trip, and I'll get it all straightened out when I get my pictures back. When Ouija Adams Bush wrote she and Bob were departing for NJ to visit Jeannette, '71, and family. They have a new (the 4th) grandchild in Dallas, Erika, born to son, Stewart, and Carla in Jan. From mid-July to mid-August they travelled by car to MI, NY, New England, NJ and Baltimore, MD. They had a lovely evening with Ping Drake and Em in Falmouth, ME. Brooks Barnes reports from MA that she went to Maui in March and talked to Tookie White by phone. In May she had an appendectomy, being taken to the hospital by her 90 year old mother! In Sept. she spent a week in Nova Scotia - interesting and fun. On top of all that she's given up smoking!! Beanie Hector has rejoined the Grandmother's Club already. Daughter, Heyden, and Nick Rostow had Theodore Isaac Rostow in June. She says she's as dippy a grandma as the rest of us. Skip Bracher Leggett and John went salmon fishing in Canada this summer and had some golfing trips away but were mostly at home. Dorothy Campbell Maher and Jim helped her son, Christopher, celebrate receiving his Ph.D. in Knoxville, TN last May - Clinical Psych. Her youngest daughter added grand baby #15 - a boy. Her oldest granddaughter graduated from Mt. Holyoke and is with an NYC law firm. Her sister is a freshman at SBC and loves it! Dodi Cheatham James and Harry spent 2 nights at the historic Chalfonte Hotel in Cape May, NJ with Diddy Mulligan and had a great time in Aug. She took 4 of her grands to Myrtle Beach, SC and found it a bit "wearing" but fun. Beth Dichman Smith says "thank you" to all who responded to Charlotte's and her fund raising letter last year. She had an exciting 3 weeks in June "prowling through archaeological sites in Macedonia, Samothrace, etc." - a real Classical Civ update.

Debbie Douglas Adams and Ronald are having a better year this year than last but still have nurses around the clock. Let's hope next year will be even better. Their son, Ron, and Mary's oldest daughter, Kathryn, had heart surgery recently. She is at home and doing well. Their youngest son, Douglas, and his wife, Ginger, expect their second child in the spring. Oldest daughter, Ann, enjoys being a law partner in her firm. Ronald enclosed a snapshot of Debbie and him in their lovely backyard which I wish you could all see. I'll save it for the scrapbook. Clare Eager Matthai is thinking of moving to a smaller place - perhaps into a small development she's planning on the back of her property? She spent a week in Paris in the spring, made even more interesting by the preparations for the Bicentennial, and had day trips to Mt-St. Michel, Chartres, and Versailles. She is on the Board and Executive Committee of a home for disturbed children and works regularly at a soup kitchen. Recently she's started lessons in Tole painting. Mary Love Ferguson Sanders and Lynn have not been to foreign parts since the Italy trip but have been to Big Bend National Park (no, they weren't shot at by roving Mexicans), CO, Taos, and Santa Fe. As Regent of her chapter, thankfully her last year in office, she has devoted many hours to the DAR.

Janie Findlay Tate says that after 30 years of setting up homes in 15 countries because of Charles' work the big thrill is to have a home and stay in it. In fact, they have two - a summer one in Canada and a new winter one in Sarasota, FL where there are all sorts of things to do and interesting people, too. Annabelle Forsch Prager reports that two of her books, The Spooky Halloween Party and The Surprise Party are now out in paperback for under $3 - Grandmas take note. Her Inter-School Orchestras (5 youth symphonies) are putting on a festival of French music, sponsored by the French government, at Alice Tully Hall on May 31. All are invited. She's had "glimpses" of Pat Robineau McCulloch, Peggy Roudin Weinberger, and Sally Lerner David in NYC. Her children have produced no grandchildren so far. Posy Hazard Potter's daughter, Deedie, had a baby girl in June and grandma sees her often since they live in nearby Sarasota. She had been seeing the USA during the summer - 3 weeks visiting family and RI, an 8 day motor coach trip to CO and a visit to her sister in AZ. Anne Howard Pholen reports in with 2 grandchildren, both girls. The first born 9-13-87 in Athens, Greece and the second born 10-5-88. She and Charles have 4 children. Their youngest daughter, Ann Eubanks Pholen, is an '89 graduate of Georgetown Medical School in pediatrics, doing her residency at Children's Hospital in DC.

Esther Jett Holland recently returned from a 5 1/2 week stay with daughter, Martha, '72, and family in Washington, D.C. Martha fell and broke her leg - a severe fracture - so Esther went to the rescue. She talked to Ann Noyes Awtrey while there. Prentiss Jones Hale has recovered from a 3-week bout with a pinched sciatic nerve. She has a new volunteer job at Sexual Assault Crisis Center and is taking the training course. Her mother, at 93, still walks her dog daily, even though her vision is nearly gone. Bonnilee Key Garrett and Gavin now have 12 grandchildren. The latest, a girl, was born in May. They had just returned to TX from a trip to the Canadian Rockies. Betty Potter Kinne Hillyer and Bill are grandparents at last. Daughter, Elizabeth, and Ron Davidson produced Cameron Hillyer Davidson on June 6 - D-Day! She and Bill had just returned from a 3-week trip taking in Spain and a Mediterranean cruise. She's still active with the San Diego Humane Society and its "Glorious Antiques" Shop. For the past 2 years Tookie Kniskern White has enjoyed her retirement from Family Court where she served for 20 years in assorted positions, ending up in Administration of Court Services. She's still a busy lady, though, with golf, tennis, and volunteer work at Honolulu's Children's Advocacy Center (for sexually abused children) and the neighborhood Justice Center mediating problem cases. Bob does volunteer work with the Nature Center and Institute for Human Services. They have 11 grandchildren (ages 19 - 6 1/2 mos.) and another due in Dec.

Caroline Miller McClintock and Gales are delighted that their youngest daughter, Hunter, her husband, David Bell, and 3 year old Anne Miller have moved to Greenwood. Gales shot his age - 71 - on the golf course recently! Caroline is tutoring in a local school and finds it challenging but rewarding. Friends on the coast and family in Charlotte got a bad deal from Hurricane Hugo. Junk McJunkin Briber and Frank returned to Amelia Is., FL after a delightful 3 months in WI where they saw their son, Frank, III, and his family. They made two trips to his mountain cottage to fish where son and grandson were the lucky fishermen. Unfortunately, Junk's card got cancelled on the wrong side, but I think she said her latest efforts (artistic) have produced a bald eagle and an owl. Ping Pingree Drake mentioned Oiuja and Bob's visit and that Em sailed their sailboat up the coast to the boatyard where it winters to avoid damage by Hugo. Fortunately, the ME coast was spared as was VA's. In Jan. they acquired their 13th grandchild by son, Jonathan, and his wife, Cathy. The total is 9 girls - 4 boys. Also in Jan. Em took a break and they went on a Tenting Safari in Tanzania. At this writing they're on a Yale trip to Istanbul on the Illiria (I think) in the Aegean Sea, stopping in London in a flat for a few days on the way home.

Page Ruth Foster had had lunch with Tookie, and she and Jim were taking off for Europe and Turkey. Betty Schmeisser Nelson says she misses this job! - actually she said she misses the communication with classmates. She and Karl had recently been to Baltimore for a cousin's 100th birthday - a lovely party. Afterwards they flew to Bermuda for a vacation. She's still busy with the Audubon Soc. and assorted committees. Also she's still spoiling her cairn terriers. Shep Shepherd Scott was unable to attend our 45th because she lost her oldest daughter, McChesney Scott Dunn '66, at that time. Our belated sympathy to you, Shep. She was able to attend our 50th at St. Catherine's and it was grand to see her after so many years. Her son, Harry, lives in Va. Beach and her younger daughter, Ginny, and husband live near Winston Salem. I received the sad news that Betsy Munce Weis died 7/27/89 in Delaware, OH. Our class extends its sympathy to her husband, Charles, and children Karl and Virginia. Our sympathy goes to Byrd Smith Hunter also. She lost her mother, age 90, in Nov. of '88. This summer she and Henry had a magnificent trip to the West Coast, Canadian Rockies, and an Alaskan cruise. They also planned to meet Carter, '68, and Ed Hopkins in Atlantic Beach, NC in Oct.

Dorothy Stauber McCarthy says the highlight of her and Joe's year was the SBC trip to Russia at the end of June and early July. Several colleges participated and Martha Clement, '48, was in charge of the SB group. They also had a "side trip" to Ireland while overseas. Earlier they flew to Rio and returned on the Sky Princess. In Dec. they are planning a ship crossing from Athens, Greece to Puerto Rico with many stops along the way. Margaret Swindell Dickerman enjoyed trips this summer to New Orleans, ME and PA. She had a trip coming up to San Francisco, I hope not when the earthquake hit. Betty Weems's grandchildren's list keeps growing. Wallace and Amy Westfeldt have a son, Nathan Dylan Westfeldt. Patrick and Katie have a 3 year old, Mackie, and 2 college age girls, Amy and Jennifer. Weems and Nancy have triplets and college age Dylan. Her stepson, Dr. James Obermetter (sp?), has moved to Denver; Robert O. was married last month, and John O. just visited with wife, Shelly, and children, Josha and Pilar. David and Suzanne (O or W?) are visiting soon with daughters, Kaitin and Samantha. As she says, "whew"! Betty continues to work for the University Conference on World Affairs, architectural projects, painting, and gardening. Mary Wheeler Hilliard (Paducah) wrote that she and her husband, Henning, enjoyed being at our 45th but the visit was too brief.

Weezie Woodruff Angst had just returned from S. CA where she saw Barbie Briggs Guinn and talked to Betty Potter Hillyer (now called Betsy). Barbie works at Rancho Santa Fe Inn and reports that her roommate, B.J. Leighton Lane, still runs the music store her husband started after WWII. Both girls have been widowed for 15 years. Weezie and Johnny are off to Delray Beach Nov. 1 till spring, except for the holidays in St. Louis. Today I had a card from Janie Lampton Peabody. She was late answering because she and Royden just returned from a holiday which consisted of sailing to England on the QE II, touring England, Scotland, and Ireland and flying home on the Concorde. She says she ate and walked and came out almost even in the weight department. I see that 3 classmates were directly in Hugo's path. Suzanne Douglas Terry John's Island, SC, Sara Belser Eggleston Columbia, SC, and Carter Claybrook Booth Lake Wylie, SC - just below Charlotte, NC. I hope they were all spared any damage to themselves or their property. My youngest daughter, Maria, '75, and George Tisdale presented me with grand #6 on June 30, Anna Chewing. She arrived with a full head of platinum blond hair, apparently a very rare occurrence! Thanks for the responses. If I get more, I'll write more next year.

The class of '47, some of us at least, have turned into a bunch of nomads. Or so it seems. Shirley Levis Johnson, herself a travel agent, toured Eastern Europe last year, which has made the recent events there all the more interesting. Meg Dawson Hellyer followed a tour of the Maya ruins in Guatemala with a cruise around the boot of Italy plus three weeks in England, Ireland and Wales. Meg recently moved to a retirement community in Issaquah, WA, which should make such trips even easier. Cecil Butler Williams and Ernest toured China (prior to the late upheaval) and Cecil has received a card from Lavonne Wright Labahn and Jim postmarked Rome. Cecil also reports that Fannie Ulmer Conley's real estate career is "booming." Sara Ann McMillan Lindsey and Doug spent three weeks in Holland, Czechoslovakia, Poland, West Germany, England and Scotland on an international lily symposium. This was followed by a genealogical tour of New York and Ontario.

In other news, Sammy reports that Ann Colston Leonard is still winning prizes for her pottery and Sue Van Cleve Riehl is restoring a large house on Lake Erie. Judy Burnette Halsey's daughter, Eugenia was mentioned in a list of "noted St. Catherine's School alumnae" for her work as a Cable Network correspondent in Washington. Best of all, the Lindseys have produced their first grandchild. But to continue the travelogue: As soon as Carol Blanton McCord's husband Mac retired in July they took off for Scotland where they rented a crofter's cottage and lived for 3 weeks among the sheep, cows, heather and farmers. A fourth week was spent in St. Andrews and the Central Highlands. Nan Hart Stone, Liz Ripley Davey and Carol and their spouses converged on Sash Hudgins Rice and Link's cottage at Virginia Beach last summer for a 45-year reunion of the old "Dungeon" crowd. Following the 5-day bash, Nan and Billy hopped a "space available" Navy plane for a week in Iceland. Joan McCoy Edmonds and Bill celebrated his retirement with a trip to AK followed by skiing in CO. Meredith Slane Person and Curtis spent last August on a People-to-People golf tour of Scandinavia, a good-will program between Europe and the U.S. started by former President Eisenhower. In Sept. they went to Memphis, Curtis' home, for a golf tournament in his honor, the proceeds going to Memphis State Univ.

Ann Marshall Whitley reports that the SBC Museum has been closed for extensive renovations. Ann keeps herself busy helping design the new facility and writing historical pamphlets about the college and early plantation days. In Nov. '89 Ann went to China with a group of museum and zoo directors. There were few tourists, but they were wonderfully well treated. Ann reports that Kay Fitzgerald

Booker and Lewis have acquired their first grandchild. Alex Marcoglou Tully still works as executive assistant to the ceo of Colt Industries in NYC but returns to Greece frequently to check on her mother. Liz Abbott Langhorne is building a new home in Lexington, VA, after years of mountain-top living in Amherst County. And Wheat First Securities in Norfolk honored Jean Old with a party to celebrate her 35 years as a stockbroker. Eleanor Bosworth Shannon's husband Edgar is completing the third volume of Tennyson's letters, a long-range enterprise he's been working on since they were married in 1956.

Martha Budd Shelnett sold her store near Wilmington, DE, so she can spend more time in Mexico with her parents. Meanwhile, Marna Bromberg Williams has launched a new career as a prize-winning water-colorist while continuing her job as mental health counselor. Barbara Golden Pound served as judge at the 21st annual Opelika Arts Festival in AL last year. Virginia Walker Christian enjoyed a mini-reunion of SBC pals in Lexington, VA, organized by Mary Stuart McGuire Gilliam and Maria Tucker Bowerfind. Ginna's daughter Virginia, who lives in Charleston, SC, managed to get her house boarded up in time to avoid the worst ravages of Hurricane Hugo.

Jane-Arthur Etheridge Hamlin has attended several Elderhostels, an outstanding cultural and educational program designed for us "elders." Ellenor Stafford-Milio has been working with one of the adult literacy programs in Baltimore.

The Trotters' lives have changed little except that our daughter has moved still further away, to Spokane, WA, from Salt Lake City. I still hope to get one of the three in the same time zone. Gov. Jim Martin was re-elected so husband Jim is not yet retired. And we are not yet traveling, though we hope to visit our son and his wife in Germany in May.

Seymour Laughon Rennolds wants us all to look on p. 163 of eldest daughter Caroline Rennolds Milbank's New York Fashion (pub. Harry N. Abrams) published in Oct. and see whose picture we recognize. She expects lots of postcards saying she never went to the boathouse. Youngest daughter Margaret edits Abrams' American Art in America Appointment Calendar each year. Middle daughter Amelie, an architect with Edward Larrabee Barnes Assoc. NY, designed a bath, closet, and kitchen addition to Seymour and John's house. This was accomplished with great style and professionalism in spite of a very "difficult client." Seymour went on a St. Catherines school trip to France which included all ages of "special" Sweet Briar women. They bussed through Burgundy singing the Aints and Asses song, led by a distinguished scholar, Margaret Towers Talman '49.

Pauline Nichols Holmes has a new address: 428 Woodcroft Avenue, Glendora, CA 91740. They hope to make a trip east next year and catch up with old friends Angie Vaughan Halliday and Bob are well as are children. Angie is doing tax work part-time. Daughter Marion is in law school at U.Va. Her husband is "doing computers." Son Malcolm did a piano performance last spring in Jordan Hall in Boston - 19th century romantic music. Son Paul is working on his doctorate in history at the Univ. of Chicago and has just finished an 8 week trip from Vancouver to Boston on his bike. Daughter Jane is playing violin with a string quartet and son Culver is an attorney. Ruth Magee Peterson, being too young to retire, resigned - misses the library but not the daily up and at'em. They have been traveling in AK, FL and WI and are now ready to do all those household chores that were put aside while working.

Ruth Oddy Meyer writes that life in retirement is busier than when Ed was working. They are both involved in volunteer work, looking forward to a vacation exploring and antiquing in Cornwall, England in Oct. They have a gorgeous granddaughter named Caroline, courtesy of eldest son Jeff. Younger son Bill is at graduate school at the Univ. of Michigan. Mary "Hod" Bardin Gray and new husband Bill met at Bolles School in Jacksonville. Bill has retired from engineering into teaching. "Hod" is a counselor in a program called English for Speakers of Other Languages. She enjoys working with Jacksonville's many refugees. Ann Red Barstow is busy and happy enjoying her "senior" years - playing in two tennis leagues, tutoring high school and college students, and entertaining her 6 grandchildren for 6 weeks each summer in her mountain cabin. Last summer 15 bears visited at the same time. Ann's oldest son is a polyurethane specialist whose job takes him all over the world. This year he is bringing home a girl "to join the family for Christmas." Another family member lives in Trinidad and Ann plans a visit there in the spring.

Ann Mountcastle Gamble and Bob moved into their new home at 664 Oaks Creek Court, Osprey, FL 34229 (near Sarasota). I had a wonderful visit with Annie and Bob in June. The house was almost finished then and it is beautiful - Spanish - with a pool. I can hardly wait to go back. Daughter Christini returned from England and is living in Annie and Bob's condo in Sarasota. Daughter Daphne and husband Peter live in Paris with young son Christopher. Mary Pease Fleming and Rives celebrated their 7th home wedding when daughter Nene was married in Sept. Mary and Rives visited Barbara Birt Dow and Bill at their summer home in S. Dartmouth, MA and for their daughter True Dow's wedding in NH. Mary and Barbie had their pictures taken with the SBC chicks. Katharine Phinizy Mackie enjoyed her SBC sponsored "Journey of the Czars" in July, in company with Carla deCreny Freed. She writes that it was a wonderful experience seeing the changes taking place in the Soviet Union - says the Russians have enough problems to keep them too busy for the Cold War.

Lynn McCullough Gush writes that her tropical garden flourishes, her dogs are wild and well and she continues to play tennis and attend ballet class. Lynn is also learning to play the harp. Husband Gerry has had a metaphysical article published abroad. Elizabeth Browder Nibley's daughter-in-law, Liz, has been trying out recipes for the new Capitol Classics Junior League of D.C. cookbook on Betty. Betty says the book is beautiful and she is a size larger. Betty Brawner Bingham enjoyed her trip to India in Feb. She would like to return. Betty is busy trying to interest Floridians in conservation instead of cement. She hopes to see those who go to FL this winter. Anna Lester Coolidge Richardson's husband Shelby retired from banking and they are having great fun with a new business of their own - real estate appraising. They have 3 grown children, 4 grandchildren and a "great life". They are both stamp collectors. Margaret Fitzsimmons Jones lost husband George Brice several years ago. She moved to SC and was married to Bob Jones last Feb. Bob is a widower, a radiologist in Georgetown, SC, hospital. They live on All Saints Road, Pawley's Island, SC 29585. Margaret and Bob have a grand total of 8 children and 5 great grandchildren.

Carol Rolston Toulmin is alive and well, living at the same address after 37 years. Carol is still actively engaged in farming - cattle, soybeans and wheat - with effort spent on keeping the yard and front 40 in good shape. She has relaxed her volunteer load but still works at Episcopal Church house and at church. New York, the Islands, and the Gulf were on Carol's travel list last year. She also attended the wedding of great niece, Greer Stimpson, daughter of Nedra Greer Stimpson. Sue Lockley Glad writes that the children are gone, the dogs are dead, the house is on the market, and life is changing. They are planning a move probably to a Pasadena condo, with a vacation house for family holidays. Their 1st grandchild was born in Eugene, OR in April. Their SBC picnic last summer was a success with about 30 attending.

Carolyn Sample Abshire's news arrived via daughter Anna who writes that Carolyn is traveling with husband David. David's book Preventing World War III was published this year. Daughter Anna completed master of social work at Univ. of Hawaii and is back in Alexandria working with families with chemically dependent children. Son Lupton completed Master of Divinity at Boston U. and is doing missionary work in Uganda. Daughter Mary Lee has her masters in psychology from Central Washington U. and plans to pursue her doctorate at the Univ. of NV. Daughter Caroline, a 10th grader at St. Agnes, spent last summer in Spain. Rosalie Barringer Wornham (Pinkie) has been studying European History books in preparation for a cruise down the Danube - 7 countries in 14 days with 2 1/2 days in Istanbul at the end. She has been auditing a history of art course at Bishop's and reports that the slides have not changed. Pinkie's daughter on the east coast make a great excuse for a trip to NYC. Daughter Cindy is director of public relations at Fordham Univ. and Wendy is in private pediatric practice in Lexington, MA.

Nancy Pesek Rasenberger is looking forward to daughter Mary's graduation from Harvard Law School and a visit to Wellfleet on Cape Cod to open their summer house. Daughter Jean has left NYC for photography school in Los Angeles - an excuse for Nancy to visit CA. Marcy Staley Marks joined Julie Micow Eastwood and her husband Dick and Patty Lynas Ford and her husband Dick at Ruthie Clarkson Costello's house on the Red River in CA. A marvelous reunion was had by all. Patty Lynas Ford enclosed a picture from above reunion. She and Dick plan another visit with Marcy and John in Feb. Patty writes that the Eastwoods are selling their house, buying a boat on the east coast, and sailing the island waterways. They will ship the boat to France where they will sail the rivers and canals. Patty and Dick had a lovely holiday in France and England. They spent 2 weeks in southern France, east of Nice, in a villa on Mont Boron overlooking the harbor of Villefranche and the Moyenne Corniche. They enjoy being grandparents to Rachel - age 16 mos. - who moves with "incredible speed." Daughter Althea is involved in a very old European sport of vaulting, dating back to Roman and Greek times, and involves agility on a horse.

Tsun-Hsien Kwan Bhagat "Sunshine" and husband Shantilal were in Europe where he was the keynote speaker at the 3rd Consultation on the First and Radical Reformations from June 20-27 in Prague. They visited friends in Hamburg and Stuttgart and had 5 wonderful days with Bussie (Isade Werhahn) and her husband Jurgen. They spent 5 interesting days in Poland as guests of the Agricultural Department which has had an exchange program with Sunshine's church, the Church of the Brethren, for over 30 years. Eldest daughter Smrute Dale flies for Delta. Smrute's husband is stationed in Sydney, Australia, in charge of the Gillette Co. Pacific Division of the Personnel Dept. Sunshine is going to Australia to be with their 8 yr. old while the parents are both away. Second daughter Anjol is a legal secretary and lives with her daughter in San Diego. Son Snehel has saved his money for a trip to Australia and New Zealand. Sunshine would like to locate her roommate, Connie Leisy. If any of you have any news of her, please contact the alumnae office.

Once again you have swamped me with newsy cards and I hardly know where to begin. First, on 9/22/89 in St. Louis, MO, Lydia Plamp Plattenburg became Lydia Plamp Mower when she and Ted were married by the Rt. Rev. George Hunt, bishop of Rhode Island and brother-in-law of the bride. Ted is a stockbroker in St. Louis, originally from Baltimore and his 5 grown children were at the wedding. Lydia's 3 were also in attendance and her daughter, Lauren, a floral designer like her mother, did all the flowers for the wedding. My source for all this information, Shirley Suttiff Cooper, said they were really beautiful. She stayed with Gene Smith Smith and Tom who were also at the wedding as, of course, was Barbara Plamp Hunt. Other tidbits from Shirley included the sad news, third hand, that Nella Gray Barkley's lovely home in Charleston sustained severe damage to the roof during Hurricane Hugo, and the glad news that Pat Smith Ticer and Jack's son, John, was married on 10/7/89.

Ginger Chamblin Greene's letter in June told of a devastating fire on March 20th which destroyed their house and 2 of their cats. They saved a few pieces of furniture but lost all clothing, pictures, and personal items. Insurance will cover a large portion of the rebuilding and there was enough structure left to make it worthwhile. Her recent card (10/10) indicated that while they had hoped to be back home by 11/1, it now looked like Thanksgiving! She did have some good news - she and Art had a wonderful trip to London in May-June and spent a couple of days playing, play-going and eating with Fritz Merriman Naylor and Les who were driving around England, Scotland and Wales. The Naylor's also spent a couple of days at Ardsheal House on Loch Linnhe, the beautiful inn run by Jane Keating Taylor '54 and Bob. Their tenure as Baron and Baroness at Ruthin Castle in Wales presiding over 150 at a medieval banquet was another highlight. When Fritz wrote in Sept. she and Les were awaiting the birth of a grandchild in Gloucester, VA whom they expected to visit later in the fall. As for Vida Radin Stringer, my inquiry did not produce an address, however, word is that there was a house fire which necessitated leaving home temporarily and the last word was that Shirley was hot on her trail!

As retirement becomes a reality for more and more of us, travel seems to be the recreation of choice. Globetrotters in the past 12 months included: Sue Lawton Mobley and John, who went to Bangkok and Singapore in Aug. They met son, John, in Bangkok on vacation from teaching English in Japan. Sue is still a volunteer, concentrating on an emergency assistance center in Atlanta, as well as the Reunion Gifts chairmanship for the Class of '55! Catherine Cage Bruns traveled to Aruba for Christmas with her son, her sister and her nephew and recommends that we all hurry down before developers ruin it! Catherine has joined Thomas F. White Securities and enjoys being her own boss. Jane Dildy Williams and Mac sought relaxing vacations by sailing in the Virgin Islands in Feb. and resting in Bermuda last summer. Enjoying their two new grandsons (born to their 2 daughters just 2 months apart) was great fun but exhausting. Jane plans to learn word processing this fall at Christopher Newport College. She may run into Liz Rector Keener, who spent the semester break last winter in London with Ross, and came back to graduate from Christopher Newport in May! Now she is teaching general biology lab and taking courses while waiting to start graduate school.

Phil Herndon Brissenden, took a National Trust for Historic Preservation trip to Egypt in March and a birding trip in June to the Pribilof Islands and the St. Lawrence Islands. For those whose geography isn't what it might be, they were only 45 miles from Siberia on that trip! She is still very involved in the symphony and a new nature center for Springfield. Bexy Faxon Knowles says if any of us haven't been on safari in East Africa, we should do it! It was their most memorable trip. She and Bob sailed up to Small Point in ME and took Shirley and Tom Cooper for an afternoon sail in their new Nonsuch 33. Far from retiring, Bexy was named "Realtor of the Year". She expects to see all 5 Jr. year in France classmates at reunion. Dede Harrison Austin and Larry rave about Africa too - they went to Kenya and Tanzania last winter. Dede keeps busy with her garden club and travels as flower arranging judge. Their daughter, Lisa, made them grandparents last spring and Larry Jr. and his wife (who have just transferred back to Savannah) are expecting in Feb.

Betty Byrne Gill Ware spent 2 weeks in Italy a year ago and 3 weeks in New Zealand last winter. She and Hudnall and Jane Slack Sigloh '56 and Denny hiked the famous Milford Track. On Nov. 25, Hudnall's and Pam Compton Ware's son, Hudnall IV, will be married in Atlanta to Jane Stewart Carter '83. The wedding should create a Sweet Briar mini-reunion as the engagement party did in Sept.! Betty Byrne promotes recycling on almost every level. Marty Hedeman Buckingham and Dick also rave about South Africa after an enlightening trip last year. They spent this summer's vacation in Scotland and the Burgundy area of France, and will cruise through the Panama Canal in Nov.! I don't know how they have time for golf or dog obedience training! Petsy Gautier Mezey, traveled with Cliff to the Grand Prix in Monte Carlo and the Frankfurt Auto Show this year. Most of their travel is business related but they do visit their children who are scattered all over. Pat Smith Ticer spent 12 days last summer in Israel on a trip sponsored by the Jewish Council of Greater Washington. Being Alexandria's Vice-Mayor keeps her embroiled in controversy—at present they are redoing the master plan and zoning code! She was one of 15 in the state to be appointed by Gov. Baliles to be on a Child Care and Early Childhood Development Council, charged with writing a bi-level plan for "at risk" 4 year olds. She is Vice-Chair and on the writing committee so spends a lot of time in Richmond. Mary Boyd Murray Trussell and George attended another wedding in England and visited friends in Scotland.

Diane Johnson DeCamp, who spends a month abroad every winter, will cruise on the QEII to the Canaries for 8 days instead of staying the whole time in England. Her 2nd granddaughter was born in March. Always interested in antiques, she has become involved with miniatures and exhibited two miniature rooms at the Miniature Society Convention in Cincinnati in April. Charlotte Orr Moores and Jon planned to enjoy the Alabama Bar cruise down the coast of Italy, through the Greek Isles and on to Istanbul this fall. Their youngest daughter will graduate from Vanderbilt in May, ending 16 years of tuition payments. Honey Addington Passano urges anyone sailing into Spanish Wells, Bahamas to inquire if she and Bill are in residence. She's willing to share fresh fruit from their orchard! Mitzi Streit Halla can't stop traveling until she retires! This year she went to Poland in March, Venezuela in June and eastern Europe (Bulgaria, Yugoslavia, Rumania) in Oct. She and Roman are still living in D.C. so travel to see their boys - Brian and his wife in San Diego and Kenneth in Boston. They also attended the wedding this summer of Anne Lyn Harrell Welsh's oldest daughter, Anne.

The rest of us have done our share of traveling but have limited our wanderings to the U.S. and spend most of our time visiting family members! Sandy Rhodes Berglund tries to limit her time away from Crested Butte to Nov. when she can neither golf nor yet ski! Last fall her daughter, Lisi '84, was married in Roanoke to Ken Robison. This year she travels east again for visits with her children and Don's. In Jan., she expects all 4 children, with mates, for a skiing visit. Also traveling to visit family. Mary Reed Simpson Dauge threatens not to have time for reunion! Not good enough! Lots of us have 5 grandchildren, don't we? And some of us, like Kathleen Peeples Pendleton, have to go all the way up north to Columbus, OH to see them! She has no trouble making the trip to see Jeffrey, the son of daughter, Katie. And she plans to be at reunion, but I hope she passes on the trip to the plastic surgeon for a lift and tummy tuck. I can't handle the competition as surgeons are way down on my list.

Some manage to keep family nearby. Betty Sanford Molster and Chuck are enjoying 3 grandchildren and expecting 2 more, none more than a few hours away. Their youngest daughter, Jane, started at U.Va. this fall so they are alone for the 1st time in 35 years! Patty McClay Boggs and Flip baby-sit with 2 1/2 year old Steven as often as his parents will let them and with another baby due in Jan., they expect to be "on duty" even more! Patty has started her diet for reunion - so have 1 - 3 times in fact! Ruth Campbell Vanderpoel sees granddaughter Lauren at least twice a week and has become a typical grand-mother.

Joan Kells Cook finds living on the water attracts lots of company. They did manage a trip east and one to Canada but were busy at home remodeling their vintage home and enjoying the wildlife, boating and swimming. Also working on a new home. Betsy Stevens Sulton and Bob are moving permanently to Tequesta, FL when he retires in Feb. Her card was wonderful - you can imagine the trials and tribulations of building a new house in FL while getting ready to move out of a house in MI. Browbeating the builder occupied most of her summer and right about now she and her daughter, Anne, are driving a "U-Haul 14' thing" from Grosse Pointe to Tequesta! I wonder if Christopher (her grandson) is along - would love to see pictures

Several of you were too busy with weddings for travel. Gail Davidson Bazarre sent a fairly demented note insisting that the best part of a wedding was seeing the pictures after it is all over. Their daughter, Julia, was married on 10/7 and when Gail wrote 3 weeks before she had already locked herself out of the car and lost her Mastercard and was expecting to break an arm or leg so she wouldn't be able to get into her beaded mother-of-the-bride dress! I'm sure she will recover in time for reunion! On 4/1, Margy, daughter of Peggy West Valentine and Henry was married to Thomas Rutherford Brown. The bride and groom will live in Richmond. Jeanette Kennedy Hancock and Jimmie graduated their last child from law school in May and married their only daughter in June. Only minor expenses from now on and time to relax at the cabin. For Nancy Douthat Goss and Woody, son Chuck's wedding 11/18 is the 2nd Thanksgiving wedding in a row and they've already told #3 son they won't be available next Thanksgiving! Ethel Green Banta has a wedding in the spring when son Jim marries Kathleen Fulton in Natchez next May. She is having a splendid time with Hope Farm and the thriving B&B and expected a visit from Chase Lane Bruns.

Everyone appears in robust health. Elise Wachenfeld dePapp keeps busy with her riding, 3-day eventing and tennis. Her youngest, Erica, is a senior at Dartmouth this year (the Gosses saw her when they were there for Woody's reunion), and will probably go on to vet school. Shirley Suttiff Cooper plans to have back surgery early in Nov. to repair disc damage done years ago. Her doctor thinks it will improve her tennis. Their daughter, Katherine, is spending her Sweet Briar junior year in Spain. In Atlanta, Camille Williams Yow is doing special events for the GA Trust for Historic Preservation. She is working on "A Salute to American Crafts 1990", a large retail show in the Apparel Mart, May 3-6, 1990. There will be 150 artists and a Tour Package for out-of-towners including tours of private collections. A lot of work but I'm sure Camille finds time for her grandson. A lot of work is surely what Derrill Maybank Hagood got involved in when she was elected vice regent of the Mount Vernon Ladies Association 2 years ago. Last spring's observance of the bicentennial of Washington's inauguration kept her busy for almost 2 years, but the success of the 3-day event must have been gratifying.

Retirement looms for Manda McThenia Iodice, as she expects to do it when the tuition payments end, and son James will graduate from MI State soon! Don has retired and is developing software for foreign language learning. Don, Jr. (the Alaska fisherman) says the oil spill is having long range effects. Salmon fishing is closed in Kodiak, 400 miles across the water from Valdez. My retirement still seems a long way off - at least 2 long years if I want continued health benefits till I'm eligible for Medicare - but I think about it and have lots of plans! But first, I do plan to retire from this job in June so start thinking about who would like to do it!

Here's a late flash with good news from Jane Feltus Welch! She goes into rehearsal the first of the year in an off-Broadway production of a new play by N. Richard Nash ("The Rainmaker") titled "Come As You Are." It opens in Feb. '90 at Actor's Playhouse. Jane says, "It's a wonderful role as the mother in a 4-character play dealing with the inevitable conflicts between parents and adult children." Any of you in (or in and out of) NY will want to see it.

My travels this year have been to visit family and included a wonderful 10 days in Denver that ended with a 3 day visit to Taos and Santa Fe (with 2 of my nieces). Last spring I went east to meet my newest nephew in Amherst, NH and had a visit with Didi Stoddard. We managed to catch Dianne Verney Greenway in town and catch up. Dianne was to have a photo show in Newburyport this fall. Watch for her marvellous photos of whales - she has some stunning postcards. Didi has a nice quiet project for a change. She chipped a bone in her foot and hasn't been able to play tennis or golf for at least 6 weeks (I'm glad I'm 1200 miles away! Pity poor Pythagoras Bassett!) so a job she can do at her computer is just the ticket. She is producing a recipe (or 2) of the week for Idylwilde Farms (her favorite grocery market). I don't know anyone who has so vast a store of recipes so she should have no problem. The idea is to eventually create the Idylwilde Farms Cookbook by Audrey Stoddard!

Thanks again for all prompt responses. If you haven't sent your check for the Reunion Gift - DO IT NOW! You should get your scrapbook questionnaires soon, so start collecting pictures and get them back to me pronto. I will see you ALL in June - no wimpy excuses will be accepted!

Class of '59 at Reunion '89

Fund Agent

Mary Harrison Cooke Carle, 511 Shortridge Drive, Wynnewood, PA 19096

Reunion was terrific for the 25 of us who attended and, of course, we all looked gorgeous. Cookie Cooke Carle and Ann Pegram Harris did a bang-up job of organizing our class—no mean feat. Cookie's daughter Rebecca is a freshman at SBC. Ann's son Joseph was married just before reunion; since then Ann has been to Europe not once, but twice! Says she's now going to take up knitting and sit. Fat chance!

Ali Wood Thompson gets the award for traveling the longest distance (from Washington state). She and Travis will move to Maui next summer. In the meantime, to keep her travel prowess in practice, she's going to England to play field hockey in the International "Golden Oldies" tournament. Ali sent a video tape of all the reunion action (well, I hope not quite all) to Penny Fisher Crowell, who is a potter living in Tubac, AZ. Ann Gumaer Johnson returned to SBC for the first time ever for reunion. She hadn't set eyes on the campus since 1957! In fine fettle was Rachel Bok Goldman, who wowed us all, again, with her spectacular wardrobe. She continues to live "a tale of two cities" shuttling between Chicago and Philadelphia. After all her hard work writing the class notes for 5 years, Bambi Price Carne couldn't come to reunion to collect her kudos. She's starting a word processing business and had to stay close to home.

Another mini-reunion took place in NYC in 9/89 at the annual SBC meeting of overseers, directors, etc. Judy Sorley Chalmers, Diane Doscher Spurdle, Ann Young Bloom, Fleming Parker Rutledge, and—a voice from the past—Claire Devener and I attended. Di had just transferred her brokerage business with Shearson, Lehman closer to her NJ home, saving herself a good 4 hours of commuting time to NYC. Per day! Judy received her M.S. in psychological studies last year and is busy counselling although she claims all of her clients are the non-paying variety. For several years Claire has lived on the island of Anguilla. She is a free-lance travel writer and recently started a local magazine entitled—appropriately enough—"Anguilla." Saw the 2nd issue: it's most handsome. Claire has managed to do what most of us only dream about - marry vocation and avocation. Young'un has finally retired from the Philadelphia Orchestra and is trying to find a new "focus" to her life. No wonder. She's only involved in about 3 dozen charity endeavors. So much for retirement! Fleming is still Fleming. Gorgeous and formidable.

Jini Jones Dyer teaches French in an inner city school in Bridgeport, CT and has honed her language skill by spending part of the last 3 summers studying in Tours, France. Intrepid traveller Anne Wimbish Kasanin just returned to CA from Tokyo, Taipei, Hong Kong, Singapore, Provence, Switzerland and New Haven. Variety is the spice of life! Another exuberant tourist is Ann Hearin, who had a fabulous trip to Israel and Egypt last summer. Liz Chambers Burgess keeps being challenged as exec. director of a Norfolk United Way agency which operates day care centers. She and Chuk did find time for a 2 week trip to Japan this year. Our classmates certainly move around!

Betsy Salisbury Creekmore is building a new home in Jackson, MS, and doing commissioned portraits. She's thrilled about both endeavors. Another artist from our class is Susan Glass Pitkethly, who uses glass (yes, glass) as her medium. She is represented in several museums and galleries in the Seattle area and last year wowed her neighbors with her Christmas tree created entirely of neon tubing. While continuing to teach Romance Languages at UNC, Kathleen Mather Bulgin wrote and published (fall '88) her book on Theophile Gautier, a 19th century French poet, novelist and critic. I think Sue Hight Rountree does everything there is to do in Williamsburg! In addition to making miniatures for Colonial W'burg and volunteer duties, she co-chaired the Annual Garden Club of VA meeting this spring.

After 3 years in Hong Kong, Virginia Marchant Noyes reports that they are still "oriening." She looks forward to visits from '59ers. She studies Chinese and is a contributing editor to 2 magazines. A little closer to home, Linda Knickerbocker Ford stays put in Grosse Point running her cafe/gourmet shop, the Merry Mouse. Barbie Lewis Weed is admin. asst. to the Dean at the School of Arts and Sciences, College of New Rochelle, NY and has recently been honored for 10 years of service. Surfaced after years of no news: Karen McKenzie Smith from Yuba City, CA. She's farming rice and tomato crops, teaching at a junior college, working towards a Masters, skiing in Idaho and keeping track of her 4 children who literally span the world. No wonder she doesn't write! Another surfer is Marcia Payne Grant. Sixteen years ago she remarried; between her and Peter they have 8 children and 17 grandchildren. Doubt if anyone in our class can beat those numbers.

Judy Nevins LeHardy and Ward enjoy "civilian life" after 32 years with the army. They bought a 39 foot sailboat, plan to live on board in a couple of years. Son Peter graduated from the Naval Academy in May. Judy is now a realtor—her first "real" job ever, she says. Another new realtor is Mary Blair Scott Valentine at French & Co., Richmond. Her granddaughter

Campbell Bowers has as her godmother Mary Blair Farinholt, Tabb Thornton Farinholt's daughter. Thoroughly confused now? Tabb still makes the 120-mile drive to Norfolk Academy and back daily. That's dedication! Hurricane Hugo tried to blow away several classmates, but, luckily, failed. Suzanne Hafer Hambrick reports that their new home in Hickory, NC is still intact. Polly Space Dunn, Savannah, has the same good news, but says the after effects are still devastating. Polly had foot surgery last spring, has been slow to heal, but I look forward to seeing her again on the slopes. With Mitchell and my husband George we had a fun dinner last winter in Vail, CO. I understand that Gay Hart Gaines now has a condo there so hopefully we can expand our mini-reunion. Meantime, Gay and Stanley celebrated their 30th anniversary in Venice. She keeps quite busy being on the board of the McCarter Theater in Princeton.

What little is decipherable from Kathy Tyler Sheldon says that they had a super skiing holiday in Lake Louise and that she spends more and more time preaching and conducting prayer workshops in the Anglican Fellowship of Prayer. A new fan of Canada is Judy Watts Buchanan, after a "restorative" trip there last summer. Judy Welton Sargent reports that daughter Susan graduated from Vanderbilt and works in Nashville and Mary Catherine is a senior at Rice with plans to become a "medical ethicist." Another Vanderbilt graduate: Jane Kroeger Larimore's daughter Susan. Jane raises and trains paint horses (?) in Ft. Worth. For 16 years Betsy Brawner Pittman has run husband Frank's practice. He teaches family therapists all over the USA so the Pittmans travel a lot. Daughter Ginger just graduated from Vassar and Tina just tied the marital knot in CO. Son Frank IV is a banker in SC. Jane Moore Banks is truly making their business—the College Manor Retirement Home—a family one. Both son and daughter have joined in an administrative capacity. Ann Eagles Carrell has put so much info on her card I can't read between the lines except to note that she is heavily involved with both DAR and SAR. Son William graduates from Davidson this year.

Retired from teaching high school Latin, Johannah Armbricht Bauknight can spend more time at their Highlands, NC retreat. Daughter Johannah lives in Atlanta and son Bill teaches organic chemistry at Towson State (MD) U. Virginia Ramsey Crawford and Mac bought a condo at one of their favorite family places in Chautauqua, NY. She continues to love work as a school librarian. Beverley Birchfield Thompson reports very sketchily that she is an administrator of a special education program for adolescents and that her 3 sons have graduated from college—one of them to the pro tennis circuit. Connie Fitzgerald Lange has moved into a new home in Ambler, PA and is a continuing care counselor at the Livengrin Foundation. Pat Gay Sills (Allentown, PA) reports a life full of grandchildren, weddings, graduations and golf—not necessarily in that order. From farther south Trish Chandler Burns has been busy with Scholarship Pageants as daughter Patty was in the Miss Georgia Pageant last year and Meredith will be in it this year. Isa Mary Lowe Ziegler was off to their annual fall trip from San Francisco to Paris. Her two eldest children live and work in the SF area while youngest son Knox completes high school studies at the Kent School in CT. Alicia, Joanne Bossert Thompson's daughter, graduated 1st in her class with an MBA in finance from the U. of CO.

From abroad we receive two pieces of news: Elsie Pritchard Carter (Moscow) reports that she and Billy (former capitalist comrades) have moved to the USSR because of its classless society and cheap vodka. And Alice Morris Gaskell claims she's in prison in Cornwall, England serving a life sentence—in fact, three life sentences running concurrently. As she says, no cloud without a silver lining. Should we believe either of them? I leave you to judge.

Several classmates write of destroyed property and disrupted lives in the wake of Hurricane Hugo, but all are fortunately alive and well. Tempe Parker lost her new home on Sullivan's Island - so new she had not even moved into it. May Bowers Morris, further south, suffered "no real damage" but is helping others in the area where she and her husband Don serve 2 small, rural Episcopal churches. Lucy Otis Anderson (Charlotte) said damage was minimal, but electrical outages and disrupted food supplies were a nightmare. After waiting 1 1/2 hours to get into a grocery store she can "now identify with women in Eastern bloc countries." For Betsy Parker McColl, the hurricane only delayed stunning victories at the South Carolina State Amateur Tennis Championships. Betsy swept the 45+ and the 40+ singles, and with her partner accomplished the same thing in both doubles competitions. Betsy also enjoyed camel-riding and seeing the treasures of Tutankamun's tomb with her mother last spring.

Moving on to another disaster, missing the San Francisco earthquake by a few hours was Karen Gill Meyer, who was taking a break from real estate work in Phoenix, AZ. Though not in the same league with natural disasters, relocation is certainly a major challenge. Jane Yardley married John Amos (Julie Arnold and Russell Morey handled honeymoon plans!), left Milwaukee for Vienna, WV. If you want to know more about Jane and her family, a rare opportunity awaits you. Our Kind of People: The Story of an American Family, written by Jane's brother Jonathan Yardley (Washington Post book critic) is an absorbing account of their parents' lives and times. The New York Times reviewer calls it "romantic, comic, a bit grotesque and resolutely honest," noting it "reads like a first-rate novel." I couldn't put it down! I was regaled by accounts of Jane's early years in Tuxedo Park - before the move to Chatham Hall where her father was headmaster for 20 years. Do read this wonderful book. You will identify strongly with the writer whose life, like ours, spans an era of dramatic social change.

Nerissa vom Baur Roehrs enjoys the "four wonderfully distinct seasons" in Japan with "something in blossom year-round." Daughter started 1st grade this year, and the violin. Ever-talented Nerissa keeps up with her, learning the viola. Also adjusting to a move is Anne Leavell Reynolds, finding it "interesting to live in America's First Planned Community" - Hershey, PA - after moving there with husband Herbert, and son Stuart who just entered h.s. Daughter Nancy graduated from Harvard last year; son George is finishing 3rd year at UVA. A classmate of his is Sallie Yon Williams' son. Sallie has just moved to Virginia Beach from NYC. Her 5th cookbook, on sauces, was due off the press before Christmas, and "should be very useful for lots of people."

Other professional achievements to note: Anne Smith Simet provides expert services we hope we won't need - the defense of employment discrimination cases. She presented a major address at a recent U. of Buffalo Law Alumni convocation. Ginger Cates Mitchell devotes much of her energy to homeless shelters in Atlanta - work she finds rewarding though she "would like to do more to really alleviate the problem." Dearing Ward Johns now specializes in book reports, school projects, car maintenance, plumbing and carpentry along with cardiac care. Anne Funkhouser Strite-Kurz and Bill love Midland, MI. Anne still teaches embroidery, though it sounds like scuba diving is moving up on the charts. Anne is mastering computer graphics in order to publish several books on canvas embroidery. Leslie Buchman Richardson still teaches Italian at Sewanee, and "enjoys having Meta Bond Magevney's tall, attractive son in class." Meta and Leslie had a visit last fall. Mary Ann Utterback Burnett "finally finished" an Ed.S. degree from George Washington University and coordinates reading and language arts classes for all 49 elementary schools in Virginia Beach. Prue Gay Stuhr has her hands full teaching social studies at one middle school in Lexington, MA: "This year the watch-word is site-based management. No longer must we have programs identical to all other middle schools in town."

Nancy Nix-Karakis and Nick take breaks from demanding work schedules in northern VA at a new beach cottage on the NC outer banks. Last fall Nancy took her niece to look at SBC. Sarah Hitch Hill has "learned as much about" herself as the southeastern Cherokee women she has been interviewing for her doctorate in anthropology at Emory. A fellow student at Emory is son Harvey, in graduate theological studies, also headed for a Ph.D. Ginny Corwin Millo, program manager on a part of the flight control system for the shuttle, thoroughly enjoys raising 7-year-old Gregory. Nikki Griess Deupree is bowing out of the antiques business to go into real estate in Suffield, CT. Husband Tom picked up the antiques trade along with his landscape design business. Nikki traveled to Italy, Yugoslavia, Greece, Istanbul and Zurich with her mother "who has convinced (her) that life doesn't slow down at 80 either." Mary Lou Morton Seilheimer and husband finished their swimming pool and were off to India for 3 weeks in Jan.

Judy Johnson Varn is "into" photography, immersed in the darkroom now that the twins have flown the nest, Robert to Wake Forest, Lily to Judy's eventual alma mater UNC at Chapel Hill. Going back into photography at the Kodak Institute in Rochester is Pat Calkins Wilder, now that their youngest is a Kenyon freshman. Jean Meyer Aloe, whose daughters Jenni and Betsy are still at home, finds time nonetheless for a Japanese conversation course. In last year's notes I erroneously awarded Jean a 5-year-old son Charlie, but Charlie is a cocker spaniel. My apologies! But such things are not impossible. Sarah Whitener O'Conner's son James began kindergarten this year, just as his sister Katie entered Cornell, and brother Kip II graduated from Annapolis and got married a week later. Another kindergartener is Carol Cline Palmer's son Patrick, whose sister Megan is a graphic artist in Boston. Carol and Chris plan lots of travel to Boston from home in Oklahoma City.

In fact travel to visit offspring is a regular theme. Marta Sweet Colangelo "forced" herself to NYC to visit daughter Catherine, a sophomore at Cooper-Union. At home Marta pushes son Matthew to complete college applications and son David to do homework. Nancy McDowell Fairbanks visited son Ted and attended a conference in CA. The twins - Kathy and Andy - graduate this year, respectively from Roanoke and Wesleyan Colleges. Julia Fort Lowe and Bob flew to CA last Sept. to enter son Bob as a freshman at Stanford. Julia also accompanied son Seth, 16, to D.C. for his week-long internship with a U.S. Congressman from TN. Passing through Lynchburg, Julia visited Jessica Bemis Ward and Peter, who were welcoming their Amherst graduate Pope back from a trip to Europe. Elizabeth Randolph Lewis and Jack have time to travel, now that all but 1 child has finished college. They have a daughter in D.C., another in St. Louis, and a son in Wilmington, DE. Elizabeth and Jack actually made it to Rock Springs on the way back from Yellowstone. Also in Wilmington: Harriet Reese Jensen's daughter Marianne, who graduated from Dickenson College 2 years ago. With all children now grown, Harriet and Jorgen are alone with horses, dogs, crops and a 100-foot windmill.

Cheri Fitzgerald Burchard says "all this schooling" is causing her to expand her interior decorating business in Watertown, CT. Daughter Juliet completes sophomore yr. at Sewanee, while son Jason finishes his "lower mid" year at Taft. Betsy Beale, tired of hearing about children and colleges, is joining rather than fighting: "My 2 children (the baby horses) are now 6-months-old and frolicking in the fields, and my 2 college graduates (the 2-year old race horses) are ready for the trade." Her intractable child is Elizabeth, a young piglet who finds her way to the living room sofa. Lyn Clark Pegg and John celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary and the wedding of daughter Sarah last summer - all this amidst a major family reunion in Massachusetts. Julie Arnold Morey and Russell have "another great daughter-in-law"; otherwise Julie reports that nursing homes and hard work at TAP Airline occupy most of her time. Mandy McCormick Bobbitt notes that "some good comes out of everything." Hospitalized for 2 months after an automobile accident in late '88, she married Billy Bobbitt the day she was released. Son Peter completes junior year at Denison, and son David freshman year at Kenyon.

Some folks don't need an excuse to travel, they just get on the road - or ship or plane. Lynne Carol Blau and Jeff celebrated 25th wedding anniversary last summer on a Kenyan safari with both daughters. Betsy graduates this year from Georgetown, Alexandra finishes freshman year at Brandeis. Laura Lee Brown Deters also was in Africa this year, traveling for work (buying trips for the museum she works for in Louisville) and fun. She went to London last fall, having already logged in Canada and Mexico. Randy Kendig Young covered Singapore, Bangkok, Hong Kong and London last fall. Her daughter Ann took time out from shark-tagging to join a rescue crew and save a woman drifting off Bermuda. Anne Carter Brothers and John returned from a "dream vacation" 25th wedding anniversary celebration aboard the Orient Express to Venice, also visiting Florence and staying at the Ritz in Paris. Also along were Laura Sauls Wallace and husband. Anne reports one son graduated and employed, "two to go." There have been sightings of Betty Stanley Cates and Alvin all over the world, though I did not hear directly from them.

Allie Stemmons Simon seems "to stay on the road" for SBC and was on the search committee for a new president this year. Her travels keep her in frequent contact with Lisa Wood Hancock and Pete, and she's had visits with Lee Kucewicz Parham and Keitt Matheson Wood and hopes to be skiing in Zermatt when this hits print. Nancy Dixon Brown feels she spends "all afternoon in a car going somewhere," as she keeps up with her 5-and 11-year-olds, and teaches high school special education classes.

Nancy asks that "everyone give something this year to SBC." Let's do it!

I am grateful to all for writing news, and for the mention of others you are in touch with. John and I celebrated our 20th anniversary last summer, taking a 5-day backpacking trip in the Wind River Mountains with the 2 boys. The nest is now empty: Dave completed high school this year at Rowland Hall-St. Mark's in Salt Lake City, Doug is a lower-mid at Hotchkiss. I enjoy my news writing job, which took me to Honduras last summer on a story about the growing U.S. military presence there, which includes massive Army National Guard training sessions. Please contact me if you come to Wyoming.

With sadness I learned from Judy Benson Steigle of the death of her dear husband John from cancer last May. Judy wrote that her "kid from Brooklyn was overwhelmed with the beauty and grace of SBC and so enjoyed meeting all her classmates" at 20th Reunion that he had looked forward to our 25th.

The pervasive theme this year is emptying nests: kids off to college or in the throes of visiting, applying or choosing. First, of course, is Dolly Caballero Garcia's daughter, Dolly, a senior at SBC and President of the Student Government Association! Toni Naren Gates and daughter look forward to a visit to SBC to begin the college search.

The school of choice is UVA with 1 graduated, 7 in residence and at least 1 on the way. Anne Carr Bingham's daughter Alexandra graduated from UVA and teaches Spanish at VES; son, Robert, is a sophomore at Wesleyan U. Anne continues as secretary to the headmaster at EHS, which may go co-ed. Mary Bell Timberlake has attended UVA football games the longest as Wayt, IV is in his last year there. With Julie starting freshman year at Tulane, Mary Bell and Wayt, III relive college years in the stadium parking lot with Carroll Randolph Barr and Mike whose eldest son is in his 1st UVA year. Margaret Mapp Young and Dick spend what time they are not at sons' sporting events fishing, hunting or traveling. Margaret's oldest son, Douglas, is at Hampden-Sydney. Middle son, Mapp, entered UVA where, at the 1st year parents' luncheon Margaret saw Martha Ketchum Bozart and Beth Glaser Morchower, also 1st year parents. Melissa Sanders Thomas's son Brian started UVA's Engineering School with Muffie's son and Diane Mann Lankford's son also entered "The University" this fall. Margy Dortch Brooks visited many of these "UVA parents" as she and daughter toured colleges en route to St. Timothy's for the last time. (If this seems complex, identifying Beth and Carroll's unsigned notes from the cross references made by this group was like determining land ownership under the Rule Against Perpetuities, (a reference to my return to "school" to brush up on lawyering and so to return part-time and free-lance to the professional ranks.) Melissa also wrote that my alumnae "trip" last year inspired a wonderful mini-reunion luncheon at the Ritz, no less, which the Atlanta crew vowed to make an annual event. (Obviously, all longing for a Mid-Atlantic mini reunion can just plan to converge on Charlottesville for a home game in '90.)

Virginia Stanley Douglas, whose daughter, Beeling, a National Merit semi-finalist, is applying to UVA, is due my apologies for having misidentified her last year as Governor Deukmejian's appointee, Josalee Douglas Dechambrum. The countess's whereabouts remain unknown but how can Randy Brown Sebnen have become lost since our 20th?

Pat Neithold Hertzberg, only child off to Duke, says that the Empty Nest Syndrome is relieved by intimate, elegant dinners with wine, new jobs for both her and Mike and successful completion of her CFA certification exam. Finding life "suddenly quiet" since her youngest started Radford, Eleanor Kidd Crossley seemed to be well occupied with responsibilities in planning a week-long Russian-American Chatauqua on current issues, with Phil Donahue, Marlo Thomas, Geraldine Ferraro and Robert Redford, whom she requested as her house guest, getting two Soviets instead. Mandy Mitchell Hertzog describes the empty nest as "both strange and exciting..." Her daughter deferred admission to Smith for a post graduate year at the American School in Switzerland; her step-daughter is at Smith; son is a Wesleyan sophomore; and her step-son, a Columbia freshman. Keeping busy with dressage and training, Mandy's "not suffering too badly from E.N.S., though life is certainly different suddenly."

Martha Meehan Elgar has 2 at home as daughter, Kathy, left for college at the same time the rest of the family left Louisville after 12 years for Marietta, GA where Tom's career with G.E. has taken them. Anne Stuart Brown Swann's son, Kirk, is a Dartmouth sophomore; son James is 15. Washington's freak storm in June extensively damaged their landscaping and left them without electricity for 4 days. Also in the dark after Hugo was Page Munroe Renger: "I'm no pioneer," she says, from the midst of mastering the art of college applications with her son. Hugo was less kind to Polly Eels who finds life "tough" after the Charleston, SC flood.

Betsy Kurtz Argo's daughter Kristen will graduate a year early from UC-Irvine in June. With 2 at home, Betsy is a development officer for an independent girl's school. For Stephanie Lucas Harris success after law school is a position with a Dallas firm specializing in real estate and finance and 2 sons doing wonderfully. "Working moms" also include Peggy Pittman Patterson who was ordained in the Episcopal Church this year and serves as Curate at St. Matthew's Episcopal Cathedral in Dallas and teaches religion at The Episcopal High School; Gracey Stoddard Slotterbeck, who recently became secretary to the pastors of The Brick Church in NYC; she continues to indulge her love of skiing in VT with 2 sons; Gene King Leydon—the success of her dance school for young children is evidenced by more than 200 participants and the addition of a partner which enables her to consider joining a midwifery team in Nicaragua next summer; and Jill Berguido Gill who has left full-time teaching for independent tutoring, mornings at independent schools and at home after school to accommodate son Tim's arrival from school.

Charlotte Hoskins Herbert returned to teaching at the community college in Myrtle Creek, OR, having sent her youngest off to 1st grade and Beth Gawthrop Riely and family have returned to Boston after a year in Oxford where she penned food and travel articles from a 16-18th c. Cotswold stone house while John was on his sabbatical from B.U. Katharine Barnhardt, with 2 little ones at home, was named to the faculty of Holy Cross Regional School: she teaches 7th-and 8th-graders. Teaching nursery school is Stephanie Ewalt Ayers, who is suffering through college visits, applications, and boards with eldest son. At last we hear from Susan Soriero Galbreath, a real estate agent in San Antonio, with 2 at home and 1 at T.C.U. sophomore. Maria Wigglesworth Hemmings, who returned to full-time employment this year as a Sr. Systems Analyst at NASDAQ, notes: "Everybody is happier! I wish you all could see 'Churchill's Limelight', the newsletter which Janie Willingham McNabb writes for the restaurant—she really has a talent!"

Our "Working Mother of the Year," Dr. Hallam Hurt, was at SBC in Sept. to receive the 1989 Distinguished Alumna Award for extensive research on the effects of cocaine on children born to drug-addicted mothers. Premature births and lack of responsiveness to human contact or other stimuli are frequent; possible heart, intestinal and brain abnormalities are suspected, she reports.

Full-time motherhood occupies Barbie Tillman Keiley, chauffeur, and Gretchen Bullard Barber, with 2 family additions of the 4-legged, hay eating variety. Shelly Gearhart Lindstrom's new addition, also named "Shelly," is a 58-ft. yacht which Frank gave her for her birthday, much more fun than their unexpected anniversary present—a view of the San Francisco earthquake from their room at the Fairmont. Glory McRae Bowen stays busy managing the dramatic careers of her children, Hardy, 8, who is on cable T.V. in NJ, Glory, 13, who performed in The Music Man at her summer camp and T.J., 3, destined to be a great musical voice. Linda Fite, having lost her job as a free-lance artist to a NJ computer, darts in and out of jobs, somewhat confused about what best matches with mothering. Mary Eckman Echols's (Wilson, NC) says son Lee, 12, is very "pre-adolescent," figuring that most of you would know what that means. Lisa Braden Foster shares her time, serving as board member of a school for exceptional children and a center for youth and families in Little Rock.

Sorry, no newborns! Tied for tiny tots are Leilani Green Gordon, with Amy, 2, and Frizz Frazier Gas whose Arielle I witnessed progressing through the terrible twos as I visited them last Jan. on the way to Belize to join an archaeological dig and again in Aug. for 2 weeks in Telluride, CO. Career news comes from Lynn Gullett Strazzini: she will no longer commute to NYC from Williamsburg, VA when Ed retires from the Army for a new job in Jan.; she hopes to continue with the FAA wherever they go. Sue Tucker took on 2 volunteer chairs this year, Friends of Vieilles Maisons Francaises, which enhances her French connections and "A Taste of Belgium" the success of which validates Atlanta's becoming the international city it aspires to be. Laura Roger Camps left the Acapulco Hyatt Regency to work for a real estate firm there which specializes in vacation home management and rentals. Carol Munn immensely enjoys her new career as a realtor with Coldwell Banker in Miami, but still loves flying as a Pan Am attendant. Patty Fischer rolled up her massage table to join Pat Stetson Agnew under Montana's big skies where Patty plans to assist at a holistic healing center near Billings. Our "Career Woman of the Year" is undoubtedly Pam Ford, full-time law partner, whose lace company, Rue de France, is an Inc. 500 company, ranking 257th among the fastest-growing, privately-held companies in America. As "Fite" says of our idol: "She works so hard—but with such pleasure!" See you in Charlottesville next fall!

Lots of response! Great to hear your news. Dr. Patty Schwalm returns to work soon in the Chicago area, with Patrick in kindergarten and Margaret in 1st grade. She presented a research lecture at Alma College in Michigan at a symposium on women in science. Molly Clark Ruzicka's family moved to Philadelphia from Baltimore. Glen is head of conservation for the Conservation Center for Art and Historic Artifacts; Molly does free-lance editing, mostly for the Philadelphia Museum of Art. Thaddeus (4) rounds out the picture. Molly wants you to write her at 305 S. Philip Street, Philadelphia, PA 19106. Ann Shipper Oates, T.K., Alison (12), and T.K., Jr. (14) are still "firmly planted" (her words) in Rochester, but Ann completed her MBA and works as a Financial Analyst for Kodak. Jodie Davis Godbout has been in Madison, CT for 10 years, raising Davis (4), Farrell (only daughter, 8), and Kip (10). Previously she and Greg lived in San Francisco, Denver, and Chicago.

Farther south...Lissy Stevenson is at the Smithsonian, still "dating in Richmond," and sees Susan Sellers Ewing there. Susan teaches Art History at St. Catherine's and has 3 children. Also in Richmond is Cami Crocker Wodehouse, who moved there from FL in '88. She says 6 alums within 2 blocks of her house ease the transition. Susan, Nan Glaser LaGow, Becky Randolph Boyers, Barb Tessin Derry '72, Corbin Kendig Rankin '70, and May Humphries Fox '70 are all within shouting distance, and Carey (8) and Charlie (13) attend, respectively, St. Catherine's and St. Christopher's. Cami dresses up in a fairy costume to tell fairy tales to sick children in a hospital pediatric ward. Also in Richmond, Wendy Norton Brown teaches preschool and carpools in her "free time." She and Lee ushered in the big four-oh with a trip to Hawaii, where he presented a paper to the bar association. They snorkeled and took helicopter trips.

Alix Sommer Pearce in Fredericksburg made it through 40 thanks to a "dear husband" who took her to New York and New England. Phantom of the Opera, the Algonquin Hotel, and Newport, RI were highlights. Back home, she works as Supervisor of Gifted and Fine Arts for the Stratford County Schools and teaches a course on lesson planning based on different learning styles. Beverly Wright Graves also teaches - Latin and English in Lynchburg. Katie (14 mos.) and Cory (11) keep her busy; husband Pete works in insurance sales. She would like to write some children's books and maybe a novel in the 2nd 40 years. From Williamsburg, Rene Roark Bowditch reports no time to think about turning 40 thanks to David, Jr. (2). Temporarily retired from legal practice, she teaches part-time at the law school at William and Mary, volunteers at a shelter for battered women, and helps with a puppet program that teaches children to say no to sex. She hears from Rosemary Dunaway Tribble, who is in Cambridge, MA where Paul teaches a government seminar at Harvard, and from Roma Skeen Young, partner in her Philadelphia law firm and mother of Matthew (3).

Barbie Gracey Backer (Delray) enjoys her new baby Katherine, born 5/89, who competes with John (4) and David (2) in a loudness contest. Three college-age stepdaughters pop in on weekends, and Barbie puts in time at the family insurance agency, her church, and the local historical society. Future plans involve staying close to home raising her young children; she echoes many classmates saying "not too exciting to write about, but very exciting to live." Frances Woltz Fennebresque writes from Charlotte as they continue to clean up after hurricane Hugo; he blew a tree on their home. With everyone in school (John a Woodberry Forest senior, Amy a sophomore, Francie in 5th grade and Billy in kindergarten), Frances is volunteer-teaching a class of teenage mothers at a county high school, an "emotionally difficult but rewarding" job.

In Mobile, Carolyn Jones Walthall celebrates turning 40 by taking some time for herself. She says she knew she had hit volunteer burnout when she wanted to tell the cub scouts to go to hell and not to collect any badges for it! She takes pottery and jazz dance at a local university, where, unlike SBC, there are no cows. Ann Sniffen Cates says her life - on paper - sounds so simple, but living it is "madcap." Child, job, church, PTA, and Girl Scouts would drive her crazy were it not for a wonderful husband. "Life begins at 40!" writes Carol Everest Keeney from Valencia, CA, where the southern (CA) accents are a little different from her's. She and Arthur own their business, and are raising Malcolm (13) and Sarah (5). This year, Libby Tyree Taylor's birthday (40th) fell on Friday the 13th. To stave off bad luck, her husband offered her a trip anywhere in the world, and she chose 2 weeks in Japan, leaving Alexa (7) and Lee (3) with her parents. Libby hopes to visit Lexington, VA this spring to see her parents, and drive over the mountain to SBC.

Richmondite Dee Kysor plans to take stock of her activities when she turns 40 and do a little weeding. Her interests are: husband George, Jennifer (10), her veterinary practice, and gardening, all of which sound pretty valuable to me. Jacque Penny Goldstone ushered in 39 with a "hectic" year. She and Bob went through a friendly divorce last April, and she spent a month in Australia as a birthday present to herself. As she isn't yet 40, she says she may hold at 29. Mimi Fahs walked into her shop in Portland in September. More news on Mimi: At Mt. Sinai Medical Center, she's working on a study of the effect of the Webster decision on the economy from unwanted babies born with AIDS. Mimi plays her fiddle, escapes from NYC to a weekend/summer home built with her architect husband, and wishes she had time to travel around the world. But she loves her work and is happy.

Rhoda Allen Brooks (Cincinnati) is starting to think that her life might slow down if she got a job. When she wrote, she expected 30 new school parents for dinner. Her twins, now 13, 2 dogs and 4 cats "add to the excitement." In NJ, Ann Milbank Mell finds life better on the far side of the hill from 40. As a Girl Scout leader, she mumbles through the promise (she was never a Girl Scout herself!). She's preparing for her parents' 50th wedding anniversary, watching her children grow and develop interests, and has fulfilled a lifetime dream to see the Statue of Liberty. "She's magnificent!" Ann reports. Also in NJ, Jeannette Bush Miller wants to know where people find the time to do all those things she reads about in the Alumnae Mag. Preoccupied with Sarah (5), Elizabeth (16 mos), and the laundry, Jeannette plans some day to "get organized, become productive, have perfect children, be gorgeous, have a tastefully decorated, gracious home, contribute meaningfully to society, and have people say, how does she manage?"

American history teacher, Kathy Garcia Pegues and husband have built a house in Warrenton, VA based on the plan of John Jay's homestead in New York. As our unofficial class recruiter, Kathy has been bringing prospective SBCers to the campus for student overnights and working at College Night fairs. Otherwise, she spends lots of time in the car, taxiing Emily and Adam to soccer, scouts, etc. She says 40 is great—certainly beats the alternative. Jeannie Littleton Knight turned 40 the day she got my card. She plans to turn her part-time job in the Winchester, VA school system to full-time now that David is a Dickinson freshman. Stephen is a h.s. junior, Jamie a freshman, and Fred is a 7th-grader. Husband David has been rector of Christ Episcopal Church in Winchester for 11 years. Wendy Weiss Smith is "integrated" into the community of Littleton, MA, after 9 years. She teaches ESL, and volunteers as an officer of the garden club and the lyceum committee. She and Gilbert, who volunteers as library treasurer, loved time spent in Spain last fall.

Kathy Wilson Lamb's family is doing "great" in Atlanta, with Rex practicing law, and her volunteering at school and for the Festival of Trees. As well as driving carpools for Katie (11) and Marie (14), Kathy fits in some tennis, and they escape to a cottage in northern MI summers. Also in Atlanta, Beryl Bergquist Farris formed an export company, shipping low and high tech products to Africa - it seemed a natural outgrowth of her immigration and customs law practice. Traveling to Canada each month last year to discuss immigration law with Canadian physicians, Beryl has seen Niagara Falls from all sides and in all seasons. She has traveled recently in GA with Kristin (8) and Ariana (5), especially to Vienna when her husband was a judge at the 10/89 Big Pig Jig. Carol Remington Foglesong doesn't see that turning 40 will make a big change in her life. They sail their 23' boat off the FL coast as often as possible, and watch Eric (12) and Christopher (7) play soccer. Carol raises funds for Junior Achievement, and will remain at home while Rick, who teaches political science at Rollins, spends 4 months at UCLA in '90.

Lind Dore Fountain (Houston) has kept busy during her 40th year. She took on new volunteering jobs, coordinating kindergarten room mothers and working with Sheltering Arms. She then celebrated her parents' 50th anniversary, flew to Crested Butte (CO) for their 10th, and visited Europe for her 40th. The family explored the Ozarks and the Mississippi by riverboat at Christmas. "Life begins at conception, not 40," says Linda Hill Krensky, "but gets better all the time." Linda earned a B.A. in Psychology from American U. 5/89. She helps her husband with his business in Rockville, MD, and is raising 6 children ranging in age from nursery school to college (his, hers, and theirs)! Alison Jones MacEwan finds husband Nigel and daughters a great source of encouragement in her career of photography. She produced the brochure photos for the Stamford (CT) City Ballet, and went on to mount a one-woman exhibit of East African color photos in November. In Topanga, CA, Cindy Riddle had a son, Cody, in June '88. She has published a holistic health directory for San Francisco, and is working as assistant director for The Wonder Years.

By the time you read this, Katie Horan will be in Chadds Ford, PA, where she bought a small farm. At 40, she says, "Life is still made up of working and horses." She broke 2 young ones this year and almost bought a stallion, but she passed him by - disappointing x-rays. As manager of technology transfer at the Texas Engineering Experiment Station, Lynne Manov Sprinsky makes enough to support herself and her horse, with time left over for Matt (9), volunteer work, and Bill, who teaches at Texas A&M. Stepdaughter Judith graduated from Houston Art Institute, hopes to break into commercial art. Denise Wisell O'Connor starts off her 4th decade with lots of news: a new husband Jim (Hobart, Boston College, Harvard), a new locaion (Victorian house in Longwood, FL), and new jobs (working with Jim in insurance and as a substitute teacher at her son's Catholic school). They plan a spring trip to the Cayman Islands and Hawaii, and she itches to tame the roses in her new garden.

Brooke Thomas Dold moved 2 miles from her old home in Houston and feels as if she moved across the country. Her 1st- and 4th-graders like their new school and the 2 1/2-year-old goes to MDO (what's that, Brooke?). Brooke saw Manda Megaree Sutton and son James visiting in Houston this summer. They still live in Petersburg. Manda saw Frances Barnes Kennamer and Martha Roton Terry in AL on her way to TX. Several Houston alums "lunch" once a month: Alisa Yust Rowe, Debbie Warren Rommel, Cutler Bellows Crocker '72, Elizabeth Clegg Woodward, Lind Dore Fountain and Bev Van Zandt Steele. Bev lives in LaPorte, TX. Honey Hammer has found a way of life that works for her at 40 or any age. She works at Bank One in Dayton, but real love is horses and students. A dressage teacher, she was chosen as 1 of 10 instructors in the U.S. to attend the Violet M. Hopkins National Seminar for Dressage Instructors as a participating instructor.

In Roanoke, Mary Frances Oakey Marshall hopes the next 40 years will bring more spare time than the 1st 40. Her children are 14, 11, and 5: I think we can read between the lines here. Liz Mumford Wilson didn't hit 40 until Christmas, so at postcard time she was still able to pick up her paintbrush often enough to have 4 shows, not counting work hanging in galleries. Painting plus a husband and a 1 1/2 year old leads her to comment that she could write a book (as many of us could) about the combination of family, career, and sleep deprivation! "Forty was actually fun!" writes Alisa Yust Rowe from Houston. She adds that all is well and suggests that perhaps our class should start a tally of daughters nearing college age and considering SBC. Mine is; she adores horses. Ann Webster Danford celebrated the approach of 40 by climbing Mount LeConte in 14 inches of snow. "Pretty good for a FL girl!" she adds. A single parent, Ann owns a personalizing shop, is raising 2 boys (13 and 9), substitute teaches, and takes graduate classes at FSU. It sounds like you climb Mount LeConte every day, Ann!

Our newlywed classmate, Sue Greenwald, visited D.C. to catch up with Miriam Miglin and Robi Randolph. She also saw Ann Tippin and daughter Elizabeth. Ann lives in Australia, was here on vacation. Sue works in telecommunications management at Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center, and finds health care an improvement over financial services. She adds that Peter is enjoying meeting old SBC friends. Susan Schmidt is finishing a Ph.D. in American lit. at the U. of SC, living in Durham and teaching at the NC School of Science and Math. She is also finishing a novel and plans post-doctoral research in environmental ethics. Wow!

Barb Wuehrmann had big decisions to make this year. She and her brother finally decided to put their mother, who has Alzheimer's disease, in a VA nursing home. She sees her every month, and her mother still enjoys her company. Barb and Jim bought a lakeside cottage north of Grand Rapids, and have been busy remodeling instead of vacationing. They hope to actually swim and sail next summer. Barb finished '89 with a trip to Hawaii. Amanda Thrasher Segrest says she hasn't minded turning 40 at all. Still in Huntsville, AL, she carpools, volunteers for 3 different PTAs for her children's (Jordan, 12, Ellen, 8, and Clay, 5) schools. On the foundation board of Huntsville Hospital, Amanda also volunteers for the Childlife program there. In Houston, Betty Duson doesn't see much difference between 39 and 40. Still in private practice, she teaches some courses at the U. of Houston, and she and Al spend their spare time doting on Andy (2 1/2). "We're living proof of how disgusting older parents can be!" she adds.

Life may have begun at 40 for Robin Richardson whose last name is now Falls. Married to Ralph "Tuffy" Falls, she moved to Raleigh and added 3 adult stepchildren (Cooper, Louise and Ralph) to her own brood of Chip (12), Will (8), and Kylie (15 1/2). They spent summer in Morehead City; Robin bubbles about her new husband, "He's wonderful!" Karen Murphy Ireland moved back to NC after years in the "frozen North." She manages a medical office, while her husband teaches American studies at a local college, and Jonathan attends 6th grade. We hear about Wendy Weiler via a Christmas letter from her parents. They comment that Wendy and Donald's baby Caroline has brought new meaning to the word "dance." Linda Whitlow Knight and husband Dick are busy in their respective Nashville law practices. Katherine is in 7th grade and Elizabeth 4th at Ensworth School. After vacations in southern CA and ME, Linda and Dick attended the Bush Inauguration.

Four of my correspondents neglected to sign full names to their postcards, so I am not sure who this news is from. Read it and guess (next time, sign your name!). Liz from Houston finished her MBA in December and is ready to start '90 with a bang. Someone from Charleston, MO, who has children named Hudson (3) and Nelson (9) spent her 40th birthday at the Derby. She saw Louise Archer Slater for her 40th and Martha Stewart Crossland. Farm life is great, but traveling is better, she adds. Who is this mystery person? Someone who used to live in New Orleans moved to Alexandria, VA but still commutes to LA. "If Robert Pricter can do it, so can I," she comments. She sees Robi Randolph frequently, and Sue Greenwald and husband Peter Schementa have visited twice. Please identify yourself! I suspect my last mystery correspondent is Barbara Payne, from the postmark and the politics. She had a big 40th party planned for December 29 (no black balloons, please). Allie (8) and Evan (5) are in school; she is working in Hospice, going to pro-choice rallies "and generally making a nuisance of myself to elected officials over women's and environmental issues." She would love to have people call her when they are in Charlottesville. I would have tried to track down mysterious correspondents by matching clues to my '71 class printout, but my not-very-patient son John (1) wants a turn at the keys.

Boy, am I impressed with you guys! Not everyone spent their SBC years grooving over album covers and doing basic research at fraternity houses as I did. Obviously a lot of you studied, applied yourselves, and have accomplished wonderful things. But just as important (in my opinion), you seem to have found yourselves and created happiness for yourselves and the people around you. I like being 40 because I have found work and people that I love. I also know how to take time for myself and I try hard not to hurry through the things that count, like my baby trying to crawl down the stairs or my son reading me a story he wrote in school. Julia (11), Steven (8), and John (1) grow so beautifully and much too fast. I teach preschool 3 mornings a week and entrust the baby to a sitter (1st time I've done that!). Dave is studying electronics with an eye towards changing jobs. We plan to spend a March week in NYC, where my brother John is finishing his dissertation at Columbia. I had a localized recurrence of cancer when the baby was born, but it was treated successfully with surgery and radiation, I've been fine ever since. We seem to be an interesting, diverse class, which has used its gifts wisely. Until next year.

I enjoyed hearing from everyone and am thrilled that so many of you want to return to SBC for our 15th Reunion.

Randy Anderson Trainor recently bought a Decorating Den franchise which she markets in NH and ME. Tom is doing landscape design, while Cliff (6) is busy with school and soccer, and Cary (4) has started nursery school. Even though Bel Bashinsky White had a busy fall with League duties and her son in a new school, I couldn't feel too sorry for her - she was off to Ireland for a garden tour. She and Bev Crispin Heffernan are heading up the 15th year Reunion gift for our class and are eager to see everyone in the spring of '90. I was glad to hear from Karen Bewick who says she's not sure she's ever responded to our class card. After getting a masters in music and teaching at the Duke Ellington School of Arts, Karen has given up music for real estate. She shares a house in N.VA with a good friend and 3 dogs and does a little gardening, tennis, backpacking, and cross-country skiing. Carol Brewer Evans still enjoys her part-time job with Consumer Credit Counseling Service, counseling people with serious debt problems. I love having Carol close by. Last summer, on a whim, we packed ourselves, Carol's 2 girls, Catherine and Carey, into the car, and took off for the SC beaches for several days - without husbands. The weather was lousy but we had a great time.

Betsy Brooks Jones wrote, "After a busy summer in France and Belgium, we are settling down to travel and work. Thank goodness Brownrigg (11) and Thomas (7) are old enough to adjust to my hectic schedule which includes travel with my new job as vice-president of marketing research with Europa Imports. Tombo will accompany me to San Francisco next month." Congratulations are in order for Linda Carroll Matthews who has had 2 more children - Charles Wesley, born 3/17/88 and William Carroll, born 7/15/89. Linda has also been busy with the Junior League as a coordinator for their new cookbook. In CA, Carol Clement Pavia stays busy with two small boys (4,2) and her position as area v.p. with ADIA. She recently traveled on business to Australia and Switzerland, and planned to visit Candi Casey '76 in Milan. Anne Cogswell Burris wrote after Hurricane Hugo struck Charleston. She expressed appreciation to all the SBCers who offered assistance and prayers. She and Lon had moved into their 220 year old newly renovated home just 5 weeks before Hugo hit. They suffered no water damage but lost all their trees and a chimney causing roof damage and leakage. Anne was distraught over the loss of her parents' 100 year old beach house on Sullivan's Island. We're sorry about the destruction of Charleston, Anne, but thankful you and your family are safe.

Jean Connor Churchill and Paul recently moved to Richmond and are enjoying their life there. Paul started his own business and Jean is at home full-time. With both children in school Jean is enjoying her free mornings. For Marybeth Connor Hamlin managing a career and Patrick (18 mos.) is difficult. Good luck, M.B., with your dual responsibilities! Child #5 is on the way in Jan. '90 for Cathy Cowdery Etheridge. Since they still do home schooling, Cathy obviously has limited "away from home" time. The oldest, Blake (8) plays soccer, and their only girl (5 1/2) is taking dance-ballet. Their youngest, born with muscle disease, has made great improvements. I'm envious of Catherine Cranston Whitham. She was off to the Lake District in England for a week with her parents - without husband or children. Back in Richmond, Catherine stays busy with her children, Thalhimers, playing the piano for "little people's" choir, and volunteer work.

Football, Cub Scouts, and fishing with her 2 boys keeps Beverly Crispin Heffernan more than busy. When none of the above applies, she foxhunts by herself. Bev enjoyed a "quad mini-reunion" last June in Roaring Gap, NC with Cynde Manning Chatham, Robin Singleton Lloyd, and Nancy Haight. She's looking forward to our 15th! Coni Crocker Betzendahl and Richard are eager to buy a 40 ft. boat for a summer home on Lake Michigan. Coni is still illustrating the boxes for "Palmer" chocolate - Hopper, Flopper, and Topper - and says you can see her signature in very tiny print on the back of the box at Easter time. Bonnie Danianos-Rampone and family enjoyed a vacation to ME and a trip to the Greenbriar. She graduated from Interior Design School and enjoys work as an interior designer. Chuck just purchased a Chevrolet Dealership, so is now selling Chevis along with Fords. From Besancon, France Louisa Dixon wrote to say that she still enjoys her position as assistant to director of Knox College's Jr. Year program. Louisa was in the U.S. last summer, so is sorry she'll miss our 15th reunion. Joan Douglas Murray will also miss Reunion because they are posted in Brussels now. But she hopes to bring Chris, daughter Sara (3) and baby David to our 20th.

Linda Frazier Keith is still in Oakland, CA. Jules is the staff neonatologist and a commander now with 15 years in the Navy. Linda was recently made Vice Principal of her school, in addition to teaching 7th and 8th grade Math and Science. Catherine (12) is into boys, music, make-up, clothes, etc. Linda says Chris (3rd grade) is a star on his soccer team. I'm sorry Linda won't be able to make our 15th. Debbie Goiten Hodge and Angus still live in Titusville, NJ with their 2 children, Devon (2) and Ian (9 mos.). Angus manages Apex Lumber Mart, while Debbie cares for the children and rides once a week. For all you horselovers, Katylou Gray Brittle wrote to say that she and Gould recently visited Keedie Grones '76 at SBC. She says the campus is beautiful and Cronin is in fine form. Katylou is still galloping and schooling steeplechase horses and managing Dominion Saddlery in Middleburg, VA.

After 3 exciting years in London, Melissa Greenwood Riemer and family are thrilled to be back in their own house in Wilmette, IL. She's looking forward to our 15th. Congratulations to Lisa Hall who recently received her MA and Certificate of Advanced Studies. She has an advanced-level internship at the Harvard University Art Museums' Center for Conservation and Technical Studies. Ellen Harrison Saunders' life in Suffolk is busy with Harrison (7) in 1st grade and Mary-Carson (4) in play school. Her volunteer activities include the Church Session, garden club publicity work and the parents advisory group at Harrison's school. A different and fun volunteer job is hosting a weekly news show on their local municipal access channel on cable TV. Ellen says, "It's great to have Cathie Grier Kelly so close by!"

In San Diego, CA Ann Henderson Stamets stays busy with a 2nd grader, substitute teaching, and some catering. Her husband will retire from the Navy in less than 2 years and will begin a second career. Ann was looking forward to participating in 2 college nights at local high schools as a representative for SBC. Anna Ho is president of her own company, Anna Ho, Inc. and has 2 children, Austine (12) and Sterling (11). Chris Hoefer Myers was just back from a friend's wedding in France at the beautiful Chateau Beauregard. She also enjoyed a trip to Paris, "splendid in its celebratory lights." Her daughter, Aidan, is in 1st grade; Jim's career as a professor in Chinese politics is flowering. The animal rights field is Ginny Holden's latest endeavor. She is the Chairperson of the Illinois Womans Bar Association Committee for the Humanitarian Treatment of Animals. She also serves on the Executive Committee of the American Bar Association Animal Right Committee. Ginny says, "I think I've finally found my real calling!" Beth Jones Elkins had just returned to Wayne, PA from a 2 week stint in VT. Meredith, who started kindergarten in Sept. is fine; Greg goes to nursery school 3 mornings a week. Beth is still enjoying working out of her home, and loves the freedom her job gives her.

Traveling with her interior design business keeps Carol Leslie St. John away from her 3 little guys more than she wishes. She saw Martha French Roberts, Matt and their 3 children on the Cape last summer. She and Mary Dubuque Desloges compare notes and gray hairs on raising 3 boys! Congratulations to Dot Lyons-Heffner on the birth of her 1st child, Ryan (born 6-28-89). Not only did Dot and her husband add onto their house, but they hired a nanny to take care of Ryan. Sounds like a good solution for a working Mom. Margaret McFaddin sounds extremely busy with Jr. League, church, and work in the Governor's office. Even though she's on the board of Trinity Housing Corporation and chairing a fund-raiser for GAL, she still plans to make it to Jamaica this winter, and to our reunion in the spring. In New Orleans, Claire Martin Avegno volunteers at her children's school and stays busy with gardening, sewing, and crafts projects. Her family sees Yvonne Collier Gwin often. The highlight of Denise Montgomery's year was a 2 week trip to London where she saw Phantom of the Opera and Les Miserables. Denise is on our class Reunion Gifts Committee and is looking forward to Reunion.

The Washington Times had a nice write-up on Beth Montgomery in Dec. '88. Beth is president of Elizabeth Montgomery & Associates, a consulting firm specializing in fund-raising and marketing. Her clients include George Bush for President and the Republican National Committee. In Dec. '88 Beth was named transition office contact for the Federal Emergency Management Agency, the General Service Administration and the Office of Personnel Management.

Kathy Sue Orr Knuth and Roger recently spent 2 1/2 weeks in France and Switzerland. Kathy says it's the only way she can really get away from work. Since her company (Kraft) recently merged with Philip Morris, she's learned a lot about corporate mergers. Nellie Osinga Branson still works for Delta Airlines in reservations, and enjoys it. Outside activities included a trip to Israel and tap dance lessons to dispel the winter blues. The personnel service that Jeannine Petersen Laskey and her husband started in 1984 is #287 on the 1989 Inc 500 list of fastest growing companies in America! Jeannine is active with the local chapter of the International Association for Personnel Women and is doing their newsletter this year. Son Andrew, 7, and daughter Lauren, 4, "provide much enrichment to our lives." Summer of 89 was a time of travel for Janet Richards Oikawa's family. Living in CA, Shio and Naomi visited relatives in Japan, while Mari, David and Janet visited her parents on the Eastern shore.

Celia Robertson Huggins still works for the SC Dept. of Social Services in Columbia. Since Charlie's death last year, Celia has been doing volunteer work and taking courses at the Univ. of SC. In Hillsborough, NC Sara Ruhle Kyle is busy with 2 children (4, 2) and work on the Arts Council. Ted is the spokesman for a new government group working for responsible local government. They enjoyed an escape to Palm Desert for a few days last Sept. Buffy Shelton Montgomery and family recently moved to San Antonio, TX. Buffy would like to get in touch with the local SBC Club there. Last May Ginny Shipe Cameron spent a week in St. Maarten. They're planning a family trip to Disney World and hope to hook up with Helen Harrison Witty and Heather MacLeod Gale. Ginny's boys are doing well in their new neighborhood and school. Working at Jackson Memorial Hospital in Miami, Polly Shriver Kochan and Jeff took the first part of their specialty boards in radiology in Oct. They have a beautiful old home in Coral Gables. Their sons (6, 3) love FL's warm weather.

Ann South Malick is still riding, showing and hunting, raising rabbits, spinning, and weaving. Last spring Terry Starke Tosh visited Louisa Dixon in France. A French student who is a neighbor of Lou's spent two months with Terry's family last summer. Betsy (3) now speaks English with a French accent, and Carolyn (5) has acquired a French flair for fashion. Ed and Terry are headed for anniversary #13. Libby Stough Rush and Noel enjoyed a 3 week trip to Italy last fall - 1 week of business for their design shop and 2 weeks of pleasure in Rome, Amalfi Coast, and Florence. Libby says the design business is great in Louisville. Caroline is in 1st grade, and William in pre-school. Noel recently took a new position as head of merchant banking for National City Bank in Louisville. Libby's counting on our 15th! WY, CO, MO, and FL were a few of the states Nan Stuart recently traveled to. Eric and the dogs are fine, and she still works with S. Lake Tahoe Humane Society. In Louisville, KY Barbie Tafel Thomas has decided to go from her full-time tennis job to being a full-time "home co-ordinator." Her children (5th, 3rd and 2nd grades) are into all kinds of activities, while Barbie plays tennis on 2 teams, gardens and volunteers.

Gray Thomas Avery is working part-time at St. Mary's in Recovery. She enjoyed a ski trip last winter with Catherine (5 1/2) and a visit last summer with Ann Wesley Ramsey in Manchester, MA. Catherine started kindergarten and Thomas (2 1/2) is in pre-school. Gray started tennis again and even won a match! Maria and Sandra Vonetes are still in D.C. and doing great. Sandra's flower business is booming - she gets lots of business from fellow SBCers. The highlight of Maria's fall was going to Sweet Briar for the fall council meetings. From Birmingham, AL Beppy Walton wrote to say that she still enjoys her job of 13 years with Delta Airlines and that traveling for business and pleasure keeps her "on the go". Laura-Hope Walton Lawrence is in her 11th year with Merrill Lynch, now as a Sn. Registered Admin. Asst. She and Robert expect their 2nd child in Jan. 1990. Their daughter, Hope, will be 8 in Feb.

The most exciting news from Carroll Waters Summerour was a 3 week trip to Europe with Toby.

Carroll's children are all in school - Patrick (7th grade); William (4th grade); and Kalin (pre-K). Last spring Patrick's soccer team, coached by Toby, won the LA state soccer tournament. Worden Willis recently joined Dean Witter and moved to Coral Springs, FL. Her sheep dog "EARN-IE" (Ernie) sends greetings to all pets of fellow alumnae. It's hard for Wendy Wise Routh to believe she has 2 children under 2, a station wagon, and a yellow lab. She's still decorating and having lots of fun doing it. She talked with Jane Perry Bardon after the birth of her son, Betsy Burdge Murphy after she got her daughter, and to Christina Hoefler after the passing of her father. Emily Mai Nguyen Woo is building her company, Stock Market Research, Inc. into a "First National Commercial Lending Services" business based in Annandale, VA. She's enjoying running her own business. She and Gene also find it hard to believe all 3 of their children are in school.

Bill and I are settling into our 60 year old house in Norfolk, and love being close to Ellen Harrison Saunders, Carol Brewer Evans, and Betsy Brooks Jones. Bill likes his new position at Signet Bank as head of the Eastern Region's Audit Dept. Teaching Latin at Norfolk Collegiate is fun. I've surprised myself at how much I've enjoyed 7th, 8th, and 9th graders. Thanks again for all your news. See you in June.

A new decade. Let's start by turning over a new leaf and have everyone send me news!! However, that hasn't happened yet so I'll give you what I've got! The theme of this column is NEW: new beginnings, new jobs, new babies, new news!

Sherri Manson is at Drexel

University in Philadelphia beginning her MBA in International Marketing.

Laurie Bowen Carmichael writes from AL that she delivered a 2nd baby and broke ground on a new house all in the same week last Feb. Kim Louis Stewart sends news from London where she and her husband and new baby are living and working. Kim's husband is in the cable T.V. business and Kim is putting together a mail order catalogue of English products. Cindi Little Townsend is working at home as a C.P.A. as well as caring for Brittney, 4 1/2, and Hunt, 2. The new? She has a new office in her home for work and kids.

Jacquie Kenner Carmody is the mother of 4 boys in LA. The newest addition born 6/89. There are 2 new beginnings for Nancy White Bryant and her husband. He started a telecommunications company and Nancy is marketing a new line of men's clothing in NY. Corby Hancock increased responsibilities as Biology department chair at the Boys' Latin School in Baltimore. Page Breakell Beeler and her husband built a new house in Martinsville, VA. She says,

"the twins made us do it!" Tricia Patterson Graham resigned her position as clinic administrator at the Mobile County Health Dept. She is now enjoying being a "lady of leisure". One of our many doctors writes from Baltimore that she's still laughing from reunion. Mary Harris joined the faculty at Johns Hopkins in the division of gastroenterology. That laughing does not make for a steady hand, Mary. Big news from Mary South Gaab. Giving her equal pleasure: she's expecting her 3rd child and she's moved to OH from IA! While waiting for the baby, Mary is being a Cub Scout den leader! Holly Butler Prather is in Atlanta taking care of her 14 month old daughter and loving her new full-time mother career! Clara Jackman Garbett has a new job teaching 2nd grade near Richmond and is looking forward to the birth of her 2nd child in the spring. Phyllis Shelton Higginbotham has returned to practicing law part-time and sends news that her law school roommate and friend from Oxford Univ. is now a government professor at SBC.

Grand Junction, CO, brings news of Patty Schrader who is thrilled with her new baby boy. Blending the new with the old: Becky Trulove Symons, Don and Sally have moved to Winston-Salem where they bought the house Becky grew up in! She writes: "Needless to say, I feel right at home!" Hannah Craighill Moorehead who was "with child" at reunion gave birth to a boy, in Oct. in Baltimore. Carol Robinson is living in Winston-Salem having completed her thesis for her M.Ed. in counseling in Dec. Between her thesis and work she finds time to go dancing and sing. Wendy Worthen says "no husband, no kids, no dogs" in the near future but that everything is great in Atlanta. Pamela Weiler just purchased a new house in NJ and in what free time she has left she is painting and decorating.

Michelle Farley Canning had baby #3 in Dec. with 2 now at home and her oldest son in nursery school. Sally Byron LaBarre has a new position as manager of the new Information Center at Monumental Life in Baltimore. She comes home to a full house: a 2 year old daughter, a puppy and a cat. Katherine "Chic" Grones went on a boat trip through the Caledonian Canal in Scotland with the Dutch family she lived with when she studied in Amsterdam in Jr. Year. She also went to Nantucket with Nancy Hatch.

Laura Tucker Camp lives in Washington, D.C. with her husband and 2 daughters. Laura sends news of Lauren McMannis Huyett who she sees at "Baby Group". Lauren had her 4th child in Jan. and began a new house addition in March. Judy Williams Carpenter gave birth to her parents' 13th grandchild at the beginning of May. She arrived at SBC at the tail end of our reunion with her baby daughter. Judy writes "she seemed to enjoy her first visit to SBC - hope it won't be her last!" Melinda Treutle has moved back to NYC and sees a lot of Caroline Curme Angelica (who's had a baby - no more) and Laura Evans. Melinda says that Tucker McGowin is getting married sometime in 1990. Susan Lord started a new job in Washington, D.C. with SENTEL. She is also engaged with no date set!

Prudence Saunders Pitcock is thoroughly enjoying being a stay-at-home mother with her 1 year old although she says it is definitely more demanding and tiring than any paid job she's held! Betsy Byrne Utterback sends news from Chester Springs, PA where she now has extra time for her decorating business since all 3 kids are in school. Louise Mueller Cook is in south Texas "playing with her horses, helping her little old lady friends and trying to keep up with her 78-year-old father." Piper Allan is still busy with her real estate law practice and as she says: "still, still single!!"

Katie Ewald Adams and husband Dave are in Dorset, VT where, when not taking care of their new baby boy, they are in real estate sales. Vicki Wingate took time out from her golf and aerobics to help after the devastating Hurricane Hugo. Connor Kelly is moving to Colorado Springs, CO, to be with the man of her dreams. They are both dance therapists and will be teaching together throughout the U.S. and Europe. Leslie "Pete" Forbert Miller saw Beth Bogdon Tetault in Richmond and has worked with Amy Smith who is with the ABC affiliate in Lynchburg. She saw a picture of Lisanne Eustis in the Lynchburg paper - Lisanne, what are you doing? Pete's company Video Design continues to expand.

Bridget Wray Gardner is in Savannah with 6 extra hours a week now that the twins are in school! Nancy Hatch traveled to Kenya and had the experience of a lifetime and also traveled to Cape Kennedy to see a night launch of the space shuttle. Sarah Pope Titchner is back in Dunn, NC with husband and 3 children after being in Paris for the 100th Anniversary of the Eiffel Tower and in Germany as the wall came down. Janet Baldwin McCulloch missed reunion due to the birth of her daughter and is still handling some legal work although she says it's hard to sound businesslike with a crying baby in the background. Saralee Cowles Boteler was married in Oct. and lives in Alexandria. Saralee is the new Director of the Executive Secretariat at the U.S. Peace Corps.

Susan Owen Burlison, while not working as a Pro Ski Patroller for Sugar Mountain, has started a new business growing medicinal herbs for a local herb company on her 42 acre farm. Debbie Kocik Barker moved from Chicago to Alexandria, VA, where her husband is with the government. By the time you read this Janie Clark Morrison will have had her 3rd child! She and her family are in San Antonio. Pam Ramsdell Mitchell moved back to Tallahassee where her husband is practicing environmental law and she gave birth to her 3rd child in March. Patti Snowden Cloetingh gave birth to a girl last July and she and her family are moving back to PA.

Well, did you guys miss a fun 10th reunion!! For those who came, it was a lot of fun and for those who didn't - think how fun the 15th will be! I'm still in Palm Beach working at the North Gallery and taking care of a husband, 2 wild boys and a puppy! Please write and send me all your news.

Once again the Class of '83 has broken all records as far as responding to requests for information for Class notes! It was great hearing from everyone—especially those who keep in touch even though they did not graduate from Sweet Briar. Sandy Ahern Simmons moved with her husband Michael from Atlanta to Tifton, GA where he is working for the Boy Scouts of America. Sandy is adjusting to 'small town' living and decorating their house in the historic district of Tifton. Miriam Baker Morris gave birth to a boy, Claiborne, in Feb. She is still living in Birmingham. She and many other SBCers had a mini reunion at Ellen Clare Gillespie's wedding in Sept.! What a crowd!

Suzanne Balog Ingram and her husband Steve claim they are still 'DINKS' (Dual Income, No Kids) and had a wonderful time on their trip to N. Africa where of course, they stopped in at Rick's Bar in Casablanca! Carol Barlow is in Baker, FL, teaching English. Kathy Barrett is managing a clothing store in Richmond, VA called Irresistibles. She's also doing a little modeling in Richmond and hopes to come to visit NYC soon. Julia Bass Randall is in Hingham, MA with her husband Jim; they commute to Boston by boat to work every day. She was the matron of honor in Betsy Birkhead's wedding in Hilton Head this summer. Lizanne Schumacher Quinn and Amy Seddon Leger were also attendants. Mason Bennett Rummel had her 2nd child, Anne Mason, in May. She said Bennet (2 yrs.) thinks she's o.k. - he'll let them keep her! Rick is working at Johnson & Johnson and Mason is working for a grants coordinator for a large charitable organization. They love Louisville and have just bought a house. Betsy Birkhead Glick was married in June. She is still at Russell E. Brown and her husband Jim works for Sea Pines Resorts. She is happy to report that hurricane Hugo did not leave its mark on Hilton Head! Amy Boyce Osaki has gone west! She is now in Portland, OR with her husband John. Amy is Curator of Education at the Portland Art Museum. John works for the U.S. Forest Service. Lucy Chapman Millar was in New York and didn't come and see me!! Actually, she has a little bit more exciting news than that...she is pregnant and due in May! She and Ken are moving to Dallas in Dec. Wendy Chapin Albert is selling tons of real estate in central MD. She and husband Tolly have been married 4 years (!) and love living in Baltimore. They just bought a house in the country and are busy fixing and decorating. She sees Meg Price Bruns often. Meg is pregnant with her 2nd child. Blair Clark Smith says 'Aloha' from Hawaii! Her 2 daughters, Allison and Kathryn, are growing every minute. The Smiths live on Oahu at the Tripler Army Community - they have a wonderful view of Pearl Harbor from their front yard. Rebecca Coggin Hubert had a baby boy last Nov. He keeps her busy but she loves being a mother! Alice Cutting Laimbeer has been very busy. She and husband Rick bought a house, moved and had a boy - all in one week! They live in an old farmhouse and are breeding horses and working on their house. Diane Dawley is now living in Rockland, MD. She just received her Masters of Science in Computer Systems Management from the Univ. of Maryland. She a marketing representative for IBM, selling to the US Treasury and the US Postal Service. Diana Duffy Waterman had a little girl, Catherine Ren, in June. She and her husband took a trip to Norway and loved it. They are building a house (due to their expanding family!) in Queenstown, MD. Bet Dykes Pope had a wonderful time at Mary Pope Hutson's wedding in Charleston. She is still decorating in Atlanta and enjoys being a mom to Carter Jr. Sarah Edmunds Butters was married in August to Andy Butters (W&L '83!). We like to see those SBC/W&L marriages! Lots of SBCers were at the wedding. Sarah and Andy are living in Waynesboro, VA. Sarah, as always, is keeping her cheerful disposition, although she cannot work due to her Chronic Fatigue Syndrome. Margaret Enochs Jarvis was married in June. Her husband Dave is getting a Ph.D. at U.Va. Margaret graduated from medical school at MCV and has started her residency in psychiatry there. Stephanie Frantz Synder expects her 1st child in Feb. She and her husband Ken are living in Elizabethtown, PA and see Sylvia Hossain '82 often. Tracy Gatewood, in Birmingham, AL has started a residential cleaning service. She sees a lot of SBCers in Birmingham, particularly Effie Holladay, Ellen Howard, and Cece Williams Hartley.

Tracy went to Janet Lewis' wedding and stayed with Wynn Henderson, Bobbie Serrano Black, and Joan McGettigan. Libby Glenn has been transferred to Memphis, TN. She is still with Proctor & Gamble but is now a sr. cost analyst. She loves being in a city again and has been enjoying 'getting back into shape'! Libby sees Michelle McSwain Williams often. Carol Hadley Molner had a baby girl, Erika Anne, in Aug. All is well. Carolyn Hall is going to be working in Houston, TX doing gynaecology. In March she will be marrying Joseph Ringhoffer (in her words 'after 8 1/2 Years!'). Gigi Harsh recently started a new job as assistant buyer of men's furnishings at Georgetown University Shop. She is also enjoying her position on the Executive Council of the SBC Washington Alumnae Club spreading the word about Sweet Briar to high school college counselors. Donna Hendrick Adenholz was promoted to loan review officer at Central Fidelity Bank in Feb. She is enjoying motherhood, her son will be 2 in Feb. '90. Wylie Jameson is getting married in June! She is marrying Stuart Small in Rochester. Lucy Chapman Millar, Melissa Byrne and Alice Cutting Laimbeer will be in the wedding. She is still enjoying teaching English to 11th and 12th graders at Pittsford Sutherland. Susan Jefferson Porritt CALLED me with her news!! She is back in the USA and living in Oklahoma City. She, Darryl and their daughter Laura are happy to be stateside but miss the friends they made in England. It was GREAT talking to her-she was wondering what ever happened to Ruth Lewin and Cate McNider-me too! Laura Jennings spends her mornings strolling her son Will (born in May) all over San Diego and her night getting a master's degree in labor and employment law. Margie Johnson Springer has moved to Columbus, GA and also had a baby named Scottie (Margery Scott Springer). She says a lot of Jewett Winn Rothschild and Bet Dykes Pope. Bet is decorating Margie and Rocky's house and "by the way has great taste and is doing a great job!" Sharon Johnson has moved from Lynchburg to northern VA. She's also made a career change, working in Personal Lines Insurance for an independent agency. Outside of work, Sharon is very active in her church teaching a primary Sunday School class and directing the Children's Choir. She also is the Assistant Adult Choir Director. Well, Ruth Lewin is back in touch after all these years! She is busy at Lord & Taylor in the Children's and Home Fashions Departments in West Palm Beach, FL. She enjoys spending weekends in Naples - GREAT to hear from you - call Susan! Jeanne Lewis misses everyone and hopes they are doing well. Jeanne says maybe we'll see her at the next wedding/christening...? Speaking of weddings, Amy Lisner Kaiser did not write last year because she was busy preparing for hers! She met her husband Nicholas while at SBC - he was at W&L Law School. They recently moved to Short Hills, NJ. Amy is keeping busy with their home and their 2 cocker spaniels! Anne Little Woolley is living in Charlotte, NC. She and her husband Doug survived the hurricane but had no power for almost 1 week! Anne saw Elizabeth Taylor in Washington on a recent business trip. She also sees Lea Sparks Bennett and Kaki Connors Casada '86 often. Lee Anne MacKenzie Chaskes is happy and well! She and her husband Robert are enjoying their son William. They are living in Centerville - a suburb of Washington, DC. Leslie Malone Berger is going west! She and her husband Kevin are moving to Sacramento, CA from Wilmington, DE. Leslie is looking forward to a CA lifestyle, but is sad to leave her new job in Wilmington at the Law Library at Widener University. Joan McGettigan is now living in suburbia! She has moved to Wilton, CT and even bought a car. She enjoyed seeing everyone at Janet Lewis' wedding in July. Joan tells me that Wynn Henderson is getting married in Jan. to John Henderson and Katie Grovsenor is singing in CO (Aspen). Ellen McKneally is still in Raleigh and loving it. She is still with MSA as a Director of Implementations. She is traveling a lot and working hard. Michelle McSwain Williams graduated from law school in May and spent a month with David in FL while she prepared for the Tennessee Bar Exam - yes, she PASSED! Michelle is now a staff attorney for a local corporation. She enjoys seeing Libby Glenn who just moved to Memphis. Bridget O'Reilly Holmes just finished her MBA at Columbia. She is still working as a research analyst at Paine Webber and is looking forward to having more free time to catch up with friends and enjoy NYC. Polly Parker is with Allstate Insurance Company in their management training program. She hopes all is well with everyone. Karen Pyne McCalla had a baby girl, Chelsea Nicole, in April. She is enjoying being a mother and saw Michelle McSwain Williams at their 10th year high school reunion! Elena Quevedo is working on her Ph.D. in Art History at the Institute of Fine Arts (NYU). She spent all last year in Madrid, Spain doing research. She enjoyed the Spaniards AND being away from New York. She sees Robin Lawford often. Blair Redd is still Senior Vice President - Head of Trading for a firm in New York. She went to Kelly Manderson Fitzpatrick's ('85) wedding in Tuscaloosa where she saw Whitney Ball ('84). Martha Riggs Lowry is back in school once again. She is working for a second bachelors degree, this time in Interior Design. Her husband Ron is a former chef but now works for Planters Lifesavers Inc. as the financial coordinator. Katherine Robison Davey is getting used to living in Rochester, NY - winters will be tough! She and Drew have been enjoying traveling around New York state and even made several trips to Canada this summer. They are expecting their 2nd child in April. Terry Ruth Holz and her husband are living in Union, NJ. Terry gave birth to their new son, William Richard, in July. Sarah Sutton Brophy and her husband Michael expect their 1st child in March. She is Assistant Director of the Concord Museum in Concord, MA. Michael is a silversmith and his business is going very well. Mary Watt Brown was married to John Messer in Sept. Hurricane Hugo put a damper on their honeymoon plans to St. Martin so they went to San Francisco - before the quake! Pam Weekes is still working at Adrienne Vitadini as an Account Executive. She had a wonderful summer trying a new sport - triathalons! Jewett Winn Rothchild and husband Alan expect a baby in Feb. She enjoys seeing Margie Johnson Springer. Elise Write Wood is living in Coral Gables, FL with her husband Richard. She is working full time as an Interior Decorator and has just become a Doncaster Consultant and sells clothes out of her home. She saw Tracy Tretiak while in Palm Beach on business. Leslie Wright Root is still an executive recruiter and LOVES being a mom! She and her husband Randy are still in Dallas and enjoyed seeing Barb Paulson Goodbarn this summer. I am going on my 6th year in New York City (wow!) and I love my job as a sales representative for Lotus Development! Work keeps me very busy but I still find time to enjoy the city AND get out of the city every once in a while for some fun vacations! It was REALLY GREAT hearing from everyone - please keep in touch! Until next year...

The Class of '87 has had a very busy year with job changes, marriages, births, and moves. Over the winter Tory Willson, Julie Geddes, Carole Thrash, Victoria Chumney, Rebecca Michie and I gave Heather Davenport an engagement party in Washington, DC. Many other SBC graduates were able to attend and it was great fun to see everyone. Heather moved to Little Rock, AR last winter and started graduate school pursuing her MBA. She is planning a June wedding, with bridesmaids including Julie, Carole, Victoria, Rebecca, and Tory. After leaving her job at the White House, Julie joined The American Society of Travel Agents as Manager of Government & International Affairs. She still lives in Old Town with Whitney Ball '84. Tory is still with the Bush administration, living outside Old Town and planning to move into the City soon. After leaving Alexandria, Wimberly Eaton spent last summer in Europe. She then started graduate work in AZ at the "American Graduate School of International Management" and is finding the school incredible.

Still working for Congressman Bob Dorman, Maggie Fogarty is the office manager and scheduler. Maggie hasn't changed a bit. She is busy volunteering: working with the "Boarder Babies" at DC General Hospital, at the Sisters of Charity "Gift of Peace" hospice for AIDS victims and at the Northwest Crisis Pregnancy Center in D.C.!! Drew Hardy is still the Director of Administration at the Atlantic Council of the United States, a foreign policy "think tank" in DC. She lives with Pam Miscall in the Gaithersburg, MD area. Pam received her masters degree in Psychology in July, and is a research associate with the American Institutes for Research in DC. She spoke with Lee Carroll who is with Strategic Management Group in Philadelphia. Jessica Steinhice is a Systems Assistant at Arena Stage in Washington, DC and having a wonderful time. Madeleine Blanchard '89 is also at the Arena, so they get to "catch up" a lot. Jean "Sam" Lewis Guergai still works in DC for World Child, Inc. an international adoption agency and loves it.

Many SBC graduates have settled in Richmond. Lynn Weinberg is an assistant manager at a large apartment complex. She sees Jenny Crossland '86 who is attending T.C. Williams Law School. She also saw Nancy Ray '86 when she came to Richmond for a training program. Courtney Banton Alford was married Sept. 9th to Johnny Alford in Birmingham, AL. In the wedding were Stephanie Banton '91, Christina Knowles, Teresa Pike Majors, Rebecca Michie, Ginger Pascoe, and Trish Winkler '88.

Courtney and her husband now live in Richmond. They both see Rebecca Michie often. Rebecca is working for Davenport and Associates. She often sees Junie Speight who just graduated from VCU with her Masters in English Literature and is working part time and volunteering. Rebecca lives with Liz Wilson. Liz is planning her July wedding to Thomas Parrish (HSC '87). Her bridesmaids will be Mary Blair Fairnholt '86, Blair Beebe Smith, Amy Watkins, Erin Sapp Beldy, and myself. Amy is continuing graduate school at NCSU in graphic design in Raleigh, NC. Erin is in Jacksonville, FL where Dan is stationed in the Navy. Blair and Harvard are in Virginia Beach, where Blair is continuing with Sovran Bank.

Having started her business, Garden Scapes, this past spring Caroline Taraschi keeps extremely busy in Trenton, NJ. She hoped to see Christina Knowles this past fall. Also starting a company, Deborah Brennan spent 2 months traveling in Europe with Kristin Foley and Molly Ziebold. Molly is back close to SBC, attending W'n L Law School. She enjoys being in Lexington again, as a student this time. Linda Rowland Blout and her husband are still in San Antonio where he will finish law school in May. Most of their energy goes towards their 15 month old son, Rowe. She gets together with Victoria Chumney, Alicia Parker and Shannon Wood when she's not busy with Rowe or working at a gift shop. Shannon is working on a ranch; something she has always wanted to do! She is putting on a show at a local art museum with her photos from Africa.

Also in Texas is Liz Stoenbner who graduated from U. of TX in August with a MA in Latin American Studies. She is planning to attend law school starting the fall of '90, specializing in Art Law. She has been working at the Texas Fine Arts Association as the Art on Tour Coordinator - scheduling & marketing the touring art exhibitions around Texas. And if that's not enough to keep Liz busy, she is interning with Domain, a lifestyle magazine, and working for Weight Watchers. At the U. of Texas Tech School of Law is Leslie Angelyn Schmid who will graduate in Dec. of '90 specializing in international law. Lynette Marquart is working in Dallas as an Account Planner (consumer researcher) for The Richards Group (advertising agency) and doing a few radio commercials on the side. She saw Jessica Lyon, who lives in Houston, and she is doing great. Lezlie Varisco moved to Houston. She is now working for the law firm, Fulbright & Jawoiski in the data control department.

After leaving Lexington, KY where she worked at the Jockey Club, Mina von Voss started a master's degree in Germanic Languages at the U. of Texas. She continues to work with horses part time as Assistant Stable Manager. Mina saw SBC friends including Beth Nelson, Dena Driver and Hilary von Maur in NYC. She has also seen quite a bit of Emery Jones Dixon '86 who was married last May and lives close to Lexington, KY. Anxiously awaiting the birth of their 1st child are Gloria Cole Bauer and Andy. She is still working at Edward D. Jones & Co., planning to open Andy's business this spring. Beth Parker continues as an assistant director of Admissions at Southern Seminary College. She enjoys traveling throughout VA and the northeast. Barbara Jastrebsky, is museum registrar at the Maier Museum of Art at Randolph-Macon Woman's College. Mary Sue Cate Mayes has been finishing up at VA Tech with an MS in Plant Pathology and speaking at some professional meetings.

Paige Taylor moved to Burlington, VT getting her MBA at the Univ. of VT as well as working with Emery Worldwide, a CF Company in sales. Paige misses VA & DC but comes home frequently to plan her July '90 wedding to James Forrest Smith. She sees Ginger Pascoe, Leslie Cantrell and Christina Savage '88 and she hopes to make it south to see Evan Wright and her husband Peter in Boca Raton soon. Leslie Cantrell is very excited about the purchase of her house this past fall outside Alexandria. Working in Product Development for L.L. Bean in Freeport, ME Barbara Smith loves the outdoors and would love to hear from SBC friends.

News from the other coast... Anne Hales finished her degree from UC Davis in Biological Sciences. She is engaged to be married to John Mark Capo in Jan. '90. They plan a trip to Tahiti. She is anxious to get back in touch with her SBC friends. Peg Bullers has been researching The Kinsey Report for a year now as well as working toward an M.A. in literature at Indiana Univ. In Dec. she moved to Seattle, WA. Sarah Brix is at Whitman Advertising & Public Relations as a Marketing Services Coordinator. She is also a member of the Ad2, an affiliate of the American Advertising Association, and loves living in Portland, OR.

The San Francisco earthquake shook many SBC graduates. Hoping to travel to Europe and Russia in May to see the Grateful Dead play, Vicky MacMillan writes that she also survived the earthquake. She is still taking classes at SJSU and substitute teaching. Susan Scales still works for Gallagher Heffernan Insurance Booker, and sees Ann Souder '86, Margaret Colangelo, and Stephanie Wilt '88 often. She occasionally runs into Valerie Cardinal. Susan and Stephanie made it out to DC this past Dec. for Amanda Hines's wedding to Paul Kestner. Many other SBCers were there. I had the pleasure of being a bridesmaid!

Sydney Marthinson is working for First Union Bank in Raleigh as a Regional Trainer. Mary Yorke Robison Oates and her husband, David, have moved to Auburn, where Mary Yorke is getting her masters in English and teaching freshman English at Auburn Univ. She bumped into Kelly Dean this past fall. Kelly was home from Atlanta where she works for Hyatt Hotel. Teresa Pike Majors and her husband, Jim, just bought a house in Decatur, GA where Jim is in surgical residency with Emory University. Teresa is in her 2nd year of Emory Law School, and working for the firm Gray, Gilland & Gold.

Malinda Bradley and Fred Bergen were married 10/21 in Savannah, GA. Ansley Merritt, Caroline Trask, Suzanne Wells, Elizabeth Sheehan '86 and Helen Bradley '89 were bridesmaids. They spent a wonderful 2 weeks in Florence, Venice and Paris before returning to Savannah where Fred practices law and Malinda works at Bradley Plywood. Many other SBC grads also attended the wedding. Carol Goodman has returned to Atlanta & is living with Ansley Merritt. Busy planning her wedding in May, Ansley is a paralegal in a small medical malpractice defense firm in Atlanta. Carol Goodman, Caroline Trask, Malinda Bradley Bergen, Suzanne Wells are planning to be in her wedding. Anne Mobley Murray is happy in Athens, GA and had a wonderful time at Malinda's wedding in Oct. She ran into Dana Driver in NYC not long ago. Suzanne is working in Charlottesville, and is engaged to be married. Heidi Schultz Taylor was married to Ray Taylor (HSC '87)

8/18/89. Kathy Fons Barkley was her maid of honor. Heidi now lives in Charlottesville and is a Research Specialist for the cardiology dept. at the University.

In Washington, DC, Caroline Trask is working at Washington, Inc., a special events firm. They worked on the American Film Institute's 25th anniversary, where Caroline saw quite a few stars! She stays in close touch with Cameron Clark Sipe. Cameron is teaching at St. Agnes in Alexandria, VA and living with her husband, Charles, in Arlington. Also teaching in Alexandria is Liz McKnight, who is a kindergarten teacher. Sue Marshall '86 and Tania Voss Ryan '81 teach at St Stephens so they get to catch up often. Liz is planning her June wedding to Mark Senell (UVA '87).

Up in the "Big Apple"... Tami Trebus is with Incentive Marketing Company, planning incentive trips, meetings and conventions. She still sees Dana Ostrowsky all the time and writes that Dana will now be in the GLEEM toothpaste commercials. Tami also gets together with Moirra Carroll who is a writer/editor for a local paper. Mary Via is enjoying NY, working for Marsh and McLennan Worldwide as a Professional Liability Insurance Broker. She stays in close contact with Betsy Nott '86, Mary Johnson '86, Julie Trant, and Blair Beebe Smith. Commuting to work by ferry, Leslie McRae lives in Staten Island. She is a pharmacy aide while waiting for an appointment to the New York Police Academy. She is also volunteering at a drug rehab center and finds the work very rewarding.

Hoping to move to the City, Ann McAllister is working on her Master of Fine Arts Degree in Imaging Arts (photography, Film/Animation and Video) in Rochester, NY. She hopes to graduate in May '90 and join an art firm while freelancing as a photographer. Shana Spanier is working for an Electronic Component Manufacturer as an outside sales engineer. She covers Long Island, Northern New Jersey and CT. She also writes of her engagement to Neil Maruca whom she met through the Electronic Industry! The wedding is planned for 10/90, and Ava Spanier '86 is her maid of honor.

Michelle Brakebill was married 6/10 to Bruce D. Duggins. Francesca DiRico was her maid of honor. After touring England, Germany, France & Switzerland they are residing in Brentwood, TN. Michelle is pursuing a master's degree in business at the Univ. of TN, and Bruce is a trust officer for the Third National Bank. While in Paris, Michelle saw Molly McNamara who is studying art there for 6 months. Jonna Lee Byrd and her husband Damon live in Nashville where he owns a commercial painting company. Their little girl, Meredith Marie, is 6 months old. Jonna presides over 2 non-profit fund raisers and serves on the board of the Arthritis Foundation. Having relocated in Indianapolis, IN, from Nashville, Sharon Staley is a sales rep. for Silhouette Optical and enjoys it very much.

Dawn Martine Guth Furniss was married 7/89 to Paul Furniss. Erin Kelley, Whitney Pardee Campbell and Jocelyn Flores were all bridesmaids. Dawn is a correspondent for Reader's Digest in Pleasantville, NY, where she translates and writes letters in Spanish. She and Paul live in Brookfield, CT. Erin Kelley is a Spanish teacher & assistant field hockey coach at Cushing Academy in Ashburnham, MA. Erin spent this past summer teaching at the Native American Preparatory School in Las Cruces, NM. Kathy Bryan Sanders is still a financial/counselor for the Army Community Services in West Germany. She and her husband are scheduled to return to the States in May '90 and will then be stationed in GA. They have enjoyed Europe but are anxious to return. Karen Anne Conway became Mrs. Peter Holloway 10/1/89. Angelyn Schmid was her maid of honor. Kris Kaley was also able to attend; she lives in CT. Karen and her husband still live in England, where she is Senior Graphic Designer for a firm in Southampton.

Married last year, Hilary Harris Womack and her husband Lewis live in Durham, NC. Classmates that participated in the wedding were Teeki Taylor, Julie Dorsett, Kitty Jaschen and Melanie Nelson. Hilary is a computer operator for Durham County. Looking forward to a change in the near future, Julie Dorsett is still in Chambersburg, PA. Finishing her 3rd year of Veterinary School in Missouri, Anne-Marie Farrell is planning a 2 month block in Trenudal Tobago, in April and March. She then plans to work at the St. Louis Zoo. Anne-Marie visited SBC 10/89. As a travel consultant for Executive Travel Service Molle Burkingham is enjoying Denver, CO. Nanci-Leigh Meyer Mitchell and her husband, Lt. William John Mitchell (VMI) are living in Hawaii where Nanci is a teaching assistant at the Univ. of Hawaii and finishing a graduate degree in economics.

Becky Mills stopped by the SBC Alumnae Office 2/8/90. She is at Radford Univ., working on her masters degree in Industrial Organization Psychology. She hopes to visit East Germany as a member of a research group in May '90. The group would try to find out what American executives going to East Germany would need to know. Page Franson is still working for Meditech, playing soccer and softball, and refereeing youth soccer on weekends. She went to the Bahamas 2/89 and saw Jennifer Cooper '86 at the 6/89 wedding of Elizabeth Lindsey Locke '86.

I also have had a very busy year. I traveled to England and Tunisia this past spring, and purchased a condo in Old Town Alexandria. I am still a Senior Account Representative for ComputerLand Mid-Atlantic in Alexandria. Thanks to you all for writing. It was great fun to hear all your news. Have a great year!!

Creative Giving:

"I'm exceedingly lucky because I really love what I do.

"Every day I get to work with thoughtful and generous people—people who are deeply committed to securing the future for their children and grandchildren, their colleges, and other charitable institutions. It's a privilege to be a part of that process.

"It also gives me a lot of satisfaction as a lawyer to take one area like the planning of charitable contributions, and learn as much as I possibly can about it. You learn very little about charitable giving in law school and you may learn even less in a major law firm. I got into the field when my alma mater, Rhodes College in Memphis, invited me to become a member of their development team. The work was so new and challenging that I remained there for ten years.

"In planned giving the bottom line is: The donor's interests come first. I'm here because Sweet Briar wants your gift to benefit you and your family at the same time you're helping the College.

"For example, certain types of assets provide greater tax benefits to the donor than gifts of equivalent value in cash. If you have the good fortune to own stock or land that has increased considerably in value over the years, you can make a gift of this appreciated property. You'll receive a charitable deduction for the current value of your stock or land, save regular income tax, and also save capital gains tax. In other words, you save taxes twice.

Gifts of highly appreciated stocks or real estate can also generate a life income for the donor. In many cases, people who are receiving a current low income yield from such property can actually increase their spendable income by making a gift to the College this way.

"Of course, there are more than two options. There are an incredible number of avenues open to people who would like to make a significant contribution to Sweet Briar while fulfilling other important obligations.

"It's a very creative and rewarding experience. We normally begin the process by asking, 'What do you want to do? What are your hopes for your family and for Sweet Briar?' Then, we start looking for the perfect fit—the gift opportunity that's most appropriate for you."

If you would like information about gifts of appreciated property, life income gifts and other taxwise giving opportunities, please write or call William H. Meadows III, Vice President for College Relations, Box G, Sweet Briar College, Sweet Briar, Virginia 24595, (804) 381-6161.

Winton C. Smith, Jr., J.D. is Sweet Briar's planned giving consultant. As an attorney specializing in estate tax strategies and charitable tax planning, he represents a national constituency. As a lecturer, he regularly shares his expertise in seminars conducted by the Council for the Advancement and Support of Education (CASE). Clients and students alike appreciate Smith's ability to present complex planning issues in a down-to-earth manner.

SWISS STUDENT PROGRAM

June 30-July 30

A group of high school students from Switzerland will be learning English at Sweet Briar this summer from June 30-July 21 and will spend July 21-30 with host families in Virginia. As well as attending English classes taught by Sweet Briar faculty member Nancy Goulde, the visiting students will take part in a full range of social, cultural and outdoor activities organized by Summer Programs staff members Archie Waldron and Nancy Herr, assisted by Sweet Briar student Debra Elkins '93. (Open only to Swiss students) completed at least 3 years of French. The program offers a 3-week program of formal French instruction Monday-Friday from 9:00 a.m. -12:00 p.m., concentrating on conversational French, phonetics and French civilization. From 1:30 p.m.-3:30 p.m., students view selected French films in support of the curriculum. American and Swiss students (see above) will be housed in the same dormitories and will share meals, activities and weekly excursions, interacting informally while learning about another culture. The French program will be directed by SBC's Dr. Margaret Scouten. APPLICATION DEADLINE: MAY 1, 1990

Eija Celli Talks About Ewald, Dance

At the close of the Ewald Scholars Symposium April 7, 1990, the biggest round of applause—a standing ovation—was directed at dance professor Eija Celli, the guiding force behind the three-day event that brought scores of professionals and amateurs in the dance world to Sweet Briar to watch and learn.

It must have been a gratifying tribute to Professor Celli, who worked for two years planning the program she titled "Dance—Image—Meaning: 20th Century Dance as a Reflection of Its Time."

"I wanted to introduce the whole community to the art of dance, that which is outside the commercialism and the vulgarity you see in the media and the dance as it is in the culture," Professor Celli said.

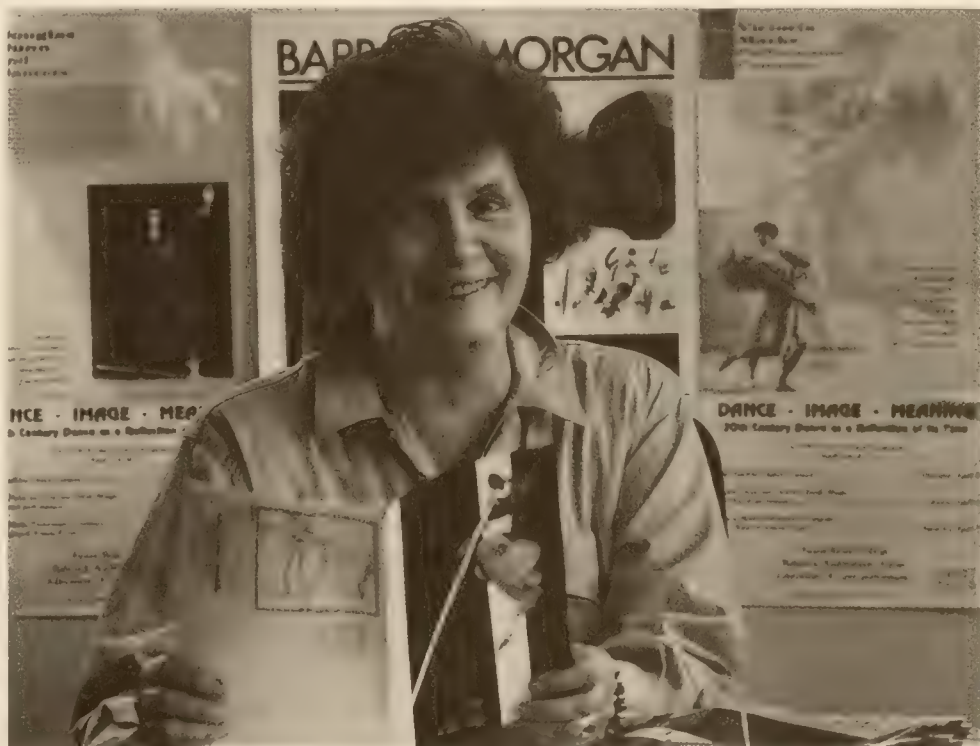

"Dance is a really peculiar art form because it is often interpreted by non-dancers through language. And it's hard to explain it in language because it's such an innate form of expression for people. It involves the totality of the body and the mind, and we do nothing in the society to encourage the interaction. There is this sad kind of phenomena in this culture that says exercise is a sort of punishment.

"Children do not grow up with movement education in this country. They don't have that aesthetic awareness. It's detrimental for the dance because you don't grow up with a sense of what movement is. People fall for the commercialism. Dance is something that's done for the theater, something done for entertainment, whereas in real terms it really is for the dancers. For me, it's something so important that I can't do anything else. My life functions through the center that, for me, is the dance. I still marvel at the amazing complexity that the mind is. You have an idea, and if it's true to you and you work with it, something happens that you did not plan. It's a tremendous satisfaction. The kind of awareness dance gives you keeps your body together.

"All these things are part of dance. I want the Ewald Symposium to communicate, especially to the students, that dance is part of life, art is part of life, and we should not necessarily just go and see something that the critics have said is fantastic, and which we've seen before and are comfortable with. Dance is more than that; it also functions as part of humanity. Dancers don't live well; they function in their art with great sacrifice. But that's immaterial; it gives you so much that you put up with a lot of hassle."

Eija Celli

Professor Celli came to the United States from Finland to study dance on a government grant, at the University of Illinois, which had one of the first graduate programs. "I worked with all of these legends—one of which is going to come here for Ewald, Erick Hawkins—and Martha Graham and Merce Cunningham," Professor Celli recalled. "I had worked with one teacher all of my life and I went through sheer hell to get rid of her influence."

After she and her husband came to Virginia in 1964, Professor Celli taught at Randolph-Macon Woman's College for four years, but didn't agree with the emphasis the program placed on Martha Graham's technique. It was physical education professor Kay Macdonald who told her there was a position at Sweet Briar, 20 miles closer to her home in Charlottesville.

manipulated by superpower rivalry.

The creation of the state of Israel meant the disappearance of Palestine and the birth of a Palestinian refugee population. Victory in the Six-Day War of 1967 left Israel in military occupation of the West Bank and Gaza, territories populated by Palestinians. Therein, as Professor Caplan pointed out, lay a very significant change: since 1967 the Arab-Israel conflict has been transformed into a Palestinian-Israeli conflict, more sharply focusing the issues as well as the intensity. In that sharpening of the conflict, where the real interests of Palestinians and Israelis take center stage, the final speaker, Professor Kenneth Stein, associate professor of Near Eastern history and political science, and fellow and director of the Middle Eastern Program of the Carter Center at Emory University, sees the end of the Arab-Israeli conflict.

As Professor Stein said in opening his lecture, those who had attended all previous lectures had probably concluded there was little or no hope for a solution. In a stunning analysis he argued that the conflict, until now in a "peace-seeking phase," was about to enter a "peace-making phase." Among the reasons he examined for this decisive change were the "Palestinianization" of the conflict and changes in the regional and international contexts of the conflict. In the last decade Israel has recognized that Palestinians have legitimate rights, and Palestinians have had to take their fate into their own hands. The Arab states, partly for internal domestic reasons and partly because of a lack of international leverage, have disengaged from the Palestinian cause. The superpowers are increasingly working together to reduce regional conflicts, and the Soviet Union wants to establish a "normal relationship" with Israel. The United States has initiated a dialogue with the PLO. The Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty has endured for a decade. The new generation of Palestinians and younger Israelis no longer see themselves as totally right and the other side as totally wrong. The new environment is conducive to peace-making.

What that peace will look like is anybody's guess, Professor Stein suggested, but it will be a process rather than a neatly-packaged solution. He foresees some kind of "association through separation," a confederation of some design. The process will require creativity and new thinking about traditional political arrangements.

The audience attending the 1990 Winter Forums encountered new thinking about old questions, and they found that modern scholarship can make an invaluable contribution to our understanding of the complex problems and issues of our time.

Dr. Neil Caplan: Origins of the Conflict

The Winter Forums, an annual series of weekly lectures in January, are sponsored by the Alumnae Association and were founded in 1974 to encourage interaction between the College and the community. Topics for the series are chosen by a committee drawn from Sweet Briar faculty and staff and the Amherst and Lynchburg communities. This year's series drew crowds of over 230 to each lecture.

Edward Drayer, who chaired the 1990 Winter Forums, has been teaching sociology at Sweet Briar since 1978.

WOMEN OF ANCIENT EGYPT

Herodotus, often called the father of the study of history, traveled to Egypt in the fifth century B.C. He and his fellow Greeks were fascinated by this foreign land and people, to which considerable space was devoted in Book II of his writings, The Histories. Any study of women and their role in ancient Egypt is aptly introduced by Herodotus: "The Egyptians themselves seem to have reversed the ordinary practices of mankind. For instance, women attend market and are employed in trade while men stay home and do the weaving." Readers cannot always take the historian's observations at face value. Herodotus could not speak the language of the Egyptians and had to depend on interpreters for translations of his sources. Because he wrote about those aspects of his travels which he found especially interesting, his record was somewhat selective and reflected a certain chauvinism for Greece. Nonetheless, however exaggerated his statement about women—that trade took women out of the house while men stayed at home—it does indicate that the social order in Egypt differed sharply enough from the male-dominated cultures of Greece and the Near East to be noted.

The status of royal and nonroyal women of ancient Egypt is also revealed in surviving written sources: papyri, literature, letters and legal documents. Depictions of women in known artifacts and private monuments provide clues to the role of women in Egyptian culture. For example, the pictorial composition on a vessel dating to the Gerzean period (ca. 3500-3170 B.C.) incorporates a female figure identified by her long skirt (Fig. 1). Perhaps a goddess or priestess, she occupies the central position between two men. Among private monuments popular during the Old Kingdom (ca. 2705-2250) and the Middle Kingdom (ca. 2035-1668) were representations of married couples displaying affectionate gestures. The sculpture commemorating the steward Memy Sabu and his wife portrays the pair with encircling arms (Fig. 2); seated couples were often represented holding hands. Artifacts such as these reflect perceptions of women in Egyptian life and society.

In matters relating to law and business, Egyptian women exercised relatively equal rights compared to men of the same social standing. Women acquired property and wealth in any number of ways. They could receive inheritances from their parents, gifts from parents or a husband, and they could purchase property. If a husband died without a written will, 1/3 of the estate went to his wife. The balance was divided between his brothers, sisters and children. A woman could administer and dispose of her property as she wished, whether that property be money, land or servants. She could act as a party or witness to contracts. Records exist of contracts for marriage, for adoption, to engage wet nurses and for self-enslavement. Marriage contracts included a variety of special clauses which could legally oblige a man to care for a woman in all ways, including a cash allowance. Women could retain the right for a future divorce and even alimony. They were entitled to sue and testify in court. A mother's consent was as important as a father's in matters concerning the marriage of a daughter or son. Both the independent legal status and customs regarding inheritance counteracted any tendency toward a rigid patriarchal family structure.

Women could earn a living outside the home. They functioned in the economy and religion of society at all levels. Job titles granted to women suggest a variety of responsibilities: manageress of the dining hall, headmistress of the wig workshop and headmistress of the house of weavers. There was also a headmistress of the royal harem of female singers, dancers and acrobats. Evidence from the third millennium B.C. records an aristocratic female overseer of female physicians. Women supervised the state textile and perfume industries. In the perfume houses located near the estate of the Great Royal Wife of the pharaoh, women picked and pressed flowers for fragrant oils and perfumes so necessary in the hot, dry Egyptian climate. There was compulsory state service for women as well as men. They labored in the field harvesting wheat, picking flax and trapping birds with the men. Where they worked alongside men, women received equal pay.

Throughout the New Kingdom (ca. 1550-1070), women could serve in temples regardless of their social class. The most common responsibility was that of musician, either as a singer or an instrumentalist. The purpose of performances by singers and dancers was twofold. Not only did they entertain the spirit of the deceased, known as the ka; they also included an erotic element to sexually arouse the spirit to regenerate itself in the afterlife. A hint of eroticism is evident in the scantily-clad figure incorporated into the form of an alabaster spoon dating to approximately 1400 B.C. (Fig. 3). She is presenting a gazelle-like creature, the back of which forms the lid of a small container. Scholars are not entirely certain of the use of such spoons, but probably the container was filled with special ointments to offer the ka or a god.

A temple precinct was comprised of more than the temple proper. Real estate for farming and quarries were part of the temple's holdings. Priestesses managed agricultural operations and personnel. They held offices which could be inherited according to their wishes and received the same pay as their male counterparts.

Egyptian mythology and the concept of divine queenship contributed to the significant role women played in Egyptian life. The goddess Isis, mother of Horus, was characteristically depicted wearing the image of a throne upon her head. It was Isis who picked up the pieces of her brother and husband Osiris, and put them together again to bring him back to life just long enough to conceive Horus to rule the earth. The queen, like Isis, symbolically brought the throne as her dowry.

The female element was a vital component of kingship in the mortal as well as the divine realm. The pharaoh was the mortal manifestation of Horus, rightful king as son of Osiris. Likewise, the Great Royal Wife was analogous to Hathor, wife of Horus and goddess of all good things: love, joy, dancing and childbirth. As the female prototype for renewal and resurrection, she was depicted symbolically as a cow or in human form with bovine ears and horns carrying a rattlelike instrument, the sistrum. The Great Royal Wife was the chief priestess of the cult of Hathor and actualized the powers of the goddess through the enactment of rituals. As singer or chantress, she led the musical harem dedicated to the worship of the goddess. During the Ramesside period (1279-1108), the queen was frequently represented pictorially in her Hathoric role as the sistrum player. Often in the shape of the goddess' head with cow's ears and horns, the sistrum was used to ward off evil, to arouse or rejuvenate the spirit of the deceased, and to consecrate buildings. As Hathoric priestess, the queen represented the feminine collective, whether that collective was the musical harem or the harem of the royal household, which could encompass up to 400 lesser wives, concubines, prepuberty children and female attendants. The Great Royal Wife moreover represented all women of Egypt.

The gigantic tombs prepared for queens of the First Dynasty (c.3168-2857) indicate the influence and respect accorded to royal wives. During their lifetimes, they possessed great wealth and occupied their own estates with palaces removed from the king's residence. Queen mothers served as regents as early as the Sixth Dynasty (ca. 2400-2250). The first of five, possibly six, female pharaohs, Nitoterky, reigned around 2180 B.C.

Fig. 3: Covered spoon, ca. 1400 B.C., alabaster, Metropolitan Museum of Art

The tradition developed and espoused during the course of the New Kingdom, regarding the birth of the pharaoh, affirms the requisite divinity associated with the queen. The pharaoh's right to the throne was the result of the union of his mother, the Great Royal Wife, and the sun god Amun. Amun became incarnate in the body of the reigning pharaoh in order to impregnate the queen with the divine seed.

As a child of the god Amun, the pharaoh's claim to the throne was legitimate.

Any offspring, male or female, of Amun and the queen contained a trace of the god's divinity. It was common practice for princes to marry their sisters, the princesses, upon ascension to the throne. Not only did this keep divinity in the family, so to speak, but such a marriage consolidated the right to rule Egypt. The only way for a man of lesser birth, meaning one born to a lesser wife of the pharaoh, to attain divine character was to marry a royal princess. Tutmosis III (reign 1479-1425) married three princesses just to be sure. During the Ptolemaic dynasty (332-30), it was customary for the king to marry his sister. Cleopatra VII, the famous one, married two brothers, Ptolemy XIII and upon his death, the 11-year-old Ptolemy XIV.

During the course of the New Kingdom dynasties, Egypt became a great imperial power. Several queens of this period demonstrated the increasingly prominent role of the chief royal wife in official governmental capacities: Hatshepsut, Nefertari and Cleopatra.

Upon the death of her father, Hatshepsut (reign 1478-1437) married her brother Tutmosis II. Hatshepsut was the daughter of a Great Royal Wife while Tutmosis was the son of a royal concubine. Marrying Hatshepsut, a daughter of divine conception, made his claim to the throne legitimate. When Tutmosis died, Hatshepsut became regent for Tutmosis III, her stepson by a lesser wife of her husband. She eventually became so powerful that she dropped the designation Great Royal Wife and assumed the titles and attributes of a pharaoh. In surviving monuments, she is portrayed in king's clothing: a short skirt, royal headcloth, broad collar and double crown. Wall paintings in her mortuary temple at Deir el-Bahari relate the highlights of her reign including a commercial expedition to Punt. Among the goods brought back to Egypt were myrrh, apes, cattle, ivory and rare woods. In her temple is a sanctuary for her father, the god Amun, and a shrine to Hathor.

Nefertari is represented with her husband Ramesses II (1290-1224) in the decorations of his great building projects at Luxor, Karnak and Abu Simbel. She participated in the dedication of Abu Simbel in 1255 B.C. and, as high priestess of Hathor, consecrated the structures. Nefertari corresponded with queens of foreign lands and was involved in diplomatic matters to a degree unparalleled by previous Egyptian queens. On an interior wall of the temple at Abu Simbel, she appears in a scene of Ramesses smiting the Nubians and Libyans. This only known representation of an Egyptian queen at the site of a battle indicates her prominent role in foreign affairs.

The last of famous Egyptian queens, Cleopatra VII, coincidentally signaled the end of dynastic Egypt. She ascended the throne in 51 B.C. with her brother Ptolemy XIII, whom she married. During the preceding decade she had witnessed how Ptolemaic money brought Roman influence, which had reinstated her father Ptolemy XII to the throne. In an effort to protect Egypt from complete domination by Rome, Cleopatra allied herself first with Julius Caesar and then with Marcus Antony.

Cleopatra's success in keeping Egypt relatively free of Roman intervention for 20 years has been attributed to her intelligence and personal charm. According to contemporaries, she was not unusually beautiful though an engaging conversationalist. Fluency in several languages enhanced her diplomatic skills. Yet the very fact that a woman could rise to a position of such power and consequence is part of a long Egyptian tradition which recognized the significance of women as early as pre-dynastic times (Fig. 1).

Indonesian Odyssey

The February-March 1990 trips sponsored by the Sweet Briar Alumnae Association was brochure-advertised simply as "The Island World of Indonesia: Singapore, Bali, Sulawesi, The Islands of the Java Sea & Hong Kong." It didn't even say "Wonderful World of Indonesia," much less "Full-blown Adventure" or "One-time Experience" or "You Won't Top This, Ever." In order to cover all stops, the brochure writers might justifiably have added, in tiny letters, "Proceed at your own risk." But they didn't. The brochure was fact. The trip was fantasy.

BY NANCY GODWIN BALDWIN '57
Editor, Sweet Briar Alumnae Magazine

The lucky people gathered at the San Francisco Airport for Singapore Airlines Flight # 1 at 1:00 a.m. 2/25 included 12 Sweet Briar travelers. (Eight more SBCers, on a pretrip excursion to Bangkok, would join us in Singapore and two, Ernest and Jane Duncan Miller '59, in Bali.) The rest were from the University of Michigan, the Audubon Society, oceanographer and archaeologist groups and a Leica camera club—a piquant mix of interests and viewpoints.

A 19-hour flight across time zones suggests an all-out endurance contest, but it offered three delicious meals with many blandishments, including slabs and chunks of island-fresh fruits we learned to take for granted, two movies and whatever else we requested. Suddenly we were landing at Singapore's Changi Airport (one of the world's busiest), and reading the enormous sign in the Customs area advising that the death penalty is enforced for drug smuggling. The sign touched a nerve—suppose someone slipped something into your carry-on while you weren't looking? But Customs declarations went quickly (Are you bringing in spirits? No. More than one carton of cigarettes? No.); soon we were being bused through a sparkling-clean, beautiful tropical city with tree-lined boulevards, abundant flowers and attractive new buildings towering over bits of old Singapore. No litter of any kind was evident on the streets: "Heavy fines!" our guide warned. No paper scraps or cigarette butts mar the sidewalks. Smoking is not permitted in restaurants or public rooms (except hotel lobbies). The system works: the city winks and gleams like a polished apple in the equatorial sunshine. The Dynasty Hotel welcomed us to a palatial 3-story-high lobby with huge chandeliers and 24 carved teakwood panels depicting scenes from Chinese history. Bouquets of orchids (Singapore's national flower) waited in our rooms and we spent the afternoon settling into an unfamiliar but delightful ambiance. Only one blight: Henri Minor Hart '39 and her friend Barbara Webb made the flight but their luggage didn't. Clothes swapping/lending produced five days of ingeniously put-together outfits.

The Bangkok contingent arrived for SBC's cocktail party in an elegant suite where glass cases of Chinese artifacts and ceiling-high live bamboo in gigantic urns lined the walls. The 18-foot-long hors d'oeuvre spread was a lavish blend of hot and cold tidbits...seafood, vegetables, fruits, platters of spicy morsels, dips...and after that, dinner! Were we having fun yet? Yes.

Tuesday 2/27 was a full tour day, with Auduboners opting for Singapore's Bird Park while others set out for The Empress Place, an 1854 courthouse transformed into a museum/exhibition centre, to marvel at the Treasures of the Qing Exhibition, a collection of 312 priceless artifacts from the Qing Dynasty (China's last dynasty, celebrated in The Last Emperor). The exhibit, never before outside China, included whole rooms of furniture, as well as art objects, jewelry and personal belongings.

Next stop: Chinatown, an intriguing look at old Singapore, alive with traders and tradition—crowded, vibrant, noisy and redolent with incense, teas, spices and medicinal herbs. Vivid kites shaped like birds, butterflies and animals, coolie hats, straw bags, silk robes and parasols hung fluttering from doorways and canopied stalls. A traditional mask maker and a fortune teller shared a street corner.

A short walk from Chinatown is Sri Mariamman, the city's oldest Hindu temple, with its pyramid-shaped top of intricately carved figures of people and animals. In its courtyard every year, thousands of devotees walk barefoot across a bed of white hot coals to pay homage to the Goddess Draupadi. How do they do that?

On to the Botanic Gardens, home to the herbarium begun in the late 19th century. Here botanist Henry Ridley experimented with rubber tree seeds from South Africa, beginning the region's rubber industry. The herbarium's specialty is cultivating hundreds of orchids, some very rare varieties. Skyscraper palms sway over luxuriant bushes and plants; in a sunny area, an animal topiary marches along.

Despite heat and humidity, we were developing adrenaline levels to keep us alert throughout the trip—a “Don't stop, there's not much time, we can't miss anything!” attitude. We saw Merlion Park (The Merlion, a creature with a lion's head and finned, scaly body, is Singapore's national emblem. Its design combines the island's two old names; originally called Temasek <“Sea Town”>, the name changed in the 13th century to Singa-Pura <sanskrit for Lion City>, hence Singapore) and the old Raffles Hotel, opened in 1887. Streets bustled with trishaw riders competing for space with taxis, buses, cars and bicycles. Sidewalks were crowded with Chinese, Malays, Indians, Eurasians, Americans, Japanese, English, Australians, Germans and a mob of French sailors relishing shore leave. One block presented the anachronism of a McDonalds and a Kentucky Fried Chicken side-by-side in an otherwise Singaporean neighborhood; every block rang with the curious sounds of English spoken in myriad accents. Cosmopolitan, scrubbed Singapore: the only thing wrong with our stay was its brevity.

Next morning, an early muster: 4:30 wake up call. Normally I am not morning-chipper, but my roommate, Jean Payne, an Auduboner from Washington state, and I were wide awake by 4:00. The dining room noise sounded like a party—everyone in ebullient spirits. When I wondered aloud at this, Steve Young, the Auduboner's host, said, “How many times do you wake up and say, ‘Today we go to Bali’?” Right! We were on an anticipatory high.

Stepping off the plane in Bali caused a tidal wave of sensations—heat, fragrance, color, sound, gaiety. A brisk breeze, smelling of massed flowers, felt about 90 ° F. Brilliant colors glowed iridescently—emerald, scarlet, aquamarine, vermilion, gold. A small Gamelan orchestra pinged and plonked a welcome as we were hustled through baggage by smiling, flower-bedecked men and women, then onto buses for the Bali Beach Hotel, where another Gamelan group greeted us.

The Bali Beach is an enormous ocean-front spread, with arcades running through tropical gardens to various wings; each arcade is flanked with stone statues, decorated every morning with fresh flowers. Who could help smiling, encountering numbers of stone people with hibiscus blooms behind their ears?

Daily excursions by van were breathtaking experiences—honestly! The drivers fear nothing, prefer speed. I have never before had the feeling of being flung up a mountainside—this put to rest any lingering desire for roller coasters. Pedestrians (human and animal) walking in the middle of the narrow roads are casual about getting out of the way; though drivers don't lessen speed, walkers scatter slowly. Do they have a death wish? Drivers honk loudly at intersections and entering bridges, not to warn other motorists of their approach, but because evil spirits occupy intersections and bridges. Honking warns the spirits to get out of the way! Offerings (appeasements)—fruits, nuts, flowers—in straw containers or banana leaves, are everywhere, on roads, on bridges, in the fields, on sidewalks and at the doors and windows of houses in small “house temples.”

Our guide, Won (pronounced Juan), a person of great good humor, beguiled us with facts and stories about the Balinese during bus rides to tour sites. Our first morning he admonished, “When in Bali (Bolleeee), you must do as the Balinese do. Don' rushhhhhh, don' rushhhhhh...but be on tiiiiime.” It is custom, he said, for men as well as women to wear flowers behind their ears. A flower behind the right ear means, “I'm looking.” Behind the left, it says, “I'm happy.”

Cooking is done once a day, early in the morning. Thus the morning meal is a hot one; the rest of the day food is served “air temperature.” (Many houses have thatched roofs with no walls, or bamboo screens open to breezes.) Besides chickens, fish, vegetables and fruit, Balinese eat bats, dragonflies, squirrels, snakes, eels and snails. Monkeys, now protected, are off the menu. Garbage is used as fertilizer or burned, cans buried. The government sprays to try to control malaria.

We noticed pronto that the Balinese, very clean, have no hesitation in stripping off clothes to bathe in a river or pond or nearby fountain. They are not immodest, just “natural.”

Everyone works and the day's work is long, from dawn till sunset. They play just as hard, dancing, visiting, eating far into the night. In Bali, everybody dances; dancing is a way of life. Children begin learning the traditional dances almost as soon as they walk. No need for fitness classes!

There are many festival days. In addition to regular festivals, the slightest excuse is reason to celebrate. Funerals, which are happy occasions, call for a Cremation Festival. A dead family member may be kept in the house for months or years until enough money is saved and preparations made to have a really smashing celebration for the entire village. The Balinese believe in reincarnation; behaving oneself will mean a better life next time. Bad deeds now will be paid for in the future. This offers comfort to those with troubles or great misfortunes: they assume they are suffering for past misdeeds, therefore no point worrying over today's difficulties.

Family planning is in effect: couples are advised to “stop at two.” Children are cherished and tended carefully. A baby's feet should not touch the ground for the first six months, infants are carried or held constantly. Crying babes are comforted immediately. Won counselled us not to touch children, especially on the head. Balinese believe they might lose their souls if touched on the head. Children work as soon as they are able. If not in the fields with their families, they hawk family wares—expert bargainers! They must attend school through high school.

Every field has thatch-covered sun shelters for animals and people. Each family has livestock—cows, pigs, chickens (farmers also have oxen)—as well as cats and dogs. Balinese dogs resemble dingoes, cats are shaped like Siamese cats, but thinner. The chickens are bantams.

The rice plantings, especially those tiered up mountainsides, are works of art, precisely patterned and irrigated with bamboo “pipes” dropping water from tier to tier. All growth is junglelike: we saw numerous fence posts sprouting!

Balinese carry everything, small items to very heavy loads, on their heads. (Cloths wound around the head help balance the load and make it more comfortable). Consequently their posture is excellent—head up, back straight, graceful walk.

Avid vendors met/followed us everywhere. Won referred to them as his cousins: “My cousins wait for you; remember to bargain.” The whole island, we decided, is peopled with Won’s cousins.

Our days began early; tours ran eight+ hours, with a two-three hour dance performance or other evening entertainment following. We climbed to Pura Besakih, Bali’s largest, most famous temple, situated high up the slope of Mount Agung, visited the ancient courthouse of Kerta Gosa in Klungkung, watched wood carvers and artists at work at Mas and Ubud (art centers where villagers spend every spare moment at their crafts) and shopped at a gold and silver workshop and a batik factory. One forgettable stop was Goa Lawa Bat Cave, a shrine with many small temples in front and thousands of bats lining the cave walls—not a nice aroma!

In writing or speaking of Bali, devotees call it the Isle of the Gods, Island of Light, Island of a Thousand Temples, Isle of Paradise, Gem of the Tropics, Morning of the World...but it is difficult to convey its beauty and vitality or the charm of its people. Bali is splendid, strange, entertaining, lush, startling. Bali is temples, festivals, dances, art, legends, volcanic mountains, mellow beaches, 1,000 flowers, banyan trees, giant banana plants, mangoes, rice tiers, coffee plants, ubiquitous offerings. Bali is handsome, smiling people and elfin child vendors with chocolate eyes. A place beyond time. An experience the senses will recall forever.

Saturday evening 3/3 began the “true adventures” part of the trip—our Indonesian Odyssey. Boarding the cruise ship Renaissance, we sailed off into the Java Sea to another world.

Sunday was spent at sea, the water smooth with easy swells: Rockabye, Baby. Dolphins played around the ship as we passed island strips with waterfront villages. Mountains and cultivated hillsides shone in the distance, sometimes shimmering in the light, with cloud shadows streaking deeper colors of green. Banana trees, rice terraces and taro plants were distinguishable; smoke wafted upwards in places: perhaps people burning off their rice fields for new crops?

A middle-of-the-night clamor sent everything flying off tables as the ship swerved to avoid a small fishing boat running without lights. Monday’s 7:00 a.m. docking at Palopo, Sulawesi seemed only moments afterward; by 7:30, we were driving through the town of Palopo, surprised at all the early morning activity: market stalls busy with shoppers, children off to school, bikes drawing one-seat carriages. The dwellings were bright, clean, pleasant, with cultivated plots and the usual mob of goats, chickens, dogs, cats. The animals are plumper than in Bali, especially the cats, whose tails curl in an arc over their hindquarters. Sunlit Palopo was cheerful: no hint that not long ago these seafaring people (the Buginese) were the Java Sea’s most feared pirates. Early spice traders were so intimidated by the Bugis that their name added a word to European vocabulary: bogeyman.

Beyond Palopo began a winding, rocketing, teeth-jarring ride up rugged terrain to the highlands, where the Toraja live. Once fierce headhunters, now they concentrate on cultivating rice fields collectively owned by each village. The rice-growing areas of Sulawesi are among Indonesia’s most fertile and most densely-populated. Unlike Bali, family planning doesn’t seem a priority; my impression was that most of the population is under six, with more coming.

Monday must be wash day worldwide: many clothes were spread on bushes to dry. The houses along the road looked peaceful, with children, goats and chickens wandering in and out.

We climbed past huge poinsettia bushes and cone-shaped clove trees. Water Buffalo were being led to fields and a beautiful black hawk with a canary underside glided overhead.

After an hour’s go-for-broke ascent, we paused in a village. There, among adults busy with chores and children playing, was an enigma—a wee boy wearing a Bat Man T-shirt!

An hour later we found Torajaland, where all houses are boat-shaped. The Toraja believe their ancestors descended from the stars, so design their homes to represent ancient skyships. The ridge of the roof turns up and a family’s wealth is told by the number of buffalo horns on the house front. Paint for the brown, black and white ornamentation comes from soil pigments. No nails are used; beams and piles are dovetailed and wood pegs hold joints together. The Toraja think that houses built this way withstand earthquakes better. A typical dwelling has three rooms, the front for eating and reception of visitors and the back a bedroom. The central room is the hearth, special domain of the woman, and also where the dead are placed on view before burial. In an adjunct of one central room we met a man grinding freshly-picked coffee beans.

In Lemo we saw Toraja rock graves, “houses from which no smoke rises.” Tombs are carved into the sides of towering cliffs; the higher a person’s status, the higher the final resting place. The tombs are sealed by wooden doors; outside the door stands a fully-dressed wooden effigy (tau tau, “little person”). These images, complete with accessories, are more than memorial statues; the Toraja believe they contain the souls of the deceased. An eerie place!

After lunch near Rantepao, there was dancing, then a last stop at Rantepao Market, a busy place teeming with people. Rantepaons excel at ikat weaving; many pieces of ikat cloth went back to the Renaissance, where we recovered with hot showers and a sumptuous dinner (Beluga caviar and fresh orchids on the table: rough life) and “Pappy” and Martha Lou Hallum (mother of Barbara Burns Persons ’64) celebrated the eve of Pappy’s 86th birthday.

Tuesday 3/6 allowed time for lectures by Rhoads Murphey, Professor of History and Asian Studies, U Michigan and the Audubon Society’s Steve Young, before anchoring off the island of Butung. The islanders, master boat builders, have a former reputation for being tops in the piracy business; their custom was to take no captives. To reach the island we rode the ship’s tender, a journey with its own thrills.

The entire village of Bau Bau was gathered to meet the strangers; clearly we were high entertainment, rather like a rare zoo exhibit. Pale skin, and blond or red hair were a wonder; tall people also merited stares. Eyeglasses were a curiosity: one woman intently studied a bespectacled man, then grabbed them off his face. A young man was thrilled to look through binoculars. The people of Bau Bau were joyfully welcoming and monstrously attentive: little waves of them swelled gently around us for a closer look, separating us from one another, forming a circle which drew in until there was scant space for air circulation. Small girls begged for lipstick, making me wish I had brought hundreds of the sample size as gifts. Smokers were set upon for cigarettes by young men and boys. A dance to drumbeat momentarily shifted attention from us.

Bau Bau’s second welcome was a three-dance performance on a wooden stage in the schoolyard. Chairs were set up for us; in front of the chairs were tables with coffee, tea and plates of baked goods—starfish-shaped cookies and sugar-coated circles with sweet, oozy fillings. What to do? Be the sanitized “ugly American” heeding all the warnings not to eat or drink anything, or accept island hospitality as graciously as it was offered? Take a deep breath and do it!—the water was boiled to make coffee/tea. Conclusion: these people like everything extremely sweet. The crowd (standing) was holiday-dressed. Many youngsters were minding infant siblings, all primed for the festive occasion and breaking into great, contagious smiles whenever eye contact was made. People standing at the ends of rows leaned in against seated guests, again a noticeable desire to be near, to touch, to investigate.

After a walk to “the oldest mosque in Indonesia” and a tour of the Sultan’s Palace and the fort, we went to a village square, where the crowd assembled to watch intently as we were offered more food. Teen-aged girls sat behind mats filled with leaf-wrapped rice goodies, cookies, nuts and you-name-its. Our guide suggested we kneel and eat; most of us did.

Bau Bau is rampant with glorious vegetation barely hacked out to accommodate living quarters, garden plots and small grazing areas. Animals and children were everywhere. Here too they were loath to cede road space, missing decapitation from careening vehicles by a hair.

The long afternoon, wild, weird, full of wonder, was an experience I wouldn’t have wanted to miss...but I wouldn’t have wanted to miss the sight of the tender coming to return us to the ship, either. “BYE BYE, BAU BAU!

Wednesday 3/7: a birthday for Nancy McCandlish Prichard’s (’38) husband Ed, and a misty excursion to the tiny island of Alor. The ride by tender through the fog to Kalabahi Bay was spooky—unreality raised to the max. The distant shoreline was hardly discernable; had we stepped into a time warp to visit a place that no longer exists? No: real live dancers waited at the dock; this time we were expected to join the dance before being driven—UP, of course—to Takpala. Until recently, Rhoads told us, Alor was virtually unchanged by outside contact; little is known of its history. Rituals reaching far back into time are still practiced. The island’s most intriguing mystery is the origin of thousands of brass drums (mokos), dating from prehistoric times, found buried in the ground. There is no copper ore on the island: the drums must have been brought to Alor—by whom and why is unknown. The Alorese consider them gifts from God.

At road’s end we climbed a steep 1/2 mile to Takpala for more dancing, exploring and bargaining for cloth, baskets, woven scarves, sarongs and jewelry. Another day, another trek into never-never land.

Thursday 3/8 we awoke to rain; hearing it beat against the ship, I thought of Bill Cosby, as “Noah”, remarking: “This isn’t your ordinary shower, is it, Lord?” Besides the usual gear (canteen of safe water, state-of-the-art insect repellent, moistened tissues to wipe the tropics humidity off fevered brow <and fevered neck and fevered everything else>), we prepared to disembark in raincoats, with umbrellas. At least we didn’t have to manage the swaying ladder into the tender with extra paraphernalia, the ship was docked at Larantuka on the island of Flores. On the way to the deck, Peter Carballo, one of the trip guides, stopped to say that the Larantukans wanted two people to accept their welcome for the group and asked that Rhoads Murphey and I do this.

As we left ship the rain diminished. A throng waited dockside and the Larantukan master of ceremonies, Petrus Krowin, began a long, flowery greeting. At its conclusion, Peter Carballo motioned to Rhoads and me. Up came lovely young women with hollow coconut shells full of an amber-colored liquid. They offered it to us. (Aaaaagh!) I took mine (Rhoads seemed paralyzed), raised it in salute (Those who are about to die...What’s a little cholera among friends?), and drank. Mmmmm. Tasted like cognac. (All right! It’s alcoholic, so probably safe. Just don’t think about the process of making it.) Rhoads bowed his head, made the Buddhist sign of acceptance, mumbled “Oh, God!” and took his coconut. After the first sip he was happier. An energetic dance was performed and we boarded vans for the trip up to Mokantarak Village.

It was a beautiful drive, a mountain to the right, the sea on the left with tempting views of lovely small islands. Petrus pointed out sights and noted that Flores is known for bananas, maize, coconuts, copra, betel nuts, popcorn and, guess what: oil. Arriving at the foot of a slope below Mokantarak, we realized what it might be known for after a heavy rain: MUD.

Dancers met us, Petrus delivered another embellished oration and Rhoads and I accepted a second libation. Petrus intended the three of us to lead villagers and guests up the slope. Halfway to the top, each foot weighed about five pounds: the mud was tenacious. I envied barefoot villagers.

In the village, bamboo benches were set up under a thatch cover. Petrus, Rhoads and I went to the "stage," where again we drank from shells—to everyone's health but our own, presumably (one more acceptance gesture and I might be there still). We were offered betel nuts. "Just touch them, don't chew them!" said Petrus. (Thank you.) Then two men stepped up, holding a small, struggling, terrified black goat. A third man appeared with a long, evil-looking knife. "It's all right, symbolic, symbolic!" exclaimed Petrus. (I had shied like a horse about to bolt—if anything happened to that goat, they'd have me to bury.) The knife-man raised his weapon and swooshed it down, stopping inches from the goat's neck, traumatizing goat and me. We were excused to take seats as dancing began. I hadn't noticed the head fixed to a pole off to one side, but there it was—and I remembered reading that our hosts were headhunters until the early 1900s. This head was not "real," but it got the idea across. The goat sacrificer ran to the pole, slashed the head off, and held it aloft, circling to show his trophy. A frenzied dance by the men followed.

A second dance was performed by elderly women, to singing accompaniment more tuneful than we had heard elsewhere. Both men and women wore whimsical hats decorated with hawk feathers which stuck straight up. Children with corn husk headgear were last on the program, playing bamboo flutes and dancing.

We browsed Mokantarak market, admiring weavers at work and selecting ikat pieces, baskets, beads and hawk-feathered hats. The people were as friendly as all the Indonesians we encountered, and perhaps the gentlest, despite their former yen for heads. They were not aggressive in their friendliness. There was no bargaining, all market items were at set price. Quite a contrast to Balinese, who live to haggle good-naturedly. There were numerous people missing front teeth, and their devotion to betel nuts is obvious—blood-red lines around lips. I managed not to hum "Bloody Mary Chewing Betel Nuts."

In Larantuka, family planning is an issue. Petrus explained, "We must stop at two children—otherwise too many people—not good." (Whoops! Petrus has four, two boys, two girls.) Petrus, an English teacher in the Mokantarak school for 20 years, wants to study for an MA in anthropology/sociology. His oldest son, working in a Bali hotel, hopes to go into hotel management now that tourism is becoming big business. Petrus thinks Bali "spoiled: too many tourists! Flores is prettier, more interesting."

Friday 3/9 was the day many had looked forward to the most: DRAGON DAY. Auduboner Bud Dominick swore he only came to see the Komodo Dragons; he was the first person down the tender ladder at 7:00 a.m. Cruise Director Judy Marshall warned us not to wear red. ("Red drives them berserk!") Although most of them would be in an area set off for viewing, we knew that they have the run of the island and might be along the trail. The males can grow 10 feet long and weigh 300 pounds; they are carnivores, "the sole survivors of carnivorous dinosaurs" (even eating each other at times). They can easily outrun a human, achieving 10 mph if they're in a hurry (I hoped they were well fed and sluggish today), and their tongues are toxic. A ranger with a long stick met us on the beach; would a stick do the trick if a dragon or six ran out of the bushes? He told us not to talk loudly on the trail climb (Everything in Indonesia is UP!).

It was cloudy but hot; the 40-minute climb made me thankful for the canteen slung over my shoulder. We didn't see any loose dragons until almost at the top, where several were walking around or lounging in the grass; none showed interest in us. The viewing area was fenced, with raised platforms so that we looked down on dozens of dragons of varying sizes. They were impressive!—not for their beauty, certainly, but for their size and strangeness. I was glad to be ogling them at a distance.

Back on the beach, eager Komodians were selling dragon T-shirts, postcards, caps, bumper stickers and foot-long leather dragons. Of course, Bud Dominick had a leather dragon; I imagine it peering down from his den mantel in New Canaan.

Saturday 3/10: Goodbye to Indonesia, to dragons and boat-shaped houses, betel nuts and odd liquid concoctions. Hello, Civilization: Hong Kong.

Like millions before me (Hong Kong's population is 5.6 million; in 1989 5.6 million tourists passed through!), I loved Hong Kong from the moment we landed at Kai Tak Airport. Our "home" for 2 1/2 days was the luxurious Mandarin Oriental Hotel. From there we ventured to Victoria Peak via the Peak Tramway, for awesome views of the city and harbor, and to Repulse Bay, which looks into the South China Sea. Repulse Bay Beach, our guide laughingly said, is called "Excuse Me Beach" during summer months because of the crowds.

We roamed Stanley Market, once a fishing village, now a shopper's paradise, and Aberdeen Fishing Village. We took a boat tour of the Aberdeen typhoon shelter, beehive-busy with junks, sampans, fishing boats, water taxis and floating restaurants. This is home to the boat people, who spend their entire lives on boats. They become "landsick" if they leave, just as land dwellers can be seasick. Garbage boats collect refuse; market boats sell vegetables, fruit and staples. Boat people were cooking, hanging laundry, tending plants...enjoying "all the comforts of home."

There were forays to jewelry and pearl factories, tailors, the Chung Kiu Chinese Products Emporium and to shops with names like The Amazing Grace Elephant Company. There were moonlight dinner cruises and trips on the Star Ferry, which connects Hong Kong with Kowloon. Transportation is well-thought-out, inexpensive and manageable. The Star Ferries sail every 10 minutes. The underground is clean, safe and color-coded for stops. Double-decker buses and taxis are numerous; so are private cars, and there must be more Mercedes and Rolls Royces here than anywhere else in the world. Traffic is heavy, with drivers who beat New York cabbies at daring and speed—and all on the "wrong" side of the road. Bicyclers and rickshaw pullers somehow survive in the maelstrom.

Tearing down and rebuilding is continuous and everyone in Hong Kong is in a hurry—no easy island pace here. Hong Kong, 98% Chinese, is 100% enthralling.

Finally, just past midnight, on Monday, 3/12, we flew back to San Francisco, gaining a day en route. The end of a fantasy journey. Did it all really happen...or was it an elaborate, technicolor dream?

CLUB CORNER

The ATLANTA CLUB (right) hosted a two-day event in February 1990. A luncheon for school counselors took place on 2/19 and a Cocktail Buffet was held 2/20 at the home of Hampton and Carter Heyward Morris '73, honoring College guests in town for the CASE (Council for the Advancement and Support of Education) Region III conference. Attending were Ann Morrison Reams, director, Alumnae Association; Nannette McBurney Crowdus, president, Alumnae Association; William H. Meadows III, vice president for college relations; Monica Dean, director of public relations; Alice Love, executive director of admissions; Louise Swiecki Zingaro, assistant director, Alumnae Association; Elizabeth Irvine, assistant director, public relations; and Ashley Flynn '90, student intern, development office. Barbara Johnson Prickett '68, club president, and Camille Williams Yow '55 received Club Recognition Awards.

The 1989-90 season of educational trips sponsored by the Sweet Briar Alumnae Association has offered a variety of scene and entertainment—and there are three more travel adventures to come in 1990! July 15-27 brings a visit to Ireland, including Yeats country, the Aran Islands, a performance at the Abbey Theatre and Aga Khan Cup Day at the Dublin Horse Show. Paul Cronin, SB professor of physical education & athletics will host and give lectures to prepare participants for the Dublin Horse Show and the Irish National Stud. Alaska is on the schedule for August 11-23, with two nights at the Regency Hotel in Fairbanks, a train ride to Anchorage on the Midnight Sun Express and a cruise through the Inside Passage to Vancouver. Alumnae Association Director Ann Morrison Reams '42 and husband Bernard will accompany this group. Concluding the season: a cruise to the Greek Isles and the coast of Turkey with an overnight stay in Istanbul and three nights at the Hotel Grande Bretagne in Athens. Hostess/lecturer will be Aileen Laing '57, SB professor of art history.

She adds, under "Service to Sweet Briar": "SB sweatshirt-wearer and visible, vocal supporter." Career and community: a music major at SBC, Lynne is in an M.A.H. degree (liberal arts combining music/religion) program at Manhattanville College. Formerly a successful collie breeder, she owns a jewelry design business (Adornings) and is a professional soprano soloist in area churches. Community involvement includes choirs and various committees at both the Presbyterian Church of New Canaan and the Norfield Congregational Church of Weston, and volunteer work at a care center for the elderly. Areas of interest/expertise run from agriculture to arts, fund-raising, public relations, religion and "would you believe, animal behavior?" She notes special interests as "Listening-counseling, gardening, needlepoint the few moments available" and "having myriad pets (7 birds, 3 dogs, 2 cats)." Lynne's husband Jim is an independent computer systems developer; together they have five children: James R., (31), William (30), Christopher Detmer (28); Cathleen Anne (20) and Stephen Miller (16).

Secretary
Ann Young Bloom '59
(Mrs. Lawrence H.), Wynnewood, PA

Alumnae Association: Former Philadelphia Club president; Alumnae Association Board, chairman of Region II ('77-'81); Class Reunion president for 25th Reunion; Reunion Gifts Committee for 30th Reunion; coordinator of President Fry's visit to Philadelphia, November '84; 1959 class secretary '59-'64. Career and community: An English major at SBC, Ann did further study (education) at Villanova U and West Chester College in the '60s. In 1988 she "retired" after 25 years as the education director for the Philadelphia Orchestra. Her community activities are numerous: Executive Committee for the Musical Fund Society of Philadelphia; Advisory Board, Choral Arts Society of Philadelphia; Altar Guild, church choir and music committee at Church of the Redeemer, provisional member, The Planters Garden Club of Philadelphia; teacher of English as a second language; chairman, Central Volunteer Committee for The Philadelphia Orchestra; member, 90th Birthday Committee for The Philadelphia Orchestra and vice chairman, Benefactors for Opening Night 1990, Philadelphia Orchestra. Ann's areas of expertise/interest include arts, education, marketing and public relations...and in spite of the long list of civic responsibilities, she claims that "after giving up a job that was rather consuming," she is taking time to "smell the flowers (and learn to identify them) and clean out the attic!" Ann's husband Lawrence is assistant vice president at The Corporation Trust Company, where he heads the Meeting Services Divisions.

Career Planning Chairman

Susan Sudduth Dodson '66
(Mrs. C. Frank, Jr.), Little Rock, AR

Alumnae Association: "As one of the few active alumnae in Arkansas," Susan has functioned as club president and alumnae admissions representative, attending high school college nights and counseling prospective students. She serves as class fund agent for 1966. Career and community: A biology major, Susan spent junior year at Vanderbilt U, returning to receive her AB from SBC. She is founder, vice president and co-owner of MOMS (Medical Office Management Systems) and the editor of MOMS AT WORK, the corporate newsletter. Previously she worked in biochemistry research at St. Jude Hospital, as a computer programmer/system analyst at Prudential Insurance Company and as office manager of the Arkansas Orthopedic Clinic. She has published articles in the Sweet Briar Alumnae Magazine and THEOS magazine and is the author of a book, Using Epson Computers in Medical Practices. Susan teaches a senior high youth group at Fellowship Bible Church, has held various positions with the Arkansas Opera Theater and the Arkansas Symphony Orchestra Guild, is a subscriber to the Wildwood Center for the Performing Arts, serves as a volunteer assistant at Pulaski Academy and is co-founder of the Arkansas Chapter of THEOS (a support group for widowed persons). Special areas of interest are administration, business, education and medical issues and she is enthusiastic about activities involving senior high youngsters, her church, swimming, water skiing, snow skiing and cooking. Susan has a 15-year-old daughter, Meredith Penn Dodson.

Academic Outreach Chairman

Anne Wilson Rowe '57
(Mrs. Josiah P., III), Fredericksburg, VA

Alumnae Association: An English major, Anne attended SBC for two years, earning the BA from Mary Washington College. She has served as vice chairman of the Alumnae Fund, member of the Boxwood Circle Committee and secretary of the Alumnae Association Board. For '57's 25th and 30th Reunions she was on the Reunion Gifts Committee. She has held Sweet Briar Day observances in her home and hosted international students throughout the years. Career and community: Active in civic affairs, Anne has served on the Fredericksburg City School Board, and on the boards of the Virginia Society of Colonial Dames, Kenmore (the home of George Washington's sister), the local chapter of the Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities, and is the VA representative on the Board of Dunbarton House in Washington, D.C. She has just completed a term as public relations director for the Garden Club of Virginia. She is an elder of Fredericksburg Presbyterian Church and is on the Board of the Presbyterian Home, Inc. in Lynchburg. Special interests and hobbies center around children, religion, travel, gardening (especially finding/growing old roses), knitting, needlepoint and reading. Husband Josiah is a newspaper publisher (The Free-Lance Star, Fredericksburg). The Rowses have four children (Jeannette Rowe Cadwallender '79, Florence Rowe Barnick '80, Sallie Rowe Roberts and Josiah P. Rowe IV, age 18) and five grandchildren.

Region IX Chairman

Linda Frazier Keith '75, Piedmont, CA

A biology major, Linda was the Benedict Scholar her senior year, served as Judicial Board president, house president, chairman of Orientation, was a member of the Tri-College Consortium and sang in the SB Choir. Career and community: after many years of teaching (science, math) and civic work in Virginia communities (Portsmouth, Suffolk, Norfolk, Virginia Beach) Linda is now vice principal/teacher at the Corpus Christi School in Piedmont, CA. She was nominated for the President's Award for Excellence in Math and Science Teaching for the State of California in 1989. Organizational memberships include the National Science Teachers Association, California Science Teachers Association, California Elementary Education Association, National Catholic Education Association and Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development. She volunteers with the San Francisco Bay Area Youth Soccer League, the Floresta Baseball League of San Leandro, Piedmont Recreation League, Piedmont Middle School and Havens Elementary School. She enjoys bridge and scuba diving and sings in the All Saints Episcopal Church Choir. Linda has two children, Catherine (12) and Chris (9).

Member-At-Large

(elected by the Class of 1990)

Jacy Carter '90, Athens, GA

Graduating this past May, Jacy was an economics major and chaired the Social Violations Hearing Board as a senior. She also worked with the Fast for World Hunger group and was a Chung Mung and member of the Sweet Briar News staff.

SWEEP: Award-winning Efforts To Protect The Environment

SBC has joined the ranks of colleges and universities nationwide which have adopted recycling programs devoted to the cause of helping to preserve the environment. SWEEP (Sweet Briar Environmental Education Program) was formed in the fall of 1988 by an ad-hoc group of students, faculty, staff and other members of the SB community in answer to the problem of diminishing landfill space. SWEEP has been responsible for the placement of aluminum trash receptacles all around campus and a collection movement that is growing at a phenomenal rate. Aluminum, glass and paper are collected and brought to a trailer; the refuse is taken to a recycling center and profits go toward expanding the program. SWEEP has received two awards for its efforts to protect the environment—a Distinguished Service Citation from the Keep Virginia Beautiful Awards Program and a Certificate of Appreciation from the Amherst County Litter Control Commission.

Corrections

In the announcement of recent deaths in the winter '89 magazine, Mrs. Harland F. Howe (Gratia Geer '30) was listed as Mrs. Harlan F. Howe (Grata Greer '30). We regret this error.

Also in the winter '89 magazine, in the roll of alumnae daughters/granddaughters 1989-90, sophomore Ellen Keeley Sullivan's grandmother was incorrectly listed as Ellen Newell '58. Keeley's real grandmother is Ellen Newell Bryan '26. Mea Culpa!

In Memoriam Vladimir S. Littauer 1892-1989

Captain Vladimir Littauer died in 1989. For many years he was a frequent visitor, conducting riding clinics at Sweet Briar, and he bequeathed his books, correspondence and other documents to the College. Following are excerpts from an appreciation of his life and work (which appeared in the Fall 1989 issue of the Sweet Briar College Library Gazette), written by his wife, Mary A. Littauer.

My husband was born in the Ural mountains, where his father was a mining engineer, but the family moved to St. Petersburg while he was a boy. He attended the Nicholas Cavalry School, receiving his commission two years before World War I began.

After serving on the eastern front, my husband continued to serve in the army during the revolution and subsequent civil war. He came to the United States in the early 1920s as a refugee, speaking no English. A chance meeting with two other former cavalry officers, Sergei Kournakoff and Kadir Guirey, led to founding a riding school—the Boots and Saddle School—in New York City in 1927.

Captain Littauer

The Defense of the Forward Seat, based on experiments conducted at the school, written by Kournakoff and my husband, as well as my husband's popular book, Forward Riding, were published in 1934. In the middle '20s Harriet Howell Rogers first came to Boots and Saddle—the beginning of a warm friendship and long association with Sweet Briar. Despite the crash of '29, the school continued, with a new ring and stables in New York and summer branches on Long Island, in Westchester and Connecticut.

In 1937 Kournakoff returned to the Soviet Union; my husband moved to the country to concentrate on working with pupils on their own horses. He began giving "riding clinics" (the term was coined then) at schools, colleges and hunt clubs. He published More About Forward Riding in 1938 and Be a Better Horseman in 1941.

In 1951 he wrote his most comprehensive book on techniques, Commonsense Horsemanship (revised in 1963 and 1983). Schooling Your Horse, published in 1956, came out again in 1983. His favorite book, Horseman's Progress, appeared in 1962. His memoir, Russian Hussar, came out in 1965 and his last work, How the Horse Jumps, in 1972. He continued to give clinics and lectures until the early 1970s.

Among well-known pupils are Diana Rankin and Bernie Traurig; Cathy Kusner and Joe Fargis were pupils of his riding-teacher pupils, who had ridden under him at clinics; but his work and writing were aimed at the average, educated amateur rider, not the professional. He believed the former should approach riding as an adjunct of a rounded life, intelligently, with an understanding not only of the correct techniques but of the historic background of riding, and with an enlightened, humane attitude toward the animal, who might suffer as readily from an ignorant approach as from wanton cruelty.

I regret that my husband and I had a serious auto accident in November, demolishing both cars but injuring only one person — 'yours truly'. There are no class notes. I am doing well after 2 months in the hospital, however. Best to you, one and all.

(Ed's note: Helen Grill, in a note to the alumnae office, writes that she feels fortunate to be able to live alone in her own home in Tiffin, OH, drive her own car and come and go as she pleases.)

1928

Sarah Everett Toy loves meeting the students at SB events in Charlotte. She writes that immobility prevents her from coming to SB, but she hopes to meet the new president in Charlotte.

Evelyn Claybrook Bowie and Gordon returned to western MD after 2 months at the Hillsboro Club near Pompano Beach in FL, and 3 weeks in Grenada. Their families are all well and happy "and so are we - married 53 years come October."

I am sad to tell you of the deaths of 4 classmates in 1989. Charlotte Magoffin died April 30, rather suddenly; Sue Burnett Davis August 23rd after a short but courageous battle with spinal cancer. Betsy Higgins Plummer on Dec. 29th and Mary Page Seibels on July 20th. Our class has given up 4 loyal, devoted and generous members and we all mourn their loss. Our love and sympathy go out to their families. Jane Hayes Dowler's apartment had no damage from the CA earthquake but she wound up with a college student from Santa Cruz, 5 cats belonging to temporarily homeless relatives and all of her daughter's office equipment. After getting used to the confusion she enjoyed the participation. She says her family's Christmas from her this year was a check to the Salvation Army's Relief Fund. A Christmas card and sweet note from Sally Ainsworth Glass had as usual no word about herself but she is still in Fayetteville, AR keeping house for her brother and sounds well and happy. Ruth Remon McRae had a lovely 10 days in Europe during April traveling with friends to Rome, Paris and Malta. They stayed at the American Embassy in Valletta on Malta and were royally entertained. Her grandson who is in SHAPE in Belgium joined them in London. In June of '90 she is going to Bermuda aboard the Queen of Bermuda, and Ted Clary Treadwell and Ben will be along also. Marion (Pat) Malm Fowler wrote that Mac experienced a mild stroke and their activities have slowed down greatly. However, he is improving and they are both very thankful. I hope he will continue to get better and better and they can resume their busy life but at a slower pace. They had a wonderful family reunion for their granddaughter Kim's wedding last April.

Eleanor Franke Crawford wrote a nice letter from her retirement home in New Orleans. 1989 was traumatic for her with a hip replacement, lots of physical therapy and sitters around the clock. She moved to a smaller but more attractive apartment there at Stanton Manor and she gets around with a walker which folds up for trips away from home. She feels so fortunate to have her son and family in New Orleans; they bring much joy to her. For the first time she sent Sweet Briar bulbs for Christmas presents and has received glowing reports of their successful flowering. Billie Hancel Pearson's card from Los Angeles proclaimed her big news of the year was becoming a great grandmother! His name is Graham McClendon Davis. Billie's granddaughter who married a Virginian, gave birth to this beautiful child. Barbara Munter Purdue and Bob stopped by Atlanta Nov. 1st to spend a day and night with me on their fall trek east to visit children and grands. One son-in-law was a football coach at the U. of AL and of course when the U. of AL went to the Sugar Bowl game there was great excitement in the Purdue ranks, and all went to New Orleans the day after Christmas where they had a week of fun and sight-seeing before the game. They spent most of Feb. in HI as usual and looked forward to seeing Marge Gubelman Hastert ('31) and Mildred Larimer again. Mildred Larimer wrote that she is fine except for a million minor ailments, and very active. She just started volunteer work with "Meals on Wheels," and can't realize she has been retired and living in Honolulu for the past 23 years. Susan (Tiny) Marshall Timberlake sent me the sad news of her husband, Wayt's death in April '89. She moved in Dec. to a retirement complex in Staunton, VA. We send our love and deepest sympathy to her. Suzanne Gay Linville says they recently celebrated Ed's 80th birthday. They like Scarsdale as a retirement place and enjoy their house and garden. They are going to Antigua soon to spend 5 weeks in the sun.

From Tampa, Eleanor Wright Conway says "1989 began with the exciting arrival of great grandson Daniel Walter Helmer in an ambulance on the way to the hospital in Fairbanks, AK - temperature 40 BELOW ZERO! 1989 ended with a heartwarming visit from 11-month-old Daniel, his parents Meg and David, and his grandparents Ruth and Walter Wilms. In between there were visits with friends and family, a trip to Durham to see our good friends at Duke. Daughter Laura Conway Nason ('61) came for a visit in Sept. and daughter Ruth and son-in-law Walter Wilms came in Nov. for Thanksgiving and our 54th wedding anniversary." Marjorie Miller Close and Jack visited some of the wilder parts of the Northern British Columbia coast by train, bus, boat, plane, and a little on foot! Then on to Vancouver to visit their daughter. She has just read Dorothy Smith Berkeley's and Edmund's latest book George William Featherstonhaugh — most interesting. The Berkeleys spent several days with Marjorie and Jack at Ile Bizard, great fun for all 4 of them. Their daughter, Judith Berkeley Harrison ('60) is an R.N. specializing in preemies; she and her husband are going to HI in March to a neo-natal convention, and will visit some of the islands. They had a wonderful 3 - week vacation in New Zealand and Papeete last Fall.

Eleanor Nolte Armstrong wrote from San Antonio: she is well and content with her retirement home and enjoys all old and new friends there, and the comfortable, pleasant life. Emily Maxwell Littlepage's daughter and husband moved to Atlanta and live a few doors from Lib Douglass Foote. Emily also reported that last winter ('89) she drove to Naples, FL from Sarasota where she spends winters, for the Sweet Briar luncheon. She said it was great and she enjoyed seeing so many old friends. She spent the night with Hazel Stamps Collins and they had a good visit. I hope Emily will come to Atlanta to see her daughter and we can get together. Amalie Frank Kohn's main activity is visiting and traveling with members of her family, the most recent being a delightful Christmas in Granada, WI. Two grandchildren graduate from college in June; 1 at Haverford and 1 at Yale. The proud grandmother will attend both. Recently she talked on the phone to Lib Doughtie Bethea and they discussed our 60th reunion in '92 and hope to attend. I hope lots of us make it! Virginia Squibb (Squibby) Flynn reported how enjoyable the SBC luncheon was in Naples, FL Feb. '89. The Flynn's and Sue Burnett Davis and Tread were together in Naples for a lovely week and Squibby is very grateful for that. Sue's death last Aug. saddened her tremendously — they'd been devoted friends since they were roommates at SB. Squibby has 2 grandsons at Duke, 1 at Colby, 1 in Australia for a year and her granddaughter Ginny has a good job in Washington.

Margaret Ellen Bell Hare and Stan spent Christmas in Staunton, VA and got back to Westchester in spite of the weather. They are well and happy, just celebrated Stan's 80th birthday. Margaret Ellen said she recently had a birthday to contend with and she is not going to have any more! Marcia Patterson's cousin, Beth Zehnder, as usual sent us news of Marcia — very good news. She is at Westminster Terrace Retirement Home in Columbus, OH where she is lovingly cared for. 1989 was a good year for Marcia; she made trips to the zoo with Beth and her 1-yr.-old nephew. To a restaurant and to the Ohio State Fair, to a family birthday party, Thanksgiving dinner and to Beth's daughter's wedding. Her spirit is beautiful to behold! Bett West Etheridge had a delightful visit with Courtenay Cochran Ticer. She and 3 friends from VA Beach drove to Williamsburg Landing where Courtenay lives and all 4 visited different friends there for several days. They all got together for lunch, cocktails and dinner. I saw Courtenay just last week. She was in Atlanta (Marietta) for Christmas and several weeks afterwards with daughter, Courtenay, and granddaughter Kelly. Young Courtenay lost her husband in a tragic automobile accident when Kelly was a few months old. She is marrying again this week. Courtenay had lunch with Lib Douglas Foote and me and we had such a nice time. She is her same sweet old self, looks great, is slim and elegant. Her granddaughter, Catherine Ticer, graduated from Ohio State in June '89. Elizabeth Layfield Smith wrote that her husband, Orville died 11/9/89. He had been ill for a long time. Our love and sympathy go to her. Lib keeps busy with art and many organizations. Two daughters live in Denver and another in San Francisco with their families. A grandson, a Princeton graduate working in NY will enter Harvard Business School next fall.

The Alumnae Office sent news of a significant award given to Sally Shallenburger Brown by the Nature Conservancy. "She helped establish the Kentucky Chapter and has been a leader and supporter of its programs for the past 15 years. She has obtained numerous corporate, foundation and individual gifts to support the Conservancy's programs, including the Kentucky Heritage Program. She also served 3 years on the National Board of Governors, where she chaired the Development and Communications Committee and helped launch the very successful Land Preservation Fund Campaign, which she successfully supported with a generous gift in memory of her husband." How proud we are of Sally receiving her green and gold Oakleaf lapel pin!

Stuart Groner Moreno returned her card with the sad news of Betsy Higgins Plummer. She and Jack on their way to Tuscaloosa, AL stopped in Montgomery and had a lovely visit with Betsy. She had sold her house and was full of plans for building a small one. A friend in Montgomery called Stuart on Dec. 19th to tell her Betsy was in the hospital — and she died the next day. Stuart was feeling very sad and blue but added that she and Jack are well and happy and can't believe they are so old! Marjorie (Pat) Ward Cross retired last April from her job as a guide at Winterthur Museum and immediately had an offer from a school in Wilmington, DE to teach a class in American Furniture — which she had been teaching the people she guided at Winterthur for years! I had a letter from her last Oct. saying she had so much fun with the class — 56 men and women, that ended up with a visit to Winterthur. She will repeat the whole thing in March and April 1990. Last June Lib Douglass Foote and I plus her daughter, Bea, and another friend set out on a week's trip to Winterthur. I called Pat to tell her and she said, "I've just retired — 2 weeks ago!" But she arranged for her best friend to guide us, and we had a wonderful time. Pat was so good to us — took us to lunch at the beautiful Wilmington Country Club and sight-seeing around the countryside.

Had a grand letter from Alice Dabney Parker telling of interesting travels to Egypt and Jordan, then 3 weeks in London where she took a small flat while enjoying many sorties through the countryside. She enjoyed grocery shopping, etc. Much different from a tourist-eye view. She sounds cheerful and happy. I saw Peggy Hall in Wilmington, NC last Oct. She suffers from back trouble but physical therapy helps greatly. She has an apartment near the country club with lots of friends close by and gets out with them. Nancy Wilson Mann's card says, "I have some small success in painting and writing, 3 watercolors accepted by a juried show in Norfolk and 2 short pieces in the magazine "Olde Town" in Portsmouth. I hope to stay in my house until the end. It is surprising I am so well, since before I took myself off Prednizone I was expected to die about 3 years ago, and now the cancer is in remission by means of one chemotherapy pill, chlorambucil. I send these details because I know there are others who suffer from the medicine rather than the disease. Often the medicine is not necessary. All is well with my 7 grandchildren and their parents. My wishes for your happiness."

Henrietta Bryan Alphin and Tom enjoy their country life near Charlottesville and restoring the old ante-bellum farm house. They raise lots of "veggies" which she cans in summer, using the old Victory garden pressure canner which still works! And summer brings visits from children and grands who enjoy fishing and swimming in the river. My love to you all!

Your scribe had 38 replies to her requests for news. Of these, 19 reported travel! How exciting that after 54 years 'tis thus. Peggy Huxley Dick: "Last May I took my youngest grandchild to Bavaria and Austria. Otherwise my traveling has been to see children and grandchildren Idaho to NJ." Anne Thomson Smith: "Am off to Austria, Yugoslavia, Roumania, Hungary to cruise the Danube for a week with the American Museum of Natural History." Pinkie Scott: "I've been really traveling this year - in the spring to France, Normandy and Brittany, and in August 3 weeks in Russia, the Caucasus, and Moldavia, also Helsinki, of course." Connie Young Gilchrist: "I am leaving tomorrow for the Cayman Islands with my son (who will fly us down), his wife and sons. In October I went on a fascinating trip up the Amazon River to the headwaters in Peru and visited several remote Indian villages." Alice Andrews Fackert: "Tell the 1936ers that the most interesting place Bill and I saw in 1989 was a museum at Kleinburg, Ontario, The McMichael." Ruth Robinson Marshall "went to southern England for 2 weeks with my brother and sister, and I am going to be Mary Willingham's guest in her FL home, Feb. 1st." La Donohue McCormack: "Have just returned to cold, snowy wintery WI after 12 delightful days in warm sunny Mesa, AZ with 1 of my sons and family." Maria Gray Valentine Curtis (excitedly): "Ted and I took a cruise through the Panama Canal last Feb. with Jackie Moore Hootnagle and Bill and Logan Phinizy Johns" who writes that the same group this coming Feb. plans to go on an Amazon Cruise. Margaret Lloyd Bush writes: "Bill and I had a fabulous trip to Egypt in Oct." and also Myra Kin Carr Baldwin: "I took my son and his wife to England last fall to see my daughter and family who live there." Nancy Hicks Blanton: "Busy year with trips to Barbados, Bermuda and Hawaii and Italy." Arne Susong Jones: "Now slowly recovering from hip replacement surgery, I look forward to dancing aboard the Royal Viking Sun in June on our golden wedding anniversary. We have reservations for a cruise to Bermuda with our 3 sons and 2 daughters — 2 of whom will also be celebrating anniversaries." Emily Bowen Muller: "We enjoy winter trips to summer places — Singapore and Kuala Lumpur in Feb. In June we joined a very small study as members of the Herb Society of America to find wild herbs in Switzerland." Martha Horner Maxwell: "Just back from the Gator Bowl — a trip to the Cayman Islands for fishing." Lucille Scott Knoke's sister took her on a cruise aboard the Royal Viking Star to Anchorage, AK in July. Mary Virginia Camp Smith: "I love to travel — went to Bermuda last June and England in June and July. Plan to fly to Hong Kong last of Feb. '90 and take the Vistafjord to Mombasa, Kenya, calling at Singapore, Thailand, the Maldives and Seychelles Islands." Here in Fredericksburg Phillis Teed Waffle reports that she, her husband, sons, and grandchildren went to Europe this summer and Robert and I had a delightful Smithsonian sponsored cruise on the Mississippi from New Orleans to Memphis aboard the Delta Queen in April.

Not all 36ers traveled. Sophia Campbell Brown and Ed have done landscaping and enjoyed concerts at Sweet Briar. "Chic" Gregory is still in Cambridge in her 'delightful apartment' (in Dec.), will be home in Richmond for a month, then back to Cambridge — for research. Martha Williams Tim unfortunately tells us "both Jack and I had for the last years nothing but physical difficulties to talk about." Sally Doughtie Crill Crocker says, "I am busy on Board of Garden Club of America and Women's Council Board of Cleveland Museum of Art. The Garden Club of America surprised me by presenting me with a medal of Merit."

And news came of children, grandchildren and great grandchildren. Frances Marshall Baker Lamb: "Glad to report that younger son David Owen was married to a lovely gal in Oct. New age touches: the bridesmaids were 2 lawyers and a doctor and the bride is the only female partner in her law firm." And "my younger son got married in July — so now all 4 children married." "My days are full and active," writes Marjorie Wing Todd. And to the grandchildren... "Two nifty grandchildren — Nikki, 19, with whom I had a ball last spring in London and Paris and Taylor, 6+, 'a real piece of work' and fun to be around" from Connie Warner McElhinney. And "I had a delightful time with my 2 sons and my daughters and their spouses and with 3 of my 4 grandsons at the Oct. 7 wedding of oldest grandson Russell Cook, an attorney married to an attorney," Lillian Steele Cook reports. From Lynchburg 2 grandmothers: Ruth Gilliam Viar: "New granddaughter born 5/6/88 — so just enjoy the grandchildren, 6 of whom are here in Lynchburg," and Smitty Thomasson: "Oldest granddaughter will be married in May. Our oldest grandson will graduate from college. Another granddaughter will be a messenger for a senator at the General Assembly this year". Jane Shelton Bowers has 13 grands — at Vanderbilt, Davidson, Annapolis, Westminster, Atlanta, Westminster, Augusta — and the junior at Augusta is interested in SBC. Finally in a unique sentence for the times — Elizabeth Fesser MacLeay can say — "Still married to the same man. Still have same 3 children, also 12 grandchildren and new 6 greats".

Three of our classmates have moved: Suzanne Moot Strother moved to another house in the same area in Dobbs Ferry, 57 Bellewood Avenue; Kin Baldwin and sister move to Westminster Canterbury, Virginia Beach, February 20; and Elizabeth Morton Hodges' new address is 4224 Hilton Place, Lynchburg.

With sorrow I send news of 2 deaths. Dorothea McClure Mountain's husband died one year ago and she moved to Clemson, SC to be near her daughter, 2 granddaughters and 1 great grandson. Lucille Scott Knoke writes, "After 15 joyful years of retirement in Asheville, my wonderful husband for 54 years died on 4/2/88."

A joyful note: not a grandchild, but a mother is praised. Chloe Fort Lenderman's ('62) mother, Chloe Frierson Fort, recently had a book published, A Variety of Verse for the Very Young, a smashing success. A bit of humor: Margaret Gregory Cukor writes one sentence — "I can only say that the golden stairs are far more attractive than the golden years."

Memories of a super once-in-a-lifetime 50th Reunion still keep those who were able to attend on Cloud 9. One of the nicest things about preparing for Reunion, was trying to locate "lost" class members and finding Jane Baker Grant in Thomaston, ME, where she is a social worker with the Bureau of ME's

Elderly. She now works closer to her Frenchman's Bay-Hancock Point home and nearer to her 95-year-old aunt in a nursing home in Bar Harbor. Jane's 2 children and 4 grandchildren live in NYC. Jane recently had a 2nd hip replacement. She and Clara Sasscer Chandler, of Chevy Chase, MD keep in touch.

Helen Cornwell Jones' 3-year-old granddaughter appeared on p.7 of the summer '89 SBC alumnae magazine, being interviewed for the Class of 2008! Several merry 50th reunions are on the Jones' calendar: husband, Homer's 50th at W&L this past May; Helen's in June at SBC; and their 50th wedding anniversary in 1991. Virginia Leggett Cameron's first card brought news of the death of Jane Furniss Simpson in Feb. '89. Living only 3 miles apart in the West Palm Beach, FL, area brought those 2 roommates together. Ginny, after an adult life of being a care-giver, can now relax a bit but not in a rocker. She likes her FL gardens and still teaches Parapsychology.

Anne Conant Weaver commutes between her home in Grand Lake, CO, and another home in Mahone Bay, Nova Scotia, with her 2 big dogs. Anne won a Cup at Grand Lake Yacht Club. Anne also goes to 10 schools in 3 counties, giving DAR awards and speeches. Mildred Moon Montague is enjoying being President of T.C. Thompson Children's Hospital Foundation; their 4th Telethon in Chattanooga raised more than any other Telethon in that city for the 4th straight year. After 3 grandsons in the Montague family, the 1st granddaughter arrived 8/89. The eldest grandson is 3rd year at UVA. One son was in the San Francisco earthquake but was not injured.

Constance (Connie) Chalkley Kittler's 2 sons each had sons 2 days apart. The total now is 7 grandsons and 1 granddaughter. Kit and Connie enjoy life in the Ware Neck, VA countryside and in their Washington, D.C. apartment. In Oct. '89, they attended Kit's 50th Naval Academy reunion, where Connie saw classmates Anna Mae Feuchtenberger Stuart and Mary Sue Kilham Davis. In Nov., at Dulles Airport Connie saw Ruth Collins Henry, there to welcome Ruth's handsome son home from Germany. Reba Smith Gromel and George moved to Midlothian, VA, closer to their son and his family. Both Reba and George are in good health. Maria (Phoopy) Burroughs Livingston is alive and well in Hudson, NY. Phoopy enjoyed seeing Margaret (Parge) Woods Gillette and family at a wild family reunion of the artist, F. E. Church's descendants at an exhibition of his works at the National Gallery in DC. Phoopy's hobbies are her grandchildren, the beauty of our country and history.

Emory Gill Williams and husband

Carrington also enjoy their family, 14 of whom were gathered at the Williams' Irvington, VA home for Thanksgiving. In Dec. Emory and Carrington go to Richmond for the winter. A trip was taken in Jan. '90 to Madeira and the Canary Islands. Emory's St. Catherine's Centennial Celebration in May '90 was exciting. Blair Bunting Both and Dick moved in May '89 to a home not far from their former one, then had all 3 offspring with a 3-year-old gathered for a Wilmington tradition, the Hagley Fireworks. Daughter Blair loves her work at St. Michael's Church (Episc.) in Raleigh, NC and mother and daughter attended reunions at SBC this past June, a 50th and a 25th. Our Blair still helps the Hospice and Soup Kitchen in Wilmington. Husband Dick's keen interest is horticulture.

Polly Boze Glascock, along with her real estate contacts, was our successful Class Reunion Gifts Chairman and still kept a schedule of tennis, duplicate bridge and weekly French lessons, taking theatre trips with Jim into NYC from time to time from their home in Short Hills, NJ. Their son lives in NYC but the family dachshund resides with Polly and Jim. Louise Partrick Newton's husband Francis is on his 3rd round as chairman of the Classics Dept. at Duke Univ., but they look forward to handing it over in '90. Louise has been helping him on a translation into Latin of an Arabic Medieval ms. Their grown family also loves languages and the classics: their eldest son, married with one child, teaches Chinese and is in Library School. The eldest daughter, married with 2 children, is starting on a social work graduate degree while the youngest daughter, as yet unmarried, is working on a Ph.D. in Classics at UVA. The youngest son, married with 2 children, works at the Research Triangle in Durham.

Mary Sue Kilham Davis.

Alexandria, VA, says that her 3 children are grown, with their own children. Mary Sue is active with cultural groups. She saw Connie Chalkley Kittler at the Naval Academy's 50th homecoming last year. Irene Vongehr Vincent writes from the Seattle area of Bainbridge Island, WA. Irene won out over a cancer scare and helped a daughter through a divorce. Then she and John visited 2 of their distant children: 1 in CT and 1 in CA. Irene attended a noteworthy school reunion in Oct. in China at the boarding school that both Irene and Helen Taylor attended, the Kuling American School. Thirty-three alumni and spouses, some children and even grandchildren went on a month's tour of China. All was wonderful, but Irene missed Helen.

Helen Taylor, M.D., retired, likes her switch to apartment living in Norfolk, VA. Life is made lively by her 12 nieces and nephews, their spouses and 9 grandnieces and grandnephews.

She still volunteers in a hospital and at church. Florence Merrill Pilkington wrote from FL over Thanksgiving while at a 45th family gathering, which she, Dick and 2 children, spouses and 1 granddaughter celebrated at the Hillsboro Club. Florence and Dick purchased a condo on Hawthorne St. in Washington, DC, about 6 blocks from where they lived for the past 36 years, and are trying to "capsule" their house into an apartment. Florence spends time with a vestry assignment, driving for Meals-on-Wheels and exercise classes. Their granddaughter is 2nd year at Brown U. and plays rugby!

Agnes Spencer Burke, also in Washington, DC, tells of her middle daughter and husband, 3 children and 3 cats moving to Grosse Pointe Farms in MI as he is now with GM. Last fall, Agnes was in Keswick, VA with her youngest daughter and family: then Christmas in San Francisco with her son and family. Back home, Agnes has had some good chats with Margaret (Parge) Woods Gillette and Beth Thomas Mason. She also wrote that Stuart Hensley Woodward moved from Alexandria. Beth Thomas Mason's highlight of '89 was a family reunion on the Olympic Peninsula, state of WA. All children and grandchildren from 5 to 17 yrs. congregated for a week there last June. Lots of tennis, fishing, exploring, golf and superb seafood. Beth's husband's UVA. 50th reunion ended 10 days before Beth's 50th began at SBC: they tried to get in both. Janet Martin Bennett and husband enjoy retirement, with the months of Oct.-April being in Siesta Key, FL, and the reverse months are in Indianapolis, IN.

Eleanor (Ellie) Snow Lea and Tat tried something new, maple syruping, tapping their own trees but allowing farmer neighbors to boil the sap. Last Aug., they rented a cottage on Lake St. Catherine, for the children. The Leas arranged a rental for Connie Currie Fleming and El next door, and with Blair Bunting Both and Dick's visiting the Leas at the same time, a mini-reunion happened in Pawlet, VT. Ellie does flower and vegetable gardening, knitting and library and historical society work while Tat is busy making, refinishing and repairing furniture and making toys for the grandchildren. In the town of Concord, MA, Elizabeth (Ivy) Ivins Haskins' new addition to their home of 2 years has just been completed, outside of which Bill planted 250 SBC bulbs. Two sons are nearby with 2 teenage grandsons: 1 daughter, her M.D. husband and 2 boys are in Boston; a 3rd son and lawyer wife live in Denver with a young boy and girl. Ivy's Bill is half-time at Harvard while Ivy is busy with grandchildren, social work, tennis, bridge, Museum of Fine Arts and Boston Symphony. Their summers are still spent in Wianno, MA.

Georgia Herbert Hart's George retired in '89 and the hard adjustment has helped him find where he is needed, which in turn helped his health. They traveled to visit children in AL and MN; 8 grandchildren make them very proud. A trip to a cousin in Northwest Canada was great, and then in July, Georgia and George visited Carrington (Carrie) Lancaster Pasco and Merrill in Bath County, VA, where they canoed in the Cow Pasture River for a venturesome 2 hours. Then on to Lexington, a picnic at VMI and outdoor drama at the Lime Kiln Theatre. Their year ended with surviving "Hugo". In Belmont, CA, Jacqueline (Jackie) Sexton Daley's oldest son and 1 of his daughters live with her which has been a great help as Jackie's husband died last June. He had been an invalid for 13 years so her life has changed dramatically. She had a mastectomy in Feb. '89 but no further treatment was necessary. In Oct. She traveled to London, then to Nairobi to see her African "daughters."

Class President, Clara Call Frazier, has not only been busy preparing for our 50th, but also settling into a new home and life in Bristol, TN, after 34 years in Southern CA. Clara's only daughter and her 5-year-old lively daughter live with Clara and Bill on the TN side of Bristol, while Clara's sister lives on the VA side of the same town. Marion Daudt McBride's (Chesterfield, MO) favorite activities are bridge, needlepoint, reading, church work and travel. Last year a cruise took her to the northern capitals of Europe. A joyful card from C. P. Neel in Atlanta, GA, said that '89 was a quiet year with only 1 hospital trip, but several pleasure trips to Lake Lanier where she sailed with her son and family. C.P. also visited Katherine Hodge Soaper and Margaret Katterjohn McCollom in Henderson, KY, continuing to Memphis where C.P. lived for 18 years, to see relatives and old friends, among them Jane McPherson, SBC '44. Marjorie Lee Stock Clemens told of an '89 Elderhostel trip to Ireland, Scotland and London. After a Sept. trip to the Shaw Festival at Niagara-on-the-Lake, Marjorie spent Thanksgiving with her son and family in Bethlehem, PA. She was with 1 of the 2 daughters over Christmas after the 2nd daughter visited with 2 grandchildren from CA in the fall at Marjorie's home in St. Joseph, MI. That CA family was in the midst of the '89 earthquake but not injured. Marjorie volunteers at the St. Joseph library, is on the Advisory Council for St. Joseph Today, and a member of the Heritage Society and the Monday Musical Club.

Cecilia (Teedie) MacKinnon Ballard in May just before our 50th Reunion was at a Memorial Day family reunion on an island off ME where she had new entry steps at the church dedicated in memory of her husband, Ted, who died in '88. She then had a

1/2-hour boat ride from this island in order to head south to SBC. One of "Teedie"'s sons lives in Rockville, MD where the family gathered with 6 grandchildren for Christmas. Although all her children live in the East, "Teedie" has stayed in her apartment in Evanston, IL where she is becoming a portrait painter, but her summers are spent in ME. Doing research about a private secretary to George Washington, who also knew Napoleon and Prince Talleyrand, has given her some fun. Mary Petty Johnston Bedell sent a Richmond Times-Dispatch 11/89 review of a new book by Mary Lee Settle (Tazewell). My Cleveland Plain Dealer also had a good review.

Constance (Connie) Currie Fleming has been hop-scotching between FL in the fall, Christmas at home in Chatham, NJ, then a return to FL. After June's 50th on campus, Connie and Eliot will travel to Princeton for his 55th. Both Fleming grandsons are ice hockey players, but Connie prefers golf and tennis. Another tennis player is Jane Westphalen Gray of St. Louis who plays 2 times a week, and gardens in the summer, sees her 7 grandchildren and travels, most recently to HI. In the fall of '90 a 50th wedding anniversary is to be spent in Europe on a cruise. Jane caught our Reunion fever and had fun talking over old times with Emory Gill Williams. Barbara Smith Whitlock is in touch with "Ivy" Haskins and Connie Fleming as well as with her own family of 4, who with their children travel home to Hillside, NJ from CA, NJ, NY. They have been most helpful now that their father is not well, being confined to bed and wheelchair. However, Barbara and Jim were able to spend the mid-summer weeks at their shore home in Mautoloking, NJ.

Rosemary Bjorge Johnson wrote last Thanksgiving from Eagle Ridge, near Galena, IL. There Rosemary and Dick celebrated their 47th wedding anniversary as well as Thanksgiving in a lovely villa. The summer brought the whole family home to Cross Plains, WI, where all 45 members of the Johnson family gathered at nearby Cedar Lake. In Aug., 1 daughter and Rosemary went on an Alaskan Cruise. Back home Dick makes beautiful things (such as clocks) in his woodworking shop and Rosemary volunteers and took a class in Journal and Reminiscence Writing. Jane Burnett Hill visited her son and family over the holidays in Wellesley Hills, MA, after driving 8,000 miles in 8 weeks from her home in Tucson, AZ. After Christmas, Jane went to Australia and New Zealand for 2 months, taking in the Australian Open (tennis) and an opera at the Sydney Opera House. After attending 50th Reunion, she will wander the East coast hoping to find company for an Elderhostel 6-day Windjammer Cruise out of Bar Harbor the end of June.

Helen Margaret Woodward Countess retired from the Civil Service and lives in Huntsville, AL. Kathleen Ward Allen's husband caught a bug in China 3/89 and still has not regained full strength. Therefore their future travel plans are indefinite, whether to SBC or to visit daughter and family in NY state. Watson and Mildred (Mickie) Mitchell Gillis were on Cape Cod last summer with a daughter and all 5 grandsons; their son could not come. Then they drove home to Ormond Beach, FL via SBC. Mary Miller (Naquin) Sharp and Bob travel for the World Federation of Friends of Museums, being in Europe several months at a time. When back in the USA, they are either in Baltimore or Gibson Island or Chipquoit on Cape Cod, to found a new U.S. Foundation for NWWFFM and to see family and friends. Jean Blount Blount and Mary met with their husbands on Nantucket last year. Mary's daughter, writing her 4th book on Chinese History, is Professor of Chinese History at the U. of PA. Mary regrets missing Reunion; she was in Spain.

Katherine Hodge Soaper was presented with her 1st granddaughter 4/89. She and their neighbors are having fun watching Kay's youngest son build a cabin of 40 ft. hand-hewn square logs of cedar in the middle of their farm overlooking a mosquito-infested pond! Another 1st grandchild arrived in the family of Hortense Powell Cooper of Shelbyville, TN last winter. Of her 3 sons, only 1 is married, he being the congressman from TN, whose wife, Martha Hays Cooper is SBC '76. Hortense's youngest son is a Vice President at Shearson-Lehman-Hutton in NYC; her eldest is nearby in Nashville. Hortense is active on civic and historical commissions, the National Society of Colonial Dames and tries to keep up with the momentous events all over the world. Ann Adamson Taylor remains active with the Baltimore City Republican Central Committee and is President of the Hopkins Women's Republican Club, which keeps the Baltimore Republican h.q. open 5 days a week. This year Ann won an award and plaque from the Baltimore City Republican Party and one from the MD Republican Party. Daughter, Sally Taylor, SBC '70, cannot attend her 20th Reunion along with her mother for her 50th because Sally will be in Hong Kong, where she works for International Publishers.

Another "Hugo" area resident, Betty Hammer Morrell of North Myrtle Beach, SC had no serious damage. She still plays golf. Betty and Donald try to get to Europe every year, or to Canada. Their son is in Denver, CO, daughter in New Orleans. The only news from Martha Rector McGee of Roanoke, VA is that she will not be able to make Reunion regrettably, but she will be at our 55th for certain! Ruth Mealand Schwartz also tries to keep up with international news, being actively interested in the family internationally-oriented company. Besides garden club commitments, my therapy, as well as Laurence's, is tending our landscaped wildflower and SBC bulb garden, starting an herb garden, and attending arboretum classes and museum programs. My husband has been doing some inventing: our son, his wife and I then try our hands at the testing and marketing. We see our daughter and family, including 2 grandsons, about once a year; this year they joined us for a family wedding and reunion in the antique-shop-and-Amish-countryside area of greater Philadelphia the weekend before our 50th Reunion, with the days in between these weekends spent visiting at our daughter's Northern VA home.

It has been gratifying to hear from so many of you these past 5 years. I have truly enjoyed renewing friendships and know that the next Class Secretary will have a rewarding 5 years.

Many thanks to all who answered my plea for news. You confirm my opinion that 1944 is Sweet Briar's finest class!

Muriel Abrash Schapiro traveled with husband Irwin last summer to Santa Fe, NM and to Las Vegas, NV, where son, Harry Salzberg, is director of corporate affairs for Vanderbilt Gold Stock Corporation. They took Harry's 3 Richmond-based children with them and visited Harry, Alice and their daughter, Leslie. Mugsie has retired as librarian, but still volunteers in the library. She enjoys 3 book clubs and still gives reports. She's also editor of the Hadassah Bulletin. Daughter Bambi and Bert Jones and their daughter, Harley live in Richmond.

Betsy Bryant Robb writes: '89 has been an exciting year. Traveled to Kenya (best trip I ever took), retired from my profession (traveling embroidery teacher), planned to settle down and write a book on silk and metal threads, listened to friends who wanted me to run for Durham's City Council, paid my filing fee, campaign, won the election (to my great surprise) and am serving on our Council. So much for the grandmother circuit! AARP will love me!"

Margy Brendlinger Robinson and Walt welcomed 1st grandson in Dec. They have 3 granddaughters and another grandchild expected in March. Margy had a great reunion with Hattie Tavenner Owens in Sept. Margy and Walt planned to spend Jan. and Feb. in FL. Helen Crump Cutler (FL) writes that lots of traveling and lots of visitors have kept them busy. Betty Haverly Smith and Alex were staying near them in a beach condo owned by Rawson Haverly. "Tee" Tift Porter had also been at her family beach house with 4 or 5 friends, including Longe. Crump and Jack plan to be in London from Feb. till early April.

Dot Devore Platt's husband Harry retired in 1979: they now spend about half their time at Cashiers, in the mountains of NC, and play a lot of tennis. Their son, his wife and 3 girls live in Jacksonville, where Dot and Harry see them often when they're in residence. Daughter Robin (SBC '82) lives in Houston. She is married to astronaut Jim Wetherbee, who was co-pilot of the Columbia shuttle in January! They have 2 daughters. Ellen Boyd Duval Miller and Billy had a wonderful trip in Sept. to Scotland, the Borders and the English Lake District.

Marty Falk Vallery writes that Norma Bradley Arnold and Joe were with them in FL on several occasions. Marty and husband Harry spent Christmas in SC with daughter Judy and family. They had 5 inches of snow—the 1st white Christmas there in 50 years! Marty and Harry kept busy—playing golf and doing the things one does in FL on a 6-month basis. As Marty puts it—"leading an absolutely worthless life and loving it!" Betty Farinholt Cockrill says that this has been a "year of Reunions" for them: Jim's 45th at USNA, hers at SBC, her 50th at Annapolis H.S., plus several family weddings and mini-reunions with friends. Mildred Faulconer Bryant writes: "I will be a great grandmother in the spring."

We all send our sympathy and love to Eleanor Goodspeed Abbott, whose husband, Larry, died last summer. Goody's son and family live in Toronto and her daughter and her husband live in Amherst, MA. Goody, in close touch with Hannah Perkins, reports that she has bought a condo in Tappahannock, VA.

Martha Lee Hoffman McCoy and Mac both came down with flu right after Christmas, which delayed their departure for Marco Island, where they spent Jan., Feb. and March. Their grandson was accepted early decision at William and Mary and their granddaughter is State Senator Stanley Walker's page. Sally Hollerith Nietsch and husband Erich live in Upper Montclair, NJ. She keeps very busy with church work and garden club. They are enjoying their grandson, aged 2, whenever they get to CT to see his parents in New Canaan. Their daughter, Betsy, has been made president of a software company in MA. Sally and Erich went on a Royal Viking North Cape cruise last summer, enjoyed it greatly. Alice Hepburn Puleston is now in her 31st year of singing with the St. Paul's Episcopal choir in Minneapolis. She and her son, Chuck, daughter-in-law Pam, 14-year-old granddaughter Nikki and 7-year-old grandson Charlie went to Europe in Oct., motoring through Germany, France and England.

Persis Ladd Herold's life has been busy since May. Her youngest son was married in Sept. "and now I have a daughter, finally, whom I adore." Later in Sept. she had another reunion—her 8th grade class in Germany! It had been over 50 years since she had seen most of her classmates but her rusty German didn't interfere with lots of good talk. Sydney Holmes Bales is still a tax consultant and Bill enjoys retirement—writing when the spirit moves him. They expect a 2nd grandchild in mid-March. Syd is lavish in her praise of our president, Louise Smith Norton and her efforts in behalf of Sweet Briar. She has organized several events for the Long Island area and, along with Syd, has planned our 1st mini-reunion, to be held in May at Williamsburg. Syd had seen Helen Cantey Woodbridge, who is a successful real estate agent, as well as Mary Churchill Van de Water, who is retired and happy.

Nancy Ann Eagles O'Bannon had a busy year. She spent a weekend in Del Ray with Cappy Price Bass '45 and Bruce. While she was there Brad had a SBC luncheon, which was attended by Marty Falk Vallery and Katherine Agee Atkins '45. Nancy Ann had a marvelous trip through the Peloponnesus and a boat trip through the Greek Islands. Both of Nancy Ann and Whit's daughters teach at an Episcopal high school in Louisville, KY. Peggy Gordon Seiler writes that Bob retired on Oct. 1 as executive director of the Shepherd's Center of Richmond, which he started 5 years ago. It's an ecumenical project which matches up elderly volunteers with other older people who need assistance, such as driving, shopping, handyman services, etc. It also co-sponsors a Free University (non-credit classes taught mostly by retirees) with Virginia Commonwealth University. Bob has simply moved from staff to volunteer and, like Peg, is involved in many community activities. Their daughter-in-law will graduate 5/18 from the Virginia Theological Seminary in Alexandria, VA.

Louise Konsberg Noll retired on 9/1/88 after 12 years as assistant medical librarian at St. Barnabas Medical Center in Maplewood, NJ. Son, Bill, Jr., his wife and 4 children live near them. Daughter Penny and husband live near Syracuse and have a son and baby daughter. Ellie LaMotte Trippe lives in Easton, MD. She's a housewife and sometime volunteer. She had a great visit with Ricky and Ted Chadsey last spring. Ellie and Barclay's younger daughter lives on a farm nearby; their older daughter is in Richmond. Alice Lancaster Buck and Pete plan to go on a 3-week Elderhostel in April to Wales, southern Ireland and England. Alice and Pete are busier than ever since retirement. Pete still works 3 days a week as an "adjunct employee" or consultant for IDA, and both of them are in church activities. Alice and Betty Williams Gookin still play tennis together every Monday.

Sloan Hawkins Ward reports that husband Si continues to work full-time, but no weekend or night calls. "Bliss!" All their children were home at Christmas and it was a disaster—coldest weather in New Orleans in 100 years: all houses lost heat and/or water. The children were glad to go back north to get warm! Daughter Lisa has one little boy and another baby due in March. Anita Lippett Clay looks forward to our mini-reunion in Williamsburg. Carol Myers Hunter invited her to stay in her condo while there.

Frances Longino Shroeder writes: It has been a wonderful but very busy year. Following graduations and our SBC reunion, I packed one graduate off to London for a year and the other off to Memphis where she is living. Then Tee, Ricie, another old friend and I went to see Alice Johnson Fessenden and Salt Lake City, Bryce Canyon, Zion National Park and Las Vegas. Alice looked marvelous and Bill is coming along slowly and courageously from his double leg amputations. Next Hughes and I took a few days to search his roots in KY. In Sept. I had my first cataract operation (performed by Margie Troutman Hardin's ('42) son). I visited daughter Beth in London for a week after Thanksgiving. Then a very busy Christmas with 2 daughters and their friends (male) visiting. They left just in time for my second cataract surgery. Now all is well."

Babe Loveland Swanbeck reports that she and Ray have a mini-van and put 8000 miles on it in 3 months! They think the van could probably go to FL on its own now. Their daughter Frances is there, as well as #2 son, wife and adopted son. Daughter Ann, in St. Thomas, survived Hugo. Jimmy, their oldest son is back in Columbia Medical School, specializing in OB/GYN—so far mostly crack and AIDS baby deliveries. Babe and Ray no longer have cattle on the Middlebrook, VA, land but are tree farming—easier, she says. Kay Mensing Teitgen writes that her life has changed since husband Ralph is now semi-retired, home for lunch every day and free in the afternoons. They are greatly enjoying grandchildren aged 2 and 3. Honey Peck McCall reports that son Richard is an orthopedic surgeon and chief of staff of Children's Hospital in Shreveport, LA. Her younger son, Jonathan (New Orleans) is a partner in the law firm of Chaffe, McCall et al. Husband Harry is very active in the practice of law.

Ginny Noyes Pillsbury also had a busy year. Besides Reunion, she attended an Elderhostel in Bermuda, another in Tuscany. Blood clots in her left leg caused the cancellation of 2 trips, but now fully recovered, she plans to go to Nicaragua in Feb. to observe the elections and to Russia in March. In addition to this, Ginny is on the Mequon, WI Landmarks Commission and 2 diocesan committees. Ginny's closing thought was "I swear Sweet Briar is the greatest college in the US, if not the world!" Murrell Richards Chadsey reported on Hurricane Hugo. Her youngest son, Lee Bowden, and family live on St. Croix and lost home and all possessions, but were unhurt. They took refuge from the storm in a closet padded with mattresses! Ricky's mother, Frances Murrell Rickards, SBC's oldest living graduate and last member of the first graduating class, was 102 on January 20. Ricky spends most of her time taking care of her mother's affairs and going to VA to see her. Husband Ted enjoys being president of the Yale Club in NY.

Margie Ridgely Keith writes: "Our 2nd grandchild, Susannah, was born last Hallowe'en, a tiny premie. But she has grown wonderfully and has a lovely smile, according to her pictures." Margie and Charles plan to fly out to see her in San Leandro, CA, and to make friends again with her brother, James, who is 4. Jean Ryan Kehl's older daughter Anne and family have moved to the Detroit area where Malcolm is the director of the Wayne Oakland Library Federation. Now that younger daughter Catherine's little girls are in school, she has gone back to technical writing for computing. Jean and Bill were sorry that they couldn't make it to Reunion. Ann Seguin Britt writes: "After a rather nomadic life (the airline business) Casey and I enjoy retirement in FL. We lived out of the country for the final 7 years—2 in Nairobi, Kenya and 5 in Nassau—most interesting. We continue to travel a good bit, play golf year round and attempt to keep up with 4 grandchildren and 1 'great'".

Marian Shanley Jacobs sold her business in June; she and Bill celebrated by spending almost a month in England last fall, hiking the lovely Devon and Cornwall coastal footpaths and then spending a week in London for theatre, museums and shopping. Our president, Louise Smith Barry, is the prime author of our 1st mini-reunion to be held May 1-2 in Williamsburg, VA. Louise and Syd Holmes Bales would appreciate suggestions as to where/when we might hold one in 1991. Louise does library-oriented volunteer work at local arboretum, post College Library Board and their local library. She and Wright spent Thanksgiving eating Cajun turkey with son George in LA. In June, Chris graduated from Stanford Business School and works in the Far East for Otis Elevator. Louise and Wright hope to visit him in Feb., as well as Tokyo and Singapore.

Our sympathy and love also to Janet Staples Munt, whose husband "Coco" (P. Caldwell Munt, UVA) died last Feb. at home after a long illness. Janet works full-time as director of a private, voluntary Maternal-Child Health Program. She also has a small private practice in psychotherapy. Phyllis Tenney Dowd's trip to China was cancelled because of events there last May. (Virginia Burgess Struhsaker also hoped to make this trip after talking to Phyl at Reunion.) Phyl and Herb had a wonderful trip to Italy, Greece and the Greek Islands in Sept., then flew to Denver to visit daughter Mary's family.

Pat Whitaker Waters writes: "This has been a momentous year for the Waters family. Daughter Trish (SB'77) was married in Alexandria, VA on Oct. 7 to John Neer. Trish is with the National Gallery in D.C. Son John finished filming a new movie "Cry Baby" starring Polly Bergen and teenybopper heartthrob Johnny Depp. Daughter Kathy Marshall (SB'73) and husband Lawson (W&L'72) started a weekly newspaper in Dayton, VA. Son Stephen was operated on for a brain tumor in Sept.—a terrible experience for the whole family—but is recovering splendidly. Pat was sorry to miss Reunion and definitely plans make our 50th. Marjorie Willetts Maiden visited friends in Sweden and Finland last summer and her in-laws in England. She also went on a cruise to Southwest Asia with a friend.

Anne Woods Guzzardi was sorry to miss Reunion, but has seen a number of classmates this year. She saw Emily Anne Wilkins Mason in Roanoke when visiting her doctor son and his family there. This past Sept. there was a great reunion of roommates on Long Island when husbands and summer visitors had gone back to work. Sterling Nettles Murray came up from Asheville, NC, and Barbara Duncombe Stoup from Philadelphia and they spent 2 days with Dottie Tobin Baldwin in Bridgehampton and 2 days with Anne on Shelter Island—talk ... talk ... talk ... nobody had changed and it couldn't have been more fun! Libby Vaughan Bishop writes that she, Jane Rice McPherson and Ann Moore Remington got together last June for a weekend with Jean Blanton Murphy. Libby planned to go to Atlanta in Feb. to judge a flower show and spend the weekend with Ricie. Ricie writes that they hope to get together with all S.B. classmates in the area while Libby is there. Libby constantly bumps into SBC alums in her garden club activities. "Fence" Williams Gookin reports that she and Richard had a nice business/pleasure trip to HI in July and took 3 days to visit beautiful Maui. In August they went to the Cape with all 5 grandchildren. Richard was on a trip to CA as Fence wrote with the president of Yemen "on their plane and no women allowed. A bit backward there!"

Bill's and my biggest news for 1989 was the arrival of Sarah Kathryn Watt July 15. We went to help out and enjoyed Sarah and her 2-year-old brother, Christopher a great deal. We had a grand trip to AK in August, cruised the Inside Passage and visited Anchorage and Denali Park. We look forward to visiting Ellen Boyd and Billy Miller in Feb. and Jean and Bill Kehl in June. And I plan to attend the mini-reunion in May. Hope to see lots of you there!

You can't imagine what fun it was for me to return to Chattanooga New Year's Day from a snowy vacation in Littleton, NH with husband David, Boston son David, Jr. and his wife, Nancy, 2 grands, Andrew and Anna, 2 bachelor sons, Allen and Jack and their girl friends and start to read my accumulated mail from all of you! I have notes from at least 60 — could that be some kind of record?

Jane Johnson Kent writes "We've moved to Pinehurst, NC — renting while we build a house on land we've owned for 12 years. We had a wonderful Smithsonian trip from Rio de Janeiro to Cape Horn and Santiago with my 92-year-old mother going along." Mary Barrett Robertson says "Heard practices law yet. I've retired from my IRS job, we still go to our log house in Cashiers, NC, have moved into a smaller house in Augusta. All 3 children doing well as are our mothers — Heard's is 97, mine is 84 and going strong. Help!" Ann Rowland Tuck's card from Ft. Myers Beach, FL speaks of plans to go to Italy in June where her church choir will sing and to Cambridge U. in Aug. to take courses. Mary Colston Comstock has high praise for SBC's trips having done Russia last July with her son and 18 Briarites and one in '76 also to Russia. She helped take the census in NJ as she has in other decades. Her 2 bachelor sons travel with her; the other has the 3 grandchildren. Peggy Sheffield Martin is very involved with the Atlanta Botanical Gardens and urges anyone coming to Atlanta to see the garden and the new Fuqua Conservatory.

Dolly Antrim McKenna's welcome mat is out at Yorba Linda, CA where Jim works for Hughes Aircraft since retiring from the Navy. She does volunteer work and plays golf. She attended the 10/89 National Convention of Republican Women in Baltimore. They also have "4 gorgeous grandsons!" Polly Rollins Sowell is a political consultant for Republican candidates in Texas — currently for Chief Justice Tom Phillips for re-election to Texas Supreme Court. She adds "I am so delighted my good friend George Bush is in the White House". Polly has a daughter who's an accountant in Houston. She is so sorry she missed reunion because "I hardly recognized a soul in the photo!" Tempus Fugit Polly and we have all improved with age! Louise "Beezie" Devore Towers writes "Our 9 children — 5 daughters, 4 sons-in-law and 10 grands gathered in Jacksonville for an early Christmas" and the 9 plan to join Beezie and Charlie for a week in Scotland to celebrate their 40th wedding anniversary. She writes of Charlie's evangelistic trip to Russia last May with Campus Crusade leaders as a very "historic and thrilling event!" Martha Sue Skinner Logan's family was planning to watch the Jan. space shuttle launch from Cape Kennedy because Jim Wetherbee is husband to Beezie's niece Robin. Indie Lindsay Bilisoly says "The Bilisols will not die out after all for we now have 1 1/2 grandchildren." All 4 children live in Norfolk and her retired husband Frank enjoys sharing ownership of a tree farm. Ardis Fratus Porter announces the arrival of Madison Ashley MacBride in Aug. to son Weston, and Jonathan Jackson MacBride in Oct. to son Ned making a total of 8. Her note to SBC mentions a grand reunion with her sister and children at the Cape. Ann Orr Savage and husband Bob still plan to sell their Westfield, NJ house and move to a smaller house in VT. Meanwhile she continues museum work in NYC, hospital auxiliary, Symphony, church, and French and will gather the 9 in their family (3 1/2 grands) for a March houseparty in Sanibel, FL. Caroline Rankin Mapother enjoys having daughter Edie and husband Peyton and 4+ Caroline living in Louisville as she does son Rankin who is an ad copy writer and a bass guitarist. She heard from Connie Hancock Gelman and Al who are back in Cazenovia, NY in the house on the lake where her family used to summer. In Flint, MI Vickie Brock Badrow continues to teach this year but has had a difficult time with the death of her husband Ned's brother and her own brother last summer and the discovery of Ned's prostate cancer. Good results from surgery, and 2 weeks with family in HI resulted in their owning a time share condo on Kanai. Westray Boyce Nicholas, John's Island, SC says that they escaped major damage from Hurricane Hugo which struck 20 miles away and took the roof off a motel nearby. Her son Stacy is in the television business in Chicago. Betsy Anderson Gorrell says "My granddaughter Meg Nystrom is being married Jan. 9 in Irmo, SC—try that to make you feel old!" She plans to go back to "marvelous Alaska" as soon as she can from her St. Albans, WV home.

48's "resident" classmate Vi Whitehead Morse wrote of bitter cold, snow and ice in mid-Dec. and that is hard to imagine after their lovely garden party in Amherst for our last reunion. Her youngest daughter, UVA '85, is at home taking courses at Lynchburg College for a masters and Walter is still loving his "girls who don't talk back — his Hereford cows!" Martha Mansfield Clement, that wonderful welcoming face at our reunions, moved to DeLand, FL, to Stetson U. to work with former SBC boss Mark Whittaker. Capable Martha managed to move belongings to FL, arrange and attend a family reunion in KY and spent 2 weeks on an Intrav tour of the Soviet Union as an SBC rep. Her bed and breakfast welcome mat is out. Pat Smith Nelson and Tom fly so frequently from their new abode in Naples, FL back to Charleston, WV that they have enough points for a trip to London this year. They have 2 married daughters, 5 grands, 2 carefree bachelors. Pat sees Peggy Addington Twohy and John occasionally in Naples. Marge McCallum Anderson, promises to be at next reunion. She has retired after 24 years as an administrator for social work for the state of FL. Now she is into real estate, buying, refurbishing, and selling old houses around Winter Springs, FL. Her 3 daughters live in FL and AZ; she has 3 plus grandchildren.

It is 2/28/90 and I just realized from Bea Backer Simpson's letter to the office that Nan Steptoe McKinley died exactly a year ago. Our belated sympathies go to her family and friends. Ann Paxson Gail wrote these beautiful thoughts about Nan - "I've been looking at my Advent Calendar given to me by my special friend Nan Steptoe McKinley. She was the most giving person, always doing for others. Since the onset of my dialysis she showered me with surprise packages to tickle my fancy, sent many letters filled with lyrical prose, sent flowers and made phone calls. I miss her." On a lighter note Ann tells of a 100th birthday party for Bill's aunt with 94 relatives in attendance in MD, and she had a visit with Bea Backer Simpson. Jane Shoesmith Newcomb and Nelson toured CA, then New Orleans where Eve Godchaux Hirsch made sure they saw all sights and dined at the very best restaurants. Jane is retiring after 23 wonderful years as a Reading Specialist for her school district in Mirror Lake, NH. Eve's card sent "best wishes for our extended SBC family." Connie Conover, Chapel Hill, said that she was looking for a job. She is a teacher and an actress.

Pam Terry Stoutenburgh still smiles over the fun of her 1st visit back in 44 years. Her 1st book comes out in April and another is underway. (She did not divulge the title so we can't give it a promo.) Her daughter Terry and husband have settled in Dallas after a 2-year sailing jaunt around the Caribbean and will do the Mediterranean next with Pam probably on board. Jane Luke got a visit with Faith Mattison when Faith visited her family on Cape Cod and plans on a spring visit with Betty Kernan Quigley. Jane went to a grand wedding in Scotland last summer and sailed home on the QE 2. After visiting married children in AL and VA Helen "Twink" Elliott Sockwell and Warren will do Jackson Hole and Yellowstone, then travel in Scandinavia, East Germany, Vienna, Innsbruck, Heidelberg in Aug. Cheers for her! Martha Frye Nye and Bill sail down the Danube in Aug. so maybe they will meet in Austria. The Nyes had a 21-day trip to China which involved 10 plane changes and saw demonstrations in Beijing a week before the Tiananmen Square happenings and felt the students were nice and friendly then. Then they survived Hurricane Hugo with minimal inconvenience while their neighbors suffered devastating destruction in Myrtle Beach, Charlotte, and Hickory. Their mid-winter letter is full of fascinating things their 2 sets of children are doing, but you will have to be on the Nye's mailing list to keep up.

Ruthie Faulkner Howe and Wilson are retired and "having fun" playing golf in Longmont, CO, Mexico and Palm Springs. Their 3 children live in the area and Ruthie says "we have been blessed with good health and the joy of watching our kids grow and start their families". She works as an exercise therapist in a nursing home and tutors in adult education. Helen McKemie Riddle is "having fun in her old age" selling real estate while Bill practices veterinary medicine and does scouting. Their children live in Houston, Wichita Falls, TX and Nashville. Nita Minchew Faulk and Ralph sent a mid-winter letter which all should read for it summarizes the decades and happenings which have affected us all. Nita recounts what Ralph has meant to her teaching career and to the other teachers in her school in Thomasville since he retired.

Josephine Neal Peregrine still teaches in River Forest, IL and husband Moore practices law but their thoughts are focused on their home in MI for a change of pace and life-style. Caroline Haskell Simpson and Bruce have 3 sons in Chicago and 1 in Washington and a 4 1/2-year-old grandson. They travel and read and she does restoration work and is taking cello lessons! Kax Berthier McKelway writes "the best news for me is that John and I are doing beautifully healthwise, considering setbacks of a couple of years ago." Their son and his SBC alumna wife will present them with a 2nd grandchild in the spring. Both Meon Bower Harrison and Wayne Stokes Goodall wrote from Charlottesville about the great fun of a lunch at Farmington with Janie Miller Wright and Howard who visited their marine biologist son studying at Yale.

The Wrights brought their boat "Compadre" home from 5 1/2 years and 65,000 miles of cruising the world. They will tie up in Long Beach and sail in Baja. What a fascinating luncheon that must have been for I believe that Wayne and Janie were freshman roommates.

Perhaps the most intriguing postcard was from Ileana Garcia Carr from Mayaguez, Puerto Rico: "There has been a tremendous number of changes in the last year or so...you can put me down as having assumed the rank, style and title of Duchess of Courland. I hold the title in my own right. Courland is a duchy of considerable size and importance in history. It extends over parts of the Baltic, Poland and a good piece of western Russia. It is a title that is normally held by Lithuanian royalty." Please write us more details of this exciting situation, Ileana, Duchess of Courland! One of the reasons for my subscribing to W Magazine is so I can read, as in the 11/20/89 issue, about our Ft. Worth friend Martha Rowan Hyder... "New Yorkers did their bit for glasnost when 80 met to hear pianist Vladimir perform at Eduard Nakhamkin's Madison Avenue art gallery. Afterward Martha Hyder and Anne Bass hosted dinner in the gallery. For the centerpieces Hyder loaned pieces from her 19th-century Russian objects: silver and gold icons, a bishop's mitre and the wedding crowns presented to Nicholas and Alexandra..." Judy Blakey Butler (a widow for 6 1/2 years) describes herself as, "in my gypsy phase and loving it"...since she sold her OR house, packed up 40 years of accumulation and moved to Arlington, VA with much traveling via tent camping and luxury hoteling all over parts of Canada and the mid-US with a stop in York, PA, her old hometown where her 87 and 89 year-old parents still live in the family home. Judy lunched with "delightful and still buoyant Nancy Vaughn Kelly" and her husband Dan, who live near Judy's present temporary abode. By this time Judy is in Mexico or Crete!

Ynes Jova Cline's note from Saugerties, NY brought the sad news that her husband Bob died in April '89 after a long fight against cancer. "But mixed with the sadness there were some good things — the wedding of my daughter and one of my sons only 2 months apart...and the recent news that I will be a grandmother by late summer." She mentioned spending a day with Jenny Bell Bechtel Whyte in the fall. Patty Traugott Rouse and Jim spend much time traveling for Enterprise Foundation, were in Japan last summer and will be going again. Their 2 sets of twin grandchildren are 2 years old; more grands are expected in late spring so that the Rouses will have a total of 16. Eleanor Potts "Pottsie" Snodgrass and Strib married off daughter Julie to John L. Walker III in 5/89 with a garden reception midst blue iris, white daisies, pink and white peonies, and a full moon; it must have been a beautiful gathering. Pottsie's father died last Sept. at 94, and we send our sympathies. The Snodgrasses had 3 weeks in France traveling by train and motor coach. Liz Graves Perkinson and son John went to the Snodgrass—Walker wedding and agreed "Pottsie looked as young as the bride!" Liz and a friend rented a car and drove safely all over the British Isles much to their children's surprise.

Martha Davis Barnes (Atlanta) made a Feb. move to a townhouse overlooking the Chattahoochee River with no yard to tend. She feels "Old friends are good friends" whenever she sees Anne Ricks Griffin, Mary Humphreys Hook and Peggy Sheffield Martin in Atlanta. Martha's youngest son Allen and wife have moved to McComb, MS. Judy Perkins Llewellyn and Norman bought a vacation home in Kiawah Island, SC where they will spend winters when he retires next year; she welcomes SBCers. I love a note from Marguerite Rucker Ellett, for it always brings news of Helen Pender Withers and Burk too, since their son is married to a Withers daughter and the 2 SBC classmates share grandchildren with a Christmas Day visit in Alexandria and Easter in Richmond. Taz and Marguerite will see the Passion Play in Oberammergau in May with their church group. Jane Taylor Ix and Bill entitle their Christmas letter "The Ix-Capades" and it's a delightful account of the fascinating things their children do, in addition to presenting them with 3 grandchildren. Son Jon is a detective with the L.A.P.D. Anti-Terrorist Division and works with the FBI and the U.S.S.S. Joint Task Force. The Ix family, spread all over the country, get a vacation together in the Poconos at Lake Wallenpaupack.

Evalena Sharp Vidal is still into French crystal and glass as Advertising Director of Durand International; daughter Vicki Vidal '85 has a long title as a lobbyist in Washington — Assistant Director of the Secondary Mortgage Dept...Government Agencies Div. of the Mortgage Bankers Association in DC. (See what jobs SBC grads get these days!) Evy's work with the Mauricetown, NJ Historical Society continues; some 700 people went on a Christmas candlelight house tour. Suzanne Hardy Beaufort had a weekend visit with Nita Minchew Faulk and Ralph where all 5 children and many grands joined in welcoming her to Thomasville. Suzanne's daughter Zan and husband Ron have a contemporary home overlooking the Savannah River and daughter Bon is the administrator of the Augusta Ballet School and dances with them. This group is the only company chosen to dance in the International Ballet Competition in Jackson, MS in late June. Suzy works for Cotton Lane Press and Porter Fleming Foundation and publishes free-lance articles.

Your secretary put off till last deciphering Closey Faulkner Dickey's unbelievable handwritten document of her travels and of their many children all over the country from Brooklyn to Anchorage. Daughter-in-law Lynn is much improved after her month of treatment for sarcoma on her sciatic nerve and can even weed Whit's huge heather garden. Closey and Whit, among other things, have backpacked and fished in the Chugach National Forest in AK, skied all over the Aspen and Snowbird areas, raced their boat in ME, cruised the Cote d'Azur in the same ketch, drove a Renault all over Provence and to Paris, added a large living room onto their house, and landscaped the place. At one point Closey stayed home to chair a Bob Hope benefit for their community hospital while Whit sailed a 51' ketch to Portugal. They even made a train trip from Winnipeg to Churchill, Manitoba to see the polar bears. Their children do equally interesting things but you must get on her mailing list to get all the details! Phyl Thorpe Miller, that wonderful class secretary we just took off the hook, is proof-reading documents for the AR State Legislature and comments on "the value of a comma!" We are saddened by the death of Beity Lou Bruton (Mrs. Edward P. Lyons, Jr.) on July 21, 1989, and extend our sympathies to her husband and family.

I panic over the fact that I may have lost a note or left out something earth shaking! Sweet Briar has wonderful printout lists of our whole class...so write for a copy if you do not already have one. Thanks for reading all the way to this point and the best of everything to each of you, my friends of forty + years!

Tempus Fugit. And what an exciting time it is in this changing world! Thanks for your great response — lots of grist for the mill. Parksie Carroll Mulholland reports the arrival of first grandchild, Alexander Ward Benedict, son of daughter Randie (SBC '80) and husband, Ben. She says, "No one prepared us for the wonderful emotion of greeting a grandchild — it's indescribable!" I agree. Parksie says son, David, will graduate from Darden Business School in May and son, Jeff, will graduate from UVA Medical School in orthopedics. She judges for Garden Club of America and is working on the annual meeting in 1992 in Baltimore. Speaking of Garden Club— Nancy St. Clair Talley is president of Garden Club of Virginia and she spoke to a combined meeting of 4 area clubs in Norfolk in Dec. She looked marvelous in her white ultra suede suit and young smiling face. I was proud to claim, "Oh yes. She's an SBC classmate of mine." Nancy went on SBC tour to Egypt last fall.

Nancie Howe Entenmann's whole family planned a Christmas visit to Puerto Rico where son-in-law Dr. John Mackay had been very busy after Hurricane Hugo. They also hoped to be in GA to cheer MI at Rose Bowl. Nancy and Dick have traveled with Bar Assoc. to Scandinavia, Holland, MI and all over OH. They have hired a new rector for their 100 year-old church. Louise Gault says her 2 1/2 months in Europe this fall was wonderful. Betty Pierce Bradshaw and Jack enjoyed a trip to Sea Island last summer. She is still Senior Field Underwriter for WI National Life and enjoys her 16 month old granddaughter, Lauren. Julie Jackson Nichols writing from "wild wonderful WV" had a grand time at Thanksgiving and Christmas with Dick and her father at the Homestead. She had called Frances Gilbert Browne after Hugo's rampage through Charlotte. Frances reported only one big tree fallen in her yard. Julie reminded me about the '56 scholarship fund. She said there is about $8,000 in the corpus, much of which Weasie Watson Steele's mother had given in Weasie's memory. This would be a nice thing for our class to consider supporting. Frances Gilbert Browne wrote that our '56 scholarship recipient is Andrea Dickson of Salem, VA. She encourages us to look her up when we are on campus. Frances says that all her sons are still eligible bachelors. She is taking a short term part-time job at her Presbyterian church in Jan. coordinating the assimilation of new members. Frances and Helen Wolfe Evans spent several days last June in Richmond seeing Mimi Thornton Oppenhimer, GINNY Echols Orgain, Prince Trimmer Knox, Louisa Hunt Coker, Lou Galleher Coldwell, Nancy St. Clair Talley, and Leezie Parish Laughlin. What fun! Frances said her street was finally cleared in Dec. following Hugo.

Nancy Etinger Minor and Raleigh are still in MA trying to sell their house in a dead market. They hope their lake cottage will be easier to sell and they can finally move to the Landings in Savannah. Son, Scott, was expected home for Christmas and daughter, Catherine, is living at home getting an associate degree in June. The family planned to go to NYC for a few days after Christmas. Debby Brown Stalker and Peter were headed east from Santa Barbara for pre Christmas festivities in NY and then to Darien for holidays with oldest son and 2 grandchildren, 4 and 13 months, then to ME to see their daughters' 18th century farmhouse. The Stalkers had a joyous 3 weeks in East Africa with all the children last fall. They are finding people in CA extraordinarily warm. Headed from Richmond in the opposite direction were, Prince Trimmer Knox and Joe to spend Christmas with their daughter, Eliza, who works for an appraisal firm there. Prince said she would tiptoe so as not to activate an earthquake.

Prince and Mimi Thornton

Oppenhimer were 2 of a committee of 3 planning St. Catherine's Centennial Symposium. She included a marvelous painting of St. Catherine's Green by Parks Duffy, son of Cathy Vest Duffy. It was commissioned for the school's centennial and posters and note cards have sold well. Mary Anne McPherson Oliver wrote from Oakland that she has signed a contract with Sheed and Ward for a book on conjugal spirituality. She said, "Great what one can do with an empty nest."

Linda Learned Whitfield and Fred in Richmond just welcomed their 3rd grandchild, McKay, who is 1st baby of son, Doug and his wife, Maureen. Everyone was gathering for the holidays for 2nd reunion of the year. They had been together in July at Isle of Palms near Charleston which Linda thought had been destroyed by Hugo. Peggy Pattilla Beckham and Bob have 5 grandchildren with #6 expected in Feb. Peggy and Bob have enjoyed taking up golf again. She still teaches a weekly Bible study at Episcopal church and works with the Abilene Community Foundation. She is not finding time more abundant as we get older. Isn't that true! From London we get news of Ann Train Ross. The Rosses drove back from Oman to London in 1988 and have renovated their flat. On weekends they go to their canal-side cottage in Harefield. Son, Richard, works in London as a computer programmer and analyst. Daughter, Tish, was married in Sept. and lives in London where she and husband are both accountants. Daughter, Ali, conservationist and ecologist, works for marine conservation society monitoring salmon farming in Edinburgh. Ann's husband, John, works on architectural and planning projects abroad and in England. Ann does supply-teaching when she's not looking after elderly relatives. I imagine many of our classmates are involved in care of our parents. Bunny Burwell Nesbit still works for Computer Sciences Corporation as Western Representative-on-site at Boeing/AT&T in Tysons Corner, VA. They have a contract valued at approximately $15,000,000,000 to replace 60% of the federal government telephone system. Her house is on the market in Middleburg since she has a contract on one in Upperville.

Enjoyed running into Louisa Hunt Coker who was shopping for a "mother of the groom" dress in Virginia Beach last summer.

Congratulations to Rose Montgomery Johnston who received her Ph.D. in psychology in 1989 from Memphis State. Husband Tom practices law in Memphis. They have 4 daughters, 2 married: one in law school at Duke, one teaching in Richmond while husband finishes law school. Another is in grad school in French Literature at Emory and the last one is skiing and working in a day care center in Jackson, WY. Received a lovely picture of Joan Roberts Slatery and Tom's family taken at son Paul's wedding. Paul is a mechanical engineer in San Jose and is studying for masters in structural engineering. Paul's wife Carin Pardini is a teacher. Daughter Megan graduated in pre-law and philosophy from Gonzaga University (Joan's alma mater) in Spokane, WA. Son, Marc, a marine biologist, has been on a 3-month mission in Antarctica to determine what toxins are within local sponge communities. He will prepare for his Ph.D. dissertation for U. of AL, Birmingham on his return. Tom and Joan, who had dreamed of moving to San Diego, put their house on the market in July. The next week CA real estate market collapsed. Then in Oct. the earthquake brought out only scavenger buyers. Their structure was undamaged but their belongings went flying. So "For Sale" sign went down and Slatery Construction was back in business. Joan was invited to be on Board of Regents at Gonzaga which thrilled her. Another great happy picture from Helen Turner Murphy and Tayloe at daughter Anne's graduation from St. Paul's in June. Anne is enjoying UVA this year. Tayloe ran unopposed for the General Assembly so he will have 2 more years to continue his efforts on behalf of the Chesapeake Bay. Helen tries to keep the home fires burning while serving on 8 boards. She continues to enjoy yard work, tennis and reading when she gets a chance.

The happy news from Carolyn Dickinson Tynes was that 2 sons, Ingram and Norman married wonderful girls last year. Carolyn and Bayard are building a home next to their present home. She reported that Rose Montgomery Johnston had given a beautiful party for the Tyne's daughter, Cary, when she graduated in June from Rhodes College in Memphis. Son, Bayard Jr. and wife and 3 children have moved to London. Cary spent 6 months with them. Peggy Anne Rogers again enjoyed 2 weeks in England visiting Penzance, Cornwall and Oxford. Then she took her annual trip to India with Ludhiana Medical Board. After 10 days she flew home and was hospitalized for 12 days. The diagnosis was fluid level problem which changed body chemistry. She says India is her answer to Weight Watchers since she lost 25 pounds. From Louisville Eve Altsheier Jay reported that some of her Collegiate class who are celebrating 55th birthdays were going to NYC together in Jan. One of these was Meredith Smythe Grider. Eve spent the summer in Manhattan and saturated herself with museums, theatre and fun. Both of her children, Carter and Edward are working in Louisville. Leila Thompson Taratus wrote that she had really missed being at our 30th reunion, but her youngest daughter, Leila, had graduated at UNC the same weekend. Young Leila lives in Charlotte where Frances Gilbert Browne has been kind to her. Leila became a grandmother twice in Oct. Son, Kenneth Jr. and Ellen had a girl on 10/17 in Los Angeles. Daughter, Helen and John O'Connor had a girl on 10/11. In San Antonio Eleanor Russell has taught art for 19 years at Roosevelt High School. She had 3 terrific weeks in Fairbanks, AK with son, Mike Lily, and his wife Elizabeth. She took a course at Fairbanks Summer Arts Festival and produced several drawings accepted in 3 juried shows. Eleanor has 2 new grandchildren, one in Atlanta, the 3rd child of daughter, Martha Haygood, and husband Kevin; and one in Detroit, the 1st child of daughter Susan Pankowsky and husband Dan. So there are lots of reasons for her to travel.

Anne Willis Hetlage moved after 20 years in former house and enjoys city living in St. Louis. Their youngest graduated from Colgate last spring and works in Washington. Their oldest son, Jim, graduated from law school, practices in St. Louis and will be married in April. Anne says it is very exciting to have all 3 self-supporting. Betsy Meade Hastings writes from Malaysia that she is tutoring a 10-year-old Indian girl in English at a Christian orphanage. The girl was found begging in the streets abandoned at 8 years old. Betsy is learning flower arranging from a beautiful Indian lady and concentrating on tennis lessons and playing with an international women's tennis group. She is also taking a 16-week course at Lutheran church called "Life With God" that leans heavily on Scripture. Betsy is soaking up life in Kuala Lumpur and says the farm is progressing beautifully. Macie Clay Nichols had another lovely month in France with daughter Martha as guide. She picked up a 14th century castle/townhouse listing for her real estate business. Call her in Louisville for the price.

Karen Steinhart Kirkbride's son Steven has entered the working world. Son Kevin continues at Columbia Univ. and Trevor is in 5th grade. Husband Dick is still at the Pentagon and she has a new job with Army. Personnel Information as Director, Data Administration. From Atlanta Marguerite Geer Wellborn reports that son Charles married Ruth McCasty of Myrtle Beach, SC 4/89. Son Marshall III and wife Debbie had twin grandchildren Marshall IV and Megan Marguerite 5/89. All live in Atlanta. Son Walter will be a senior at Rhodes College in Memphis. Son Michael spent several weeks teaching Bible School on Navajo reservation.

Mary Alice Major Duncan writes from Hopkinsville, KY that she and Graham have 2 sons and a daughter married. They have 4 granddaughters. Graham is retired and they are enjoying traveling and visiting their children. She is still moderator of Presbyterian Women in Western KY. Received a lovely picture of Van Hartman Ellis's daughter Mary Van who married Howard Lacy Armistead III in June. Mary Van received 2 degrees from U. of MO and she and her husband live in Alexandria. Our sympathy goes to Nancie Howe Entenmann and Byrd Stone who both lost their mothers recently.

Barbara Darnell Clinton's daughter Laura married David Fulton in Sept., honeymooned in England and lives in Houston. In April Barbara and Dan saw son Charlie's corp. unit win the outstanding scholastic unit award at Texas A&M for the 2nd year in a row. Charlie received his degree in Microbiology, was commissioned as 2nd Lt. in the Air Force and obtained a scholarship to medical school at Univ. of TX in Galveston. In May the Clintons spent 3 weeks in Europe. The 1st week was in Switzerland where they found traces of ancestors in the small town of Trun, then they joined the St. Luke's chamber singers in London for a 2-week tour through England and Scotland, singing in 9 cathedrals. Barbara sang solo in several of the concerts. In Sept. Barbara was made President of the Houston Aggie Moms. In Nov. they went to Atlanta to see daughter Mary Kay receive her registration as a Professional Engineer in GA. From FL Marty Field Fite reports that they expect a 7th grandchild in April and she plans to go to HI for 2 weeks to see and help with the new arrival. Her family is spread from HI to France and she tries to see all 5 families at least once a year.

This has been another full year for the Clark clan. We had 5 adorable grandchildren at Sandbridge last summer — a full cottage with 12 of us. Only 1 notable mishap was the musical toothbrush flushed down the toilet. Daughter Alden Coe and David had a 4th baby, 3rd daughter Jenny Claire, 1/10/90. They are building a house in Annapolis. Daughter Janie Morrison (SBC'79) and Jed expect a 3rd baby in April which makes 7 under 6 years for us. David calls it a "birthquake". Ashby (SBC'85) is still selling annuities in VA Beach. David is taking Japanese language course to help him communicate with the new bank customers. We try to walk 3 miles regularly. We are headed to Presidential Prayer Breakfast and then to FL in Feb. Life is moving fast and we want to seize the golden moments while we can. Love and blessings to you all.

Rhett Ball Thagard (Mrs. T. W., Jr.), 601 East Fairview Avenue, Montgomery, AL 36106

First of all, our deepest sympathy goes to Debbie Lane Lyon whose husband died last summer. Debbie moved from NY back to Pleasanton, CA to be with her family and is District Representative for Congressman Pete Stark.

Second, our class has the kind of enthusiasm for our 30th reunion that many classes generate for the 25th! It's wonderful to hear that so many plan to be there. I want to thank each of you who responded with news the last 5 years. You've made this job interesting and easy.

Rhett Ball Thagard's daughter Betsy married an Englishman; they're living in NH. Rhett writes from Montgomery, AL that she looks forward to no more tuitions when son Tom graduates from UVA Law School and daughter Beverly graduates from the College of UVA in 1991. Dottie Barnwell Kerrison writes that Hugo was the major 1989 event in Charleston. What she would have called major damage before 9/22 is now minor — fortunately they personally only had minor damage. Barbara Beam Denison went with George and 3 daughters to Kenya for 2 weeks after Christmas. Beam has fun singing and dancing with a group called "Hoopes Troops" in McLean, VA that raises money for charities in the DC area. Nancy Beekman Carringer fulfilled a long-time dream in '89, going on an archaeological dig for 3 weeks in Israel at Tel Hadan, on the eastern edge of the Sea of Galilee just below the Golan Heights. She and Don celebrated their 30th anniversary and the birth of their 1st grandchild too. Barbara Bowen Moore is taking classes for fun this spring at GA State U. Betsy Buechner Morris enjoys her job as a VP at the Bank of Boston.

Elsie Burch Donald (London) is editing four colour supplement magazines entitled 'A Guide to the Arts 1990' for the new British Sunday newspaper, The Correspondent. With the Common Market changes due in 1992 and the Channel tunnel being built, Elsie has bought a farmhouse in southwestern France where the prices are a quarter of those in England! Lura Coleman Wampler enjoys a busy life running a horse boarding business — rising at 5:30 a.m. to care for 8 horses before going to Shipley where she teaches Chemistry. Daughter Emelyn graduated from U. of Richmond where son Hooper is a jr. Daughter Eliza will be a freshman at Bucknell in fall 1990.

Peggy Cook Montgomery hopes to combine a trip east for her youngest son's graduation from Vassar in May with our 30th reunion. Her husband Seth was appointed a Justice of the NM Supreme Court and will run in the primary and general elections to retain the seat. Joyce Cooper Toomey is thrilled with her 1st grandchild born to Catherine Cooper Gregorie (SBC'84). She and Charley enjoy watching son Charley IV play lacrosse goalie at Loyola College in Baltimore where he's a sr., visiting Jen — an SBC sophomore — and helping Christopher — a h.s. sr. at St. Mary's - tour colleges.

Nancy Corson Gibbes (Columbia, SC) writes that the low for 1989 was Hugo, causing a loss of 35 trees, new roof, chimney, wallpaper, paint, etc. The high for 1989 was a trip with her father to Russia, including a cruise down the Volga! The wedding of Judy Cowen Jones' oldest daughter Debbie (SBC'84) was the weekend of Hugo!! A 24-hour switch from the reception at their home in a large gala tent to a nearby museum was made. Judy and Mac went skiing in Sun Valley in March. Their daughter Alison still works in Madrid. Son Greg graduated from Hampden-Sydney in '89, passed his mortgage securities exam and is with his father at Barnwell and Jones, Inc. in real-estate development. Lee Cullum had a six-month leave of absence from her editorial page editor job at The Dallas Times to write a book. Cullum Clark, her son, is spending a year in Japan studying Japanese and will do graduate work at Harvard when he returns. We enjoyed Lee's article in the winter edition of the SBC Alumnae Magazine.

Jane Ellis Covington had a marvelous, hilarious 2-week trip last summer with Teddy Hill Washer, Liz Few Penfield, and Claire Cannon Christopher (SBC'58) in Kenya and Zaire. They chased gorillas in Zaire, checked on lions and giraffes in Kenya where they basked on the island of Lamer in the Indian Ocean. Sue Speed Ford Hall moved from Honolulu to DC where Jim has the job of Director of Public Affairs for OPIC (Overseas Private Investment Corp.) which insures American business ventures in Poland, Hungary and other countries in political turmoil. Sue Speed plans to get a job but is enjoying some time off, life with 9-yr.-old daughter Sabrina, and buying a house in Garrett Park, MD. Elizabeth Forsyth Harris is working on a master's in art history at UVA and has been elected to the board of the Virginia Center for the Creative Arts, a year-round working retreat for writers, visual artists and composers in Amherst County affiliated with SBC. Maydelle Foster Fason is a volunteer employment counselor with the Austin Women's Center. She coordinates 120 volunteers, does skills assessment, writes resumes and teaches interview techniques to women re-entering the work force. Son Drake graduated from the U. of TX in geology and is an environmental engineer in Austin. Daughter Maydelle is a sophomore at Barnard College of Columbia U. Maydelle and husband Sam, an oral maxillofacial surgeon, look forward to an April visit by Marianne Muse Beard from Cincinnati — their 1st visit in 30 years!

Anne Gatling Honey and Kim are in Boca Grande, FL where she is president of the Boca Grande Women's Club, finds it a full-time job and loves it. Her daughter Jayne is a 1st year law student at Duke and son Charles is a freshman at W & L. They have a granddaughter born to son John and wife, and daughter was married in Nov. and lives in Atlanta. Maline Gilbert McCalla has finished chairmanship of the Austin, TX Sesquicentennial Commission. She says she's "not flying or dancing as much, as high, as fast." She sends her love. Charlyne Grimes Coleman has done probate and tax paralegal work for 8 years in Hendersonville, NC where her husband is a lawyer. Jane Haldeman Hope loved calling classmates for reunion and describes us: "What a wonderful group of people we are — innovators, contributors, responsible citizens!" Janie is busy in Louisville with the Episcopal Women's Caucus. In April '89 she and daughter Jane were in the DC Pro-Choice March. Shirley Hayman Sudduth and John enjoy traveling in their motor home at least once a month, with special trips recently to Yosemite, the coast in the San Simeon area for Thanksgiving and Tucson for Christmas. Shirley loves her job and being grandmother for 4.

Janet Holmes Rothard plans a move to the Hendersonville-Tryon, NC area after selling her home in NJ. Janet's card made me laugh — says she loves breeding and showing Chinese Shar-Pei, the wrinkled dogs, and that "in a few years we'll be a matched set!" Kathy Knox Ennis is a legal secretary in Naples, FL and has 4 children in college!!! Jackie Mabie Humphrey is the art critic for the Greensboro News and loves it. Lucy Martin Gianino has a wonderful Denture-Creme ad on TV. She was also guest-artist-in-residence at W & L, acting in Steel Magnolia, and did Medea in Sarasota, FL. Husband Jack continues to stage-manage the play Black and Blue on Broadway. Her daughter Genina is a Duke sophomore, and Antonia at 17 is beginning the college process. Gian-Murray is a happy 6th grader. Tucky McFall Ziebold gets to Lynchburg often as her parents moved to the wonderful Westminster-Canterbury retirement home there. Her daughter Molly is a 1st year law student at W & L, and daughter Margaret is a Hollins junior. Elizabeth Meade Howard is writing video scripts for a series on teenage pregnancy for the VA Department of Education. Her son Jamie has graduated from UVA and wants to go into video/film making. Elizabeth hopes he'll "hire his ma!"

Katie Mendelson McDonald hopes to extend their SBC visit for their daughter Courtney's graduation to be with us for 30th reunion. She invites us to please let her know if we're headed for Hong Kong. Katie's been most hospitable to classmates over the years. In addition to her travels, Katie works as an educational consultant. She and John also have a home in Spain where Courtney studied at the U. of Salamanca and son Eavan is in Madrid at the U. of San Luis. Ginger Newman Blanchard had a busy year with trips to Portugal, Kenya and CA. Son Wil was married. Ginger's decided it's time to slow down some and has stopped her part-time job as a Doncaster consultant. Norma Patteson Mills continues on the board of the U. of the South. Their home on the SC coast had to be repaired after Hugo but had been designed to withstand major storms and it did. Norma and Patti Powell Pusey are doing a terrific job as co-chairmen of our Class of '60 Reunion Gift. Charity Paul is a psychotherapist at the Greenwich House Counseling Center in NYC at 5th Avenue & 13th Street. That's full-time 4 days a week, and she's also developing her own private practice. She finds both exciting and rewarding. Anita Perrin Grymes teaches at Collegiate and will begin a Masters of Humanities at the U. of Richmond this summer.

Patti Powell Pusey loves life in Arlington, VA where she continues her insurance business and is getting involved in volunteer work. Certainly her enthusiasm for SBC and the Class of '60 is wonderful. She's organized a house-party overnight at her home after our Feb. telethon. Daughter Glen is an English major at James Madison

U., and daughter Brent works at Big Sky in Montana. Their son Biff will get an MBA in May in NYC where he works for Price Waterhouse. In Feb. Patti and Bill went to Bermuda where they vacation each winter. Anne Reinecke Clarke, a Senior Project Director at a market research firm in Greenwich, CT, loves deep sea diving and has had marvelous trips diving at Little Cayman Island as well as one planned for the spring at Roatan off Honduras. Linda Sims Grady spent 6 weeks last summer in Kenya visiting friends, teaching and traveling. She also saw Carol Barnard Ottenburg and husband Simon when they visited Atlanta from Seattle. Sue Styer Ericksen has a very successful show stable in Birdsboro, PA. She had 10 ponies qualify for the Devon, Harrisburg and Washington International shows, and all got ribbons at all shows. She has 50 students and 18 boarders, with 7 part-time employees to help. She goes to about 75 shows a year!

Grace Suttle has a busy medical practice in Richmond, VA. Jane Tatman Walker is taking a sabbatical year to get personal projects done and enjoy family. She's learning German to re-visit her daughter Kitty who lives in West Berlin. She visited her last summer; she and Frank plan another trip this year. Last March she and Frank went on a study mission trip to Israel. Jane spends much volunteer time in Indianapolis, with the Arthritis Foundation. Sally Underhill Vialt's most exciting news is that the 3 books her husband Bert wrote and she helped proofread have been published in paperback by McGraw-Hill: American History Since 1865, Western Civilization Since 1600, and Modern European History. These are 500 or 600 page books condensed to aid college and advanced h.s. students. He's accepted a 4th contract to do a History of England. Last summer by chance she and Bert and Jean Morris Stephenson were at the country store in Valle Crucis, NC at the same time, and Jean invited them up to see her marvelous home in the mountains, Hummingbird Hill. Winnie Ward Henchey (Jefferson, NH) is a photographer, writer and part-time nurse. She loves seeing a lot of her 2 grown daughters who live nearby. Winnie sends us best wishes for a Happy Reunion!

Isabel Ware Burch is thrilled that husband Bob as Vice President for Development/Public Affairs at NY Hospital/Cornell Medical Center raised $51.3 million last year. She and Bob go to St. Matthews Episcopal Church in Wilton, CT where Jane Sigloh (SBC'56) is the assistant. Son Allen is with a small commodities trading company in Chicago, and son Charlie continues as a very active h.s. student. Isabel enjoys her job as director of finance at the Nature Center in Westport, CT. Dotty Westby is an Eastern Air Lines pilot now and "loves it incredibly!" She said their training program was the most rigorous she'd ever survived. Daughter Kristen graduated from the U. of CO, is living with Dotty and brokering computers. Son Rob is a CO U. jr. and brought home 10 fraternity brothers for the Orange Bowl! Nina Wilkerson Bugg and Bill had a wonderful trip to Greece and Turkey last fall on a "Footsteps of Paul" tour with Bishop Michael Marshall. She also makes business trips with Bill and enjoyed a 2-day visit with Margot McKee in NYC. She and Bill took sons, Bill III — a Latin and English teacher at Darlington in Rome, GA — and Robert — a Sewanee sr. — on a family ski trip to Breckenridge, CO.

Heidi Wood Huddleston wins the most news prize with 20 lines on her postcard! She and Joe moved farther out of town to a lovely ridge overlooking Bowling Green. Heidi is administrator of a rehabilitation facility caring for stroke, spinal cord and head injured patients, and she oversees 5 other contracts too. She's on the editorial board of the Kentucky Nurses Association and was associate editor of the Kentucky Head Injury Association's first Resources Guide, a very time-consuming project. She and Joe are delighted with their 1st granddaughter born to middle daughter Lisa in Atlanta where their other daughter Kristina is doing a double major at Emory in psychology and philosophy before going on for a Ph.D. in psychology. She and Joe have been to San Francisco, Squaw Valley, and DC, and, to recharge their batteries on a non-working trip, they went on a Caribbean cruise the end of Jan.

Yes indeed! Lynne Smith Crow has it all on tape — all 32 of us (plus 4 intrepid husbands, one daughter, and several parents — the Del Grecos, Mrs. Lynn, Mrs. Hite), from the terrifying moment of our arrival to our tearful Sunday farewells. Nature gave us perfect weather and SB her incomparable setting for our 25th Reunion; we responded by looking gorgeous, being terribly witty and amusing, and appreciating one another immensely. In fact, mutual admiration was the order of the day and the treat you can all look forward to at future reunions. We missed those of you who didn't make it and enjoin you to see Lynne's tantalizing tape, which is sure to coax you to the 30th. I understand that part of the tape has been turned over to Adrienne Ash, our new class fund agent; those ladies who, in the small hours of Sunday morning, gave the most interesting and detailed accounts of life after SB can buy the tape back for a not unreasonable fee. And you thought we all had Good Taste and Good Judgement?

For those of you who may still feel at a loss about how to tell all, Mary Green Borg has some advice in the form of her recently published guide to writing an autobiography. The inspiration for Writing Your Life came from years of teaching community college courses for the elderly, including a popular class in autobiography. Mary says the book makes a splendid gift for parents, but perhaps some of us are ready to record our exciting histories as well. If so, you can order the book (for $17.95) from Cottonwood Press, 305 W. Magnolia #398, Fort Collins, CO 80521.

In her consideration of the mysteries of life, Marilyn Dunlap Laird, in Simsbury, CT, has discovered that "life is the same and changing." For Marilyn that means "still one husband who works too hard but only 2 children left at home," a senior and an 8th grader; her oldest, married with 2 children, lives in Germany, while #2 is at Old Miss. Marilyn is working on a new syndrome: "When will the nest be empty?" Many of us, it seems, have already completed that process. Amy Freund Green, in Palm Beach, FL, has 2 sons who are recent graduates of Duke (the elder now at Duke Med School) and a 3rd son at Phillips Exeter. Joan Moore Biddle and Nick found their nest emptied at one fell swoop 3 years ago when daughter Ginny went off to Lynchburg College and identical twins Barbara and Kathy departed for Phillips Andover. Ginny spent last year at the U. of Salzburg and the twins, having taken a year off to work in New York and study in Paris, entered Harvard in Sept. Joan has completed her 10th year in residential sales for Merrill Lynch Realty in Cold Spring Harbor, NY, covering Long Island's North Shore. Nick, with Prudential Bache Securities in NYC, is an avid runner, though he now limits himself to one marathon a year.

Mary Ball Payne Morton, an administrator with the DE Dept. of Services for Children, Youth and Their Families in Wilmington, looks forward to some interesting travel when she and John visit their sons at their new addresses. Jack, who graduated from Hampden-Sydney in May, is now working in Spain, and David, who finished Tower Hill in June, is a freshman at the U. of CO, Boulder, where he hopes to major in environmental studies. Tuck Mattern Harvey, still teaching math at Midwestern State U. in Wichita Falls, TX, sent her son off to W&L last fall; daughter Kristin, at Hollins, spent her jr. year in London. Marsh Metcalf Seymour raced off from our SB reunion to attend the graduations of both her sons, Randle from Kent in CT and Peter from Stanford. Randle, a singer and actor, is now at Princeton, where he's joined the Freshman Singers. Peter, who majored in Chinese and economics, works with a group of management consultants in Los Angeles. After the graduations all four Seymours flew to Europe, where Peter backpacked with friends and Marsh, Jack, and Randle attended the baccalaureate ceremonies at Randle's old school, the European School in Brussels. Marsh and Jack then escaped to a charming fisherman's cottage on the coast of Brittany. Then off to Paris to celebrate the bicentennial. Marsh still teaches art and devotes 2 days a week to painting. Those who saw the Reunion alumnae exhibit in the Pannell Gallery know how fine her work is.

Also on view in the Pannell Gallery were the striking photographs of Elizabeth Matheson, who had another show this spring, this one at the NC Museum in Raleigh. Elizabeth and Helen Dunn journeyed to Devon and Cornwall in late Sept. "loaded with woolies" only to find splendid warmth and sunshine, "everyone stripped, on the beaches and in the water." Helen continues as an editor at Americana magazine in NYC. Scottie Newell Lennon, in Southampton, NY, has increased her working hours at the hospital and cut her "volunteer-time pie into more slices"; in her spare time she drives Allison, 13, to school rehearsals for Annie, in which she has the lead. Laura, 21, graduated from William & Mary in May and hopes to get her Ph.D. in clinical psychology. Rich, Jr., also at William & Mary, plans to study in Spain next year. Meanwhile, "Big Daddy foots the bills, heads the medical staff at Southampton Hospital, and yearns to take more time off in between."

Margaret Street Wilson has found a way to occupy herself now that her boys have left home — Chisolm, 20, for engineering at Tulane; Thad, 19, for Chapel Hill; and James, 18, for Episcopal h.s. Having prided herself for years on "not worshipping old houses and old furniture" as so many Charlestonians do, she has now happily succumbed to the obsession and is "totally bogged down" in restoring a 1768 Charleston house. M.C. Elmore Harrell is busy with 5 dogs, 8 cats, 7 rabbits, a horse, and a squirrel, not to mention daughter Susan, 16, a h.s. jr. Son David, 19, is a sophomore at Va. Tech. Doubtless the menagerie can be explained by the 4 years M.C. spent as executive director of the SPCA. She has now returned to the relative peace and quiet of a local CPA firm in Severna Park, MD, where she is accounting manager.

Several of you wrote of the harrowing experience of college applications. Mollie Johnson Nelson suspects that her hair has turned white in the process of son Alan's search, though only her hairdresser will know for sure. Last July the Nelsons abandoned Lookout Mountain, TN, for several wonderful weeks in Italy; Mollie is now contemplating learning Italian in preparation for a cooking course she plans to take in Venice (and Wally and I are contemplating a visit to Mollie when she finishes the course). "Where," she asks, "is V.M.'s dad now that I need him?" In Vienna, VA, Martie Benn Martin, still associate editor of Northern Virginia Magazine, is enduring the typical vacillations of a h.s. sr. as she wonders what daughter Jennifer's college choice will be. Son Doug, a h.s. freshman, plays the trumpet and loves all music "from heavy metal to baroque." Dona Van Arsdale Jones, with young children at home — Emily, a 6th grader at National Cathedral School, and Tim, a 2nd grader at Beauvoir — finds plenty to keep her busy even without the madness of SAT's and college application forms. She has been "swamped, not challenged," by her work on various benefits, including the Washington Antiques Show, and by garden club, tennis, school activities, and redecorating her house in Chevy Chase, MD. In January she and Carleton escaped to Aspen to ski and recover.

Several of you sent your musings on Time's winged flight. Penny Writer Theis, in Mentor, OH, finds it difficult to believe that she and Stu celebrated their 25th anniversary last August. Judy Dunn Spangenberg is amazed that son Tyler graduates from Hobart Col. this June. After 20 years Judy is still meeting the challenges of her South Salem, NY, pre-Revolutionary home, "a task not unlike shovelling smoke." 1989 was a productive year, yielding a large vegetable crop and Judy's 14th children's book, published by Random House. Being "totally right-brained," Judy often participates in "brainstorming sessions for companies involved in new product development." Alice Fales Stewart uses that forbidden phrase "middle age" in her note, but she waxes so euphoric about it that it loses most of its sting. The Whirligig of Time brought the Stewarts back to Washington last summer. Alice is teaching 8th grade history (early American) at the Potomac School in McLean, VA, and Dick is assistant attorney general in charge of lands and natural resources at the Justice Dept., working mainly in environmental law. "We both love our work, each other, and the children, who are now in college, h.s., and 4th grade," Alice writes happily.

In Worthington, OH, Susan Jahn Mancini still teaches Italian and French in h.s. Last summer Albert, a professor of Italian at OH State, taught at Middlebury Col. Italian School while Susie and MaraBell, 16, audited classes. Nicholas, 19, a student at the U. of Chicago, stayed home and played electric guitar in his rock group. Susie recently published a review and read a paper on "Learning Centers in the Italian Language Classroom" at a joint convention of the American Council on Teaching of Foreign Language and the American Assn. of Teachers of Italian in Boston; she is also a consultant for an educational tape program in Italian. In Little Rock, AR, Genie Johnson Sigler abandoned teaching several years ago to become financial administrator at Trinity Cathedral; daughter Beth is a jr. business major at Rhodes Col. in Memphis. From Atlanta Barbara Doty writes of her unusual job in sales and as a consultant with Executive Adventure, "an outdoor-based management development company" that uses, among other things, "rope and cable obstacle courses strung between trees 60 feet up to help corporate management teams learn how to work together more effectively." Barbara's son, Joe Garland III, just completed 2 years in the Army (101st Airborne) and is starting a doctorate in clinical psychology. Ginny deBuys is kept hopping by her thriving computer business in Lawrenceville, NJ, and wishes that she could find more time to travel and play. Frances Hanahan, who still sounds Southern after all 3 years in NYC, continues to sell coops, condos, and townhouses for Sotheby's Real Estate. Also in Manhattan, Hedi Haug White loves chairing the Community Planning Board of her upper East Side district, what with all the excitement of a mayoral election and a new city charter.

As usual, I have one anonymous correspondent. This one works full-time as an artist and is with the Perlow Gallery in SoHo, NYC; her girls, 13 and 9, go to Kent Place. Surely this is Jean Walker Campbell? Another New Yorker, Tina Patterson Murray, writes that her educational business Scholastica is "going great guns." Tina and her partner, a math professor in the City Col. system, teach courses in how to take such standardized tests as the SAT and college achievement tests. Tina is also on the boards of 2 schools, 2 social work organizations, and on the Parents' Council at Dickinson, where daughter Renee Sands is a sophomore. Her 2 stepsons are also in college. The Pattersons spend their vacations at their condo in Sun Valley, ID. Tina, by the way, was one of the stars of our class skit at Reunion; in heels (and gloves!), looking very Park Avenue, she was easy to identify as a SB girl on her way to Lynchburg, c. 1960-64. Her husband Brean was one of the 2 courageous men (mine was the other) who portrayed slightly inebriated VA gentlemen coming to call in those old lost days of road trips and parlor duty.

Many of you wrote of your regret at having to miss Reunion. In Gladwyne, PA, Dootsie Duer Colen, "immensely jealous" after seeing Lynne's tape, says there's been a crisis in her life every 5 years but that no more will be permitted; she'll be at the 30th. Daughter Jennifer, fluent in Russian and French, is a sophomore at Trinity Col. in Hartford. She went to Russia in Feb. while Ambler, a h.s. jr., was off to France. Dootsie's job as v.p. for marketing and personnel of a large construction firm remains challenging and rewarding. Nancy Lynah Hood laments the bad timing that kept her from Reunion. Just a month earlier she visited Charlottesville with husband Roger, who does a seminar at the Law School for half a semester. The Hoods had a lovely room at the Colonnade Club on the Lawn and made a sentimental journey down the Blue Ridge to SB. Nancy is now at the Oxfordshire County Museum at Woodstock, where she is "grandly called Head of Resources." Tappy Lynn, whose news I hear regularly from her mother at Friends of the Library meetings at SB, missed the Reunion because of a long-planned trip to Greece with husband Vincent Scully. Tappy and Vince recently moved into a new house in New Haven. Another victim of bad timing, Mary McGraw Clarke did not return from a sojourn in Italy in time to make the trip from Ontario.

While we were gathering at SBC, Lib Kopper Schollaert was in Annapolis watching her daughter graduate from the Naval Academy. Lib's older son is a sr. at UVA and her younger one a sr. in h.s. Lib still teaches French in Arlington, VA, and hopes to receive her M.A. this year. Kitty Griffith's excuse was far less persuasive. Since she's given up smoking and taken up eating, Kitty claims, she hadn't the nerve to face her old classmates. From the looks of her picture in last fall's Alumnae Magazine, Kitty certainly has nothing to hide. Perhaps her absence was merely a modest attempt not to overwhelm the rest of us with her success in big-time banking. In May Kitty was promoted from vice president at Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce to vice president-director of CIBC's NY-based U.S. Corporate Communications Dept. She is responsible for all public relations, marketing communications, market research and employee communications for CIBC in the U.S. Recently recognized in Who's Who of American Women, Kitty lives in Brooklyn Heights with son Foster Terjen, 15.

Some classmates have begun new careers or made interesting shifts in their old ones. Linda Lee McAndrew, who will never stop dancing, enjoys being a student again as she nears her goal of becoming a dance and movement therapist. She also teaches at the Staten Island Children's Museum and looks after Patrick, 9 and Kevin, 4. Kathy Hsu Jeong left the hallowed halls of academe to work as a research scientist in a biotech firm in the East Bay. Kathy's son Matt, 17, a sr. at Skyline h.s., attends UC Berkeley as an accelerated student; he hopes to attend Berkeley, UC San Diego, or an East Coast college in the fall. Genevieve, 15, is interested in languages and music. Husband Gary continues his dental practice in San Leandro. Though the Jeongs escaped the Earthquake of '89 unscathed, Kathy is still "paranoid about driving across the Bay Bridge and under freeway overpasses." Sorry to have missed the Reunion, Kathy did make it to a SB luncheon in San Francisco, where she renewed acquaintance with Mary Sturr Stuart, '62.

Though not changing careers, Peggy Aurand Young just changed places with a move to Houston this June. She spent spring, 1989, on a mini-sabbatical in Spain filming educational videos, one of which will be published this year. Angie Whaley LeClercq, in Knoxville, TN, still clerks for an administrative law judge, handling all the coal mining cases in the Southeast. Angie is amazed that, with her history background, she should have become an expert in an engineering-environmental field. Angie and Fred summered in Leysin, Switzerland, where Kershaw, 13, was attending the Leysin American School. Ted, 26, clerks for a federal district judge in Charleston, and Ben, 24, will have finished his 1st year of law school when you read this. Fred, by the way, was one of those husbands (with Brean Murray, Wally Oates, and Gail Rothrock Trozzo's husband Chuck) who braved Reunion and got to experience the phenomenon of coed dorms so familiar to many of our children.

The most dramatic of all career switches was made by my math major roommate, who, on 12/1/89, was ordained a deacon in the Episcopal Church. The Reverend Sheila Carroll Coopridge, now deacon at St. George's, Belleville, IL, is also pursuing a masters of Divinity at a Dominican seminary. In a class filled with priests and nuns, Sheila is frequently consulted about issues involving the marital state. Daughter Kathryn is a jr. at DePauw, LeaAnn is a freshman at Ohio Wesleyan, and husband Chuck has a new jet to fly.

At last, a word of thanks to our Fearless Leader, V.M. Del Greco Galgano, who worked so hard and, as usual, so enthusiastically as our Reunion Fund Agent that she managed to raise $60,949 from 71% of us—an amazing feat considering our less than impressive giving history. What did our MVP do to celebrate? Like Joe Montana after the Super Bowl, she took off for Disney World. Actually, V.M. postponed her trip until the Christmas holidays (her break from teaching math at James Madison U. in Harrisonburg, VA), and she generously took husband Michael along, as well as Robert, 19, David, 16, and Laura, 13. Of course they stayed with Jo Ann Soderquist Kramer (enjoying her retirement from this job) and her 2 boys, located conveniently nearby.

Here in Washington the response to Reunion was so strong that Marsh Metcalf Seymour and Adrienne Ash organized a mini-reunion in Aug. Those who attended (Adrienne, Marsh and Jack, V.M. and Mike, Lib Kopper Schollaert and Jim, Ginny deBuys, and Hedi Haug White) had a fine time and look forward to future gatherings; so do those of us who were out of town and forced to miss it. I've tried to make up for my absence in a small way by seeing some of you. Martie Benn Martin and I have met for lunch several times, though we are still wide of the mark set by Hedi Haug White and Ashton Barfield, who, Hedi tells me, have had monthly lunches for years. Last fall I met Adrienne Ash for lunch at the Madison Motel, where we were joined by Lech Walesa. Any questions? Adrienne is still running the publishing arm of the National Assn. of Homebuilders and enjoying life in McLean, VA, with daughter Summer, 13, an 8th grader who makes straight A's and plays the saxophone. Summer, the one offspring at Reunion, was named an honorary member of the class of '64. On a glorious Saturday last Oct. Wally and I had a surprise visit with Nancy Gillies. At SB for Friends of the Library, we had just returned from a hike to the Monument when we spied Nancy driving by with a friend, down from Charlottesville to marvel at the foliage; we quite literally chased her down. Nancy was another of our models of high fashion in the class skit—senior robe over Bermuda shorts. So inspired was she by Reunion that she wrote a long narrative poem about it—Exhibit A in the 30th Reunion Scrapbook, sure to be as hot an item as Lynne's videotape. Nancy tells me that Jill Cody Jones, in Lynchburg, is a new grandmother.

Wally and I had the usually busy year. Last June I accompanied him to Copenhagen for an economics conference, whence we hid ourselves off to London and then to the south-eastern counties for Henry James and Jane Austen pilgrimages and heat and sunshine the likes of which we'd never seen in that Sceptered Isle. This year we have enjoyed visits with Wally's elder daughter Cathy and grandson Nicholas (2 in May), returned from their sabbatical and back in Princeton, where Michael is in the English Dept. Chris, 28, is hard at work on his Ph.D. research in physics at the U. of CO. We are delighted that Nora, 25, doing medical research in New Orleans this year, will be entering the U. of MD Medical School in Baltimore this fall. In Jan. Wally and I had a marvelous trip to Greece, where, in that beautiful off-season, we had Mycenae, Delphi, and even the Acropolis almost to ourselves. At Delphi we had a moving experience I feel compelled to share with you. Perhaps it was those ancient stones or the rarefied air of Mt. Parnassus or the inscription "Know Thyself" that made me turn suddenly introspective. Here I was in the middle of life, at the navel of the earth; I framed my question for the Oracle carefully. Well, you know that sybil carries on something awful and then the priest puts it all into hexameters and I confess my Greek is at best rudimentary. But as nearly as I could make out, the Oracle said this: "When in doubt, use Good Taste and Good Judgment."

By the time you read our 1990 class notes we will be well into the new decade. What an exciting time to be alive and hopefully well and happy! Our class seems to be very active in business and community affairs, all while raising families and caring about each other.

Adaline Allen Shinkle and family are hosting a Soviet high school exchange student. For 10 mos. they will have a 15 year-old 'daughter' from Tbilisi in Soviet Georgia. She says, "It is a wonderful learning experience for all of us!" Andy Beerman Sonfield "loves life" in Hilton Head Island. She works part time at a jewelry store and has organized a parent network at their school to help prevent drug and alcohol use. She promotes SBC to h.s. students. She hopes former classmates will look her up when they visit the island. Martha Bennett's husband, Edward, brought us up to date on Martha's life. He reports that she is "better looking and more fun" than ever, with a "tad more gray" in her hair for which he and the 4 children take credit. They enjoyed a week with Ann Banks Herrod and Hank in Destin, FL. The Herrods introduced Martha to Ed in 1976, and are godparents to their oldest son. Leslie Bissell Hoopes took a "Swan tour" to Egypt in Jan. with her mother and a friend. She will use her new knowledge during her Egyptian tours at the Metropolitan Museum of Art. Toby has a sailboat; they are looking for alternate crew members.

Pam Boyd Daniel is living in London, England, while husband, Dave, is commanding officer of the Naval Medical Clinics Command. She teaches algebra and geometry at the American Community School. They spent Christmas '89 in Germany, cruising down the Rhine. Melinda Brown Everett was honored 3 times in '89 as an outstanding public relations director for the Medical Center of Central Massachusetts-Memorial in Worcester. Phoebe Brunner Peacock continues as Latin Language Cataloger at the Library of Congress, president of the SBC Alumnae Club of Washington, DC, and member of the board of governors of the Women's National Democratic Club. She also enjoys her thoroughbred gelding. Kate Buster teaches the "flora, fauna, and geology" of the Aspen area to children and adults in summer, and has taken up snowshoeing as a competitive sport in winter. She says that many downhillers yell at her, "Lady, you're going the wrong way!" as she goes up the mountain. Elizabeth Cadwalader tried teaching when her son turned 2, but said it was "DISASTER." Now she is copy editing at home on a free-lance basis and has "plenty of work to do".

Laura Campbell Walker is a busy elementary school principal in Miami. Kathy Cooley Maher is Admissions and Development Director at UMS-Wright. Barbara Baur Dunlap is busy with 5 children, Charlie, Bible study, and volunteer work. Her favorite volunteer activity is her work at the Crisis Pregnancy Centers. Libby Harvey Hodgkins, chairperson of the Petaluma emergency services committee, reports that they really "rock'n rolled" in the big earthquake, but luckily there was no damage. She is now President of Alpha Chemical & Biomedical Laboratories, the analytical laboratory she and Joe started in 1982. Rickey Hendricks and husband Mark Foster are both Ph.D. historians, teaching at the U. of CO at Denver. Rickey received a grant from the National Institutes of Health to write a book on the history of the Kaiser Permanente Medical Care program. She has published several articles and is working on the book full-time. Carter Hunter Hopkins reminds us that the career planning and Lifetimes Center at SBC is available to us at any time. Come on down, stay in the new Elston Inn, and take advantage of individual counseling and testing. Use this valuable resource!

From Izmir, Turkey, Elaine Jenks Emerson writes "before our class notes move from the middle to the beginning of that section of the alumnae magazine." She says that Izmir is by far the nicest place they've been. She'll "still take a sidewalk cafe over a mall any day." She is a full-time wife and mother for the first time ever, and enjoys exploring "the world's greatest outdoor museum." Anne Kinsey Dinan and Terry leased, designed and renovated space on Park Avenue in Manhattan for a new continental restaurant, opening Feb. 1990. She wishes all of us a lively year. Frances Kirven Morse is a full-time doctoral candidate at the Harvard Graduate School of Education, focusing on technology in education. They too, like the Shinkles, hosted a Soviet teenager for a month. Frances and John had a "great laugh-filled summer reunion" in San Francisco with Camilla Reid Hazelhurst and Judy Harbottle Maselli. Jennie Lyons Fogarty has our reunion photo on her refrigerator. She suggests that instead of waiting another 5 years to get together we should meet in 1991 for a week at a fat farm. Last November, Ann Peterson Griffin went on a trip starting in Kenya and ending in Paris. She sends special thanks, as we all do, to Suzanne and Carol for the great job they do.

Bonnie Pitman-Gelles has a new position as associate director at the U. of CA, Berkeley, Art Museum. She also chairs a national task force on museum education. She is a vice president of the American Assoc. of Museums. They look forward to the move, but will miss Seattle. Emmy Savage Borthwick sends best wishes to everyone. Julie Seibels Northup moved to Seattle from LA. She is an associate at Martin-Simonds Associates, a management consulting firm. She hopes to see Trina Jensen. Lynn Settlemeyer Arts took family trips to Seattle, Hilton Head, and Steamboat Springs this year. Still with Westview Press, she gets to call Pembroke Herbert Kyle now and then to discuss the bookmaking business and catch up on life in MA. Pat Skarda, associate professor at Smith College, had a big article published in the summer '89 issue of Studies in Romanticism. She suggests that SBC publish a collection of literature written by alumnae similar to the one she is editing for Smith.

Amy Thompson McCandless, Peter and boys spent the summer in the bayous. She combined research on women's colleges in AL, MS, and LA with visits to Civil War battlefields and antebellum plantations. She says their biggest accomplishment of the year was surviving Hurricane Hugo. Although their home and property were heavily damaged, they themselves were lucky to avoid injury. Suzanne Torgan Weston took a permanent job doing software independent verification and validation for a company for whom she worked as a consultant. Michal Twine has her own successful interior decorating firm in Portsmouth. She loves living on the NH seacoast. She participates in the literacy tutoring program there. This year she hopes to go to Italy and the Caribbean. Ellen Wakefield Ottenritter has moved to Manchester, MA, "by the sea." She enjoys work in career development. Sandy Waters reports she is "doing well for middle age!!" She is a trial lawyer in Denver, specializing in employment and personal injury cases. She plans a "sabbatical/trip" soon.

Connie Williams de Bordenave has a part-time job at the library, while continuing to make, show and sell jewelry. They had a super trip West last summer, tent camping in WY and NM. Cecelia Williamson Grinstead says all is well in Short Hills. She is busy with 4 children. Christine Witcover Dean is "still at the same ole grind". She lost 20 pounds this year. She has been in her home state of NC trying cases. She hopes that 1990 will be more "adventuresome". Penny Yeargin Allsopp has enjoyed her 8-year term on the Board of Overseers of Sweet Briar. She has become more involved in community activities in Atlanta, including the Pace Academy Board of Trustees, the Kiwanis Club and REACH Inc.

Thank you all for sending news. The highlight of my year was going for 2 weeks as soloist on a concert tour of Germany and the Netherlands. My jewelry business is fun and rewarding. Jim and I will be spending a month in San Diego, and hope to see some classmates there. Let us all keep in touch with each other. Have a wonderful year!

Thinking of Sweet Briar always brings back the happiest memories — of special friends, special events, and a special four years. It is wonderful to recall those precious times while we keep up with what has happened to the Class of 1972 since we were all together.

Georgie Vairo (NYC) has been promoted to Professor of Law and Associate Dean at Fordham Law School. She travels quite a bit in her new capacity as Chairperson of the Dalkon Shield Claimants Trust and often gives speeches to judges and lawyers, but still finds time to teach and think of SBC. Also in NYC, Warren Moore reports the release of her first book, Mountain Voices: A Legacy of the Blue Ridge and Great Smokies. * Warren continues her career as a reading specialist and photojournalist. B. J. Martin sends greetings to all SBC friends from her home in the Big Apple. She misses everyone and the great times we had. It is not too soon to begin planning for 20th reunion, B. J.!

Susan Desmet Bostic writes from NJ that 1989 was a busy year. Her daughter, Rosalie, started kindergarten and Susan is busy with a lively 1st grade class of her own. She is now teaching the children of people with whom she grew up! Jennifer Linsley - Alphin writes from MD that she has a bit more "free" time since Suzanne and Tommy are both in school. Jennifer tutors math at Severn School, teaches Sunday School, gives "Kids On the Block" puppet shows, and smocks. Also in MD Karen Medford Distelhorst works as a tax consultant and spends "free" time skiing in Aspen and Chamonix.

From our beloved VA Susan Snodgrass Wynne writes that she spent most of her time the past year decorating the Ronald McDonald House in Norfolk. She continues to be involved assisting families whose children have cancer while enjoying sons John (14) and Brad (8). Briggett J. Keith graduated from the Protestant Episcopal Theological Seminary in Alexandria. Jeannette Pillsbury also is a serious student, working on a Ph.D. in educational administration at UVA. She often sees SBC grads from various classes and says that the sense of community remains strong among all who have been to Sweet Briar.

Farther south Sally Haas (GA) has been promoted to regional sales support manager for the southern sales region of Hewlett-Packard Company. She has been with the company for 11 years. Congratulations! Susan Waller Nading (AL) and family enjoyed a trip to San Francisco. Susan and Margaret Hayes Brunstad are working hard for the SBC annual fund. Betty Works Fuller (TX) is deacon-in-charge of the parish of the Annunciation. This part-time job occupies Betty when she is not taking care of new baby William.

In CA Patricia Brown expects her 3rd child. Husband, Jim Snider, Amelia (6) and Robin (3) are excited! After a 6-month leave Patricia will return to work doing educational policy research for Far West Laboratory. On the international front Stephanie Harmon Simonard sends greetings from France. She works in the international tax field and is president of the American Club of Paris, a business and social club dating back to the days of Benjamin Franklin! During the Economic Summit in Paris, Stephanie met President Bush and Secretaries Baker and Brady.

Not as much news this year; guess I'll try to beat the Christmas cards with my reminders next year. I had a lovely visit with Ginger Upchurch Collier, Kathy Upchurch Takvorian, Bobo Ryan Hoyt, and Trish Neale Van Clief at the Alumnae Council meeting in October. All are well and working hard for Sweet Briar as always. I'm still teaching English literature at St. Andrews Presbyterian College in Laurinburg, NC. I'll spend most of the summer at Ohio State U where I have been awarded a fellowship from the National Endowment for Humanities. The chance to return to research will be wonderful, but I will miss Bill and son Willie (5). Please put me on your Christmas card list so I can share more news next year.

"76ers" - Plan to join in the fun of our 15th Reunion in May '91. Those of us who attended 5 and 10 promise a wonderful time, well worth the trip back down memory lane to our beautiful campus in the Blue Ridge.

Peggy Weimer Parrish graduates from law school in May and sits for the bar in July. She attended a dinner hosted by Caroline Bickel McLoughlin with Cathy Slatinshek, Margo Mahoney, Sally Mott Lawrence and Ookie Hays Cooper. Caroline's husband Hollis works at the Treasury Dept. directly under Sec. Nick Brady. "Mott" left the FCC to form Sarah Lawrence Communications, now fully incorporated. She specializes in planning and media relations. Sons Christopher and Bobby are 4 and 1.

Direct from SBC is news of Keedie Grones who has been to FL to visit Denise Elthridge LaCouver ('77) and Courtney Kneese Gronin ('89), to VA Beach to see our Sally Old Kitchin and Sarah Longstreth, Sarah Scott, Libby White Drbal, Viv Yamaguchi Cohen, Maggie Shriver (all '77) and Addy Eshbach ('78). Also at the Beach, Lisa Nelson Robertson and Tim are expecting #5 in Aug. Tricia Talbott Reed and Tom had Wrightly Thompson Reed, Jr. on Christmas Eve. They have 2 girls, Meghan, 4 and Ashley, 2. Tom is CFO at Autmetric, Inc., a gov't consulting firm in Alexandria.

In Chapel Hill, NC, Chris Carr Dykstra is ass't. prof. at UNC Dept. of Pathology. Daughter Susan is 7 and in 1st grade. Chris was visited in her new lab by Lochrane Coleman Smith. Sally Old Kitchin had William Old on 4/24/89. Maria is 8, Leggett 5. Debbie Massie Thurman will probably move back to VA from S. CA this year. Russ is a writer and in technical advertising for TV and motion pictures. He had a major role in making acclaimed movie "84 Charlie MOPIC." Their children are Jennifer 3 1/2 and Natalie 2.

After retiring from stockbrokering, Kathy Whichard Poston (children Kayce 3 and McLean 7) is busy with fox hunting, horses and civic affairs. She serves on the zoning and planning board of Apex, NC. Ann Kiley Crenshaw and Clarke had Gordon Roper 1/5/89. He joins Clarke, Jr., 6.

The Crenshaws spent T-Giving at the Greenbrier and plan to travel to Europe in May. Ann continues her law practice with McGuire Woods in VA Beach, civic work and car pooling. Kari Anderson Shipley (Delray Beach, FL) is adding on to her home - with watching TV in the laundry room, plaster in meals, and 3 little boys in sleeping bags, Kari says she could write a script for Erma Bombeck. The Shipleys have been bareboat sailing in the Virgin Islands, plan to go to the Windwards and on a ski trip in the spring. She writes, "All SBC friends welcome, but must bring own sleeping bags."

Catherine Adams Thompson, played Mary Bailey in the local production of "It's A Wonderful Life". She and Miller traveled to Cancun and Venezuela in Feb. Linda-Jean Smith Schneider and Lee have settled into a cozy townhouse in the hills of Bucks County, PA. L-J manages the library and research services at Stradley, Ronan, Stevens and Young. Lee is in Research and Development with Leeds and Northrop Corp. Laurie Lenkel received a masters in Pharmacy Admin. last summer. Love it: Jeannie Bateson Hamby wishes she could stay 35 forever and that Allan (so adorable) could remain 4! She loves motherhood and is a realtor in her family business. Husband Lou is a partner with Alley, Maass, Rogers and Lindsey in Palm Beach. Wendy Bursnell Wozniak and Mike moved to a new house 5/89 just after daughter #2, Allison Julia, was born 4/24. The Wozniaks traveled to AZ in Feb. and planned a 2nd honeymoon to HI. John and Dede Ryan Ale (and their 2 boys - Matthew Ryan born 6/26/89) moved up the block (exhausting, never again!) and planned a trip to London 1/90. Dede is pres. of Houston SBC Club and her sister BoBo (who interviewed me for admission to SBC!) is area AR.

Yes, Kelsey Canady Grillo, I DO know your name! Sorry about the editing error last year. Kevin and Kelsey had their 2nd, Parker Douglas 11/3, joining sister McKenzie, 2. The Griffos spent lots of time at Winter-green last year (saw SBC "more beautiful than ever" and C'ville "it's grown so much it even has a MALL!"), traveled to NYC and had front row seats for "Phantom of the Opera" and plan a trip to London. Debbie Mutch Olander left Honeywell in Nov. to join husband Bill's consulting co. Their business keeps them traveling constantly, but they managed a personal trip to HI for 2 weeks. Debbie presented a paper to the College Music Symposium/Caribbean chapter in San Juan in April on competitive analysis and its analogy to musical style analysis. (Whew!)

Nancy Simonds works at UT Southwestern Medical Center in Dallas in Pediatric Radiology. She traveled to AK (saw beautiful wildlife, went deep sea fishing and caught a 32 lb. halibut) and to the Brit. Virgin Islands for a 7-day sailing adventure. Nancy also works with 4-6 graders at her church. Kit Newman Detering is active on numerous boards and committees including the Houston Livestock and Rodeo Show. She attended a cooking school outside Florence, Italy, in June, traveled every weekend from Sept. to Christmas and planned to attend a health spa near Mexico City in Jan. Children Cassie and Carlos III are 4 and 3. Susan Verbridge Paulson is active with kids in the Methodist church where husband Larry is minister. The Paulsons live in Rocky Ford, CO with Christina 7 and Danny 5.

May 27th was wedding day for Susan Walton and Mike Klaveness who honeymooned in Paris and Normandy. Allyson Wilmer Jacobs was a bridesmaid. In Houston, Susan is a legal asst. with Coca Cola Foods, but is considering a career change. She and Mike enjoy Scottish country dancing. Ron, Cynde Seiler Eister and 3 children are in Williamsport, PA where Cynde has a home computer business. The Eisters enjoy decorating their new beach cottage. Sally Crickenburger Brady reports Gordon has a new position as Special Asst. with the International Affairs area of the State Dept. The Bradys visited with Peyton White Lumpkin and Maureen O'Hearn Slowinski and families during a picnic last summer. Sally met Mary Woodford and Spanish fiancé ("quite charming") and says Emy de Quesada dates a friend of Gordon's.

We haven't heard from Ann Lee Webster in years and were glad to learn she's a top real estate exec. for Island Rentals and RE in Charlotte, NC. She and husband Tom spent their 1st year in their new home which they designed and built. They keep in touch with Carol Fiske Platt. (Send news.) Katy Mikell Cochran (also in Charlotte) had her 2nd, Lillie Mikell on 9/19/89 and arrived home from the hospital the day before Hurricane Hugo crushed their garage and 2 cars. All are safe, and doing well. Connie Radford Butler is an asst. teacher at "the preschool around the corner" and keeps up with her sewing and applique business. The Butlers' children are Austin 8 and Robert 4. Gail Ann Zarwell Wentler is busy with volunteer work and children Laurie 4, and William 2.

Lynn Kahler Berg is Director of Art Services for a non-profit organization she founded which transports fine-art exhibits to museums across the US. In Jan. they opened "A Century of Collecting: The Maier Museum, Randolph-Macon Women's College." Their exhibition of Thomas Rowlandson's drawings opened at the Frick in Feb. Ainslie Jones Uhl, Robert and twins Colbern and Hart live in NC but look forward to a month in NC this summer. They enjoy their new co-op in the east 90's ("Full of Children") where Ainslie is on the co-op board. Robert is with Salomon Bros.

Long awaited news from Demetra (Demi) Georgis Bowles and Henry who are living in San Fran. CA with their 2 children, Henry 5 1/2 and Nellie 1 1/2. Demi is the Chairman of the Edgewood Garden Fair, the oldest Charity in N. CA. The Bowles are redecorating their house in the country and took a ski trip to Sugar Bowl near Lake Tahoe. Laurie Fitzgerald Nowlan plays lots of tennis and paddle tennis in Phila. and has 3 children: Patrick 8, Caroline 6 and Fitz 4. Susan Ray Karlson has a new job as graphic designer/production artist for Microbial, ID, Inc. and works p/t at the University. "In the children's dept." she is working for a breathalon (mountain bikes and cross country) for their school building fund and is in charge of the "Socceroo" program for the County Soccer league.

This unidentified card was received, "Ed and I had an exciting year with the birth of our son Matthew on 3/22/89. Matthew and I traveled to Phil. to visit Liz Farmer Jarvis and her 2 girls. Liz and Andrew expect their 3rd child 7/90. In Oct., we went to Albany, NY to visit Jill Wentorf Wright and her daughter and new son, born 7/89." Additional news from Liz Jarvis of the core exhibit of 300 years of Phil. history - a $1 million project at the Historical Soc. of PA. She was also on "All Things Considered" on National Public Radio in Dec. Margot Mahoney marries David Budin in July and asked me to be an attendant. (She tells me we are too old to call them bridesmaids - smile?) Margot has a new townhouse in Old Town Alexandria - she is decorating between work and wedding plans. Ann Hawkins started her own production company "Companion Pictures" in San Diego with 2 others last year: business is great. Ann planned to visit Sally Schultz (who has a successful mortgage brokerage firm) in Seattle over New Years and ran into Ann Rubell Allen ('78) at an SBC luncheon. Melanie Archer Graetzer and Tony traveled to St. Thomas 4/89 and she planned to visit Ann and Sally in June. Daughter Emily (4th grade) plays on 2 soccer teams, keeps Mel on her toes. Son Ian is 3 1/2. Terese DeGrandi Busch writes "life in Atlanta is great, married life's fabulous, work incredibly busy, and maybe 1990 is the year I'll get serious about having kids."

Virginia Spangler Polley and David (and Frank, 2) moved to Greensboro, NC in Feb. They planned a trip to Italy this past spring. Treacy Markey Shaw is publicity chairman for the 9th Annual Atlanta Heart Ball. (Mark's father died of heart disease this past year so it is a cause close to their hearts.) Daughter Morgan is 5 and Mark, Jr. 2 1/2. Marsha Taylor DeLain was at SBC in Oct. for Alumnae Council and reports, "On the surface the campus appears unchanged, but closer scrutiny reveals renovations in the dorms and academic buildings that combine to make the new SBC quite a vision of loveliness and comfort. (We never had it so good!)" An encouraging word to spur each of us to attend 15th reunion next May. Marsha also took a business trip to Boulder, CO and was overwhelmed by the Rockies.

A newsy letter from Cissy Humphrey with the following items—Felice Ludington Taylor's husband Jim was on the Bay Bridge in SF, CA during the quake, but managed to get home in 5 hrs. They live in Marin County and have a daughter, Leslie, almost 2. Pat Dean has lost 80 lbs. (congratulations, please reveal your secret!) and sells real estate on Cape Cod. Tennessee Nielson is living in Plano, TX with Kelsey, 5, and is general counsel for a small computer firm. Beth Bates Locke entertained Cissy, Kay Elisor Hopkins and Tennessee for an evening of girl talk and fun - great time till 2 AM telling old SBC stories. Beth's little Matthew is 4 and husband Claude is an independent filmmaker. Kay's oldest, Sarah, was 9 in Feb. Elizabeth is 6 and John 3. Kay, with Neiman-Marcus Mail Order, was promoted to a supervisory position. Candi Casey, on vacation from her job in Italy, visited her parents in Santa Barbara in July. Candi is with Shearson Lehman Hutton in Milan. Lola Brock Meakin ('77) lives in England with Jeremy and 2 children but visited her parents this year in FL. And some sad news - Jackie Browning (Econ. Prof.) died of cancer in August. Cissy Humphrey is back at work full-time as a paralegal after free-lancing for 4 years. She traveled with her niece to SF, CA in July and had a wonderful time. Cissy wrote of sad personal events. Her grandmother passed away 2/89, then her father died suddenly in July. These 2 tragedies come on the heels of her brother's death in 2/87. We each send sincere condolences for these awful losses, particularly in such a short period of time.

I ran into Melanie Coyne Cody in a restaurant in Chicago. She is an executive recruiter for a firm that specializes in advertising/marketing and job-shares with another working mom! Caitlin is 6 1/2 and Sarah 3 1/2. Melanie is active on Sarah's nursery school board and in The Women's Club of Evanston with Melissa Greenwood Reimer ('75). Last summer Missy Briscoe McNatt and family visited the Cods for a week. Bobbie Hauck Gribble is with AT&T and Russ is starting his own business. Rusty and Bradley are 7 and 6, and Katie is 4. Catherine Catlett was married to Maj. Gen. Richard B. Collins USAF (Ret.) on 11/24/89 in Palm Springs, CA. They will live in Ft. Lauderdale where Catherine is in private practice with a law firm. Galvin Gentry is asst. dir. of Cedarcroft School and teaches riding. She still drives her Morgan horses with great success and is adding an indoor riding arena for lessons and summer camp. When last we left Andie Yellott, she and Ben Reynolds had eloped 3/88. They now have news of Benet James born 11/25/89. Andie writes, "Unfortunately, he'll never go to SBC, except perhaps on road trips from W&L or UVA, but he's already proven himself a true party animal (stay up all night and sleep all day...)." Andie has taken a break from teaching and Ben has nearly completed revisions on his novel; he continues to break new ground teaching verbally gifted kids. Ann Works Balderston is Benet's godmother. Ann and Biv spent a month at their ranch outside Jackson Hole and took another trip to Gasparilla. Billy is 7, Sarah 4 and Maggie 2.

I received an adorable Christmas card from Lochrane Coleman Smith and Mell (with a picture of Lil' Lochrane) but no news. Margaret Milnor Mallory writes that she visited SBC in Oct. with step-daughter Allison who was dead set against it until she arrived. Then she, like all of us, fell in love with the old place. (Maggie noted, "I must add it's because the girl she stayed with took her to W&L that night!") Nothing changes. Margaret stayed with Elliott Graham Schoenig and Jerry (in C'ville) and the Schoenigs plan to return the visit in June. Margaret also saw Tessie Costello Howell and Chris while in VA. Ookie Hays Cooper and Jim visited SBC on their way back to TN. The Coopers met up with Terese De Grandi Busch and Mike in Jim's hometown of Shelbyville where the 4 of them attended the Annual Walking Horse Celebration and toured the Jack Daniels Distillery. Ookie's big news is the birth of daughter Mary Argentine Adams 1/19/90. Kate Kelly Smith and Elliott have been living in London with daughter Isabel, 18 mos. Kate works for Town and Country as United Kingdom ad. mgr. Janet Durham Sam and Tony moved into their newly built home on Nov. 1 and expected their 3rd baby in Feb. A BIG surprise. Juliette is 4 and Anthony 2. Meg Shields Duke and Jamie took a wonderful trip with her entire family through England and France last year. Her Christmas card came complete with many pictures of what looked like an incredible experience. Meg wrote that Gray Thomas Avery ('75) visited the Dukes in Vail this past winter and she (Meg) saw Debbie Vatterott Ruck in St. Louis. Debbie was promoted to VP of Mercantile Bank and is completing her last year of graduate school in banking.

Bill and I had a relatively quiet year (following his heart attack in the spring of '89). Our Caroline is almost 2 - and a joy. I am an ardent fund-raiser for the Mental Health Assoc. of Chicago and a volunteer on Lynn Martin's Repub. Campaign bid for US Senate. I look forward to seeing every classmate at Reunion. Do make an effort to join us, you won't be disappointed!

She started law school at Cumberland School of Law in Birmingham, AL. She will work for a law firm there in the summer. Maia Free married Jay Morton Jalenak 7/29/89 at White Oak Plantation in Baton Rouge. Following the wedding trip to the Caribbean, they will live in Baton Rouge.

Natalie Garland will complete her 2nd year of Law School at FL State by summer '90. She is concentrating on environmental law. Carolyn Grant married John Gallagher 12/16/89. They will live in Boston, MA until he finishes law school in May '91. Mary Halliday is engaged and living in NYC, working as a legal recruiter. She will attend NYU Grad. School for her masters in education. Stephanie Dee Harden visited a friend in TX after her job at The White House ended. She returned to Old Town, Alexandria, and is on the job hunt. She runs into SBCers all the time: Elizabeth Belser, Christina Savage and Erica Heonig.

Augusta Jones Harrison is happily married, living in Long Beach, CA where husband Woody is an Admirals Aide in the Navy. There was a mini reunion at their 6/10/89 wedding in Charlottesville. Barbi Middleton and Erin Handte were bridesmaids. Other SBC guests included music prof. Alexandra Eddy. Augusta has applied for an interior design position and continues voice lessons. She also pursues modeling. Lisa Hildebrandt loved SBC so much that she could not stay away. She is presently a Resident Coordinator, living in Gray. She works full time at a daycare center in Lynchburg, teaching 3-year-olds. Kathryn Ingham (DE) works for Wilmington Trust in their management training program. Minta Jones started a business called "Special Tee's" with a friend. They make hand printed t-shirts and dresses. She works with horses at a large polo barn and teaches beginners. She also had a chance to play a waitress in the new Elvis film. Katie Keogh lives in Boston, with Amy Sanidas (89) and Sydney Laughran (89) after working in NYC for a year. Denise Landau is still in the family tire business. Her fiance also joined the company in Sept. Their wedding date is 10/20/90 so they are busy with plans.

Julie Martin was married on 7/1/89. Denise Landau and Jennifer Pedrick were bridesmaids. Julie and Jerry honeymooned on Paradise Island and settled in Little Rock, AR. She does computer programming work. Lylle Martin has been traveling from Panama to Miami all year. She just got back from HI, Hong Kong and Singapore. In Oct. she had an exhibition in Panama. Lylle hopes to go to the school of the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston next Sept. to work on her masters in painting. Dec. 16, she will be maid of honor for Cary Grant's wedding. Nancy McDonald is sales assistant to a stockbroker at Alex Brown and Sons in Greenwich, CT. Kelly Meredith is at BNA Software as administrative assistant to the director of operations. She will start her MBA at George Washington in Jan. Ellyn Palermo is hard at work studying medicine at the U. of FL

Jennifer Pedrick is at a boarding school near Providence, RI. She teaches geography, math and science in the middle school and is a dorm parent. Anne Powell is working hard in her 2nd year at UVA Law School. Ro Putz and husband Jim are still in Lynchburg, VA. Grace Quirk graduated 5/90 and is doing a residency. Suzanne Reed got her Masters in Early Childhood and hopes to teach in the fall. She was a bridesmaid at Carrie Winkler's wedding. She keeps in touch with Lloys Frates, who lives in South Africa. Caroline Reu is in Atlanta in graduate school in architecture at GA Tech. Scarlett Roitman finished her masters. She and Mark are about to buy and redecorate a flat in London. They expect a baby on 12/20. Scarlett is writing a novel and works part-time editing manuscripts. Jeanne Rovics is engaged and living in Old Town. She is planning her wedding, scheduled for 9/1/90 in WI. Heather Shettle is in her 2nd yr. at the U. of MD School of Law. She spent one summer in London taking law courses at LSE. While there she saw Michele Gargano quite a bit. While at school, Heather works part time at the attorney general's office for the State of MD. Paige Shiller lives in Athens, GA with Whitney Bolt. She finished her masters in journalism at the U. of GA and is looking for a job. Paige saw Cameron Cox and Christina Savage over Thanksgiving. Cameron is studying to be a vet. tech. and Christina is in D.C. working for a law firm. Denton Freeman works for Style magazine in Richmond. Heather Skeens and husband Ed moved to San Diego, CA for at least 2 years. Chrissy Tellalian is a legislative assistant on Capitol Hill. Lisa Thompson is in Edinburgh, in her final year at law school and will be graduating 7/90 with a L.L.B. in Scots Law, with concentration on International Law and European Economic Community Law. Christine Diver married Second Lt. Matthew Ans 8/5/89. She looks forward to coming back to the U.S. to finish her studies. Andrea Williams '89 was maid of honor and Donna Meyer '89 was a bridesmaid. Also present were Renate Leckzas '85 and Priscilla Newton '87. Stacey Vilar lives in Boston and works for the State Department. She keeps in touch with Virginia Bennett and Sarah Ammar. Virginia is in Atlanta; Sarah is in Bluefield, WV. Kelley Yurt married James Darren Moore 7/3/88. They are moving to Charlotte, NC.

As for me, I moved to Arlington, VA. I received my masters and certification in Early Childhood Education from Lesley College in Cambridge, MA. I am at a private school in Arlington, teaching kindergarten. I have 13 wonderful children and love my job. I plan to move this summer and to find a job in the public school system.

Please Note:

The College is changing computer systems. For a short period of time, it will not be possible to make daily address changes as we hear of alumnae moving. Any mail returned to the College will be sent first class to the new address. We regret this inconvenience; please bear with us!

PATTI POWELL PUSEY '60:

Insuring Sweet Briar's Future—Literally of gift even more valuable.

"It's a great way for an alumna to make a substantial charitable contribution, provided she has adequate coverage for herself and her family already. Every woman should have life insurance to cover her responsibilities—child care, college loans, the mortgage—plus disability insurance to cover her earnings in the event she can't work. Once those two items are in place, then absolutely, she should consider making a gift of insurance to Sweet Briar."

For more information on planned gifts of life insurance, please write Patti Powell Pusey, c/o Box G, Sweet Briar College, Sweet Briar, VA 24595 or call William H. Meadows III, Vice President for College Relations at 804/381-6161.

Patti's expertise in insurance, mutual funds and annuities makes her a valuable member of Sweet Briar's Planned Giving Advisory Council. She also has been hard at work calling classmates as Co-Chairman of the Class of 1960 Reunion Gifts Committee.

final premium is paid in ten to twelve years. So, with a total investment of $1500 to $2000, an alumna can provide Sweet Briar with $25,000 or more, if the policy pays dividends which are used to purchase additional insurance. Because premiums increase with age, a young alumna might consider giving the College an insurance policy. She would be able to make a much greater gift than she might otherwise. She would pay for a limited time period, and the death benefit might increase as well.

"Then too, the donor gets a tax deduction for her annual premiums. The College eventually receives the money tax-free, making this type

"My husband would ask, 'Patti, what are you going to do when the children don't need you?' and I would answer, 'I'll worry about it when the time comes.'"

"Sure enough, at age forty, the time came.

"I realized I didn't have to be home all day anymore, so I went through career testing. The results indicated that, of all the fields I was well suited for, life insurance was number one.

"Life insurance? Number one? I knew nothing about life insurance except that Bill Pusey had a policy, and upon his death I would have money. That was the absolute extent of my knowledge—it's not a subject you pick up through bedside reading!

"I investigated other career options first, but insurance turned out to be the best choice after all. It's a business that revolves around people, their problems and priorities.

"You have to be very creative because no two people are alike. Mechanics, doctors, lawyers—I have a window on many different worlds. It's very satisfying to help individuals find ways to provide for themselves and the people they care about, as well as charitable institutions like Sweet Briar.

"For example, with the right kind of policy, a 30-year-old nonsmoker can make the College the owner and beneficiary of a $25,000 permanent life insurance policy with graduated premiums of about $100 per year. The

Sweet Briar Alumnae Council and the Inauguration of Sweet Briar's Eighth President October 4-7, 1990
